1882: [LILLYbm] The English & Hindi Dictionary. An Etymological, Idiomatic and Illustrated Dictionary, by Thomas Craven. Lucknow: American Methodist Mission Press, 1882. Original pink wrappers, lettered and decorated in black (in poor condition). Pp. [6] 1 2-307 308. Second edition? Not in Zauhmüller (who lists only the same author's New Royal Dictionary of 1932). "The English and Hindi Dictionary is a reproduction of the People's Dictionary [1881]... This Dictionary has been compiled to meet a want felt in the Anglo-Vernacular Schools of North India. There have been dictionaries published heretofore which have served a certain purpose; none of them, however, will be found to be as helpful and accessible as the one now issued...The publication of this dictionary was undertaken with the special object of making the work accessible to the poorer boys of the Anglo-Vernacular Schools...By printing a very large edition, the Publisher is enabled to place this dictionary at the low price of eight annas per copy [half the price of the People's Dictionary]" (Preface).

Ninth edition 1891: [LILLYbm] The Royal School Dictionary in English and Roman-Urdu. A Pronouncing, derivative, idiomatic and illustrated dictionary. Revised and enlarged edition (fiftieth thousand), by Thomas Craven. Lucknow: The Methodist Publishing House, 1891. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [6] 1 2-457 458 + 72-page catalogue. Ninth edition. "The demand for the Royal School Dictionary still continues. We now send forth the ninth edition, making a round 50,000 copies issued since the publication of the first issue.... A very large amount of additional matter has been introduced, and the number of pages has been increased by about forty per cent, so that the book is now much larger without the appendices, than the last editions were with them" (The Agent, 1891).

1883: [LILLYbm] A new English-Hindustani dictionary with illustrations from English literature and colloquial English, translated into Hindustani, by S.W. Fallon [1817-1880] and John Drew Bate. Banaras: Printed at the Banaras Medical Hall Press, sold by E.J. Lazarus, Banaras and Trübner and Co., London, 1883. Contemporary brown half-leather and brown cloth, spine with four raised bands, lettered and decorated in gold.

Pp. [4] I 2-674, i ii-iv + 2 pp. adverts. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 181 (listing only edition of 1905 [1941]).

"This is a companion volume to the author's Hindustani and English Dictionary. It contains more words than are generally found in other works with the addition of many thousand idioms and phrases with their Hindustani equivalents.... This work was commenced by the late Dr. S.W. Fallon in 1879. He had personally corrected and revised up to the letter E, and had issued up to the word 'Beastliness'. But unfortunately on the 3rd day of October 1880, he died in England of mental exhaustion [and the work was completed by the Rev. J. D. Bate]" (Preface).

1884: [IUW] A dictionary of Urdū, classical Hindī, and English. By John T. Platts. London, W. H. Allen & co., 1884. viii, 1259, [1] p. 27 cm. Caption title: A dictionary, Hindūstānī and English. Lettered on cover: Platts. Hindūstānī dictionary.

1892: [LILLYbm] Hindustani Idioms with vocabulary and explanatory notes for the use of candidates for the higher standard, by A. N. Phillips. London: Kegan, Paul, Trench, Trübner and Co., 1892. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. i-v vi-viii xix-xii I 2-228. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. English-Hindustani, pp. [107]-226, with addenda and corrigenda, pp. [227]-228.

"I offer this little book to the public as the result of many years spent in India in active work among the natives of that country....My idea has been [among others]...to give a number of words and phrases which, though in everyday use, are not to be found as a rule in the ordinary dictionaries and vocabularies. The very full vocabulary I have added is intended...for all ordinary purposes to supply, in fact, the place of a dictionary" (Preface).

1898: [LILLYbm] Manuale e Glossario della lingua indostana o urdu, by Camillo Tagliabue. Rome: Tipografia della R. Accademia dei Lincei, 1898. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in silver and decorated in silver and blind. Pp. [8] I 2-288 289-290. First edition. Collezione scolastica del R. Istituto Orientale in Napoli. Vol. II. Not in Zaunmüller. Italian-Hindi/Urdu, pp. [225]-288. Volume I in the series was the same author's Grammatica della lingua indostana o urdu (Rome, 1892). The manual and glossary appears to contain one of the earliest Italian Hindi vocabularies. Zaunmüller lists no Italian Hindi dictionaries up to 1955.

1905: [LILLYbm] An English-Hindustani Dictionary, by George S[peirs] A[lexander] Ranking. Calcutta: Thacker, Spink & Co., 1905. Original brown cloth over boards, decorated in blind and lettered in gold. Pp. [2 (verso of leaf, i)] ii iii-v vi-xi, I 2-758. First edition. Printed at the Baptist Mission Press in Calcutta. Not in Zaunmüller. English-Hindustani only.

"The need for a dictionary such as this which is now offered to the public has long been felt by the compiler, during a study of Hindustani extending over thirty years. Strange as it may seem in so extensive a dependency of the British Empire, during the whole period of British rule in India, no serious attempt has ever been made to compile a lexicon which should provide the English student with accurate Hindustani equivalents for the words and expressions of the English language in such a form as to render them easily available....The growing importance of our Indian possessions...makes it all the more necessary to provide a dictionary such as the present...No one can take up a Hindustani newspaper of the present day without being struck by the rapidly growing tendency to employ English words in place of the indigenous and equally expressive vernacular word...I would appeal to the good taste of the educated natives of India to stem the tide which threatens to bestrew the shores of Hindustani with the flotsam and jetsam of English" (Preface).

1908: [LILLY] Hindustani stepping-stones ..., by Douglas Craven Phillott [1860-1930]. Allahabad: the pioneer press, 1908. 180 p. 16mo. Original red cloth lettered in gold. English-Hindustani vocabulary as Appendix B, pp. 171-180.

1910: [LILLY] Hindustani manual, by Douglas Craven Phillott, [1860-1930]. Calcutta: Calcutta School book and Useful Literature Society, 1910. 259 p. Original black cloth lettered in gold. English-Hindustani vocabulary "of additional useful words," pp. 229-242.

1911: [LILLYbm] The Eng.-Hind. vocabulary of 3000 words for higher standard and proficiency candidates; or, "The right word in the right place," by D[ouglas] C[raven] Phillott [1860-1930]. Calcutta: Printed at the Baptist Mission Press, 1911. Original dark green cloth over boards, lettered in gold and decorated in blind. Pp. i-vii viii-xv xvi, 1 2-179 180-184 (last two leaves blank). First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. English-Hindustani, pp. [1]-179.

"In this little vocabulary, 5184 English words are represented by less than 3000 Hindustani colloquial ones. With the exception of one or two useful technical terms, the list contains only the common words of the everyday speech of the illiterate" (Preface).

This copy with the ink ownership signature of R. Meikle, who has carefully added words throughout, noting that the Preface's reference to "only the common words of the everyday speech of the illiterate" does not of course necessarily apply to the words added in manuscript. The page reference of the latter are to the Kalmi-Urdu 1908 edition. R.M."

Second edition 1917: [LILLY] An Eng.-Hind. vocabulary for higher standard and proficiency candidates, or, "The right word in the right place", Douglas Craven Phillott [1860-1930]. Calcutta: Printed at the Baptist Mission Press and published by the author, 1917. xv, 334 p.; 26 cm."Second edition, enlarged". Original green cloth, lettered in blind. English-Hindustani, pp. [1]-334. Second copy: LILLY, also in original binding.

"At the suggestion of my pupils, numerous examples and a number of English words have been added to this Edition, to make it more suitable as a work of reference. The number of Hindustani words, however, has only slightly been increased" (Preface to the Second Edition).

1914: [LILLY] A manual of colloquial Hindustani and Bengali in the roman character, by N.C. Chatterjee. Calcutta, 1914. xi, 180 p. 18 cm. Original rose-brown wrappers, lettered in black. The Lilly copy is a presentation copy from the author to Douglas Craven Phillott, with his bookplate. See above for works by Phillott on Hindustani.

1919: [LILLYbm] The Imperial Hindee and English Dictionary (with Pronunciations), by M. B. Trailokya. Bombay: Printed the Native Opinion Press, Girgaon, and published by Mokund Shantaram Naik, Girgaum, 1919. Later blue unlettered cloth over boards. Pp. [4] 1 2-380. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Hindi-English, pp. [1]-380. Reprinted in 1977, in Delhi, with no indication that there was an earlier edition. Trailokya was French teacher at the Aryan Education's Society High School in Bombay.

"A pronouncing Hindee-English Dictionary was a long felt want and with a view to meet a great demand for such a work the present volume is compiled.... It contains a large number of Hindee words and their English equivalents with their correct pronunciations in Hindee character. This is a new feature of this dictionary, which, I hope, will be found to be a considerable help to acquire a correct knowledge of the English language" (Preface).

Ca. 1910: [LILLYbm] Abriss der Hindustani-Sprachlehre und deutsch-indisches Wörterverzeichnis, by the staff of the (Ind). I.R. 950. N.p. n.d. [circa 1910?]. Original black linen spine and stiff green wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. 1-4 5-59 60-66. No edition indicated. Includes a German-Hindustani vocabulary, pp. 39-59.

"The Abriss der Hindustani-Sprachlehre is primarily intended for the supporting staff of the Indian Legion and has been compiled on the basis of experience in service in the Legion. The German-Indian dictionary contains the vocabulary considered essential for all German instructors. The German-Hindustani military dictionary published by the present work is also intended as a contribution to a deeper friendship between the German Reich and the Indian freedom movement" (Foreword, tr: BM).

1935: [IUW] The munshi: a standard Hindustani grammar (with exercises and full vocabulary) officially recommended for examinations in Urdu, by Mohamed Akbar Khan Haidari. 10th ed., rewritten and enl. Delhi: Haidari's Oriental Book Depot, 1935. xviii, 252 p.; 23 cm. "In Hindi script"--T.p.

1939 [1958]: [IUW] Bhargava's Standard Illustrated Dictionary of the English Language (Anglo-Hindi ed.) Comprising Correct Pronunciation and Accents in Devanagari Script, Definitions, Explanations, Thousands of new word in Arts and Science, Phrases and Idioms explained in English and translated into Hindi, Several Appendices and thousands of administrative & legal words with Hindi Synonyms as adopted by Union and State Governments in the shape of Supplement and over two hundred Illustrations, compiled and edited by Prof. R. C. Pathak, B.A., L.T. Author of Bhargava's Dictionaries. Tenth Edition (Revised and Enlarged). Banaras [P. N. Bhargava]; sole distributors: Shree Ganga Pustakalaya [1958]. 4, 1364 p. illus. 23 cm. Library binding. English-Hindi dictionary, pp. [1]-1096, and various English-Hindi appendices as indicated in the title. Verso of title page states "282,000 copies printed and sold in previous editions," and lists most recent printing as June, 1958, 2,000 copies.

"This Standard work of reference has made a new departure in its compilation. It is quite original in style and method and no pains have been spared to make it as compact, perfect and reliable as possible.... Much stress has been placed on the correct standard pronunciation of English words.... All the words in literary and conversational English have been included in the work. The prevalent terms of all sciences, have, as far as space permitted, been included" (Preface to the First Edition, dated June 1939).

"In the Tenth Edition of this Standard work of reference, the predominant change introduced has been the incorporation of about five thousand new words in the main body of the dictionary. A further Supplement containing several thousands of administrative and legal words with proper Hindi Synonyms as accepted and adopted by Union & State Governments is the most attractive feature of this edition which has amply increased its utility" (Preface to the Tenth Edition, dated April 1958).

1936 [1998]: [IUW] Urdū-Hindī kośa, mūla sampādaka, Rāmacandra Varmā; saṁśodhana evaṁ parivardhana, Badarīnātha Kapūra. Saṁśodhita navīna [2.] saṁskaraṇa Vārāṇasī: Śabdaloḥka Prakāśana; Vitaraka, Lokabhāratī Prakāśana, [1998]. [13], 359 p.; 24 cm. Reprint. Originally published: 1936. Hindi and Urdu (Urdu in Devanagari)

1942: [LILLYbm] Guide to Military Urdu and the Elementary Examination, by Major W[illiam] Turner. Karachi: The Education Publishing Company, [1942]. Original cream paper over boards, lettered in green. Pp. [2] i ii, 1 2-268, 213 214-216, v-xvii xviii. First edition. English-Urdu vocabulary arranged by military topics, pp. [153]-167, and a general English-Urdu glossary, pp. [213]-xvii (a total of 17 pp.). This copy with the ink ownership inscription: "Walter C. Hand | Calcutta Nov. 7, 1944 | Foreign Economic Administration". "This volume, now prepared for military officers, is a revision of the manual originally written by Mr. Anandram T. Shahani and Mr. Dayaram T. Shahani, which has served more than one generation of officers. It has now been expanded by the addition of the numerous expressions necessary in mechanical transport and aerial warfare, and other concomitants of modern war" (Foreword).

1943: [LILLYbm] Hospital Conversation with Vocabulary and Phrases (in Roman Urdu), by A. W. Cornelius. Landour, Missourie, India: The Missourie Book Society, 1943. Original tan wrappers, lettered in black and red. Pp. [2] i [1] ii-iv v, 1 2-60. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. English-Urdu hospital phrases and vocabulary throughout, with an alphabetical vocabulary, pp. 55-60, double columned. "This main object of this book... is to help the Doctors, Sisters and other Medical Practitioners, but especially foreigners. I have kept in view the needs of the British Military Hospitals in India" (Preface). With "Approved by Head Quarters | Dehra Dun" printed in red on front cover. From the library of Carleton T. Hodge, with his ink ownership signature.

1944: [LILLYbm] Colloquial Hindustani, by A. H. Harley, with an introduction J. R. Firth. London: Kegan Paul, Trench, Trübner & Co., 1944. Original blue cloth over boards, lettered in black; dust jacket tan lettered in black. Pp. [2] i-iv v-xxx, 1 2-147 148. First edition. English-Hindustani, pp. 113-136.

"The everyday speech of well over fifty million people of all communities in the North of India is the expression of a common language, Hindustani. This language is shared... by about fifty million more... in all parts of India... The study and teaching of modern Indian languages in Europe is only just beginning to outgrow the Fort William tradition built up during the first half of last century. Most manuals of Hindustani introduce you to an India long gone by, a nostalgia for which continues to ache in the hearts of a few of the older lovers of India. [NB: the sentence which follows this has been carefully cut out of the page...]" (Introduction).

1946: [IUW] Bhargava's standard illustrated dictionary of the Hindi language (Hindi-English ed.) Compiled and edited by R. C. Pathak. 7th ed., rev. and enl. Chowk, Varanasi [i.e. Benares, India] Narendra Bharagava [Sole distributor: Shree Ganga Pustakalaya, Pref. 1946]. 1280 p. illus. 23 cm.

[HINDUSTANI, SARNAMI] Caribbean Hindustani or Hindustani Sarnami is a dialect of Bhojpuri spoken in Trinidad and Tobago, Guyana, Suriname, Jamaica, and the rest of the Caribbean region with significant Indian influence. After Dutch and Sranan Tongo, Sarnami Hindustani is the most widely spoken language of Suriname. The language is spoken by the descendants of emigrants from the current Indian states of Uttar Pradesh and Bihar, collectively known in Suriname and the Netherlands as Hindoestanen. Because the predominance of Bhojpuri-speaking emigrants, the Caribbean Hindustani and Sarnami Hindustani are most influenced by Bhojpuri and other Bihari varieties of the Hindustani language. The Caribbean Hindustani of neighboring Guyana, known as Aili Gaili, is spoken by a few older members within a community of 300,000 Indo-Guyanese. The variant spoken in Trinidad and Tobago is known as Trinidad Bhojpuri. In 1996, it was spoken by 15,633 people.

Ethnologue: hns. Alternate Names: Caribbean Hindustani.

1985: [LILLYbm] Build your Hindi vocabulary through English, by James R. Sookhoo. St. Augustine, Trinidad, W.I.: Industrial Laboratories Research, 1985. Original blue and gray wrappers, lettered in blue and white. Pp. [3] i-x xi, 1-229 230-238. First edition. Cover title: Dictionary Hindi English. Build your Hindi Vocabulary through English. English-Hindi, pp. 1-62, and Hindi-English, pp. 63-138, with further classified English-Hindi and Hindi-English lists (musical instruments, foods, plants, etc).

"This is the first book that I have written, and, perhaps I should say why I undertook such a task when I am now approaching my seventy-fifth birthday. First of all I have sensed the dire need for this presentation. ... My granddaughter [in Canada] is currently pursuing a course in Indian dances. Her questions, actually prompted me... to do something to meet this need...so much needed even in Trinidad... Hence this book has materialised which will help to meet the need of singers and dancers in particular..." (Author's Introduction).

1990: [IUW] A dictionary of common Trinidad Hindi, compiled by Kumar Mahabir and Sita Mahabir; illustrations by S.K. Ragbir. [2nd ed.]. [Trinidad, W.I.: Chakra Pub. Co., c1990]. 41 p.: ill.; 21 cm.

[HMONG] Hmong (RPA: Hmoob) or Mong (RPA: Moob), known as First Vernacular Chuanqiandian Miao in China (Chinese: 川黔滇苗语第一土语; pinyin: Chuānqióndiān miáo yǔ dì yī tǔyǔ), is a dialect continuum of the West Hmongic branch of the Hmongic languages spoken by the Hmong people of Sichuan, Yunnan, Guizhou, Guangxi, northern Vietnam, Thailand, and Laos. There are some 2.7 million speakers of varieties that are largely mutually intelligible, including 260,000 Hmong Americans. Over half of all Hmong speakers speak the various dialects in China, where the Dananshan (大南山) dialect forms the basis of the standard language. However, Hmong Daw (White Miao) and Mong Njua (Green Miao) are widely known only in Laos and the United States (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists Hmong as a macrolanguage: hmn.

1992: [IUW] 汉语苗词典: 黔东南方言 = Diel hmub cif dieex: hveb qeef dongb, 中国社会科学院民族研究所主编; 王春德编著. Han Miao ci dian: Qian dong fang yan = Diel hmub cif dieex: Hveb qeef dongb, Zhongguo she hui ke xue yuan min zu yan jiu suo zhu bian; Wang Chunde bian zhu. 第1版. Di 1 ban. [贵阳市]: 贵州民族出版社, 1992. [Guiyang shi]: Guizhou min zu chu ban she, 1992. 53, 460 p.; 20 cm. First edition. Series: 中国少数民族语言系列词典. Zhongguo shao shu min zu yu yan xi lie ci dian. Includes bibliographical references and indexes (p. 160). Chinese-Hmong dictionary.

[HMONG DAW] Over half of all Hmong speakers speak the various dialects in China, where the Dananshan (大南山) dialect forms the basis of the standard language.

However, Hmong Daw (White Miao) and Mong Njua (Green Miao) are widely known only in Laos and the United States (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mww. Alternate Names: Bai Miao, Banded Arm Hmong, Hmong Dao, Hmong Dleu, Hmong Qua Mpa, Meo Do, Meo Kao, Mong Do, Mong Trang, Pe Miao, Peh Miao, Striped Arm Hmong, Striped Hmong, White Hmong, White Lum, White Meo, White Miao.

1969: [LILLYbm] White Meo-English Dictionary, compiled by Ernest E. Heimbach. Ithaca, NY: Southeast Asia Program, Cornell University, 1969. Original red wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. 500 pp. First edition, based on a 1966 edition printed in Thailand by the Overseas Missionary Fellowship. Data Paper: No. 75. Linguistics Series IV. Second copy: IUW.

"The Hmong Daw (White Meo) of Thailand and Laos speak a dialect ... which is mutually intelligible with those spoken by the Hmong Njua (Blue or Green Meo). These are the principal groups of Meo dialects spoken in these two countries, and are a part of the much larger group of languages and dialects known in South China as the Miao and in Thailand as the Meo. There are Meo in North Vietnam as well." There are approximately 48,000 speakers in Thailand.

Revised edition, with new title, 1979: [LILLYbm] White Hmong-English Dictionary, compiled by Ernest E. Heimbach. Ithaca, NY: Southeast Asia Program, Cornell University, 1979. Original printed wrappers. 500 pp. Revised edition. "We have substituted 'Hmong' for 'Meo' in that title... This has been done to conform to the wishes of Hmong, who object strongly to 'Meo' as a derogatory term they themselves would never use." Data Paper: Number 75. Linguistics Series IV.

1992 [1993]: [LILLYbm] English-White Hmong Dictionary, compiled by Brian McKibben. Provo, Utah: [Brian McKibben], 1993. Second printing, November, 1993. 347 pp. Original red and black wrappers, lettered in black and red. First printing was November, 1992. English-White Hmong, pp. 3-347.

2002: [LILLY] English-White Hmong & White Hmong-English Dictionary, Saint Paul Public Schools English Language Learners Programs. Saint Paul Public Schools, 2002. Pp. [10] 1-106 I-XXIV [4] 1-110. 27.5 cm. Original white wrappers, lettered in black and blue, with red, blue, green and yellow graphic design on front cover. New edition. English-White Hmong, pp. 1-106 (first pagination), and White Hmong-English, pp. 1-110 (second pagination).

"Welcome to the 2002 edition of the Saturn School English Hmong and Hmong English Dictionaries! Nearly 4000 words and phrases have been added since our last edition (2000) and our dictionaries are better than ever! Also, the new dictionaries include the Special Education English Hmong Dictionary compiled by the State of Minnesota's Children, Families and Learning (CFL) through a grant from the federal government.... In 1996 the dictionaries were put onto the internet and continue to be the only 'talking dictionaries' on the internet. ... Many of the words in these dictionaries have never been translated into English before.... The Hmong language has only been on paper since 1955 and this dictionary adds yet another contribution to the advancement and study of the language" (Dear Hmong Dictionary User).

[HMONG NJUA] Over half of all Hmong speakers speak the various dialects in China, where the Dananshan (大南山) dialect forms the basis of the standard language.

However, Hmong Daw (White Miao) and Mong Njua (Green Miao) are widely known only in Laos and the United States (Wiki).

Ethnologue: hnj. Alternate Names: Blue Hmong, "Blue Meo" (pej.), Ching Miao, Green Hmong, "Green Meo" (pej.), Hmong Leng, Hmong Nzhuua, Hmoob Leeg, Lu Miao, "Meo Dam" (pej.), "Meo Lai" (pej.), Mong Leng, Mong Njua, Mong Ntsua, Qing Miao, Tak Miao.

1974: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary of Mong Njua [Green Hmong]: a Miao (Meo) Language of Southeast Asia, by Thomas Amis Lyman. The Hague / Paris: Mouton, 1974. Original blue and white wrappers over stiff white card, lettered in white. 404 pp. First edition. Janua Linguarum: Series Practica, 123. Second copy: IUW.

"This is the first Mong Njua-English dictionary ever compiled... The Mong constitute a sub-division of the ethnic stock known as Miao which numbers over three million persons and is located in the mountainous regions of Southwest China, Northern Vietnam, Laos, and the Shan States of Burma, and Northern Thailand... The Miao are divided by linguistic and cultural differences into a number of tribes whose names often derive from the color of the women's garments, e.g. White Miao, Black Miao, Striped Miao, etc." (from the d.j. flap)

1983: [LILLYbm] English-Mong-English Dictionary. Phoo Txhais lug Aakiv-Moob-Aakiv, by Lang xiong, Joua Xiong & Nao Leng Xiong. [Milwaukee, Wisconsin: published by the authors, printed by Hetrick Printing, Inc., 1983]. First edition. English-Hmong, pp. [1]-460, and Hmong-English, pp. [462]-547. "We realize that all of our Mong compatriots have to overcome the basic language barrier so as to be able to self support in the United States of America... This dictionary was prepared primarily to help the Mong users who have basic difficulties" (Introduction).

[HO] Ho (also known as Bihar Ho and Lanka Kol) is a Munda language of the Austroasiatic language family spoken primarily in India by about 1.04 million people (0.103% of India's population) per the 2001 census. It is spoken by the Ho people and is written with the "Varang Kshiti" (also "Warang Chiti" script). In some regions, in Oriya, Devanagari and Latin but are considered non-ideal by the native speakers who prefer exclusive use of Varang Kshiti. The name "Ho" is derived from the native word "ho", which means "human" (Wiki).

Ethnologue: hoc. Alternate Names: Bihar Ho, Lanka Kol.

1915: [LILLYbm] Ho Grammar (with vocabulary), by Lionel Burrows. Calcutta: Catholic Orphan Press, 1915. Contemporary black half-leather and maroon cloth lettered in gold, over boards. 194 pp. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. English-Ho, pp. [119]-148, and Ho-English, pp. [149]-183. Bibliography, p. [iii].

"The following collection of about 1800 Ho words [is] a working vocabulary including almost all the words that will be encountered by an ordinary foreigner. The number of words used by an average Ho is probably no more than 400 at the outside...and I think the vocabulary I have collected will be found sufficient for all practical purposes" ("Vocabulary, p. [118]). "It is certainly an accepted historical fact that the Santals, Hos and Nundas originally belonged to the same aboriginal stock and...represent the same ethnic type with a strong linguistic affinity. The language of the original ancient race was not, however, written so far as is known, and there is therefore no classical standard by which its various surviving forms can be measured and compared...Though, therefore, the three dialects--Santali, Mundari and Ho--of the so-called Munda family of languages do contain marked features of common descent, they have...drifted apart on many points of usage, vocabulary and pronunciation...between Mundari and Ho, there are many differences, particularly in vocabulary, which though not perhaps sufficient...to exalt Ho to the dignity of a distinct language, are certainly sufficient to justify its separate treatment. The alternations and marginal notes I had to make in the Mundari Grammar which I used in learning Ho, made it look...like corrected proof-sheets originally set up by a mad compositor... [This] is a comparatively simple and popular manual based on a first-hand acquaintance with its subject acquired during three years of service as the office in charge of the Kolhan, and it will have served its purpose if it is of practical use to fellow Government officials and others who wish to study Ho" (Preface). This appears to be the first extensive vocabulary of the language.

[HOLOHOLO] Holoholo is a Bantu language of DR Congo and formerly in Tanzania spoken by the Holoholo people on either side of Lake Tanganyika. Classification is uncertain, but it may belong with the Takama group (Nurse 2003:169). Maho (2009) classifies D281 Tumbwe (Etumbwe) and D282 Lumbwe as closest to Holoholo. Neither has an ISO code (Wiki).

Ethnologue: hoo. Alternate Names: Guha, Horohoro, Kalanga, Kiholoholo, Kikalanga.

1955: [LILLYbm] Esquisse de la langue Holoholo, by A. Coupez. Antwerp: Commission de Linguistique Africaine, 1955. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. 162 pp. + fold-out chart. First edition. Annales du Musée Royal du Congo Belge, Tervuren (Belgique), Série in 8°, Sciences de l'Homme, Linguistique, Volume 12. Not in Zaubmüller. This copy withdrawn from the Bibliotheca Scholasticus S. Josephi in Louvain, with ink stamps and library markings. Second copy: IUW.

"Once quite numerous, the Holoholo population (which occupies area 80 on G. Van Bulck's map in Recherches linguistiques au Congo Belge) consists today of no more than a few thousand individuals scattered about the Albertville Territory (Katanga Province, Belgian Congo)...The numerical decline of the Holoholo has led to the progressive loss of their individuality...Familiarized with various foreign languages, particularly with the knowledge of Swahili, which enjoys a lively prestige among a number of those arabized, the Holoholo lose the feeling for their own language entirely; each individual has adopted from the outside a certain number of phrases and words which come spontaneously to their tongue along with those of their maternal language, if they have not completely forgotten the former."

[HOLU] Holo is a Bantu language of Angola and the Democratic Republic of Congo. Yeci and Samba may be separate languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: hol. Alternate Names: Holo, Hongu, Kiholo, Kiholu.

2003: [IUW] Notes grammaticales et lexique du Kiholu, by Jan Daeleman. München: Lincom, 2003. 78 p.; 21 cm. Series: LINCOS studies in African linguistics 58.

[HOM-IDYOMO] Hom-idyomo is one of various twentieth-century attempts to create artificial languages. It has no official standing and is not listed in Ethnologue.

1923: [LILLYbm] Hom-idyomo: outline of an auxiliary international language without declinations and absolutely phonetic. Book first: practical grammar.--Book second: Hom-idyomo dictionary.--Book third: English and Hom-idyomo dictionary, by C[ipriano] Cardenas (1858- ). Leipzig: C. Cardenas, 1923. Original dark green cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. I-V VI VII-VIII, 1 2-165 166-168, <sup>2</sup>1-5 6-320, <sup>3</sup>1-2 3-376. Second edition, corrected and completed. First edition not known. English-Hom-idyomo dictionary, pp. [6]-369, with corrigenda, pp. [370]-376. Second copy: IUW.

"English is easier than many, it is nice to hear it spoken by young ladies, but it is not fitted for the purpose of this book.... Every people has some manner to waste time, and that of English-speakers is by speaking too little or by speaking confusedly.... The want of logic in the structure of all living languages creates a hard task for foreigners and for nationals as well... Hom-idyomo can prove to be one useful factor for universal Peace. Hom-idyomo can be learned, easily and completely, by a work of half an hour a day during one year. It has been formed by opening simultaneously five national dictionaries and selecting from them each common word.... Of course I do not pretend that Hom-idyomo is a language absolutely free from inconvenience.... I may confess that Hom-idyomo is not so easy to learn as Esperanto is, but it is incomparably easier to practise... The present book contains an English-Hom-idyomo dictionary, no doubt full of errors, resulting not from any in Hom-idyomo language, but because its author knows little of the English language" (Preface).

[HOPI] Hopi (Hopi: Hopilavayi) is a Uto-Aztecan language spoken by the Hopi people (a Pueblo group) of northeastern Arizona, USA, although today some Hopi are monolingual English speakers. The use of the language has gradually declined over the course of the 20th century. In 1990, it was estimated that more than 5,000 people could speak Hopi as a native language (approximately 75% of the population); at least 40 of them were monolingual in Hopi. The 1998 language survey of 200 Hopi people showed that 100% of Hopi elders (60 years or older) were fluent, while fluency in adults (age 40-59) was only 84%, 50% in young adults (age 20-39), and 5% in children (age 2-19). Despite the apparent decline, Hopi and Navajo both are supported by bi-lingual education programs in Arizona and children acquire these Native American languages as their first language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: hop.

1896: [LILLYbm] [Cover title] Ornithological vocabulary of the Moki Indians, by Edgar A[lexander] Mearns [1856-1916]. Washington, D.C.: Judd & Detweiler, Printers, 1896. Original brown wrappers (chipped), lettered in black. Pp. [2] 391-403 404-406. First edition. "From The American Anthropologist for December 1896" [Volume IX, 1896, p. 391-403]. Latin-English-Moki [Hopi] general terms and bird names, pp 395-403. This copy inscribed in ink on front wrapper: "Mr. Daniel N. Rhoads | Compliments of | Edgar A. Mearns".

"The Moki are a thrifty race, devoted to agricultural pursuits and to raising sheep, goats, cattle, ponies, donkeys, hogs, and some turkeys and chickens... The revision of the zoological vocabulary of the Moki language, of which the present paper forms the ornithological portion, was made with the aid of my venerable friend Ongwischey (Raven), who fully comprehended my motives and exerted himself to make the list of names as complete and accurate as possible" (p. 392).

1957: [LILLYbm] Hopi domains: a lexical approach to the problem of selection, by Charles F[rederick] Voegelin [1906- ] & Florence M[arie Robinett] Voegelin [1927- ]. Baltimore: Waverly Press, 1957. Original cream wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. i-ii iii-vi, 1-82. First edition. Series: Indiana University publications in anthropology and linguistics. Memoir 14. Supplement to International journal of American linguistics, v. 23, no. 2, April 1957. Hopi-English vocabulary arranged by "domains" (physical world, human attributes, emotional world, etc), pp. 13-58, with Hopi finder list, pp. 59-70, and English finder list, pp. 71-80. This copy with ink stamp of receipt dated June 10 1957 from the "Archives President's Office".

This is the earliest substantial vocabulary of the Hopi language: "The main earlier published vocabulary work was Hopi Domains by Dr. Carl F. Voegelin and his wife Dr. Florence M. Voegelin. It is an excellent scholarly booklet, but it is arranged by semantic domains rather than alphabetically, and is not generally known or used by most native Hopi speakers" (Seaman, Hopi Dictionary).

1982: [LILLYbm] "Hodge Hopi Lists (computed by P.D.S.) [Hopi-English & English-Hopi (draft). [Cover title] "Hopi Lists, computed by P. D[avid] S[eaman] (HOPI-ENGLISH and ENG.-HOPI draft). 29 June 1982." Flagstaff, AZ: P. David Seaman, [1982]. Computer printout, in gray covers, lettered by hand in ink. Ff. [2] 1-25, [2] <sup>2</sup>1-30. Pre-publication word list. Hopi-English, ff. 1-25, and English-Hopi, ff. <sup>2</sup>1-30. This list was compiled as part of the preparation for Seaman's Hopi dictionary, which was first published in 1985. This copy with a loosely-inserted letter from Seaman to Hodge, dated 7-4-82: "The inputting of Hopi progresses at least as well as planned--probably a lot faster than actually expected. Here is a copy of the preliminary Hodge work based on the dictionary slips you gave me. No response needed at present, but send along any suggestions/comments whenever you feel like it. (Note: Also have already 'finished' with Ekstrom and Voegelins)."

1985a: [IUW] A concise Hopi and English lexicon, compiled by Roy Albert and David Leedom Shaul. Philadelphia: J. Benjamins, c1985. Pp. [8] 1 2-11 12 13-204. 23 cm. Original orange cloth, lettered in black and decorated in black and white. Hopi-English, pp. 13-113 and English-Hopi, pp. 114-204.

"The goal of A Concise Hopi and English Lexicon is to provide a concise lexical research tool for persons interested in the Hopi language.... The present work is not intended to be definitive. The work is designed to serve as wide-ranging an audience as possible: Hopi speakers as well as persons who are not fluent in this language, the scholar as well as the general reader.... In addition to being limited to vocabulary items of common usage, [the dictionary] treats only Third Mesa dialect. It is hoped that lexicographical work on this dialect and those of Second and First Mesa will produce the materials required for a definitive dictionary. In the meantime, a need exists for a concise work"(Introduction).

1985b: [IUW] Hopi Dictionary. Hopi-English, English-Hopi, Grammatical Appendix, by P. David Seaman, with the assistance of Jonathan O. Ekstrom and others. Flagstaff, Ariz.: Dept. of Anthropology, Northern Arizona University, c1985. x, 603 p. 28 cm. Northern Arizona University anthropological paper; no. 2. Bibliography: p. 569-602. George List Collection.

Revised [second] edition 1996: [LILLYbm] Hopi Dictionary. Hopi-English English-Hopi. Grammatical Appendix, by P. David Seaman. Flagstaff, Arizona: Northern Arizona University, 1996. Original brown wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. 1 2-208. Revised [second] edition. Northern Arizona University Anthropological Paper No. 2. Hopi-English, pp. 19-56, and English-Hopi, pp. 59-141. "Definitive Bibliography for the Hopi Language," pp. 189-208. This copy inscribed by the author: "For Carleton and Pat Hodge, | With much appreciation. | -Dave Seaman." Hodge's Hopi field materials were used in this work and he is thanked for his support in the acknowledgements. From the library of Carleton T. Hodge.

"The first edition of the dictionary was the second publication in the Northern Arizona University Anthropological Papers series, and the first complete and professional dictionary of the Hopi language" (Preface to the Revised Edition, Jill Dubisch).

"This is a completely revised edition of the first alphabetical dictionary published in the Hopi language ... All known word-list sources are listed in the bibliography of this dictionary... A 600 page preliminary computer printout of my original dictionary draft was provided to one-hundred native-language specialists in December 1982 and January 1983" (Introduction).

1998: [LILLYbm] Hopi dictionary = Hopiikwa lavaytutuveni: a Hopi-English dictionary of the Third Mesa dialect with an English-Hopi finder list and a sketch of Hopi grammar, compiled by The Hopi Dictionary Project, Bureau of Applied Research in Anthropology, University of Arizona. Tucson: University of Arizona Press, 1998. Original black cloth over boards, lettered in gold; dust jacket black, lettered in yellow, ochre and white. Pp. i-xv xvi-xviii xix-xx, 1 2-900. First edition. Hopi-English, pp. [1]-797, and an English-Hopi finder list, pp. [799]-860, and a discussion of previous lexicography, p.[xv]. Second copy: IUW.

"This is the first true dictionary of Hopi, containing approximately 30,000 entries. The dictionary is based on the dialect spoken today in villages on Third Mesa and was compiled in consultation with a large team of elder Hopi speakers.... Royalties from the sale of this dictionary go to the Hopi Foundation and to the Hopi Tribe" (from d.j. flap copy).

"The Hopi Indians now live in northeastern Arizona. About 7,000 tribal members occupy a dozen pueblo-type villages... The Hopi language is a member of the large Uto-Aztecan language family... The Hopi language might not last another fifty years. This is a fairly reasonable estimate, barring unforeseen events which might help turn the situation around" (Hopi Background Sketch).

2015: [IUW] An 1860 English-Hopi vocabulary written in the Deseret Alphabet, by Kenneth R. Beasley, Dirk Elzinga. Salt Lake City: The University of Utah Press, [2015]. x, 161 pages: illustrations, map; 23 cm. Includes bibliographical references

(pages 147-161) and index. Reproduces the dictionary compiled by two Mormon missionaries to the Hopi and written in a non-Roman phonemic alphabet that Brigham Young was promoting. Also includes a discussion of the provenance and background of the book, the Hopi language, and the Mormon mission; identifies Hopi words in modern dictionaries; and transcribes words from the Deseret Alphabet into the International Phonetic Alphabet.

[HUASTEC] The Wasteko (Huasteco) language is a Mayan language of Mexico, spoken by the Huastecos living in rural areas of San Luis Potosí and northern Veracruz. Though relatively isolated from them, it is related to the Mayan languages spoken further south and east in Mexico and Central America. According to the 2005 population census, there are about 200,000 speakers of Huasteco in Mexico (some 120,000 in San Luis Potosí and some 80,000 in Veracruz). The language and its speakers are also called Teenek, and this name has gained currency in Mexican national and international usage in recent years. The now-extinct Chicomuceltec language was most closely related to Wasteko. The first linguistic description of the Huasteco language accessible to Europeans was written by Andrés de Olmos, who also wrote the first grammatical descriptions of Nahuatl and Totonac (Wiki).

Ethnologue: hus. Alternate Names: Teenek, Tenek, Tének.

1767: [LILLY] Noticia de la lengua huasteca: que en beneficio de sus nacionales, de orden del Il[ustrísi]mó S[eño]r Arzobispo de esta Santa Iglesia Metropolitana, y a sus expensas / da Carlos de Tapia Zenteno, Cura, que fuè de la Iglesia Parrochial de Tampamolón, Juez Eclesiastico de la Villa de los Valles, Comissario del Santo Oficio de la Inquisicion, Cathedratico de Prima de Lengua Mexicana en esta Real Universidad, y el primero en el Real, y Pontificio Colegio Seminario, Examinador Synodal de este Arzobispado, y Capellan Mayor del Monasterio de Santa Inès. Con cathecismo, y doctrina christiana para su instruccion, segun lo que ordena el Santo Concilio Mexicano, Enchiridion Sacramental para su administracion, con todo lo que parece necesario hablar en ella los Neoministros, y copioso Diccionario para facilitar su inteligencia. Mexico: En la Imprenta de la Bibliotheca Mexicana, en el Puente del Espiritu-Santo, año de 1767. [10], 128 p.; 21 cm (4to). Huastec, the northernmost dialect of the Maya language, was spoken in the 17th and 18th centuries in Puebla, Veracruz, and San Luis Potosí. The author, an important Mexican linguist, dedicated this work to Archbishop Francisco Antonio Lorenzana, who paid for the book's publication. "Con licencia de los superiores." Title within ornamental border. Woodcut coat of arms at head of leaf A1, signed Manuel Villavic[enci]o sc[ulpsit] M[e]x[i]c[o]. Also woodcut head- and tail-pieces, historiated initial. Signatures: A-R<sup>4</sup>. Licenses dated 1746. Originally published 1747. The edition of 1746 with title "Arte de la lengua huasteca," as quoted by Ludwig, Lit. of Amer. aborig. lang., p. 83, and by Viñaza, Bibl. españ. de lenguas indíg. de Amér. no. 323, cannot have existed, since the author in his dedicatory letter to the archbishop and in his preface states that although the licenses for printing were issued in 1746, the printing of the book had to be delayed until the archbishop ordered it printed at his expense. Watermarks visible on flyleaves and pastedowns. "Diccionario [castellano-] huasteco" printed in columns, p. 46-88. "Doctrina christiana fielmente traducida de la que escribió el R. P. Bartholomé Castaño de la Compañia de Jesus" also printed in columns, p. 96-128. Bound in limp vellum with cut leather ties, all edges sprinkled red, the legend SANro burned into top edges. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller.

1896: [IUW] Un intérprete huasteco: ayuda valiosa para los que quieran hablar este idioma / formado por Serapio D. Lorenzana. México: Oficina Tip. de la Secretaría de Fomento, 1896. 43 p.; 17 cm. Original wrappers, lettered in black. Schuller collection. Classified vocabulary, both words and phrases, Spanish-Hestec on opposite pages, pp. 8-41.

[1955] 1997: [IUW] Vocabulario huasteco del estado de San Luis Potosí / compilado por Ramón Larsen. Edición especial. México, D.F.: Summer Institute of Linguistics, 1997. 148 p.: ill., maps; 28 cm. Serie de vocabularios y diccionarios indígenas "Mariano Silva y Aceves". Special, limited edition of 1955 publication.

[HUAVE] Huave (also spelled Wabe) is a language isolate spoken by the indigenous Huave people on the Pacific coast of the Mexican state of Oaxaca. The language is spoken in four villages on the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, in the southeast of the state, by around 18,000 people (see table below). The Huave people of San Mateo del Mar – who call themselves Ikoots, meaning "us" – refer to their language as ombeayiiüts, meaning "our language". In San Francisco del Mar, the corresponding terms are Kunajts ("us") and umbeyajts ("our language"). The term "Huave" is thought to come from the Zapotec languages, meaning "people who rot in the humidity", according to the 17th-century Spanish historian Burgoa. However, Martínez Gracida (1888) claims the meaning of the term means 'many people' in Isthmus Zapotec, interpreting hua as "abundant" and be as a shortened form of binni ("people"). The etymology of the term will require further investigation. Neither of the above etymologies are judged plausible by Isthmus Zapotec speakers. Although genetic relationships between the Huave language and several language families have been proposed, none have been substantiated and Huave continues to be considered an isolate (Campbell 1997 pg. 161) (Wiki).

Ethnologue treats Huave as four separate languages: San Dioniso del Mar Huave (hve), San Francisco del Mar Huave (hue), Santa Maria del Mar Huave (hvv), and San Mateo del Mar Huave (huv), [HUAVE, SAN MATEO DEL MAR] See description for Huave above.

Ethnologue: huv. Alternate Names: Huave del Oeste, Ombeayiiüts.

1981: [LILLYbm] Diccionario huave de San Mateo del Mar, by Glenn Albert Stairs Kreger & Emily Florence Scharfe de Stairs. Mexico, D.F.: Instituto Linguístico de Verano, 1981. Original two-tone blue wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. i-ii iii-xxiii xxiv, 1-2 3-423 424. First edition. 1,500 copies. Serie de vocabularios y diccionarios indígenas "Mariano Silva y Aceves", no. 24. Huave-Spanish, pp. 3-185, and Spanish-Huave, pp. 189-282. Second copy: IUW. First dictionary of San Mateo del Mar Huave.

"The language spoken by the Huaves of San Mateo del Mar and the surrounding area on the Isthmus de Tehuantepec, Oaxaca, is described in the present vocabulary. According to the census of 1970, there are approximately 6,000 speakers of this dialect of Huave. There are another 6,000 Huaves speaking other dialects in the cities of San Francisco, Santa Maria and San Dionisio" (Introduction, tr: BM).

[HUITOTO, MINICA] Minica (Minika) Huitoto is one of three indigenous American Huitoto languages of the Witotoan family spoken by a few thousand speakers in western South America. It is spoken in the Upper Igara-Paraná river area, along the Caquetá River at the Isla de los Monos, and the Caguán River near San Vicente del Caguán. There is 75% literacy in Colombia and 85% are literate in Spanish; most are bilingual. There is a dictionary and grammar rules. There are only five speakers in Perú, where it has official standing within its community (Wiki).

Ethnologue: hto. Alternate Names: Meneca, Minica.

1921-1923: [LILLYbm] Religion und Mythologie der Uitoto. Textaufnahmen und Beobachtungen bei einem Indianerstamm in Kolumbien, Sudamerika, 2 vols., by Konrad Theodor Preuss [1869-1938]. Göttingen; Leipzig: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht; J. C. Hinrichs, 1921-1923. Pp. [Vol. 1] [2] I-V VI, I 2-365 366-368 + 3 plates; [Vol. 2][4] 369-760. First edition. Series: Quellen der Religionsgeschichte. [Gruppe 11: Amerikanische Religionen] "In der Reihenfolge des erscheinens Band 10[-11]". Zauhmüller, col. 392. Huitoto-German, pp. 682-753, triple-column, with German index, pp. 753-758. First dictionary of Huitoto. This set with the ownership stamp on the inner front wrapper of each volume of C.A. Muses, probably the same C.A. Muses who edited and introduced The Septuagint Bible: the oldest version of the Old Testament, in the translation of Charles Thomson, secretary of the Continental Congress of the United States of America, 1774-1789 (Falcon's Wing Press, 1954).

"In 1913 an ethnological and archeological research expedition led me to Columbia where, among other things, I stayed for some time with the Huitotos of Orteguasa, a tributary of the Amazon River... When my research was completed, in April of 1915, I was cut off from returning to my home country by the war. This allowed me to dedicate myself to working on the texts I had gathered, and with this purpose in mind I settled in the small village of La Esperanza on the train line between Bogota and Giradot. I did not return to Germany until October of 1919" (Foreword, tr: BM). "This dictionary contains all the words I gathered in my contact with the Huitotos" (p. 681, tr: BM).

[HUITOTO, MURUI] Murui Huitoto - (or simply Murui also known as Bue, Witoto Murui or Witoto) is an indigenous American Huitoto language of the Witotoan family. Murui is spoken by about 1,100 Murui people along the banks of the Putumayo, Cara-Paraná and Igara-Paraná rivers in Colombia. In Peru it spoken in the North alongside the Ampiyacu and Napo rivers by some 1,000 people. Some Murui speakers live also outside their territories, for instance the vicinity of Leticia, Amazonas, Colombia. Approximately 1,000 Peruvians use Murui in both its written and oral forms. The language is accorded official status and is used in schools. It is also used in churches. There are no Murui-an monolinguals in Peru: speakers of the language who do not also use another language. The language has 1,900 speakers in southwestern Colombia where it has higher social utility and standing. It was formerly spoken in Brazil, but is now extinct in that country. Murui uses the Roman Script. There is a dictionary of the Murui language (Murui-Spanish and Spanish-Murui) compiled by an SIL linguist, Shirley Burtch (1983), and number of works concerning its grammar (Petersen de Piñeros 1994, Petersen de Piñeros & Patiño: 2000, Wojtylak 2012). Currently, a PhD student at James Cook University, Katarzyna Wojtylak is working on a comprehensive grammar of Murui to be published in 2017 (Wiki) Ethnologue: uu. Alternate Names: Bue, Murui, Witoto.

1983: [LILLYbm] Diccionario Huitoto Murui. Tomo I, compiled by Shirley Burtch. Yarinacocha, Pucallpa, Peru: Ministerio de Educacion: Instituto Linguistico de Verano, 1983. Original pale gray wrappers, lettered in black and red. Pp. 1-19 20-262. First edition. Serie Linguistica Peruana, No. 20. Witoto Murui-Spanish, pp. 19-262. Second copy: [IUW] Diccionario huitoto murui, compilado por Shirley Burtch. 1a ed. Yarinacocha, Pucallpa, Perú: Ministerio de Educación: Instituto Lingüístico de Verano, 1983. 2 v.: ill.; 22 cm. Serie Lingüística peruana, no. 20. First dictionary of Murui Huitoto.

"The Witoto Murui language is spoken by 1500 to 2000 persons located on the banks of the rivers Ampiyacu, Napo, Putumayo and Cara-Paranyá in Peru and Columbia.... It is hoped that the present work will be of use to all speakers of Witoto and that it will contribute, even in a modest way, to the revalorization of one of the languages and cultures of the Amazon" (Prologue, tr: BM).

[HULA] Hula is a language of Papua New Guinea, Central Province, Hood peninsula, with 3,240 speakers (2000 census).

Ethnologue: hul. Alternate Names: Vula'a.

1965: [LILLYbm] The phonetics and grammar of the Hula language, with vocabulary and translation and notes of other dialects of the Hood Bay District, by Lillian Mary Theakston Short. Adelaide: Libraries Board of South Australia, 1965. Blue library cloth binding over boards, lettered in gold. Ff. [2] 1-131. "Reproduced by the Libraries Board of South Australia, from a copy [of the author's unpublished M.A. dissertation of 1939] held in the Barr Smith Library, University of Adelaide." Hula-English, ff. 39-78, and English-Hula, ff. 79-113 and map of linguistic area. This copy with the ink stamp of the City of Sidney Public Library. This appears to be the only extensive vocabulary of the Hula language, spoken in Papua New Guinea.

1970: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[HUMENE] Humeme is a language of the "Bird's Tail" of Papua New Guinea (Wiki).

Ethnologue: huf.

1970: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[HUNDE] The Hunde are an ethnolinguistic group of about 200,000 people (as of 1980) located in the eastern region of the Democratic Republic of the Congo. The Hunde live in the province of Nord-Kivu and the regions of Masisi and Rutshuru. The language of the Hunde is Kihunde, and alternate names are Kobi and Rukobi. The history of the Hunde since national independence has been bound up with that of the Kinyarwanda-speaking population in the region, including the recent First and Second Congo Wars (Wiki).

Ethnologue: hke. Alternate Names: Kihunde, Kobi, Rukobi.

1949: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES...POLYGLOT.

1992: [LILLYbm] Vocabulaire Hunde / [Japanese characters: Fundego goisho], by Shigeki Kaji. Tokyo: Institute for the Study of Languages and Cultures of Asia and Africa (ILCAA), Tokyo University of Foreign Studies, 1992. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in gold. 280 pp. First edition. Series: Ajia afurkia kiso goishu 24 [African and Asian Lexicon 24]. Includes polyglot glossary in French, Japanese, Swahili, and Hunde, with indices in the four languages. Includes bibliographical references. Second copy: IUW.

"Hunde is a Bantu language spoken in the eastern part of Zaire... We are pleased, together with [our principal native informant] by the publication of this vocabulary, substantially the first of this language" (tr: BM).

2008: [IUW] Parlons kihunde: Kivu, R-D. Congo: langue et culture, by Jean-B. Murairi Mitima. Paris: Harmattan, c2008. 249 p.: ill., maps; 22 cm. Collection "Parlons". Includes bibliographical references (p. 239-240).

[HUNGANA] Hungana is an endangered Bantu language of the Democratic Republic of the Congo (Wiki).

Ethnologue: hum. Alternate Names: Huana, Hungaan, Hunganna, Kihungana.

2015: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[HUNZIB] Hunzib is a Northeast Caucasian language spoken by about 1840 people in southern Dagestan, near the Russian border with Georgia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: huz. Alternate Names: Enzeb, Gunzib, Hontl'os myts, Khunzal, Khunzaly, Xunzal.

2001: [IUW] Gunzibsko-russkiĭ slovar', I.A. Isakov, M.Sh. Khalilov. Moskva: Nauka, 2001. 284 p.; 22 cm. Added title page: Hunzib-Russian dictionary. Seriiã "Natsional'no-russkie slovari". Bespis'mennye iazyki Dagestana. Abstract also in English. Includes bibliographical references (p. 284-[285]) and index.

[HUPA] Hupa (native name: Na:tinixwe Mixine:whe', lit. "language of the Hoopa Valley people") is an Athabaskan language (of Na-Dené stock) spoken along the lower course of the Trinity river in Northwest California by the Hupa (Na:tinixwe), and before European contact by the Chilula and Whilkut peoples to the west. The 2000 US Census estimated the language to be spoken by 64 persons between the ages of 5 and 17, including 4 monolingual speakers. As of 2012, there are fewer than 10 individuals whose Hupa could be called fluent, at least one of whom (Verdena Parker) is a fully fluent bilingual. Perhaps another 50 individuals of all ages have restricted control of traditional Hupa phonology, grammar and lexicon. Beyond this, many tribal members share a small vocabulary of words and phrases of Hupa origin (Wiki).

Ethnologue: hup. Alternate Names: Hoopa.

1907-1930: see Vol. 13 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[IAAI] Iaaï (pronounced [ja:i]) is a language of Ouvéa Island (New Caledonia). It shares the island of Ouvéa with Fagauvea, a Polynesian outlier language. Iaaï is the sixth-most-spoken language of New Caledonia, with 4078 speakers as of 2009. It is taught in schools in an effort to preserve it. The main sources of information about the language of Iaaï are the various publications by the linguist Françoise Ozanne-Rivierre, from LACITO–CNRS (Wiki).

Ethnologue: iai. Alternate Names: Hwen Iaaï, Iai, Yai.

1984: [LILLYbm] Dictionnaire Iaaï-Français (Ouvéa, Nouvelle-Calédonie), suivie du'n lexique français-iaaï, by Françoise Ozanne-Rivierre. Paris: Société d'Études

Linguistiques et Anthropologiques de France (SELAF), 1984. Original stiff white wrappers, lettered and decorated in blue. 182 pp. First edition. Series: Langues et Cultures du Pacifique 6. Iai is a Melanesian language spoken in the central part of Ouvéa, a coral atoll in the Loyalty archipelago (New Caledonia). This is the first dictionary of the language. Second copy: IUW.

[IBALOI] The Ibaloi language (also called Inibaloi) belongs to the Malayo-Polynesian branch of the Austronesian languages family. It is closely related to the Pangasinan language, spoken primarily in the province of Pangasinan, located southwest of Benguet [in the Philippines] (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ibl. Alternate Names: Benguet-Igorot, Ibadoy, Ibaloy, Igodor, Inibaloi, Nabaloi.

1905: [IUW] The Nabaloi dialect, by Otto Scheerer. The Bataks of Palawan, by Edward Y. Miller. Manila: Bureau of Public Print., 1905. p. 85-199: ill.; 26 cm. Library binding. Series: Ethnological Survey publications, Department of the Interior, v. 2, pt. 2-3. "The Ibaloi Igorot seventy-five years old account of a Spanish expedition to Benguet in the year 1829: translated from Informe sobre el estado de las islas Filipinas en 1842 (by S. Mas), Madrid, 1842: Diary of Don G. Galvey, in command of the forces for the suppression of contraband trade": p. 173-178. With music (Ibaloi melodies). English-Nabaloi, p. 151-171.

[IBAN] The Iban language (jaku Iban) is spoken by the Iban, a branch of the Dayak ethnic group formerly known as "Sea Dayak" who live in Sarawak, the Indonesian province of Kalimantan Barat and in Brunei. It belongs to Malayic languages a Malayo-Polynesian branch of the Austronesian language family, and is related to Malay, more closely to Sarawakian Malay (Wiki).

Ethnologue: iba. Alternate Names: Sea Dayak.

1896: see under DAYAK LANGUAGES, LAND.

1900-1902: [LILLY] A Sea Dyak Dictionary in alphabetical parts, with examples and quotations shewing the use and meaning of words, by The Rev. William Howell and D.J.S. Bailey, B.A., of Jesus College, Cambridge. Singapore: American Mission Press, 1900-1902. Later red cloth binding, lettered in silver. Pp. I-V VI-XI XII, 1 2-186, [2], 1<sup>2</sup> 2<sup>2</sup>-24<sup>2</sup>. This copy with an ownership signature [Bunsher/Bansher?] and interleaved with copious additions and annotations, post- 1956, since the owner has written "See also text & annotations in my Scott's 'Dictionary of Sea Dayak'" at the head of the title page. Lilly copy appears to lack third title-page (a leaf following p. [84]).

"The Sea Dyaks possess no knowledge of writing, so their language has necessarily existed as an oral language.... Previous to this Dictionary there has been produced only one work of the sort, entitled A Brief Dictionary of the Sea Dyak Language" (Preface).

1909: [LILLY] An English-Sea Dyak Vocabulary, by The Rev. W. Howell and D.J.S. Bailey. Sarawak: Printed at the "S.P.G. Printing Office," Kuching, 1909. Original worn gray wrappers, lettered in black, spine perished. 176 pp. English-Sea Dayak, pp. [1]-174.

1956: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary of Sea Dayak, by N.C. Scott. London: School of Oriental and African Languages, University of London, 1956. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in gold. 218 pp. First edition. Zaubmüller, col. 46. This copy withdrawn from Yale University Library, with their bookplate. "A Lexicon in the full sense of the term can be made only when there is a considerable body of written material, and this is lacking in Sea Dayak." A German-Dayak dictionary was published in 1859. William Howell issued an English Sea Dayak dictionary in four parts in Singapore, 1900-1903 (see above). Second copy: IUW

"... [F]or lexicographical material the most important collections of Sea Dayak were for a long time the Sea Dyak dictionary published by Howell and Bailey in 1900 [see above] and their English-Sea Dyak vocabulary published in 1909 [see above]. In certain respects, however, Howell and Bailey's work has been surpassed by the dictionary N. C. Scot published in 1956. Scott also does more justice to the phonetic system of Sea Dayak than did his predecessors" (Uhlenbeck 1958: 11).

1965: [IUW] English-Iban phrase book = Bup Jako Inglis-Iban. [Kuching]: Borneo Literature Bureau, 1965. vii, 69 p.; 14 cm.

[IBANI] Ibani is considered a dialect of Kalabari, a language of Nigeria, by most scholars (see KALABARI below), but listed as a separate language by Ethnologue.

Ethnologue: iby. Alternate Names: Bonny, Ubani.

1975: [LILLYbm] Ibani bibi dawo diri. Studies in the Ibani Dialect of Ijo, by Adadonye Fombo. [Port Harcourt, Nigeria; Rivers State, Nigeria: University of Port Harcourt, Rivers Readers Project; Rivers State Council for Arts and Culture], 1975. Original green, white, and black wrappers, lettered in yellow. Pp. i-iv v-xiii xiv, l 2-134. Second edition. Series: Occasional Publication No. 2, Rivers Readers Project; Rivers Bilingual Series No. 2. Not in Hendrix. In addition to numerous vocabularies arranged by lesson, there is an Ibani-English vocabulary, pp. 101-134. The first edition of this work was published by the author in 1950.

"The first edition of this book was a heroic pioneer effort to encourage the study of Ibani, which was then almost totally neglected... The new edition has been extensively revised so as to bring it into line with the recent developments in the orthography of Ibani... it is regrettable that the author was unable to see the second edition in his lifetime. The final draft which I sent down to him at Bonny at the end of July, 1974, came back to me with the sad news of his death" (Kay Williamson, University of Ibadan, [Nigeria]). "Ijo, or Ijaw, is spoken in the Niger River delta [of Nigeria, by about] 2 million [people][1986]" (Katzner)

[IBIBIO] Ibibio (proper) is the native language of the Ibibio people of southern Nigeria. It is the official language of Akwa Ibom people. The name Ibibio is also used for Ibibio-Efik (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ibb. Ethnologue refers to "Ibibio-Efik" only as a language group.

1972: [LILLY] Ibibio Dictionary, by Elaine Marlowe Kaufman, Stanford University, Palo Alto, California, June 1972. U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Office of Education, Institute of International Studies. "Final Report. Contract No. OEC-0-9-097727" at head of title page. Ff. [2] i-xvi 1-617. Bound in green cloth, lettered in gold, possibly original. Reproduced from typescript. First dictionary of the Ibibio language. This dictionary was officially published in 1985.

"This dictionary is intended for general use. Choices... have been made to render the dictionary easily accessible to students of the Ibibio language (whether they be Nigerian or European) and to field workers in the Ibibio area as well as to professional linguists and anthropologists.... There exist only two full scale dictionaries of any of the dialects of the Ibibio-Efik cluster; these are both in the Efik dialect. The classic work is the Dictionary of the Efik Language by the Reverend Hugh Goldie, published in Glasgow in 1862... Although it has flaws, the major one being lack of tone markings, it stands as the major work on the Efik dialect. The other work is the Efik-English Dictionary and English-Efik Dictionary by R.F.G. Adams, published in Liverpool in 1938 (?). It is a much smaller study (279 pages) and although it accurately marks tone it does not approach the Goldie dictionary in scope or usefulness. Beyond a few word lists, there have been no major lexical studies of any of the other Ibibio-Efik dialects... [This dictionary] contains approximately 4500 entries" (Introduction).

2009: [IUW] Nwede mme usem ikọ Ibibio ye ikọ Makara: Ibibio > English, English > Ibibio, bilingual dictionary, andituum (compiler) Ekong E. Ekong. Uyo, Nigeria: Dove Educational Publishers, 2009. xi, 394 pages; 24 cm. Original blue and rose wrappers, lettered in white and yellow. Ibibio-English, pp. 2-179, followed by brief classified Ibibio-English vocabularies (birds, trees, Ibibio names, etc.), and English-Ibibio, pp. 200-394.

"The earliest attempt at writing an Ibibio dictionary was unfortunately made by a foreigner, Miss Elaine Marlowe Kaufman. She studied Ibibio grammar for her Ph.D at the University of California, Berkeley... She then expanded the thesis by interacting with her Ibibio friends in the United States of America, plus a six months' field trip to Nigeria in 1970. The dictionary was then published in 1985... I commend her pioneer effort immensely... A number of Ibibio scholars have already attempted to improve upon and fill gaps [in her work], but the physical outcome of such efforts are yet to be placed in the hands of hungry students and the general public. When I [informed these scholars] of my intention to write this dictionary, I was encouraged. I was told that my dictionary as a Rural Sociologist would definitely be different from theirs as linguists and that "the more the merrier" for the development of the language. [The present dictionary] is a pioneer bilingual dictionary for the general public" (Introduction).

[ICELANDIC] Icelandic /i/ais'ləndɪk/ is a North Germanic language, the language of Iceland. It is an Indo-European language belonging to the North Germanic or Nordic branch of the Germanic languages. Historically, it was the westernmost of the Indo-European languages prior to the colonisation of the Americas. Icelandic, Faroese, Norn, and Western Norwegian formerly constituted West Nordic; Danish, Eastern Norwegian and Swedish constituted East Nordic. Modern Norwegian Bokmål is influenced by both groups, leading the Nordic languages to be divided into mainland Scandinavian languages and Insular Nordic (including Icelandic). The vast majority of Icelandic speakers—about 320,000—live in Iceland. Over 8,000 Icelandic speakers live in Denmark, of whom approximately 3,000 are students. The language is also spoken by some 5,000 people in the US and by over 1,400 people in Canada, with the largest group living in Manitoba, notably Gimli (Gimli being an Old Norse word for 'heaven'). While 97% of the population of Iceland consider Icelandic their mother tongue, the language is in decline in some communities outside Iceland, particularly in Canada. The state-funded

Árni Magnússon Institute for Icelandic Studies serves as a centre for preserving the medieval Icelandic manuscripts and studying the language and its literature. The Icelandic Language Council, comprising representatives of universities, the arts, journalists, teachers, and the Ministry of Culture, Science and Education, advises the authorities on language policy (Wiki), Ethnologue: isl. Alternate Names: Íslenska.

1874: [IUW] An Icelandic-English dictionary, based on the ms. collections of the late Richard Cleasby, enlarged and completed by Gudbrand Vigfusson, M.A., with an introduction and life of Richard Cleasby by George Webbe Dasent, D.C.L. Oxford, Clarendon Press, 1874. 1 p., cviii, 779, [1] p. 27 cm. Zaubmüller col. 191.

1895: [IUW] Supplement til islandske ordbøger, ved Jón Thorkelsson. Anden samling, ny udgave. København, Forlagt af Skandinavisk antiquariat, 1895. [iii]-xx, 639 p. 23 cm. At head of title: Supplement to dictionaries of the Icelandic language, by Jón Thorkelsson. Second series. Zaubmüller col. 191 (4 vol. 1876-99).

1910: [IUW] A concise dictionary of old Icelandic, by Geir T. Zoëga ... Oxford, The Clarendon Press, 1910. v p., 1 l., 551, [1] p. 20 cm. Zaubmüller col. 192 (dated 1952).

1920-1924: [LILLY] Íslensk-dönsk orðabók; Islandsk-dansk ordbog, by Sigfús Blöndal, Björg C. Þorláksson, Jón Ófeigsson, Holger Wiehe. Reykjavík, I Kommission hos verslun Þ. B. Þorlákssonar og hos H. Aschehoug & Co., København og Kristiania, 1920-24. xxxii, 1052 pages, 6 leaves, VI plates, 30 x 24 cm. Contemporary binding in black half-leather and black cloth over boards, spine lettered and decorated in gold. First edition. Zaubmüller, col. 191. Icelandic-Danish, pp. [1]-1006, appendix and corrections, pp. [1007]-1052. Separate title pages in Icelandic and Danish.

"With the appearance of Blöndal's extensive dictionary of modern Icelandic (Íslensk-dönsk orðabók, 1920-1924) the Icelandic vocabulary was greatly enlarged, and since it turned out that a large number of the words appearing there for the first time were derived from Indo-Germanic roots, it seemed desirable to compile an etymological dictionary of Icelandic" (Forward to Isländisches etymologisches Wörterbuch. Bern, Francke [1956, i.e. 1951-56], see below; tr: BM).

Reprinted in two volumes, 1980: [IUW] Íslensk-dönsk orðabók (Reykjavík 1920-1924), by Sigfús Blöndal. Reykjavík: Íslensk-danskur orðabókarsjóður, 1980. 2 v. (xxxii, 1052, [12] p.): ill.; 28 cm. Reprint. Originally published: Islandsk dansk ordbok. Reykjavík: I Kommission hos verslun þórarins B. þorlákssonar og hos H. Aschehoug, København og Kristiania, 1920-1924. "Traek af moderne islandsk lydlaere" Jón Ófeigsson: p. [xiv]-xxvii.

1949: [IUW] Íslensk-dönsk orðabók, by Jakob Jóhannesson Smári.vii, 240 p. 22 cm. Added t.p. in Danish. Icelandic-Danish dictionary.

1951-1956: [IUW] Isländisches etymologisches Wörterbuch, by Alexander Jóhannesson. Bern, Francke [1956, i.e. 1951-56]. xxiii, 1406 p. 24 cm. Issued in parts. Library binding. Zaubmüller col. 191. "Abkürzungen von Literatur und Quellen": p. viii-xvi. Icelandic-German dictionary with etymologies, pp. 1-933, an alphabetical listing of the most important loan-words in Icelandic, pp. 935-1231, and a index of the Indo-Germanic roots, pp. 1233-1402. With corrections and addenda, pp. 1403-1406.

"I began collecting material for the present dictionary shortly after 1930. Almost all previous etymological dictionaries of Nordic and other Germanic languages included only Old Icelandic. Scattered references to present-day Icelandic were found in a few dictionaries, in particular in Torp's Nynorsk etymologisk Ordbok. With the appearance of Blöndal's extensive dictionary of modern Icelandic (Íslensk-dönsk orðabók, 1920-1924) [see above] the Icelandic vocabulary was greatly enlarged, and since it turned out that a large number of the words appearing there for the first time were derived from Indo-Germanic roots, it seemed desirable to compile an etymological dictionary of Icelandic.... In contrast to the alphabetical arrangement of other etymological dictionaries of Nordic languages, the present dictionary is arranged according to the original Indo-Germanic roots as listed in Walde-Pokorny's Indo-Germanic dictionary" (Foreword, tr: BM).

1962: [IUW] Íslandsko-russkiĭ slovar', sostavil: V.P. Berkov, pri uchastiĭ A. Bedvarssona; 35 000 slov; s prilozheniem kratkogo ocherka grammatiki islandskogo ĭazyka, sostavlenno A. Bedvarssonom. Moskva: Gos. izd-vo inostrannykh i natsional'nykh slovareĭ, 1962. 1032 p. 21 cm.

1963 [1981]: [IUW] Íslensk-dönsk orðabók: vidbaetir (Reykjavík 1963), by Sigfús Blöndal; Ritstjórar, Halldór Halldórsson og Jakob Benediktsson. Reykjavík: Íslensk-danskur orðabókarsjóður, 1981. xi, 200 p.; 28 cm. Reprint. Originally published: Íslensk dansk ordbok: supplement. Reykjavík: Islandsk-dansk ordbogsfond, 1963. The first edition of Blöndal's Icelandic-Danish dictionary was published 1920-1924.

1967: [IUW] An Icelandic-English dictionary, initiated by Richard Cleasby; subsequently revised, enlarged, and completed by Gudbrand Vigfusson. 2nd ed., with a supplement by Sir William A. Craigie containing many additional words and references. Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1957. xlv, 833 p.; 28 cm.

1983: [IUW] Íslensk-ensk orðabók, by Arngrímur Sigurðsson. 4. útg. Reykjavík: Ísafoldarprentsmiðja, 1983. 942 p.; 22 cm. Added t.p.: Icelandic-English dictionary.

1984: [IUW] Ensk-íslensk orðabók: með alfræðilegu ívafi, Sören Sörenson; Jóhann S. Hannesson bjó til prentunar ásamt fleirum. [Reykjavík]: Örn og Örlygur, 1984. xxvii, 1241 p.: ill.; 26 cm. English terms from Scott, Foresman advanced dictionary; definitions translated into Icelandic. "Byggð á Scott, Foresman advanced dictionary sem er endurskoðuð útgáfa af The Thorndike-Barnhart high school dictionary eftir E.L. Thorndike og Clarence L. Barnhart." Includes bibliographies.

1995: [IUW] Icelandic-English glossery of selected geoscience terms, by Richard S. Williams, Jr. [Reston, VA]: U.S. Geological Survey, [1995] 31 leaves; 28. Includes bibliographical references (leaves 28-31).

2001: [IUW] Wörterbuch Isländisch-Deutsch: mit einer kurzgefassten isländischen Formenlehre, by Hans-Ulrich Schmid. Hamburg: Buske, c2001. xi, 376 p.; 20 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. [vii]-viii).

2004: [IUW] Íslensk-ensk orðabók, by Sverrir Hólmarsson, Christopher Sanders, John Tucker; ráðgjöf, Svavar Sigmundsson. Reykjavík: Iðunn, 2004. Added title page: Concise Icelandic-English dictionary.

2008: see under NORTHERN EUROPEAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[IDO] Ido /'i:doʊ/ is a constructed language created to be a universal second language for speakers of diverse backgrounds. Ido was specifically designed to be grammatically, orthographically, and lexicographically regular, and above all easy to learn and use. In this sense, Ido is classified as a constructed international auxiliary language. It is the most successful of many Esperanto derivatives, called Esperantidos. Ido was created in 1907 out of a desire to reform perceived flaws in Esperanto, a language that had been created for the same purpose 20 years earlier. The name of the language traces its origin to the Esperanto word ido, meaning "offspring", since the language is a "descendant" of Esperanto. After its inception, Ido gained support from some in the Esperanto community, but following the sudden death in 1914 of one of its most influential proponents, Louis Couturat, it declined in popularity. There were two reasons for this: first, the emergence of further schisms arising from competing reform projects; and second, a general lack of awareness of Ido as a candidate for an international language. These obstacles weakened the movement and it was not until the rise of the Internet that it began to regain momentum. Ido uses the same 26 letters as the English (Latin) alphabet with no diacritics. It draws its vocabulary from French, Italian, Spanish, English, German, and Russian, and is largely intelligible to those who have studied Esperanto. Several works of literature have been translated into Ido, including The Little Prince and the Gospel of Luke. As of the year 2000, there were approximately 100–200 Ido speakers in the world (Wiki).

Not listed in Ethnologue.

1924: [IUW] English-Ido dictionary, by L. H. Dyer. London: The International language (Ido) society of Great Britain, 1924. Pp. iii-ix x-xi xii 1 2- 392. 23 cm. Library binding. At head of title: Linguo internaciona di la delegitaro (sistemo Ido). Based in part on material previously published in the linguistic journal Progreso. In 1964, Marcel Peschi published a Diccionario de la 10,000 radiki di la linguo universala Ido, as "Marcelo Persiko". [Geneva?: Persiko?], a single-language dictionary of Ido (held by IUW).

"No one who has not himself undertaken such a task of compilation can appreciate what all English-speaking Idoists owe to Mr. Dyer for his two comprehensive dictionaries, the fruits of five years of assiduous labour. The two books are the first exhaustive English-Ido vocabularies which have appeared since the findings of the Delegation were made public in 1907. Prof. Couturat assured the writer in 1914, just before the outbreak of the European war, that the preparation of an exhaustive English-Ido Dictionary on the lines of the big Dictionnaire Francais-Ido was in an advanced state, but the outbreak of war, the subsequent death of Prof. Couturat, and the loss of the manuscript during the German invasion of France, very unfortunately left England without a standard up-to-date dictionary of Ido" (Foreword, Sydney J. Holmes, Leeds, December, 1924).

"This dictionary is the complementary volume to my Ido-English. There is a great difference between the two. The Ido-English has as its chief object the definitions of roots.... This book has no space for lengthy discussions of the meanings of Ido roots, but must include as one of its chief objects the endeavor to distinguish between the different idiomatic significations so generally found in English words of common use.... The study of Ido, especially the translation of English into Ido, is a real mental discipline, superior to that of any other language, even the Latin. The natural languages swarm with irregularities of declension and conjugation.... If anything is found in an Ido text for which a logical reason does not exist, it is bad Ido" (Preface, L. H. Dyer, Sierra Madre, California, June, 1924).

[IDOMA] The Idoma is the second official language spoken in the state of Benué in southeast-central Nigeria, Africa by approximately 600,000 people (1991 estimate) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: idu.

1951: [LILLYbm] The Idoma language, Idoma wordlists, Idoma chrestomathy, Idoma proverbs, by R[o]y C[live] Abraham. Nigeria: Published by the author on behalf of the Idoma Native Administration, Government of Nigeria, 1951. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Unpaginated [244 pp.]. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Includes 60 pp. of classified Idoma-English word lists.

"The present book covers the same ground as my Principles of Idoma of 1936, but the material has been entirely rewritten to enable the principles to be more easily and rapidly acquired. Five years were spent in acquiring this language by day-to-day contacts with the people who use it...Delay in publication is due to the same cause as delayed my 'Dictionary of the Hausa Language' till 1949, that is to say Army service in countries as far apart as Egypt, Abyssinia, Somaliland, Kenya, Tanganyika, South Africa, France, Italy and Russia" (Introduction). The author typed the entire book out himself; it was reproduced by off-set lithography. This appears to offer the only extensive vocabularies of the language.

2011: [IUW] Ita k'Idoma: Idoma proverbs with their translations and meanings in English, by Patrick Omale Ikoyi. Jos: Willota Press, 2011. ix, 165 pages; 21 cm. A cheko bi n. (series)

[IDU-MISHMI] The Idu Mishmi language (simplified Chinese: 义都语; pinyin: Yìdōu yǔ) is a small language spoken by the Mishmi people in Dibang Valley district of the Indian state of Arunachal Pradesh and in Zayü County of the Tibet Autonomous Region, China. There were 8569 speakers in India in 1981 and 7000 speakers in China in 1994. It is considered an endangered language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: clk. Alternate Names: "Chulikata" (pej.), "Chulikotta" (pej.), Ida, Idu, Midhi, Midu, Sulikota, Yidu Luoba.

1962: [LILLY] A Phrase book in Idu. Shillong, North East Frontier Agency [India] Philological Section, Research Dept., 1962. ii, 104 p. 22cm. Original ochre cloth, lettered in red; d.j. gray and white, lettered in red. First edition. English-Idu (Roman and Devangari) classified, pp. [35]-[84]. Reissued in 1963. This copy with the ownership signature of "Steve Thorne," most probably Steven L. Thorne, specialist in applied linguistics and co-author of Sociocultural Theory and the Genesis of Second Language Development (OUP, 2006).

"The Idu Mishmis constitute one of the main tribes inhabiting the wild and rugged hills of the Lohit Frontier Division of the North-East Frontier Agency of India... This phrase book is the first of many that the Philological section is planning for officers serving the the North-East Frontier Agency to enable them to speak to the tribal people in their own languages and thus to foster mutual understanding" (front d.j. flap).

1978: [LILLY] Idu phrase-book, by Jatan Pulu. Shillong: Director of Information and Public Relations, Arunachal Pradesh, 1978. 180 p.; 23 cm. Original light green wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. English-Idu (Roman and Devanagari), pp. 75-180. A Phrase Book in Idu was published in Shillong in 1962 (see above), to which no reference is made here.

“This language guide is intended for a person who wants to stay in an Idu village and work among them” (Introduction).

[IFÈ] Ifè (or Ifɛ) is a Niger–Congo language spoken by some 180,000 people in Togo and Benin. It is also known as Ana, Ana-Ifé, Anago, Baate and Ede Ife. It has a lexical similarity of 87%–91% with Ede Nago. Written works began to be produced in the language in the 1980s, published by the Comité Provisoire de Langue Ifè and SIL. An Ifè–French dictionary (Oṅù-afɔ ɲa nfè òṅu òkpɪ-ɲà ɲa nfārāsé), edited by Mary Gardner and Elizabeth Graveling, was produced in 2000 [unpublished].

Ethnologue: ifè. Alternate Names: Ana, Ana-Ifé, Baate.

1983: see 1983b under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[IGALA] Igala is a language of the Yoruboid branch of the Volta–Niger language family, spoken by the Igala ethnic group of Nigeria. In 1989, an estimated 800,000 spoke Igala, primarily in Kogi State, Delta State and Edo State. Dialects include Ebu, Idah, Ankpa, Dekina, Ogugu, Ibaji, Ife. The Agatu, Idoma, and Bassa people use Igala for primary school. Igala is related to Yoruba. The Igala language as well as Igala culture and tradition has influenced other languages and cultures around the confluence of the Niger and Benue rivers (Wiki).

Ethnologue: igl. Alternate Names: Igara.

1968: [LILLYbm] "Two Dialects of Igala, and Yoruba: Some Comparisons," by E. M. Fresco, in: Research Notes from the Department of Linguistics and Nigerian Languages, University of Ibadan, pp. 32-46, June, 1968.

"The Ebu...dialect of Igala is spoken in the town of Ebu, located approximately 20 miles northwest of Asaba and 6 miles west of the Niger R., in Asaba Division, Mid-West State, Nigeria. This dialect is isolated from the main Igala-speaking community, and the two bodies have apparently little or no contact with each other at present... Citations from the Enjema dialect of Igala are taken from R. G. Armstrong, 'Comparative word lists of two dialects of Yoruba with Igala', J.W.A.L. 2.2 (1965), 51-78." Includes word list of approximately 230 English words and their equivalents in the Ebu dialect of Igala, pp. 39-46.

[IGBO] Igbo (Igbo [iḡbo:] English /'ɪgbʊ/; archaically Ibo /'i:bʊ/) (Igbo: Asụsụ Igbo), is the principal native language of the Igbo people, an ethnic group of southeastern Nigeria. There are approximately 24 million speakers, who live mostly in Nigeria and are primarily of Igbo descent. Igbo is written in the Latin script, which was introduced by British colonialists. There are over 20 Igbo dialects. There is apparently a degree of dialect levelling occurring. A standard literary language was developed in 1972 based on the Owerri (Isuama) and Umuahia (such as Ohuhu) dialects, though it omits the nasalization and aspiration of those varieties. There are related Igboid languages as well that are sometimes considered dialects of Igbo, the most divergent being Ekpeye. Some of these, such as Ika, have separate standard forms. Igbo is also a recognised minority language of Equatorial Guinea (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ibo. Alternate Names: Ibo.

1904: [LILLYbm] English, Ibo and French Dictionary, by The Fathers of the Holy Ghost. Roman Catholic Mission, Onitsha, Southern-Nigeria. Salzburg: Missionary printing-office. of the Sodality of St. Peter Claver, 1904. Original limp brown cloth, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [2] (this copy lacks free fly-leaf) 1-3 4-306 307-310 (advertisements). First edition. Hendrix 777 (listing A. Ganot as author)-778 (listing Holy Ghost Fathers as authors). Zauhmüller, col. 182 (giving R.P. Ganot as author; Ganot published a French Ibo grammar in 1899 that included French-Ibo and Ibo-French vocabularies, not in Zauhmüller). English-Ibo-French throughout.

"[The] aim and scope [of the Sodality of St. Peter Claver] is to save the souls of African Negroes and to procure the liberation of slaves by helping the African Missions in every way: as for example...by printing books compiled by the missionaries..." (Notes upon the Sodality of St. Peter Claver).

1913-1914: [IUW] Anthropological report on the Ibo-speaking peoples of Nigeria. By Northcote W. Thomas ... London, Harrison and Sons, 1913-14. 6 v. fronts. (v. 1, 4) illus. (music) plates, maps. 22 cm. Hendrix 783. pt. I. Law and custom of the Ibo of the Awka neighbourhood, S. Nigeria. pt. II. English-Ibo and Ibo-English dictionary. pt. III. Proverbs, narratives, vocabularies and grammar. pt. IV. Law and custom of the Ibo of the Asaba district, S. Nigeria. pt. V. Addenda to Ibo-English dictionary. pt. VI. Proverb, stories, tones in Ibo.

Reprint 1969: [IUW] Anthropological report on the Ibo-speaking peoples of Nigeria. New York, Negro Universities Press [1969] 6 v. illus. 23 cm.

Reprint of the 1913-1914 ed.

1923: [LILLYbm] Dictionary of Ibo Language: English-Ibo, [by Thomas John Dennis]. Lagos: Church Missionary Society Bookshop, 1923. Original gray-brown cloth over boards, lettered in black. Pp. [8] 1 2-189 190-192. First edition. Hendrix 774 (listing volume as Igbo-English). Not in Zauhmüller. English-Igbo, pp. [1]-178.

"It was ... decided to prepare a Dictionary for the use of English-speaking people, with the object of encouraging them to learn the language of one of the largest... of the tribes in Nigeria. The Outline Dictionary of English words, by A.C. Madan, prepared for students of African languages, was then taken as the basis of work, and in 1913 this selection of words was completed. Archdeacon Dennis was asked to revise the work and see it through the Press during his furlough in England. On August 1st, 1917, the ship in which he was traveling with his wife was torpedoed off the coast of Ireland and the Archdeacon lost his life, and the MSS., together with his baggage, disappeared. Towards the end of August a fisherman found the box containing the MSS. on the shore near Towyn, Wales, where it had been washed up. He found a letter inside with an address, to which he sent the MSS., and in this way they came into the hands of Mrs. Dennis. The edges of the paper had been worn by the action of the water, but most of the writing was legible, and the rest which was a little difficult to decipher was copied out by Miss Beswick, one of our C.M.S. Missionaries" (Preface).

ca. 1957: [LILLY] Osua-Okowa. English-Ibo, by F. Chidozie Ogablu. Onitsha [Nigeria]: Varsity Bookshop, n.d. Pp. 1-7 8-55 56. 21 cm. Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in black, with a drawing of a family on the front cover. At head of title page: "Bilingual Series (Adult & Mass Education No. 2). Learn English Through Ibo. Learn Ibo Through English." On inner front wrappers; "Dedicated to: Universal Free Primary Education, 1957. Infant One. Igbo Reader. First of its kind, unique. With nearly 180 illustrations. A reward for patient research work by F. C. Ogbalu, B.Sc. Econ. (Lond.)." Includes classified English-Ibo vocabularies accompanied with illustrations throughout. Apparently one of the earliest of Ogbalu's linguistic publications at his Varsity Press. Not in Hendrix.

"'Educate the people and they will educate others.' If you can speak English or Igbo and need not this book, your less fortunate friends, relatives etc. will admire it as a worthy gift" ( p. [3]).

"F. Chidozie Ogbalu (1927-1990), sometimes called the "father" of Igbo language and culture, was born in Adagbe, Abagana, and was a lifelong teacher and champion of his Igbo heritage. He taught Latin, Geography and Igbo at a number of schools, and took a great interest in the Igbo-related controversies of his time. These controversies revolved around efforts to standardize the writing and spelling of the Igbo language, and to improve its numeral system... [In 1949] he founded the Society for Promoting Igbo Language and Culture (SPILC). He was then only 22 years old. (Eight years later [in 1957] ... he established the Varsity Press in Onitsha)" (Frances W. Pritchett, Introduction to his Igbo proverbs website).

1962: [IUW] Okpwa-okwu: Igbo-English, English-Igbo dictionary, [compiled] by F.C. Ogbalu. [S.I.]: University Publishing Co., [1962]. 166 p.: ill.; 20 cm. Preface dated 1962. Hendrix 782.

1967a: [IUW] A comparative wordlist of five Igbo dialects, by Robert G. Armstrong. [Ibadan] Institute of African Studies, University of Ibadan, 1967. 18, [109] p. 20 x 23 cm. Hendrix 777. University of Ibadan. Institute of African Studies. Occasional publication no. 5.

1967b: [LILLYbm] Igbo Language Course (3 vols). Rev. G. E. Igwe & M. M. Green. Ibadan: Oxford University Press, 1967. Original wrappers. First edition. Includes relatively extensive alphabetized vocabularies in Parts II and III. Not in Hendrix.

1968: [LILLYbm] Igbo: A Learner's Dictionary, by Beatrice F. Welmers & William E. Welmers. Los Angeles: [African Studies Center, University of California], 1968. Original two-tone green wrappers, lettered and decorated in black and light green. 398 pp. First edition. Hendrix 785.

"Igbo has long been by far the largest African language for which no dictionary has existed which even remotely approaches adequacy... The variety of Igbo represented in this dictionary is what the authors have frankly called 'Compromise Igbo'. In general, it is based on the speech of numerous individuals, from a variety of areas, attempting to conform to what they usually designate as 'Central Igbo', which most of them accept as the most useful type of Igbo to teach to English-speaking learners. 'Compromise Igbo' reflects an effort to record the forms and useages most widely understood and uttered throughout Owerri and Umuahia Provinces." This is the first true dictionary of the language. Second copy: IUW.

1972: [IUW] Igbo-English dictionary based on the Onitsha dialect. Based on the compilation by G. W. Pearman, by Kay Williamson. Rev. and expanded by C. N. Madunagu, E. I. Madunagu, and others. Benin City, Nigeria, Ethiope Pub. Corp. [1972]. lxx, 568 p. 20 cm. Hendrix 786. The compilation by G. W. Pearman was never published.

1978: [IUW] A dictionary of Igbo names, culture and proverbs, by John E. Eberegbulam Njoku. Washington: University Press of America, c1978. iii, 95 p.: port.; 23 cm. Bibliography: p. 93-94.

1981: [LILLYbm] Igbo names: their structure and their meanings, by Ebo Ubahakwe. Ibadan, Nigeria: Daystar Press, 1981. Original black wrappers, with black and white photographic decorations, lettered in white. Pp. [6] 1-2 3-113 114. First edition. Series: Nigerian Names 2. Igbo-English names, arranged according to grammatical groupings, pp. 3-113.

"The structure of Igbo personal names may be said to constitute a minimum grammar of the language. To understand the structure of Igbo personal names is to understand, in its essentials, the grammatical structure of the language" (p. [1]).

1985a: [IUW] Modern English-Igbo dictionary, by H.I. Nnaji; assisted by G.C. Nnaji. [Onitsha, Anambra State, Nigeria]: Gonaj, [1985] vi, 345 p.: ill.; 19 cm.

1985b: [IUW] Recommendations of the Igbo Standardization Committee of the Society for Promoting Igbo Language & Culture: (Otu Iwelite Asusu Na Omenala Igbo) Nigeria: containing all previously published volumes. [S.I.]: Society; for Promoting Igbo Language and Culture, Nigeria, 1985 printing. xx, 257 p.; 21 cm. Spine title: S.P.I.L.C. okaasusus Igbo, Igbo metalanguage. Includes bibliographical references. Contents: glossaries including: Igbo grammatical and linguistic terms; Poetry classifications in Igbo Igbo scientific & technical terms; Igbo metalanguage; Legislative terminology etc.

1990: [IUW] Igbo metalanguage = Òkààsùsù Ìgbò: a glossary of English-Igbo technical terms in language, literature, and methodology / edited by E. 'Nolue Emenanjo, I.A.O. Umeh, J.U. Ugoji; sponsored by the Nigerian Educational Research and Development Council and compiled by the Otu Iwelite Asusu na Omenaala Igbo (the Society for Promoting Igbo Language and Culture). Ibadan: University Press Limited, 1990- v.; 21 cm.

1998: [LILLYbm] Igbo-English Dictionary: A Comprehensive Dictionary of the Igbo Language, with an English-Igbo Index, by Michael J. C. Echeruo. New Haven and London: Yale University Press, 1998. Original red paper over boards, lettered in gold; dust jacket red, orange and white, lettered in red, orange and white. Pp. i-ix x-xx, 1-2 3-283 284 with frontispiece map. First edition. Igbo-English, pp. 3-175, English-Igbo index, pp. 179-273, and English-Igbo "inkhorn" terms (new coinages in Igbo in the fields of education, linguistics and literature), pp. 280-283. Second copy: IUW.

"This is the first comprehensive and authoritative dictionary of the Igbo language, one of three national languages of Nigeria. Michael J. C. Echeruo, a native speaker of Igbo, focuses on basic words and phrases that the twenty million speakers of Igbo encounter in everyday life-in conversation and in Igbo texts. Recognizing the absence of a single dominant dialect, the author collects words from all of them, with emphasis on the predominant Owerri and Onitsha dialects" (from the jacket copy).

1999: [IUW] Igbo-English, English-Igbo dictionary and phrasebook, by Nicholas Awde & Onyekachi Wambu; with Kwesi Arbuah ... [et al.] New York, N.Y.: Hippocrene Books, c1999. 185 p.: maps; 19 cm.

2001a: [IUW] Igbo-English dictionary: a comprehensive dictionary of the Igbo language with an English-Igbo index, by Michael J.C. Echeruo. Ikeja, Nigeria: Longman Nigeria, 2001. xix, 283 p.: map; 25 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. xviii-xix).

2001b: [IUW] Igbo-English dictionary: okowa okwu = for the millennium, by Julius Ginger Eke. Enugu: New Generation Books, 2001. xiii, 430 p.: ill.; 22 cm.

2003a: [IUW] Okwu ekwunuru l'olu Ogba = An anthology of idiomatic expressions in Ogba language, by Blessing Ahiauzu and Obulor Alfred Ochogba. Owerri, Imo State, Nigeria: Springfield, c2003. viii, 64: ill.; 21 cm. English and Ogba dialect of Igbo.

2003b: [IUW] A concise grammar and lexicon of Echie, by Ozo-mekuri Ndimele. Aba [Nigeria]: National Institute for Nigerian Languages, c2003. xi, 236 p.; 20 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 228-236). Echie is a dialect of Igo. "Etche is a Local Government Area (LGA) in Rivers State, Nigeria, named after the Etche (Echie) people of Southern Nigeria. The Etche are Igbo people and they speak Igbo language. They also inhabit Omuma LGA; Etche/Omuma is a National Assembly constituency" (Wiki).

2004: [IUW] Dictionnaire igbo-français: suivi d'un index français-igbo, Françoise Ugochukwu et Peter Okafor. Paris: Karthala; Idaban: Ifra-Idaban, c2004. 267 p.; 25 cm. Series: Dictionnaires et langues. Includes bibliographical references (p. 29-32).

[IGNACIANO] Moxo (aka Mojo, pronounced 'Moho') is a pair of Maipurean languages spoken by the Moxo people of Northeastern Bolivia. The two varieties of Moxo, Trinitario and Ignaciano, are as distinct from one another as they are from neighboring Maipurean languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ign.

1702: [LILLY] Arte de la lengua moxa, con su vocabulario, y catecismo. Lima, [1702], by Pedro Marban. [Lima]: En la Imprenta real de Joseph de Contreras, [1702]. Small 8vo (15.5 cm; 6"). [8] ff., 664, 142, [22], 163–202 pp., 1 f. 19th-century brown quarter-leather and marbled paper over boards, spine lettered in gold, with five raised bands.

"The first printed grammar, dictionary, and catechism in the language of the Moxo Indians of the lowlands of south-central Beni, a region of Bolivia. The language is a member of the Arawakan family.

Marbán (1647–1713), a native of Spain, was admitted to Society of Jesus in 1663 and sent to Peru in 1675, there to spend rest of his life among the Moxo Indians of Upper Peru (now Bolivia).

1701 is often given as the date of publication of this work, but since the last license to print is dated the middle of December, 1701, and the caption title of the "Cartilla, y doctrina cristina" is 1702, a publication date of 1701 is impossible.

The notably variable and uneven printing here, sometimes very light and sometimes very dark, is typical of Peruvian printing's low-grade state in this era. Representing perhaps a particularly bad day, a compositor who had missed a phrase on p. 83 => inserted it in tiny type along the outer margin!

Vañaza 248; Medina, Lima, 712; Sabin 44465; Palau 150837; DeBacker-Sommervogel, V, 517; Leclerc, I, 614; Huth 900; Brunet, ?, 1391.." (34075): [bookseller's description of a similar copy: PRB&M 2016]

[IJO, SOUTHEAST] Southeast Ijo is an Ijaw language spoken in southern Nigeria. There are two dialects, Nembe (Nimbe) and Akassa (Akaha) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ijs. Alternate Names: Brass Ijo, Brass-Nembe, Ijaw, Nembe-Akassa.
1964-1966: [LILLYbm] A Nembe-English dictionary, 2 vols., by M. H. I. Kaliai. [Ibadan]: Institute of African Studies, University of Ibadan, 1964, 1966. Cover titles: Volume One. Nembe-English Dictionary: Nembe English Dictionary. Volume 2. [Vol. 1] original pink wrappers with brown cloth spine, lettered and decorated in black, with illustration on front cover; [vol. 2] original pink wrappers, lettered and decorated in black, with illustration on front cover. Pp. [vol. 1] [2] ii-xii xiii, 1 2-267 268; [vol.2][4] 1 2-305 306. First editions. Series: [vol. 2] Occasional Publication no. 2. Hendrix 788. Includes [vol. 1] Nembe-English, pp. [1]-267; [vol.2] pp. [1]-294, with addenda, pp. 295-305. First dictionary of this dialect of Southeast Ijo. Second copy of two-volume set: IUW.

"Many years have now passed since the first hymn book and the Holy Bible were translated and the first primer... compiled and written in the Nembe dialect by our venerable father, Reverend D. O. Ockiya of Blessed Memory. Since then no attempt has ever been made to compile words in the Nembe dialect in a systematic order to form a dictionary so that foreign students could be attracted to read these books and understand them with ease" (Preface, vol. 1). "This preliminary edition represents the first stage [of a two stage project]. It is cheaply and simply reproduced so people have a chance to study it and write in with their own suggestions for additions and improvements. It will then be time to embark on the second stage, the production of a definitive printed version [yet to appear]. Readers are therefore asked to remember that this mimeographed edition is not the final one" (Foreword, Kay Williamson).

1967: [LILLYbm] Nembe Language Made Easy. Mie Lokomote Nembebibi, by L. Awotua Efebo. Ibadan: University of Ibadan, 1967. Original wrappers. First edition.

[IK] The Ik language, also known as Icetot, Icietot, Ngulak, or (derogatory) Teuso, Teuth, is one of the Kuliak languages of northeastern Uganda. The Ik people have a positive attitude toward their language, which is increasing; with Tepes being moribund, Ik may soon be the sole remaining language of its family. Ik is noted by UNESCO as "severely endangered" (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ikx. Alternate Names: Icetod, Icietot, Ng'ateus, Ng'ateuso, Ngulak, Teus, Teuso, Teuth.

1999: [IUW] Ik dictionary, by Bernd Heine. Köln: Köppe, 1999. 187 p.: ill.; 24 cm. Library binding, preserving the original brown and yellow wrappers, lettered in black and yellow. Series: Nilo-Saharan 15. First dictionary of the language.

"The present lexical study is based on field research carried out in northeastern Uganda and Oropi, Kenya, in March, 1983, and February/March 1996. The main purpose of the research was to provide a more detailed lexical treatment of the language.... The Ik... inhabit roughly fifteen villages in north-eastern Uganda, strung out along the escarpment between Timu Forest in the south and Kidepo National Park in the north... Our first knowledge of the language stems from Wayland (1931), who published a short wordlist [in "Preliminary; studies of the tribes of Karamoja," Journal of the Royal Anthtopical Institute (1931) 61: 187-230: "Short vocabulary" of English-Labwor [Ik]-Lango-Karamojong, pp. 210-212]." (Introduction).

[IKIZU] Ikizu (Ikikizu, Kiikiizo) is a Bantu language spoken by the Ikizu peoples of Tanzania. Dialects are Ikizu proper and Sizaki. Maho (2009) treats Sizaki (Shashi) as a separate language. However, Ethnologue 16 retired the ISO code for Sizaki, merging it into Ikizu (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ikz. Alternate Names: Ikiikiizu, Ikikizo, Ikikizu, Kiikizu, Kizu. An on-line dictionary of Ikizu may be found at www.webonary.org.

2008: [IUW] Kiikiizo: msamiati wa Kiikiizo--Kiingereza-Kiswahili na Kiingereza-Kiikiizo-Kiswahili = Ikiizo-English-Swahili and English-Ikiizo-Swahili lexicon, by Seleman S. Sewangi. Dar-es-Salaam: Languages of Tanzania [LOT] Project, University of Dar-es-Salaam, 2008. viii, 101 p.; 24 cm. Original multicolored wrappers, lettered in white, black and blue, with a map on the front cover. LOT publications. Lexicon series; no. 9. Part One: Ikiizo-English-Swahili, pp. 1-62, Part Two: English-Ikiizo-Swahili, pp. 66-101.

"This lexical list is a result of research which included the collection of Ikiizo lexical data that was conducted in the Divisions of Nyamuswa and Salama in Bunda District, Mara Region. The work was done between mid July and the end of August 2002 under the Languages of Tanzania (LOT) project. To the best of my knowledge, this is the first compilation of an Ikiizo lexical list" (Introduction).

[IKOBI] Ikobi, or Ikobi-Mena after its two varieties, is a Papuan language, or pair of languages, of Papua New Guinea. Wurm and Hattori (1981) treat the two varieties, Ikobi and Mena, as distinct languages, but Ethnologue 16 judges them to be one (Wiki).

Ethnologue: meb. Alternate Names: Ikobi Kairi, Ikobi-Mena, Kasere, Kopo-Monia, Meni, Wailemi.

1973: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[ILA] Ila (Chiila) is a language of Zambia. Maho (2009) lists Lundwe (Shukulumbwe) and Sala as distinct languages most closely related to Ila. Ethnologue reports that Sala is mutually intelligible with Tonga. Ila is one of the languages of the Earth included on the Voyager Golden Record (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ilb. Alternate Names: Chiila, Shukulumbwe, Sukulumbwe.

1907: [LILLYbm] A Handbook of the Ila Language (commonly called the Seshukulumbwe) spoken in North-Western Rhodesia South-Central Africa comprising grammar, exercises, specimens of Ila tales, and vocabularies, by Edwin W. Smith. London, New York and Toronto: Henry Frowde, Oxford University Press, 1907. Original dark green cloth over boards, lettered in gold. 488 pp. + foldout table of Ila concords. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 183. Hendix 790. Includes, pp. [257]-480, a dictionary of English-Ila and Ila-English, and an appendix, pp. [481]-486 "containing words inadvertently omitted and other acquired since Part III went to press." This copy with ownership signature: "E. Vernon Gabb. / Dept. of Native Affairs; / Northern Rhodesia / Jany 1917" and the bookplate of Peter Anthony Lanyon-Orgill. Lanyon-Orgill was for some years the editor of the Journal of Austronesian Studies, and published dictionaries of such languages as Raluana and Mailu.

"The Ila language is spoken by the Baila, or, as they are commonly called, the Mashukulumbwe, a people living in North-west Rhodesia on either side of the middle Kafue... They number about 25,000... Ila is the most widely understood, and therefore the most useful, language in North-West Rhodesia... Ila belongs to the great family of languages to which the name Bantu is given." This is the first English dictionary of the language.

Reprinted 1964: [IUW] A handbook of the Ila language: commonly called the Seshukulumbwe: spoken in north-western Rhodesia, south-central Africa: comprising grammar, exercises, specimens of Ila tales, and vocabularies, by Edwin W. Smith. Farnborough, Hants., England: Gregg Press, 1964. xii, 488 p.; 19 cm. "First published 1907 in London by Oxford University Press."--T.p. verso.

1914: [LILLY] Ila made easy, by Edwin William Smith [1876-1957]. Kasenga: N[orthern] R[hodesia] Book Room of the Baila-Batonga Mission, 1914. 96 p. 17 cm. Original gray-brown cloth, lettered in black. First edition. Not in Hendrix. English-Ila, pp. 91-96.

2000: [IUW] A dictionary of Ila usage, 1860-1960, by Dennis G. Fowler. Münster: Lit; Piscataway, NJ: Distributed in North America by Transaction Publishers, [2000] 882 p.: map, port.; 22 cm. Monographs from the International African Institute; v. 5.

Abridged edition 2002: [IUW] The Ila speaking: records of a lost world, by Dennis G. Fowler. Münster: Lit, [2002]. xvi, 212 p.: ill., map; 21 cm. Monographs from the International African Institute London; v. 7. Extracts from the author's "Dictionary of Ila usage", sorted by subject, with a commentary.

[ILI TURKI] Ili Turki is a Turkic language spoken primarily in China. There were approximately 120 speakers of this language in 1982 (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ili. Alternate Names: Ili Turk, Taranchi, Tuerke, Tu'erke, T'urk.

1880: [IUW] Sketch of the Turki language as spoken in eastern Turkistan (Kàshgar and Yarkand) part II: vocabulary, Turki-English, by Robert Shaw. With list of names of birds and plants by J. Scully. Calcutta, Baptist mission press, 1880. [4], 226 p. Reprinted from the Journal, Asiatic society of Bengal" v.47, pt.1.

1927: [IUW] English-Turki dictionary, based on the dialects of Kashgar and Yarkand, by G. Raquette. Lund, C.W.K. Gleerup; [etc., etc., 1927] [2], ii, 139 p. 25 cm.

1934: [LILLY] [English-Turki vocabulary for the English linguaphone lessons]. Kashgahr: Swedish Mission Press, 1934. 16 x 10.5 cm. 112 pp. Publishers stiff gray wrappers, lettered in black. This vocabulary, translated by Georg Roberntz, was printed in 200 copies only. Jarring (1991), pp. 90-1 (1934:3).

[ILOCANO] Ilocano (also Ilokano; /i:loo'ka:nou/; Ilocano: Pagsasao nga Ilokano) is the third most-spoken native language of the Philippines. An Austronesian language, it is related to such languages as Indonesian, Malay, Fijian, Maori, Hawaiian, Malagasy, Samoan, Tahitian, Chamorro, Tetum, and Paiwan. It is closely related to some of the other Austronesian languages of Northern Luzon, and has slight mutual intelligibility with the Balangao language and Eastern dialects of the Bontoc language. In September 2012, the province of La Union passed an ordinance recognizing Ilokano (Iloko) as an official provincial language, alongside Filipino and English, as national and official languages of the Philippines, respectively. It is the first province in the Philippines to pass an ordinance protecting and revitalizing a native language, although there are also other languages spoken in the province of La Union, including Pangasinan and Kankanaey (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ilo. Alternate Names: Ilokano, Iloko.

1909: [LILLY] A study of the Iloco language based mainly on the Iloco grammar of P. Fr. Jose Naves, by Henry Swift. Washington: Byron S. Adams, printer, 1909. First edition, 8vo, pp. 172; original cream buckram lettered in black on the spine. An Ayer Linguistics duplicate, with a Newberry accession sticker on the rear pastedown and a release stamp on the verso of the front free endpaper. Includes both a grammar and an Iloco-English vocabulary, pp. [115]-159.

"The basis of this is the Grammar of Father Jose Naves, of which book there are about three copies in the Augustinian House in Manila, and these not for sale. I was fortunate enough to secure what the Father in charge of the Biblioteca assured me was the last copy that he should sell.... A careful compilation and rearrangement of his book, with the aid of other information gained from Narro's Vocabulary and from living sources, will, it is hoped, be of some assistance to the student of the languages of North Luzon, to the Malaysian student, and be of some value in the science of comparative Philology" (Preface).

ca. 1950: [LILLYbm] English-Iloko Thesaurus, by Morice Vanoverbergh. S.l. [Baguio? Philippines]: n.p., n.d. [c. 1950]. Original blue cloth over boards, lettered and illustrated in black. Pp. [8] 1-365 366 [2]. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Not noted in Rubino (see below), who does include a 1956 Iloko-English dictionary and several other essays on Ilokano by the same author. English-Iloko, pp. 1-365. This copy a duplicate from the Library of Congress with the LOC bookplate and ink stamp.

"This volume should be used as a companion to the Iloko-English Dictionary, where the Iloko entries are explained at full length. This is also the reason why we add here a list of errata to be corrected in that dictionary" (Preliminary Remarks). With "Corrigenda in the Iloko-English Dictionary." The Iloko-English Dictionary is a translation from the early Spanish dictionary of Andres Carro.

1998: [LILLYbm] Ilocano. Ilocano-English / English/ Ilocano Dictionary and Phrasebook, by Carl R. Galvez Rubino. New York: Hippocrene Books, 1998. Original illustrated powder blue wrappers, lettered in black and white. Pp. 1-6 7-266 267-272. First edition. Ilocano-English vocabulary and phrases, arranged thematically, pp. 105-172, and an English-Ilocano dictionary, pp. 175-263, with bibliography, pp. 265-266.

"Ilocano, like all its sister Philippine languages, is an Austronesian language of the Philippine type spoken by about nine million people. It is a member of the Cordilleran language family which comprises many languages of northern Luzon Island, Philippines.... Because of the importance of Ilocano in Northern Luzon, it has been called the national language of the North. Many ethnic groups from the northern regions of the country are more at home in their second language, Ilocano, than the national language of the country, Tagalog... [However] Ilocano remains a regional language with no political power or use in education past the early elementary years" (The Ilocano Language).

2000: [IUW] Ilocano dictionary and grammar: Ilocano-English, English-Ilocano, by Carl Ralph Galvez Rubino. Honolulu: University of Hawai'i Press, c2000. lxxxv, 775 p.; 23 cm. PALI language texts. Includes bibliographical references (p. [773]-775).

[IMONDA] Imonda is a Papuan language of Sandaun Province, Papua New Guinea. It has a simple consonant system and a complex vowel system, with no phonological tones. Until 1962, the language Imonda was spoken almost exclusively in a single village now called "Imonda on the rocks". At that date the Australians assumed control from Dutch New Guinea, and the Imonda split into two groups and established two villages in more accessible locations: Mol (daughter) and Pōs (grass). Wordlists had been compiled for all Waris languages including Imonda prior to 1973. The grammar of the language was studied in detail by Walter Seiler in a Ph.D. dissertation (1984) and subsequent book (1985). Unlike many neighboring areas, Malay was never systematically taught to Imonda speakers, though some loanwords from Malay are in use. At the time of Seiler's 1985 grammar of the language, when conversation with the neighboring Waris occurs, it is often carried out in Tok Pisin, in which all Imonda speakers are fluent, and from which Imonda takes many loanwords. (Wiki).

Ethnologue: imn.

1985: [IUW] Imonda, a Papuan language, by Walter Seiler. Canberra, A.C.T., Australia: Dept. of Linguistics, Research School of Pacific Studies, Australian National University, 1985. v, 236 p.: map; 25 cm. Original pea-green wrappers, lettered in black. Pacific linguistics. Series B no. 93. Appendix A: "Imonda and Related Languages," A.1: Vocabulary, English-Imonda-Daonda-Waris-Simog [Auwe]-Sowanda-Punda [Punda-Umeda, a dialect of Sowanda], pp. 212-213. Includes index. Bibliography: p. 229-234.

"From the wordlists presented above it is clear that these languages are closely related. The percentage of shared cognates is high and sound correspondences are easily detectable" (p. 214).

[INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT] According to UNESCO, most of the indigenous American languages in North America are critically endangered, and many are already extinct (Wiki).

1791: [LILLY] Voyages and travels of an Indian interpreter and trader: describing the manners and customs of the North American Indians; with an account of the posts situated on the river Saint Laurence, lake Ontario, &c.; to which is added a vocabulary of the Chippeway language ... [and] a list of words in the Iroquois, Mohegan, Shawanee, and Esquimeaux tongues, and a table, shewing the analogy between the Algonkin and Chippeway languages / by J. Long. London: Printed for the author, and sold by Robson [etc.], 1791. x, 295 p.: fold. map; 30 cm. Contemporary quarter-leather and marbled paper over boards; spine with raised bands, decorated in gold, with a red leather label lettered in gold. From the library of Robert Spurrier Ellison, with his bookplate. ESTC T122592. Includes English-"Esquimeaux" vocabulary, p. 183, English-Iroquois, p. 184, Algonkin-Chippeway, pp. 185-195, "A Table of Words" English-Algonkin-Chippeway, pp. 196-208, English-Mohegan-Shawanee, p. 209. English-Mohegan, p.210, Algonkin-Chippeway, p. 211, English-Iroquois, pp. 212-215, English-French, pp. 216-217, English-Chippeway "Parts of the Human Body," pp.218-220, English-Chippeway "Names of Animals, &c.," pp. 221-223, English-Chippeway

"Merchandise," pp. 224-226, English-Chippeway "Table of Words," pp. 227-252, Chippeway-English "Table of Words," pp. 253-282, and "Familiar Phrases in the English and Chippeway Languages," pp. 284-295.

Translated into German 1791: [LILLYbm] J[ohn] Long's westindischen Dollmetschers und Kaufmanns See= und Land=Reisen: enthaltend eine Beschreibung der Sitten und Gewohnheiten der nordamerikanischen Wilden: der englischen Forts oder Schanzen langs dem St. Lorenz=Flusse, dem See Ontario u.s.w.: ferner ein umständliches Wörterbuch der Chippewaischen und anderer nordamerikanischen Sprachen: aus dem Englischen: herausgegeben und mit einer kurzen Einleitung über Kanada und einer erbesserten Karte versehen, [trans. by] E[berhard] A[ugust] W[ilhelm] von Zimmermann [1743-1815]. Hamburg: bei Benjamin Gottlob Hoffmann, 1791. Contemporary black paper over boards, with later hand-lettered label on spine. Pp. I-III IV-XXIV, 1-3 4-334 335-336 + folding map. First edition of this translation. Howes L-443; Sabin 41881; Pilling Proofsheets, 2312; Bell catalogue L469. Includes German-Eskimo word list, p. 271; German-Irquois-Algonquin-Ojibwa, pp. 272-275, German-Algonquin-Objiwa, pp. 274-284, German-Mohegan-Shawnee, pp. 284-285, German-Mohegan-Algonquin-Objiwa, pp. 285-286, German-Irquois, pp. 286-288, German-Objiwa word lists arranged thematically, pp. 291-296, German-Objiwa alphabetical vocabulary, pp. 297-310, Objiwa-German alphabetical vocabulary, pp. 311-326, with errata, pp. [335-336]. This are the first German language vocabularies of these languages.

"Within months of the first edition [in English] appearing in London in 1791, E. A. W. Zimmermann produced this first translation into German of Long's valuable and important account of 'life and manners of the Indian and Canadian traders' (Sabin). Long's 19-year residence among the Indians gave him a good command of several languages and he applies this knowledge at the end of the volume by providing word lists of Algonquin, 'Eskimo,' Chippewa, Mohican, and Shawnee with English equivalents, here rendered into German. The second German edition (Berlin, 1792) does not contain the linguistic information, nor does it have the introduction concerning the Canadian geography found in this first edition. Provenance: Signature [in ink: 'W. Eames'] of Wilberforce Eames, the great bibliographer of Americana, librarian of the New York Public Library, and collector" (bookseller's description: PRB&M).

English edition reprinted 1922: [IUW] John Long's voyages and travels in the years 1768-1788, ed. with historical introduction and notes by Milo Milton Quaife ... Chicago, R.R. Donnelly & Sons Company, 1922. xxx, 238 p. front. (fold. map) 18 cm. The Lakeside classics. Includes reduced facsimile of t.-p. of original London edition of 1791, with title: Voyages and travels of an Indian interpreter and trader, describing the manners and customs of the North American Indians ... To which is added, a vocabulary of the Chippeway language ... A list of words in the Iroquois, Mohegan, Shawanee, and Esquemeaux tongues.

1851-1857: [LILLY] Information respecting the history, condition and prospects of the Indian tribes of the United States: collected and prepared under the direction of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, per act of Congress of March 3d, 1847 / by Henry R. Schoolcraft; illustrated by E. Eastman. Philadelphia: Lippincott, Grambo, 1851-57. 6 v.: ill., maps, port.; 31 x 26 cm. Vol. 1 has title: Historical and statistical information respecting the history, condition and prospects of the Indian tribes of the United States Vol. 6 has title: History of the Indian tribes of the United States. Ethnological researches, respecting the red man of America. "" "Published by authority of Congress ..." Vols. 1-5 have added title pages, engraved. Illustrated by Capt. S. Eastman and others. Includes mostly brief vocabularies as follow:

- |                                      |                                     |
|--------------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| Algonquin, IV, 373-380               | Menomonee, II, 470-481              |
| Algonquin group, II, 458-481         | Miami, II, 470-481                  |
| Apache, V, 202, 578-580              | Micmac, V, 578-589                  |
| Arapahoe, III, 446-459               | Minnetaree (brief), III, 256        |
| Assiniboine, IV, 416-432             | Mohawk, II, 482-493                 |
| Batem-de-kai-ee [Kato], III, 434-440 | Muskogee or Creek, IV 416-429       |
| Blackfeet, II, 494-505               | Natic, V, 556-557                   |
| Caddo, V, 709-712                    | Navajo, IV, 416-429                 |
| Catawba, V, 557-558                  | Ojibwa, II, 211-213; 458-469        |
| Cayuga, II, 482-493                  | Oneida, II, 482-493                 |
| Cherokee, of numerals, II, 209-211   | Onodaga, II, 482-493                |
| Cheyenne, III, 446-459               | Osage, IV, 275                      |
| Chinook jargon, V, 548-551           | Pampticough, V, 555-556             |
| Chippewa (of Michigan), V, 556-557   | Pimo, II, 461-462                   |
| Chippewa numerals, II, 216-218.      | Pueblo (of Tusuque), III, 446-459   |
| English-Chippewa Dictionary through  | Pueblo (Zuñi), IV, 416-429          |
| "A", V, 565-569                      | Sacramento River, IV, 414-415       |
| Choctaw (brief), III, 347            | Shawnee, II, 470-481                |
| Choctaw, of numerals, II, 204-206    | Shoshonee (brief), I, 216, 218      |
| Chow-e-shak, III, 434-440            | Tah-le-wah, III, 440-445            |
| Co-co-noon, IV, 413                  | Tcho-ko-yem, III, 428-434           |
| Comanche, II, 129-130, 494-505       | Tulare Lake, IV, 413-414            |
| Cop-éh, III, 428-434                 | Tuolumne Indians, IV, 408-412       |
| Costanos, II, 494-505                | Tuskeruro, V, 552-556               |
| Cushna, II, 494-505                  | Upaaroka (brief), III, 255-256      |
| Dacota, of numerals, II, 206-208,    | Waccoa, V, 552-556; 557-558         |
| Delaware, II, 470-481; III, 424-427  | Wee-yot, III, 434-440               |
| Diegunos, II, 103-104                | Weits-pek, III, 440-445             |
| Hoo-pah, III, 440-445                | Winnebago, of numerals, II, 214-216 |
| Iroquois, group, II, 482-493         | Wish-oak, III, 434-440              |
| King's River, IV, 413-414            | Witchita (Wichita), V, 709-711      |
| Klatsop (brief), III, 293-294        | Wyandot, of numerals, II, 218-220   |
| Kula-napo, III, 428-434              | Yukai, III, 428-434                 |
| Mandan, III, 255-256; 446-459        | Yuman, II, 118-121                  |
| Massachusetts, I, 288-299            |                                     |

Partial reprint 2001: see under SHAWNEE.

1856: [LILLYbm] Athapaskische Sprachstamm, ed. by Joh[ann] Carl Buschmann. Berlin: F. Dummler, 1856. Unbound, large margined, uncut and unopened. Pp. [149]-319. First edition. Cf. Zaunmüller, col. 23. Extract from the Abhandlungen der Königlischen Akademie der Wissenschaften zu Berlin, 1855. Includes vocabulary of the Athapaskan languages, taken from various historical sources, English-Athapaskan, including Chepewyan [Ojibwe], Tacullies, Tahkali, Kutchin, Dogrib, Umpqua [Upper Umpqua], Sussee, and Tlatskanai, pp. 174-209, with English-Athapaskan index, pp.210-218, a German-Kinai vocabulary from various historical sources, pp. 233-245, with German-Kinai index, pp. 245-249, a German index to the following vocabulary of Athapaskan languages, pp. 266-268, and a comparative vocabulary of up to sixteen Athapaskan languages, including those named above and Navajo, Ticorilla, Atnah, Ugalenzen, Inkilik, Inkalit, Koltschanen, and Koloschisch, for 260 individually numbered German words, pp. 269-312.

"Interesting publications." (de Vries, America 723). - The linguist Buschmann (1805-1880) stayed in Mexico for a year, traveling throughout the country. Upon his return he collaborated with the Humboldt brothers. He also assisted with Alexander von Humboldt's Kosmos. He made a name for himself with numerous works on the Malayan-Polynesian language family; later, from 1853 on, he worked on the languages of North and Central America. - Sabin 9522; Leclerc 2049 und 2050.

1871: [LILLY] Amerikanisch-asiatische etymologien via Behring-Strasse, "from the East to the West,." By Julius Platzmann. Leipzig: B. G. Teubner, 1871. First edition and only edition, 8vo, pp. [12], 112; 1 map; contemporary half parchment over black pebble-grain cloth, smooth gilt-decorated spine, red morocco label, red stained edges with gilt corners, marbled endpapers; call number stamped at base of spine, text lightly spotted. An Ayer Linguistics duplicate, with Newberry library labels on pastedowns, perforated stamps on title page and p. 101 and release stamp on front free endpaper. This was Platzmann's first philological work, an etymological dictionary of Native American words with Asiatic origins, pp. [1]-[67]. Pilling, Proof-sheets 3019.

1884: [LILLYbm] Comparative Vocabularies of the Indian Tribes of British Columbia, with a Map illustrating Distribution, by W[illiam] Fraser Tolmie & George M[ercer] Dawson. Montreal: Dawson Brothers, 1884. Contemporary dark green cloth over boards, lettered in gold, with a dark green cloth slip-case, also lettered in gold. Pp. 1-5 6-131 132. The slip case contains a map of the Dominion of Canada, Geologically Coloured from Surveys made by the geological corps, 1842-1882, size 78 x 51 in. and printed on two sheets. Also a map of the distribution of the Indian tribes of British Columbia, size 29 x 24 in. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. With two ink stamps of the Zoological Society of London Library, one dated 1886. "Geological and Natural History Survey of Canada" at head of title page.

"[This] work was originally begun by Dr. W.F. Tolmie and myself, in 1875, as a private investigation... Dr. Tolmie's long connection with the west coast, and constant intercourse with the Indian tribes, while an officer of the Hudson's Bay Company and subsequently, give special value to the results of his investigations in linguistic matters" (Dawson, submitting the work to the Director of the Survey). "The vocabularies of Indian languages of British Columbia here printed, were for the most part, collected by Dr. W.F. Tolmie and the writer in Victoria during the winter of 1875-76. The result aimed at was to obtain a short series of the principal words of all the languages and dialects spoken in the province on a uniform system. As being the only available basis known to us at the time, the list of words given by Mr. Gibbs in his Instructions for Research Relative to the Ethnology and Philology of America, was adopted, and has been maintained as a basis of arrangement throughout.... Had Major Powell's Introduction to the Study of Indiana Languages then been printed, we would in all probability have closely followed his improved alphabet.... All the vocabularies here printed appear for the first time, with the exception of the Masset and Skidegate dialects of Haida, which were published in my report on the Queen Charlotte Islands" (Dawson, Preface). "In the following vocabularies are presented about 211 words of one or more dialects of every Indian language spoken on the Pacific slope from the Columbia River north to the Tshilkat river, and beyond, in Alaska..." (Tolmie, Introductory note). The languages include: "Thlinkit, Tshimsian, Haida, Kwakiool, Kawitshin, Aht, Niskwalli, Tsheheilis, Tshinook, Bilhoola, Tinne, Selish, Shahaptani, and Kootenuha." The vocabularies are on pp. 14-111, with notes on the individual languages and their dialects on pp. [113]-125, and an appendix containing a comparative table.

1885: [LILLYbm] Indian local names, with their interpretation, by Stephen G[ill] Boyd. York, Pa: The author, 1885. Original black cloth over boards, lettered in gold and decorated in blind. Pp. [4] i-iv v-x, 1-70 71-74 (first two leaves and last two leaves blank). First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes place names in various Native American languages with English meanings, pp. 1-60.

"Scattered all over our continent are to be found scores upon scores of local names standing as silent but most eloquent memorials of the previous existence of aboriginal races which will return to dwell among us no more forever.... It will be seen that in some cases two and sometimes even three definitions are given to a word. In most cases these have been obtained from entirely different sources, each entitled to more or less credit.. It is all important that [these] translations be made whilst the Indian is yet a living language. Indeed, even now some of those dialects are unknown to their few mongrel descendants. But much can yet be done to save the rich Indian nomenclature from oblivion, especially if it be quickly done" (Introduction).

1902: [IUW] Cinq langues de la Colombie britannique: haïda, tshimshian, kwagiutl, nootka et tlinkit; grammaires, vocabulaires, textes, traduits et analysés par Raoul de La Grasserie. Paris: J. Maisonneuve, 1902. 2 l., 530 p., 1 l.; 25 cm. Bibliothèque linguistique américaine; t. XXIV.

1907-1930: [LILLY] The North American Indian; being a series of volumes picturing and describing the Indians of the United States, and Alaska / written, illustrated, and published by Edward S. Curtis; edited by Frederick Webb Hodge; foreword by Theodore Roosevelt; field research conducted under the patronage of J. Pierpont Morgan. [Seattle, Wash.]: E.S. Curtis; [Cambridge, U.S.A.: University Press], 1907-1930. 20 v.: ill., ports.; 33 cm. + 20 plates (col.) Vols. 9-20 have title: The North American Indian; being a series of volumes picturing and describing the Indians of the United States, the Dominion of Canada, and Alaska ... Vols. 6-20 printed at the Plimpton press, Norwood, Mass. Original photogravures produced in Norwood, Mass. by Plimpton Press and in Cambridge, Mass. by Suffolk Engraving from 1903-1925. "This edition is limited to five hundred sets."

Supplemented by: "The North American Indian, list of large plates supplementing v. 1-20." (20 portfolios of numbered plates 60 x 50 cm.). Number 150 incorrectly numbered 159. Two different plates are numbered 400. Contents: v. 1. no. 1-39.--v. 2. no. 40-75.--v. 3. no. 76-110, 119.--v. 4. no. 111-118, 120-147.--v. 5. no. 148-183.--v. 6. no. 184-219.--v. 7. no. 220-255.--v. 8. no. 256-292.--v. 9. no. 293-328.--v. 10. no. 329-364.--v. 11. no. 365-400.--v. 12. no. 400[a]-435.--v. 13. no. 436-471.--v. 14. no. 472-507.--v. 15. no. 508-543.--v. 16. no. 544-579.--v. 17. no. 580-615.--v. 18. no. 616-651.--v. 19. no. 652-687.--v. 20. no. 688-722. Text and photographs also available in digital form from the Northwestern University Digital Library Collections. Lilly Library set is missing plates no. 119 and no. 678; no. 150 incorrectly numbered 159; two different plates are numbered 400. Lilly Library copy numbered 278. Twenty portfolios of numbered plates (60 x 50 cm.).

With classified vocabularies as indicated below:

I. The Apache. The Jicarillas. The Navaho. Southern Athapascan Comparative Vocabulary (English-Apache [Western Apache]-Jicarilla [Jicarilla Apache]-Navaho), pp. 139-144.

II. The Pima. The Papago. The Qahatika. The Mohave. The Yuma. The Maricopa. The Walapai. The Havasupai. The Apache-Mohave, or Yavapai. Piman Comparative Vocabulary (English-Pima-Papago [Tohono O'odham]), pp. 118-123; Yuman Comparative Vocabulary (English-Mohave-Yuma [Quechan]), pp. 123-128,

III. The Teton Sioux. The Yanktonai. The Assiniboin. Dakota vocabulary (English-Teton [Lakota]-Yanktonai [Dakota]-Assiniboin [Assiniboine]), pp. 152-159.

IV. The Apsaroke, or Crows. The Hidatsa. Apsaroke and Hidatsa Comparative Vocabulary (English-Apsaroke-Hidatsa), pp. 189-196.

V. The Mandan. The Arikara. The Atsina. English-Mandan-Arikara-Atsina [Gros Ventre], pp. 169-177.

VI. The Piegan. The Cheyenne. The Arapaho. Western Algonquian Comparative Vocabulary (English-Piegan [Blackfoot]-Cheyenne-Arapaho), pp. 167-173.

VII. The Yakima. The Klickitat. Salishan tribes of the interior. The Kutenai. English-Yakima [Yakama]-Klickitat [Klikitat, dialect of Yakama]-Kutenai, pp. 172-178; Salishan Comparative Vocabulary (English-Flathead [dialect of Kalispel-Pend d'oreille]-Spokane [Spokane]-Kalispel [dialect of Kalispel-Pend d'oreille]-Wenatschee [dialect of Columbia-Wenatchi]-Sinkiuse [dialect of Columbia-Wenatchi]-Colville [dialect of Okanagan]-Nespilim [Nespelem, dialect of Okanagan]), pp. 179-189.

VIII. The Nez Percés. Wallawalla. Umatilla. Cayuse. The Chinookan tribes. Nez Percé vocabulary (English-Nez Percé [Nez Perce]), pp. 191-195; Molala (English-Molala [Molale]), pp. 195-198; Wishham, Chinook, Cathlamet (English-Wishham [Wasco-Wishram]-Chinook-Cathlamet [dialect of Wasco-Wishram]), pp. 198-205.

IX. Salishan tribes of the coast. The Chimakum and the Quilliute. The Willapa. Coast Salish Tribes (English-Cowlitz [Cowlitz]-Shoalwater Bay [Chinook]-Quinalt-Nisqualli [Nisqually, dialect of Southern Lushootseed]-Snohomish-Lummi-Clallam-Twana-Nooksack-Cowichan [dialect of Halkomelem]), pp. 182-195; Quilliute (English-Quilliute [Quileute]), pp. 196-198; Willipa (English-Willipa [dialect of Kwalhioqua-Clatskanie]), pp. 199-200.

X. The Kwakiutl. English-Qágyuhl [dialect of Kwakiutl once spoken at Qagyuhl village at Fort Rupert?]-Koskimo [dialect of Kwakiutl]-Tlatlasikoala [Tlatlasikwala, dialect of Kwakiutl]-Wikeno [Oowekeno, dialect of Heiltsuk]-Haisla, pp. 329-337.

XI. The Nootka. The Haida. Nootka [Nuu-chah-nulth] (English-Clayoquot [Kyuquot, a dialect of Nuu-chah-nulth]-Makah), pp. [197]-204 (pp. [201]-203 repeat pp. [197]-203); Haida (English-Skidegate [Southern Haida]-Masset [Northern Haida]), pp. 204-210.

XII. The Hopi. English-Hopi, pp. 245-251.

XIII. The Hupa. The Yurok. The Karok. The Wiyot. Tolowa and Tututni. The Shasta. The Achomawi. The Klamath. Athapascan (English-Hupa-Tolowa-Tututni), pp. 243-253; Hokan (English-Shasta-Achomawi [Achumawi]-Karak), pp. 253-262; Algonquian (English-Yurok-Wiyot), pp. 263-272; Lituamian (English-Klamath), pp. 272-276.

XIV. The Kato. The Wailaki. The Yuki. The Pomo. The Wintun. The Maidu. The Miwok. The Yokuts. Athapascan (English-Kato-Wailaki), pp. 201-207; Yukian (English-Yuki-Wappo), pp. 207-214; Pomo (English-Eastern-Northern-Central), pp. 214-220; Wintun (English-Northern [Wintu]-Central [Nomlaki]-Hill Patwin [dialect of Patwin]-Valley Patwin [dialect of Patwin]), pp. 220-229; Northwestern Maidu (English-Valley Maidu-Hill Maidu [Northeast Maidu]), pp. 229-237; Miwok (English-Central [Central Sierra Miwok]-Southern [Southern Sierra Miwok]), pp. 237-243; Yakuts (English-Chukchansi), pp. 244-247.

XV. Southern California Shoshoneans. The Diegueños. Plateau Shoshoneans. The Washo. Southern Shoshonean vocabulary (English-Cupeño-Luiseño-Cahuilla), pp. 173-179; Yuman vocabulary (English-Diegueño [Kumiai]), pp. 179-182; Plateau Shoshonean vocabulary (English-Mono-Paviotso [Northern Paiute]), pp. 182-188; Washo vocabulary (English-Washo), pp. 188-192.

XVI. The Tiwa. The Keres. Tanoan (English-Isleta [Southern Tiwa]-Taos [Northern Tiwa]-Jemez), pp. 266-274; Keresan (English-Laguna [Western Keres]-Cochiti [Eastern Keres]), pp. 274-281.

XVII. The Tewa. The Zuñi. Tewa (English-San Ildefonso [dialect of Tewa]), pp. 200-203; Zuñi (English-Zuñi), pp. 204-209.

XVIII. The Chipewyan. The Western woods Cree. The Sarsi. Chipewyan (English-Chipewyan [Western Ojibwa]), pp. 201-205; Cree (English-Cree [Woods Cree]), pp. 205-210; Sarsi (English-Sarsi), pp. 210-214; Northern Assiniboin (English-Northern Assiniboin [Assiniboine]), pp. 214-218.

XIX. The Indians of Oklahoma. The Wichita. The southern Cheyenne. The Oto. The Comanche. The Peyote cult. English-Oto [Iowa-Oto]-Wichita-Cheyenne-Comanche, pp. 230-238.

XX. The Alaskan Eskimo. The Nunivak Eskimo of Hooper bay. Eskimo of King island. Eskimo of Little Diomedé island. Eskimo of Cape Prince of Wales. The Kotzebue Eskimo. The Noatak. English-Nunivak [Central Yupik]-Little Diomedé [dialect of Northwest Alaska Inuipatun]-Kotzebue [dialect of North Alaskan Inuipatun], pp. 264-277.

1919: [LILLYbm] A Structural and Lexical Comparison of the Tunica, Chitimacha, and Atakapa Languages, by John R[eed] Swanton [1873- ]. Washington: Government Printing Office, 1919. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in gold and decorated in blind. Pp. [2] 1-2 3-56 57-58. First edition. Series: Smithsonian institution. Bureau of American ethnology. Bulletin 68. Includes 339 word comparative vocabulary, Tunica-Chitimacha-Atakapa, with English equivalents, pp. 37-51. First substantial published vocabularies of these languages. This copy with the bookplate and pencil ownership signature of C[harles] T[rick] Currelly [1876-1957], the archeologist and museum director, author of Stone Implements, 1913, part of the catalogue of Egyptian Antiquities at the Cairo Museum, and a volume of memoirs, I Brought the Ages Home, Toronto, 1956, among others. Second copy: IUW.

1952, 1955: [LILLYbm] The Mission Indian vocabularies of Alphonse Pinart, edited by R.F. Heizer. [Berkeley, University of California Press, 1952, 1955] Vol. 1: 84 p.; vol. 2 paginated 85-202. 28 cm. Anthropological records v. 15, no. 1-2. California Indian linguistic records; "The vocabularies presented here deal with four languages: Costanoan, Salinan, Esselen, and Chumash." Bibliography: p. 83-84.

Vol. 1 includes under Costanoan: English-Spanish-Coastanoan I [Soledad dialect of Northern Ohlone]-Costanoan II [Santa Cruz dialect of Northern Ohlone, with some words in the San Juan Bautista (Mutsun) dialect]-Costanoan III [Santa Cruz dialect of Northern Ohlone, with some words in the San Juan Bautista (Mutsun) dialect]-Costanoan IV [Rumsen dialect of Southern Ohlone], pp. 7-34; English-Spanish-Chumash I [Ineseño]-Chumash II [Ventureño]-Chumash III [Central Chumash group]-Chumash IV [Purisimeño]-Chumash V [Cruzeño]-Chumash VI [Cruzeño]-Chumash VII [Barbareño], pp. 36-71; English-Spanish-Salinan-Esselen, pp. 73-82.

Vol. 2 includes: English-Santa Rosa Is. [Cruzeño]-La Purisima [Purisimeño]-Santa Barbara [Barbareño]-Santa Ynez [Ineseño]-San Buenaventura [Ventureño]-San Luis Obispo [Obispeño], pp. [94]-[147]; English-Soledad [dialect of Northern Ohlone]-Rumsien [Rumsen, dialect of Southern Ohlone]-Santa Clara [dialect of Northern Ohlone]-Santa Cruz [dialect of Northern Ohlone], pp. 160-174; English-Rumsien [Rumsen, dialect of Southern Ohlone] phrase, pp. 175-183; English-Soledad [dialect of Northern Ohlone] phrases, pp. 183-[184], English-Santa Cruz [[dialect of Northern Ohlone] phrases, p. 185; English-Santa Clara [dialect of Northern Ohlone] phrases, p. 185; Addenda, Rumsen-English names, English-Santa Cruz [dialect of Northern Ohlone], p. 186. Second copy: IUW, library binding, bound as one volume.

[INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF SOUTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT] Indigenous languages of South America include, among several others, Quechua languages in Bolivia, Peru, Ecuador and, less common in Argentina, Chile and Colombia; Guaraní in Paraguay and, to a much lesser extent, in Argentina and Bolivia; Aymara in Bolivia, Peru, and less often in Chile; Wayuu in northern Colombia and northwest Venezuela; and Mapudungun is spoken in certain pockets of southern Chile and, more rarely, Argentina. In Bolivia, Quechua, Aymara, and Tupi Guaraní are co-official alongside Spanish. In Paraguay, Guaraní shares joint official status with Spanish. In Colombia, the languages of the country's ethnic groups are constitutionally recognized as official languages in their territories; more than 60 such aboriginal languages exist today. In Ecuador, Spanish, Northern Quechua and Shuar are official for intercultural relations. In Peru, Quechua, Aymara, and other indigenous languages are co-official in the areas where they are predominant. There are many other languages once spoken in South America that are extinct today (such as the extinct languages of the Marañón River basin). In Brazil, there are around 135 indigenous languages confirmed. The regions with the most speakers are northern and western Brazil, where there is a larger concentration of native people. Indigenous populations have been trying to keep their traditions of their homeland, with the help of Funai, the agency responsible for the protection of the native people (Wiki).

1882: [LILLY] Grammaires et vocabulaires roucouyenne, arrouague, piapoco et d'autres langues de la région des Guyanes, by J. Crevaux, P. Sagot, L. Adam. Paris, Maisonneuve, 1882. iii, 288p. 25cm. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black and red, with a drawing of the Tower of Babel on front cover; spine covered in later brown paper, lettered in ink by Lanyon-Orgill. Front wrapper defective, but with loss of only half a word. Bibliothèque linguistique américaine, t.8. A collection of short grammar and vocabularies for about a dozen languages spoken in French Guiana, as follow: French-Roucouyenne [Wayana], pp. [1]-20; French-Apalaí, pp. [32]-34; French-Carijona, pp. [35]-38; French-Trió (about 30 words), pp. [39]-40; French-Oyampi [Wayampi], pp. [41]-44; French-Oyampi [Wayampi], pp. [45]-50; French-Émérillon [Emerillon] (ten words), p. [51]; French-Tama (eleven words; spoken by the Correguaje and Macaguaje tribes, probably Macaguaje (extinct) and/or Koreguaje), p. [52]; French-Galibi [Carib], pp. [53]-60; French-Arrouague [Aruá], pp. [61]-68; Arawak-German, pp. [69]-165; French-Piapoco, pp. [242]-252; French-Baniva, pp. [253]-256; French-Piaroa, pp. [257]-258; French-Guahiba [Guahibo], pp. 258-260; French-Yaroura [Pumé], pp. 260-261; French-Otomaca [Otomaco], pp. 262-263; French-Guaraouna [Warao], pp. 263-266; French-Cariniaca [Carib], pp. 267-275; Spanish-Vaniva [Baniva], pp. 276-280; Spanish-Yavitera [Yavitero], pp. 281-284; Spanish-Barré [Baré], pp. 284-286. This copy from the library of Peter Antony Lanyon-Orgill, noted linguist, with his bookplate. Second copy: IUW.

1886: [IUW] Durch Central-Brasilien. Expedition zur erforschung des Schingú im jahre 1884. Von Karl von den Steinen. Mit über 100 text- und separatbildern von Wilhelm von den Steinen, 12 separatbildern von Johannes Gehrts, einer specialkarte des Schingústroms von Otto Clauss, einer ethnographischen kartenskizze und einer übersichtskarte. Leipzig, F. A. Brockhaus, 1886. xii, 372 p. incl. front., illus. 15 pl. (2 fold.) 3 maps (3 fold.) 3 fold. tab. 28 cm. Library binding. Appendix 2: "Literatur für die sprachvergleichung" [bibliography of works referred to for comparative linguistics]: p. 334-335. Appendix 3: "Bakaïrí," vocabulary with comparisons with other Caribe languages, German-Bakaïrí [Bakairí], pp. 339-347; phrases, Bakaïrí [Bakairí]-German, pp. 347-348; Appendix 4: "Kustenaú," German-Kustenaú [Custenau] vocabulary, p. 354-355; Appendix 5: "Suyá," German-Suyá vocabulary, pp. 357-359; Appendix 6: "Manitsauá," German-Manitsauá [Maritsauá] vocabulary, pp. 360-361; Appendix 7: "Yuruna," German-Yuruna [Jurúna] vocabulary, pp. 362-363.

Portuguese translation 1942: [IUW] O Brasil central; expedição em 1884 para a exploração do rio Xingú. Tradução de Catarina Baratz Cannabrava. Ed. ilustrada. São Paulo, Companhia Editora Nacional, 1942. 419 p. incl. front., (group port.) illus. fold. plates, maps (part fold.) fold. tables. 25 cm. Library binding. "Do original alemão: 'Durch Central-Brasilien,' edição de F. A. Brockhaus, Leipzig, 1886." "Bibliografia": p. [387]-388. Includes the vocabularies published in the original volume, with Portuguese replacing the German.

1889: [LILLY] L'Orénoque et le Caura: relation de voyages exécutés en 1886 et 1887; contenant 56 gravures et 2 cartes, by Jean Chaffanjon [1854-1913]. Paris: Hachette & cie, 1889. 2 p.l. 351 p. incl. illus., plates, maps. 18 cm. Original yellow and red wrappers, lettered in black and yellow, with illustration on front cover. Fine unopened copy. Includes section of vocabularies of French-Cariban Family, pp. 319-344. These are: Guahibo, Piaroa, Piapoco, Baré, Gérale [Nhengatu], Baniva, Maquiritaré [Maquiritari].

1892: [IUW] Vocabulaires méthodiques des langues ouayana, aparai, oyampi, émérillon, by Henri Anatole Coudreau [1859-1899]. Précédés d'une introd. par Lucien Adam. Paris, J. Maisonneuve, 1892. 144 p. 25 cm. Series: Bibliothèque linguistique américaine, t. 15. Vocabularies of Ouayana [Wayana], Aparai [Apalaí], Oyampi [Wayampi] and Émérillon [Emerillon].

1893: [LILLYbm] Matériaux pour servir à l'établissement d'une grammaire comparé [!] des dialectes de la famille caribe, by Lucien Adam. Paris: J. Maisonneuve, 1893. 2 p. ., 139 p., 1 ., 25 cm. Series: Bibliothèque linguistique américaine. t. XVI.I Later full dark green cloth, lettered in gold. Includes comparative vocabulary of French-various dialects of Carib, pp. 90-139. This copy with the bookplate of Peter Antony Lanyon-Orgill. . Lanyon-Orgill was for some years the editor of the Journal of Austronesian Studies, and published dictionaries of such languages as Raluana and Mailu.

1894: [IUW] Unter den naturvölkern Zentral-Brasiliens. Reiseschilderung und ergebnisse der zweiten Schingú-expedition, 1887-1888, von Karl von den Steinen ... Mit 30 tafeln (1 heliogravüre, 11 lichtdruckbilder, 5 autotypien und 7 lithogr. tafeln), sowie 160 text-abbildungen nach den photographien der expedition, nach den originalaufnahmen von Wilhelm von den Steinen und nach zeichnungen von Johannes Gehrts nebst einer karte von prof. dr. Peter Vogel. Berlin, D. Reimer (Hoefer & Vohsen) 1894. xiv p., 1 l., 570, [2] p. illus., 30 pl. (incl. front.) fold. map. 26 cm. Library binding. Includes vocabularies in appendix I: pp. [523]-547, as follow: 1) German-Nahuquá [Matipuhy], pp. 524-526; 2) German-Yanumakapü/Nahuquá [Matipuhy], pp. 526-527; 3) German-Mehinakú [Mehinaku], pp. 527-529; 4) German-Kustenaú [Custenau], pp. 529-530; 5) German-Waurá, pp. 531-532; 6) German-Yaulapiti [Yawalapiti], pp. 532-534; 7) German-Auetó [Awetí], pp. 535-537; 8) German-Kamayurá, pp. 537-540; 9) German-Trumaí [Trumai], pp. 540-542; 10) German-Paressí [Parecís], pp. 542-544; 11) German-Bororó [Borôro], pp. 545-547. The report of the author's first expedition was published, Leipzig, 1886, under title: Durch Central-Brasilien. Expedition zur erforschung des Schingú im jahre 1884 [see above].

1909-1946: [LILLY] Études linguistiques caribes, by C. H. de Goeje. 2 vols.

Vol. 1: "Études de grammaire comparé, suivies d'un vocabulaire compare," by C. H. de Goeje. Amsterdam: Johannes Müller, 1909. 307 pp. 25,5 cm. Lacks original wrappers, sewn signatures. Series: Verhandelingen der Koninklijke nederlandse Akademie van wetenschappen te Amsterdam.. Afd. Letterkunde. Nieuwe reeks. Deel X. N° 3. First edition. Comparative vocabulary of Cariban languages, thematically arranged, pp. 27-72,. Also contains separate vocabularies as follow: French-Kaliña [Carib], pp. [155]-173, Kaliña [Carib]-French words and phrases, pp. 174-180; French-Trio [Akurio] vocabulary, pp. [200]-215 (including Oyana [Wayana] for the parts of the body, pp. [22]-203), Trio [Akurio]-French words and phrases, pp. 215-244; French-Oyana [Wayana], pp. [267]-

275, Oyana [Wayana]-French words and phrases, pp. 275-292. Appendix: names of animals, French-Kaliña [Carib]-Trio [Akurio]-Oyana [Wayana]-Arowak, pp. [293]-305. Errata, pp. [306]-307. Compiles vocabularies in part from earlier sources. This volume from the library of the noted linguist Johannes Rahder, with his ownership stamp, and a few markings

Vol. 2: "Études de grammaire comparé, suivies d'un vocabulaire compare des langues de la famille Caribe," by C. H. de Goeje. North-Holland publishing C°, 1946. 274 p. 26 cm. Original tan wrappers, lettered in black. Series: Verhandelingen der Koninklijke nederlandse Akademie van wetenschappen. Afd. Letterkunde. Nieuwe reeks. Deel 49. N° 2. First edition. Includes a comparative vocabulary of Cariban languages, pp. [49]-94. Also contains separate vocabularies of Oayana [Wayana], Triometesem [Akurio] and Wama [Akurio]. This copy with the bookplate of Peter Antony Lanyon-Orgill, noted linguist. Ethnologue lists both Triometesem and Wama as alternative names for Akurio.

1910-1911: [IUW] Catálogo razonado de la sección lenguas americanas, por Bartolomé Mitre. Con una introducción de Luis María Torres. Buenos Aires, Imprenta de Coni hermanos, 1909-10 [i. e. 11]. 3 v. in 2. Cover and colophon of v. 3 dated 1911. Vol. I: xliii, 409 p.; Vol. II-III, 325 p.; 318 p. Matching contemporary brown quarter-leather and marbled paper over boards, with brown leather labels lettered in gold. "Bibliografía lingüística americana": v. 1, p. [5]-70. The work includes various vocabularies: Vol. I: "Vocabulario Gennaken (lengua de los antiguos Pampas)", Spanish-Gennaken [Puelche], pp. 214-215; "Vocaulario deducido de la gramtica de T. Schmid," Teheulche-Spanish, pp. 298-304, Spanish-Teheulche, pp. 205-310; "Vocabulario Allentiak-Español," Allentiak-Spanish, pp. 361-409; Vol. II: comparative vocabulary, Spanish-Guayana [Wayana]-Guarani, pp. 38-39 (36 words); "Vocabulario Español y Lenguas," Spanish-Lenguas [Lengua], pp. 145-152, Lenguas [Lengua]-Spanish, pp. 152-160.

1931: [IUW] "Unter nordostbrasilianische Indianern," by E. Heinrich Snethlage. In: Zetischrift für Ethnologie. Vol. 62, 1931, pp. 111-205. Library binding, preserving original tan wrappers, lettered in brown. Classified vocabulary, German-Piokobyé [Pará Gavião]-Remkokamekrān [Ramkokamekra, dialect of Canela]-Krāo [Krahô]-Apinayé, pp. 187-200.

"While working through the wordlists I had compiled from the various Krān tribes (having unfortunately lost that of the Kreapimkatayé when my boat sank on the Grajahn River) I was well aware of their faults. The person and tense of the verbs, for example, is quite doubtful. While taking them down and asking follow-up questions I ran into conflicting responses. I also noted that the tone and length of various vowels, which mean different things, changed. I was not able at that time to get them down on paper" (Linguistic: tr: BM).

1948: [IUW] Glossário geral das tribos silvícolas de Mato-Grosso e outras de Amazônia e do norte do Brasil: Tomo 1, pelo general Cândido M.S. Rondon e pelo etnógrafo Dr. João Barbosa de Faria. Rio de Janeiro, Brasil: Imprensa Nacional, 1948. 255 p.: maps; 27 cm. Series: Publicação / Estados Unidos do Brasil, Ministério da Agricultura, Conselho Nacional de Proteção aos Indios; no. 76. Anexo 5, Etnografia. Zaubmüller, col. 32.

2000: [IUW] Manual de lenguas indígenas de Venezuela, by Esteban Emilio Mosonyi y Jorge Carlos Mosonyi; coautores indígenas, Basilio Arintero ... [et al.].

Caracas: Fundación Bigott, 2000. 2 v. (664 p.): ill., maps; 22 cm. Original brown card and cloth binding, with printed paper labels in white and gray-green. Series: Serie Orígenes; 3. Vol 1: Spanish-Warao vocabulary, pp. 181-182; Spanish-Baniva, pp. 231-222; Spanish-Cuiba (Jiwi), pp. 263-264; Spanish-Guajibo (Jiwi) vocabulary, pp. 332-333. Vol 2: Spanish-Guajiro (Wayuu) vocabulary, pp. 395-396; Spanish-Kariña vocabulary, pp. 448-449; Spanish-Ñengatú (Tupí)-Guaraní vocabulary, pp. 483-489; Spanish-Pemón vocabulary, pp. 541-542; Spanish-Yaruro (Pumé) vocabulary, pp. 591-592; Spanish-Yavitero vocabulary, pp. 659-660.

2004: [IUW] Contribuição da língua tupi e da jê ao português no Brasil, by Agenor Ribeiro. Rio de Janeiro: [s.n.], 2004 ([Rio de Janeiro?]: Ferreira Studio) 56 p.; 21 cm. Brazilian languages as elements of Brazilian Portuguese.

2013: [IUW] Lenguaraces egregios : Rosas, Mitre, Perón y las lenguas indígenas / estudio preliminar y selección de Guillermo David. [Buenos Aires?]: Museo del Libro y de la Lengua ; Ciudad Autónoma de Buenos Aires : Ediciones Biblioteca Nacional, [2013]. 210 pages ; 23 cm. Museo del libro y de la lengua (Series). Rosas' work, previously published in 1825 ; Mitre's work in 1909 and Perón's work in 1935-1936 (1st edition) and 1950 (2nd edition). Includes bibliographical references. Preliminary study and texts in Spanish; dictionaries Pampa-Spanish, Spanish-Pampa, Allentiaque-Spanish and Araucano-Spanish. Contents: Gramática y diccionario de la lengua pampa / Juan Manuel de Rosas; Catálogo razonado de lenguas americanas / Bartolomé Mitre; Toponimia patagónica de etimología araucana / Mayor Juan Domingo Perón.

[INDO-ARYAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT] The Indo-Aryan or Indic languages are the dominant language family of the Indian subcontinent, spoken largely by Indo-Aryan people. They constitute a branch of the Indo-Iranian languages, itself a branch of the Indo-European language family. Indo-Aryan speakers form about one half of all Indo-European speakers (about 1.5 of 3 billion), and more than half of all Indo-European languages recognized by Ethnologue. The largest in terms of native speakers are Hindustani (Hindi-Urdu, about 250 million), Bengali (about 200 million), Punjabi (about 100 million), Marathi (about 70 million), Gujarati and Rajasthani (about 50 million each), Bhojpuri (about 40 million), Odia (about 30 million), Sindhi (about 25 million), Saraiki (20 million) and Nepali, Sinhala and Assamese (about 15 million each), with a total number of native speakers of more than 900 million (Wiki).

1855: [LILLYbm] Notes on Northern Cachar, by R. Stewart, extracted from: Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, Vol. XXIV, Part VII, 1855. Calcutta: Baptist Mission Press, 1856. Contemporary dark green cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. i-iii iv-vii viii (journal title page and contents), 549-551 552-733 744. Includes a comparative vocabulary list of "some of the various languages spoken on the Eastern Frontier of Bengal," including Manipoorie, Cacharee, New Kookie, Arúnga Naga, Gnámi Naga, Old Kookie, Meekir, pp. 658-675. This copy with the book-plate of the Baptist Missionary Society Mission House Library. These are the first printed vocabularies of these languages.

"North Cachar... is bounded on the north by the rivers Jumoonah and Hurriahjan, which separate it from the Assam district of Nowgong. On the east the river Dhunseeree... is our frontier with the independent tribes of Angami and Kutcha Nagas... The population, consisting in all of about 30,000 souls, is composed of no less than six different tribes, all having distinct languages, manners and customs. They are thinly scattered throughout the country in small village communities...all the tribes in the hills...are...wonderfully long-winded, sure-footed, and strong-backed...I feel confident that a zealous missionary with a good medicine chest, and some slight knowledge of the healing art, who would take the trouble to associate with the people, live among them, acquire their language and obtain a knowledge of the general character of the tribe, would in a short time make numbers of converts, and tend in a great measure to raise the remainder from the depths of ignorance and filth into which they are plunged ...Throughout India I know of no field for missionary labour which gives promise of such fertility as the hills of Northern Cachar, and yet no missionary has penetrated them. Here no might rocks in the shape of brahmanical philosophies to be blasted. No deep ravines like Muhammedan sensualism to be filled up, but the field lies open for cultivation, and merely requires the rank weeds of evil passions to be kept down, and the small stones of petty superstition to be lifted, to be ready for the fructification of the good seed."

1868: [LILLYbm] A Comparative Dictionary of the Non-Aryan Languages of India and High Asia, with a dissertation. Based on the Hodgson lists, official records, and mss., by W[illiam] W[ilson] Hunter [1840-1900]. London: Trübner & Co., 1868. Original green cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. [12] 12-218 219-224. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 184. Not in Wolff. Includes approximately 185 common words, one word per page, with equivalents in approximately 140 different languages of India and High Asia, pp. 33-218. With prefaces in English, German, French, Russian and Latin, and with indices to the vocabularies in each of the languages. This copy from the Stoke Newington Public Library, with its bookplate and accession stamps. Scores of languages are represented here for which no dictionary yet exists. [Note: both Zaunmüller and OCLC list title without words "Non-Aryan"; see 1978 reprint as well].

"This book, for the first time in the history of India, places the governing race in direct communication with eighty millions of its non-Aryan subjects and neighbours.... The study of the non-Aryan tongues of India is destined, I believe, to open the door to the vast linguistic residue, and to furnish the basis of a new science of language" (Preface).

Reprinted 1976: [IUW] A comparative dictionary of the languages of India and High Asia: with a dissertation, based on the Hodgson lists, official records and Mss., by W. W. Hunter. New Delhi: Oriental Publishers & Distributors, 1976. 218, [6] p.; 29 cm. Pref. and indexes in English, French, Latin, German and Russian; dissertation in English. Reprint of the 1868 ed., published by Trübner, London.

1880: [LILLY] A detailed analysis of Abdul Ghafur's dictionary of the terms used by criminal tribes in the Panjab, by G[ottlieb] W[illiam] Leitner [1840-1899]. Lahore: Printed at the Punjab Govt. Civil Secretariat Press, 1880. xxvii p. 34 cm. Original green wrappers, lettered and decorated in black.

1885: [LILLY] A short list of words of the Hill Tippera language, with their English equivalents: also of words of the language spoken by Lushais of the Sylet frontier, collected by J.D. Anderson, ... To which have been added, for comparison, the Bodo (Kachari) equivalents taken from Mr. Brian Hodgson's essay on the Koch, Bodo, and Dhimal tribes, Calcutta, 1847; and from the Revd. Mr. Endle's Kachari Grammar, Shillong, 1884; also Lushai equivalents from the dialect spoken by the Lushais of the Chittagong frontier: these latter are taken from Captain Lewis's exercises in the Lushai language, and are marked C. Shillong: printed at the Assam Secretariat Press, 1885. [2], 13, [1]p; 24 cm. Lilly Library copy with the book label of John Lawson. Side-sewn in original grey printed wrappers, interleaved throughout. BM 4:1256. NUC pre-1956. 15:515 (NA 0301864). Kok Borok language --Glossaries, vocabularies, etc. Lushai [Mizo] language --Glossaries, vocabularies, etc. Bodo language --Glossaries, vocabularies, etc.

India--Languages--Vocabulary.

1903-1927: [LILLYbm] Linguistic Survey of India, 11 volumes in 19, ed. by Sir G[eorge] A[braham] Grierson [1851-1941]. Calcutta: Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, India, 1903-1927. Volume I, Part III, announced in 1927 as a forthcoming "Comparative Dictionary of the Indo-Aryan Languages" by R. L. Turner which would "complete the Series" did not in fact appear as part of the series, but was eventually published separately in two volumes by Oxford University Press, 1962-1969 (see below).

Volume I, Part I, 1927: [LILLYbm] Linguistic Survey of India. Vol. I. Part I. Introductory, by Sir George Abraham Grierson [1851-1941]. Calcutta: Government of India Central Publication Branch, 1927. Original pale blue-gray wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [6] i ii-xviii, 1 2-517 518 + folding color maps. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Supplement I: "Addenda majora:" addenda to Vol. III, Part II, English-Semā, pp. 205-209, English-Chāng-Nāgā, pp. 211-215, and English-Thāngkhul, pp. 217-220; as addenda to Vol. V, Part II, English-Oriyā, pp. 226-230; as addenda to Vol. VII, Kudālī-Marāthī-English, pp. 245-246; as addenda to Vol. VIII, Part II, provided by George Morgenstierne as examples of the "Kāfir" language: English-Katī (i.e. Bashgalī of survey) (Kulum, Bargamatal)-Wāigalī (Kēgal, Zhōnjigal)-Prasū (i.e. Wasī-veri or Veron of survey)-Ashkū (i.e. Ashkund of survey) (Tātīn, Majegal)-English, pp. 250-257, specimens of the Pashā language: English-Gulbahār-Ozbīn-Najīl-Laurovān-Waigal-Darra-i-Nūr, pp. 261-264; English-Tirāhī, pp. 299-303, a further Tirāhī-English vocabulary, pp. 305-327; English-Shinā, pp. 381-384; as addenda to Vol. X, English-Parāchī, pp. 387-388, Appendix I with classified list of Indian languages, pp. 389-410, and Appendix III with an index of language names, pp. 426-517.

Volume I, Supplement II, 1927: [LILLYbm] (issued separately): Linguistic Survey of India. Volume I. Supplement II. Addenda et Corrigenda Minora. Calcutta: Government of India Central Publication Branch, 1927. Original pale blue-gray wrappers, lettered in black. Ff. [2] 1 2-48. First edition.

Volume I, Part II, 1928: [LILLYbm] Linguistic Survey of India. Vol. I. Part II. Comparative Vocabulary, by Sir George Abraham Grierson [1851-1941]. Calcutta: Government of India Central Publication Branch, 1928. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. [4] i-iii iv-viii, 1 2-337 338, 2 1 2. First edition. Zauhmüller, col. 22. Includes comparative vocabulary of 168 English words, one on each double page spread, with equivalents in 364 Asian/Indian languages, pp. 2-337, and an index to the English words, pp. <sup>2</sup>[1]-2. With loosely inserted folded errata 'yasheet, printed on one side only, pp. i ii. Second copy: IUW.

Volume II, 1904: [LILLYbm] Linguistic Survey of India. Vol. II. Mōn-Khmēr and Siamese-Chinese Families (including Khassi and Tai), ed. by Sir G[eorge] A[braham] Grierson [1851-1941]. Calcutta: Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, India, 1904. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. [10] i ii, 1 2-233 234-236 + 2 color maps.. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes "standard list of [241] words and sentences in Khassi and other Mon-Khmēr Languages," as follow: English-Khassi (Lyng-ngam)-Khassi (Synteng)-Khassi (Wār)-Palaung (and other Mōn-Khmēr), pp. 38-57; and "standard list of [241] words and sentences in the Tai languages of Assam," as follow: English-Āhom (Sibsagar)-Khāmtī (Lakhimpur)-Tairong (Sabsagar)-Norā (Sibsagar)-Aitoniā (Sibsagar), pp. 214-233. This copy with a loosely-inserted printed slip: "With Dr. Grierson's Compliments". With the pencilled note: 'Exch. | Library | University College London | 1-26-1935'. Second copy: IUW.

Volume III, Part I, 1909: [LILLY] Linguistic Survey of India. Vol. III. Tibeto-Burman Family. Part I. General Introduction, Specimens of the Tibetan Dialects, The Himalayan Dialects, and the North Assam Group, ed. by Sir G[eorge] A[braham] Grierson [1851-1941]. Calcutta: Office of the Superintendent, Government Printing, India, 1909. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Includes "list of [241] standard words and sentences in the dialects of the Tibetan language," as follow: English-Baltī (Baltistān)-Purik (Purik)-Ladāhkī (Ladakh)-Central dialect (Sandberg and Henderson)-Spitī (Spiti)-Kāgate (Darjeeling)-Sharpa (Darjeeling)-Dānjonkā (Sandberg)-Lahoke (Darjeeling)-English, pp. 140-175; "list of [241] standard words and sentences in the non-pronominalized Himalayan dialects," as follow: English-Gurung (Nepal)-Murmi (Nepal)-Sunwār (Darjeeling)-Māgar (Nepal)-Nēwārī (Nepal)-Pahrī (Nepal)-Róng (Darjeeling)-Tōtō (Jalpaiguri)-English, pp. 254-271; a "comparative vocabulary of minor Khambu dialects," as follow: English-Bālāli-Sāngpāng-Lōhōrōng-Lāmbichhōng-Wāling-Chhingtāng-Rūngchhēnbūng-Dūngmāli-Rōdōng-Nāchhērōng-Kūlung-Thūlung-Chouraz'ya-Kāling-ūmi, pp. 342-349; numbers in other Nepali dialects: Chōpāng-Kusūnda-Brāhmu-Thākaya, pp. 399-402; "standard words and phrases in the Eastern pronominalized Himalayan languages," as follow: English-Dhīmāl (Hodgson)-Thāmī (Darjeeling)-Simbu (Nepal)-Yākhā (Darjeeling)-Khambu (Darjeeling)-Bāhing (Hodgson)-Rāi (Nepal)-Vāyu (Hodgson)-English, pp. 408-425; "list of standard words and phrases in the Western sub-group of pronominalized Himalayan languages," as follow: English-Kanāw'rī (Basharh)-Kanāshī-Manchāṭī (Lahul)-Chamba Lāhulī-Bunān (Lahul)-Rangkas (Almora)-Dārmīyā (Almora)-Chaudāngsī (Almora)-Byāngsī (Almora)-Janggalī (Almora)-English, pp. 532-567; "list of standard words and phrases in the dialects of the North Assam group," as follow: English-

Aka (Darrang)-Eastern Daflā (Hamilton)-Daflā (Robinson)-Miri-Abor (when different from Miri)-Chulikātā or Taying Mishmi (Campbell)-Digāru Mishmi (Robinson and Needham)-Mijū Mishmi (Robinson and Needham)-English, pp. 622-641. Second copy: IUW.

Volume III, Part II, 1903: [LILLYbm] Linguistic Survey of India. Vol. III. Tibeto-Burman Family. Part II. Specimens of the Bodo, Naga, and Kachin Groups, ed. by Sir G[eorge] A[braham] Grierson [1851-1941]. Calcutta: Office of the Superintendent, Government Printing, India, 1903. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. [8] i ii, [2] 1 2-528 529-530 + 2 color maps.. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Tipurā-Bârā-English, pp. 11-113; a "list of [241] standard words and sentences in the various languages of the Bodo Group," as follow: English-Bârā or Plains Kachārī (Darrang)-Mech (Jalpaiguri)-Lālūng (of Nowgong)-Dīmā-sā or Hills Kachārī (Cachar)-Dīmā-sā or Hills Kachārī (Hōjai of Nowgong)-Gārō (Standard, and Kamrup)-Gārō (Abeng, of Garo Hills)-Gārō (Jalpaiguri)-Gārō (Ātong, of Garo Hills)-Gārō (Rugā, of Garo Hills)-Kōch (of Dacca)-Konch (Williamson)-Tipurā (of Dacca)-Deuri-Chutiyā (Lakhimpur)- Deuri-Chutiyā (Sibsagar), pp. 132-141; a list of "[241] standard words and sentences in the various languages of the Western Nāgā Sub-group," as follow: English-Angāmi (Tengimā)-Angāmi (Dzunâ, when different from Tengimā)-Angāmi (Kahenâ, when different from Tengimā)-Angāmi (Nāli or Mimā, when different from Tengimā)-Semā-Rengmā-Rengmā (Butler)-Kezhāmā, pp. 246-263; comparative vocabulary of Chungli and Mongsen, pp. 281-283; a list of "[241] standard words and sentences in the various languages of the Central Nāgā Sub-group," as follow: English-Āo (Chungli) (Clark)-Kahri (Brown)-Hati Garya Naga (Campbell)-Āo (Mongsen) (Davis)-Lhōtā (Witter)-Miklai Naga (Campbell)-Tengsa and Dopdor (Brown)-Thukumi-Yachumi, pp. 292-327; a list of "[241] standard words and sentences in the various languages of the Eastern Nāgā Sub-group," as follow: English-Tableng-Tamlu-Mulung and Sima (Brown)-Banparā (Campbell)-Chāng or Mojung-Mutonia (Muthun and Kulung-Muthun of Brown)-Namsangia (Nāgā of Luckimpore) (Campbell)-Namsang (Jaipuriā of Butler)-Mōshāng Nāgā, pp. 342-377; a list of "[241] standard words and sentences in the various languages of the Nāgā-Bodo Sub-group," as follow: English-Mikir (Nowgong)-Mikir (Bhoi)-Ēmpēo (Kachchā Nāgā) (Soppitt)-Arung (Stewart)-Kabui Nāgā-Khoirāo Nāgā, pp. 432-449; a list of "[241] standard words and sentences in the various languages of the Nāgā-Kuki Sub-group," as follow: English-Sopvomā-Marām (McCulloch)-Kwoireng or Līyāng (McCulloch)-Tāngkhui Nāgā-Phadāng (McCulloch)-Khangoi (Khongoe of McCulloch)-Maring Nāgā, pp.480-497; and "List of [241] standard words and sentences in Singphō," as follows: English-Singphō [Jingpho] (Lakhimpur), pp. 519-528. This copy withdrawn from the University of Michigan Library, with their bookplate and accession stamp dated October 30, 1911. Second copy: IUW.

Volume III, Part III, 1904: [LILLY] Linguistic Survey of India. Vol. III. Tibeto-Burman Family. Part III. Specimens of the Kuki-Chin and Burma Groups, ed. by Sir G[eorge] A[braham] Grierson [1851-1941]. Calcutta: Office of the Superintendent, Government Printing, India, 1904. 403 p. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Second copy: IUW. Includes "standard words and sentences in Meithei, Andro, Sengmai and Chairel," as follow: English-Meithei (Manipur)-Andro (McCulloch)-Sengmai (McCulloch)-Chairel (McCulloch), pp. 45-54; "standard words and sentences in the Northern Chin sub-group," as follow: English-Khongzāi (of Manipur)-Thādo (Nāga Hills)-Sairang (Cachar Plains)-Kuki of Cachar (Campbell)-Siyin (Rundall)-English, pp. 88-105; "standard words and sentences in the Central Chin sub-group," as follow: English-Lai (Haka)-Shonshe of Gangaw (F. H. Elliott)-Lushēi (Dulien)-Banjōgī (Chittagong Hill Tracts)-Pānkhū (Chittagong Hill Tracts)-English, pp. 160-179; "standard words and sentences in the old Kuki dialects," as follow: English-Rāngkhōl (Cachar)-Hallām (Sylhet)-Langrong (Hill Tipperah)-Aimol (Manipur)-Chiru (Manipur)-Kolrēn (Manipur)-Kōm (Manipur)-Pūrūm (Manipur)-Anāl (Manipur)-Hirōi Lamgāng (Manipur)-English, pp. 292-327; "words and sentences in Southern Chi dialects," as follow: English-Taungtha (W. B. Tydd)-Chinbōk (W. B. Tydd)-Yawdwin (A. Ross)-Shō (Chittagong Hill Tracts)-Shō (Houghton)-Shō (Fryer)-Khami (Chittagong Hill Tracts)-Khami (Letter and Campbell)-English, pp. 360-377; "standard words and sentences in Mrū," English-Mrū (Chittagong Hill Tracts), pp. 395-403. Second copy: IUW.

Volume IV, 1906: [LILLYbm] Linguistic Survey of India. Vol. IV. Munda and Dravidian Languages, ed. by Sir G[eorge] A[braham] Grierson [1851-1941], this volume prepared by Sten Konow. Calcutta: Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, 1906. Original brown cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. [4] i-v vi-xiv, 1-3 4-681 682-684. Zaunmüller, col. 184. Includes comparative vocabulary of "[241] standard words and sentences in the languages of the Munda family" as follow: English-Santālī [Santhali] (Sonthal Parganas)-Māhlē (Sonthal Parganas) [Mahali]-Mundārī (Ranchi)-Birhār (Sonthal Parganas) [Bhojpuri]-Dhangār (Sonthal Parganas)-Korwā (Mirzapur)-Kūrkū (Amraoti) [Korku]-Nahālī (Nimar) [Nihali]-Khariā (Ranchi)-Juāng (Dhenkanal)-Savara (Ganjam)-Gadabā (Bastar)-English, pp. 240-275; and comparative vocabulary of [241] "standard words and phrases in the languages of the Dravidian family" as follow: English-Tamil (Poona)-Korvi (Belgaum)-Kaikādī (Sholapur)-Malayālam-Kanarese (Belgaum)-Kurukh (Palamau) [Kurux]-Malto [Kumarbhag-Paharia; Sauria-Paharia]-Kui (Khondmals)-Gōndī (Mandla) [Southern Gondi]-Telugu-Brāhūī (Kalat), Pp. 646-681.

Volume V, Part I., 1903: [LILLYbm] Linguistic Survey of India. Vol. V. Indo-Aryan Family. Part I. Specimens of the Bangali and Assamese Languages, ed. by Sir G[eorge] A[braham] Grierson [1851-1941]. Calcutta: Office of the Superintendent, Government Printing, India, 1903. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. [6] i ii-iv, 1 2-446 447-448. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes "standard list of [241] Bengali words and sentences" as follow: English-Bengali Standard-Bengali Colloquial-Western Bengali (Manbhum)-Sarākī (Ranchi)-South-Western Bengali-Northern Bengali of Dinagepore-Siripuriā (Purnea)-Eastern Bengali (Mymensingh and West Sylhet)-Haijong (Mymensingh)-Eastern Bengali (Eastern Sylhet and Cachar)-Eastern Bengali (Backergunge)-Southeastern Bengali-Chākmā-English, pp. 352-391; and "standard list of [241] words and sentences in Assamese and Mayāng," as follow: English-Assamese (Sibangar)-Western Assamese (Kamrup)-Mayang (Manipur and Sylhet), pp. 437-446. This copy withdrawn from the University of Michigan Library, with their bookplate and accession stamp dated October 30, 1911. With loosely inserted errata slip. Second copy: IUW.

Volume V, Part II, 1903: [LILLY] Linguistic Survey of India. Vol. V. Indo-Aryan Family. Part II. Specimens of the Bihārī and Oriyā Languages, ed. by Sir G[eorge] A[braham] Grierson [1851-1941]. Calcutta: Office of the Superintendent, Government Printing, India, 1903. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Includes "standard list of Bihārī words and sentences," as follow: English-Maithilī (Darbhanga Brahmāna)-Chhikā-chhikī (Bhagalpar)-Magahī (Gayā)-Kurmālī (Manbhum)-Pāch Parganiā (Ranchi)-Bhojpurī (Shababad)-Bhojpurī (North Centre of Saran)-Sarwariā (Basti)-Western Bhojpurī (Jaunpur)-Nagpuriā (Ranchi)-Madhēsi (Champaran)-Thārū (Champaran)-English, pp. 326-365; "list of standard words and sentences in Oriyā," as follow: English-Oriyā (Standard of Puri)-Bhatrī, pp. 441-449. Second copy: IUW.

Volume VI, 1904: [LILLYbm] Linguistic Survey of India. Vol. VI. Indo-Aryan Family. Mediate Group. Specimens of the Eastern Hindi Language, ed. by Sir G[eorge] A[braham] Grierson [1851-1941]. Calcutta: Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, India, 1904. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. [8] i ii, 1 2-277 278-280 + plus folding color map. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes "standard list of [241] words and sentences in the various dialects of Eastern Hindi" as follow: English-Awadhī (Gonda)-Awadhī Central Partabgarh)-Awadhī (Baiswārī, Unao)-Baghēlī (Rewa)-Baghēlī Gōndī (Rewa)-Gōdwānī (Mandla)-Chattīsgarhī (Raipur)-Bhuliā (Sonpur State)-English, pp. 260-277. This copy with the bookplate of the University of Michigan Library stamped withdrawn. With the original access stamp dated October 30, 1911 on the recto of the rear free endpaper. Second copy: IUW.

Volume VII, 1905: [LILLYbm] Linguistic Survey of India. Vol. VII. Indo-Aryan Family. Southern Group. Specimens of the Marāthī Language, ed. by Sir G[eorge] A[braham] Grierson [1851-1941]. Calcutta: Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, India, 1905. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. [4] i-v vi-x, [2] 1 2-409 410. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes "standard list of [241] words and sentences in the various dialects of Marāthī," as follow: English-

Kōnkanī (Kanara)- Kōnkanī (Karwar)-Chitpāvanī (Ratnagiri)-Kōlī (Thana)-Marāthī (Poona)-Varhādī Kun<sup>a</sup>bī (Akola)-Nāgpuri (Nagpur)-Hal<sup>a</sup>bī (Bastar)-English, pp. 392-409. This copy with the pencilled note on p. [iii]: 'Exch. | Library | University College London | 1-26-1935'. Second copy: IUW.

Volume VIII, Part I, 1919: [LILLY] Linguistic Survey of India. Vol. VIII. Part I. Indo-Aryan Family. Northwestern Group. Specimens of Sindhī and Lahndā, by Sir G[eorge] A[braham] Grierson [1851-1941]. Calcutta: Superintendent Government Printing, 1919. 584 p. Original brown cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Includes "standard list of words and sentences in the various Sindhī dialects," as follow: English-Standard Sindhī (Hyderabad)-Lāsī-Lārī-Kachchhī-English, pp. 214-231; "standard list of words and sentences in Southern Lahndā," as follow: English-Lahndā (Shahpur Dōāb)-Mūltānī of Multan-Hindkī of Dera Ghazi Khan-Thalī of Shāhpur-English, pp. 412-429; 'standard list of words and sentences in North-Eastern Lahndā," as follow: English-Salt Range (Shāhpur)-Awānkārī (Attock)-Hindkō of Kohat-Ghēbī-Pōthwārī-(Dhūndī-Kairālī)-Chibhālī (Kashmir)-Punchhī-English, pp. 522-539; "standard list of words and sentences in North-Western Lahndā," as follow: English-Dhannī of Jhelam-Hindkō of Peshāwar-Tināulī, pp. 576-584. Second copy: IUW.

Volume VIII, Part II, 1919: [IUW] Linguistic Survey of India. Vol. VIII. Part II. Specimens of the Dardic or Piśācha Languages (including Kāshmirī), compiled and edited by Sir George Abraham Grierson. Calcutta: Superintendent Government Printing, India, 1919. 567 p. [partially mis-bound]. 34 cm. Library binding. Includes "Standard List of Words and Sentences": for the "Dardic Sub-Family," [Kāfir (Bashgalī), Kāfir (Kalāshā), Kāfir (Veron), Dard (Shinā), Dard (Kāshmirī), Dard (Kōhistānī), Khō-wār)], pp. 10-27; for Bashgalī (of Kāmdēsh), Wai-alā (Waigal), Wasī-veri or Veron, Kalāshā, Garwa-bati, Pashai (Eastern dialect), Pashai (Western dialect, when different from Eastern), pp. 112-131; for Khō-wār, pp. 144-148; for Shinā [Shinā (Gilgit), Shinā (Chilās), Brōkpā (Drus), Brōkpā (Dāh-Hanū)], pp. 224-232; for the dialects of Kāshmirī (Kashtawārī), Pōgulī, Sirājī of Dōdā, Rāmbanī, pp.488-505; and for the Gārwi, Tōrwālī and cognate dialects (Gaurō (Biddulph), Maiyā, Chilīs (Biddulph)), pp. 530-549. This copy with tipped-in printed passages correcting first printing.

Volume IX, Part I, 1916: [LILLY] Linguistic Survey of India. Vol. IX. Indo-Aryan Family. Central Group. Part I. Western Hindi and Pañjābī, by Sir G[eorge] A[braham] Grierson [1851-1941]. Calcutta: Superintendent Government Printing, 1916. Original brown cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. [4] i-v vi-xiv, 1 2-823 824-826 + 2 linguistic maps, one folding. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes "standard list of [241] words and sentences in the Dāng dialects," as follow: English-Dāngī [Dankī] (Karauli)-Dāngī (Jaipur) (where different from Dāngī of Karauli)-Kālīmāl of Jaipur (where different from Dāngī of Jaipur)-Dūgar-wārā of Jaipur (where different from Dāngī of Jaipur)-Dāngbhāng (where different from Dāngī of Jaipur)-English, pp. 364-381; and a "standard list of [241] words and sentences in Western Hindī," as follow: English-Hindōstānī (Delhi)-Dakhīnī of Bombay [dialect of Urdu]-Venacular Hindōstānī (Upper Doab)-Bāngarū [Haryanvi]-Braj Bhākhā [Braj Bhasha]-Kanaujī (Cawnpore)-Bundēlī-Bundēlī (Banāpharī)-Bundēlī (Bhadaurī of Gwalior)-English, pp. 570-605; and a "list of [241] standard words and sentences in Pañjābī, as follow: English-Mājh (Amritaar) [Majhi]-Pōwādhī of Ambala [dialect of Eastern Panjabi]-Mālwāī (Ferozepore)-Dōgrī-Kāngrā [Dogri-Kangri]-English, pp. 806-823. This copy presented by Karl Rupp to Guy E. Leeson. The presentation is in German and dated "3. Juli 1928." Rupp may be the same Karl Rupp who authored Die Lebensbeschreibung Ludwigs III. von Arnstein: ein Beitrag zur rheinischen Sprachgeschichte des 14./15. Jahrhunderts (Osterode (Harz): Druck von Giebel & Oehlschlagel, 1933) as his doctoral dissertation at Marburg. If so, Rupp was a twenty-one year old student when he made this gift. Guy E. Leeson's name appears in the 1937 Calendar for the School of Oriental Studies in London as Lecturer in Hindostani. Second copy: IUW.

Volume IX, Part II, 1908: [LILLYbm] Linguistic Survey of India. Vol. IX. Indo-Aryan Family. Central Group. Part II. Specimens of the Rajasthānī and Gujarātī, ed. by Sir G[eorge] A[braham] Grierson [1851-1941]. Calcutta: Superintendent Government Printing, India, 1908. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. [4] i-v vi-x, [2] 1 2-477 478-480. With folding color map. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes "list of [241] standard words and sentences in Rajasthānī," as follow: English-Mārwarī-Mārwarī (Thalī of Jaisalmer)-Jaipurī-Mēwātī-Mālvi (Rāngrī)-Mālvi (when different from Rāngrī)-Nīmādī (Nimar)-English, pp. 304-321; and "list of [241] standard words and sentences in Gujarātī," as follow: English-Gujarātī (Standard)-Sur<sup>a</sup>tī-Charōtarī-Patanī-Kāthiyāwādī (Jhālāwādī)-Khārwa-Ghīsādī (Belgaum)-English, pp. 460-477. This copy with the ink ownership inscription of "Walles (?) Elliot, Indian Police" dated January 1927, together with tipped-in original printed invoice from the Indian Government. Second copy: IUW.

Volume IX, Part III, 1907: [LILLYbm] Linguistic Survey of India. Vol. IX. Indo-Aryan Family. Central Group. Part III. The Bhīl Languages, including Khāndēsī, Banjārī or Labhānī, Bahrāpiā, &c., ed. by Sir G[eorge] A[braham] Grierson [1851-1941]. Calcutta: Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, India, 1907. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. [4] i-v vi-viii, [2] 1 2-325 326-328. With map. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes "standard list of [241] words and sentences in Bhīlī and Khāndēsī," as follow: English- Bhīlī (Mahikantha)-Bhīlī (Edar)-Bāorī (Lahore)-Khāndēsī (Khandesh)-Kun<sup>a</sup>bāū (Khandesh)-English, pp. 236-253; and [241] "standard words and sentences in Labhānī," as follow: English-Labhānī (of Berar)-Labānkī of Panjab-English, pp. 317-325. Second copy: IUW.

Volume IX, Part IV, 1916: [IUW] Linguistic Survey of India. Vol. IX. Indo-Aryan Family. Central Group. Part IV. Specimens of the Pahārī

Languages and Gujurī, collected and edited by Sir George Abraham Grierson [1851-1941]. Calcutta: Superintendent of Government Printing, India, 1916. 981 p. Library binding. Includes "list of standard words and sentences in Khas-kurā or Naipālī," as follow: English-Khas-kurā or Naipālī-Dahī (Hodgson)-Dēnwār (Hodgson)-Kuswār (Hodgson)-English, pp. 82-99; "Kumaunī-English," pp. 253-265; "English-Kumaunī Vocabulary" pp. 267-278; "list of standard words and phrases in Central Pahārī," as follow: English-Kumaunī (Standard)-Kumaunī (Khasparjiyā)-Kumaunī (Sōriyālī)-Garhwālī (Rāthī)-Garhwālī (Tehrī)-English, pp. 354-371; "Jaunsārī-English Vocabulary," pp. 413-435, "English-Jaunsārī Vocabulary," pp. 436-455; "list of standard words and phrases in Jaunsārī, Sirmaurī and Baghātī," as follows: English-Jaunsārī-Sirmaurī (Dhārthī)-Sirmaurī (Girīpārī and Biśśau)-Baghātī-English, pp. 530-547; a Kiūthalī-English vocabulary, pp. 550-559; and a 'standard list of words and sentences for the Kiūthalī language group," as follow: English-Kiūthalī-Handūrī-Simla Sirājī-Śōrāchōlī-English, pp. 628-645; "standard list of words and phrases in the Śōdōchī dialect," Śōdōchī-English, pp. 663-667; "list of standard words and phrases for the Kulu group," as follow: English-Kulu-Inner Sirājī-Sainjī, pp. 705-713; "standard list of words and phrases for the Mandī group," as follow: English-Mandēālī- Mandēālī Pahārī-Sukētī, pp. 759-767; "list of standard words and phrases in the Chamēālī dialects," as follow: English-Gādī or Bharmaurī-Churāhī-Pangwālī-English, pp. 862-879; "a comparative vocabulary," English-Pangwālī-Bhadrawāhī-Bhalzsī-Pādarī, pp. 884-886; "standard list of words and phrases for the Bhadrawāhī group," as follow: English-Bhadrawāhī-Pzdārī, pp. 915-923; "standard words and phrases in the various forms of Gujurī," as follow: English-Mēwātī-Gujurī (Hazara)-Yūsufzai Gujurī-Yūsufzai Ajrī-Gujurī (Kashmir)-English, pp. 964-981.

Volume X, 1921: [IUW] Linguistic Survey of India. Vol. X. Specimens of Languages of the Eranian Family, compiled and edited by Sir George Abraham Grierson. Calcutta: Superintendent Government Printing, India, 1921. 549 p. 34 cm. Library binding. Includes "Standard List of Words and Sentences": in Pashtō (Pakhtō (of Peshawar), Wazīrī (Waziristan), Pashtō (Pishin and Kandahar), pp. 113-121; in Ōmurī, pp. 247-251; an Ōmurī-English "Vocabulary," pp. 253-325; in Balōchī (Makrānī of Karāchī, Makrānī of Makrān, Eastern of Dera Ghazi Khan, Eastern of Loralai, Eastern (Upper Sind Frontier), Kāchhējī Bōlī), pp. 434-451; and in the Ghalchah languages (Wakhī, Shighnī, Sarīkolī, Zēbakī and Ishkāshmi, Munjānī, Yūdghā) pp. 532-549.

Volume XI, 1922: [LILLYbm] Linguistic Survey of India. Vol. XI. Gipsy Languages, ed. by Sir G[eorge] A[braham] Grierson [1851-1941]. Calcutta: Superintendent Government Printing, India, 1922. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp [2] i-v vi-viii, [2] 1 2-213 214-216. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes "list of [241] standard words and sentences in the Gipsy languages," as follow: English-Odkī (Cutch)-Sāsī (Ordinary)-Sāsī (Criminal)-Kōlhātī (Akola)-Gārōdī-

Myānwālē-Kanjarī (Sitapur)-Kanjarī (Belgaum)-Natī (State Rampur)-Qasāī-Sikalgārī (Belgaum)-English, pp. 178-213. This copy withdrawn from the Johns Hopkins University Library, with their bookplate. Second copy: IUW.

1962-1969: [LILLYbm] A comparative dictionary of the Indo-Aryan languages, by R. Lister Turner. London: Oxford University Press, 1962-1969. 11 fasc. in original rose wrappers, lettered in black + index in green cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. i ii-viii, I 2-841, i-vii viii-xxx, [index] i-vii viii-ix x, I 2-357 358. First edition. Includes comparative vocabulary with English equivalents of all Indo-Aryan languages, pp. 1-841, with index to all languages, pp. <sup>2</sup>[1]-357.

"The beginnings of the this book go back over half a century.... The idea was encouraged by Sir George Grierson, who proposed that such a dictionary should form an appendix to the volumes of his great Linguistic Survey of India then, in 1920, still in process of publication. Although after his death in 1941 in his ninety-first year and with the coming of Independence his proposal was put on one side by the Government of India, I have dedicated to the memory of this good man and great scholar a work which, imperfect and incomplete though it is, owes its existence to him" (Preface).

1968: [IUW] A glossary of judicial and revenue terms, and of useful words occurring in official documents relating to the administration of the government of British India, from the Arabic, Persian, Hindustānī, Sanskrit, Hindi, Bengālī, Uṛiya, Marāthī, Guzarāthī, Telugu, Karnāta, Tamiḷ, Malayālam, and other languages. Compiled and published under the authority of the Honorable the Court of Directors of the East-India Company, by H. H. Wilson. [2d ed.] Delhi, Munshiram Manoharlal [1968] xxiv, 727 p. 29 cm.

1979: [LILLYbm] Avahattha and comparative vocabulary of new Indo-Aryan languages, Tsuyoshi Nara. Tokyo: Institute for the Study of Languages and Cultures of Asia and Africa, 1979. Original black cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. i-iii iv-vi, [2] 1-166 167-228. First edition. Includes comparative vocabulary of Avahattha (a language spoken 600-1200 AD) and a dozen modern languages of India, including Hindi, Urdu, Panjabi, Sindhi, Marathi, Gujarati, Bangla, Assimya, Oriya, Nepali, Simhali and Kasmiri, pp. [167-227].

2004: [IUW] Uṇādikośaḥ: Pañcapādyuṇādisūtravṛttisaṃvalitaḥ = Uṇādikośaḥ: with Pancapadi-Unadisutravritti in Sanskrit, English, Hindi and Telugu, general editor, D. Prahlada Char; editor, V. Muraldhara Sharma. 1st ed. Tirupati: Rashtriya Sanskrit Vidyapeetha, 2004. xviii, 311 p.; 30 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 311) and indexes. In Sanskrit, English, Hindi, and Telugu.

2005a: [IUW] مرتبه، خالد حسن قادری هـ / ۱۴۲۵ هـ زار الفاظ کے معنی (هـ) : ۴۲۱ الفظیات ( ) Lafziyāt (1421 H.): hazār alfāz ke ma' nī (1425 H.) / murattabah, Khalid Ḥasan Qādrī. [Na'ī Dihlī: Afzālurrahmán]: Milne [kā patā], Kitābī Duniyā, 2005. 786 p.; 22 cm. Dictionary of Urdu language; includes Persian, Sanskrit, and Hindi words used in Urdu.

2005b: [IUW] Vyavahāraśoḥ, lekhaka evaṃ sampādaka Sa. Nā. Kulakarṇī. Navadehalī: Rāṣṭriyasamśkṛtasamsthānam, 2005. xxxix, 467 p.; 25 cm. In Sanskrit, English, Hindi, and Marathi; prefatory matter in Sanskrit and English. Glossary of Sanskrit equivalents of Hindi, Marathi and English common words used in day-to-day life.

[INDO-EUROPEAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT] The Indo-European languages are a family of several hundred related languages and dialects. There are about 445 living Indo-European languages, according to the estimate by Ethnologue, with over two-thirds (313) of them belonging to the Indo-Iranian branch. The Indo-European family includes most of the modern languages of Europe, and parts of Western, Central and South Asia. It was also predominant in ancient Anatolia (present-day Turkey), and the ancient Tarim Basin (present-day Northwest China) and most of Central Asia until the invasion and migrations of Turkic speakers especially during the Mongol–Turkic conquest in the 13th century. With written evidence appearing since the Bronze Age in the form of the Anatolian languages and Mycenaean Greek, the Indo-European family is significant to the field of historical linguistics as possessing the second-longest recorded history, after the Afroasiatic family. Several disputed proposals link Indo-European to other major language families (Wiki).

1874-1876: [IUW] Vergleichendes Wörterbuch der indogermanischen Sprachen: sprachgeschichtlich angeordnet, von August Fick. 3. umgearb. Aufl. Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Rupprecht, 1874-1876. 4 v. in 3; 22 cm. Zaunmüller col. 184. Bd. 1. Wortschatz der indogermanischen Grundsprache, der arischen und der europäischen Spracheinheit. Bd. 2. Wortschatz der graeco-italischen, der slavo-deutschen, der letto-slavischen Spracheinheit. Anhang: Zum prusso-lettischen Wortschatz. Bd. 3&4. Wortschatz der germanischen Spracheinheit mit einem Begleitwort von A. Bezzengerger. Wurzeln und Wurzel-determinative. Indices, von A. Führer.

1889: [IUW] Объяснительный словарь татарских, грузинских и армянских слов, вошедших в материалы для изучения экономического быта государственных крестьян Закавказского края, составил С.П. Зелинский. Ob'iasnitel'nyĭ slovar' tatarskikh, gruzinskikh i armianskikh slov, voshedshikh v materialy dlia izuchenia ekonomicheskago byta gosudarstvennykh krest'ian Zakavkazskago kraia, sostavil S.P. Zelinskii. Tiflis: Tipo. M.D. Potiniana, 1889. Tiflis: Tipo. M.D. Potiniana, 1889. viii, 165 p.; 30 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. viii). Russian-Tatar-Georgian, Armenian dictionary.

1933: [IUW] Die eurasische Sprachfamilie: Indogermanisch, Koreanisch und Verwandtes, von Dr. Heinrich Koppelman. Heidelberg, Carl Winters Universitätsbuchhandlung, 1933. viii, 220 p. 20 cm. Zaunmüller col. 184. "Literaturverzeichnis": p. 207-208.

1936: [IUW] Illustrated polyglottic dictionary of plant names in Latin, Arabic, Armenian, English, French, German, Italian and Turkish languages, including economic, medicinal, poisonous and ornamental plants and common weeds. With a preface by W. Lawrence Balls... By Armenag K. Bedevian. Cairo, Argus & Papazian presses, 1936. xv, 644, 455 [13] p. front. (port.) illus. 21 cm.

1949: [IUW] A dictionary of selected synonyms in the principal Indo-European languages; a contribution to the history of ideas, by Carl Darling Buck. With the cooperation of colleagues and assistants. Chicago, University of Chicago Press [1949]. xix, 1515 p. 25 cm. Zaunmüller col. 184.

1954: [IUW] Lexique comparé du texte grec et des versions latine, arménienne et syriaque de l'"Adversus haereses" de Saint Irénée, by Bruno Reynders. Louvain, Secretariat du CorpusSCO, 1954. 2 v. 25 cm. Corpus scriptorum Christianorum

Orientalium; v. 141-142. Corpus scriptorum Christianorum Orientalium. Subsidia; t. 5-6. Includes bibliographical references. Greek-Latin-Armenian-Syriac lexicon based on text by Saint Irénée.

1955: [IUW] Dictionnaire étymologique du proto-indo-européen, by Albert Joseph Carnoy. Louvain, Publications Universitaires, 1955. xii, 223 p. 27 cm. Zaunmüller col. 184. Uniform series: Bibliothèque du Muséon v. 39. Bibliography: p. [xi]-xii.

1927-1932: [IUW] Vergleichendes Wörterbuch der Indogermanischen Sprachen, by Alois Walde, herausgegeben und bearbeitet von Julius Pokorny. Berlin und Leipzig, W. de Gruyter & co., 1927-32 [v.1, '30]. 3 v. 24 cm. Zaunmüller col. 184.

1984-1987: [IUW] An Indo-European comparative dictionary, by Stuart E. Mann. Hamburg: H. Buske, c1984-c1987. xi p., 1682 columns; 26 cm. Issued in parts. Bibliography: p. [ix]-xi.

1988: [IUW] Soc'iologiis mravalenovani lek'sikoni: inglisur, k'art'ul, rusul, germanul, p'rangul enebze, šemdgeneli N. Kereselize. T'bilisi: "Mec'niereba", 1988. 357 p.; 23 cm. Multilingual dictionary of sociology: English-Georgian-Russian-German-French.

1994: [IUW] Angli, Oros, Frants, Mongol 5000 üg khëllëg / B. Dashzëvëg; redaktor, N. Batsuur'. Ulaanbaatar: Mongol Nom Kompani, 1994. Includes bibliographical references (p. 285). English-Russian-French-Mongolian (Cyrillic script) dictionary. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society.

1996: [IUW] Šasin-u toli = Chos kugs kyi tshig mdzod = A dictionary of religions = 宗教词典 / Sodubilig. Šasin-u toli = Chos kugs kyi tshig mdzod = A dictionary of religions = Zong jiao ci dian / Sodubilig. 1. keb. First edition. [Tüngliyou]: Öbör Monggöl-un Surgan Kümüjil-ün Keblel-ün Qoriy-a, [1996]. 8, 933 p., [32] p. of plates: col. ill.; 27 cm. Includes bibliographical references and indexes. In Mongolian (Mongolian script), with entry headings also in Tibetan, Chinese and English; includes terms in other languages; pref. in Mongolian, Chinese and English. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society.

1999a: [IUW] Khëvlëliin tavan khëlnii taiibar tol': [Oros, German, Angli, Frants, Mongol] / T. Sodnomdarzhaa; khianan naïruulsan, D. Sandagdorz, Ch. Dorig. Ulaanbaatar: Sodpress KhKhK, 1999. 185 p.; 22 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 185). Russian-German-English-French-Mongolian (Cyrillic script) dictionary of publishers and publishing.

1999b: [IUW] Mongol-Oros-Solongos-Angli tol' / Kim S. M., B. Baatarkhüü = Mongol'sko-Russko-Koreiško-Angliiškiī slovar' / Kim S. M., B. Baatarkhüü = Monggu, Rosiaddüs, Kangug, Yongugüi sajon / Kim S. M., B. Baatarku = Mongolian-Russian-Korean-English dictionary / Kim S. M., B. Baatarhüü. Ulaanbaatar: [Khëvlëliin Interpress Kompani], 1999. [ii], 89 p.; 20 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. [ii]). Mongolian-Russian-Korean-English dictionary.

2000a: [IUW] The king's dictionary: the Rasûlid Hexaglot--fourteenth century vocabularies in Arabic, Persian, Turkic, Greek, Armenian, and Mongol / translated by Tibor Halasi-Kun ... [et al.]; with introductory essays by Peter B. Golden and Thomas T. Allsen; edited with notes and commentary by Peter B. Golden. Leiden; Boston: Brill, 2000. xii, 418 p., [22] p. of plates; 25 cm. Handbuch der Orientalistik. Achte Abteilung, Handbook of Uralic studies; v. 4. This version contains only the Arabic (script and transliteration) and the English translation; separate versions are planned to cover the remaining languages, Persian, Turkic, Greek, Armenian, and Mongol which are part of the Hexaglot. Includes bibliographical references (p. [329]-334) and indexes.

2000b: [IUW] Manual de lenguas indígenas de Venezuela, by Esteban Emilio Mosonyi y Jorge Carlos Mosonyi; coautores indígenas, Basilio Arintero ... [et al.]. Caracas: Fundación Bigott, 2000. 2 v. (664 p.): ill., maps; 22 cm. Original brown card and cloth binding, with printed paper labels in white and gray-green. Series: Serie Orígenes; 3. Vol 1: Spanish-Warao vocabulary, pp. 181-182; Spanish-Baniva, pp. 231-222; Spanish-Cuiba (Jiwi), pp. 263-264; Spanish-Guajibo (Jiwi) vocabulary, pp. 332-333. Vol 2: Spanish-Guajiro (Wayuu) vocabulary, pp. 395-396; Spanish-Kariña vocabulary, pp. 448-449; Spanish-Ñengatú (Tupí)-Guaraní vocabulary, pp. 483-489; Spanish-Pemón vocabulary, pp. 541-542; Spanish-Yaruro (Pumé) vocabulary, pp. 591-592; Spanish-Yavitero vocabulary, pp. 659-660.

2010: [IUW] 5 khēlnī zuraḡt tol': Mongol, Oros, Khīatad, Solongos, Angli / [erōnkhīī redaktor, B. Tūvshintōgs]. Ulaanbaatar: NEPKO publishing; Montréal: QA International, c2010. 1191 p.: col. ill.; 19 cm. "The compact visual dictionary"--T.p. verso. Includes indexes. Mongolian-Russian-Chinese-Korean-English picture dictionary.

2013: [IUW] Auf kaiserlichen Befehl erstelltes Wörterbuch des Manjurischen in fünf Sprachen: "Fünfsprachenspiegel": systematisch angeordneter Wortschatz auf Manjurisch, Tibetisch, Mongolisch, Turki und Chinesisch: vollständig romanisierte und revidierte Ausgabe mit textkritischen Anmerkungen, deutschen Erläuterungen und Indizes / bearbeitet und herausgegeben von Oliver Corff ... [et al.]. Wiesbaden: Harrassowitz, 2013. 2 v. (liv, xii, 1110 p.): some ill.; 26 cm. Cover title also in Manchu, Mongolian, Tibetan, Uigur, and Chinese. Includes bibliographical references (p. xlvi-lix). Some text in Manchu, Mongolian, Tibetan, Uigur, and Chinese. Manchu-Tibetan-Mongolian-Iugur-Chinese dictionary.

[INDO-IRANIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT] The Indo-Iranian languages or Indo-Iranic languages, or Aryan languages, constitute the largest and easternmost extant branch of the Indo-European language family. It has more than 1 billion speakers, stretching from the Caucasus (Ossetian) and the Balkans (Romani) eastward to Xinjiang (Sarikoli) and Assam (Assamese), and south to the Maldives (Maldivian). The common ancestor of all of the languages in this family is called Proto-Indo-Iranian—also known as Common Aryan—which was spoken in approximately the late 3rd millennium BC. The three branches of modern Indo-Iranian languages are Indo-Aryan, Iranian, and Nuristani. Additionally, sometimes a fourth independent branch, Dardic, is posited, but recent scholarship in general places Dardic languages as archaic members of the Indo-Aryan branch.

1920: [LILLYbm] Ishkashmi, Zebaki, and Yazghulami: an Account of Three Eranian Dialects, by George A. Grierson. London: Royal Asiatic Society, 1920. Original red cloth over boards, lettered in gold. 128 pp. First edition. Prize Publication Fund, Vol. V. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes, pp. [69]-103, an Ishkashmi-English vocabulary; and, pp. [105]-128, an English-Pamir vocabulary ("English-Ishkashmi-Zebaki [Sanglechi]-Wakhi-Yazghulami [Yazgulyam] Vocabulary"). This is the first published vocabulary of Ishkashmi. From the library of Carleton T. Hodge.

"Sir Aurel Stein, on his return in the spring of 1916 from his third Central-Asian Expedition (1913-1916), made over to me a quantity of linguistic materials collected by him on the rapid journey which, in September, 1915, had carried him across the high mountain ranges west of the Pamirs, and through the chief alpine valleys drained by the uppermost Oxus [in present-day Uzbekistan]. These materials relate chiefly to the Eranian language spoken in that portion of the main Oxus... which lies between Wakhan... and Gharan... Sir Aurel Stein's new materials include a list of words and a story in [Ishkashmi]... The [Ishkashmi] list and story, dealing, as they do, with a language hitherto almost unknown, are more important, and will be examined in some minuteness..."

1929: [IUW] Indo-Iranian frontier languages, by Georg Morgenstierne. Oslo, H. Aschehoug, 1929, 1938. v. pl., facsim., fold. map. 24 cm. Serie B--Skrifter 11, 35, 40. Texts with translations into English. Errata slips inserted. Bibliographical footnotes. Contents: v.1. Parachi and Ormuri. v.2. Iranian Pamir languages: Yidgha-Munji, Sanglechi-Ishkashmi and Wakhi. v.3. The Pashai language. 2. Texts and translations, with comparative notes on Pashai folktales by R.T. Christiasen. 3. Vocabulary.] Xeroxes]

1938: [LILLYbm] Indo-Iranian Frontier Languages. Vol. II. Iranian-Pamir Languages (Yidgha-Munji, Sanglechi-Ishkashmi, and Wakhi), by George Morgenstierne. Oslo: H. Aschehoug & Co. (W. Nygaard), 1938. Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in black (front and rear wrappers detached, spine splitting: spine reads horizontally in caps: Insti/ tuttet / for / Sammen / Lignende / Kultur / Forskning / Serie B / XXXV / Morgen- / stierne / Indo- / Iranian / Frontier / Languages / II"). Pp. I-VI VII-XXIV, 1-3 4-564, [English-Iranian Index] 4*-66* + 2 pp. drawings, 6 pp. photographs, and folding map. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Part of eventual four volume in six series, through 1973. Morgenstierne died in 1978. Munji-English, pp. 185-282, Ishkashmi-English, pp. 379-427, Wakhi-English, pp. 513-558, and, pp. 4*-66*, an English Index to the Iranian words contained in this volume, in the Indo-Iranian Frontier Languages I, in the author's Etymological Vocabulary of Pashto, and in his articles on Shughni, Ormuri and Wanetesi-Pashto in Norsk Tidsskrift for Sprogvidenskap.

"In this volume Professor Morgenstierne continues the publication of the linguistic material from the Indo-Iranian borderland... Wakhi and Ishkashmi material collected by the late Dr. Sköld and a number of Wakhi words from a Vocabulary compiled by Colonel Lorimer have also been incorporated. The Iranian Pamir languages in question, which are very imperfectly known, are spoken by small and isolated communities. But they are relics of great antiquity and of considerable interest for the linguistic history of Indo-Iranian, and of Indo-European in general, having preserved many ancient forms and words" (from the loosely inserted advertising leaflet). "The following description ... is based mainly upon the material collected by the author in Chitral in 1929... To this has been added a few Shughni sentences taken down in Kabul in 1924... I have preferred the term 'languages' to 'dialects' because, in spite of their numerical and cultural insignificance, these vernaculars can no more be reduced to a common standard can for instance modern English, German and Norwegian" (Preface). "[Munji and Yidgha are two closely-related Iranian dialects]... very few Europeans seem to have visited Munjan, and none of them gives any information about the language spoken there. The [Munji] eke out the meagre produce of agriculture by trading on a small scale. They carry on their backs salt from Faizabad to Nuristan and sell it in exchange for wool, butter, hides and felt... the total Munji speaking population amounts to something between 1000 and 1500 persons" (Introduction to Yidgha-Munji). "Ishkashim is spoken in and around the village of Ishkashim in Afghan territory at the Oxus bend...As already observed by Grierson, Ishkashim, Zebaki and Sanglechi 'are all slightly varying forms of one language, which we may call Ishkashmi' ... The future of Sanglechi-Ishkashmi is probably more immediately threatened [than that of the other languages discussed in this volume]" (Introduction to Sanglechi-Ishkashmi). "No comprehensive account of Wakhi has been published...The following notes may ...it is hoped...be of some use for the understanding of one of the most archaic, and at the same time most peculiar, of living Iranian dialects... It is impossible to calculate the exact number of speakers of Wakhi, but we may perhaps guess that it lies somewhere about 10-15,000" (Introduction to Wakhi). These are the first substantial published vocabularies of these languages. From the library of Carleton T. Hodge.

1973: [IUW] Indo-Iranian Frontier languages, by Georg Morgenstierne. 2d ed. rev. and with new material. Oslo: Universitetsforlaget, 1973. 4 v. in 6; 23 cm. Serie B, Skrifter - Institute for Comparative Research in Human Culture, Oslo; 11, 35, 40, 58. Uniform series: v. 1. Parachi and Ormuri. Parachi-English, pp. [230]-304, and Ormuri-English, pp. [386]-414; v. 2. Iranian Pamir languages. Yidgha-Munji-English, pp. [187]-282, Sanglechi-Ishkashmi-English, pp. [379]-427, Wakhi-English, pp. [513]-558, and an English-Iranian index, pp. [3*]-66*; v. 3. The Pashai language. 1. Grammar. 2. Texts and translations. 3. Vocabulary (Pashi-English, pp. [1]-222, with "Additions and Corrections to Vocabulary, pp. [223]-225; v. 4. The Kalasha language. Kalasha-English vocabulary and List of Names, pp. 74-179. First editions were as follows: vol. 1 (1929); vol. 2 (1938); vol. 3 (1967); vol. 4 is the first edition.

2013: [IUW] Farhang-millat: Sanskrit-Persian-Urdu-Hindi dictionary: compiled in the project unit of Rashtriya Sanskrit Sansthan, New Delhi, edited by Dr. Mohd. Hanif Khan "Shastri". New Delhi: Rashtriya Sanskrit Sansthan, 2013-. volumes; 29 cm. Includes bibliographical references (volume one, page vi). List of synonyms in Sanskrit, Persian, Urdu, and Hindi.

2014 or 2015: [IUW] فرهنگ نصیری: ترکی جغتایی، رومی، قزلباشی، روسی و قلماقی به فارسی = Farhang-e Nasiri: a dictionary of Chagatay, Rumi, Qizilbashi, Tatar & Kalmuk into Persian / تألیف محمد رضا و عبد الجمیل نصیری؛ به کوشش دکتر حسن جوادی، دکتر ویلم فلور؛ با همکاری مصطفی کاجالین.

Farhang-i Naṣīrī: Turkī-i Jaghatāyī, Rūmī, Qizilbāshī, Rūsī va Qalmāqī bih Fārsī = Farhang-e Nasiri: a dictionary of Chagatay, Rumi, Qizilbashi, Tatar & Kalmuk into Persian / ta'lif-i Muḥammad Riḏā va 'Abd al-Jamīl Naṣīrī; bih kūshish-i Duktur Ḥasan Javādī, Duktur Vīlim Filūr; bā hamkāri-i Muṣṭafā Kāchālīn. چاپ اول. . Chāp-i avval. 1393 [2014 or 2015]. تهران: کتابخانه، موزه و مرکز

Tihrān: Kitābkhānah, Mūzih va Markaz-i Asnād-i Majlis-i Shūrā-yi Islāmī, 1393 [2014 or 2015]. 350, 6 pages: facsimiles; 25 cm. Added title page: Farhang-e Nasiri: a dictionary of Chagatay, Rumi, Qizilbashi, Tatar & Kalmuk into Persian.

Uniform series: 384 کتابخانه، موزه و مرکز اسناد مجلس شورای اسلامی؛

Kitābkhānah, Mūzih va Markaz-i Asnād, Majlis-i Shūrā-yi Islāmī (Series); 384. Includes bibliographical references (pages 343-350) and indexes. In Persian, Chaghatai, Ottoman Turkish, Azerbaijani Turkish, Volga Tatar, and Kalmyk. Abstract in English.

[INDONESIAN] Indonesian (Bahasa Indonesia [ba'hasa indone'sia]) is the official language of Indonesia. It is a standardized register of Malay, an Austronesian language that has been used as a lingua franca in the Indonesian archipelago for centuries. Most Indonesians also speak one of more than 700 indigenous languages. Indonesia is the fourth most populous nation in the world (after China, India and the United States). Of its large population, the majority speak Indonesian, making it one of the most widely spoken languages in the world. Most Indonesians, aside from speaking the national language, are often fluent in another regional language (examples include Javanese, Sundanese and Madurese), which are commonly used at home and within the local community. Most formal education, and nearly all national media and other forms of communication, are conducted in Indonesian. The Indonesian name for the language is Bahasa Indonesia (literally "the language of Indonesia"). This term is occasionally found in English, and additionally "Malay-Indonesian" is sometimes used to refer collectively to the standardized language of Indonesia (Bahasa Indonesia) and the Malay language of Malaysia, Brunei, and Singapore (Bahasa Melayu) (Wiki).

"The official national language of Indonesia, that development of Malay known as Bahasa Indonesia, is often said to have been developed from Bazaar Malay (presumably rather than from 'good' colloquial Malay). The compilers know of no analysis that demonstrates this claim" ("Bazaar Malay" in: John Reinecke, A Bibliography of Pidgin and Creole Languages, 1975).

Ethnologue: ind. Alternate Names: Bahasa Indonesia.

195-?: [IUW] Nomenklatur anggerik merangkap siklopedia penghimpun-penghimpun dibidang botani umumnja dibidang orchidologi chususnja terutama dalam wilayah Asia Tenggara. Susunan S.M. Latif. Djakarta, Saksama, [195-?] 179 p. (p. 177-179 advertisements) ports. 22 cm. Latin-Indonesian botanical dictionary.

1950a: [LILLYbm] Indonesisch-Nederlands woordenboek, by W. J. B. Poerwadarminta & A. Teeus. Groningen; Jakarta: J.B. Wolters, 1950. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. I-VI VII-XI XII, 1 2-369 370-372. First edition. Zauhmüller, col. 265 (listing 1950 as second edition [should be 1952]). Indonesian-Dutch, pp. [1]-369. This appears to be an extension of the Malay/Indonesian tradition of dictionaries, rather than specifically Bahasa Indonesian.

1950b: [LILLYbm] Woordenboek bahasa Indonesia-Nederlands, by H. D. van Pernis. Groningen; Jakarta: J.B. Wolters, 1950. Original black cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold, with green stamped panel on spine. Pp. I-V VI-XII, 1-317. First edition. Zauhmüller, col. 265. Indonesian-Dutch, pp. 1-320. Earliest Bahasa Indonesian dictionary listed in Zauhmüller.

1951: [LILLYbm] Van Goor's Pandu Bahasa. Indonesia-Inggeris dan Inggeris-Indonesia, compiled by Ach. Sulaiman. 's-Gravenhage: G.B. Van Goor Zonen, 1951. Original tan wrappers, with cream-colored paper label on front cover, lettered and decorated in red and black. Pp. I II-VIII, 1 2-96. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Indonesian-English, pp. [1]-45, and English-Indonesian, pp. [47]-96.

"The size of this pocket dictionary is the cause that it is not complete. It must be regarded as a help to the readers of newspapers and magazines. Users are invited to give notice to the compiler of any mistake that they find and of well founded remarks. The compiler will pay full attention to this" (Preface).

1952: [LILLYbm] Van Goor's Concise Indonesian Dictionary. English-Indonesian. Indonesian-English = Van Goor's Kamus Inggeris Ketjil, by A.L.N. Kramer. The Hague / Jakarta: G.B. Van Goor Zonen, n.d. [1952]. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered in gold. 360 pp. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 265. An "everyday" Indonesian-English dictionary was published by A. Samah in Medan, E.C. Sumatra in 1949. Second copy: IUW.

1953: [LILLYbm] Kamus Bahasa Indonesia-Inggeris dan Inggeris-Indonesia, by A[bdul] K[arim] Lathief. Cover Title: The New Method Dictionary. Indonesian-English and English-Indonesian. [Takamatsu, Japan]: Merapi Trading Company, 1953. Original limp red cloth, lettered in gold, rear cover stamped in blind. Pp. i-ii iii-viii, 1 2-380 [2] 381 382-1048 1049-1054. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 264 (giving Tokyo as place of publication). Indonesian-English, pp. [1]-380, and English-Indonesian, pp. [381]-1040.

"Though I am not much of an expert in Indonesian, I find his dictionary neat, compact and handy... What is most satisfying to me is that it has been so beautifully prepared by the best printing-office in Japan, and I sincerely hope it will stand forever as a monument of friendship and co-operation between Indonesia and Japan..." (Recommendation, Toshio Akazawa, Principal, Tobata High School).

1955: [LILLYbm] Kamus Inggeris. Part I: English-Indonesian. Bagian I: Inggeris-Indonesia. Part II: Indonesian-English. Bagian II: Indonesia-Inggeris, 2 vols., by E. Pino & T. Wittermans. Jakarta / Gronigen: J. B. Wolters, 1955. Original maroon cloth with blue stamped labels on spine, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. [Vol. I] I-VII VIII-X, 1 2-488; [Vol. II] I-V VI-VIII IX-X, 1 2-192. Second edition. Zaunmüller, col. 265. First edition was 1953. Second copy: IUW.

"In this second edition several corrections have been made. Especially to Volume II numerous words have been added, which, it is hoped, will make it more useful" (Preface to the Second Edition).

Third edition 1961: [IUW] Kamus Inggeris, oleh E. Pino dan T. Wittermans. Tjet 3, tanpa perubahan. Djakarta, Pradnjaparamita, 1961. 2 v. 20 cm. Bagian I. Inggeris-Indonesia.-bagian 2. Indonesia-Inggeris.

1956: [LILLYbm] Moderne indonesische Ausdrücke. Nachtrag zum malaischen Wörterbuch, by Gerhard Kahlo [1893- ]. Berlin: Akademie-Verlag, 1956. Original dark green cloth over boards, lettered in bright green; d.j. gray lettered in black. Pp. 1-9 10-215 216. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 264. Indonesian-German, pp. [9]-107, and German-Indonesian, pp. [111]-194. This copy with the bookplate of Syracuse University Library and the university's blind stamp on the title page. Second copy: IUW.

"The friendly recognitions of my Malayisch-deutschen Wörterbuch (Akademie-Verlag, Berlin, 1950) in Indonesia, France, Poland, Austria and Switzerland did not fail to point out that the dictionary did not include the modern vocabulary of the now official language (Bahasa, Indonesia). This criticism is justified. The present word list is therefore intended as a supplement--it assumes a knowledge of the basic Malayan vocabulary.... I have not included foreign words which as self-evident, such as atom, oksid, pedagog, pistol, refleks, konjak... etc.... I have made use of the Kamus Belanda (by A. L. N. Kramer) and the "Woordenboek (by Pernis), since both are quire good" (Hinweis, tr: BM). Second copy: IUW.

1958a: [IUW] Kamus bahasa Inggeris-Indonesia, by S. Wojowasito, W. J. S. Poerwadarminta, S. A. M. Gaastra. Fourth edition. Tjet. 4., edisi populer. Amsterdam; Djakarta: W. Versluys, 1958. viii, 268 p.; 20 cm. English-Indonesian dictionary.

Reprinted 1964: [IUW] Kamus bahasa Indonesia-Inggeris (Indonesian-English dictionary) [oleh] S. Wojowasito [dan] W. J. S. Poerwadarminta. [Tjet. 4]. Djakarta, Tiara [1964] xviii, 270 p. 20 cm.

1958b: [IUW] Karmannyĭ russko-indoneziĭskii slovar': 7000 slov, Sostavili N.F. Bulygin i Ushakova, L.I.; Pod red. Sukhadiono. Moskva: Gos. Izd-vo inostrannykh i natsional'nykh slovarėi, 1958. 576 p.; 86 mm. Russian in Cyrillic script. Added t. p. in Indonesian. On cover: Russko-indoneziiskii slovar'. Russian-Indonesian dictionary.

1961a: [IUW] Bahasa Indonesia, the national language of Indonesia; a course for English-speaking students, by E. Pino. 3d. ed. Groningen, J.B. Wolters [1954-61], v. 1., 1961. 2 v. 20 cm. Vol. 2 has title: Bahasa Indonesia, for English-speaking students. II. Reader with vocabulary. "Key to the exercises" (32 p.) inserted in pocket, v. 1. Volume 2, 2d. ed.

1961b: [LILLYbm] An Indonesian-English Dictionary, by John M. Echols & Hassan Shadily. Ithaca, NY: Cornell University Press, 1961. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. i-iv v-xvi, 1-384. First edition. Indonesian-English, pp. 1-384. Second copy: IUW.

"An Indonesian-English Dictionary is intended to be a practical, comprehensive dictionary of modern Indonesian with English equivalents... It departs from the usual bilingual dictionary in one respect: it provides illustrative phrases and sentences, whereas the usual bilingual dictionary is an index of word equivalents... Indonesian, the Malay-based national language of Indonesia, is undergoing rapid development, and its effort to become a vehicle adequate in all spheres of knowledge has placed tremendous pressure on its users to supply the necessary terms" (Preface).

Second edition 1963: [IUW] An Indonesian-English dictionary, by John M. Echols and Hassan Shadily. Ithaca, N.Y., Cornell University Press [1963]. Second edition. xviii, 431 p.; 23 cm.

Third edition 1989: [IUW] An Indonesian-English dictionary, by John M. Echols and Hassan Shadily. 3rd ed., revised and edited by James T. Collins and John U. Wolff in cooperation with Hassan Shadily. Ithaca: Cornell University Press, c1989. ix, 618 p.; 25 cm.

1961c: [IUW] Indoneziĭsko-russkii slovar'. Sostavili R.N. Korigodskii, O.N. Kondrashkin i B.I. Zinovev, Pod red. Sukhadiono i A.S. Teselkina. 45,000 slov. Moskva: Gos. Izd-vo inostrannykh i natsionalnikh slovarėi, 1961. 1171 p.; 21 cm. Added t.p. in Indonesian. Bibliography: p. 1171. Indonesian-Russian dictionary.

1961d: [IUW] Kamus hukum: Belanda-Indonesia, H. van der Tas. Djakarta: Timun Mas, 1961. Second edition. 390 p.; 17 cm. Dutch-Indonesian law dictionary.

1962a: [IUW] Indonesisch-deutsches Wörterbuch. Kamus bahasa Indonesia-Djerman, verfasst von Otto Karow [und] Irene Hilgers-Hesse. Wiesbaden, O. Harrassowitz, 1962. xix, 483 p. 25 cm. Bibliography: p. ix. Indonesian-German dictionary.

1962b: [IUW] Kamus Djerman Indonesia, by Brother Aëtius. Djakarta, Erlangga, 1962. Third edition. 140 p. 20 cm. German-Indonesian dictionary.

1962c: [IUW] Kamus istilah pelajaran = Dictionary of nautical terms, compiled by John La Dage. [Djakarta] Departemen Perhubungan Laut, 1962. 218 p.; 20 cm. Imprint on mounted label. English-Indonesian nautical dictionary.

1963a: [IUW] 簡明实用印漢辭典: 普及本 / 善努 ... [et al.]編

Jian ming shi yong Yin Han ci dian: pu chi pen, Shan Nu ... [et al.] bian. 雅加達

覺醒文化基金會, 1963. Yajiada: Jue xing wen hua ji jin hui, 1963. 15, 550 p.; 18 cm.

Added title: Kamus Indonesia-Tionghoa. Also issued online. Indonesian-Chinese dictionary.

1963b: [IUW] Kamus bahasa Djerman, disusun oleh Datje Rahajoekoesoemah; dan diperiksa kembali oleh Makmoer Soerjonagoro. [Bandung]: Sumur Bandung, 1963-v.; 20 cm. Incomplete contents: djilid 1. Djerman-Indonesia. German-Indonesian dictionary.

1963c: [IUW] Kamus peladjaran Rusia-Indonésia, disusun oleh A.G. Lordkipanidze dan A.P. Pavlenko; redaktur INTOJO; 10 000 kata. Moskwa: Badan Penerbit Kamus Asing dan Nasional Negara, 1963. 707 p. Russko-indonezijskiĭ uchebnyi slovar'. Russian-Indonesian dictionary.

1963d: [IUW] 印度尼西亚语汉语辞典 = Kamus bahasa Indonesia-Tionghoa, 陈楓, 黄凤合編 Yindunixiya yu Han yu ci dian = Kamus bahasa Indonesia-Tionghoa, Chen Feng, Huang Feng he bian. 北京: 商务印书馆, 1963. Beijing: Shang wu yin shu guan, 1963. 10, 705 p.; 22 cm. Indonesian-Chinese dictionary.

1964a: [IUW] Indonesian-English supplemental word-list to existing dictionaries, by A. Ed. Schmidgall Tellings. [Djakarta, Lembaga Administrasi Negara, 1964]. 222 l. 28 cm.

1964b: [IUW] Indonezijsko-russkiĭ uchebnyi slovar': 7000 slov, sostavili, A.S. Teselkin i A.P. Pavlenko; s prolozheniem kratkogo grammaticheskogo ocherka russkogo iazyka, sostavlenno A.S. Teselkinym. Moskva: Izd-vo "Sov. èntsiklopediia," 1964. 577 p.; 17 cm. Added t.p. in Indonesian: Kamus peladjaran Indonesia-Rusia. Bibliography: p. 1171. Indonesian-Russian dictionary.

1964c: [IUW] Ksatria dictionary. Kamus Inggris-Indonesia, oleh Mohd. Nuh c.s. Dibantu oleh: Asna Kaseger Aziz. Second edition. Tjet. 2. Djakarta, Perpustakaan Kesatria [1964]. 311 p. 16 cm. English-Indonesian dictionary.

1965: [IUW] Ensiklopedia ekonomi, keuangan dan perdagangan: Inggris-Indonesia, dihimpun oleh A. Abdurrachman. Jakarta Pusat: Jajasan Prapancha, 1965. 4 v.(1130 p.): ill.; 21cm. English-Indonesian dictionary of economics.

1967?: [IUW] Kamus istilah anatomi dan zoologi. Untuk dipakai dalam pendidikan persiapan ilmu kedokteran dan ilmu hayat, menerangkan istilah<sup>2</sup> disertai biografi sardjana<sup>2</sup> kenamaan. Bandung, Badan Penerbitan Institut Keguruan dan Ilmu Pendidikan [1967?] iv, 263 l. 30 cm. Bibliography: leaves 262-263. Latin-Greek-Indonesian zoological dictionary.

1968a: [IUW] Indonesian: newspaper reader / Joseph M. Harter, Jijis Chadran, Andang S. Poeraatmadja. Dept. of State; [for sale by the Supt. of Docs., U.S. Govt. Print. Off.] 1968. 271 p. Library binding. Indonesian-English, pp. 187-271.

"Indonesian Newspaper Reader In is planned for use as part of a basic course in Indonesian and as an introduction to reading.... The glossary at the end of the book follows the usual practice in readers of providing only those English equivalents which are appropriate to the specific contexts in which the items occur" (Preface).

1968b: [IUW] Kamus administrasi, disusun oleh staf dosen BPA UGM. Jogjakarta, Balai Pembinaan Administrasi, Universitas Gadjah Mada, 1968. 327 p. 20 cm. English-Indonesian management dictionary.

1968c: [IUW] Kamus Djepang-Indonesia, by Mitsuru Eguchi. [Djakarta, Suluh Indonesia, 1968]. xiv, 245 p. Japanese-Indonesian dictionary.

1968d: [IUW] Kamus Indonesia-Djepang, by Mitsuru Eguchi. [Djakarta, Suluh Indonesia, 1968]. First edition. vi, 207 p. 19 cm. Indonesian-Japanese dictionary.

1969a: [IUW] Kamus dasar Perantjis-Indonesia. Dictionnaire fondamental français-indonesien. Dari G. Gougenheim: Dictionnaire fondamental de la langue française, oleh Farida Soemargono [dan] Pierre Labrousse. [Bandung, Ananta; distribution: Alliance française, 1969]. xix, 277 p.; 22 cm.

1969b: [IUW] Kamus Latin-Indonesia, disusun oleh K. Prent, J. Adisubrata [dan] W. J. S. Poerwadarminta [dengan kerdjasama penjusun lainnja]. Semarang, Penerbitan Jajasan Kanisius, 1969. xi, 943 p. 22 cm. Based in part on Kramers' Latijns woordenboek.

1972: [IUW] Russko-indonezijskii slovar'. Okolo 27 000 slov. Sost. E.S. Belkina, A.P. Pavlenko, A.S. Teselkin, L.I. Ushakova. Pod red. Sh. Sharifa. Moskva, "Sov. èntsiklopediia", 1972. 624 p. 22 cm. Added t. p. in Indonesian: Kamus Rusia-Indonesia. Russian-Indonesian dictionary.

1975: [LILLYbm] An English-Indonesian Dictionary, by John M. Echols & Hassan Shadily. Ithaca and London: Cornell University Press, [1975]. Original blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. i-vii viii-xii, 1-660. First edition. Second copy: IUW.

"An English-Indonesian Dictionary is a comprehensive listing which attempts to embody a high percentage of the most common words and phrases in American English... along with the Indonesian equivalent... this dictionary has been prepared primarily for the use of Indonesians" (Preface).

1981: [LILLYbm] Contemporary Indonesian-English Dictionary: a Supplement to the Standard Indonesian Dictionaries with Particular Concentration on New words, Expressions, and Meanings, by A. Ed. Schmidgall-Tellings & Alan M. Stevens. Athens, Ohio: Ohio University Press, 1981. Original blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold; d.j. violet and white, lettered in white and blue. 388 pp. First edition.

"It has been difficult for modern Indonesian dictionaries to keep up with [the] influx of new words and meanings. In the years since the publication of Echols and Shadily, Indonesian-English Dictionary, Cornell University Press 1961, and A. Ed. Schmidgall-Tellings, Indonesian-English Supplemental Word List to Existing Dictionaries, Lembaga Administrasi Negara 1964, it has become increasingly difficult for foreigners (and even for Indonesians who are out of touch with the mass media) to read Indonesian publications and to understand some portions of the spoken language... This dictionary is ... intended as a supplement to the existing Indonesian-English dictionaries and ... we have tried not to include material which already appears there."

Revised edition 2004: [IUW] A comprehensive Indonesian-English dictionary, by Alan M. Stevens and A. Ed. Schmidgall-Tellings. Athens: Ohio University Press, c2004. xviii, 1103 p.; 27 cm. Rev. ed of: Contemporary Indonesian-English dictionary. c1981. Includes bibliographical references (p. xvii-xviii).

1982: [LILLYbm] Kamus Lengkap. Inggris-Indonesia. Indonesia-Inggris. 150,000 kata, by Zaid H. Alhamid. [n.p]: Qonita Semarang, 1982. Original black and white wrappers, lettered and decorated in white, yellow and black. Pp. [2] 1-332 333-334. First edition. English-Indonesian, pp. 1-216, and Indonesian-English, pp. 219-326. An inexpensive pocket dictionary in paperback.

1984a: [IUW] 現代日本語インドネシア語辞典 = Kamus baru Jepang-Indonesia / 末永晃編 Gendai Nihongo Indoneshiago jiten = Kamus baru Jepang-Indonesia, Suenaga Hikaru hen. 東京: 大学書林, 昭和 59 [1984]. Tōkyō: Daigaku Shorin, Shōwa 59 [1984]. First edition.ii, 808 p.; 17 cm. Japanese-Indonesian dictionary.

1984b: [IUW] Vocabulary building in Indonesian: an advanced reader, by Soenjono Dardjowidjojo. Athens, Ohio: Ohio University, Center for International Studies, 1984. 647 p.; 22 cm. Original cream and green wrappers, lettered in black, with an illustration on front cover. Monographs in international studies. Southeast Asia series; no. 64. Introductory matter in English; text in Indonesian and English. Indonesian-English vocabularies throughout, with an English index, pp. [635]-647.

"An outstanding advanced text intended to complement and supplement Indonesian language materials now available. The author takes the student carefully through a series of original essays and previously published material on a variety of subjects, not merely explaining grammatical and vocabulary matters, but offering detailed discussions of nuances, alternative meanings, synonyms, and antonyms. This unique vocabulary exploration device forms about one-third of the book..." (from rear wrapper).

1985: [IUW] Kamus times: English-Bahasa Malaysia: Bahasa Malaysia-English, penyunting, Awang Sudjai Hairul. Hong Kong; San Francisco: Times Educational, 1985. First edition. iv, 879 p.; 19 cm. English-Indonesian dictionary.

1990a: [IUW] Bol'shoĭ indoneziĭsko-russkiĭ slovar': 56 tysiach slov i 48 tysiach sochetaniĭ, R.N. Korigodskii ... [et al.]; pod redaktsiei R.N. Korigodskogo. Moskva: "Russkiĭ ĭazyk", 1990. 2 v.: ill.; 25 cm. Indonesian-Russian dictionary.

1990b: [IUW] Indonesian-English, English-Indonesian dictionary, Helen L. Johnson, Rossall J. Johnson. 1st Hippocrene ed. New York: Hippocrene Books, c1990. vii, 289 p.; 18 cm.

1995: [IUW] A dictionary of Indonesian Islam, by Howard M. Federspiel. Athens, Ohio: Ohio University, Center for International Studies, 1995. xxx, 297 p.; 22 cm. Monographs in international studies. Southeast Asia series; no. 94. Includes bibliographical references.

1996: [IUW] Kamus Inggris-Indonesia, oleh John M. Echols dan Hassan Shadily. Cet. ke-23. Jakarta: Gramedia; Ithaca: Cornell University Press, 1996. xviii, 660 p.; 23 cm. Variant title: Judul asli: An English-Indonesian dictionary.

2007: [IUW] Loan-words in Indonesian and Malay. Compiled by the Indonesian Etymological Project; Russell Jones, general editor. Leiden: KITLV Press, 2007. xxxix, 360 p.: map; 25 cm. + 1 DVD (4 3/4 in.) DVD-ROM contains a facsimile edition of: 'A Chinese-English dictionary of the vernacular or spoken language of Amoy [...]' by Rev. Carstairs Douglas, together with: 'Supplement to dictionary of the vernacular or spoken language of Amoy', by Thomas Barclay. Published in 1899. Includes bibliographical references (p. [xxxv-xxxix]).

2010: [IUW] Modern Indonesian-English English-Indonesian practical dictionary, by Srinawati Salim. New York: Hippocrene Books, c2010. xiii, 351 p.; 18 cm. Hippocrene practical dictionary.

2011: [IUW] Kamus bahasa Indonesia-Korea standar / 編著. Indonesiaõ - Han'gugõ sajõn = Kamus bahasa Indonesia-Korea standar, Im Yõng-ho p'yõnjõ. Sõul: Munyerim, 2011. xv, 1153, 76 p.; 20 cm. Indonesian-Korean dictionary.

[INDONESIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT] More than 700 living languages are spoken in Indonesia. Most belong to the Austronesian language family, with a few Papuan languages also spoken. The official language is Indonesian (locally known as Bahasa Indonesia), a variant of Malay, which was used in the archipelago, — borrowing heavily from local languages of Indonesia such as Javanese, Sundanese Minangkabau. The Indonesian language is primarily used in commerce, administration, education and the media, but most Indonesians speak other languages, such as Javanese, as their first language. Since Indonesia only recognises a single official language, other languages are not recognised either at the national level or the regional level, thus making Javanese the most widely spoken language without official status, and Sundanese the second in the list (excluding Chinese dialects) (Wiki).

1934: [LILLYbm] Dictionnaire de termes de droit coutumier indonesien: avec six cartes hors textes, by D[irk] van Hinloopen Labberton. The Hague: Martinus Nijhoff, 1934. Original dark blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. I-V VI-VIII, + 6 maps (2 folding), 1 2-732. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes, pp. [1]-732, double column, terms of importance for legal or customary rights in the various languages of Indonesia, Sumatra, Borneo, Madagascar and the Philippines, with French equivalents.

"We offer to the public this first dictionary of Indonesian legal terms... This is merely a work in its early stages, the first step on a new path, and before the dictionary will be able to be considered complete, further research will of course be necessary, and more numerous collaborations. We hope that the present work will inspire others to continue and improve upon our efforts so that governments and the governed, legal functionaries and those who come under their sway, may consult it with interest and positive results" (Avertissement, tr: BM). "A massive and fascinating undertaking sponsored by the Union Académique Internationale."

1955: [IUW] Kasip: kamus singkatan Indonesia pertama, disusun oleh A. Ed. Schmidgall-Tellings. Djakarta: P.T. Suluh Indonesia, 1955. First edition. 417 p.; 18 cm. Kamus singkatan Indonesia pertama. Bibliography: p. xiv-xv.

1957: [IUW] Daftar kata (list of words) daerah Kalimantan. [Djakarta] Kementerian Pendidikan, Pengajaran dan Kebudayaan Republik Indonesia, 1957. 198 p. 16 x 23 cm. Contemporary (possibly original) binding of marbled paper over boards with blue cloth spine, unprinted. Incorporates original gray wrappers, lettered in black. In Indonesian. Word list: Indonesian-15 Indonesian languages (Bandjar, Dajak Kenja, Dajak Ngadju, Maanjan, Pinihing, Seputan, Katingan, Sangir, Taghulandang, Beran Manganitu, Matan Atas, Martapura, Dajak Siang, Talaud, Penjabung), pp. [17]-198.

1959: [LILLYbm] Kaeti en Wambon: twee Awju-dialecten, by P[eter] Drabbe [1887- ]. 's-Gravenhage: Martin Nijhoff, 1959. Original yellow wrappers, lettered and decorated in brown. Pp. [4] 1-3 4-184 185-188. First edition. "Koninklijk Instituut voor Taal-, Land- en Volkenkunde" at head of title page. Includes a comparative list of 430

Dutch words with equivalents in Indonesian languages/dialects as follow: Sjiagha [Edera Awyu], Jenimu [Edera Awyu], Pisa [Asue Awyu], Aghu, Kaeti [Mandobo Ata/Mandobo Bawa], Wambon, Kaeti II [South Muyu], and Kaeti I [North Muyu], pp. [161]-181, and an Index of the vocabulary, pp. [182]-184.

1980-1987: [IUW] Holle lists: vocabularies in languages of Indonesia, by W.A.L. Stokhof, editor, in cooperation with Lia Saleh-Bronkhorst. Canberra: Dept. of Linguistics, Research School of Pacific Studies, Australian National University, 1980-[1987]. v.: ill.; 25 cm. Library binding preserving gray-green front wrappers, lettered in black. Materials in languages of Indonesia; no. 1-2, 4, 10, 15-19, 22-25, 28, 31, 33-36, 39. Pacific linguistics. Series D; no. 17, 28, 35, 44, 49-53, 59-62, 69, 71, 74-76, 81. List based on combination of vocabulary lists from 3 editions of Holle's work: Blanco woordenlijst. v. 1. Introductory volume -- v. 2. Sula and Bacan Islands, North Halmahera, South and East Halmahera -- v. 3/1. Southern Moluccas. Central Moluccas, Seram 1 -- v. 3/2. Central Moluccas, Seram 2 -- v. 3/3. Central Moluccas, Seram (III), Haruku, Banda, Ambon (I) -- v. 3/4. Central Moluccas, Ambon (II), Buru, Nusa Laut, Saparua -- v. 4. Talaud and Sangir Islands -- v. 5/1. Irian Jaya -- v. 5/2. Irian Jaya, Papuan languages, northern languages, central highlands languages -- v. 6. The Lesser Sunda Islands (Nusa Tenggara) -- v. 7/1. North Sulawesi, Gorontalo group and Tontoli -- v. 7/2. North Sulawesi, Phillipine languages -- v. 7/3. Central Sulawesi, South-West Sulawesi -- v. 7/4. South-East Sulawesi and neighbouring islands, West and North-East Sulawesi -- v. 8. Kalimantan (Borneo) -- v. 9. Northern Sumatra -- v. 10/1. Minangkabau and languages of central Sumatra -- v. 10/2. Southern Sumatra -- v. 10/3. Islands off the west coast of Sumatra -- v. 11. Celebes, Alor, Ambon, Irian Jaya, Madura, and Lombok.

1996: [IUW] North Sulawesi language survey / Scott Merrifield and Martinus Salea. Dallas: Summer Institute of Linguistics, 1996. xiii, 322 p.: maps; 23 cm. Library binding incorporating original blue and pale blue wrappers, lettered in white. Summer Institute of Linguistics publications in sociolinguistics, 1. Includes bibliographical references (p. 321-322). Word lists: "5.1 Gorontalo-Mongondow language word lists" [211 numbered words]: Indonesian-English-Ponosakan-Mongondow, pp. 149-156; Lolak-Biutauna-(Kaldipang-Bolangitang), pp. 156-163; Atinggola-Bolango-Gorontalo, pp. 163-170; "5.2 Minahasan language word lists," [211 numbered words]: Suwawa-Tonsawang-Tontemboan, pp. 170-178; Toulour-Tonse-Tombulu, pp. 178-188; "5.3 Sangihe-Talaud language word lists," [211 numbered words], Talaud-Sangibe-Siau, pp. 188-200; Tahulandang-Ratahan-Bantik, pp. 200-206.

"The findings of this survey confirm that, of the twenty-one commonly recognized linguistic groups of North Sulawesi Province, Indonesia, there are just nineteen distinct languages, all members of the Austronesian language family. The nineteen languages each belong to one of three distinct subgroups: The Gorontalo-Mongondow group consists of eight languages, the Minahasa group consist of five languages, and the Sangihe-Talaud group consist of six languages" (p. 1).

[INDO-PORTUGUESE] The Indo-Portuguese creoles are the several creole languages of India and Sri Lanka which had a substantial Portuguese influence in grammar or lexicon, such as:

Sri Lankan Portuguese creole

Diu Portuguese creole

Daman Portuguese creole
 Kristi language
 Cochin Portuguese creole
 Cannanore Portuguese creole
 Bengali Portuguese creole.

The expression Indo-Portuguese may refer not only to the creoles but also to the ethnic groups speaking those languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: idb. "The term Indo-Portuguese does not stand for one language but rather a number of Portuguese-lexified creoles scattered across South Asia (Cardoso 2006)."

2009: [IUW] The Indo-Portuguese language of Diu, door Hugo Canelas Cardoso. Utrecht: LOT, c2009. xii, 335 p.: ill., maps; 24 cm. Thesis (doctoral)--Universiteit van Amsterdam, 2009. LOT international series; v. 210. Includes bibliographical references (p. 311-323). In English, with summary in Dutch.

"The Diu Indo-Portuguese or Diu Portuguese is spoken in Diu, India. It is a creole language based mainly on Portuguese and Gujarati. It is a member of the larger family of Indo-Portuguese creoles, particularly close to the variety of Daman. There is a considerably vital oral tradition in this language, with songs regularly performed in Diu, elsewhere in India and among Indo-Portuguese communities abroad. Widely spoken in the past, it was first documented in the 19th-century by the initiative of Hugo Schuchardt. At present, the language is spoken natively by most of the local Catholics, numbering about 180, but is potentially endangered by the pressure of other languages such as Gujarati, English and standard Portuguese" (Wiki).

[INDRI] Indri (Yanderika, Yandirika) is a Ubangian language of South Sudan (Wiki).

Ethnologue: idr. Alternate Names: Yanderika, Yandirika.

1950: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1969: see 1969b under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[INESEÑO] The last native speaker of the Samala Chumash language, also called Ineseño, died in 1965. As of 2010, there has been a renaissance of Chumash pride and identity, including efforts to revive Samala and other Chumash languages. In the early 1900s linguist/ethnographer John P. Harrington worked with Maria Solares, one of the last fluent speakers of Samala. He created manuscripts containing information on Chumash language, culture, and traditions. Dr. Richard Applegate, who received a Ph.D. in linguistics from U.C. Berkeley, used these manuscripts to write an extensive grammar of Samala and compile a dictionary of the language, which was released in 2008. Dr. Applegate and Nakia Zavalla, the Cultural Director for the Santa Ynez Band of Chumash and a direct descendant of Maria Solares, have begun an effort to revitalize the language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: inz.

1952, 1955: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

2007: [LILLY] Samala-English Dictionary: A Guide to the Samala Language of the Ineseño Chumash People. The Santa Ynez Band of Chumash Indians in Collaboration with Ricahrd B. Applegate, Ph.D. and the Santa Ynez Chumash Education Committee.

Santa Ynez, CA: Santa Ynez Band of Chumash Indians, 2007. Printed in China. First edition (noted on verso of title page). 608 p. Original dark green and brown paper over boards, lettered in white, with color photograph on front cover, extending onto spine. Samala [Ineseño]-English, pp. 31-464, English-Samala [Ineseño] Index, pp. 465-608, illustrated throughout. Includes a detailed introduction to the language and the story of the compilation of this dictionary, pp. 5-12. Issued with a CD at rear.

[the Santa Ynez Chumash traditions are not forgotten. With this guide to our language, we not only provide you with a glimpse into a language that is as fascinating as it is complex, we also provide an opportunity to see how our ancestors lived" (Introduction, Santa Ynez Band of Chumash Indians).

[INGA] Inga Kichwa is a dialect of Kichwa spoken in the Colombian Putumayo region by the Inga people. There are two dialects: Highland Inga, spoken in the Sibundoy valley; and Jungle Inga, spoken on the Putumayo and Japurá Rivers. Ethnologue 16 reports Highland Inga is partially intelligible with Imbabura Kichwa (Wiki).

Ethnologue: inb. Alternate Names: Highland Inga.

1976: [IUW] Una gramática pedagógica del inga / por Stephen H. Levinsohn; traducción original de Raul Mongui. Ed. preliminar. Bogotá: Ministerio de Gobierno, Dirección General de Integración y Desarrollo de la Comunidad, División Operativa de Asuntos Indígenas, Instituto Lingüístico de Verano, República de Colombia, 1976-v.; 28 cm. Original cream and green wrappers, lettered in black and white. Vol. 2: Inga-Spanish vocabulary, pp. 99-109. Includes index. Bibliography: v. 2, p. 119-120.

2011: [IUW] Inga rimangapa: ¡Samuichi!: speaking the Quechua of Colombia / John Holmes McDowell, Francisco Tandioy Jansasoy, Juan Eduardo Wolf. 1st ed. Bloomington, IN: Indiana University, Center for Latin American & Caribbean Studies, c2011. xx, 316 p.: ill. (some col.), maps; 28 cm. Includes bibliographical references.

Second Spanish language edition 2014: [IUW] Inga rimangapa: ¡Samuichi!: vengan a hablar la lengua inga / John Holmes McDowell, Francisco Tandioy Jansasoy, Juan Eduardo Wolf; translation to the Spanish Eric Carbaja. Second Spanish edition. Bloomington, IN: Indiana University, Center for Latin American & Caribbean Studies, 2014. ©2014 316 pages: illustrations (some color), maps; 28 cm. Library binding, preserving original blue, violet and red wrappers, lettered in white and blue, with color photos on front and rear covers. Appendix A: Inga-Spanish, pp. 287-295, Spanish-Inga, pp. 296-306.

[INGRIAN] Ingrian (also called Izhorian) is a nearly extinct Finnic language spoken by the (mainly Orthodox) Izhorians of Ingria. It has approximately 120 speakers left, most of whom are aged. It should not be confused with the Southeastern dialects of the Finnish language that became the majority language of Ingria in the 17th century with the influx of Lutheran Finnish immigrants (whose descendants, Ingrian Finns, are often referred to as Ingrians). The immigration of Lutheran Finns was promoted by Swedish authorities (who gained the area in 1617 from Russia), as the local population was (and remained) Orthodox. In 1932–1937, a Latin-based orthography for the Ingrian language existed, taught in schools of the Soikino Peninsula and the area around the mouth of the Luga River. Several textbooks were published, including, in 1936, a grammar of the language.

However, in 1937 the Izhorian written language was abolished and mass repressions of the peasantry began (Wiki).

Ethnologue: izh. Alternate Names: Ingermanlandian, Inkeröisen, Izhor, Izhorian.

1971: [IUW] Inkeröismurteiden sanakirja. [Kirj.] R[uben] E[rik] Nirvi. Helsinki, Suomalais-ugrilainen seura, 1971. xvi, 730 p. maps. 26 cm. Lexica Societatis Fenno-Ugricae, 18. Ingrian-Finnish dictionary.

1984: [IUW] Soziolinguistisch-lexikologische Studien zu den ingrisch-russischen Sprachkontakten: mit einem ingrisch-russischen Wörterverzeichnis, by Harald Haarmann. Hamburg: Buske, c1984. 383 p.: ill., maps; 21 cm. Original pink wrappers, lettered in black and white. Fenno-Ugrica, Bd. 7. Includes indexes. Bibliography: p. 379-383. Ingrian-Russian, pp. 153-270, with Russian index to vocabulary, pp. 331-344.

1997: [IUW] Isuri keele Hevaha murde sõnastik, aineestiku kogunud ja käsikirja koostanud Arvo Laanest. Tallinn: Eesti Keele Instituut, 1997. 233 p.; 21 cm. Library binding incorporating original cream wrappers, lettered in black. Ingrian-Finnish, pp. 15-233.

[INGUSH] Ingush (ГӀалгӀай, Ǧalǧaj, pronounced [xəlɤɑj]) is a Northeast Caucasian language spoken by about 300,000 people, known as the Ingush, across a region covering the Russian republics of Ingushetia and Chechnya (Wiki).

Ethnologue: inh. Alternate Names: Galgay, Ghalghay, Ingus, Kisti, Kistin.

1966: [IUW] Russko-chechensko-ingushskii slovar'. Sostaviteli A.G. Maiev i I.A. Ozdoev. Groznyĭ, Checheno-Ingushskoe knizhnoe izd-vo, 1966. 575 p. 21 cm. First dictionary to include Ingush.

1980: [LILLYbm] Russko-ingushskii slovar: 40000 slov, by I. A. Ozdoev. Moscow: Russkii iazyk 1980. Original dark blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold and decorated in blind. Pp. 1-4 5-830 831-832. First edition. With a Library of Congress duplicate stamp. Second copy: IUW.

2005: [IUW] Ghalghai-ersii doshlorg: 11142 dosh = Ингушско-русский солварь: 11142 слова, by A.C. Куркиев. Ghalghai-ersii doshlorg: 11142 dosh = Ingushsko-russkii solvar': 11142 slova, by A.S. Kurkiev. Magas: Изд-во "Сердало", 2005. Magas: Izd-vo "Serdalo", 2005. 543 p.; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references. First Ingush-Russian dictionary.

[INTERLINGUA] Interlingua (/ɪntərˈlɪŋgwə/; ISO 639 language codes ia, ina) is an international auxiliary language (IAL), developed between 1937 and 1951 by the International Auxiliary Language Association (IALA). It ranks among the top most widely used IALs (along with Esperanto and Ido), and is the most widely used naturalistic IAL: in other words, its vocabulary, grammar and other characteristics are derived from natural languages. Interlingua was developed to combine a simple, mostly regular grammar with a vocabulary common to the widest possible range of languages,[6] making it unusually easy to learn, at least for those whose native languages were sources of Interlingua's vocabulary and grammar. Conversely, it is used as a rapid introduction to many natural languages. Interlingua literature maintains that (written) Interlingua is comprehensible to the hundreds of millions of people who speak a Romance language, though it is actively spoken by only a few hundred. The name Interlingua comes from the Latin words inter, meaning between, and lingua, meaning tongue or language. These morphemes are identical in Interlingua. Thus, Interlingua would be "between language", or intermediary language (Wiki).

Interlingua is not listed in Ethnologue.

1931: [IUW] Key to and Primer of Interlingua, or Latin without inflections, meant to be used as an international auxiliary language amongst peoples of various mother tongues. London, K. Paul, Trench, Trubner & Co., Ltd.; New York, E.P. Dutton & Company, 1931. v, 78, vii, 168 p. 19 cm. Original red cloth, lettered in gold. The "Primer" (vii, 168 p.) has special t.-p.: Primo libro de interlingua, sive latino sine flexione, destinato quale lingua auxiliare inter populos de differente matre lingua, per plure socio de Academia pro interlingua. "Interlingua-English Glossary," pp. 39-78. Published also in 2 vols.: Key to Interlingua, and Primo libro de interlingua.

1945: [IUW] Interlingua: il latino vivente come lingua ausiliaria internazionale: grammatica-antologia, by U. Cassina e M. Gliozzi. Milano: Casa Editrice Villa, [1945]. 158 p.; 17 cm.

1951: [LILLYbm] Interlingua-English: a dictionary of the international language, prepared by the research staff of the International Auxiliary Language Association under the direction of Alexander Gode. New York: Storm Publishers, 1951. Original gray-blue and yellow self-wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. i-iv v-lxiv, 1-415 416. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 185. Interlingua-English, pp. 1-415. This appears to be the first English language dictionary of Interlingua.

1970: [LILLYbm] Vocabularie Mathematic in Interlingue con traduction in angles (English, frances (français) e german (Deutsch), by C. E. Sjöstedt. Uppsala: Interlingue-Fundation, 1970. Gray paper over boards, lettered in black; white dust jacket, lettered in black. Pp. 1-6 7-87 88. First edition. Interlingua-English-French-German, pp. 11-73, with indices as follow: English-Interlingua, pp. 74-76, French-Interlingua, pp. 76-78, German-Interlingua, pp. 78-86. This copy with a presentation inscription from the author on the front free endpaper.

1971: [LILLYbm] Demographic Dictionary in Interlingua, English and French, ed. by Hannes Hyrenius, translations to Interlingua by John Nordin. Gothenburg: Demographic Institute, University of Gothenburg, Sweden, 1971. Original tan wrappers, lettered in black and red. Pp. [2] 1-123 124. First edition. Demographic Institute Report 12. Includes alphabetical Interlingua-English-French vocabulary, pp. 9-63, and classified Interlingua-English-French lists, pp. 67-123. Second copy: IUW.

"This volume presents a demographic dictionary in the auxiliary language Interlingua in combination with English and French. It contains all the terms included in the Multilingual Demographic Dictionary originally issued in French and English by the United Nations.... Interlingua is the result of a long period of efforts by a group of linguists to develop a language which should be suitable primarily for scientific communications, summaries of articles and research reports of virtually universal interest.... Interlingua has been called the modern Latin. The words are almost entirely of Latin origin, while at the same time the grammar has been greatly simplified" (Introduction in English).

1992-1995: [IUW] Slovník mezinárodních slov (internacionalismů): soustava interlingue: doplněno mezinárodními kódy a názvy všech států světa, [autor T. Ondráček]. Žďár n.S.: Interlingue Club, 1992-1995. 2 v.; 22 cm. First edition. [v. 1].

Slovník česko-interlingue. [v. 2]. Slovník interlingue-český. Czech-Interlingua dictionary.

[INUINNAQTUN] Inuinnaqtun (Inuit pronunciation: [inuin:aqtun]; natively meaning like the real human beings/peoples), is an indigenous Inuit language of Canada and a dialect of Inuvialuktun. It is related very closely to Inuktitut, and some scholars, such as Richard Condon, believe that Inuinnaqtun is more appropriately classified as a dialect of Inuktitut. The governments of the Northwest Territories and Nunavut recognise Inuinnaqtun as an official language in addition to Inuktitut. The Official Languages Act of Nunavut, passed by the Senate of Canada on June 11, 2009, recognized Inuinnaqtun as one of the official languages of Nunavut. Inuinnaqtun is used primarily in the communities of Cambridge Bay and Kugluktuk in the western Kitikmeot Region of Nunavut. Outside of Nunavut, it is spoken in the hamlet of Ulukhaktok, where it is also known as Kangiryuarmiutun. It is written using the Latin script (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ikt. Alternate Names: Western Canada Inuktun, Western Canadian Inuit, Western Canadian Inuktitut.

1878: [LILLY] Vocabulaire francais-esquimau. Dialecte des Tchiglit des bouches du Mackenzie et de l'Anderson, précédé d'une monographie de cette tribu et de notes grammaticales, par le R.P.E. Petitot. Paris, E. Leroux; San Francisco, A.L. Bancroft and Co., 1876. xliv, 75, [1] p. 28 cm. Series: Bibliothèque de linguistique et d'ethnographie américaines ... v. 3

1897: [LILLYbm] Across the sub-Arctics of Canada, a journey of 3,200 miles by canoe and snow-shoe through the barren lands. Including a list of plants collected on the expedition, a vocabulary of Eskimo words, a route map and full classified index. With illustrations from photographs taken on the journey, and from drawings by Arthur Heming, by J[ames] W[illiams] Tyrrell. Toronto: Williams Briggs, 1897. Original illustrated tan cloth over boards, illustrated in green and lettered in gold. Pp. i-v vi, 7 8-280, with frontispiece and fold-out map. First edition. English-Eskimo vocabulary ("Original") as Appendix II, pp. [273]-277, double-column. This copy signed by Joyce M. Tyrrell (the author's wife? daughter?), and with an ink gift inscription to Tho. Wyld from Andrew Darling, dated "St. Louis '97". Andrew Darling was author of The American farmer's horse book, a pictorial cyclopedia (St. Louis, 1892).

"Narrative of a trip for exploration and survey of regions west of Hudson Bay, May-Dec 1893. . . observations on Indians and Eskimos, also on game, conditions of travel and physical features of the regions. The appendices include a list of plants collected, with the species determined by John Macoun, and a vocabulary of Eskimo words. There was a later London re-issue of this classic travel account. Photographs and drawings are by Arthur Heming. Tyrrell was the discoverer of the now famous coal seams of the Red Deer River and he also found the first dinosaur fossils in Drumheller Alberta. On this epic exploration he found the long-sought Dubawnt River and reached Chesterfield Inlet on Hudson Bay. From there, he led his starving frostbitten party through snowstorms and floating ice to Fort Churchill, 400 miles south and then another 800 miles by snowshoe and dog team to Winnipeg. Despite the hardship he lived to 99 years" (bookseller's description: Horizon Books).

First American issue, 1898: [LILLYbm] Across the sub-Arctics of Canada, a journey of 3,200 miles by canoe and snow-shoe through the barren lands.

Including a list of plants collected on the expedition, a vocabulary of Eskimo words, a route map and full classified index. With illustrations from photographs taken on the journey, and from drawings by Arthur Heming, by J[ames] W[illiams] Tyrrell. New York: Dodd, Mead and Co., 1898. Original illustrated maroon cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. i-vi, 7 8-280, with frontispiece and fold-out map. First U.S. issue. First edition was published in Toronto in 1897 (see above). English-Eskimo vocabulary ("Original") as Appendix II, pp. [273]-277, double-columned. This copy with the ink ownership signature of the noted American naturalist C. Hart Merriam (for a full treatment of his life and publications, see Keir Sterling, Last of the naturalists: the career of C. Hart Merriam, New York: Arno Press, 1974). In addition to his own writings, Merriam edited the multi-volume Harriman Alaska Expedition Series, 1901 ff.

1928: [LILLYbm] Report of the Canadian Arctic Expedition 1913-18. Volume XV: Eskimo Language and Technology. Part A: Comparative Vocabulary of the Western Eskimo Dialects. Southern Party- 1913-16, by D[iamond] Jenness. Ottawa: F. A. Acland, 1928. Original gray wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. 1-2 3-134 [2]. First edition. Includes a comparative vocabulary of the following Western Canadian Inuktitut dialects: East Cape, Nunivak island, Inglestat, King Island, Wales, Barrow, Mackenzie river delta, Coronation gulf, Labrador, Greenland, pp. 7-134. Second copy: LILLYbm, with ink duplicate stamp of the Library of Congress.

"The comparative vocabulary given in the following pages has been gathered at odd times in many different places. [A detailed list of times and places follows, all early twentieth century]" (Introduction).

1954: [LILLYbm] English-Eskimo, Eskimo-English dictionary, by Arthur Thibert. Ottawa: Research Center of Amerindian Anthropology, University of Ottawa, 1954. Contemporary blue cloth and stiff vellum, lettered by hand in white (amateur binding). Pp. I-VI VII-X, 1-2 3-172 173-174. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 121. English-Eskimo, pp. 3-65, and Eskimo-English, pp. 69-142, with "A short bibliography of the Eskimo language," p. x. First true English-Eskimo dictionary. Second copy: IUW.

"This dictionary is the result of twenty-seven years of missionary work among the Eskimos. Chesterfield, Eskimo Point, Southampton Island, Baker Lake and Churchill were the chief headquarters from which I traveled across the Arctic, meeting the Eskimos and studying their language, ways and manners... In compiling this dictionary, I have had no other aim than to provide the Missionaries and all those who work in the Arctic or care for the social welfare of the Eskimos with a suitable tool for the task" (Foreword).

"This dictionary covers practically all the words generally used by the Canadian Eskimos" (Introduction).

French translation 1955: [LILLYbm] Français-Esquimau Dictionnaire Esquimau-Français, by Arthur Thibert. Ottawa: Centre de Recherches d'Anthropologie Amérindienne, Université d'Ottawa, 1955. Original stiff blue wrappers, lettered and illustrated in gold. Pp. 1-4 5-200 [2]. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller (who lists only the English version of 1954). French-Eskimo, pp. 13-94, and Eskimo-French, pp. 99-189. Reproduced from typescript. There is no mention of the English language version also published by the Center in Ottawa (174 pp.) (see above).

traditionally Inuit lands. The term Inuktitut is often used more broadly to include Inuvialuktun and thus nearly all the Inuit dialects of Canada (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ike. Alternate Names: Canadian Inuit, "Eastern Arctic Eskimo" (pej.), "Eastern Canadian Eskimo" (pej.), Inuit, Inuit of Quebec.

1791: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

1864: [LILLY] Erdmann, Friedrich. Eskimoisches wörterbuch gesammelt von den missionaren in Labrador, revised and edited by Friedrich Erdmann. Budissin: E. M. Monse, 1864. 8vo, pp. [2], 360; text in double column; contemporary quarter red morocco over marbled paper-paper boards, gilt-lettered spine. First edition of the first volume of Erdmann's dictionary of Eskimo; a second volume (German-Eskimo) was published in 1866. Eastern Canadian Inuktitut-German, pp. [1]-360. An Ayer Linguistic duplicate, with a Newberry release stamp opposite the title page. The first volume (Eskimo-German) was published in 1864. Of the second volume Pilling says "It may be there is a German-Eskimo counterpart to the work; if so, I have seen no copy of it." Pilling, Eskimo, Pilling, Proof-Sheets, Trubner Catalogue of Dictionaries and Grammars, and Zaunmüller all cite the 1864 volume only.

1941: [LILLY] Conversation Book (Labrador - Eskimo), by George Harp. Hopedale, Labrador: G. Harp, 1941. [15] p. Mimeographed, spiral bound at top. "Being a collection of over 1,000 words and sentences with Eskimo translation." First edition. This copy inscribed "With Compliments / Bill". Harp was in charge of the Moravian Mission, and also served as physician and dentist to the native peoples of northern Labrador. OCLC lists three copies, two of which are apparently later (but still dated 1941), of 27 pp. and containing "3,000" or "15,000" words and sentences.

"This little book has been prepared in answer to the many requests made to me for 'something in the way of a word book to help in understanding the Eskimos'....The words and sentences are arranged in alphabetical order using the most prominent word in the sentence, so it should be easy to find the sentence needed" (first page).

1953: [IUW] List of Labrador Eskimo place names, by E. P. Wheeler, 2nd. Ottawa: National Museum of Canada, 1953. 105 p.: tables; 25 cm. Bulletin (National Museum of Canada); no. 131. Bulletin (National Museum of Canada). Anthropological series no. 34.

1954: [LILLY] [English-Eskimo Dictionary], by Ref. F. W. Peacock. Nain, Labrador; [by the author], 1954. 50 leaves. mimeographed, recto only. Stapled. Not in Zaunmüller. Peacock published both English-Eskimo, and Eskimo-English, dictionaries in 1974, and Conversational Eskimo in 1977 (see below).

"This small English-Eskimo Dictionary, compiled at the request of Captain Ambrose Shea, or the Canadian Army, in not intended for scholars but merely to help anyone who might have casual contacts with Eskimos. It is hoped that it will serve the purpose for which it was intended and perhaps lead to a greater interest in the Eskimo language" (top leaf, type-signed: Rev. F. W. Peacock M.A. / Nain, Labrador June 1954). English-Eskimo, 49 leaves.

1966: [LILLYbm] Dictionnaire alphabético-syllabique du langage esquimau de l'Ungava, et contrées limitrophes, by Lucien Schneider. Quebec: Presses de l'Université Laval, 1966. Original white, gray tan and yellow cloth over boards, lettered and illustrated in black. Pp. [18] 1-380 381-382. First edition. Series: Travaux et documents du Centre d'études nordiques, 3. Eskimo-French, pp. 1-380.

Second, augmented edition 1970: [LILLYbm] Dictionnaire esquimau-français du parler de l'Ungava et contrées limitrophes. Nouvelle édition augmentée, by Lucien Schneider. Quebec: Presses de l'Université Laval, 1970. Original white, gray, tan and yellow cloth over boards, lettered and illustrated in black. Pp. I-XI XII-XVII XVIII-XX, 1-437 438-444. New, augmented edition. Series: Travaux et documents du Centre d'études nordiques, 3. Eskimo-French, pp. 1-380, with additions and correction, pp. 383-436 (this latter extensive section enlarges upon the first edition of 1966).

English language edition 1985: [LILLYbm] Ulirnaisigutiit. An Inuktitut-English Dictionary of Northern Quebec, Labrador and Eastern Arctic Dialects (with an English-Inuktitut Index), by Lucien Schneider, trans. from the French and transliterated by Dermot Ronan F. Collis. Quebec: Les Presses de l'Université Laval, 1985. Original stiff blue wrappers, lettered in gold and orange, with a cover illustration. Pp. i-vii viii-x, 1 2-507 508-510. First edition in English. Inuktitut-English, pp. [1]-476, and an English-Inuktitut Index, pp. [479]-507.

"Father Lucien Schneider... was a Catholic priest, born in France, who came to the Canadian Arctic as a missionary, in the late thirties... Most of his material was collected in Kangiqsujuaq, in the early fifties, from two Inuit informants... Later it was arranged in dictionary form and published in 1966 as the Dictionnaire alphabético-syllabique du langage esquimau de l'Ungava et contrées limitrophes... An enlarged and revised edition was released by the same publishers [Laval University] in 1970, along with a French-Inuktitut dictionary... In 1979 a conference of Inuit translators from across Canada recommended that Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development support the translation and publication of an Inuktitut-English version... Schneider's dictionary is the largest piece of published lexical scholarship on any Canadian Inuktitut dialect. But even then, it can not be considered as definitive... [It] should be considered a practical tool, which... stands to be expanded and improved over the years" (Introduction).

1970: [LILLYbm] Dictionnaire français-esquimau du parler de l'Ungava et contrées limitrophes, by Lucien Schneider. Quebec: Presses de l'Université Laval, 1970. Original white, gray, tan and yellow cloth over boards, lettered and illustrated in black. Pp. [20] 1-421 422-424. First edition. Series: Travaux et documents du Centre d'études nordiques, 5. French-Eskimo, pp. 1-420. Together with the new, augmented edition of Schneider's Eskimo-French Dictionary published that same year (see above), the full dictionary project was completed.

1974: [LILLY] Eskimo-synonyms dictionary [cover title], by F. W. Peacock. St. John's: Memorial University of Newfoundland, 1974. 460 p.; 21 cm. Original white wrappers, lettered in black and illustrated in brown and white. First edition. English-Eskimo, pp. 1-460.

“After working with the Eskimo language for many years, I have felt that there was a need to compile a book of synonyms in the Eskimo language and the following pages represent several years research and it is hoped that it will help other students of the Eskimo language to use the right word... Publication of this volume was made possible by the Department of Indian Affairs in the Federal Government.” (Introduction).

1977a: [LILLY] Conversational Eskimo, by F. W. Peacock. Portugal Cove, Nfld.: Breakwater Books, 1977. 113, 1a-1j, 2a-2j p.: ill.; 14 x 21 cm. Original cream wrappers lettered and illustrated in black. First edition.

“This booklet is meant to help non-native people living among the Inuit... The aim is to assist social workers, teachers, doctors, nurses, policemen and others in fairly general situations. The spelling follows that used by the Moravian Brethren on the coast of Labrador for over 200 years” (Introduction).

1977b: [IUW] Inuit kupaimmiut uqausingit: the language of the northern Quebec Inuit: a teaching and learning guide, by Louis-Jacques Dorais. Quebec: Association Inuksiutiit Katimajit, 1977. ii, 81 p.; 28 cm. Original green wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Revised translation of 1975 French ed. published under title: Inuit uqausingit. Text in English and Inuktitut. "List of Words," Northern Quebec Inuktitut (script and Roman)-English, pp. [49]-81.

"In Northern Quebec, people use two dialects: Itivimiutitut (from Fort George to Povungnituk) and Taqramiutitut (from Akulivik to Killiniq). These dialects are mutually intelligible. It means that people speaking one dialect can understand quite easily people speaking another dialect... [the book concludes with] a list of approximately 1000 Inuktitut words, with their English translation. They'll be written in syllables and in the roman orthography proposed by the Inuit Tapirisat of Canada Language Commssion" (Introduction).

1978a: [IUW] Iglulingmiut uqausingit = the Inuit language of Igloolik N.W.T. = le parler Inuit d'Igloolik T.N.O., by Louis Jacques Dorais. Québec: Association Inuksiutiit katimajit, 1978. [verso of title page: "© 2e trimestre 1979"]. 117 p.; 28 cm. Library binding. Text in Inuit, English, and French. Includes classified Inuit of Igloolik-English vocabulary, pp. 49-117.

"The following pages introduce to the grammar and the vocabulary of the Inuit language as spoken by people who were born in the Igloolik area. It reflects the speech of the adults (25 years and over), because the way of speaking of the young is somewhat different from that of their elders. The Inuit language of Igloolik is quite homogenous. There are some differences however between social groups, particularly between Catholics (C) and Protestants (P). When known, these differences are outlined. They affect the vocabulary of localization, geography, age groups and kinship, but not exclusively.... The orthography is that approved by Inuit Tapirisat of Candada.... The work is far from complete, but I hope it can be useful to people, Inuit or other, wishing to learn or know better the language of the Iglulingmiut" (Introduction).

1978b: [IUW] Lexique analytique du vocabulaire inuit moderne au Québec-a, by Louis-Jacques Dorais. Québec: Presses de l'Université Lavel, 1978. 136 p.: maps; 26 cm. Series: Travaux du Centre international de recherche sur le bilinguisme A-14. Bibliography: p. [135]-136.

1980: [IUW] The Inuit language in southern Labrador from 1694-1785 = La langue Inuit au sud du Labrador de 1694 à 1785, by Louis-Jacques Dorais. Ottawa:

National Museums of Canada, 1980. vi, 56, 56, vi p. (p. 43-56 advertisements): maps; 28 cm. Mercury series, 0316-1854. Paper - Canadian Ethnology Service; no. 66 0316-1862.

[INUPIAQ] Inupiat /ɪˈnjuːpiæt/, or Alaskan Inuit, is a group of dialects of the Inuit language, spoken by the Inupiat people in northern and northwestern Alaska. The Inupiat language is a member of the Eskimo languages. There are roughly 7,000–9,000 speakers. The name is also rendered Inupiatun, Inupiaq, Iñupiaq, Inyupiaq, Inyupiat, Inyupeat, Inyupik, and Inupik. There are four main dialect divisions and these can be organized within two larger dialect collections: [1) Seward Peninsula Iñupiaq, consisting of Bering Strait and Qawiaq dialect groups; and 2) Northern Alaskan Iñupiaq, consisting of Malimiutun and North Slope dialect groups] (Wiki).

Ethnologue considers Inupiaq a macrolanguage (ipk), consisting of two separate languages, corresponding to the Seward Peninsula Iñupiaq and Northern Alaskan Iñupiaq dialect groups: 1) Northwest Alaska Inupiatun (esk); alternate Nnames: Eskimo, Inupiatun, Northwest Alaska Inupiat, Seward Inupiaq; and 2) North Alaskan Inupiatun (esi); alternate names: Eskimo, Inupiak, Inupiat, North Alaskan Inuktitut, North Alaskan Inupiaq, North Alaskan Iñupiaq, North Alaskan Inupiat.

1885: [IUW] Report of the International polar expedition to Point Barrow, Alaska, in response to the resolution of the [U.S.] House of representatives of December 11, 1884. Washington, Govt. Print. Off., 1885. 2 p. , 3-695 p. front., plates (part col.) fold. map, plan. 80cm. U.S. Signal office. Arctic series of publications, no. I Issued also as House ex. doc. 44, 48th Cong., 2d sess. (v. 23, serial no. 2298). Report of Lieut. P.H. Ray, commanding the expedition, to the chief of the United States Signal office. Contents include: pt. III. Ethnographic sketch of the natives of Point Barrow, by Lieut. P.H. Ray: 1. Sketch. 2. Approximate census of Eskimos at the Cape Smythe village. 3. Vocabulary collected among the Eskimos of Point Barrow and Cape Smythe.

1890: [LILLYbm] English-Eskimo and Eskimo-English vocabularies, preceded by Ethnographical Memoranda concerning the Arctic Eskimos in Alaska and Siberia, by Roger Wells & John W. Kelly. Washington, D.C.: Government Printing Office, 1890. Original gray wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. 1-2 3-72. First edition. Series: Bureau of Education. Circular of Information, no. 2 (whole number 165), 1890. Not in Zauhmüller. English-Eskimo, pp. 29-46, Eskimo-English, pp. 47-65; with additional English-Siberian Eskimo [Central Siberian Yupik], pp. 67-69, and Siberian Eskimo [Central Siberian Yupik]-English, pp. 69-72.

Second copy: LILLY, original front wrapper bound in; 2 maps, 1 folding; half green morocco over marbled boards, gilt title direct on spine, marbled endpapers; spine sunned, light rubbing to edges, a few shallow tears at fore-edge. An Ayer Linguistics duplicate, with bookplate and label on pastedowns, and release stamp on flyleaf.

Third copy: IUW.

"I have the honor to transmit an English-Eskimo vocabulary of 11,318 words, and to recommend the publication of 10,000 copies as a hand-book for the Alaskan teachers.... The expense of this publication will not be great, and may properly be charged to the fund for the 'education of children in Alaska, without distinction of race'" (Letter of Transmittal, W. T. Harris).

"...there is not a single comprehensive English-Eskimo vocabulary in print, and accessible to teachers and others, among the Alaskan Eskimos" (Notes on Eskimo Bibliography, Sheldon Jackson)

"The vocabulary has been the result of four years' study and practice, one year with natives alone, when no English word was heard. It has been re-written and corrected every four months" (p. 66, John W. Kelly).

Reprinted 1975: [IUW] English-Eskimo and Eskimo-English vocabularies, compiled by Roger Wells, Jr., and John W. Kelly; preceded by ethnographical memoranda concerning the Arctic Eskimos in Alaska and Siberia, by John W. Kelly. New York: AMS Press, 1975. 72 p., [2] leaves of plates (1 fold.): maps; 24 cm. Reprint of the 1890 ed. published by the Government Printing Office, Washington, which was issued as Circular of information 1890, no. 2, of the U.S. Bureau of Education.

1970: [LILLYbm] Inupiat Eskimo dictionary, by Donald H[umphry] Webster [1930- ] & Wilfried Zibell. Fairbanks, Alaska: Summer Institute of Linguistics, 1970. Prepared for Alaska rural school project, Department of Education, University of Alaska, College, Alaska. Original orange wrappers, lettered and illustrated in black. Pp. i-ii iii-xii, [2] 1-211 212-216. First edition. 3,000 copies. Inupiat-English, pp. 1-185, and English index, pp. [186]-211. This copy with the ownership stamps of Douglas M. Nancarrow, whose 1980 Ph.D. thesis at Washington State University was entitled "An analysis of the rhetorical and historical role played by the Hon. Charles A. Summer in ratification of the treaty to purchase Russian America." Nancarrow was also co-author of Prejudice and racism: reactions to a multicultural unit on Alaska native land claims: when good will isn't enough, (1988; For the American Native Press Association Annual Conference).

"This work is by no means exhaustive. It is but a beginning.... Unlike most dictionaries, this is compiled according to subject matter... These words have been gathered over a period of ten years and drawn from various Eskimos living in the villages of North and Northwest Alaska" ("Forward").

The Abridged Inupiaq and English Dictionary, 1981, by Edna MacLean, has been reprinted several times. The first printing was 200 copies in September of 1981; eleven printings through June of 1999, 200 to 500 copies each. The second printing was also 1981, North Slope Borough School District.

1971: [IUW] Ėskimossko-russkiĭ slovar'. 19 000 slov. Sost. E.S. Rubtsova. Pod. red. G.A. Menovshchikova. Moskva, "Sov. ěntsiklopediĭa," 1971. 644 p. 21 cm. At head of title: Leningradskoe otdelenie Instituta ĭazykoznaniiā AN SSSR.

1979: [LILLYbm] Kaniqsisautit uqayusragnikun = Kobuk Iñupiat junior dictionary, by Susan Sun, illustrated by J. Leslie Boffa. Anchorage, Alaska: The Center, 1979. viii, 320 p.: ill.; 29 cm. Original gray mottled cloth lettered in black, with a full color illustration of Inuit children in a landscape on the front cover. First edition. English-Northwest Alaska Inupiatun, pp. 1-302, with an index to the Inupiatun, pp. 304-320. With '9/79/500' on the title page, indicating an edition of 500 copies in September 1979.

"Although this dictionary is not a complete inventory of the words in the Inupiaq language, it is a good beginning. Hopefully, those who become proficient in the writing of Inupiaq will be inspired by this initial work to expand it into a more comprehensive book” (Introduction, The Staff, National Bilingual Materials Development Center).

According to the introduction, the language includes four major dialects: North Slope, Malimiut, Qawiaraq, and Bering Strait. “This junior dictionary is written for Northern Malimiut Inupiaq, emphasizing the Kobuk or Inland variety. However it can still be used by other speakers of Malimiut.”

1988: [IUW] Slovar': èskimosko-russkiĩ i russko-èskimoskiĩ: okolo 4,000 slov: posobie dlia nachal'noĩ shkoly, by G.A. Menovshchikov. 2-e izd., dorabotannoe. Second revised edition. Leningrad: Prosveshchenie, 1988. 262 p.; 21 cm.

[INUPIATUN, NORTH ALASKAN] See description under INUPIAQ.

Ethnologue: esi. Alternate Names: Eskimo, Inupiak, Inupiat, North Alaskan Inuktitut, North Alaskan Inupiaq, North Alaskan Iñupiaq, North Alaskan Inupiat.

1907-1930: see Vol. 20 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[INUPIATUN, NORTHWEST ALASKA] See description under INUPIAQ.

Ethnologue: esk. Alternate Names: Eskimo, Inupiatun, Northwest Alaska Inupiat, Seward Inupiaq.

1907-1930: see Vol. 20 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[IOWA-OTO] Chiwere (also called Iowa-Otoe-Missouria or Báxoje-Jíwerek-Nút'achi) is a Siouan language originally spoken by the Missouri, Otoe, and Iowa peoples, who originated in the Great Lakes region but later moved throughout the Midwest and plains. The language is closely related to Ho-Chunk, also known as Winnebago. Christian missionaries first documented Chiwere in the 1830s, but since then virtually nothing has been published about the language. Chiwere suffered a steady decline after extended European-American contact in the 1850s, and by 1940 the language had almost totally ceased to be spoken. The Iowa tribe refers to their language as Báxoje ich'é or Bah Kho Je (pronounced [b̥a˥˥ xodʒe it̚ʰe˥˥]). The last two fluent speakers died in the winter of 1996, and only a handful of semi-fluent speakers remain, all of whom are elderly, making Chiwere critically endangered. As of 2006, an estimated four members of the Otoe-Missouria Tribe of Indians still speak the language, while 30 members of the Iowa Tribe of Oklahoma speak their language. The Iowa Tribe of Oklahoma has sponsored language workshops in the past and hopes to host more in the future (Wiki).

Ethnologue: iow.

1907-1930: see Vol. 19 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[IPIKO] Ipiko (Epai, Higa, Ipikoi) is a Papuan language of Papua New Guinea, the most divergent of the Inland Gulf languages. Despite being spoken by only a few hundred people, language use is vigorous (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ipo. Alternate Names: Epai, Higa, Ipikoi.

1973: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[IRAQW] Iraqw is a Cushitic language spoken in Tanzania in the Arusha and Manyara Regions. It is expanding in numbers, as the Iraqw people absorb neighboring ethnic groups. The language has a large number of Datooga loanwords, especially in poetic language. The Gorowa language to the south shares numerous similarities and is sometimes considered a dialect (Wiki).

Ethnologue: irk. Alternate Names: Erok, Iraku, Iraq, Kiiraq, Mbulu, Mbulunge.

1995: [IUW] Annotated Iraqw Lexicon, by J.B. Maghway. Tokyo: Institute for the Study of Languages and Cultures of Asia and Africa, 1995. Pp. 1-4 5-210 211-214. 25 cm. Library binding incorporating original pale violet wrappers, lettered in black. "Annotated Iraqw Lexicon in Iraqw Orography," Iraqw-English, pp. 28-195, and an Iraqw index, pp. 196-210. First substantial start toward a dictionary of the language.

"This is not a dictionary of Iraqw as such; it is only a brief segment which charts out what such a future task may involve. The contents of the present work include much of those wordlists presented in a paper entitled A Vocabulary of Iraqw, which has previously been published elsewhere [cf. "Iraqw Vocabulary," Edinburgh Working Papers in Linguistics, 1986, pp. 69-79, and "A Vocabulary of Iraqw," Occasional Papers, Department of Foreign Languages and Linguistics, University of Dar es Salaam, 1989]... The main body of this book, Part Two, provides a wordlist which includes an additional 1500 words or so of the Iraqw vocabulary" (Foreword).

"It is hoped that this Lexicon, though not a full fledged dictionary, contributes in some small way towards adding to the body of knowledge about the Iraqw language.... All the shortcomings in this work will, it is hoped, act as a negative pointer for a future Dictionary of Iraqw" ("Toward a Dictionary of Iraqw").

2002: [IUW] Iraqw-English dictionary: with an English and a thesaurus index, Maarten Mous, Martha Qorro, Roland Kiessling. Köln: Rüdiger Köppe Verlag, 2002. viii, 203 p.; 24 cm. Library binding incorporating original green and white wrappers, lettered in black. Kuschitische Sprachstudien Bd. 18. Includes bibliographical references (p. 6-8). Includes an "Iraqw-English Dictionary," pp. [9]-122, an English Index, pp. [123]-137, and a classified Iraqw-English Thesaurus, pp. 163-203. With a Preface outlining the history of the compilation of this dictionary from earlier sources and independent research, noting that "in 1995 Josephat Maghway published his Annotated Iraqw Lexicon. From this some 60 entries were added and are marked as such." First true dictionary of Iraqw.

[IRAYA] The Iraya language is a language spoken by Mangyans in the province of Mindoro in the Philippines. Ethnologue reports that Iraya is spoken in the following municipalities of northern Mindoro island; Mindoro Occidental Province: Paluan, Abra de Ilog, northern Mamburao, and Santa Cruz municipalities; Mindoro Oriental Province: Puerto Galera and San Teodoro municipalities (Wiki).

Ethnologue: iry.

1912: see under MANGYAN LANGUAGES.

[IRISH (pre-1850)] Irish (Gaeilge), also referred to as Gaelic or Irish Gaelic, is a Goidelic language of the Indo-European language family originating in Ireland and historically spoken by the Irish people. Irish is spoken as a first language by a small minority of Irish people, and as a second language by a rather larger group of non-native speakers. Irish enjoys constitutional status as the national and first official language of the Republic of Ireland, and is an officially recognised minority language in Northern Ireland. It is also among the official languages of the European Union. The public body Foras na Gaeilge is responsible for the promotion of the language throughout the island of Ireland. Irish was the predominant language of the Irish people for most of their recorded history, and they brought it with them to other regions, notably Scotland and the Isle of Man, where Middle Irish gave rise to Scottish Gaelic and Manx respectively. It has the oldest vernacular literature in Western Europe (Wiki).

Ethnologue: gle. Alternate Names: Erse, Gaelic Irish, Irish Gaelic.

1817: [LILLY] Sanas Gaoidhilge-Sagsbhearla = An Irish-English dictionary, containing upwards of twenty thousand words that have never appeared in any former Irish lexicon. With copious quotations from the most esteemed ancient and modern writers, to elucidate the meaning of obscure words; and numerous comparisons of the Irish words with those of similar orthography, sense or sound, in the Welsh and Hebrew languages. In their proper places in the dictionary, are inserted, the Irish names of our indigenous plants, with the names by which they are commonly known in English and Latin. The Irish words are first given in the original letter, and again in Italic ... To which is annexed, a compendious Irish grammar / By Edward O'Reilly. Dublin, Printed by John Barlow ..., 1817. [8], 28, iii, [1], [508] p.; 28 cm. Earliest ed. cited in BM 176:112. With the armorial bookplate of George Bellas Greenough, cf. Franks bequest, nos. 12713-12714. Bound in contemporary half calf and paste-paper boards, black leather spine label, edges sprinkled blue.

[IRULA] Irula is a Dravidian language spoken by the Irulas who inhabit the area of the Nilgiri mountains, in the states of Tamil Nadu and Karnataka, India. It is written in the Tamil script (Wiki).

Ethnologue: iru. Alternate Names: Erukala, Irava, Irulan, Irular, Irular Mozhi, Irulavan, Iruliga, Iruligar, Kad Chensu, Korava.

1979: [LILLYbm] Phonology of Irula with vocabulary, R. Perialwar. Annamalainagar: Annamalai University, 1979. Original blue and white wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [8] 1 2-233 234-240. First edition. Series: Annamalai University. Department of Linguistics, Publication no. 64. Irula-English, pp. [113]-229, with bibliography, pp. [230]-233. First substantial vocabulary of the language.

"At present the Nilagiri Irulas do not live in the mountains proper but dwell in lower jungle slopes at an elevation below 4000 feet.... These Irula villages are surrounded by coffee and tea plantations and thick forests.... Irulas are bilinguals. They speak Tamil, Irula, and Badaga languages. ... Generally they do not speak Irula in the presence of non-Irulas. Due to their social insecurity and inferiority complex they think that their 'speech' is not language. They get their education in Tamil.... Until the middle of this century Irulas were a food-gathering tribe. Now they are forced to sell their physical labour to the estate owners. ... The Irulas cherish their culture and traditions.... It will not be fair to disrupt their culture... and [to] impose or implant our own social standards will be a cruel joke played on a happy and innocent tribe, however socially or economically backward they may be.... A sympathetic and imaginative approach which will not alienate them further is the need of the hour" (Introduction).

[ISHKASHMI] Ishkashimi is an Iranian language. Its distribution is in the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Province in Tajikistan, Badakhshan Province in Afghanistan and Chitral region of Pakistan. The total number of speakers is c. 2500, most of whom are now dispersed throughout Tajikistan and Afghanistan and small villages within the vicinity. There are about 1500 speakers in Afghanistan mostly in villages around Ishkashim. Tajikistan has roughly 1000 speakers in Ryn village and 360 in Sumjin village. About 400 still live in the village of Ryn on the border with Afghanistan near the town of Ishkoshim. Based on these numbers, Ishkashimi is threatened to becoming critically endangered or extinct in the next 100 years whereas other significant languages are being spoken in schools, homes, etc. Ishkashimi is closely related to Zebaki and Sanglechi (in Afghanistan) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: isk. Alternate Names: Eshkashimi, Ishkashim, Ishkashmi.

1920: see under INDO-IRANIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1929: see under INDO-IRANIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1938: see under INDO-IRANIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1959: [LILLYbm] Ishkashimskii ōzyk: ocherk fonetiki i grammatiki, teksty i slovar', by T.N. Pakhalina. Moskva: Izd-vo Akademii nauk SSSR, 1959. Original tan quarter-cloth and tan paper over boards, lettered in blind, and reddish-brown. 256 pp. First edition. Ishkashmi texts with Russian translations and, pp. 176-[255], an extensive Ishkashmi-Russian vocabulary. First Russian vocabulary of the language. From the library of Carleton T. Hodge. Second copy: IUW.

[ISLEÑO SPANISH DIALECT, ST. BERNARD PARISH, LOUISIANA] The Isleños of Louisiana are an ethnic group living in the U.S. state of Louisiana, consisting in people of primarily Canarian Spanish descent. Most of its members are descendants of settlers from the Canary Islands who settled in Spanish Louisiana during the 18th century, between 1778 and 1783. The term can also informally be applied to anyone of Canarian descent or to a Canarian immigrant living in Louisiana. This term is to be distinguished from the term "Isleños", which refers to people of Canarian descent now living in any country of the Americas. The Isleños in Louisiana make up four communities that speak dialects of Spanish, these include the Isleños of Saint Bernard Parish who have managed to preserve their culture as well as their dialect of Canarian Spanish, although none of the younger generation speak more than a few words; the Brulis, who live in scattered households in southern Louisiana and speak a dialect with French loan words; and the Adaeseños in the Natchitoches and Sabine parishes who speak a very similar dialect with loan words from the Nahuatl language of Mexico. The Isleño communities of Saint Bernard parish have also preserved the Spanish Canarian dialect spoken from the 18th century to present times, although it is in danger of dying out with the last speakers among the elderly segment of the population (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists Canary Islands Spanish (Isleño) as a dialect of Spanish. It has no special listing for the dialects spoken by the Isleños in Louisiana.

1950: [LILLYbm] The Spanish Dialect in St. Bernard Parish, Louisiana, by Raymond R. MacCurdy. Albuquerque: The University of New Mexico Press, 1950.

Original gray wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. 88 pp. First edition. Not in Zaubmüller. Spanish dialect-English vocabulary, pp. 48-88. First extensive vocabulary of this dialect.

"It is hoped that this study will shed some light on a little-known American-Spanish dialect, long obscured in the shadows of the bayous of Louisiana.

[ISNAG] Isnag (also called Isneg) is a language spoken by around 40,000 Isnag people of Apayao Province in the Cordillera Administrative Region in the northern Philippines. Around 85% of Isnag are capable of reading the Isnag language. Many Isnag speakers also use Ilokano (Wiki).

Ethnologue: isd. Alternate Names: Apayao, Dibagat-Kabugao-Isneg, Isneg, Maragat.

1972: [LILLYbm] Isneg-English Vocabulary, by Morice Vanoverbergh. [Honolulu]: University of Hawaii Press, 1972. Original pale yellow wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [8] 1-2 3- 618 619-622 [2]. First edition. Oceanic Linguistics Special Publication No. 11. Isneg-English, pp. 21-618. This copy inscribed by the author on the half-title: "To Dr. Fred Eggan / With compliments / M. Vanoverbergh," and the ownership signature of the noted anthropologist Fred Eggan on the front cover. Eggan was author, among others of Social organization of the western Pueblos (1950), Social anthropology of North American tribes (1955), Selected bibliography of the Philippines: topically arranged and annotated (1956), and Essays in social anthropology and ethnology (1975). First dictionary of this language. Second copy: IUW.

[ISRAELI SIGN LANGUAGE] Israeli Sign Language, or ISL, is the most commonly used sign language in the deaf community of Israel. Some other sign languages are also used in Israel, among them Al-Sayyid Bedouin Sign Language. The history of ISL goes back to 1873 in Germany, where Marcus Reich, a German Jew, opened a special school for Jewish deaf children. At the time, it was considered one of the best of its kind, which made it popular with Jewish deaf children from all over the world as well as non-Jews. In 1932 several teachers from this school opened the first school for Jewish deaf children in Jerusalem. The sign language used in the Jerusalemite school was influenced by the German Sign Language (DGS), but other sign languages or signing systems brought by immigrants also contributed to the emerging language, which started out as a pidgin. A local creole gradually emerged, which became ISL. ISL still shares many features and vocabulary items with DGS, although it is too far apart today to be considered a dialect of the latter. During the 1940s ISL became the language of a well-established community of Jewish deaf people in Jerusalem and Tel Aviv. Today ISL is the most used and taught sign language in Israel, and serves as the main mode of communication for most deaf people in Israel, including Jewish, Muslim and Christian Arabs, Druze, and Bedouins. Some Arab, Druze, and Bedouin towns and villages have sign languages of their own. In addition to ISL, there is also Hebrew manually coded language used as a tool to teaching deaf children the Hebrew language, and for communication between deaf and hearing people (Wiki).

Ethnologue: isr. Alternate Names: ISL.

1977: [IUW] A new dictionary of sign language employing the Eshkol-Wachmann movement notation system, by Einya Cohen, Lila Namir, I. M. Schlesinger. The Hague:

Mouton, 1977. 455 p.: ill.; 25 cm. Series: Approaches to semiotics, 50. Sign-to-English, pp. 123-433, and an English-to-Sign index, pp.439-455.

"Remarkably little scientific investigation of the phenomenon of sign language has been made, and those few languages which have been the subject of recent study tend to make extensive use of finger-spelling. In Israel, however, up to the time of writing, finger-spelling has not been used. The Israeli sign language is thus maximally independent of spoken language, and in consequence is of special linguistic interest. The present work is the first dictionary to be compiled for this language" (About this Dictionary, p. [15]).

[ISU] Isu is a Grassfields Bantu language of Cameroon (Wiki).

Ethnologue: szv. Alternate Names: Bimbia, Isubu, Isuwu, Su, Subu.

ca. 1848: [LILLY] [Portion of a manuscript dictionary, by Joseph Merrick]. Ca. 1849. An original manuscript of a section of an English-Isubu dictionary, covering the letters I-MO. Attributed to Jamaican Baptist missionary Joseph Merrick, whose English-Isubu dictionary (see below), was published ca. 1855, and consisted only of the letters A-I. The manuscript comprises 68 partially sewn pages with one loose leaf, 7 ½ x 4 ½ inches in size. Written in black ink on white papers without watermark. Numerous corrections and marginal notes throughout. "The manuscript would have been written between Merrick's arrival in Africa in 1843 and his death in 1849. Joseph Merrick was the son of Richard Merrick, a Jamaican, and both became missionaries of the Baptist Missionary Society. Richard stayed in Jamaica where he died in 1844, his son Joseph went to Africa in 1843 with John Clarke, the Baptist missionary and author of Specimens of Dialects (see above under African Languages and Dialects: Polyglot). After staying at Fernando Po he went to the Cameroons River where he stationed himself at Bimbia and learnt the Isubu tongue. He set up a printing press there and published religious works in that language. He died in 1849 while compiling his dictionary of the Isusbu language, which was later published in Bibmia by his co-missionary, Aflred Sake" (bookseller's description: Michael Graves-Johnston, 2010).

ca. 1855: [LILLY] [caption title] A dictionary of the Isubu tongue: Part I—English and Isubu, [by Joseph Merrick]. [N.p., ca. 1855]. 384 pp.; 17 cm. No separate title page. Contents: pt. 1. English and Isubu. (A-Is). Contemporary half-leather and marbled paper over boards. With the book-plate of the Church Missionary Society Library. Manuscript note in ink above caption title on first page: "By the late Rev. S. Merrick, R.M.S.". English-Isubu [Isu], pp. 1-384, ends with the entry for "isolated." British Library entry indicates this was edited by A.J. Saker. First partial dictionary of Isu.

[ITAWIT] Itawis (also Itawit or Tawit as the endonym) is a Northern Philippine language spoken by the Itawis people and is closely related to the Ibanag and Ilocano. Itawis is spoken by the Itawis people of Northern Luzon who inhabit the province of Cagayan Valley. Their range is from the lower Chico and Matalag rivers. In many towns by these rivers, Itawis are found with Ibanags, and speak Ibanag as well as an example of linguistic adaptation. Speakers of Itawis and Ibanag can easily understand each other because of the close relationship of their languages. The Itawis are linguistically and culturally very closely related to the Ibanag (Wiki).

Ethnologue: itv. Alternate Names: Itawes, Itawis, Tawit.

1976: [LILLYbm] Itawis-English Wordlist with English-Itawis Finderlist, by James A. Tharp & Mateo C. Natividad. New Haven, Conn.: Human Relations Area Files, 1976. Original stiff red wrappers, with a white label on front cover, printed in black, and an unprinted brown cloth spine. Ff. [I] i ii-xi xii, I 2-151. First edition. Itawis-English, ff. [1]-67, and English-Itawis, ff. 68-151. Second copy: IUW.

"Itawis is the mother tongue of many of the residents of seven towns in the southern and western parts of Cagayan Province, northeastern Luzon, Philippines... Apparently, this work is the first attempt at Itawis lexicography... We hope that this work may serve as a basis for more comprehensive Itawis dictionaries in the future" (Preface).

[ITELMEN] Itelmen (autonym: itənmən) or Western Itelmen, formerly known as Western Kamchadal, is a language of the Chukotko-Kamchatkan family spoken on the western coast of the Kamchatka Peninsula. Fewer than a hundred native speakers, mostly elderly, in a few settlements in the southwest of Koryak Autonomous Okrug, remained in 1993. The 2002 Census counted 3,180 ethnic Itelmen, virtually all of whom are now monolingual in Russian. However, there are attempts to revive the language, and it is being taught in a number of schools in the region. (Western) Itelmen is the only surviving Kamchatkan language. It has two dialects, Sedanka and Xajrjuzovo (Ukā) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: itl. Alternate Names: Itelymem, Kamchadal, Kamchatka, Western Itelmen.

1969: [IUW] Dictionary of Western Kamchadal, by Dean S. Worth. Berkeley, University of California Press, 1969. vii, 320 p. 27 cm. Library binding. University of California publications in linguistics; v. 59. "Kamchadal-English Dictionary," pp. 7-296, "English-Kamchadal Root List," pp. 299-320. First dictionary of this language.

"Although the study of the Kamchadal language dates back to the first half of the eighteenth century, the vocabulary of this language has never been studied in any detail, and, indeed, with the exception of a few simple word lists of varying length and reliability, it has not been recorded... [The present dictionary, within limits that have been described] is exhaustive. Barring error and oversight, every word that has ever been recorded for Western Kamchadal will be found in this volume... The primary source for the dictionary has been the lexical material contained in the fiarty-one folk tales published in Kamchadal Texts Collected by W. Jochelson" (Introduction).

2008: [IUW] Свод камчадальской лексики по памятникам XVIII в., О.А. Мудрак. Svod kamchadal'skoj leksiki po pamiatnikam XVIII v., O.A. Mudrak. Москва: Восточная литература РАН, 2008. Moskva: Vostochnaia literatura RAN, 2008. 287 p.: facsim.; 23 cm. Original yellow and blue-gray illustrated paper over boards, lettered in black. Includes bibliographical references (p. 18-19). Russian-Itelmen, incorporating earlier word-lists from the 18th century. Does not appear to take notice of Worth's dictionary of 1969.

2011: see under CHUKCHI.

[ITENE] Itene is a Chapacuran language of Bolivia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ite. Alternate Names: Iteneo, Itenez, More.

2001: [IUW] Description phonologique, grammaticale et lexicale du moré, langue amazonienne de Bolivie et du Brésil / door Geralda Angenot-de Lima. [Porto Velho: Editora da Universidade Federal de Rondônia, 2001]. 2 v. (958 p., numbered consecutively through vols. 1-2); 21 cm. Library binding, incorporating original front and rear cream wrapper of Vol. 1, lettered in black. Errata (3 leaves) laid in. Originally presented as the author's thesis (doctoral--Universiteit Leiden, 2002). Vol. 1 is the grammar, Vol. 2 is the dictionary: Moré [Itene]-French, pp. 458-588, French-Moré [Itene] thematically arranged, pp. 588-725. Includes bibliographical references (p. 942-958). Summary in French (1 leaf) and Dutch (1 leaf), and "Stellingen" (2 leaves) laid in. Curriculum vitae in French (1 leaf) laid in. Includes extensive preliminary material describing linguistic sources and background to this study.

[ITZA'] Itza' (also Itz.a or Itzaj) is a language in the Yucatecan branch of the Mayan language family (Wiki).

Ethnologue: itz. Alternate Names: Icaiche Maya, Maya, Petén Itza' Maya, Yucatec Maya.

1997: [LILLYbm] Itzaj Maya-Spanish-English Dictionary. Diccionario Maya Itzaj-Español-Ingles, by Charles Andrew Hofling & Félix Fernando Tesucún. Salt Lake City, Utah: The University of Utah Press, 1997. Original orange-red and white wrappers, lettered and decorated in brown and red. Pp. I-vi vii-xiv, 1-910 [4]. First edition. Issued only in wrappers. All preliminary material in both English and Spanish. Itzaj-Spanish-English, pp. 93-700, Mayan root-Spanish-English index, pp. 703-713, Spanish-Itzaj index, pp. 717-810, English-Itzaj index, pp. 813-910, and bibliography, pp. 59-60. First dictionary of the language. Second copy: IUW,

"Itzaj is a member of the Yucatan branch of the Mayan language family, but unlike Yucatec Maya, its robust neighbor to the north, Itzaj has been threatened with extinction most of this century. In 1988, the language was in such a precarious state that I believed immediate action was needed if it were to be fully described.... The dictionary project took on a life of its own and has been completed ahead of the grammar. This is in part a response to the Mayan revitalization movement which began in Guatemala in the late 1980's, and which has involved the Itzajs in the 1990s. Having a dictionary is a top priority among Mayans, and this work is directed to them as well as others interested in the language" (Introduction). Includes references to prior dictionaries of Mayan languages, p. 1.

2000: [IUW] Tojt'an: diccionario maya itzaj-castellano, by Charles Andrew Hofling y Félix Fernando Tesucún. Guatemala, Guatemala C.A.: Cholsamaj, 2000. 827 p.; 28 cm. First edition.

2012: [IUW] Jiilt' an Maya Itza' = vocabulario maya itza'. Ix Tutz: ALMG, Academia de Lenguas Mayas de Guatemala, 2012. 80 pages; 21 x 28 cm Title from cover. Page numbers also in Mayan glyphs.

[IU MIEN] The Iu Mien language (Chinese: 勉語 or 勉方言) is one of the main languages spoken by the Yao people in China, Laos, Vietnam, Thailand and, more recently, the United States in diaspora. Like other Hmong-Mien languages, it is tonal and monosyllabic. Linguists in China consider the dialect spoken in Changdong, Jinxiu Yao Autonomous County, Guangxi to be the standard. However, most Iu Mien people in the West are refugees from Laos, so they primarily speak dialects common in Laos (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ium. Alternate Names: Ban Yao, Highland Yao, Man, Mian, Mien, Mjen, Myen, Pan Yao, Yao, Yiu Mien, Youmian.

1968: [LILLYbm] Yao-English Dictionary, by Sylvia J. Lombard, ed. by Herbert C. Purnell, Jr. Ithaca, NY: Southeast Asia Program, Cornell University, 1968. Original red wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. 364 pp. First edition. Linguistic Series II:: Data Paper: Number 69. Yao-English, pp. 1-316. First English-language dictionary of Yao [Iu Mien]. Second copy: IUW.

"The Yao-English Dictionary ... is only the second dictionary of the Yao language to be published. The first, [a French dictionary published by F.M. Savina in 1926], appeared over forty years ago" (Editor's Introduction). "This dictionary consists largely of material gathered personally through an association with the Yao people of Thailand between 1952 and 1968, under the auspices of the Overseas Missionary Fellowship."

Revised edition 1970: [LILLY] Mienh Dictionary, by Sylvia Lombard with Richard Cushman and Herbert Purnell, Jr. Ithaca, NY: Cornell Mienh Project, 1970, New Script, 1990. 338 pp; 387 pp. Reproduced from typescript. Loose-leaf in blue plastic three-ring binder. Accompanied by various reproduced pages of notes and linguistic materials, presumably for classroom use. First edition was presumably 1970, in different script.

Revised edition 2012: [IUW] An Iu-Mienh-English dictionary: with cultural notes, Herbert C. Purnell, compiler and editor; with assistance of Zanh, Gueix-Fongc, V. Ann Burgess, Greg Aumann. Chiang Mai, Thailand: Silkworm Books: San Francisco, U.S.A.: Center for Lao Studies, 2012. xxxix, 855 p.; 25 cm. Rev. ed. of Mienh-English dictionary. Includes bibliographical references (p. [850]-853). English and Yao.

"This dictionary began in 1987 as a revision of the Yao-English Dictionary (Lombard & Purnell, 1968), the first Iu Mien dictionary published in English. The revision project was undertaken primarily in response to a complaint by an associate working on an advanced Mien language project: 'Every time I look up a word I want, it's either not there or the meaning given doesn't quite fit.' This was not surprising. Producing an IU Mien dictionary in the United States in the mid-1960's was difficult. The compiler (Lombard), a retired missionary, and the editor (Purnell) a graduate student who had lived in a Mien village, had few resources to consult beyond their notebooks and files of 3" x 5" slips of paper containing the words they had each collected during their fieldwork... By 1987 [however], with Mien communities in the West and in Asia experiencing the early effect of modernization... and heightened ethnic awareness, the conditions for undertaking a new dictionary project had become more favorable. Furthermore, there was interest in the Mien communities in the U.S. to have a modern dictionary that would provide some status for the Mien language... Now, nearly twenty-five years later, it is sufficiently completed to be published" (Preface).

[IVATAN] The Ivatan (Ibatan) language, also known as Chirin nu Ibatan ("language of the Ivatan people"), is an Austronesian language spoken in the Batanes Islands. Although the islands are closer to Taiwan than to Luzon, it is not one of the Formosan languages.

Ivatan is one of the Batanic languages, which are perhaps a primary branch of the Malayo-Polynesian family of Austronesian languages. The language of Babuyan Island is a dialect. Babuyan was depopulated by the Spanish and only repopulated at the end of the Spanish era with families from Batan Island (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ivv. Alternate Names: Ivatanen. Ethnologue lists Itbayaten as a dialect of Ivatan.

1966: [LILLY] A Preliminary Itbayaten Vocabulary. By Yukihiro Yamada. [Quezon City]: Institute of Asian Studies, University of the Philippines, 1966. vii, 122 f. + 3 f. 27 cm. Looseleaf, with metal clasp. Itbayaten-English vocabulary, ff. [1]-122, with 3 f. Errata. From the library of the noted linguist Johannes Rahder, with a few of his notes in ink.

"The language referred to as Itbayaten has no writing system. Therefore the people do not know how to spell out each sound unit. Ivataanen is the prestige language among the dialects there. The educated Itbayat people, therefore, write in Ivataanen when necessary. Probably because of the location of the island, Itbayaten has never undergone any comprehensive, scientific analysis, in spite of its importance in comparative linguistics and ethnology.... This research project consists of around 4000 words (together with around 100 phrases and 40 sentences) arranged in alphabetical order" (Introduction).

[IXCATEC] Ixcatec, or Xwja, is a language spoken by the people of the Mexican village of Santa María Ixcatlan, in the northern part of the state of Oaxaca. The Ixcatec language belongs to the Popolocan branch of the Oto-manguean language family. 190 people reported speaking the language in the 2010 census, but according to the Consejo Nacional para la Cultura y las Artes, there were only 8 speakers of the language in 2008. The small number of current speakers is the result of a steady decline over the last 60 years, which can be attributed to anti-illiteracy campaigns by the Mexican government that discouraged the use of indigenous languages, migration from the area to the cities, and the small initial population of speakers of the language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ixc. Alternate Names: Ixcateco, Xwja.

1961: [LILLYbm] Diccionario ixcateco, by Teresa Fernández de Miranda. Mexico City: Instituto Nacional de Antropología e Historia, 1961. Original cream wrappers, lettered and decorated in black and brown. 208 pp. First edition. Dirección de Investigaciones Antropológicas, Publicaciones 7. Ixcateco-Spanish, pp. 19-124; Spanish-Ixcateco, pp. 124-177. This is the first dictionary of Ixcateco. Second copy: IUW.

"Ixcateco is a tonal language spoken, along with Spanish, in Santa María Ixcatlán, Oaxaca, a small village of Mixteca Alta, by those who have been living there for more than seven centuries. This work does not pretend to be a complete dictionary of the Ixcatecan language; it simply consists of the material gathered by the author during a study of the phonology of this idiom" (tr: BM).

[IXIL] Ixil-Maya is one of the 21 different Mayan languages spoken in the Central American country of Guatemala. According to historical linguistic studies Ixil emerged as a separate language sometime around the year 500AD. It is the primary language of the Ixil Community, which comprises the three towns of San Juan Cotzal, Santa María Nebaj, and San Gaspar Chajul in the Guatemalan highlands. There is also an Ixil speaking migrant population in Guatemala City and the United States. Although there are slight differences in vocabulary in the dialects spoken by people in the three different Ixil towns, they are all mutually intelligible and should be considered dialects of a single language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ixl.

1995: [LILLYbm] Aq'b'al elu'l yol vatzsaj = Diccionario ixil. San Juan Cotzal [Guatemala]: El Programa, 1995. Original stiff red wrappers, lettered in black, with color illustration on the front cover and color map on rear cover. Pp. 1-5 6-221 222-224. First edition. 2000 copies. Ixil-Spanish, pp. [9]-218.

"The present Ixil-Spanish dictionary, consisting of 3,165 entries, is the result of a linguistic study undertaken by the members of the Ixil community... The Ixil community includes three villages: Chajul, Cotzal and Nebaj with a population of around 100,000 speakers; each village with its own dialect.... It is a great honor for the Ixil community to contribute the first bilingual dictionary (Ixil-Spanish)" (Preface, tr: BM).

1996: [LILLYbm] A' u u' uva'a uva' molel ca ink'a kuyolb'al atz tuch' yolb'al castiia. Diccionario ixil de Chajul-espanol, espanol-ixil de Chajul, by Dwight David Jewett & Marcos Willis. [Guatemala]: Instituto Linguistico de Verano, 1996. Original orange wrappers, lettered and illustrated in white. Pp. [2] i ii-lvii lviii, 1-418 419-420. First edition. Ixil-Spanish, pp. 1-311, and Spanish-Ixil, pp. 313-416.

1998: [LILLYbm] Diccionario ixil de San Gaspar Chajul. Ixil-espanol, by Lucas Asicona Ramirez. Guatemala: Proyecto Linguistico Francisco Marroquin, 1998. Original gray blue wrappers, lettered in white, with color illustrations on front and rear covers. Pp. [2] 1-6 7-201 202. First edition. 1000 copies. Ixil-Spanish, pp. 1-201. Second copy: IUW.

1999: [LILLYbm] Diccionario del idioma ixil. Ixil Español. [Cover title] Diccionario del idioma ixil de Santa María Nebaj, by Antonio Cedillo Chel & Juan Ramirez. Antigua, Guatemala: Proyecto Lingüístico Francisco Marroquin, 1998. Original yellow and gray wrappers, lettered in red and black, with full color photographs on front and rear cover. Pp. [2] 1-4 5-9, <sup>2</sup>1-384 385-386. First edition. 1000 copies. Ixil-Spanish, pp. 1-384. Second copy: IUW.

2003: [IUW] Yol tu kuyolboal ixil, Koulboil Yol Twitz Paxil, Tchusboal Yolboal Mayabø Ixil = Vocabulario ixil, Academia de Lenguas Maya de Guatemala, Comunidad Lingüística Ixil. Guatemala: Koulboil Yol Twitz Paxil, 2003. 163 p.; 22 cm. Ixil and Spanish; introd. in Ixil and Spanish.

[IZERE] Izere is a dialect continuum of Plateau languages in Nigeria. According to Blench (2008), it is four languages, though Ethnologue does not distinguish NW and NE Izere. The Cen and Ganang varieties are spoken by only a couple thousand each (Wiki).

Ethnologue: izr. Alternate Names: Afizare, Afizarek, Afizere, Afudelek, Afusare, Feserek, Fezere, Fizere, Hill Jarawa, Izarek, Izer, Jarawa, Jarawan Dutse, Jari, Jos-Zarazon.

1979: [LILLYbm] "Erzählungen in der Sprache der Afuzare (Jos-Plateau, Nordnigeria), by Jilke Meyer-Bahlburg, in: Afrika und Übersee: Sprachen. Kulturen, Vol. 62, no.3 (7 December 1979), pp. 61-190. Original cream wrappers, lettered and decorated in brown. Zarek [Izere]-German, pp. 179-185, and German-Zarek, pp. 185-190.

[IZII] Izi (Izii, Izzi) is an Igbo language spoken in Ebonyi state in Nigeria. It forms a dialect cluster with closely related Ikwo, Ezza, and Mgbo (Wiki).

Ethnologue: izz. Alternate Names: Izi, Izzi.

1997: [IUW] Wordlist English-Izii. 3rd expanded ed. Abakaliki, Ebonyi State, Nigeria: Abakaliki Literacy and Translation Committee, 1997. 65 p.; 21 cm. Original multi-colored wrappers, lettered in red and green. English-Izii, pp. 1-5. No preliminary material is included, simply the word list.

[IZON] Izon (Izɔn), also known as (Central–Western) Ijo, Ijaw, Izo, and Uzo, is the dominant Ijaw language, spoken by a majority of the Ijaw people of Nigeria. There are over two dozen dialects, all mutually intelligible, of which the most important are Gbanran, Ekpetiama and Kolokuma. Kolokuma is the language of education. In June 2013, the Izon Fie instructional book and audio CDs were launched at a ceremony attended by officials of the Government of Bayelsa State (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ijc. Alternate Names: Central-Western Ijo, Ijaw, Ijo, Izo, Uzo.

1983: [IUW] Short Izɔn-English dictionary, edited by Kay Williamson and A.O. Timitimi; selected from material compiled by F.A. Aganaba ... [et al.]. [Port Harcourt, Nigeria]: University of Port Harcourt Press, 1983. lxviii, 222 p.; 22 cm. Delta series; no. 3.

1994: [IUW] Izɔn tolumɔ = Learn Izɔn, by O.A. Egberipou and Kay Williamson. Port Harcourt, Nigeria: Riverside Communications, 1994. iv, 82 p.: ill.; 25 cm. Includes index.

[JADGALI] Jadgali is a Jat language spoken in Pakistan and Iran (Wiki).

Ethnologue: jdg. Alternate Names: Jat, Jatgali, Jatki.

1910: [LILLY] Jatu Glossary, by E. Joseph. Special number of: Journal & Proceedings of the Asiatic Society of Bengal. Vol. VI, No. 12. Extra No. December, 1910. Calcutta: Printed at the Baptist Mission Press, 1911. Original Wrpps, Roy.8vo. 693-874 pp.

[JAHANKA] Jahanka is a Manding language of Guinea. It is partially intelligible with Mandinka. (The Jahanka of Senegal and Bissau is a dialect of Kassonke) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: jad. Alternate Names: Diakhanke, Diakkanke, Dyakanke, Jahanque, Jahonque, Jaxanka.

1982: see under MANDINKA.

[JAKALTECO] The Jakalteek /ha:kəl'tek/ language (Jacalteco), also called Popti', is a Mayan language of Guatemala spoken by 9,000 Jakalteek people in the department of Huehuetenango, and some 500 the adjoining part of Chiapas in southern Mexico. The name Popti' for the language is used by the Academia de Lenguas Mayas de Guatemala and the Guatemalan Congress (Wiki).

Ethnologue: jac. Alternate Names: Jakalteko-Popti', Popti'.

1996: [LILLYbm] Diccionario del idioma jakalteko, by José Ramírez Pérez, Andrés Montejo, and Baltasar Díaz Hurtado. La Antigua Guatemala: Proyecto Lingüístico Francisco Marroquín, 1996. Original brown and orange illustrated wrappers, lettered in white, brown and yellow. Pp. [2] 1-7 8-11 12, <sup>2</sup>1-343 344-348. First edition. 1,000 copies. Jacalteca-Spanish, pp. 1-335, as well a Spanish words taken over into Jacalteca in more recent times, pp. 337-343. Second copy: IUW.

"The position of Mayan languages is difficult one, and in Guatemala in particular it has constituted one of the major enigmas of modern linguistics. Realizing that the basis of a response to this problem would require a zealous investigation of facts, formulations and experimental results, several persons have participated in compiling this dictionary of Jacalteca Mayan.... The number of speakers amounts to some 32,000" (Introduction, tr: BM).

1998: [LILLYbm] Diccionario Hak'xub'al-Kastiya. Español-Jacalteko. Un diccionario de hablantes, by Eleanore frankle Hecht. Mexico City: Potrerillos Editores, 1998. Original red and black wrappers, lettered in white and black. Pp. i-v vi-xx, 1-2 3-229 230-232. First edition. Jacalteco-Spanish, pp. 17-120, and Spanish-Jacalteco, pp. 129-225. There appears to be only one prior dictionary of Jacalteca, also Spanish, by Christopher Day, an otherwise unpublished manuscript from the 1970's.

[JAMAICAN CREOLE ENGLISH] Jamaican Patois, known locally as Patois (Patwa or Patwah) and called Jamaican Creole by linguists, is an English-based creole language with West African influences (a majority of loan words of Akan origin) spoken primarily in Jamaica and the Jamaican diaspora. The language developed in the 17th century, when slaves from West and Central Africa were exposed to, learned and nativized the vernacular and dialectal forms of English spoken by the slaveholders: British English, Scots and Hiberno-English. It exhibits a gradation between more conservative creole forms and forms virtually identical to Standard English (i.e. metropolitan Standard English). Some Jamaicans refer to their language as patois. The term patois comes from Old French, patois "local or regional dialect" (earlier "rough, clumsy, or uncultivated speech"), possibly from the verb patoier, "to treat roughly", from pate "paw", from Old Low Franconian *patta "paw, sole of the foot" + -ois, a pejorative suffix. The term may have arisen from the notion of a clumsy or rough manner of speaking. Jamaican pronunciation and vocabulary are significantly different from English, despite heavy use of English words or derivatives. Jamaican Patois exists mostly as a spoken language. Although standard British English is used for most writing in Jamaica, Jamaican Patois has been gaining ground as a literary language for almost a hundred years. Claude McKay published his book of Jamaican poems Songs of Jamaica in 1912. Patois and English are frequently used for stylistic contrast (codeswitching) in new forms of internet writing (Wiki).

Ethnologue: jam. Alternate Names: Bongo Talk, Jamiekan, Limon Creole English, Patois, Patwa, Quashie Talk, Western Caribbean Creole.

1967: [LILLYbm] Dictionary of Jamaican English, ed. by F.G. Cassidy & R.B. Le Page. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1967. Original green cloth over boards, with label stamped in black, lettered and decorated in gold; d.j. blue and white, lettered in black and white. 490 pp. First edition. Ex-library copy, withdrawn from the Northumberland County Technical College in Ashington.

"[This dictionary] is the first historical, descriptive and etymological dictionary of the English language in all the forms it has taken in Jamaica from 1655, when English was first introduced, until 1962 when work was finished...Jamaican English runs the gamut from standard educated usage... to dialectal folk usage, much of which has never been written down before. The latter, customarily called 'the dialect' in Jamaica... is not 'dialect' in the sense [of] ... a local dialect in England... The better term for Jamaican dialect is 'creole,' the term used by linguists today, which points to the origin of this folk speech as an amalgam of some features of English with others drawn from a large variety of African languages... It may be wondered why two such different types, the language of the educated and that of the folk, might not have been separated in two dictionaries... The answer is that just because there is one continuous, gradual scale of useage between the extremes... any sharp division... would have had to be arbitrary."

Second edition 1980: [IUW] Dictionary of Jamaican English, edited by F. G. Cassidy and R. B. Le Page. Cambridge; New York: Cambridge University Press, 1980. Second edition. lxiv, 509 p.; 25 cm. Bibliography: p. xvii-xxix.

[JANGSHUNG] Jangshung is spoken in Morang tahsil, Kinnaur district, Himachal Pradesh (in Jangi, Lippa, and Asrang villages) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: jna. Alternate Names: Central Kinnauri, Jangiam, Jangrami, Thebarskad, Thebor, Thebör Skadd, Zangram, Zhang-Zhung.

1965: [IUW] Sgra yi don sdeb Snañ gsal sgron me bžugs so: Tibetan Žang žung dictionary / [Ñi-ma-grags-pas bkod]. [Delhi: Bonpo Foundation, 1965]. 64 p.: 2 maps (folded); 25 cm. Nyi-ma-bstan-'dzin, Mkhan-chen, 1813-1875. Sañs-rgyas kyi bstan rtsis No mtshar nor bu'i phreñ ba. Nyi-ma-bstan-'dzin, Mkhan-chen, 1813-1875. Bstan rtsis kyi rnam bśad mthoñ ba'i dga' ston. Tibetan-Jangshung dictionary. In Tibetan; pref. in English. Also contains the Bstan rtsis and the Bstan rtsis kyi rnam bśad of Ñi-ma-bstan-'dzin. This is the first dictionary of Jangshung.

1968: [IUW] The Zhang-zhung language. A grammar and dictionary of the unexplored language of the Tibetan Bonpos, by Erik Haarh. Århus og København, Universitetsforlaget i Aarhus og Munksgaard, 1968. 43 p. 25 cm. Library binding incorporating original tan front wrapper, lettered in black. Jangshung-Tibetan-English, pp. [27]-43. "The ... vocabulary presents the complete material of the 'Tibetan Žang Žung Dictionary', Delhi 1965 [see above]. The words are placed following the order of the Tibetan syllabary in order to facilitate the comparison with other dictionaries and vocabularies of Tibetan languages" (p. [27]).

"In spite of [its] important position in the Tibetan culture our knowledge of the Zhang-zhung language is very deficient. It has been restricted to a few book-titles and a text in the India Office.... But, even including this text from Turkestan, the material for any decisive study has always been too limited. But recently a 'Tibetan Žang Žung Dictionary' was edited by the Bon-po Association in Delhi in 1965... A complete survey of the vocabulary of the Dictionary with regard to linguistic affinity is not possible today on account of our deficient knowledge of the languages which must be included. But valuable indications might be obtained through a fragmentary study..."

1984: [IUW] Indian scripts in Tibet / reproduced by Lokesh Chandra from the collection of Prof. Raghuvira. New Delhi: Mrs. Sharada Rani, 1982. 73 p.: ill., facsim.; 28 x 38 cm. Śata-piṭaka series v. 297. In Tibetan, Sanskrit and Mongolian in various scripts; pref. in English. Includes bibliographical references. Jangshung-Tibetan dictionary.

2008: [IUW] A lexicon of Zhangzhung and Bonpo terms / compiled by Pasar Tsultrim Tenzin, Changru Tritsuk Namdak Nyima, Gatsa Lodroe Rabsal; edited by Yasuhiko Nagano, Samten G. Karmay; translated by Heather Stoddard. Osaka: National Museum of Ethnology, 2008. vi, 323 p.; 26 cm. Senri ethnological reports, 1340-6787; 76. Bon studies; 11. Includes bibliographical references (p. vi) and indexes. English, Tibetan, and Zhangzhung.

2010: [IUW] Gna' bo'i Žaṅ Bod tshig mdzod / Dge-bśes Blo-gros-rab-gsal gyis gtso sgrig byas. Par gži dan po. Lanzhou: Kan-su'u Mi-rigs Dpe-skrun-khañ, 2010. 10, 546 pages: color illustrations, portraits; 25 cm. Jangshung-Tibetan dictionary.

[JAPANESE: pre-1800] Japanese (日本語 Nihongo?, [nihōŋgo] or [nihōŋŋo]) is an East Asian language spoken by about 125 million speakers, primarily in Japan, where it is the national language. It is a member of the Japonic (or Japanese-Ryukyuan) language family, whose relation to other language groups, particularly to Korean and the suggested Altaic language family, is debated. Little is known of the language's prehistory, or when it first appeared in Japan. Chinese documents from the 3rd century recorded a few Japanese words, but substantial texts did not appear until the 8th century. During the Heian period (794–1185), Chinese had considerable influence on the vocabulary and phonology of Old Japanese. Late Middle Japanese (1185–1600) saw changes in features that brought it closer to the modern language, as well as the first appearance of European loanwords. The standard dialect moved from the Kansai region to the Edo (modern Tokyo) region in the Early Modern Japanese period (early 17th century–mid-19th century). Following the end in 1853 of Japan's self-imposed isolation, the flow of loanwords from European languages increased significantly. English loanwords in particular have become frequent, and Japanese words from English roots have proliferated. Japanese has no genetic relationship with Chinese, but it makes extensive use of Chinese characters, or kanji (漢字), in its writing system, and a large portion of its vocabulary is borrowed from Chinese. Along with kanji, the Japanese writing system primarily uses two syllabic (or moraic) scripts, hiragana (ひらがな or 平仮名) and katakana (カタカナ or 片仮名). Latin script is used in a limited fashion, such as for imported acronyms, and the numeral system uses mostly Arabic numerals alongside traditional Chinese numerals (Wiki).

Ethnologue: jpn.

1630: [LILLY] Vocabulario de Iapon declarado primero en portugues por los Padres de la Compania de Iesus de aquel reyno, y agora en Castellano en el Colegio de Santo Thomas de Manila. Manila: Thomas Pinpin, y Iacinto Magaullua, 1630. [2], 316 leaves; 18 cm. Based on the Portuguese-Japanese dictionary Vocabulario da lingua de Iapam, of João Rodrigues, published Nagasaki, 1603. Errors in foliation: no. 112 repeated and no. 288 omitted. From the library of Bernardo Mendel. Bound in red morocco with gold dentelles; patterned paper case. References: Backer-Sommervogel, VI, col. 1970. Medina, J.T. Impr. en Manila, 40.

[JAVANESE] Javanese /dʒɑ:və'ni:z/ (basa jawa; IPA: [bɔsɔ dʒɔwɔ]) (cara jawa; IPA: [tjɔrɔ dʒɔwɔ]) is the language of the Javanese people from the central and eastern parts of the island of Java, in Indonesia. There are also pockets of Javanese speakers in the northern coast of western Java. It is the native language of more than 98 million people (more than 42% of the total population of Indonesia). Javanese is one of the Austronesian languages, but it is not particularly close to other languages and is difficult to classify. Its closest relatives are the neighbouring languages such as Sundanese, Madurese and Balinese. Most speakers of Javanese also speak Indonesian, the standardized form of Malay spoken in Indonesia, for official and commercial purposes as well as a means to communicate with non-Javanese speaking Indonesians. There are speakers of Javanese in Malaysia (concentrated in the states of Selangor and Johor) and Singapore. Some people of Javanese descent in Suriname (the Dutch colony of Surinam until 1975) speak a creole descendant of the language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: jav. Alternate Names: Djawa, Jawa.

1634: see under MALAY.

1817: see under MALAYAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1842: [LILLYbm] Een klein woordenboek der Hollandsche, Engelsche en Javaansche talen: A vocabulary of the Dutch, English and Javanese languages, by G[ottlob] Bruckner. Batavia: Parapattan, 1842. Original? brown unlettered quarter leather and marbled paper over boards. Pp. i-iii iv-xx, 1 2-217 218-222. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Includes classified Dutch-English-Javanese [Gnoko/Krâmâ] word lists, pp. [1]-169, idioms pp. 170-176, and Javanese-Dutch-English lists, pp. 177-214, with errata, pp. [219-220]. This copy with the ink stamp of the Wellington, New Zealand Philosophical Society on front free endpaper and title page. This appears to be one of the earliest examples of printed Javanese script. The earliest Javanese dictionary in Zauhmüller is by Senerpont Domis, published in Samarang in 1827. Second copy: LILLYbm, in 19th century brown half-leather and marbled boards, spine lettered in gold; front cover almost detached; with the book plate of the Bibliotheca Lindesiana.

1847: [LILLYbm] Javaansch-Nederduitsch Woordenboek, compiled by J[ohann] F[riedrich] C[arl] Gericke, enlarged and improved by T[aco] Roorda. Amsterdam: Johannes Müller, 1847. Contemporary brown half-leather and brown marbled paper over boards; spine lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. I-III IV-VII VIII, 1 2-796. First edition. Zauhmüller, col. 215 (listing only the third edition of 1886, erroneously noted as the second edition, and the [4th] edition of 1901). Includes Javanese-Dutch, pp. [1]-772, with additions and corrections, pp. [773]-796.

"The first scholarly Javanese dictionary to be published, preceded by Roorda van Eysinga's two-volume dictionary (Kampen 1834-35) and a few smaller glossaries. Sent by Gericke from Indonesia in four installments, the work was thoroughly revised and supplemented by Roorda and finally published in 1847. In its three subsequent editions it was to be the standard lexicon for the Javanese language, to be replaced only by the concise lexicon of Pigeaud in 1938 [see below]. Fasseur p. 86, 108; Uldenbeck 47. A small type of Javanese characters are used, designed by Roorda in 1845 and cut by Hubner at the Enschené foundry. Collation:  $\pi^4$  1-99<sup>4</sup> 100<sup>2</sup>" (Smitskamp Cat. 622).

Second, enlarged edition 1875: [LILLYbm] Javaansch-Nederduitsch Handwoordenboek, by J[ohann] F[riedrich] C[arl] Gericke, continued by T[aco] Roorda and A[lbert] C[ornelius] Vreede. Amsterdam: Johannes Müller, 1875. ?Original gray cloth over boards (worn), unlettered. Pp. [4] I-III IV-VI VII-VII, 1 2-1051 1052. Second, enlarged edition. Zauhmüller, col. 215 (listing only the third edition of 1886, erroneously noted as the second edition, and the [4th] edition of 1901 [see below]). Includes Javanese-Dutch, pp. [1]-1036, with supplementary emendations, pp. [1037]-1051. The first edition of Gericke's dictionary was published in 1847, while the first wordlist was published with a grammar by Gericke in 1831. Gericke translated and published stories from the Old and New Testaments in Javanese in 1855.

"Roorda devoted the last years of his life (1869-1874) nearly entirely to bringing out this second edition.... His most important source of new data was the manuscript of the Javanese-Dutch dictionary made by Winter and Wilkens which was put at his disposal after the death of Winter in 1859. Roorda did not live to see his dictionary published. At his death in 18974 more than 80% of the book was printed. It was completed by A. C. Vreede and others with the assistance of A. B. Cohen Stuart. This edition of 1875 proved to be in many respects a completely new dictionary, not only because of the many new data which could be included, but also because the increase in grammatical knowledge made it possible to organize the lexicoglogical facts in a more satisfactory way than had been possible in 1847" (Uhlenbeck: 1964: 48).

Revised and enlarged [4th] edition 1901: [IUW] Javaansch-Nederlandsch handwoordenboek van J.F.C. Gericke en T. Roorda, verm. en verb. door Dr. A.C. Vreede ... met medewerking van Dr. J.G.H. Gunning. Amsterdam, J. Müller; Leiden E.J. Brill, 1901. 2 v. 27 cm. Zaunmüller, col. 215.

"In 1901 the fourth edition of the Gericke-Roorda lexicon came out. It differed from the preceding impressions mainly by the fact that the valuable and extensive lexicographical material collected by Wilkens from 1859 until his death in 1888 could be incorporated by Breede, who assisted by Gunning, for this edition too served as editor. This led not only to a considerable enlargement of the dictionary but also to an improvement of its reliability" (Uhlenbeck: 1964: 61).

1870: [LILLY] Dictionnaire Javanais-Français, par L'Abbé P. Favre. Vienne: Imprimerie Impériale et Royale, 1870. Pp. [4] I II-IV V VI-VIII I 2-544 545-546. Black cloth, lettered in gold; blind-stamped on front cover: "Foreign Office." With the bookplate of the Foreign Office Library and their withdrawn stamp. With extensive contemporary notes in pencil on preliminary and final blank leaves, and in text. Includes Javanese-French, pp. [1]-544.

"Difficulties of a diverse nature have slowed the publication of this work, destined to fill an important lacuna in the study of living Oriental languages.... As for the composition of this dictionary, it hardly needs be said that, although it is the first such work in French, it is not the first dictionary of Javanese" (Preface, tr: BM). The author lists the three earlier Javanese dictionaries in Dutch and discusses them as background to his own work, whose primary purpose is pedagogical, and intended to complement the author's Javanese grammar and planned chrestostomy.

1883: [LILLYbm] Supplement op het Javaansch-Nederduitsch handwoordenboek van Gericke-Roorda, by P[ieter] Jansz (1820-1904). Samarang; Amsterdam: G.C.T. van Dorp; Scheltema & Holkema's Boekhandel, 1883. Contemporary unlettered green quarter-cloth and tan paper over boards, with original wrappers preserved Pp. I-V VI VII-VIII 1 2-281 282. First edition. Not in Zaubmüller. Includes Javanese-Dutch, pp. [1]-279, with errata, pp. [279]-281.

1892: [LILLYbm] Praktische Grammatik der Javanischen Sprache mit Lesestücken, einem javanisch-deutschen und deutsch-javanischen Wörterbuch, by H[anns] Bohatta. Vienna; Pest; Leipzig: A. Hartleben's Verlag, [1892]. Original brown cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. I-VI VII VIII, 1 2-192. First edition. Die Kunst der Polyglottie, 39. Zaubmüller, col. 215 (with 1893 as date in brackets). Includes Indonesian-German, pp. [119]-159, and German-Indonesian, pp. 159-189. Second copy: IUW.

"Up to now only the Dutch and a few French have concerned themselves with the Javanese language...the dictionary contains all the words found in this book, along with their roots and derivatives" (Preface, tr: BM). "Pure Javanese is spoken by the inhabitants to central and eastern Java, while the western part speaks Malay; Balinese is the dialect of the inhabitants of Bali; Madurese is spoken on the small neighboring island of Madura, while the Sundanese dialect is spread across Java itself. Javanese proper is itself not a single unity, but falls into three sub-types: 1. Kromo, polite speech, used with those higher than oneself, particularly kings, princes; 2. Ngoko, familiar speech, used with those lower than oneself...; 3. Madya, used with equals. It has few words of its own and appears at times like an elevated form of Ngoko, at times like a debased form of Kromo" (Introduction, tr: BM).

1893: [LILLYbm] Javaansche woordenlijst bevattende woorden in Midden-Java in gebruik vergeleken met het Javaansch in de residentie Soerakarta, by H. A. de Nooy with the assistance of Mas Padmasoesastra. 's Gravenhage: Nijhoff, 1893. Original pale green wrappers. lettered in black. Pp. I-III IV-V VI-VIII, [1 2-195 196 (numbered in Javanese)]. 25 cm. First edition. Published by Het door het Koninklijk Instituut voor de Taal-, Land- en Volkenkunde van Nederlandsch-Indie. Not in Zaubmüller. Includes a Central Javanese-"Soerkarta" Javanese vocabulary, entirely in Javanaese script, pp. [1]-[195].

1899: [LILLYbm] Nederlandsch-javaansch woordenboek. Vijfde weder vermeerderde druk, by P[ieter] Jansz (1820-1904). Semarang: G. C. T. van Dorp & Co., [1899]. Original gray half-cloth and black cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. I II-VII VIII, 1-441 442. Fifth, enlarged edition. Cf. Zaubmüller, col. 215 (giving date of 1892). Includes Dutch-Javanese, pp. 1-441. Ex-library copy from Johns Hopkins, with the memorial bookplate of Charles Cotton Blacksphear and with his ownership signature in ink on the free endpaper: 'Charles C. Blacksphear | Djokjakarta, Java'. Blacksphear was author of Dravidian art (Mamallapuram: Ellora: Vijayanagar) [Baltimore, Md., 1911]. The first edition of this dictionary was 1851.

1938: [LILLYbm] Javaans-nederlands handwoordenboek, compiled by Th[eodore] [Gauthier] Pigeaud.[1899- ]. Groningen; Batavia: Bij J. B. Wolters uitgevermaatschappij n. v., 1938. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered in gold;;spine lettered and decorated in blind and gold, with black stamped panel lettered in gold.. Pp. I-III IV-XII, 1 2-624. First edition. Zaubmüller, col. 215 (incorrectly dated 1948). Includes Javanese-Dutch, pp.[1]-624. After the earlier major dictionaries by Gericke & Roorda (fourth edition in 1901) and P. Jansz (latest edition in 1913), the Governor-General of the Dutch Indies gave Pigeaud the assignment, in 1925, to bring out a new edition of Gericke & Rooda. The resulting dictionary differs substantially enough to stand as a new work on its own. "[Gericke] was to be the standard lexicon for the Javanese language, to be replaced only by the concise lexicon of Pigeaud in 1938" (Smitskamp Cat. 622). Second copy: IUW.

1948: [LILLYbm] Nederlands-Javaans en Javaans-Nederlands Zakwoordenboekje, voorafgegaan door een kort begrip van de Javaanse spraakkunst, compiled by Th[eodore] [Gauthier] Pigeaud [1899- ]. Groningen: J.B. Wolters, 1948. Original red cloth over boards, lettered in black. Pp. I-V VI-XI XII, I 2-200. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes Dutch-Javanese, pp. [1]-98, and Javanese-Dutch, pp. [101]-200. With ownership signature of Robert R. Jay. Pigeaud also published in 1948 a companion volume to the 1938 edition, entitled Nederlands-Javaans Handwoordenboek.

1961: [IUW] Beginning Javanese, by Elinor Clark Horne. New Haven, Yale University Press, 1961. 560 p. illus. 27 cm. Library binding. Yale linguistic series; 3. Includes Javanese-English glossary, pp. 451-510, and English-Javanese glossary, pp. 511-552.

"Beginning Javanese, the first of two volumes, is a basic elementary course. It describes the phonology and presents a complete analysis of the grammar of Javanese. The second volume, Intermediate Javanese, now in preparation, illustrates this material in conversations and stories. The description of Javanese contained in this book was developed in accordance with modern linguistic principles by working directly with native speakers of the language. This kind of presentation has heretofore been unavailable; the few existing grammars of Javanese are written in Dutch along traditional lines, the most recent having been first published in 1930, fifteen years before the establishment of the Indonesian Republic" (Preface).

1963: [IUW] Intermediate Javanese, by Elinor C. Horne, with the assistance of Kustiani and Koentjaraningrat. New Haven, Yale University Press, 1963. xxi, 505 p. illus. 27 cm. Yale linguistic series; 4. "Sequel to Beginning Javanese." Includes Javanese-English glossary, pp. 335-436, and English-Javanese glossary, pp. 437-505.

"All vocabulary items introduced in Intermediate Javanese, including names of persons and places, are listed here; in addition, Ngoko or Kromo equivalents are supplied for words and phrases given in the textual annotations in only one social style" (p. 225).

1967: [IUW] Lehrbuch des modernen Djawanisch, von Hans Herrfurth. Second, unaltered edition. Leipzig: Enzyklopädie, 1967. 259 p.; 22 cm. Original brownish-yellow cloth over boards, lettered in black. Lehrbücher für das Studium der orientalischen und afrikanischen Sprachen; Bd. 9. Includes wordlist of Ngoko [Low Javanese]-Kromo [High Javanese]-German, pp. 125-141, and an index to the Kromo words [High Javanese], pp. [142]-148. Preface dated 1964, probably from the first edition.

1969: [IUW] A concise English-Javanese dictionary, compiled by Moebirman. Djakarta, 1969. 98 p. 21 cm. Original light-brown, black and white decorated paper over boards, with an unprinted black cloth spine. Includes English-Ngoko [Low Javanese]-Kromo [High Javanese] dictionary, pp. 1-98.

"This concise dictionary has been compiled to meet the needs of foreign students of Javanese. As this work is an attempt for the first time of its kind, of course some lacks and shortcomings are to be round.... The words selected in this small volume are those that the foreign student of Javanese is likely to meet in his studies and daily conversation in Central and East Java, where Javanese is still used as the colloquial language by a majority of over eighty million inhabitants. Last, but not least, the compiler wishes to express his thanks to Mr Gennaro Esposito—Italian Embassy, whose great admiration for the Javanese culture in general, and the Javanese language in particular, has made this work possible for practical use" (Introduction, April 1969).

"There are five forms, or grades, of the Javanese language: [1] Ngoko (Low Javanese), used by a superior to an inferior, and by older people when addressing children; [2] Kromo (High Javanese), used by an inferior to a superior, and by children to elders; [3] Madyo, a form between high and low Javanese, and used between people of lower ranks. It is a shortened form of Kromo; [4] Kromo Inggil, a stilted form of Kromo; [5] Boso Kedaton, a super-stilted Kromo used when addressing royalty. Of the above forms, only Ngoko (low) and Kromo (high) are in general use, and the following list shows only those two forms" (page preceding p. 1).

1974: [LILLY] Javanese-English Dictionary, by Elinor Clark Horne. New Haven and London: Yale University Press, 1974. xl, 728 p. 25.3 cm. Original light brown cloth over boards, lettered in gold, with a black stamped label on spine, lettered in gold. First edition. Includes Javanese-English, pp. [1]-728.

"This work is intended to be a general-purpose dictionary of Javanese as it is now used by educated urban speakers from Central Java, the area of the standard language. In Indonesia these are transitional times... reflected linguistically in the daily juxtaposition of Javanese and Indonesian. Educated urban speakers use Indonesian alongside of Javanese as required by the occasion—mainly, in all official situations, or in social situations where non-Javanese Indonesians are present... Any foreigner using a Javanese dictionary these days will also need to keep an Indonesian dictionary hand. My practice here has been, in general, to include only a few commonly used Indonesian words which have largely replaced the corresponding Javanese word (also listed) or for which there is no separate Javanese lexical item..." (Introduction).

2002: [LILLY] Javanese English Dictionary, compiled by Stuart Robson and Singgih Wibisono. Hong Kong: Periplus Editions, 2002. Pale yellow, orange, light blue and dark blue paper over boards, lettered in black and white, with identically colored d.j. Pp. 1-4 5-821 822-824. 22.8 cm. First edition. Includes Javanese-English, pp. 21-821.

"This Javanese English Dictionary provides a complete listing of all current terms used in modern Javanese. With more than 25,000 headwords, it also includes local forms likely to be encountered in travel, specialist terms associated with the traditional arts of the area and obsolete words still to be found in literature" (from the front d.j. flap).

2015: [IUW] Kamus Indonesia-Jawa, by Sutrisno Sastro Utomo. Jakarta: PT Gramedia Pustaka Utama, 2015. 793 pages, 6 unnumbered pages; 23 cm. Indonesian-Javanese dictionary. Includes bibliographical references (page 799).

[JAWE] Jawe (Diahoue, Njawe, Oubatch, Ubach) is one of the Kanak languages spoken in the northern province of the largest island of New Caledonia named Grande Terre (also referred to as mainland New Caledonia). More specifically, Jawe speakers are located along the northeast coast of the island, north of Hienghène and south of Pouébo; primarily in the Cascada de Tao region, Tchambouenne, and in the upper valleys of both sides of the centrally dividing mountain range. Jawe is one of the 33 Melanesian-Polynesian languages legally recognized by New Caledonia and the Kanak people but it is not one of the most widely used languages amongst the Kanak people and French is the predominant and official language in New Caledonia. There are approximately 1000 native or first language Jawe speakers and they account for approximately 1 in 45 people in the northern province, 1 in 99 Kanak people, and 1 in 246 people overall amongst the population of New Caledonia (including the surrounding Loyalty Islands). Due to a loss in usage this language is considered to be in threatened status, but according to a 2009 census the native speaking population is increasing (Wiki).

Ethnologue: jaz. Alternate Names: Diahoue, Njawe, Oubatch, Ubach.

1982: see under MELANESIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[JEAN LANGUAGES] The Jê languages (also spelled Gê, Jean, Ye, Gean), or Jê–Kaingang languages, are spoken by the Gê, a group of indigenous peoples in Brazil (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists 16 separate languages under the Jean family.

1964: [IUW] Material lingüístico Ye, by Johannes Wilbert. Caracas, Editorial Sucre, 1964. 303 p. illus., maps 23 cm. Library binding. Instituto Caribe de Antropología y Sociología. Fundación La Salle de Ciencias Naturales, Caracas. Monografía (Instituto Caribe de Antropología y Sociología); no. 10. III. Spanish-Ye dictionary, pp. 57-258. IV: "Contexto" includes reprints of brief word lists from publications by various earlier authors, with source references to the bibliography (includes the following languages: "Apinaye, Ramcocamecra, Coroa (Cayapo del Norte), Cradaho, Acwe, Shavante, Sherente." Bibliography: p. 301-303.

"The material on which the present work is based was gathered from 37 bibliographical sources, of which 14 were published in German, 12 in Portuguese, 5 in English, 5 in French, and 1 in Latin. From the vocabularies recorded in the sources we have extracted 10, 231 words... a certain number of words were omitted because of particular difficulties that were sui generis in their translation" (p. 9; tr: BM).

[JEBERO] Jebero (Chebero, Xebero, Xihuila) is an indigenous American language spoken by the Jebero people of Peru. It is spoken by only a small number of older adults and belongs to the Cahuapanan family together with Chayahuita (Wiki).

Ethnologue: jeb. Alternate Names: Chebero, Shiwilu, Xebero, Xihuila.

2016: [IUW] Eighteenth century Xebero: Mss. Add. 25,323 and 25,324 of The British Library, London (UK), by Astrid Alexander-Bakkerus. Muenchen: LINCOM GmbH, 2016. 183 pages; 21 cm. Original orange and yellow wrappers, lettered in black and yellow. LINCOM studies in Native American linguistics; 77. Spanish-Quechua-Jebero vocabulary, pp. 83-132. Includes bibliographical references (page 183).

"The main purpose of this book is to give a modern description of early eighteenth century Jebero/Xebero, as contained in the codices Ms. Add. 25,323 and 25,324. The codices are presumably written by Samuel Fritz (1654-1728), a Jesuit missionary from Bohemia. Jebero is a moribund indigenous North Peruvian language of which little was known. The second purpose of this book is to give a diplomatic transcription of the manuscripts mentioned above. The former manuscript contains a Spanish-Quechua-Jebero vocabulary; the latter a Jebero grammar and a Quechua-Jebero/Jebero-Quechua Christian doctrine. Remarkably, the doctrine also includes a copy of the Jebero prayers written by Fray Lucas de la Cueva (1606-1672). The third purpose of this book is to compare a part of de la Cueva's version of the prayers, dating from the 17th century, with those of Fritz from a century later. The comparison gives us the exceptional opportunity to show, a), the differences between the 17th century stratum of Jebero and that of the 18th century, and, b), how the language may have changed and developed."--Cover.

[JEMEZ] Jemez (also Towa) is a Tanoan language spoken by the Jemez Pueblo people in New Mexico. It has no written form, as tribal rules do not allow it. Its speakers are mainly farmers and craftsmen. The language is only spoken in Jemez Pueblo, New Mexico, but as 90% of the tribal Jemez members do speak it, it is not considered to be extremely endangered. It was also spoken at Pecos Pueblo until the 19th century, when the remaining members of that community moved to Jemez (Wiki).

Ethnologue: tow. Alternate Names: Jemez Towa, Towa.

1907-1930: see Vol. 16 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[JERUNG] Jerung is a moribund Kiranti language spoken in Nepal. It is mutually intelligible with Wambule. Dialects are Madhampur, Balkhu-Sisneri, and Ratnawati (Sindhuli) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: jee. Alternate Names: Jero, Jero Mala, Jerum, Jerunge, Jherung, Zero, Zero Mala, Zerum.

2005: [IUW] A grammar of Jero: with a historical comparative study of the Kiranti languages, by Jean Robert Opgenort. Leiden; Boston: Brill, 2005. xxv, 404 p.: maps; 25 cm. Original mustard-yellow cloth over board, lettered in black, with a color photo of native buildings on the front cover. Brill's Tibetan studies library; v. 5/3. Brill's Tibetan studies library. Languages of the greater Himalayan region. Appendix 1: Jero [Jerung]-English lexicon, pp. 217-277; Appendix 2: English-Jero [Jerung] lexicon, pp. [279]-321; Appendix 4: Comparative Kiranti Word List, English-Jero [Jerung]- Kiranti [see below for list of languages included here], pp. [337]-399. Includes bibliographical references (p. [401]-404). In English and Jero (romanized). First lexicon of the language.

"The Kiranti languages examined in this minor comparative study are Jero, Wambule, Bahing, Sunwar, Hayu, Thulung, Khaling, Dumi, Bantawa, Chamling, Kulung, Yamphu and Limbu" (p. 6).

"This book is the main spin-off of my descriptive research on the Wambule language. The present book offers the first-ever published detailed analysis of the phonology, morphology and syntax of Jero, the previously undescribed and endangered Kiranti language most closely related to Wambule" (Introduction).

[JJARONG] rGyalrong, also rendered Jiarong or sometimes Gyarung, is a subbranch of Rgyalrongic languages, spoken in Western Sichuan, China. The name Rgyalrong is an abbreviation of Tibetan rgyal mo tsha ba rong, a historical region of Kham now mostly located inside Ngawa Tibetan and Qiang Autonomous Prefecture in Sichuan. This Tibetan word is transcribed in Chinese as 嘉绒 or 嘉戎, jiāróng. It is pronounced [rjaron] by speakers of Situ. It is a place-name and is not used by the people to designate their own language. The autonym is pronounced [kəru] in Situ and [kuru] in Japhug( Wiki).

Ethnologue: ज्या. Alternate Names: Chiarong, Gyarong, Gyarung, Jarong, Jyarung, Keru, Rgyarong, dGyarung.

2009: [IUW] A lexicon of the rGyalrong bTsanlha dialect: rGyalrong-Chinese-Tibetan-English / bTsan lha Ngag dbang Tshul khirms; edited by Marielle Prins, Yasuhiko Nagano. Osaka: National Museum of Ethnology, 2009. vii, 743 p.: ill.; 26 cm. Senri ethnological reports 79. Senri ethnological reports. Bon studies; 12. Includes index. Colophon in Japanese.

[JIMI] Jimi (also known as Bi-Gimu) is an Afro-Asiatic language spoken in Jimi village in Bauchi State, Nigeria. Blench (2006) considers the Zumo (Jum) variety to be a separate language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: jmi. Alternate Names: Bi-Gimu.

1999: see 1999a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[JINGPHO] Jingpho (Jinghpaw, Chingp'o) or Kachin [kətɕin bə̀ðà] is a Sino-Tibetan language of the Sal branch mainly spoken in Kachin State, Burma and Yunnan, China. The term "Kachin language" can refer either to the Jingpho language or to a group of languages spoken by various ethnic groups in the same region as Jingpo: Lisu, Lashi, Rawang, Zaiwa, Lhao Vo, Achang and Jingpho. These languages are from distinct branches of the highest level of the Sino-Tibetan family. The Jingpho alphabet is based on the Latin script. Now, the Jinghpaw language is also written in Burmese script widely. The ethnic Jingpho (or Kachin) are the primary speakers of Jingpho language, numbering approximately 900,000 speakers. The Turung of Assam in India speak a Jingpho dialect with many Assamese loanwords, called Singphon(Wiki).

Ethnologue: kac. Alternate Names: Aphu, Chingpaw, Chingp'o, Jinghpaw, Jingpho, Jingphaw, Kachin, Phu.

1903: see 1903 Vol. III, Part II under INDO-ARYAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1906: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary of the Kachin language, by O[la] Hanson [1864-1929]. Rangoon: American Baptist Mission Press, 1906. Contemporary brown leather (worn and with worm-holes) over boards,; spine with red leather label lettered in gold Pp. i-iii iv-xxxii xxxii, 1 2-751 752-754. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 217, Includes Kachin-English, pp. [1]-739, and a comparative vocabulary of approximately 150 words in English-Chinese-Tibetan-Kachin-Burmese-Karen-Chin-Shan-Atsi-Yaw Yin [Lisu], pp. [740]-749, with addenda, pp. [750]-751.

"The publishing of this Dictionary completes over sixteen years of continuous labour in this before almost unexplored field. Words will undoubtedly still be discovered not contained within its pages, but the great bulk of the vocabulary, both religious and colloquial, is here within reach of the student. ... I wish to particularly express my indebtedness to the late Rev. J. N. Cushing, D.D., Ph.D., who was the first to collect a vocabulary and publish an outline of a Kachin grammar. A somewhat fuller vocabulary by the Rev. L. W. Cronkhite D.D., was also of great help to me in my early studies" (Preface). "The original name of the race known as Kachin is Jinghpaw, or probably more correctly Singpho, as they still call themselves in Assam... the word itself is probably of Tibetan origin, meaning a cannibal (Sin-po). This name may have been given by the civilized Tibetans to the wild, savage, semi-nomadic border tribes, who when on the war-path often practiced cannibalism (Introduction).

1968: [IUW] Kachinskiĭ iazyk: (iazyk chzhingpkho), by E. V. Puziŭskiĭ. Moskva: Nauka, 1968. 110 p. 21 cm. Series: Iazyki narodov Azii i Afriki. Bibliography: p. 108-109].

1984: [IUW] 景颇族语言简志(景颇语) / 刘璐编著. Jingpo zu yu yan jian zhi (Jingpo yu), Liu Lu bian zhu. First edition. 北京: 民族出版社: 新华书店发行, 1984. Beijing: Min zu chu ban she: Xin hua shu dian fa xing, 1984. 2, 126 p.; 21 cm. Original black paper over boards, lettered and decorated in gold in Chinese characters. Library binding. Series: 中国少数民族语言简志丛书. Zhongguo shao shu min zu yu yan jian zhi cong shu. "Guo jia min wei min zu wen ti wu zhong cong shu' zhi yi." Includes bibliographical references. Vocabulary, pp. 105-124.

[JITA] Jita is a Bantu language of Tanzania. Jita–Kara–Kwaya are close to being dialects (Wiki).

Ethnologue: jit. Alternate Names: Echijita, Ecijiita, Ecijita, Kijita.

2008: [IUW] Kijita: msamiati wa Kijita-Kiswahili-Kiingereza na Kiingereza-Kijita-Kiswahili = Kijita-Kiswahili-English and English-Kijita-Kiswahili lexicon, by James S. Mdee. Dar-es-Salaam: Languages of Tanzania (LOT) Project, University of Dar-es-Salaam, 2008. vi, 120 p.; 24 cm. LOT publications. Lexicon series; no. 10. In Jita, Swahili and English.

[JJU] Jju is the native language of the Bajju people of northern Nigeria. It is also locally known as "Kaje". As of 1988, there were approximately 300,000 speakers. Jju is one of the Central Plateau languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kaj. Alternate Names: Kache, Kaje, Kajji.

1986?: [IUW] Zi twang Jju. First edition. Jos, Nigeria: Jju Literacy Sub-Committee and Nigeria Bible Translation Trust, [1986?]. 49 pages; 24 cm. Original pale green wrappers, lettered in black, with an illustration of a tribal member outside his house on the front cover. "First edition: 2,000 copies" on title page. Preface written by D.D. Hyuwa. Appendix A: Jju vowels with sample words, Jju-English, pp. 28-29, and Jju consonants with sample words, Jju-English, pp. 30-45.

"The Nigerian Bible Translation Trust, Jos, recently organized a five-day course on Jju Literacy, aimed at make the participants become familiar with the improved Jju spelling system and to train them 'on how to teach some else to read and write Jju.' Zi twang Jju is the immediate result of the course.... Readers who can already read in other languages are familiar with some of the consonants and the vowels. But the way some of these consonants combine to form words is peculiar to Jju sound system. And for readers who may not be familiar with the system, the Current Alphabet, provided in the Appendixes is intended to be a guide" (Preface).

[JOLA-FONYI] Jola (French: Diola; Jola: Joola), also called Jola-Fonyi (French: Diola-Fogny), is a language spoken by half a million people in the Casamance region of Senegal, and neighboring countries. Jola-Fonyi is one of several closely related Jola languages spoken in the area (Wiki).

Ethnologue: dyo. Alternate Names: Diola-Fogny, Dyola, Jola-Fogny, Jóola-Fóoñi, Kujamataak, Kújoolaak kati Kúfooñaak, Yola.

1920: [LILLYbm] "Vocabulary of English Words and Sentences translated into Jola," compiled by Captain E. B. Leese, 8 March 1920. Manuscript wordlist entered on 24 p. printed form. With ink notation on first page: "When finished (as far as possible) please return to Sir Harry Johnston, Poling, Arundel, England," with further manuscript instructions in his hand. Includes manuscript notes signed "E. B. Leese": "Jolas when speaking naturally raise their voices considerably and are inclined to gabble; some trouble has been experienced in making them enunciate syllables distinctly for the purposes of this vocabulary."

1921:: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[JUANG] The Juang language belongs to the Munda language family, the whole of which is classified as a branch of the greater Austroasiatic language family. Among the Munda languages, Juang is considered to be most closely related to Kharia. Juang can be roughly divided into the Hill and Plains varieties, both of which are spoken in Odisha (Patnaik 2008:508). Hill Juang: Gonasika Hills (in Keonjhar district) and Pallara Hills. Plains Juang: about 147 villages in southern Keonjhar district and eastern Dhenkanal district (Wiki), Ethnologue: jun. Alternate Names: Juango, Patra-Saara, Patua, Puttoas.

[JUDEO-TAT] Judeo-Tat or Juhuri (çuhuri / жугъури / ד'אוידיש) is the traditional language of the Mountain Jews of the eastern Caucasus Mountains, especially Azerbaijan and Dagestan, now mainly spoken in Israel. The language is a form of Persian; it belongs to the southwestern group of the Iranian division of the Indo-European languages. The Tat language, a similar, but still different language is spoken by the Muslim Tats of Azerbaijan, a group to which the Mountain Jews were mistakenly considered to belong during the era of Soviet historiography. The words Juvuri and Juvuro literally translate as "Jewish" and "Jews". Judeo-Tat has Semitic (Hebrew/Aramaic/Arabic) elements on all linguistic levels. Judeo-Tat has the Hebrew sound "ayin" (ע), whereas no neighbouring languages have it. Judeo-Tat is an endangered language classified as "definitely endangered" by UNESCO's Atlas of the World's Languages in Danger. The language is spoken by an estimated 101,000 people (Wiki).

Ethnologue: jdt. Alternate Names: Bik, Dzuhuric, Hebrew Tat, Jewish Tat, Judeo-Tatic, Juhuri, Juwri, Lahji, Mountain Jewish, Tati.

1936: [LILLYbm] Dialectes des Israélites de Hamadan et d'Ispahan et dialecte de Baba Tahir, by Roubène Abrahamian. Paris: Adrien-Masionneuve, 1936. Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. 176 pp. First edition. Includes a vocabulary of the Hamadan and Ishpahan dialects, pp. [139]-153. From the library of Carleton T. Hodge.

"While the dialects of the provinces... of Russia (notably the Judeo-Tajik dialects of Samarkand) have been subjected to study, the authentic Judeo-Persian dialects have not been the subject of inquiry. The dialects of the Jews of Hamadan and Ispahan, which are studied for the first time in this work, have a similar parentage" (tr: BM).

2008: [IUW] Фольклор народов Северного Кавказа: тексты, исследования / В.Ф. Миллер. Fol'klor narodov Severnogo Kavkaza: teksty, issledovaniia / V.F. Miller. Москва: Наука, 2008. Moskva: Nauka, 2008. 997 p.: facsim.; 25 cm. Серия "Памятники отечественной науки, XX век". Includes bibliographical references and index. Folklore texts in Ossetic and Tat, with translations into Russian or German; introduction and essays in Russian. Includes Judeo-Tat-Russian vocabulary.

2010: [IUW] БОЛЬШОЙ СЛОВАРЬ ЯЗЫКА ГОРСКИХ ЕВРЕЕВ-ДЖУУРИ = KĀLĀ LŪGĀT ZŪHŪN JŪHŪRI / Я. Агарунов, М. Агарунов. BOL'SHOĬ SLOVAR' ĪAZYKA GORSKIKH EVREEV-DZHUURI = KĀLĀ LŪGĀT ZŪHŪN JŪHŪRI / ĪA. Agarunov, M. Agarunov. Бакы: "Абилов, Зейналов и сыновья", 2010, ©2010. Baku: "Abilov, Zeinalov i synov'ia", 2010, ©2010. 638 pages; 25 cm. Contents: 1. Джуури-русский словарь. 2. Русско-джуури словарь. 1. Dzhuuri-russkii slovar'. 2. Russko-dzhuuri slovar'. Judeo-Tat-Russian two-way dictionary.

[JU'HOANSI] Jul'hoan (also rendered Zhu'hōasi, Dzul'oasi, Zû-lhoa, Jul'Hoansi), or Southeastern !Xuun (Southeastern Ju), is the southern variety of the !Kung dialect continuum spoken by about 30,000 people in the northeast of Namibia and by another 5,000 in the Northwest District of Botswana. Four regional (sub)dialects are distinguished: Epukiro, Tsumkwe, Rundu, and Omatako, with Tsumkwe being the best described; #Kx'aull'ein may be another (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ktz. Alternate Names: !Xo, !Xun, Dobe Kung, Dzu'oasi, Ju'oasi, Jul'hoan, Kung, Kung-Tsumkwe, Tshumkwe, Xaixai, Xû, Zhu'oasi.

1975: [IUW] Ju'hōasi fonologie & woordeboek, by J. W. Snyman. Kaapstad: A. A. Balkema, c1975. 390 p. in various pagings; 23 cm. Originally presented as the author's thesis, University of Cape Town. Series: Communication of the University of Cape Town, School of African Studies; no. 37.

1994a: [IUW] !Xóǎ dictionary, by Anthony Traill. Köln: R. Köppe, 1994. 292 p.; 24 cm. Library binding incorporating original red and white wrappers, lettered in white and black. Quellen zur Khoisan-Forschung; Bd. 9. Includes !Xóǎ-English, pp. 47-198, and English-!Xóǎ, pp. 201-292.

"This Dictionary has its origins in a 1300-word database which was assembled a number of years ago for a phonetic and phonological analysis of !Xóǎ and for comparative work. The original list was not representative of the language because it only contained examples of words necessary to conduct a linguistic analysis of phonetic, phonological and relevant syntactic forms; it also included the words of the 200 word Swadesh list for comparative studies. Words were added haphazardly to this list in the course of further research and as my learning of the language progressed, but it was only in the last four years that I made a concerted effort to record as many lexical items as possible and to begin the serious compilation of a dictionary of the language" (Prelimiaries).

1994b: [IUW] English-Ju'hoan Ju'hoan-English dictionary, by Patrick Dickens. Köln: Köppe, c1994. 371 p.; 24 cm. Library binding incorporating original red and white wrappers, lettered in white and black. Quellen zur Khoisan-Forschung; Bd. 8. Includes English-Ju'hoan, pp. 26-185, and Ju'hoan-English, pp. 188-340, with botanical, ornithological, places names and other appendices, pp. 341-371.

"Patrick John Dickens died in October 1992 at the age of 39, only a few weeks after the manuscript of this Ju'hoan dictionary had been sent to the publisher. Although he was not able to see the work in print, he knew that it was destined to make a vital contribution to the literacy program he had started amongst the Ju'hoan people. For the last three years of his life Patrick had been employed by the Nyae Nyae Developent Foundation of Namibia as a dry-land gardening instructor and linguistic consultant.... Patrick's gift to the Ju/'hoan people is a profound one: it is the gift of literacy" (p. [5]).

2004: [IUW] San dictionary: Thahli xanu, San - Afrikaans - English, English - San - Afrikaans, Afrikaans - San - English = San woordeboek, by Ferdie Weich. Braamfontein, South Africa: Macmillan, 2004. xii, 378 p.; 29.8 cm. Original multi-colored wrappers, lettered in white, yellow, purple and black. First edition. Includes !Xuhn-Afrikaans-English, pp. 1-124, English-!Xuhn-Afrikaans, pp. 125-251, and Afrikaans-!Xuhn-English, pp. 252-377.

"I went to Namibia as a young missionary for the Dutch Reformed Church in 1961.... I worked there for 17 years during which time I learned to speak their language. Prof. Dr. Jan Snyman developed the first official orthography for the language as well as the first dictionary [see above, Jan Snyman: Zu'hõasi: fonologie en woordeboek (Kaapstad [u.a.] Balkema, 1975) ....I retired in 1998 and settled in Primrose, Johannesburg. One day my wife listened to the radio. One of the Schmidtsdrift SAN men was speaking. He said their problem is, they don't know how to write their own language... Although I am not a trained linguist, I felt myself called to help them to write their language. And so I got involved in this work. For them as well as for me, this dictionary is a first. The reader should also keep in mind that the main purpose for this dictionary is to help the people to write their language. (Note: Although related, the !Xuhn language is a different language and therefore not the same as the Ju/'Hoan language of Tsumkwe. There are major differences).... There are still thousands of !Xuhn speakers, men and women, boys and girls, in Namibia and Angola. May this dictionary be a help to these people who are perhaps the last of the lasts, to find a place among the first and the great of Southern Africa" (Introduction).

2005: [IUW] A concise grammar of Ju/'hoan: with a Ju/'hoan-English glossary and a subject index, by Patrick J. Dickens; edited by Rainer Vossen and Megan Biesele. Köln: Köppe, 2005. 114 p.; 24 cm. Library binding incorporating original red and white wrappers, lettered in white and black. Quellen zur Khoisan-Forschung; Bd. 17. Includes bibliographical references (p. 14-16) and index, and a Ju/'hoan-English glossary, pp. [99]-110. For information about the author of this posthumous publication, see his 1994 dictionary above.

2008: [IUW] A concise dictionary of northwestern !Xun, by Christa König and Bernd Heine. Köln: R. Köppe, 2008. 186 p.: 1 map; 24 cm. Original red and white wrappers, lettered in white and black. Quellen zur Khoisan-Forschung; Bd. 21. Includes bibliographical references (p. 11-14). Includes !Xun-English, pp. [15]-106, and English-!Xun, pp. [107]-186.

"The present volume grew out of our work on the grammar of the !Xun language of southern Angola, northern and eastern Namibia and northwestern Botswana between 2000 and 2008.... The language discussed in this work can be called a language within a language: Northwestern !Xun, spoken in southern Angola and northern Namibia, forms one of the two main branches of !Xun.... The present work is based on the Northwestern !Xun dialects, but our research was largely restricted to the W2 dialect, spoken in Eenhana District of northern Namibia" (Preface and Introduction).

2014: [IUW] Ju/'hoan, Tsumkwe dialect da'ani!oa nomtciasi kokxuisi xanua = Prentewoordeboek vir kinders = Children's picture dictionary, Tsemkgao Fanie Cwi &

Pietermaritzburg, South Africa: University of KwaZulu-Natal Press, 2014. 125 pages: colour illustrations; 21 cm + 1 CD-ROM (4 3/4 in.) CD-ROM in pocket inside back cover. Includes laminated card describing the project in English and Dutch.

Summary: "The Ju/'hoan Children's Picture Dictionary is a collaborative project between the Namibian Ju/'hoan from the Tsumkwe region and academics from various fields. The primary aim of this dictionary is to provide Ju/'hoan children with a piece of mother-tongue literature that is locally inspired and that can also be shared with those from the outside world. Entries in this thematic dictionary are in the Ju/'hoan Tsumkwe dialect, Afrikaans and English. All the illustrations and artwork were created by Ju/'hoan people from the Tsumkwe region, who share their knowledge and insight into different facets of Ju/'hoan daily life. Great care has gone into the making of this dictionary, with members of the Ju/'hoan community leading the way in the selection of themes, lexical entries, design and layout to make this publication a community-driven project that highlights Ju/'hoan culture. The categories selected show entries gives rare and fascinating insight into the staple artefacts and traditions of San life. Included is an interactive CD with a pronunciation guide for each entry provided by Ju/'hoan speakers, as well as a photo and video gallery, short biographies of contributors, interesting information about the Ju/'hoan people and a fun, printable language game. By buying this Dictionary you are helping to spread awareness about the Ju/'hoan language and culture, to stop this endangered language from disappearing forever."--Publisher description.

[JUKUN TAKUM] Jukun (Njikum), or more precisely Jukun Takum, is a Jukunoid language of Cameroon used as a trade language in Nigeria. Though there are only a few thousand native speakers, and only a dozen in Nigeria (as of 2000), it is spoken as a second language in Nigeria by tens of thousands (40,000 reported in 1979). The name Jukun is a cover term for several related Jukunoid languages, such as the much-more-numerous Jukun Wapan.

Ethnologue: jbu. Alternate Names: Diyu, Jukun, Njikum.

1931: [IUW] A Sudanese kingdom; an ethnographical study of the Jukun-speaking peoples of Nigeria, by C.K. Meek ... with introduction by H.R. Palmer ... With 2 maps and 147 illustrations. London, K. Paul, Trench, Trubner & Co., Ltd., 1931. xxxiii, [1], 548 p. illus., LXIV pl. (incl. front., ports.) on 48 β., double map. 25 cm. Library binding. Includes an appendix "Schedules of Words and Phrases of the Various Jukun Dialects," I. The Wukari Dialect, English-Jukun-Jukun (International system of transcription), pp. 499-505; II. Abinsi Dialect, pp. 505-508; III. Wase Tofa Dialect, 'pp. 508-510; IV. Donga Dialect, pp. 510-516; V. Jibu Dialect, pp. 516-519; VI. Jibu of Takum Dialect, pp. 519-527; VIII. Gwana Dialect, pp. 527-533.

"This study of the Jukun-speaking peoples of Nigeria was undertaken at the instance of the Lieutenant-Governor of the Northern Provinces of Nigeria... the only remaining example of the type of state which was characteristic of the Western Sudan, prior to the advent of Muhammadan religion and culture. My studies of the Jukun were confined to a period of less than five months, and it is obvious that in so short a time an elementary knowledge only could be gained of a people who, for many reasons, chiefly religious, are peculiarly averse to giving information. Nevertheless, it is hoped that this monograph will be of some assistance to British administrative officials and that it will also be of general interest to students of anthropology" (Preface).

1968: [LILLYbm] Jukun of Wukari and Jukun of Takum, by William E[verett] Welmers. Ibadan: Institute of African Studies, University of Ibadan, 1968. Original orange and white wrappers, lettered and decorated in white and black. Pp. i-ii iii-v vi, 1-163 164-166 (includes corrigenda). 26 cm. First edition. Reproduction from typescript. Series: [University of Ibadan, Institute of African Studies,] Occasional publication no. 16. Includes Takum/Wukari [Jukun Takum/Wapan]-English vocabulary, pp. 105-154, with prefatory note: "The following is a combined vocabulary of the two dialects, designed so that a student of either dialect can readily use it, and so that a comparative study of phonemic equivalents in the two dialects can easily be made." Ethnologue treats these as two separate languages: Jukun Takum and Wapan (Jukun Wukari). A Jukun-English, English-Jukun vocabulary was published in 1908 by W.K. Fraser. Second copy: IUW.

"The Jukun Empire has played an extremely important role in Nigerian history, and the Jukun are making a serious contribution to the Federal Military Government and to building a new Nigeria. For this and many other reasons, Professor Welmers' study has an interest for many people outside the mission for which it was done" (Foreword, Robert G. Armstrong). "The material on which this study is based was gathered during the last three months of 1949 at the Lupwe and Wukari stations of the Sudan Mission of the Christian Reformed Church (a branch of the Sudan United Mission) in Benue Province, Northern Nigeria... Jukun is the name commonly given to a tribe estimated to number some 25,000 people, and to their language. The tribe occupies approximately the area from 9°E to 12°E, and from 7°N to 10°N. This area, intersected by the Benue river, is not occupied exclusively by Jukun people. The dialects treated in this study are those of the Takum area, in the extreme south-central part of the area described above, and of the Wukari area about fifty miles further north and a little to the west. It is questionable whether these should properly be termed 'dialects' of the same language or two distinct languages. A speaker of either dialect, without having previously heard a word of the other, would unquestionably understand many words and sentences in the other with no difficulty. But whether he would understand a connected speech of some length - a folk story, for example - is another question" (Introduction).

[JULA] Jula (Dyula, Dioula) is a Mande language spoken in Burkina Faso, Ivory Coast, and Mali. It is one of the Manding languages, and is most closely related to Bambara, being mutually intelligible with Bambara as well as Malinke. It is a trade language in West Africa and is spoken by millions of people, either as a first or second language. It is written in the Arabic script and the Latin script, as well as in the indigenous N'Ko alphabet (Wiki).

Ethnologue: dyu. Alternate Names: Dioula, Diula, Djula, Dyoula, Dyula, Jula Kong, Kong Jula, Tagboussikan.

An on-line dictionary of Dioula [Jula] may be found at www.webonary.org.

1901: [IUW] Essai de manuel pratique de la langue mandé ou mandingue: étude grammaticale du dialecte dyoula, vocabulaire français-dyouta, histoire de Samori en Mandé, étude comparée des principaux dialectes mandé, by Maurice Delafosse. Paris: E. Leroux, 1901. 304 p., [1] leaf of plates: col. map.; 28 cm. First edition. Hendrix 476. Publications de l'Ecole des langues orientales vivantes. 3e sér.; v. 14.

1904: see 1904a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1909 [1968]: [IUW] Dictionnaire français-dyola et dyola-français, précédé d'un essai de grammaire, by Édouard Wintz. Elinkine, Casamance, Mission Catholique, [Farnborough, Eng., Gregg Press, 1968] i.e. 1909. x, 190 p. Hendrix 480.

1929: see under MANDING LANGUAGES.

1974a: [IUW] Lexique fondamental du dioula de Côte-d'Ivoire, by G. Dumestre. [Abidjan]: Université d'Abidjan, Institut de Linguistique Appliquée, 1974. 100 p.; 29 cm. First edition. Hendrix 477. Series: Documents linguistiques; 51.

1974: [IUW] Regle de transcription et lexique de base Jula, Commission des langues voltaïques, Sous Commission du Jula. [s.l.: s.n.], 1974. 97 p.; 30 cm.

1978: [IUW] Petit dictionnaire Dioula: Dioula - Français, Français - Dioula, C. Braconnier, M. J. Derive. [Abidjan]: Institut de Linguistique Appliquée, 1978. 141 p.; 29 cm. "LXXII."

1982: [IUW] Dioula d'Odienné (parler de Samatiguila): matériel [i.e. matériel] lexical, by C. Braconnier, S. Diaby. [Abidjan]: Institut de linguistique appliquée, 1982. 130 p.; 29 cm. Université d'Abidjan, Institut de linguistique appliquée, no. 96.

1983: [IUW] Propositions pour la création d'un vocabulaire scientifique en jula, by Kalilou Tera, Siaka Touré. Paris, France: Agence de coopération culturelle et technique; Abidjan, RCI: Université d'Abidjan, Institut de linguistique appliquée, 1983. 87 p.: ill.; 29 cm. French and Dyula. At head of title: Promotion des langues manding et peul (MAPE).

1993: [IUW] Lexique du Dioula, by Moussa Coulibaly, Takehiko Haraguchi. Abidjan: Institut de linguistique appliquée, en collaboration avec Institut des économies en voie de développement, Tokyo, 1993. ii, 210 p.; 26 cm.

2003: [IUW] Kanfiladanegafenin julakan - Tubabukan/Français - Dioula = Dictionnaire de poche bilingue julakan - Tubabukan/Français - Dioula. 2ème version révisée. [Burkina Faso]: Burkina Faso Ministère de l'enseignement de base et de l'alphabétisation, 2003. 179 p.; 22 cm. French and Dyula.

2006: [IUW] La communication technique en langues africaines: l'exemple de la lutte contre les ravageurs du cotonier, Burkina Faso-Cameroun, by Henry Tourneux. Paris: Karthala, 2006. 157 p.: col. ill., map; 24 cm. Series: Dictionnaires et langues. Includes bibliographical references (p. 19-21 and 149-155). Dyula-French agricultural terms.

[JUR] Jur, also known as Luwo (Luo, Dheluwo), is a language spoken by Luwo people of Bahr el Ghazal region in South Sudan. The language is most prominently spoken in western and northern parts of Bahr El Ghazal. These people are one of the Luo peoples of East Africa (Wiki).

Ethnologue treats Jur as two separate languages: 1. Modo Jur (bex; alternate names: Jur, Modo) and 2. Luwo (lwo; alternate names: Dhe Luwo, Dhe Lwo, Giur, Jo Lwo, Jur Luo, Jur Luwo, Jur Lwo, Lwo.)

1953: [LILLYbm] Dizionario Giur-Italiano-Inglese, by Gaetano Briani. Verona: Editrice Nigrizia, 1953. Original gray cloth spine and tan paper over boards, lettered and decorated in green. 176 pp. First edition. Series: Museum Combonianum 7. Includes Jur-Italian-English entries throughout. Not in Zaunmüller. "The Jur of the Bahr-el-Ghazal Province (in the Southern Sudan) are a minor section of the larger Luo [also Lwo] people... The name Jur was given to them by the Dinka, and in the Dinka language it means 'foreigner.' Luo therefore is the true name of the Jur, while to the larger Luo tribe belong the Shiluk, Anyuak, Acioli, Lano, Alur, etc." (from the English version of the preface).

[JURCHEN] Jurchen language (Chinese: 女真語 pinyin: Nǚzhēn Yǔ) is the Tungusic language of the Jurchen people of eastern Manchuria, the founders of the Jin Empire in northeastern China of the 12th–13th centuries. It is ancestral to Manchu. In 1635 Hong Taiji renamed the Jurchen people and Jurchen language as "Manchu" (Wiki).

Ethnologue does not include Jurchen as such.

1979?: [IUW] 遼金元三史語解. Liao Jin Yuan san shi yu jie.

欽定遼金元三史國語解. Qin ding Liao Jin Yuan san shi guo yu jie. [台北:

台灣商務印書館, 1979?]. [Taipei: Taiwan] shang wu [yin shu guan, 1979?] 8 v.; 20 cm.

Photoreprint ed. of the 文淵閣 copy. Photoreprint ed. of the Wen yuan ge copy.

Chinese, Manchu, or Mongolian. Edition of 1974 published under title:

欽定遼金元三史語解. Edition of 1974 published under title: Qin ding Liao Jin Yuan san shi yu jie. Subject headings: Khitan (Chinese people)--History--Dictionaries--Mongolian. Mongolian language--Dictionaries--Chinese. Jurchen (Manchurian people)--History--Dictionaries--Ju-chen language. Jurchen language--Dictionaries--Chinese. Mongols--History--Dictionaries--Mongolian.

[JURÚNA] The Jurúna language is spoken in Brazil. Specifically it is spoken in the North Mato Grosso, Xingú Park. In 2001 there were 278 native speakers (Wiki).

Ethnologue: jur. Alternate Names: Iuruna, Jaruna, Yudjá, Yudya, Yurúna.

1886: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF SOUTH AMERICA:

POLYGLOT.

[KAANSA] Kaansa, also known as Gan (Gã), is a Gur language of Burkina Faso. A Latin-based orthography with 29 letters (including extended characters) and three diacritics (the language has four tones) was developed beginning in the 1990s with the help of Stuart and Cathie Showalter, an American missionary couple (Wiki).

Ethnologue: gna. Alternate Names: Gan, Gane, Gã, Kaan, Kaanse, Kan, Kãasa.

1958: see under DYAN.

1970 [1972]: see under DOGOSÉ.

[KABA DÉMÉ, SARA] Kaba Démé (Kaba 'Dem, Ta Sara), or just Dem, is a Bongo–Bagirmi language of Chad and the Central African Republic. It is one of several local languages that go by the names Kaba and Sara (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kwg. Alternate Names: Kaba 'Dem, Kaba Demi, Kaba Démé, Sara Kaba Dem, Tà Sàra.

2006: [IUW] Dictionnaire démé (Tchad): précédé de notes grammaticales / Pierre Palayer; avec la collaboration de Massa Solekaye. Louvain: Peeters, 2006. 490 p.: maps; 24 cm. Original pale yellow wrappers, lettered in light brown. Collection Afrique et langage; 10 Société d'études linguistiques et anthropologiques de France (Series); 431.

Part II. Dictionary, Sara Kaba Démé-French, pp. [133]-470, "Index français-démé": French-Sara Kaba Démé, pp. [471]-490.

"Démé, a minor language, is among those languages that are little known and often neglected, but bear witness to a cultural diversity and richness irresistibly influenced by the effects of modernity.... The dictionary itself includes more than 5,000 entries, illustrated with numerous examples" (from the rear cover).

[KABARDIAN] Kabardian (/kə'ba:rdiən/;[3] Kabardian: адыгэбзэ or къэбэрдей адыгэбзэ or къэбэрдейбзэ. Adyghe: адыгэбзэ or къэбэртай адыгабзэ or къэбэртайбзэ), also known as Kabardino-Cherkess (къэбэрдей-черкесыбзэ) or East Circassian, is a Northwest Caucasian language, closely related to the Adyghe language. It is spoken mainly in parts of the North Caucasus republics of Kabardino-Balkaria and Karachay-Cherkessia (Eastern Circassia), and in Turkey, Jordan and Syria (the extensive post-war diaspora) (Wiki). The Kabardian language has two major dialects, Kabardian and Besleney. Some linguists argue that Kabardian is only a dialect of an overarching Adyghe or Circassian language that consists of all of the dialects of Adyghe and Kabardian together, and the Kabardians themselves most often refer to their language using the Kabardian term Adighabze ("Adyghe language"). Several linguists, including Georges Dumézil, have used the terms eastern Circassian (Kabardian) and western Circassian (Adyghe) in order to avoid this confusion, but both "Circassian" and "Kabardian" may still be found in linguistic literature. Kabardian is written in a form of Cyrillic, and this serves as the literary language for Circassians in both Kabardino-Balkaria (where it is usually called the "Kabardian language") and Karachay-Cherkessia (where it is called the "Cherkess language"). Since 2004, the Turkish state broadcasting corporation TRT has maintained a half-an-hour programme a week in the Terek dialect of Kabardian (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kbd. Alternate Names: Beslenei, East Circassian, Kabard, Kabardino-Cherkes, Kabardo-Cherkess, Kabardo-Cherkessian, Upper Circassian.

1955: [IUW] Russko-kabardinsko-cherkesskiĭ slovar', Sostavili B.M. Kardanov, A.T. Bichoev. Otvetstvennyĭ redaktor A.O. Shogentsukov. Okolo 30 000 slov. Sprilozheniem kratkogo grammaticheskogo ocherka kabardino-cherkesskogo iazyka B.M. Kardanova. Moskva: Gos. izd-vo inostrannykh i natsional'nykh slovareĭ, 1955. 1054 p.; 21 cm. Added t.p. in Kabardian. Russian-Kabardian-Circassian dictionary.

1957: [LILLYbm] Kabardinsko-russkii slovar, by B[uba] M[atsovich] Kardanov. Moscow: Gos idz-vo inostrannykh i natsionalnykh slovarei, 1957. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered in gold and decorated in blind. 576 pp. First edition. From the library of Carleton T. Hodge. Second copy: IUW.

1991: [IUW] Shkol'nyĭ russko-kabardinskiĭ slovar', Kh.Z. Giargiev, Kh.Kh. Sukunov. Nal'chik: "Nart", 1991. 320 p.; 23 cm. Russian-Kabardian school dictionary.

1998: [IUW] Kabardino-cherkessko-russko-anglo-turetskiĭ slovar' v illiustratsiĭakh, Kh.Kh. Sukunov, I.Kh. Sukunova. Nal'chik: Izdatel'skiĭ tsentr "Èl'-Fa", 1998. 414, [8] p.: ill. (some col.); 23 cm. Added title page: Kabardino-Circassian-Russian-English-Turkish picture dictionary. Includes bibliographical references (p. 416) and indexes. English, Kabardian, Russian, and Turkish.

2006: [IUW] Кабардино-черкесский язык: в двух томах / [автор проекта и главный редактор М.А. Кумахов]. Kabardino-cherkesskiĭ iazyk: v dvukh tomakh /

[avtor proekta i glavnyĭ redaktor M.A. Kumakhov]. Нальчик: Республиканский полиграфкомбинат им. Революции 1905 г.: Эль-Фа, 2006. Nal'chik: Respublikanskiĭ poligrafkombinat im. Revoliutsii 1905 g.: Èl'-Fa, 2006-. 2 v.: ill.; 25 cm. Original dark blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Includes bibliographical references. Kabardian language--Dictionaries--Russian. Kabardian language.

[KABBA] Kaba (Kabba), or Kabba of Goré, is a language of the Sara people in Central African Republic and Chad, with around 100,000 speakers. There are several languages named Kaba, which is a local generic term approximately equivalent to Sara. Kaba of Gore is confusingly classified as a Sara rather than as a Kaba language. Kabba is a tonal language. There are three tones, High (H) Mid (M) and Low (L) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ksp. Alternate Names: Kaba, Sara.

2007: [IUW] Kabba-English-French dictionary: with English-Kabba and French-Kabba finderlists, by [Rosmarie Moser & Jean-Pierre Dingatoloum]. Muenchen: Lincom, 2007. v, 520 p.: ill; 25 cm. Original green, red and yellow paper over boards, lettered in white, red and black, with color photos of tribal members on front and rear covers. Languages of the world. Dictionaries; 41. Kabba-English-French dictionary, pp. 1-220, English-Kabba, pp. 221-354, French-Kabba, pp. 355-520.

"Rosmaria Moser worked five years (1994-1999) as linguist among the Kabba... Jean-Pierre Dingatoloum, a Kabba and French-English teacher, was her close collaborator. Together they compiled the Kabba words and expressions and translated them into French and English" (rear cover).

[KABIYÈ] Kabiye ([kàbijè]; also rendered Kabiyé, Kabiye, Kabye, Kabyé, Kabyè, Cabrais) is an Eastern Gurunsi Gur language spoken primarily in northern Togo. Throughout the 20th century, there was extensive emigration to the centre and south of Togo and also to Ghana and Benin. According to the Lomé statistics office, Kabiye speakers made up over 23% of the Togolese population in 1999 (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kbp. Alternate Names: Cabrai, Cabrais, Kabre, Kabure, Kabye.

1974: [IUW] Lexique, français-kabiye-ewe, par Bassari Ebia. First edition. [s.l.: s.n.], 1974. xii, 130 p.; 21 cm. Hendrix 795 lists only R. P. Brungard's Grammaire et Dictionnaire kabré published in Lomé in 1937 for this language.

1985?a: [IUW] Dictionnaire Kabiye-français: avec une esquisse de grammaire Kabiye et un lexique français-Kabiye. [Togo?: s.n., 1985?]. 1 v. pp. 1-297, 1-29 [grammar], 1-172: ill. 7 p.; 29 cm. Library binding, preserving the original light-green wrappers, lettered in black. Cover title. Includes bibliographical references. Includes Kabiye-French, pp. 1-297 (first pagination), grammatical sketch, pp. 1-29 (second pagination) and French-Kabiye, pp. 1-172 (third pagination.) Includes no preliminary information and no separate title page.

1985b: [IUW] Dlyoḡḡdl Kabiye keḡeḡu: Kabiye sans peine, Panla Kongo Sob. Lomé, [Togo]: Di.Fo.P., 1985. Pp. 1-2 3-76. 21 cm. Original pink wrappers, lettered and illustrated in black (tribal huts under trees). Includes several brief vocabulary lists, and a "Lexique," Kabiye-French pp. 73-74.

"This small work we have placed at your disposal under the title, Dlyoḡḡdl Kabiye keḡeḡu: Kabiye sans peine, is intended to aid you in understanding and speaking Kabiye without too much difficulty. We intend to improve the next edition by taking into account your comments and suggestions" (Introduction, tr: BM).

[KABUVERDIANU] Cape Verdean Creole is a creole language of Portuguese basis, spoken on the islands of Cape Verde. It is the native language of virtually all Cape Verdeans, and it is used as a second language by the Cape Verdean diaspora. The language has particular importance for creolistics studies since it is the oldest (still-spoken) creole, and the most widely spoken Portuguese-based creole (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kea. Alternate Names: "Badiu" (pej.), Caboverdiano, Criol, Crioulo, Kriol, Krioulo, Krioulu, "Sampadjudu" (pej.)

1957: [IUW] O dialecto crioulo de Cabo Verde. [Lisboa] Imprensa Nacional de Lisboa, 1957. 391 p. 26 cm. Hendrix 443. Series: Junta das Missões Geográficas e de Investigações do Ultramar. Centro de Estudos Políticos e Sociais. Dialectos portugueses do Ultramar. Bibliography: p. 389.

Facsimile reprint 1984: [IUW] O dialecto crioulo de Cabo Verde, por Baltasar Lopes da Silva. [Lisbon, Portugal]: Impr. Nacional-Casa da Moeda, 1984. 391 p.; 24 cm. Series: Escritores dos países de língua portuguesa; 1. "Fac-simile da 1a. edição, da Imprensa Nacional de Lisboa, de 1957"--Colophon. bibliographical references.

1983 [1994]: [IUW] Disonariu Kabuverdianu, by J.J.R ku Pires, J. Hutchison ku M. Goncalves. Boston: Funkul nko Lobu, 1994. 111 p.; 29 cm. Library binding. Second edition. Based on Sotavento dialects of Capeverdean. Distributed by Mother Tongue Editions. Cape Verdean Creole-English, pp. 4-111.

"This is actually the second edition of a dictionary of the Capeverdean language [which] first appeared in 1983 bearing the title Disonariu preliminarium Kriolu. This second edition bears a different title, and has benefited from the contributions of a third author, Manuel Goncalves... [It] was produced to respond to the needs of students at Boston University enrolled in the 1994 Co-operative African Language Institute [in June and July of] 1994... Although the word preliminariu has been removed from the title, [it] remains a working draft version, which is being improved on an ongoing basis" (Introduction).

1999: [LILLYbm] Dictionnaire cap-verdien-français: créoles de Santiago et Maio. by Nicolas Quint. Paris: L'Harmattan, c1999. 316 p.: ill.; 22 cm. Original green and yellow wrappers, lettered in white and green. First edition. Includes "Lexique Créole de Santiago – Français, pp. 1-299, and Créole de Maio-Français, pp. 309-316. Second copy: IUW.

[KABYLE] Kabyle /kə'baɪl/ or Kabylia /kə'baɪliən/ (native names: Taqbaylit, ['θɛqβæjliθ], Tamaziɣt Taqbaylit, or Tazawt) is a Berber language spoken by the Kabyle people in the north and northeast of Algeria. It is spoken primarily in Kabylie, east of Algiers, and in the capital Algiers, but also by various groups near Blida, such as the Beni Salah and Beni Bou Yaqob (extinct?). Estimates about the number of speakers range from 5 million to about 7 million speakers (INALCO) worldwide, the majority in Algeria (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kab. Alternate Names: Amazigh, Kabyl, Kabylia, Tamazight, Taqbaylit.

1836: [LILLY] Vocabulaire berbère-français, par M. J[ean]-H[onorat] Delaporte [1812-1871]. Paris: Impr. royale, [1836]. 29 p.; In-8°. Note(s): Extrait du "Journal asiatique". IIIe série. Unopened and untrimmed copy, in presumably original unprinted blue-gray wrappers.

1844: [LILLYbm] Grammaire et dictionnaire abrégés de la langue berbère, [Jean-Michel] Venture de Paradis, edited by Amédée Jaubert. Paris: Société de Géographie, Imprimerie Royale, 1844. Contemporary quarter brown leather and marbled paper over boards (most of leather spine missing). Pp. [6] I II-XXIII XXIV, I 2-236. First edition. Recueil de voyages et de mémoires publié par la Société de Géographie, Paris; t. 7, 1. partie. Not in Zaubmüller (who lists only Jaubert's Dictionnaire français-berbère [Dialecte Kabâiles] of that same year, the earliest date of any Berber dictionary listed). Includes French-Berber (both transcribed and in script)-Arabic dictionary in four columns, pp. [19]-183, with a Berber-French index prepared by Jaubert, pp. [185]-211, double-columned.

"From the earliest days of its existence, the Geographical Society had expressed the desire to publish the Berber Dictionary of Venture, which has remained in manuscript for over fifty years, to the great detriment of African Studies and particularly the ethnography of the peoples of the Atlas Mountains. Scholars gained some faint idea of the importance of the work, deposited by Voleny in the Bibliothèque Royale, when Langlès appended a brief excerpt from it to his translation of Hornemann's travels... Finally in 1843, the Maréchal Duc de Dalmatie, Minister of War (our thanks to him!) confirmed a previous ministerial decision of 2 October 1839 in accord with the wishes of the Society and lent his aid to the publication of the entire work" (Biographical notice, tr: BM)

"The foundation of the Berber language is no more than the jargon of a savage people; it does not possess terms for expressing abstract ideas, being forced to borrow these from the Arabs. Man is not subject to laziness or death; he is lazy, he is dead; bread does not possess roundness, it is round. The language of these peoples only furnishes them with concrete terms for expressing qualities tied to their subjects, and it is due to this lack that the tyranny of the plains obliges them to live isolated in their mountains, constantly thrown into a state of war with the inhabitants of neighboring mountains by jealousy and self-interest... Although their religion is Islamic, very few among them know the Arabic language" (Author's Preface, tr: BM).

1887a: [LILLY] Kabail vocabulary: supplemented by aid of a new source, by Francis William Newman (1805-1897). London: Trübner & Co., 1887. Original brown cloth over boards, decorated in blind and lettered in gold. Not in Zaubmüller. Hendrix 377. The introduction makes reference to unpublished earlier work, the "new source" in the title; this may be Basset's work, also published in 1887 (see following entry).

1887b: [LILLY] Manuel de langue kabyle (dialecte zouaoua) grammaire, bibliographie, chrestomathie et lexique, by René Marie Joseph Basset. Paris, Maissonneuve & C. Leclerc, 1887. Original brown cloth stamped and lettered in black. Pp. I-V VI-XVI, I 2-70 71-72. First edition. Not in Zaubmüller. Hendrix 338. Includes Kabyle-French, pp. [42]-70.

1913: [LILLYbm] Lexique Kabyle-français: glossaire extrait de la deuxième année de langue Kabyle, by A. S. Boulifa. Alger: Adolphe Jourdan, 1913. Original blue quarter-linen and gray paper over boards, lettered in black. Pp. I-V VI-VIII IX-X, I 2-

174. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Not in Hendrix. Includes Kabyle-French, pp. [1]-174.

"This lexicon, extracted from our Méthode de Kabyle, Deuxième Année, includes more than 1,500 words of Berber or Arabic origin.... The only Kabyle-French dictionary that exists for the Zouaoua dialect is that of Huygues, which appeared a few years ago. Although it was far from complete, this work, the first of its kind, can only call forth our thanks to the author and our congratulations for his initiative. The only reproach one can make of him was that he failed to take full advantage of the numerous and precious elements in the Dictionnaire Français-Kabyle of Father Creusat and that of Father Ollivier. In the absence of a small Kabyle-French dictionary, that of Huygues being notoriously weak, our distinguished and amiable editor M. Ad. Jourdan, having noted the importance of our small lexicon, did not hesitate to take on, in the public interest, the considerable sacrifice of issuing this special edition. This separate printing, due to its moderate price and the thousands of details it offers on the Kabyle language, will be of great utility to the Algerian public" (Avertissement, tr: BM).

1958: [LILLY] Textes berbères dans le parler des Irjen (Kabylie-Algérie), by André Picard. Alger: La Typo-Litho et Jules Carbonel, 1958. 2 vols. 26.5 cm. Vol. 1: Introduction – Textes- Traduction: xxiv, 316 p.; Vol. 2: Glossaire: pp. 319-670. Both vols. in original pale green wrappers, lettered in black. Vol. 2: Glossary, Kabyle-French, pp. 319-670. From the library of the noted linguist Johannes Rahder with his ink ownership stamps and ink annotations on title pages.

1982: [IUW] Dictionnaire kabyle-français: parler des At Mangellat, Algérie, J.-M. Dallet. Paris: Société d'études linguistiques et anthropologiques de France, 1982-1985. 2 v.: ill.; 25 cm. Other titles: Dictionnaire français-kabyle. Etudes ethno-linguistiques Maghreb-Sahara, 1. Summaries in Arabic, English, French, German, and Spanish. Vol. 2 has title: Dictionnaire français-kabyle. Bibliography: v. 1, p. 1019-1024. Kabyle-French-Kabyle dictionary.

2011: [IUW] Le kabyle de poche, F. Amazit-Hamidchi et M. Lounaci; illustrations de J.-L. Goussé. Chennevières-sur-Marne, France: Assimil, c2011. x, 197 p.: ill. (some col.); 15 cm. Original gary-green and white illustrated wrappers, lettered in white, black, and brown. Publication based on the collection Wort für Wort (Bielefeld: Reise Know-How Verlag Peter Rump GmbH). Pagination also given in Kabyle. Includes bibliographical references (p. 166-167) and indexes. Kabyle-French, pp. 171-183, and French-Kabyle, pp. 184-196.

[KACHARI] Kachari (or Cachari) is a Sino-Tibetan language spoken in Assam, India (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xac. Alternate Names: Cachari, Plains Kachari.

1885: see under INDO-AYRAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1909 [1975]: see under GARO.

[KADARU] Kadaru is a Nubian language of Sudan. Koldagi is listed by Multitree as an alternate name of Kadaru.

Ethnologue: kdu. Alternate Names: Kadaru, Kadero, Kaderu, Kodhin, Kodhinniai, Kodoro, Tamyra.

1829: see under NUBIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1863: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[KADAZAN DUSUN] Kadazan Dusun, a.k.a. Bunduliwan (Dusun: Boros Dusun), is one of the more widespread languages spoken by the Dusun and Kadazan peoples of Sabah, Malaysia. Under the efforts of the Kadazandusun Cultural Association Sabah, the standardized Kadazan-Dusun language is of the central Bundu-Liwan dialect spoken in Bundu and Liwan (now parts of the present-day districts of Ranau, Tambunan and Keningau). Dusun Bundu-liwan's selection was based on it being the most mutually intelligible, when conversing with other Dusun or Kadazan dialects (Wiki).

Ethnologue: dtp. Alternate Names: Central Dusun, Central Kadazan, Dusan, Dusum, Dusun, Dusur, Idaan, Kadasan, Kadayan, Kadazandusun, Kedayan.

1958: [IUW] Kadazan-English and English-Kadazan dictionary, compiled by A. Antonissen. Canberra, Govt. Print. Off. [1958]. 273 p. 25 cm. Cover title: Kadazan dictionary and grammar.

[KADIWÉU] Kadiweu is a Mataco–Guaicuru language spoken by 1,200-1,800 people in Brazil. Kadiwéu is a Waikurúan language spoken by about 1,000 Indians distributed over an area of 5,380 km<sup>2</sup> near the town of Bodoquena in the State of Mato Grosso do Sul, Brazil (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kbc. Alternate Names: Caduvéó, Ediu-Adig, Mbaya-Guaikuru.

1899: see under GUAICURUAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KAFA] Kafa or Kefa (Kafi noono) is an Afroasiatic language spoken in Ethiopia at the Keffa Zone (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kbr. Alternate Names: Caffino, Kaffa, Kaficho, Kefa, Keffa, Manjo.

1888: [LILLY] Die Kafa-Sprache in Nord-Ost Afrika, by Leo Reinisch. Vienna: F. Tempsky, 1888. Two vols. [Vol. I] Pp. 1-3 4-93 94; [Vol. II] Pp. 1-3 4-138. 23 cm. Two volumes bound as one, contemporary brown quarter-leather and marbled paper over boards; spine lettered and decorated in gold. First editions. Vol. I was printed in April, 1888 (cf. p. 93) and Volume II in June, 1888 (cf. p. 138). Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 800. Includes (in Vol. II) Kafa-German, pp. [3]-102, and German-Kafa, pp. 103-138. The opening pages of Volume I offer a detailed account the origins of this dictionary, including references to the "extremely limited" earlier vocabularies of Kafa in Krapf and Beke (bibliographical references in full, p. 5). First dictionary of the language.

1951: [IUW] Studi etiopici IV: La lingua Caffina, by Enrico Cerulli. Roma: Istituto per l'Oriente, 1951. First edition. 561 pp. 24.8 cm. Original cream wrappers, lettered in black and red. Includes Part IV, "Lessico Caffino," Kafa-Italian lexicon, pp. [389]-522, and Italian index to the lexcon, pp. [533]-551. First Italian-Kafa dictionary.

[KAGORO] [Wiki redirects Kagoro to Kita Maninkakan, a language of Mali]: The Kagoro variety is 86% lexically similar according to Ethnologue, and is being replaced by Bambara (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xkg. Alternate Names: Kakolo.

2001: [IUW] Esquisse contrastive du kagoro (manding), by Valentin Vydrine. Köln: Köppe, c2001. 280 p., [1] fold. plate: ill., 1 map; 24 cm. Library binding, incorporating original black front and rear wrappers, lettered in white. Mande languages and linguistics; v. 4. Kagoro-French vocabulary, pp. 201-274. Includes bibliographical references (p. 275-277).

"The vocabulary consists primarily of data collected on the language of the village of Sébékoro during my stay of ten days there (March 1998)" (p. 201).

[KAGULU] Kaguru (Kagulu) is a Bantu language of the Morogoro and Dodoma regions of Tanzania. It is closely related to Gogo and Zaramo, but is not intelligible with other languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kki. Alternate Names: Chikagulu, Cikagulu, Kaguru, Kigaguru, Kikagulu, Kiningo, Megi, Northern Sagara, Solwa.

1886: [LILLY] Grammar of the Kaguru language, eastern equatorial Africa, by J.T. Last. London: Society for promoting Christian knowledge, 1886. 2 p., 147 p. 17 cm. Original olive cloth, lettered and decoration in black. First edition. Hendrix 801 (only entry for this language). Preface by R.N. Cust. English-Kaguru vocabulary: p. 90-147. First published vocabulary of this language. With the ink stamp of the "Bibl. Miss. Prov. Germ. S. J.," and the ownership label of John Lawson.

"Mr. Last dwelt many years in the midst of [the Sagira] tribe, and compiled large Vocabularies and this Grammatical Treatise, which is a great addition to our knowledge, as nothing was known of it previously" (Preface).

2008: [IUW] The Kagulu language of Tanzania: grammar, texts and vocabulary, by Malin Petzell. Köln: Köppe, c2008. 234 p.: ill.; 24 cm. East African languages and dialects v. 19.

[KAHE] The Kahe are an ethnic and linguistic group based southeast of Moshi in Kilimanjaro Region Tanzania. The Kahe language, or Kikahe, is in the Chagga cluster of Bantu languages. Three dialects are recognized: Kimwangaria, Msengoni and Kichangareni. Kikahe is spoken by 9130 people, and is one of the smaller language communities in Tanzania (Wiki).

Ethnologue: hka. Alternate Names: Kikahe.

2008: [IUW] Kikahe: msamiati wa Kikahe-Kiswahili-Kiingereza na Kiingereza-Kikahe-Kiswahili = Kahe-Swahili-English and English-Kahe-Swahili lexicon, by Kulikoyela K. Kahigi. Dar-es-Salaam: Languages of Tanzania (LOT) Project, University of Dar-es-Salaam, 2008. xv, 105 p.; 25 cm. LOT publications. Lexicon series; no. 13. Includes bibliographical references (p. xiv). In Kahe, English and Swahili.

[KAILI LANGUAGES] Kaili is an Austronesian dialect cluster of the Celebic branch, and is one of the principal languages of Central Sulawesi. The heartland of the Kaili area is the broad Palu River valley which stretches southward from Central Sulawesi's capital city, Palu. Kaili is also spoken in the mountains which rise on both sides of this valley, and along the coasts of the Makassar Strait and the Gulf of Tomini (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists eight separate languages under the Kaili group: Baras [brs], Kaili, Da'a [kzf], Kaili, Ledo [lew], Kaili, Unde [unz], Moma [myl], Sedoa [tvw], Tado [klw], and Topoiyo [toy].

[KAILI, LEDO] Ledo Kaili is the largest member of the Kaili languages, which are a dialect chain within the Kaili-Pamona language family. These languages are spoken in Central Sulawesi (Indonesia). Kaili with all of its dialects is one of the largest languages in Sulawesi. One third of the population of Sulawesi Tengah province were (1979) native speakers of a Kaili language. The object language of this article is the main dialect Ledo, which is spoken in the Donggala and Sigi districts (Kabupaten) in and around the provincial capital Palu (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lew. Alternate Names: Kaili, Ledo, Paloesch, Palu.

2014: [IUW] Kamus bahasa Indonesia - Kaili Tara, by Deni Karsana, Siti Fatinah, Aminah. Edisi pertama, cetakan pertama. Makassar: De La Macca, 2014. xvi, 400 pages; 21 cm. Original white wrappers, lettered in black and red, with color photos on the front and rear covers. Indonesian-Kaili, pp. 1-398. Includes bibliographical references (pages 399-400). Preliminary matter in Indonesian.

[KAKATAIBO-KASHIBO] Cashibo (Caxibo, Cacibo, Cachibo, Cahivo), Cacataibo, Cashibo-Cacataibo, Managua, or Hagueti is an indigenous language of Peru in the region of the Aguaytía, San Alejandro, and Súngaro rivers. It belongs to the Panoan language family. Dialects are Kashibo (Kaschinö), Rubo/Isunbo, Kakataibo, and Nokaman, which until recently had been thought to be extinct.

Ethnologue: cbr. Alternate Names: Aincacatai, Cachibo, Cacibo, Cahivo, Cashibo-Cacataibo, Caxibo, Hagueti, Incauncanibo, Kashibo, Managua.

1987: [IUW] Vocabulario cashibo-cacataibo, recopiladora, Olive Shell; revisado por Marlene Ballena Dávila. Yarinacocha, Pucallpa, Perú: Ministerio de Educación: Instituto Lingüístico de Verano, 1987. First edition. 105 p.; 22 cm. Serie Lingüística peruana; no. 23. Spanish or Cashibo language.

[KAKI AE] Kaki Ae, or Tate, is a language with about 500 speakers, half the ethnic population, near Kerema, in Papua New Guinea. Kaki Ae has no distinction between /t/ and /k/. It has been proposed to be related to the Eleman languages, but the connections appear to be loans (Wiki).

Ethnologue: tbd. Alternate Names: Lorabada, Lou, Raepa Tati, Tate, Tati.

1973: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1997: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KAILI, LEDO] Ledo Kaili is the largest member of the Kaili languages, which are a dialect chain within the Kaili–Pamona language family. These languages are spoken in Central Sulawesi (Indonesia). Kaili with all of its dialects is one of the largest languages in Sulawesi. One third of the population of Sulawesi Tengah province were (1979) native speakers of a Kaili language. [The] main dialect [is] Ledo, which is spoken in the Donggala and Sigi districts (Kabupaten) in and around the provincial capital Palu.

Ethnologue: lew. Alternate Names: Kaili, Ledo, Paloesch, Palu.

1934: [LILLYbm] Handleiding voor de oefening der Ledo-taal inleiding, teksten met vertaling en aanteekeningen en woordenlijst, S[amuel] J[onathan] Esser [1900-1944]. Bandoeng: A.C. Nix & Co., 1934. Original gray wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [4] 1 2-90 91-92. First edition. Series: Verhandelingen van het Koninklijk Bataviaasch genootschap van kunsten en wetenschappen, deel 82, 1. Stuk. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes Dutch-Ledo Kaili, pp. [53]-90. This appears to be the first substantial vocabulary of the language.

2014: [IUW] Kamus bahasa Indonesia - Kaili Tara, by Deni Karsana, Siti. Edisi pertama, cetakan pertama. First edition, first printing. Makassar: De La Macca, 2014. xvi, 400 pages; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references (pages 399-400). Indonesian-Ledo Kaili dictionary.

[KAINGANG] The Kaingang language (also spelled Kaingáng) is an indigenous language spoken in the South of Brazil, belonging to the Gê language family. The Kaingang nation has about 30,000 people, and about from 60% to 65% speak the language. Most also speak Portuguese. The Kaingang and Xokleng were previously considered a single ethnicity, which went by a number of names including Amhó, Dorin, Gualachi, Chiqui, Ingain, Botocudo, Ivitorocái (= Amho), Kamé, Kayurukré, Tain (= Ingain), Taven. Some of these may have been tribal names; others were exonyms. Those living along the coast at the time of the Conquest were called Guayaná, and are considered to be the ancestors of the Kaingang. It is unknown to what extent the names might have corresponded to dialectal differences (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kgp. Alternate Names: Bugre, Caingang, Coroado, Coroados.

1931: see under GUANA (Brazil).

2006: [IUW] Os índios Kaingang de San Pedro (Misiones): com um vocabulário, by Juan Bautista Ambrosetti. Campinas, SP, Brasil: C. Nimuendajú, 2006. 159 p.: ill., 20 cm. First edition. Includes bibliographical references. Spanish; some vocabulary in Kaingang.

[KAKO] Kako or Mkako or Mkaka, is a Bantu language spoken mainly in Cameroon, but also has speakers in the Central African Republic and Congo. The main population centers of Kako speakers includes Batouri and Ndélélé in the East Region of Cameroon. Once grouped with the Gbaya dialect cluster and often still referred to as part of an undefined "Gbaya-Kaka" group, Kako is now grouped in the Bantu subgroup of the Niger–Congo language family (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kkj. Alternate Names: Kaka, Mkako.

1989: [IUW] Lexique kakɔ-français, français-kakɔ, avec tableaux de conjugaisons, par Urs Ernst, éd. Yaoundé, République du Cameroun: Société internationale de linguistique, 1989. 98 p.; 21 cm. Library binding, incorporating original pale yellow front wrapper, lettered and illustrated in black. Kako-French, pp. 11-52, French-Kako, pp. 55-90. Institute of Social Sciences (Cameroon). Centre for Anthropological Research and Studies.

"This lexicon is intended for speakers of Kako who have learned to read and write their own language. It is also aimed at non-speakers of the language who wish to study and learn it.... The lexicon contains about 1950 words, the great majority of which are part of everyday language. There are also some terms, which, although well integrated into the language, do not have their origin in Kako. The primary languages contributing to the vocabulary are the following: English, German, Gbaya, Ewondo and Fulfulde. The words come from the standard reference dialect "ngbakɔ," which is spoken primarily in Batouri and surrounding villages" (Avant-Propos, tr: BM).

[KALAGAN] Kalagan is an Austronesian dialect cluster of the Davao Region of Mindanao in the Philippines. It is also spoken in a few parts of Caraga, still in Mindanao (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kqe. Alternate Names: Kaagan, Kinalagan, Minuslim Kalagan.

1970: [IUW] Two views of Kalagan grammar, by Grace C. Collins. 1970. 113 l. illus. Library binding. Reproduced from typescript. Thesis (Ph.D.)--Indiana University, 1970. Lexicon I: Kalagan-English, ff. [94]-101, Lexicon II: Kalagan-English, ff. [102]-107.

"This study includes first a rather traditional structural sketch of the central syntactic system of Kalagan, and second a generative 'case grammar' of this Philippine language. The first part is intended to be maximally enlightening to those who have no knowledge of Kalagan.... The generative grammar presented here is an application of the theory of 'case grammar' as developed by Charles J. Fillmore (1968)" (Preface).

[KALANGA] The Kalanga language, or Ikalanga, TjiKalanga, is a Bantu language spoken by the Kalanga people. It is known for its extensive phoneme inventory, which includes palatalized, velarized, aspirated, and breathy-voiced consonants. It is closely related to KheLobedu language spoken in northeastern South Africa (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kck. Alternate Names: Bakaa, Chikalanga, Ikalanga, Kalana, Kanana, Makalaka, Sekalaña, Tjikalanga, Wakalanga, Western Shona.

201-?: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

2012: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[KALAPUYA] Kalapuyan (also Kalapuya) is a small extinct language family that was spoken in the Willamette Valley of Western Oregon, United States. It consists of three languages: 1. Northern Kalapuya (also known as Tualatin–Yamhill), 2. Central Kalapuya (also known as Santiam), 3. Yoncalla (also known as Southern Kalapuya) (Wiki).

Ethnologue treats Kalapuya as a single language: kyl. Alternate Names: Kalapuyan, Lukamiute, Santiam, Wapatu.

1846: see 9) under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

[KALASHA] Kalasha (also known as Kalashamondr) is spoken by the Kalash people who reside in the remote valleys of Bumburet, Birir and Rumbur, which are west of Ayun, which is ten miles down the river from Chitral Town, high in the Hindu Kush mountains in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa province of Pakistan. The Kalash have their own religion, with gods and goddesses. There are an estimated 5,000 speakers of Kalasha. Until the late 20th century, Kalasha was an undocumented language. More recently, through the work of a Greek NGO and local Kalasha elders seeking to preserve their oral traditions, a new Kalasha alphabet has been created (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kls. Alternate Names: Kalashamon, Kalashi.

1973: see under INDO-IRANIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KALENJIN] The Nandi languages, or Kalenjin proper, are a dialect cluster of the Kalenjin branch of the Nilotic language family. In Kenya, where speakers make up 18% of the population, the name Kalenjin, a Nandi expression meaning "I say (to you)", gained prominence in the late 1940s and the early 1950s, when several Kalenjin-speaking peoples united under it. This ethnic consolidation created a major ethnic group in Kenya, and also involved a standardization of the Kenyan Kalenjin dialects. However, since outside Kenya the name Kalenjin has been extended to related languages such as Okiek of Tanzania and Elgon languages of Uganda, it is common in linguistic literature to refer to the languages of the Kenyan Kalenjin peoples as Nandi, after the principal variety.

Ethnologue: kln.

1972: [LILLYbm] Kalenjin-English Dictionary, by C[harles] C. Ng'elechei. Nairobi: Thomson Press, [1972]. Original pale green wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [6] 1-61 62. First edition. Not in Hendrix (who lists only the author's unpublished manuscript of 1971 and the Kalenjin-English, English-Kalenjin Dictionary published in Nairobi in 1979, 121 pages. Hendrix calls Kalenjin "a Southern Nilotic cover term for the Nandi, Suk, and Tatoga languages.") Includes Kalenjin-English, pp. 1-61. This is the first extensive vocabulary of the language.

"Charles has produced a monumental Kalenjin-Kalenjin Dictionary. Unfortunately this work is not yet published... This little Kalenjin-English Dictionary (vocabulary) is a worthwhile addition to whatever books we have so far. It is a foundation. On this foundation a house is about to grow" (Foreword by Taita Towett, Minister for Education).

1979: [IUW] Tikshenari ne bo Kalenjin ak English koboto tikshenari ne bo English ak Kalenjin = Kalenjin-English, English-Kalenjin dictionary, C.C. Ng'elechei. Nairobi: Transafrica, 1979. 121 p.; 22 cm. Spine title: Kalenjin-English-Kalenjin dictionary.

2007: [IUW] A glossary of Kalenjin names, terms, and sayings, Ambrose Keitany. Eldoret, Kenya: Zapf Chancery, 2007. 97 p.; 21 cm. Original blue and white wrappers, lettered in white, with a color illustration of drinking vessel on the front cover. Includes bibliographical references (p. [96]--97). Kalenjin-English glossary of names with their English meanings, pp. [12]-[89].

"The majority of Africans have lately tended to stop using their ancestral names. Such a phenomenon is not only tragic but a symptom of cultural brainwash... But lately, a number of Africans, Kalenjins included, are making a journey into a rediscovery process... The traditional African names that were stripped off pioneer believers in a bid to 'christianize' them are now being restored.... Traditional Kalnejin names have interesting meanings and unique histories... rich in tribal resonance.... The Kalenjins have gorgeous, charming, and melodious names even to non-Kalenjin speakers.... There is every need to bestow our children or yourself with an ethnic name for the purpose of cultural affirmation, and declaration of ancestral heritage" (Introduction).

2009: [IUW] Samburtaab ng'aleekaab Kaleenchin = Kalenjin dictionary, Kibny'aanko Seroney. Nairobi: MvuleAfrica Publishers, 2009. 595 p.; 21 cm. Original orange and yellow wrappers, lettered in black and green. Includes bibliographical references. A Kalenjin-Kalenjin-English dictionary, pp. [1]-595.

"Now Samburtaab Ng'aleekaab Kaleenchin, in his Kalenjin-Kalnejin dictionary endeavours to bring together all the Kalnejin words in one volume. The fear that a dictionary of Kalnejin is impossible due to the different dialects or variations of the Kalnejin language now seems unfounded.... This is the first time a Kalnejin dictionary defines words in Kalnejin and provides equivalence in English" (Introduction).

[KALISPEL-PEND D'OREILLE] The Salish or Séliš language /'seɪltʃ/, also known as Kalispel–Pend d'oreille, Kalispel–Spokane–Flathead, or, to distinguish it from the Salish language family to which it gave its name, Montana Salish, is a Salishan language spoken (as of 2005) by about 64 elders of the Flathead Nation in north-central Montana and of the Kalispel Indian Reservation in northeastern Washington state, and by another 50 elders (as of 2000) of the Spokane Indian Reservation of Washington. As of 2012, Salish spoken by the Spokane (Npoqínišcn), Kalispel (Qalispé), Pend d'Oreilles, and Bitterroot Salish (Séliš). The total ethnic population was 8,000 in 1977, but most have switched to English (Wiki).

Ethnologue: fla. Alternate Names: “Flathead-Kalispel” (pej.), “Kalispel-Flathead” (pej.), Nqlispélišcn, Salish.

1846: see 9) under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

1877-78-79a: [LILLY] A Dictionary of the Kalispel or Flat-Head Indian Language, compiled by Missionaries of the Society of Jesus [Rev. Joseph Giorda]. Part I: Kalispel-English. Montana: St. Ignatius Print, 1877-78-79 bound with Appendix to the Kalispel-English Dictionary. [St. Ignatius], Montana: St. Ignatius Print, 1879. Original (?) plain brown paper wrapper, using pages from a catalogue of a religious supply company as endpapers. Housed in chemise and quarter-morocco case. [4 pp.] [1]-644; appendix, [4 pp.] [1]-36. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller.

"The design of the present work is to afford assistance in the study of the language, mainly to those who have dedicated themselves to the teaching and regeneration of these Indian tribes." Listed in Schoenberg 'Jesuit Mission Imprints' as 3 & 4 respectively, and, together with imprint 5 (see following item), they constitute the entire dictionary. "The full dictionary... is considered one of the greatest mission press publications in American history. Its size alone is impressive, 1,148 pages in three volumes. It represents years of labor by three of the best scholars of Indian languages... There has been speculation about the number of Kalispel dictionaries printed. The exact number is not known. Palladino reports that fifty copies were printed especially for libraries in America and Europe 'as might wish to possess a book so rare and curious and of such interest to linguists.' Other copies, printed for missionary use, probably amounted to fifty. Even if there were so many, a fair number of them has not survived the many mission fires or casual use by indifferent persons" (Schoenberg, pp. 18-19).

1877-78-79b: [LILLY] A Dictionary of the Kalispel or Flat-head Indian Language. Part II. English-Kalispel, by Rev. Joseph Giorda. [St. Ignatius], Montana: St. Ignatius Print, 1877-8-9. Original (?) plain brown paper wrappers. 456 pp. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller.

1907-1930: see Vol. 7 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

1940: [IUW] The Kalispel language, an outline of the grammar with text, translations and dictionary, by Hans Vogt. Oslo, I kommisjon hos J. Dybwad, 1940. 178 p. 27 cm. Original tan boards, lettered in black, with black cloth spine (possibly added by library). At head of title: Det Norske videnskaps-akademi i Oslo. "Fremlagt i den hist-filos. klasses møte den 20. mai 1938." Trykt for Fridtjof Nasens fond. Includes Kalispel-English dictionary, pp. 136-178.

"The material given in this outline of the Kalispel language has been collected during the summer of 1937, when I had the opportunity of spending eleven weeks with the Kalispel Indians. These Indians are a small tribe living on a reservation of their own in Pend Oreille county (Wash.) on the east side of the Clarke Fork River, north of Newport. . . . On the reservation the old people and the small children under school-age speak only Kalispel. The middle generation, especially the men, know some English, but speak Kalispel among themselves. The younger generation who have learnt English at school, often talk English among themselves. The old people complained that they did not talk good Kalispel. My young informant, Joe Abrahamson. . . was, in their opinion, one of the very few young people who talked a pure and easy Kalispel. He had at the same time a fair knowledge of English" (Introduction).

[KALMYK-OIRAT] Kalmyk Oirat (Kalmyk: Хальмг Өөрдin келн), commonly known as the Kalmyk language (Kalmyk: Хальмг келн) is a register of the Oirat language, natively spoken by the Kalmyk people of Kalmykia, a federal subject of Russia. In Russia, it is the normative form of the Oirat language (based on the Torgut dialect), which belongs to the Mongolic language family. The Kalmyk people of the northwest Caspian Sea of Russia claim descent from the Oirats from Eurasia, who have also historically settled in Mongolia and northwest China. According to UNESCO, the language is "Definitely endangered". According to the Russian census of 2010, there are 80,500 speakers of an ethnic population consisting of 183,000 people (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xal. Alternate Names: European Oirat, Kalmack, Kalmuck, Kalmuk, Kalmytskii Jazyk, Khalli, Oirat, Qalmaq, Volga Oirat, Western Mongolian.

1730: [LILLY] Das nord- und ostliche Theil von Europa und Asia, in so weit solches das gantze Russische Reich mit Siberien und der grossen Tatarey in sich begreiffet, in einer historisch-geographischen Beschreibung der alten und neuern Zeiten, vorgestellt; nebst einer noch niemahls ans Licht gegebenen Tabula polyglotta von zwey und dreyssigerley Arten tatarischer vöcker Sprachen und einem kalmuckischen Vocabulario. Zusammen gebracht und ausgefertiget von Philipp Johann von Strahlenberg. Stockholm: In Verlegung des Autoris, 1730. [26], 438, [16] p. illus.; 23 cm. Contemporary vellum, with hand-lettered spine. Notes: Includes 21 tables, illustrations and the first published vocabulary of Kalmyk (with German), pp. 137-156, double column, as well as the final folding polyglot table of various languages and dialects in the region. The separately-issued map was once mounted on a stub between pages 136 and 137 in the Lilly copy, but was torn out roughly at one point, leaving only a portion of the upper left-hand corner. The Lilly copy with numerous early annotations in ink.

First English translation 1738: An historico-geographical description of the north and eastern parts of Europe and Asia, but more particularly of Russia, Siberia, and Great Tartary; both in their ancient and modern state: together with an entire new polyglot-table of the dialects of 32 Tartarian nations, and a vocabulary of the Kalmuck-Mungalian tongue, by Philipp Johann von Strahlenberg. London: W. Innys and R. Manby, 1738.

Contemporary brown leather over boards, with gilt tooled spine and leather label lettered in gold. Pp. [4] i ii-ix x-xii, 1 2-463 464 + 10 plates, some folding, and a large folding polyglot table. First edition in English, this the re-issue with a new title page in 1738 (first issue of first edition appeared in 1736). Translated from the German, which first appeared in 1730 in Stockholm (see above). Not in Zauhmüller. Includes the first published vocabulary of Kalmyk in English, pp. 142-163, double column, as well as the final folding polyglot table of various languages and dialects in the region. This copy with the ink ownership signature of John Ranking on the title page. Ranking was author of Historical researches on the wars and sports of the Mongols and Romans, in which elephants and wild beasts were employed or slain, and the remarkable local agreement of history with the remains of such animals found in Europe and Siberia ... With a map and ten plates (London, 1826), and Historical researches on the conquest of Peru, Mexico, Bogota, Natchez, and Talomeco, in the thirteenth century, by the Mongols, accompanied with elephants; and the local agreement of history and tradition, with the remains of elephants and mastodontes, found in the New world (London, 1827).

First French translation 1757: Description historique de l'Empire russe, traduite de l'ouvrage allemand de M. le baron Strahlenberg, trans. by Jean Louis Barbeau de la Bruyère [1710-1781]. A Amsterdam: Chez Desaint & Saillant, 1757. 2 v.; [vol. 1] xx, 384; [vol.2] xi, 406; 17 cm. Contemporary calf with gilt spines. Includes [vol. 2] Kalmyk-French, pp. 323-363.

1935: [IUW] Kalmückisches Wörterbuch, by G. J. Ramstedt. Helsinki: Suomalais-Ugrilainen Seura, 1935. xxx, 560 p.; 26 cm. Lexica Societatis Fenno-Ugricae; 3. Zauhmüller 217.

1964: [IUW] Russko-kalmytskii slovar: Okolo 32 000 slov, by I.K. Ilishkin. Moskva: Sovetskaia entsiklopediia, 1964.

1978: [IUW] Materials for an Oirat-Mongolian to English citation dictionary, by John R. Krueger. Bloomington, Ind.: The Mongolia Society, 1978- . v.; 28 cm. Other titles: Oirat-Mongolian draft dictionary. Publications of the Mongolia Society. Incomplete contents: pt. 1. The vowels, a e i o ö u ü. pt. 2. The consonants n, x, y, b, p, s, s'. pt. 3. The consonants t, d, l, m, c, z, j, j/, y, k, k', g, g', r, v, h. Kalmyk-Oirat-English dictionary.

1979: [IUW] Qudum-Todo-igi qaricuuluqsan Monggol keleni toli / [Còijingjab, To. Badma-nar naairuulbai]. 1. keb. First edition. [Ürümci]: Šinjiyang-giyin Aradiyin Kebleliyin Xorō, [1979]. 11, 449 p.; 22 cm. In Oirat (Oirat script) and Mongolian (Mongolian script). From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society. Mongolian-Kalmyk-Oirat dictionary.

1998: [IUW] Oiirad aman ayalgun-u üges = 卫拉特方言词汇 / Coijungjab, Na. Gereltü naiirağulba. Oiirad aman ayalgun-u üges = Weilate fang yan ci hui / Coijungjab, Na. Gereltü naiirağulba. 1. keb. First edition.呼和浩特市: 内蒙古大学出版社, 1998. [Kökeqota]: Öbör Monggol-un Yeke Surgaguli-yin Keblel-ün Qoriy-a, 1998. [13], 289 p.; 21 cm. In Mongolian (Mongolian and phonetic romanization) and Chinese. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society. Kalmyk-Oirat-Chinese dictionary.

2002: [IUW] Bi khal'mg kel daschanav: ba-h ors-khal'mg tol', [sostaviteli, I.K. Ilishkin ... (et al.)]. Elst: Khal'mg degter ·har·hach, 2002. 509 p.; 20 cm. Russian-Kalmyk-Oirat dictionary.

[KALULI] Kaluli, or Bosavi, is a Papuan language of Papua New Guinea. Named dialects are Ologo, Kaluli, Walulu, Kugenesi, but differences are not significant (Wiki).

Ethnologue: bco. Alternate Names: Bosavi.

1973: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1998: [LILLYbm] Bosavi-English-Tok Pisin dictionary (Papua New Guinea).

Bosabi towo:liya: Ingilis towo:liya: Pisin towo:liya: bugo: Tok ples Bosavi, Tok Inglis, na Tok Pisin diksineli, by Bambi B. Schieffeln & Steven Feld.. Canberra: Pacific Linguistics, 1998. Original olive-green wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [2] i-iv v-xx, 1-2 3-209 210-214. First edition. Series: Pacific linguistics. Series C, 153. Includes Bosavi-English-Tok Pisin, pp. 3-149, English-Bosavi, pp. 150-170, Bosavi-English appendices, pp. 171-208. Second copy: IUW.

"This is the first dictionary of the language called Bosavi, spoken by less than 2,000 people, who live on the great Papuan Plateau north of Mount Bosavi, a collapsed volcano in the Southern Highlands region of Papua New Guinea. Bosavi is one of the more than 700 languages spoken in Papua New Guinea. The variant of the Bosavi language represented in the dictionary is principally that spoken in the central Bosavi area where people identify themselves and their language as Kaluli. Kaluli is one of four mutually intelligible dialects spoken in Bosavi."

[KAMAR] Kamar is an Indic language spoken by a tribal people of central India. It is spoken in two islands, one in Madhya Pradesh and one in Chhattisgarh (Wiki).

Ethnologue: keq.

1951: [LILLY] The Kamar, by S. C. Dube, with a Foreword by Christoph von Fürer-Haimendorf. Lucknow: The Universal Publishers, 1951. xii, 216 p., 24 cm. Original black cloth over boards, lettered in reddish-brown; cream d.j., lettered in red, with a drawing of a tribal member with bow and arrow on the front cover. First edition. Appendix 4: Glossary, Kamar-English, pp. [207]-211. Appendix 5: Bibliography, p. [212]. From the library of the noted anthropologist Robert L. Carneiro with his signature.

"This book epitomizes the results of [Dr. Dube's] field work, in a part of Madhya Pradesh, and introduces a little known jungle tribe, whose life and living conditions have been meticulously gathered by him.... We commend this book to all who have a genuine interest in tribal transition and rehabilitation of the millions of backward communities gasping for breadth in an inhospitable environment and groaning under the shackles of agrestic serfdom. We know that 'we cannot be civilized unless all of us are civilised'" (front flap of d. j.).

New edition 2004: [IUW] The Kamar, by S. C. Dube; [with an introduction by Nandini Sundar]. [New ed.] New Delhi; New York: Oxford University Press, 2004. xxvii, 240 p.: ill., maps; 23 cm. Originally published: Universal Publishers, 1951. Glossary, Kamar-English, pp. [200]-207. Includes bibliographical references (p. [208]-209) and index.

"The Kamar by S.C. Dube is based on the dissertation for which he was awarded the PhD degree of Nagpur University in 1947, when he was 25. The manuscript was prepared for publication mainly during the author's two-year stay (1948 and 1949) in Lucknow.... The text appears here much as it did fifty years ago. I thought it proper to preserve the 'flavour' of the period and of Dube's relative youth when he wrote the book" (Preface to the New Edition, Leela Dube).

"The advantage of a book like The Kamar is that it has something of interest for everyone. Future anthropologists and historians of kinship can mine it as much as anthropologists studying shifting cultivation and the importance of fishing in an adivasi economy. Scholars of religion and ethnic politics may study it for the light it throws on Hinduization" (Introduction to the New Edition, Nandini Sundar).

[KAMAS] Kamassian is an extinct Samoyedic language, included by convention in the Southern group together with Mator and Selkup (although this does not constitute an actual subfamily). It had two dialects, Kamassian (also known as Kamas) and Koibal. The last native speaker of the Kamassian dialect, Klavdiya Plotnikova, died in 1989. Kamassian was spoken in Russia, east of the Ural mountains, by Kamasins. The term Koibal is also used as the ethnonym for the Kamas people who shifted to the Turkic Khakas language; the modern Koibal people are mixed Samoyed–Khakas–Yeniseian (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xas. Alternate Names: Kamassian.

1944: [LILLYbm] Kai Donners Kamassisches Wörterbuch, nebst Sprachproben und Hauptzügen der Grammatik, edited by A[ulis] J[ohannes] Joki. Helsinki: Suomalais-Ugrilainen Seura, 1944. Original tan wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. I-VII VIII-LI LII, I-3 4-215 216. First edition. Lexica Societatis Fenno-Urgicae VIII. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes Kamassin-German, pp. [3]-82, a further appendix of additional Kamassin-German vocabulary discovered among Donner's papers after the present dictionary was already set, pp. [194]-196, double columns, and a German index keyed to Kamassin, pp. [200]-215, four columns, with errata, p. [216]. Donner died in 1935 at the age of 46 from a serious illness contracted during his travels in Siberia. Kamassin is the language of the Kamasin Tartars, one of the sub-groups of the "so-called Samoyedes inhabiting the South of the governments of Tomsk and Yeniseisk have been much under Tartar influence and appear to be of a different stock." By 1987, only one speaker, 92 years old, remained. This is the first dictionary of the language. Second copy: IUW.

[KAMASA] Kamasa is a nearly extinct Angan language of Papua New Guinea (Wiki).

Ethnologue: klp.

1973: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KAMAYURÁ] The Kamayurá language (Kamaiurá in Portuguese) belongs to the Tupi–Guarani family, and is spoken by the Kamayurá people of Brazil – who numbered about 600 individuals in 2014. The Kamayurá people live in the Mato Grosso region of Brazil, specifically in the Upper Xingu area. Currently, there are many transcribed works of the Kamayurá language as well as many grammatical concepts. In her book “Gramatica do Kamaiura” (“Grammar of the Kamaiura”) Lucy Seki goes into detail on morphological structures and various phonological features of the Kamayurá language, [and includes a lexicon with 1200 entries (see below)] (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kay. Alternate Names: Kamaiura, Kamaiurá, Kamayirá.

1894: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF SOUTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

2000: [IUW] Gramática do kamaiurá: língua tupi-guarani do Alto Xingu, by Lucy Seki. Campinas, SP, Brasil: Editora da Unicamp; São Paulo, SP: Imprensa Oficial SP, c2000. 482 p.: col. ill., maps; 25 cm. Pesquisas (Editora da UNICAMP). Originally presented as the author's thesis (post-doctoral)--Texas University. Includes bibliographical references (p. 473-482).

[KAMBA] The Kamba /'kæmbə/ language, or Kikamba, is a Bantu language spoken by the Kamba people of Kenya. It is also spoken by 5,000 people in Tanzania (Thaisu). The Kamba language has lexical similarities to other Bantu languages such as Kikuyu, Meru, and Embu. In Kenya, Kamba is generally spoken in 4 out of the forty-seven Counties of Kenya. These counties are Machakos, Kitui, Makueni, and Kwale. The Machakos variety is considered the standard variety of the three dialects and has been used in the translation of the Bible (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kam. Alternate Names: Akamba, Kekamba, Kikamba.

1850: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES...POLYGLOT.

1885: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES...POLYGLOT.

1904: see 1904b under AFRICAN LANGUAGES...POLYGLOT.

1906 [2012]: [IUW] Handbuch der Kambasprache, Ernst Brutzer. Muenchen: LINCOM Europa, 2012. 100 p.; 21 cm. Original orange and yellow wrappers, lettered in black and yellow. LINCOM gramatica; 118. Facsimile reprint. Originally published: MSOS 9, III. Abt.: 3-100, 1906. Includes brief German-Kamba vocabularies based on parts on speech, for example an alphabetical vocabulary of verbs, pp. 25-29. Reprints the original Foreword to the 1906 edition, dated 1904.

1959: [LILLYbm] English-Kamba Vocabulary, compiled by John S. Mbiti. Nairobi: Eagle Press, 1959. Original wrappers. First edition. Hendrix 806. Kamba is spoken by about 3 million people in the southeastern part of Kenya. Second copy: IUW; Nairobi: Kenya Literature Bureau, 1981; original powder-blue wrappers, lettered in black; see inside back wrapper for printing date; iv, 52 p.; brief Foreword dated May 1958. Includes English-Kamba, pp. 1-52.

2006: [IUW] Kikamba dictionary: Kikamba-English: Kikamba-Kikamba: English-Kikamba, John Harun Mwau. 2nd ed. Nairobi, Kenya: Mwau, J.H., c2006. vi, 676 p.: ill.; 23 cm. Original dark, light orange, purple and white wrappers, lettered in purple and white. Includes Kikamba-English, pp. 1-257, Kikamba-Kikamba, pp. 258-469, and English-Kikamba, pp. 470-645.

"In this First Kikamba dictionary I have sought to represent as wide a range of Kikamba dialects as possible. The compilation of indigenous language dictionaries has for a long time been the preserve of Western scholars. This was the case with pioneering dictionaries. As a result of an in-depth research, I have endeavored to be true and just to the history of the evolving language and the cultural dynamics involved.... [T]his dictionary is intended for library, home, school, business, and any other activity where mastery of Kikamba is a prerequisite. It is my hope that it will be a vital resource in the preservation of Wakamba culture, literature, and history; forming a platform for further exploits" (Foreword).

[KAMBAATA] Kambaata is a Highland East Cushitic language, part of the larger Afro-Asiatic family and spoken by the Kambaata people. Dialects are Kambaata, Tambaro, Alaba, and K'abeena. It is one of the official languages of Ethiopia. The New Testament and some parts of the Old Testament have been translated into the Kambaata language. At first, they were published in the Ethiopian syllabary (New Testament in 1992), but later on, they were republished in Latin letters, in conformity with new policies and practices (Wiki). Ethnologue lists Tamabaró as a dialect of Kambaata.

Ethnologue: ktb. Alternate Names: Donga, Kambara, Kambata, Kambatta, Kemata, Kembata.

1890: see under ETHIOPIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

2010: see under MESMES.

[KAMBERA] Kambera, also known as (East) Sumbanese, is a Malayo-Polynesian language spoken in the Lesser Sunda Islands, Indonesia. Kambera is a member of Bima-Sumba subgrouping within Central Malayo-Polynesian inside Malayo-Polynesian. The island of Sumba, located in the Eastern Indonesia, has an area of 12,297 km<sup>2</sup>. The name Kambera comes from a traditional region which is close to a town in Waingapu. Because of export trades which concentrated in Waingapu in the 19th century, the language of the Kambera region has become the bridging language in eastern Sumba (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xbr. Alternate Names: East Sumba, East Sumbanese, Hilu Humba, Humba, Oost-Sumbaas, Sumba, Sumbanese.

1901: [LILLYbm] "Soembaneesche Wordenlijst, by W. Pos. Extract from Bijdragen tot de taal-, land- en volkenkunde van Nederlandsch-Indie, ser. 6, v.9, pp. [184]-284. 1901. Contemporary unprinted dark-green quarter cloth and black marbled paper over boards. Pp. 183-185 186-284. First printing. Not in Zaunmüller. OCLC lists a copy with this pagination as published by M. Nijhoff in 1901.

1984: [LILLYbm] Kambaraas (Oost-Soembaas)-Nederlands Woordenboek met Nederlands-Kambaraas Register, by L. Onvlee, Oe. H. Kapita & P. J. Luijendijk. Dordrecht: Foris Publications, 1984. Original brown cloth over boards, lettered in gold and decorated in blind. Pp. I-VII VIII-XXII XXIII-XXIV, 1 2-628. First edition. Includes Kambera-Dutch, pp. [1]-563, and a Dutch-Kambera index, pp. 567-626. An Indonesian-Kambera dictionary appeared in 1982.

"Kambera ... is primarily spoken in the district of Kambera around Waingapoe... and is clearly related to the dialects spoken in the remainder of East Sumba, Central Sumba, and the eastern part of West Sumba" (Introduction, tr: BM).

[KAMI] Kami is a Bantu language of the Morogoro region of Tanzania (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kcu. Alternate Names: Kikami.

1899: [LILLY] Kikami die Sprache der Wakami in Deutsch-Ostafrika, by Carl Velten (b. 1862). Berlin, 1899. Inaugural Dissertation. 56 p. 8vo. Original blue cloth lettered in gold and decorated in blind. Not in Hendrix. Kami-German, pp. 41-56, double columned.

Reprinted 2011: [IUW] Kikami, die Sprache der Wakami in Deutsch-Ostafrika, C. Velten. Munchen: LINCOM Europa, 2011. 56 p.; 22 cm. LINCOM gramatica; 40.

[KANAKANABU] Kanakanavu (also spelled Kanakanabu) is a Southern Tsouic language is spoken by the Kanakanavu people, an indigenous people of Taiwan (see Taiwanese aborigines). It is a Formosan language of the Austronesian family. The Kanakanavu live in the two villages of Manga and Takanua in Namasia District (formerly Sanmin Township), Kaohsiung. The language is considered to be moribund (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xnb. Alternate Names: Kanabu, Kanakanavu.

1941: see under AUSTRONESIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KANDE] Kande is an undocumented Bantu language of Gabon (Wiki). [But see below as of 2015].

Ethnologue: kbs. Alternate Names: Kanda, Okande.

2015: [IUW] La communauté Mokandè de Lopé: une histoire des Mèmbè du Gabon: suivi d'un lexique ghékandè-kandè-français, by Jean Paul Olonga Mokanga. Libreville (Gabon): Les Éditions du silence, [2015] ©2015. 110 pages: illustrations, 2 maps; 22 cm. Original two-tone blue and black wrappers, lettered in black, blue, red and white, with a photo of the author on the back and a color photo on a masked tribal figure on the front. "Lexique Ghékandé-Kandé / Français," Kande-French, pp. 101-110. Includes bibliographical references (page 97).

"[This work] is a transcription of aspects of the Kande culture. It offers a synopsis of the history, rites and customs of the Kande people.... We offer to our readers an inspiring and long adventure, even though it is but the first stage in our journey to the country of the Mokande" (from the rear cover, tr: BM).

[KANDOZI-CHAPRA] Candoshi-Shapra (also known as Candoshi, Candoxi, Kandoshi, and Murato) is an indigenous American language isolate, spoken by several thousand people in western South America along the Chapuli, Huitoyacu, Pastaza, and Morona river valleys. There are two dialects, Chapara (also spelled Shapra) and Kandoashi. It is an official language of Peru, like other native languages in the areas in which they are spoken and are the predominant language in use. Their people are pride of their language, which seems to be prospering, 88.5 percent of people being bilingual with Spanish. There is 10 to 30 percent literacy and 15 to 25 percent in the second language Spanish. There is a Candoshi-Shapra dictionary, and grammar rules have been codified (Wiki).

Ethnologue: cbu. Alternate Names: Candoshi, Candoshi-Shapra, Candoxi, Kandoshi, Murato.

1966: [IUW] Vocabulario Candoshi de Loreto, by John C. Tuggy. Yarinacocha, Peru: Instituto Linguístico de Verano, 1966. 258 p.: ill.; 22 cm. Summer Institute of Linguistics. Serie linguística peruana, no. 2.

[KANEMBU] Kanembu is a Nilo-Saharan language spoken in Chad by the Kanembu people. It is closely related to Kanuri (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kbl. Alternate Names: Kaidi-Kanembu, Kanambu, Kanembou.

1931: [IUW] Die Sprache der Káidi-Kanembú in Kanem, by Johannes Lukas. Berlin, D. Reimer, 1931. Pp. 1-4 5-116. 23 cm. Library binding, preserving the original brownish-yellow wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Kanembu-Germa, pp. 103-11n6.

"The Kanuri language that stretches over a broad area is divided into a number of dialects that are, on the whole, not much different from one another. They are mutually intelligible everywhere. A group of its own is formed by the various dialects of the Kanembu tribes, of which until now no material has been available. My intention to fill this gap was fulfilled in the winter of 1928-1929, in Ma'ádi near Cairo, where I had the opportunity to meet with Azhar-Moschee natives and convince them to engage in language studies" (Vorwort, tr: BM).

"In the following vocabulary, only those words are included that either do not exist at all in Kanuri, or exist, but in another form or meaning" (p. 103, tr: BM).

[KANIET] The Kaniet languages were two of four Western Admiralty Islands languages, a subgroup of the Admiralty Islands languages, the other two being Wuvulu-Aua and Seimat. The languages were spoken on the Kaniet Islands (Anchorite Islands) in western Manus Province of Papua New Guinea until the 1950s. Two languages were spoken on the islands, one reported by Thilenius and one by Dempwolff (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ktk.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KANGJIA] The Kangjia language (in Chinese, 康家语 Kāngjiā Yǔ) is a recently discovered Mongolic language spoken by a Muslim population of around 300 people in Jainca (Jianzha) County, Huangnan Tibetan Autonomous Prefecture in Qinghai province of China. As to its taxonomic affiliation, Kangjia seems to be an intermediate between Bonan language and Dongxiang language (Santa) (Wiki). Ethnologue: kxs. Alternate Names: Kangyang Hui.

1999: [IUW] 康家语研究 / 斯钦朝克图著. Kangjia yu yan jiu / Siqinzhao ketu zhu. 第1版. Di 1 ban. First edition. 上海: 上海远东出版社, 1999.

Shanghai: Shanghai yuandong chu ban she, 1999. 中国新发现语言研究丛书

Zhongguo xin fa xian yu yan yan jiu cong shu. Kangjia-Chinese vocabulary, pp. 278-307. Includes bibliographical references (p.327-328).

[KANKANAY, NORTHERN] A language of Philippines spoken in the Sagada area (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xnn. Alternate Names: Sagada Igorot, Western Bontoc.

1957: [LILLYbm] A Vocabulary of the Sagada Igorot Dialect, by William Henry Scott. [Chicago]: Philippine Studies Program, Department of Anthropology, University of Chicago, [1957]. Original blue wrappers, lettered in black. 77 leaves + loosely inserted leaf of errata. First edition. Transcript No. 6. With a loosely printed slip "University of Chicago: With the compliments of the Department of Anthropology." The vocabulary, leaves [1]-77. This is the first dictionary of Northern Kankanay. Second copy: IUW.

"Mr. William Jenry Scott, a teacher in the Episcopal Mission High School of St. Mary the Virgin in Sagada, has compiled the vocabulary in connection with the translation of ritual texts and the compilation of data on Sagada life and culture" (Foreward). "Sagada is municipality of some 10,000 Igorots, about 3,000 of whom live in close proximity as neighbors with the rest spread throughout smaller villages up to three miles away, in Bontoo Sub-Province of the Mountain Province of the Philippine Republic... The main occupation of Sagaans is growing rice in irrigated stone-walled terraces built up and down the valley formed by the small streams which supply them with water... The Sagada Igorot dialect as represented in this vocabulary is spoken by about 17,000 natives of Sagada and Besao municipalities."

[KANNADA] Kannada /'kɑ:nədə, 'kæ-/ (ಕನ್ನಡ kannāḍa, IPA: ['kʌn:əɖɑ:]), also known as Canarese or Kanarese /kænə'ri:z/, is a Dravidian language spoken predominantly by Kannada people in South India, mainly in the state of Karnataka, and by linguistic minorities in the states of Andhra Pradesh, Telangana, Tamil Nadu, Maharashtra, Kerala, and Goa. The language has roughly 40 million native speakers who are called Kannadigas (Kannadīgaru), and a total of 50.8 million speakers according to a 2001 census. It is one of the scheduled languages of India and the official and administrative language of the state of Karnataka.

The Kannada language is written using the Kannada script, which evolved from the 5th-century Kadamba script. Kannada has an unbroken literary history of over a thousand years. Based on the recommendations of the Committee of Linguistic Experts, appointed by the Ministry of Culture, the Government of India designated Kannada a classical language of India. In July 2011, a centre for the study of classical Kannada was established as part of the Central Institute of Indian Languages at Mysore to facilitate research related to the language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kan. Alternate Names: Banglori, Canarese, Havyaka, Kanarese, Madrassi.

1820: [LILLY] A Grammar of the Carnátaca Language. By John McKerrell, Esq. of Hill-House, Ayrshire; and of the Honourable East India Company's Civil Service, on the Establishment of Fort St. George. Madras: Printed at the College Press. 1820. Pp. [2] i ii-iii iv 1 2-26 27 28-84 85 86-121 122-123 124-138 139 140-150 151 152-155 156-157 158-196 197 [appendix] 1 2-15 16. 30 cm. Contemporary full calf, with red leather label on spine, lettered in gold. Includes brief Canarese-English vocabularies in the various chapters and an appendix including numbers, days of the week, months, etc.

"...unless those who govern, be acquainted with the Language of the governed, a set of middle men will arise who will ultimately become the scourges of the Country. In the territories under the British sway in India, this evil is disappearing; and, should the Work now submitted to the World under Your Majesty's most gracious auspices, be the means of hastening it's extirpation in one of the fairest portions of our Eastern possessions, I shall not consider that I have labored in vain" (Dedication to the King).

"In the year 1809 I proposed to the Government of Madras, to compile the work which is now presented to the public. My offer was accepted; but ill health at one period, and of late years most laborious official avocations, have prevented its publication till the present time" (Preface), with acknowledgements to an ancient textual source "The Mirror of Gems" by Césava, and to Indian staff. "From my own countrymen, as the Carnátaca language has hitherto been but very little studied, I have not been able to derive any aid," although he thanks those who have given him "useful hints" and "several corrections" to the manuscript.

1858a: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary, Canarese and English, by W[illiam] Reeve, revised, corrected and enlarged by Daniel Sanderson. Bangalore: Printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, 1858. Pp. 1-8 9-1040. 19.8 cm. Contemporary brown half-calf and brown cloth over boards, black leather label on spine, lettered and decorated in gold. Revised and enlarged edition. Zaunmüller, col. 219, giving first edition as Madras, 1834-1841. Second copy: IUW.

"For many years there has been a desire to have the large volume of Mr. Reeve in portable form; but the absence of sufficiently small Canarese type, and the expense of printing so large a work, prevented any steps being taken to effect it. These obstacles having been removed by the preparation of a font of minion type, at the expense of the Wesleyan Missionary Society, and by the liberal patronage of ...Sir Mark Cubbon...the present volume is the result. The alternations from the original work are, chiefly:- ...the insertion of upwards of eleven hundred additional words, and a still larger number of additional meanings...It is hoped that the portability of the present volume, reduced...to a convenient octavo, will make it a useful contribution to the available Canarese literature."

1858b: [LILLY] A Dictionary, Canarese and English, by the Rev. W[illiam] Reeve, revised, corrected and abridged by Daniel Sanderson, Wesleyan Missionary. Bangalore: Printed at the Wesleyan Mission Press, 1858. Pp. 3-8 9-275 275 276. 21 cm. Modern brown half-leather and light brown patterned paper over boards, spine with raised bands, decorated in gold, with red leather label lettered in gold. This edition, which offered readers a much smaller dictionary than the enlarged one listed above, has no special preface. It both limits severely the number of words included in the enlarged edition, and shortens many of the definitions. Includes Canarese-English, pp. 9-276. Cf. Vater p. 502. Zaunmüller, col. 219.

1894: [LILLYbm] A Kannada-English Dictionary, by F[erdinand] Kittel. Mangalore: Basel Mission book and tract depository, 1894. Contemporary brown half-leather and green cloth, over boards, lettered in gold. 1752 pp. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 217. Second copy: IUW.

"Kannada is spoken throughout the plateau of Mysore, in the southern Mahratta country, in some of the western districts of the Nijam's dominions, and to a considerable extent in north and south Canara on the western coast. The number of people by whom Kannada is spoken may be estimated at about ten millions. It includes three main dialects-classical, medieval, and modern." This work was characterized by Friedrich Müller in a German-language contemporary advertisement as "one of the outstanding accomplishments of oriental philology and modern linguistics" and "a splendid monument to German industry and German scholarship" (tr: BM).

1909: [LILLY] The English-Kanarese School Dictionary, by Rev. F. Ziegler. Fourth edition, revised and considerably enlarged. Mangalore: Basel Mission Book and Tract Depository, 1909. Contemporary brown half-leather and marbled paper over boards. Pp. I-III IV-VIII, 1 2-590 591-592 [advert]. Fourth edition. The previous three editions of this work were smaller versions; the first in 1876, under the title School dictionary, English and Canarese, was compiled by F. Ziegler, M.T. Walz, and C. Watsa; 2nd ed. 1889, 3rd ed., 1896. Cf. prefaces to the 2nd and 3rd ed, NUC pre-56 683:482 and BM 263:458. The 4th considerably revised and enlarged ed. was the first issued under this title, and contains the prefaces to the 2nd and 3rd eds.

196-?: [IUW] Kannada made easy; by the natural method in Roman characters, with a copious English-Kannada vocabulary, by H. R. Rao. Bombay, D. B. Taraporevala Sons [196-?]. First edition. iv, 284 p. 15 cm.

1967: [LILLYbm] Hallaki Kannada, by A. S. Acharya. Poona: Deccan College, 1967. Original pale blue-gray wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. 226 pp. First edition. Linguistic Survey of India Series: 1. Kannada-English, pp. 164-226. Second copy: IUW.

"Hallaki is a dialect of Kannada spoken by the Hallaki Wokkalas. They number about 40,000 and reside mostly in the villages of Kumta, Karwar, Ankola and Honnawar Taluka in the North Kanara District of Mysore State. Their main occupation is agriculture. The material consists of about 3,000 words..."

1968a: [IUW] Gulbarga Kannada: Brahmin dialect, by R. Mahadevan. Poona [Deccan College Postgraduate and Research Institute] 1968. First edition. xi, 166 p. 22 cm. Original powder-blue wrappers, lettered in black. Linguistic survey of India series; 3. Gulbarga Kannada-English, pp. [127]-168.

"Gulbarga is one of the nineteen districts of the present Mysore State with Kannada speaking Bijapur and Raichur in the South, Bidar district in the north and the districts of Andhra Pradesh (Telugu) and Maharashtra in the east and the west respectively. The material was collected from Sri P. R. Deshmukh, a Madhva Brahmin, aged 31, coming from Suntnu:ru (Aland Taluk) 12 miles north of Gulbarga town. He is educated up to matric and knows Marathi and English besides having a working knowledge of Hindi and Telugu" (Preface).

1968b: [IUW] Nanjangud Kannada: Vakkaliga dialect, by U. Padmanabha Upadhyaya. Poona [Deccan College Postgraduate and Research Institute] 1968. First edition. 207 p. 22 cm. Original cream wrappers, lettered in black. Linguistic survey of India series; 2. Nanjangud Kannada-English, pp. [106]-207.

"Nanjangud is the central taluk of the southernmost district of the Mysore state which is also called Mysore.... The dialect of Kannada spoken in this area is popularly known as Mysore Kannada. The present study is based on the speech of the Fakkaligas who form a major non-Brahmin community in this area, mostly engaged in agriculture. Mr. Nanjappa, the informant, is an elderly man about 65 years old, who in addition to agriculture has also practiced wrestling. He is uneducated and monolingual. The data consists of about four thousand vocabulary items, paradigms of a number of nouns and verbs, [one] hundred sentences and nine stories. These were orally transcribed and recorded on tape during the month of October 1965 at Nanjangud" (Preface).

1971a: [IUW] Barkur Kannada, by A. S. Acharya. Poona, Deccan College, 1971. 102 p. 22 cm. Library binding incorporating original light blue front wrappers, lettered in black. Linguistic survey of India series; 6. University of Poona. Centre of Advanced Study in Linguistics. Series major; no. 1. Barkur Kannada-English, pp. 72-102.

"Barkur is a historically important small town situated in Udipi taluk of South Kanara district in coastal Mysore. It is about 45 miles north of Mangalore and isolated from the Tulu-speaking area of the district by two rivers (on which bridges have been constructed very recently). It is surrounded on all the four sides by Kannada-speaking people.... The name Barkur Kannada is given to this dialect as it is spoken in Barkur. The present analysis is based on the material collected from Shri B. Chandrashekhara Bhat, B.Sc., who belongs to the community of Shivalli Brahmins at Barkur. Assistance was also received from his father, Shri Subraya Bhat and his elder brother, Shri Shripati Bhat. The field work was carried out during the months of April and May 1967, under the Linguistic Survey Project of Deccan College, Poona" (Preface).

1971b: [IUW] Coorg Kannada (Jenu Kuruba dialect). Poona, [S. M. Katre for the Deccan College, Postgraduate and Research Institute] 1971. First edition. 8, 88 p. 21 cm. Library binding incorporating the original light gray front wrapper, lettered in black. Linguistic survey of India series; 9. Kannada (Jenu Kuruba dialect)-English, pp. [65]-88.

1971c: [IUW] Tiptur Kannada, by A. S. Acharya. Poona [Deccan College, Postgraduate and Research Institute] 1971. First edition. 112 p. 22 cm. Library binding incorporating original cream-colored front wrappers, lettered in black. Linguistic survey of India series; 8. Tiptur Kannada-English, pp. [80]-112.

"Tiptur is a Taluk in Tumkur district of Mysore state. The material for the present analysis was collected at Tiptur town (which is about 140 km away from Bangalore on the Bangalore-Poona line) from an adult informant, Shri Madenuru Puttananjappa, from a nearby village Madenur. Assistance was also received from another young informant, Shri Ranayya of Nittur in the same district. Both of them belonged to the community of Lingayat agriculturists who form one of the major communit[ies] in the area. The field work was carried out during the months of May and June 1966 under the Linguistic Survey of India Project, Deccan College" (Preface).

1976: [IUW] A comparative study of Kannada dialects: Bellary, Gulbarga, Kumta, and Nanjangud dialects, U. P. Upadhyaya. Mysore: Prasaranga, University of Mysore, 1976. First edition. xx, 317 p., [1] leaf of plates: ill.; 25 cm. Library binding. University of Mysore; 64. Originally presented as the author's thesis, University of Poona, 1968. Appendix I: Comparative vocabulary [of dialects]: Standard Kannada-Bellary-Gulbarga-Kumta-Nanjangud, pp. [273]-301.

"The data consist of about three thousand words from each dialect. About 350 items showing certain phonemic and lexical variations are selected and recorded here along with the corresponding Standard Kannada forms" (p. [273]).

1979: [IUW] Kannada-russkiĭ slovar': Okolo 35.000 slov / M. S. Andronov, M. A. Dashko, V. A. Makarenko; Pod red. Umapati Tumkura; S pril. krat. ocherka grammatiki ĩaz. kannada M. S. Andronova. Moskva: Rus. ĩaz., 1979. 762 p.; 27 cm. Added t.p. in Kannada. Bibliography: p. [762]. Kannada-Russian dictionary.

2014: [IUW] = کنڑا: مع تلفظ به زبان انگریزی و کنڑا -انگریزی -سه لسانی لغت: اردو = Trilingual dictionary: Urdu - English - Kannada: with pronunciation in English and Kannada = Tri bhāṣā nighaṇṭu: Urdu - Inġliṣu - Kannada: Inġliṣu mattu Kannadaḍalli uccāraṇe sahita / زیر نگرانی، رگھوتم راؤ دیسانی. پہلی اشاعت.

Pahlī ishā'at. Na'ī Dihlī: Qaumī Kaunsil barā'e Farogh-i Urdū Zabān, 2014. vi, 628 pages; 29 cm. Urdu, English and Kannada (Urdu in Arabic script, roman, and Gujarati script). Urdu-English-Kannada dictionary.

[KANURI] Kanuri /kə'nu:ri/ is a dialect continuum spoken by some four million people, as of 1987, in Nigeria, Niger, Chad and Cameroon, as well as small minorities in southern Libya and by a diaspora in Sudan. It belongs to the Western Saharan subphylum of Nilo-Saharan. Kanuri is the language associated with the Kanem and Bornu empires which dominated the Lake Chad region for a thousand years. Traditionally a local lingua franca, its usage has declined in recent decades. Most first-language speakers speak Hausa or Arabic as a second language.

Ethnologue considers Kanuri a macro-language including 1. Central Kanuri (knc: alternate names: Beriberi, Bornu, Kanouri, Kanoury, Yerwa Kanuri); 2. Manga Kanuri (kby: alternate names: Kanouri, Kanoury, Manga), and 3. Tumari Kanuri (krt: alternate names: Kanambu, Kanembu).

1826: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1854: [LILLYbm] African native literature, or Proverbs, tales, fables, & historical fragments in the Kanuri or Bornu language. To which are added a translation of the above and a Kanuri-English vocabulary, by S[igismund] W[ilhelm] Koelle. London: Church Missionary House, 1854. Original black pebbled cloth over boards, decorated in blind, spine lettered in gold (rear cover loose; binding needs repair). Pp. I-V VI-XIV XV-XVI, 1 2-434. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 219. Hendrix 818. Includes Kanuri-English, pp. 257-434. This copy with the ink contemporary ownership signature of Mary Ashley and various pencilled notes, probably by a later owner (purchase note dated June 1904 in pencil on rear inner cover). The only earlier vocabulary of the language was published in the previous year by Edwin Norris as part of a grammar.

"...the Grammar [of Edwin Norris, along with] the native Literature, and the Vocabulary [published here], will be found to form something complete, as far as they go, in one of the most important Negro languages, hitherto unknown.... It is hoped that the publication of these first specimens of a Kanuri literature will prove useful in more than one way.... It introduces the reader ... into the inward world of the Negro and Negro thoughts, and this is a circumstance of paramount importance, so long as there are any who flatly negative the question, or, at least, consider it still open, 'whether the Negroes are a genuine portion of Mankind or not'.... The question can not be decided without consulting the languages of the Negroes; for language gives the expression and manifestation of the mind. Now as the Grammar proves that Negro languages are capable of expression human thoughts,-- some of them, through their rich formal development, even with an astonishing precision, -- so specimens like the following 'Native literature' show that the Negroes actually have thoughts to express, that they reflect and reason about things just as other men. Considered in such a point of view, these specimens may go a long way towards refuting the old-fashioned doctrine of an essential inequality of the Negroes with the rest of mankind" (Preface).

"The Rev. Koelle ... in the winter of 1849, had begun in Sierra Leone his diligent and accurate study of the Bórnu- or Kanúri-language and, no doubt, my own labours have suffered great damage from the circumstance, that his works on this subject were not brought out some years earlier, as, proceeding from this base, they would have made infinitely greater progress." (Heinrich Barth in the introductory remarks to his Collection of vocabularies of Central-African languages, Gotha, Justus Perthes, 1862, p. v).

Reprinted 1968: [IUW] African native literature. S. W. Koelle.

Introduction: David Dalby. Published in association with the African Language Review. Um eine Einleitung verm. Nachdruck der 1854 in London erschienenen Ausg. Photomechanischer Nachdruck. Graz, Akademische Druck- u. Verlagsanstalt, 1968. xiii, xiv, 434 p. 19 cm. Bibliography: p. xii-xiii. Reprint of the 1854 London edition.

1862-1866: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1911: [LILLY] Kanuri Readings, including Facsimiles of MSS., Transliterations, Interlinear Translation and Notes, also a Complete English-Kanuri Vocabulary and a Partial Kanuri-English Vocabulary, by P. Askeell Benton. London: Oxford University Press, 1911. Pp. 1-5 6-56 57 58-85 86 87-110 + I-XVII (facsimiles). [measure]. Original dark blue cloth, lettered in black. First edition. Hendrix 813. Includes English-Kanuri, pp. [57]-85, and Kanuri-English, pp. 87-108.

"This book is intended to be supplementary to the books on Kanuri published by F. W. Koelle in 1854, which are practically indispensable to the student.... Perhaps it might not be out of place to mention that any merits that this book may possess are largely owing to a youthful grounding in and grinding at those classical tongues which it is now so fashionable to despise" (Preface). F. W. Benton was "Assistant Resident, Bornu Province, Northern Nigeria."

1923: [LILLY] Petit manuel français-kanouri, by P. Noel. Paris: Librairie orientaliste P. Geuthner, 1923. 130 p.; 19 cm. Contemporary maroon cloth, lettered in gold, original gray wrappers lettered in black preserved. Binding of the Royal Asiatic Society, with their ink stamp on the front wrapper. Preface by Maurice Delafosse. In addition to praising Noel's work, Delafosse provides a detailed chronological list of prior appearances of the Kanuri language, from 1819 to 1920, pp. 6-11. Includes "Lexique Kanouri-Français," pp. [87]-130.

1924: see 1924a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1931: [IUW] Die Sprache der Káidi-Kanembú in Kanem, by Johannes Lukas. Berlin, D. Reimer, 1931. 116 p. 23 cm. Afrika und Übersee; Beiheft 13.

1937a: [LILLY] An English-Kanuri sentence book, by Randall Erskine Ellison [1904- ]. London: Published on behalf of the Government of Nigeria by the Crown Agents for the Colonies, 1937. 120 p. 19 cm. Original blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Hendrix 2151. This copy with the ownership signature of Heino Sassoon, dated January 1952, and the nameplate of John Lawson.

"This sentence book is intended to be supplementary to Dr. J. Lukas's A Study of the Kanuri Language which is shortly to be published [see below]" (Foreword).

1937b: [LILLYbm] A Study of the Kanuri Language: Grammar and Vocabulary, by Johannes Lukas. London, New York, Toronto: Published for the International Institute of African Languages & Cultures by Oxford University Press, 1937. Original blue-green cloth over boards, lettered in gold; d.j. tan, lettered in red. 254 pp. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Hendrix 821. Includes, pp. [183]-253, a Kanuri-English vocabulary. Zauhmüller, col. 219. From the library of Carleton T. Hodge. Second copy: IUW.

"Kanurí is the language of the Kanúri living mostly in Bornu Province which lies west of Lake Chad and belongs to the Northern Provinces of Nigeria... The language analysed in this book is the Kanuri spoken in Yerwa, which may be considered the very centre of Kanuri life" (Introduction). "The tone-system of Kanuri has hitherto been overlooked... Kanuri, like so many other African languages, is a tone-language" (Preface). The first Kanuri-English vocabularies were published by Koelle (see above) and Norris respectively in 1854 and 1853. A German dictionary of the language was published in 1978 by Sani in Saarbrücken.

1982: [IUW] Lexique kanuri, by Yacoudima Adam. Niamey: INDRAP, 1982. 50 p.; 30 cm. Library binding, preserving original tan front wrapper, lettered in black.

Reproduced from typescript. Etudes & documents (INDRAP (Corporate body)); no 157. At head of title: République du Niger, Ministère de l'éducation nationale, Section langues nationales. Includes Kanuri-French, pp. 1-50.

"This Kanuri-French lexicon includes all the words of other existing monographs in the Kanuri language" (Avant-propos; tr: BM).

1987b: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1990: [LILLYbm] Dictionary of the Kanuri Language, ed. by Norbert Cyffer & John Hutchison. Dordrecht, Holland; Providence, RI, U.S.A: Nigeria: Foris Publications; University of Maiduguri, 1990. Original green, light green and white wrappers, lettered and decorated in black and green. Pp. i-iv v-xix xx, 1-200. First edition. Publications in African languages and linguistics, 13. Kanuri-English only. Second copy: IUW.

"The preparation of this dictionary was begun in 1974...While this represents the first major attempt at producing a dictionary, there do exist some significant vocabularies such as that of S.W. Koelle... (1854), and...J. Lukas (1937) [see above for both]. These very significant works have certainly influenced the present dictionary" (Introduction).

1991: IUW] We learn Kanuri, by Norbert Cyffer; assisted by Umara Bulakarima, Yaganami Karta; illustrated by Bernd Gimbel. Köln: Rüdiger Köppe, c1991. 376 p.: ill.; 23 cm. Library binding incorporating original red wrappers, lettered in black, with a cover illustration. Afrikawissenschaftliche Lehrbücher; Bd. 2. English and Kanuri. Kanuri-English, pp. 339-373. With index.

"So far the major source for learning the language has been Johannes Lukas' A Study of the Kanuri Language. Grammar and Vocabulary (1937) [see above]. However, in recent years it has been felt that this invaluable scholarly work no longer reflected the modern needs for learning the language. Therefore this course was written, in order to familiarize the learner with the structure of the language... Before this course could be published, each unit was tested in Kanuri language classes at the University of Hamburg and Mainz" (Preface).

1994: [IUW] English - Kanuri dictionary, by Norbert Cyffer. Köln: R. Köppe, 1994. xiii, 226 p.; 24 cm. Westafrikanische Studien; Bd. 3 Includes bibliographical references.

200-?: [IUW] Muskoram dulibe I: sapsawi kalmawa Kanuribe fasariwanza nasarabe-a fotowan-a = Children's handbook I: a collection of Kanuri words, their English translations and their pictures, dawartewunze Bosoma Sheriff, Mohammed Bukar Kolo. Maiduguri: Desk-Top Publishers Cooperative Society, [200-?]. ii, 25 p.: ill.; 20 cm.

[KANURI, CENTRAL] Ethnologue divides Kanuri into the following languages, while many linguists (e.g. Cyffer 1998) regard them as dialects of a single language. The first three are spoken by ethnic Kanuri and thought by them as dialects of their language.

Central Kanuri

Manga Kanuri

Tumari Kanuri

Kanembu

(Wiki).

Ethnologue: knc. Alternate Names: Beriberi, Bornu, Kanouri, Kanoury, Yerwa Kanuri.

1819: see under NUBIAN.

[KAONDE] kiiKaonde, is a Bantu language (of the larger Niger–Congo family) that is spoken primarily in Zambia but also in the Democratic Republic of the Congo. Kaonde and its dialects are spoken and understood by perhaps 350,000 people or more. It is estimated that approximately 3% of Zambians are native Kaonde speakers. Kaonde speakers overwhelmingly live in the Northwestern and parts of Central regions of Zambia. Fewer numbers of Kaonde speakers live in the Democratic Republic of the Congo. However, they are not known or identified by the term Kaonde but rather by the term Luba. Strictly speaking, the term "Kaonde" refers to a group of people who are identified by a common language known as kiiKaonde. This group of people, like many others in Zambia, was originally part of the Luba Kingdom. They migrated south to area surrounding a stream called Kaonde in river Congo basin. From there, the people migrated into what is now Northwestern Zambia. This group of people called their language kiiKaonde. Speakers of other Bantu languages use the prefix "chi" other than "kii" to refer to this language. Thus non-Kaondes sometimes call the language Chikaonde (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kqn. Alternate Names: Chikahonde, Chikaonde, Kahonde, Kawonde, Luba Kaonde.

1924: [LILLY] A short introductory dictionary of the Kaonde language, with English-Kaonde appendix, by R.E. Broughall Woods. London: Religious tract society, 1924. 234 p., 1 l. 23 cm. Original brown cloth, lettered in black. First edition. Hendrix 831. Includes Kaonde-English, pp. [11]-180, and English-Kaonde, pp. 183-234.

1985: [IUW] English-Kaonde vocabulary, by J.L. Wright. Ndola, Zambia: Christian Publishers, Christian Education Dept. (E.C.Z.), 1985. First edition. 90 p.; 21 cm.

[KAPINGAMARANGI] Kapingamarangi is a Polynesian language spoken in the Federated States of Micronesia. It had 3,000 native speakers in 1995. The language is closely related to the Nukuoro language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kpg. Alternate Names: Kirinit.

1948: [IUW] Grammar and comparative study of the languages of Kapingamarangi, texts, and word lists, by Samuel H. Elbert. [Washington?] 1948. 289 l. 29 cm. Library binding. Includes bibliographies. Includes, Part IV, word lists: Kapingamarangi-English, ff. 153-244, and English-Kapingamarangi, ff. 245-289. First word lists of Kapingamarangi.

"The Nukuoro dialect is quite different from that of Kapingamarangi, but many natives of each island know the cognates of common words in the other dialect... In preparation for the field work, the 600 words collected by F. W. Christian ... had been tabulated. To facilitate future studies, these words are incorporated in the Kapingamarangi-English list following and designated by N" (note to Word Lists, p. 152).

1974: [LILLYbm] Kapingamarangi Lexicon, by Michael D. Lieber & Kalio H. Dikepa. Honolulu: University Press of Hawaii, 1974. Original stiff white wrappers, lettered and illustrated in dark blue. 382 pp. First edition. Includes both Kapingamarangi-English and English-Kapingamarangi. Other than two previous mimeographed word lists, this is the first dictionary of the language, which was first seriously studied in 1946. Second copy: IUW.

"Kapingamarangi is an atoll [in the Pacific Islands] ... of thirty-three flat islets... [with] a total land area of 0.42 square miles... and a population of about four hundred people... About 450 Kapinga live on other islands of the U.S. Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands."

[KAQCHIKEL] The Kaqchikel, or Kaqchiquel, language (in modern orthography; formerly also spelled Cakchiquel or Cakchiquiel) is an indigenous Mesoamerican language and a member of the Quichean–Mamean branch of the Mayan languages family. It is spoken by the indigenous Kaqchikel people in central Guatemala. It is closely related to the K'iche' (Quiché) and Tz'utujil languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: cak. Alternate Names: Cakchiquel, Kaqchikel, Kaqchiquel.

Ca. 1578: [LILLY] Vocabulario en lengua castellana, y guatemalteca, que se llama cak chiquel chi. Ca. 1578. Manuscript, 215 leaves. Bound in old red morocco with gilt back. Anonymous unpublished manuscript vocabulary, Spanish-Kaqchikel, ca. 1578. Probably compiled by one of the Dominican or Franciscan missionaries in Guatemala. The text is in two columns, with the Spanish in black ink and the Kaqchikel equivalents in red.

1862: [IUW] Gramatica de la lengua quiche. Grammaire de la langue quichée, espagnole-française mise en parallèle avec ses deux dialectes, cakchiquel et tzutuhil, tirée des manuscrits des meilleurs auteurs guatémaliens. Ouvrage accompagné de notes philologiques avec un vocabulaire ... et suivi d'un essai sur la poésie, la musique, la danse et l'art dramatique chez les Mexicains et les Guatémaltèques avant la conquête; servant d'introduction au Rabinal-Achi, drame indigène avec sa musique originale, texte quiché et traduction française en regard. Recueilli par l'abbé Brasseur de Bourbourg ... Paris, A. Bertrand; [etc., etc.] 1862. 2 v. in 1. 26 cm. Library binding, preserving the original brown front wrapper, lettered in black. Series: Collection de documents dans les langues indigènes, pour servir à l'étude de l'histoire et de la philologie de l'A
Contents: [1. ptie.] Grammaire de la langue quichée suivie d'un vocabulaire. 2. ptie. Rabinal-Achi ou Le drame-ballet du tun (quiché et français). Includes in Vol. 1: "Vocabulario de las principales raizes ó Fuentes de que salen los tres dialectos guatemalanos, quiche, cakchiquel y tzutuhil, con una traducción española y francesa y comparación etimológica de unos vocablos con las lenguas germanicas," pp. 167-256.

1892: see under MESOAMERICAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1956: [IUW] Método para aprender a hablar, leer, y escribir la lengua cakchiquel, por Alfredo Herbruger, Jr., y Eduardo Díaz Barrios. Guatemala, 1956-. v. 26 cm. Library binding. Includes sometimes extensive Kaqchikel-Spanish vocabularies with each lesson, throughout.

1983: [LILLYbm] [Thesaurus verboru[m]]: vocabulario de la lengua cakchiquel u[el] guatemalteca: nuevamente hecho y recopilado con summo estudio, trabajo y erudición, by Tomás de Cota, ed. and introduced by René Acuña. Mexico: Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México, 1983. Original light brown cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in brown and gold. Pp. I-IX (plate inserted after p.[II]) X-LXI LXII, 1-3 4-565 566, LXIII-LXV LXVI-CCLXVII CCLXVIII-CCLXX. First edition. Reproduction of an unpublished manuscript by Thomas de Coto begun in 1647 and unfinished at his death in 1656. It is a vocabulary of Cakchiquel with illustrative examples from earlier writers, in Spanish and Cakchiquel.

1991: [LILLYbm] Diccionario cakchiquel central y español, compiled by Jo Ann L. Munson. Guatemala, C.A.: Instituto Linguistico de Verano de Centroamerica, 1991. Original tan wrappers, lettered in blue and with a cover illustrations in ochre. Pp. i-xvii xviii-xx, 1 2-383 384-388. First edition. Includes Central Cakchiquel-Spanish, pp. [1]-240, and Spanish-Central Cakchiquel, pp. [279]-370. This is the first true dictionary of Central Cakchiquel. Second copy: IUW.

"This basic Cakchiquel-Spanish Dictionary was prepared with the speakers of the language in mind, most of them in the department of Chimaltenango, who have expressed a marked interest in knowing how to write their language. Another hope for the authors was that this dictionary would awaken in the speakers of Cakchiquel a sense of pride in their native language, and inspire them to read and write it frequently.... The Dictionary is primarily composed of approximately 4,500 words as they are employed in every-day spoken Cakchiquel. We have not included each and every existing word in the language, nor each of the more than 200 possible forms of the verbs" (Introduction, tr: BM).

1992: [LILLYbm] Palabras: diccionario ilustrado castellano-kaqchikel = b Jun ka'i' taq tzij: wachb'alun Choltzij kaxlan ch'ab'al-kaqchikel. Guatemala: Universidad Rafael Landivar, Instituto de Linguistica, 1992. Original multi-colored wrapperse, lettered in orange and green. Pp. [2] 1 2-215 216-218. First edition. P. [217] carries date of August 1994. Includes Spanish-Kaqchikel vocabulary keyed to numerous full-page illustrations. Part of a projected series of such dictionaries to aid in the bilingual education of Mayan children.

2006: [IUW] La ützwäch?: introduction to Kaqchikel Maya language / R. McKenna Brown, Judith M. Maxwell, Walter E. Little; illustrations, Angelika Bauer. Austin, TX: University of Texas Press, c2006. First edition. xiv, 305 p.: ill.; 28 cm. Includes glossary.

[KARA] The Fer language, also Dam Fer or Fertit, one of several languages called Kara ("Kara of Birao"), is a Central Sudanic language spoken by some five thousand people in the northern Central African Republic near the Sudanese and Chadian borders, in the region known as Dar Runga. While the Ethnologue leaves it unclassified, it appears to be a Bongo–Bagirmi language within the Central Sudanic family (Lionel Bender, Pascal Boyeldieu); Roger Blench classifies "Fer" as Bagirmi, but "Kara of Birao" as one of the related Kara languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kah. Alternate Names: Dam Fer, Fer, Fertit.

1970: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1987: [IUW] Les langues fer ("kara") et yulu du nord centrafricain: esquisses descriptives et lexiques, by Pascal Boyeldieu. Paris: Laboratoire de langues et civilisations à tradition orale, Département "Langues et parole en Afrique centrale": Librairie orientaliste Paul Geuthner, c1987. 280 p.: maps; 24 cm. French, Kara (Central African Republic and Sudan), and Yulu. Bibliography: p. [273]-275.

[KARABORO, WESTERN] Syer-Tenyer, or Western Karaboro, is a pair of Senufo dialects of Burkina Faso (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kza. Alternate Names: Syer-Tenyer.

2015: [IUW] A grammar of Syer (Western Karaboro, Senufo): phonology, morphology, argument realization, by Klaudia Dombrowsky-Hahn. Köln: Rüdiger Köppe Verlag, [2015] ©2015. xx, 582 pages: 2 color maps; 25 cm. First edition. Original pale orange paper over boards, lettered in black, with a linguistic map on the front cover. Gur monographs; v. 12. Appendix 1: Nouns, Western Karaboro-English, pp. [547]-563; Appendix 2: Verbs, Western Karaboro-English, pp. [565]-569. Includes bibliographical references (pages [571]-582). First grammar and vocabulary of the language.

"This book is the outcome of a long research project on the grammar of Karaboro. From 2006 to 2012 I had the opportunity to do research destined expressly to make the description of an underdescribed language" (Preface).

[KARACHAY-BALKAR] The Karachay-Balkar language or Karachay-Balkar Turkish (Къарачай-Малкъар тил, Qaraçay-Malqar til or Таулу тил, Tawlu til) is a Turkic language spoken by the Karachays and Balkars. It is divided into two dialects: Karachay-Baksan-Chegem, which pronounces two phonemes as /tʃ/ and /dʒ/, and Balkar, which pronounces the corresponding phonemes as /ts/ and /z/. The modern Karachay-Balkar written language is based on the Karachay-Baksan-Chegem dialect. The language is closely related to Kumyk (Wiki).

Ethnologue: krc. Alternate Names: Balkarian, Balqar, Karacaylar, Karachai, Karachaitsy, Karachay, Karachayla, Malqartil, Qarachaytil, Taulu til.

1954: [IUW] Karaçay-Malkar türklerinde hayvancılık ve bununla ilgili gelenekler, Ramazan Karça, Hâmit Zübeyr Koşay. Ankara: Türk tarih kurumu basımevi, 1954. viii, 150 p., [17] p. of plates; ill.: 24 cm. Ankara Üniversitesi Dil ve Tarih-Coğrafya Fakültesi yayınları; 101. Includes errata. Includes bibliographical references (p. [149]-150). Karachay-Turkish vocabulary, pp. [121]-147.

1965: [LILLYbm] Russko-Karachaevo-balkarskii slovar: okolo 35 000 slov, by I[bragim] K[hadzhi-Muratovich] Suiunchev & Kh. O. Urusbiev. Moscow: Izdatelstvo Sovetskaia Entsiklopediia, 1965. Original gray-green cloth over boards, lettered in white, and decorated in black and white. Pp. 1-5 6-744. First edition. Added t.p.: Orus-Karachai-malkar sezliuk. Includes, Russian-Karachay-Balkar, pp. [21]-732. Bibliography: pp. 10-11. Second copy: IUW. A Russian-Karachay-Balkar dictionary appeared in 1940.

1969: [IUW] Karachaevo-balkarsko-russkiï slovar': okolo 30,000 slov, pod red. E.R. Tenisheva i Kh.I. Suiuncheva; [avtory S.A. Gochiiaeva, Kh.I. Suiunchev (rukovoditel')]. Moskva: "Russkiï iazyk", 1989. 830, [2] p.; 25 cm. Russian and Karachay-Balkar. Includes bibliographical references (p. [832]). Karachay-Balkar-Russian dictionary.

2000: [IUW] Karaçay-Malkar Türkçesi sözlüğü, by Ufuk Tavkul. Ankara: Türk Dil Kurumu, 2000. viii, 510 p.; 24 cm. Series: Türk Dil Kurumu yayınları; 770. Includes bibliographical references (p. 503-510). Karachay-Balkar-Turkish dictionary.

[KARAGAS] Tofa, also known as Tofalar or Karagas, is a moribund Turkic language spoken in Russia's Irkutsk Oblast by the Tofalars. Recent estimates for speakers run from 93 people to less than 40. Tofa is most-closely related to the Tuvan language and forms a dialect continuum with it. Tuha, and Tsengel Tuvan may be dialects of either Tuvan or Tofa. The Tofa, who are also known as the Tofalar or Karagas, are an indigenous people living in southwestern Irkutsk Oblast, in Russia. The region they inhabit is informally known as Tofalaria. They are traditionally a nomadic reindeer-herding people, living on or near the Eastern Sayan mountain range. However, reindeer herding has greatly declined since the 20th century, with only one Tofa family now continuing the practice. Recognized by the former USSR in 1926 as one of the "Small Numbered Minorities of the North," (Russian: коренные малочисленные народы Севера, Сибири и Дальнего Востока) the Tofa have special legal status and receive economic support from Russia. The Tofa population is around 750 people; around 5% of the population spoke Tofa as a first language in 2002, (although that number has likely declined since then, due to the age of the speakers). Although the population of Tofalaria appears to be growing, the number of ethnic Tofalar seems to be in decline (Wiki)..

Ethnologue: kim. Alternate Names: Kamas, Karagass, Sayan Samoyed, Tofa, Tofalar.

1995: [IUW] Tofalarsko-russkii slovar' russko-tofalarskii, by V.I. Rassadin. Irkutsk: Vostochno-Sibirskoe knizhnoe izd-vo, 1995. 282 p.; 21 cm. Portion of title: Slovar' russko-tofalarskii. Tofalar [Karagas]-Russian, Russian-Tofalar [Karagas] dictionary.

[KARAIM] The Karaim language (Crimean dialect: къарай тили, Trakai dialect: karaj tili, Turkish dialect: karay dili, traditional Hebrew name lashon kedar Hebrew: לשון קדר - «language of the nomads») is a Turkic language with Hebrew influences, in a similar manner to Yiddish or Ladino. It is spoken by only a few dozen Karaims (Qrimqaraylar) in Lithuania, Poland and Crimea and Galicia in Ukraine. The three main dialects are those of Crimea, Trakai-Vilnius and Lutsk-Halych all of which are critically endangered. The Lithuanian dialect of Karaim is spoken mainly in the town of Trakai (also known as Troki) by a small community living there since the 14th century. There is a chance the language will survive in Trakai as a result of official support and because of its appeal to tourists coming to the Trakai Island Castle, where Karaims are presented as the castle's ancient defenders (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kdr. Alternate NamesTurkic Karaite.

1929: [IUW] Karaimische Texte im Dialekt von Troki, eingeleitet, erläutert und mit einem karaimisch-polnisch-deutschen Glossar versehen, by Tadeusz Kowalski. Kraków, Nakładem Polskiej Akademji Umiejętności, 1929. 1xxix, 311 p. Prace Komisji Orientalistycznej (Polska Akademia Nauk. Komisja Orientalistyczna); nr. 11. Title also in Polish. Includes a Karaim-Polish-German glossary.

Turkish edition 1996: [IUW] Karayim lehçesi sözlüğü, Tadeusz Kowalski; çeviren, Kemal Aytaç. Ankara: Engin Yayınevi, 1996. vii, 176 p.; 20 cm.

Karaim entries in roman script, with Turkish translation of the German meanings given in the Karaim-Polish-German glossary appearing on p. 150-280 of Kowalski's Karaimische Texte im Dialekt von Troki.

1974: [IUW] Karaimsko-russko-pol'skii slovar': 17 400 slov, pod redaktsiei N.A. Baskakova, A. Zaionchkovskogo, S.M. Shapshala; [predislovie N.A. Baskakova]. Moskva: Izd-vo "Russkii Ĭazyk," 1974. 687 p.; 21 cm. Added title page: Słownik karaimsko-rosyjsko-polski. Bibliography: p. [14]-29. Karaim-Russian-Polish dictionary

2006: [IUW] Karaycanın kısa sözvarlığı: Karayca-Türkçe kısa sözlü, Tülay Çulha. İstanbul: Kebikeç Yayınları, 2006. 235 p.; 20 cm. Series: Dil ve edebiyat dizisi (Kebikeç Yayınları (Firm)); 6. Includes bibliographical references (p. 34-37). Karaim-Turkish dictionary.

[KARAJÁ] Karajá, also known as Ynã, is spoken by the Karajá people in some thirty villages in central Brazil. Dialects are North Karaja, South Karaja, Xambioá, and Javaé. There are distinct male and female forms of speech; one of the principal differences is that men drop the sound /k/, which is pronounced by women (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kpj. Alternate Names: Caraiuna, Chambioa, Iraru Mahadu, Ixbyowa, Karaja do Norte, Ynã.

1947: [IUW] Os Carajás (Inan-sou-uéra: contribuição ao estudo dos indígenas brasileiros, pelo Othon Machado. Rio de Janeiro: Impr. Nacional, 1947. xiii, 128 p., [20] leaves of plates: ill., map; 27 cm. Series: Publicação (Conselho Nacional de Proteção aos Índios (Brazil)); no. 104. Anexo (Comissão de Linhas Telegraficas Estrategicas de Mato Grosso ao Amazonas); no. 7. "Errata a ser introduzida ... em substituição as páginas ix a xiii": p. [ix]-xiv inserted. "Subsidios para um vocabulário português-carajá e carajá-português": p. [49]-128. First published vocabulary of the language.

1968: [IUW] Ensaio de gramática e vocabulário da lingua karajá: falada pelos índios remeiros do Rio 'Araguaia,' by Luiz Palha. Rio de Janeiro: Gráfica Olímpica Editôra, 1968. 38 p.; 22 cm. Second edition.

[KARAKALPAK] Karakalpak is a Turkic language spoken by Karakalpaks in Karakalpakstan. It is divided into two dialects: Northeastern Karakalpak, Southeastern Karakalpak. The language is closely related to Kazakh (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kaa. Alternate Names: Karaklobuk, Klobouki, Tchorny.

1958: [LILLYbm] Karakalpaksko-russkii slovar: olkolo 30000 slovar, by N[ikolai] A[leksandrovich] Baskakov. Moscow: Gos. izd-vo inostrannykh i natsionalnykh slovarei, 1958. Original blue cloth over boards, decorated in blind, and lettered and decorated in gold. 892 pp. + errata slip. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller, who lists a single 1947 Russian-Kara-Kalpak dictionary published in Moscow. A Kara-Kalpak-English dictionary was published in Moscow in 1970. From the library of Carleton T. Hodge. Second copy: IUW.

1962: [IUW] Russko-karakalpakskii slovar'. Sostavil T.S. Safiev pod red. A.T. Turabaeva. Okolo 14 000 slov. Odobreno v kachestve ucheb. posobiia dlia 8-letnikh i srednikh shkol. Moskva, Gos. izd-vo inost. i natsion. slovareĭ, 1962. 724 p. 17 cm. Added t. p. and pref. in Kara-Kalpak. In Cyrillic characters. "Kratkie grammaticheskie tablitsy russkogo ĭazyka, p. [635]-724. Sostavil D.K. Kipman. Russian-Karakalpak dictionary.

1967: [IUW] Russko-karakalpakskii slovar'. Okolo 47 000 slov. Pod red. N.A. Baskakova. Moskva, Sov. ěntsiklopediia, 1967. 1124 p. 27 cm. At head of title: Karakalpakskii filial Akademii nauk Uzbekskoĭ SSR. Institut istorii, ĭazyka i literatury. Added t.p. in Kara-Kalpak. Russian-Karakalpak dictionary. 47,000 words as opposed to the 14,000 words in the 1962 Russian-Karakalpak (see above).

1968: [IUW] Anglichan-qaraqalpaq sözligi. Sözlitke 10,000 zhaqyn söz gem söilem bar, P. Q. Qurbanazarov. Nökis-Moskva, "Karaqalpaqstan", 1968. 232 p. 17 cm.

Preface in Russian. Title romanized: Anglichan-qaraqalpaq sözligi. English-Karakalpak dictionary.

1979: [IUW] Russha-qaraqalpaqsha lingvistikalıyq terminler sözligi, D.S. Nasyrov, A. Bekbergenov, A. Zhärimbetov; zhuıaply redaktor D.S. Nasyrov. Nökis: "Qaraqalpaqstan" baspasy, 1979. 228 p.; 21 cm. Title on added t.p.: Russko-karakalpakskiı slovar' lingvisticheskikh terminov. Bibliography: p. [7]. Russian-Karakalpak dictionary of linguistics.

1990: [IUW] Russko-karakalpakskiı terminologicheskiı slovar' po fizicheskoi kul'ture i sportu, A.U. Karibaeva. Nukus: "Bilim", 1990. 116 p.; 20 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 111-112). Russian-Karakalpak dictionary of sports and physical education.

1991: [IUW] Botanika terminleriniń russha-qaraqalpaqsha qysqasha túsindirme sözligi, Ötenov T., Täzhedinov M. Nökis: "Bilim", 1991. 148 p.; 22 cm. Title from colophon: Kratkiı tolkovyi russko-karakalpakskiı slovar' botanicheskikh terminov. Includes bibliographical references (p. 147). Russian-Karakalpak botanical dictionary.

1992: [IUW] Qysqasha qaraqalpaqsha-russha sözlik: sözlikte 5400 zhaqyn söz bar, düziwshi, E. Kogaı; awdarywshylar, M. Arzymbetov ... (et al.). Nökis: Nökis Poligrafkombinat?, 1992. 152 p.; 10 x 15 cm. Karakalpak-Russian dictionary.

[KARANG] Karang language (also called Mbum East or Lakka), is an Mbum language of Cameroon (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kzr. Alternate Names: Mbum, Mbum-East.

1930: see under NGBAKA MA'BO.

[KARANKAWA] Karankawa is the extinct, unclassified language of the Texan coast, where the Karankawa people migrated between the mainland and the barrier islands. It was not closely related to other known languages in the area, much of which are also poorly attested, and may have been a language isolate. A couple hundred words are preserved, collected in 1698, 1720, and 1828; in the 1880s, three lists were collected from non-Karankawa who knew some words. Karankawa has sometimes been included with neighboring languages in a Coahuiltecan family, but that is now [2015] thought to be spurious (Wiki).

Ethnologue does not list this language.

1891: [LILLYbm] The Karankawa Indians, the coast people of Texas, by Albert S[amuel] Gatschet (1832-1907). Cambridge, Mass.: Peabody Museum of American Archæology and Ethnology, 1891. Unbound gatherings, with hole punches. Pp. i-v vi-viii, 9 10-103 104 (also paginated [4] 69-167 168). First edition. Series: Harvard University. Peabody Museum of American Archaeology and Ethnology. Papers. v. 1, no. 2. Includes Karankawa-English vocabularies as follow: "Vocabulary obtained from Alice W. Oliver, pp. [73]-78, "Vocabularies obtained from Old Simon and Sallie Washington, pp. 79-82, and English-Karankawa, pp. [83]-86. This copy with the ink stamp of the Margaret Carnegie Library, Mills College on the title page.

"Greatly regretted by all who knew her, the gifted and intelligent lady who had once known a now extinct tribe, and who was the only person from whom a vocabulary could be obtained, died within three months after she had done what she could to put on record a language which she had learned and spoken in her youth. This incident is certainly a most conclusive argument for the necessity of immediate work among all the Indian tribes; that their language and their myths, their legends and their customs, may be investigated and recorded. In another year it will be too late to obtain many facts which can be secured during the present. The Indian is now fast merging into our civilization. His life is changing and his language and customs are rapidly disappearing. Let us, while we may, strive to atone for the unjust treatment he has received, since the first white men landed on the shore of America, by collecting and recording such facts relating to his past history as are yet attainable-facts so essential in a study of the phases of life through which all races are passing, or have passed, in the development of culture" (Prefatory Notice).

1940: see under COAHUILTECO.

[KARATA] Karata is an Andic language of the Northeast Caucasian language family spoken in southern Dagestan, Russia by 260 Karata in 2010. It has two dialects, Karatin and Tokitin, which are quite different. Speakers use Avar as their literary language. There are ten towns in which the language is traditionally spoken: Karata, Anchix, Tukita, Rachabalda, Lower Inxelo, Mashtada, Archo, Chabakovo, Racitl, and formerly Siux (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kpt. Alternate Names: Karatai, Karatay, Karatin, Kirdi, Kk'irtli micc'i.

1971: [IUW] Karatinskiĭ iazyk: Grammat. analiz, teksty, slovar', Z.M. Magomedbekova. Tbilisi, "Metsniereba," 1971. 290 p. 22 cm. Original blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold. On leaf preceding t. p.: Akademiia nauk Gruzinskoĭ SSR. Institut iazykoznaniiā. Added t. p. in Georgian. Includes bibliographical references. Grammar, texts and Karata-Russian dictionary, pp. 219-[286].

2013: [IUW] Каратинско-аварско-русский словарь, Баху-Меседу Расулова. Karatinsko-avarsko-russkii slovar', Bakhu-Mesedu Rasulova. Махачкала: Народы Дагестана, 2013. Makhachkala: Narody Dagestana, 2013. 335 pages; 21 cm. Karata-Avar-Russian dictionary.

[KARE (Central African Republic)] Kare or Kari is a poorly documented Congolese Bantu language of uncertain affiliation (though listed as unclassified Zone D.30 by Guthrie). There are scattered speakers in the Central African Republic (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kbn. Alternate Names: Kali, Kari, Karré.

1974: [IUW] Kare-taal: lijst van woorden gangbaar bij het restvolk Kare: opgenomen in de jaren 1927-1947, door J. J. M. Dijkmans. Sankt Augustin: Anthropos-Institut, Haus Völker und Kulturen, c1974. 259 p.; 24 cm. First edition. Original orange and white wrappers, lettered in black. Collectanea Instituti Anthropos; v. 7. Kare-Dutch, pp. 20-49, Kare-Dutch wordlist, pp. 169-228, Dutch-Kare, p. 229 (parts of the body), comparative vocabulary, Dutch-Kare-Zande-Nzakara-Barambo-Pambia-Shere Basiri, pp. 230-256. This is a collection of wordlists and linguistic material collected by Joseph J. M. Dijkmans during the decades he served as a missionary in the northern region of present-day Zaire. Although Dijkmans was not a linguistic scholar, the Anthropos-Institut considered the material of sufficient interest to make it available to professional linguists.

[KARELIAN] Karelian language (karjala, karjal or kariela) is a Finnic language spoken mainly in the Russian Republic of Karelia. Linguistically Karelian is closely related to the Finnish dialects spoken in eastern Finland and some Finnish linguists even classified Karelian as a dialect of Finnish. Karelian is not to be confused with the Southeastern dialects of Finnish, sometimes referred to as karjalaismurteet ('Karelian dialects') in Finland. There is no single standard Karelian language. Each writer writes in Karelian according to their own dialectal form. Three main written standards have been developed, for North Karelian; Olonets Karelian; and Tver Karelian. With the exception of Tver Karelian, all variants are written with the Latin-based Karelian alphabet, though the Cyrillic script has been used in the past (Wiki).

Ethnologue: krl. Alternate Names: Karelian Proper, Karel'skiy Jazyk, Karely, Severno-Karel'skij, Sobstvenno-Karel'skij-Jazyk.

1968-1993: [IUW] Karjalan kielen sanakirja, [toim. päätoim., Pertti Virtaranta]. Helsinki: Suomalais-ugrilainen seura, <1968-1993 > 4 vols.; 26 cm. Lexica Societatis Fenno-Ugricae, 16. Kotimaisten kielten tutkimuskeskuksen julkaisuja, 25. V. 3 also in series: Kotimaisten kielten tutkimuskeskuksen julkaisuja, ISSN 0355-5437; 25. Karelian-Finnish dictionary. Vol. 1, library binding, consists of the letters A-J, pp. 1-576. Vol. 2, 593 pp., original cream wrappers, lettered in black, consists solely of the letter K, pp. 1-589; Vol. 3, in a library binding, consists of the letters L-N, pp. 1-584; Vol. 4, library binding incorporating original white wrappers, lettered in black, consists of the letters O-P, pp. 1-610.

1975: [IUW] Russko-karel'skiĭ slovar': okolo 10 tys. slov / sost. G.N. Makarov. Petrozavodsk: Kareliĭa, 1975. 159 p.; 21 cm. Russian-Karelian dictionary.

1984: [IUW] Itä-Kannaksen murre-sanakirja / aineiston koonneet Adolf Neovius, Lauri Hakulinen ja Veikko Ruoppila; toimittanut Veikko Ruoppila. [Helsinki]: Suomalaisen kirjallisuuden seura, 1984. 185 p.; 23 cm. Series: Suomalaisen Kirjallisuuden Seuran toimituksia 392 Finnish language--Dialects--Russia (Federation)--Karelian Isthmus—Dictionaries.

1994: [IUW] Slovar' karel'skogo ĭazyka: tverskie govory: okolo 17 tys. slov / sostavitel' A.V. Punzhina; [otvetstvennyĭ redaktor V.D. Riĭgoev]. Petrozavodsk: Kareliĭa, 1994. 396 p.; 27 cm. Includes index from Russian form. Karelian-Russian dictionary.

2001: [IUW] Suur-Jaakkiman murre-sanoja ja -sanontoja / Jaakko Kilpiö. Helsinki: Suomalaisen Kirjallisuuden Seura, 2001. 284 p.: ill.; 23 cm. Series: Suomalaisen Kirjallisuuden Seuran toimituksia 824. Karelian language--Dialects--Glossaries, vocabularies, etc.

2009: [IUW] Русско-карельский разговорник / составитель Елена Филиппова. Russko-karel'skiĭ razgovornik = Ven'alais-karjalaine paginsanakirju / sostavitel' Elena Filippova. Petroskoi: "Periodika", 2009. 95 pages; 17 cm. Russian-Karelian dictionary.

2010: [IUW] Побеседуем: русско-карельский разговорник: на собственно-карельском наречии карельского языка / составитель Галина Леттиева. Pobeseduem: russko-karel'skiĭ razgovornik: na sobstvenno-karel'skom narechii karel'skogo ĭazyka = Tule pakinoilla: venäläis-karjalaini pakinšanakirja: vienankarjalakši / sostavitel' Galina Lettieva. Petroskoi: "Periodika", 2010. 125 pages; 17 cm. Russian-Karelian dictionary of phraseology and conversation.

[KAREN LANGUAGES] The Karen /kəˈrɛn/or Karenic languages are tonal languages spoken by some seven million Karen people. They are of unclear affiliation within the Sino-Tibetan languages. The Karen languages are written using the Burmese script. The three main branches are Sgaw, Pwo, and Pa'o. Karenni (also known Kayah or Red Karen) and Kayan (also known as Padaung) are related to the Sgaw branch. They are unusual among the Sino-Tibetan languages in having a subject–verb–object word order; other than Karen, Bai, and the Chinese languages, Sino-Tibetan languages have a subject–object–verb order. This is likely due to influence from neighboring Mon and Tai languages. The Karen languages are also considered unusual for not having any Chinese influence (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists ten separate Karen languages: 1) Bwe Karen (bwe: alternate names: Baghi, Bghai Karen, Blimaw, Bwe, Dareh, Manaw), 2) Geba Karen (kvq: alternate names: Daneh, Geba, Kaba, Karenbyu, Kayinbyu, Kono, Koo-ong, Northern Bwe), 3) Geko Karen (ghk: alternate names: Gaikho, Gekho, Gek'o, Ghekhhol, Ghekhu, Gheko, Kakhau, Kayan, Kayan Kakhau, Kekaungdu, Kekhong, Keku, Yathu Gekho), 4) Mobwa Karen (jkm: alternate names: Bilichi, Blimaw, Dermuha, Maleh, Mobwa Karen, Monpwa, Mopwa, Palachi, Palakhi, Palaychi, Pa-Le-Chi), 5) Paku Karen (jkg: alternate names: Mogpha, Mogwa, Monebwa, Monnepwa, Mopaga, Mopha, Pagu, Paku, Paku Karen, Thalwepwe), 6) Phrae Pwo Karen (kjt: alternate names: Northeastern Pwo Karen, Phrae, Prae, Pwo Phrae), 7) Pwo Eastern Karen (kjp: alternate names: Moulmein Pwo Karen, Phlong, Phlou, Pho), 8) Pwo Northern Karen (pww: alternate names: Phlong), 9) Pwo Western Karen (pwo: alternate names: Bassein Pwo Karen, Delta Pwo Karen, Mon Karen, Mutheit, Pathein Pwo Karen, Phlong, Phlong Sho, Pho, Shu, Talaing Karen), and 10) S'gaw Karen (ksw: alternate names: Burmese Karen, Kanyaw, Kayinpyu, Kyetho, Paganyaw, Pchcknya, Pwakanyaw, S'gau, S'gaw, S'gaw Kayin, White Karen, Yang Khao).

[KAREN, S'GAW] S'gaw, also known as S'gaw Karen and S'gaw Kayin, is a Karen language spoken by over four million S'gaw Karen people in Burma, and 200,000 in Thailand. S'gaw Karen is spoken in Tanintharyi Region's Ayeyarwady Delta, Yangon Division, Bago Division, Western Thailand, Northern Thailand, and Kayin State. It is written using the Mon script. A Bible translation was published in 1853. Various divergent dialects are sometimes seen as separate languages: Paku in the northeast, Mopwa (Mobwa) in the northwest, Wewew, and Monnepwa (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ksw. Alternate Names: Burmese Karen, Kanyaw, Kayinpyu, Kyetho, Paganyaw, Pchcknya, Pwakanyaw, S'gau, S'gaw, S'gaw Kayin, White Karen, Yang Khao).

1849: [LILLY] A vocabulary of the Sgau Karen language, by Rev. J. Wade. Tavoy: Karen Missionary Press, 1849. vi, [3], 14-1024 p.; 20 cm. Bound in brown tree leather, spine stamped in gold. S'gaw Karen-English, pp. [13]-1024. First bilingual dictionary of the language.

"The facilities for preparing the Vocabulary of a language which has only a few years been reduced to writing, must of necessity be very meagre. Such is the case with the present volume. All the sources from which words have been derived, are a few letters, and Fables, committed to writing by some of the natives from memory, after they had been taught to write in their vernacular. These, together with the intercourse of three or four Missionaries with the natives, has been the source from whence the words were collected, which are in the Karen Thesaurus, a native Karen Dicitonary, prepared under Mr. Wade's supervision, and assistance, by San Kau-tu. This work is all in Karen, with the words defined in that language. This Thesaurus is the foundation of the present Vocabulary in Karen and English... The present work does by no means supercede the necessity at some future day, of having a Dictionary in the Karen language... It is confidently hoped that the life of Mr. Wade will be spared, and his eye-sight recovered by his visit to America, and that it will hereafter be his privilege to prepare a Sgau Karen Dictionary. No other man is so competent to the task..." (Preface).

1954: [IUW] The Anglo-Karen dictionary: based on the dictionary compiled by J. Wade and Mrs. J.P. Binney, revised and abridged by Geo. E. Blackwell; assisted by several Karen writers. Rangoon: Baptist Board of Publications, 1954. 543 p.; 19 cm. Original red cloth over boards, unlettered. "Published from the "Wade Printing Fund". English-Karen, pp. [5]-543.

"It is with pleasure that the Board of Publications of the Burma Baptist Convention once again makes available to the public the Anglo-Karen Dicitonary. Although it would be desirable to revise and enlarge the work because of the large number of new words which have come into use during the past decade or two, it ahs been thought wise to reprint it unchanged in order to make it available at the earliest possible date. It is hoped that an appendix may be prepared in time for a later reprint" (Preface).

[KARIPUNA CREOLE FRENCH] Lanc-Patuá is a creole language spoken in the state of Amapá in Brazil, primarily now around the capital, Macapá. It is a French-based creole language, spoken by local Indians and immigrants from French Guiana, the Caribbean and other areas of Brazil, and their descendants. It has some English and Portuguese influence on its vocabulary, but its grammar is clearly similar to the French-based creole languages of the Caribbean and the Indian Ocean. Lanc-Patuá is derived from Karipúna Creole spoken by indigenous Amerindians. The substratum language of Karipúna Creole was the now-extinct Tupian language Karipúna. The name comes from the French Langue Patois, meaning simply dialectal language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kmv. Alternate Names: Crioulo.

1984: [IUW] Cultura creoula e lanc-patuá no norte do Brasil = Culture créole et langue patúa au nord du Brésil / Julieta de Andrade; tradução, Marcel Jules Thiéblot. São Paulo: Escola de Folclore, 1984. 310 p.: ill., ports.; 21 cm. Coleção Pesquisa vol. 7. Text in French and Portuguese; summary in English, French, German, Italian, Lanc-patuá, Portuguese, and Spanish. Includes thematically-arranged vocabulary, Patuá [Karipuna Creole French[-Portuguese-pronunciation-French, pp. 169-214. Bibliography: p. [301]-303.

"In northern Brazil the Creoles, which stem from localities on French, English and Dutch colonization, have Brazilian children. They all communicate among themselves in lanc-patuá, without interfering with the mother tongue of each family. Portuguese, for those who speak it, is a link between them and the non-Creole world. The lanc-patuá, the nomadism of their forefathers in quiet for a less difficult life and spontaneous religious traits linked to Jewish mysticism are cohesion factors of the community. In site of partial isolation due to language barriers, they feel integrated into Brazilian life and have become established in Amapá in a definitive manner" (Synopsis, p. 18).

2003: [IUW] Vocabulário crioulo: contribuição do negro ao falar regional amazônico, by Vicente Salles. Belém [Brazil]: Instituto de Artes do Pará, Programa Raízes, 2003. 271 p.: ill.; 23 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 261-271).

[KARIRI-XOCÓ] Xocó (Chocó, Shokó) is an extinct and poorly attested language or languages of Brazil that is not known to be related to other languages. It is known from three populations: Xokó (Chocó) in Sergipe, Kariri-Xocó (Kariri-Shoko, Cariri-Chocó) in Alagoas, and Xukuru-Kariri (Xucuru-Kariri, Xucuru-Cariri) in Alagoas. It is not clear if these were one language or three. It is only known from a few dozen words from one Kariri-Xoco elder and three Xukuru-Kariri elders in 1961. In ISO encoding, the language was conflated with the Kariri family as ISO 639-3 [kzw] 'Karirí-Xocó'; Ethnologue does not indicate if this was a conscious decision (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kzw. Alternate Names: Cariri, Karirí, Kariri Xucó, Kipeá, Xocó, Xokó, Xokó-Karirí, Xukurú, Xukuru Kariri.

1897: [LILLYbm] Matériaux pour servir a l'établissement d'une grammaire comparée des dialectes de la famille Kariri, by Lucien Adam. Paris: J. Maisonneuve, 1897. Modern brown quarter-leather and tan cloth over boards, unlettered. Pp. [4] I II-IV, 1 2-123 124. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes comparative vocabularies of the dialects of Kariri as follows, with French equivalents: Dzubucua, Kipea, Pedra Branca, Sabuja, pp. [77]-99; Kipea, Pedra Branca, Sabuja, pp. 99-109; Pedra Branca, Sabuja, pp. 109-110. This is the first extensive vocabulary of the Kariri Indians of Brazil. Second copy: IUW.

"According to Martins, when the Portuguese took control of the northeast provinces of Brazil, the Kariris inhabited the interior between the banks of the Rio Francisco (province of Pernambuco) and those of the Rio Acaracú (province of Paranaíba), having, if one may so speak, their primary establishments in the region where the mountains known as the Borborema, the Cayriris and the Cayriris-Novos rise. Thieves, traitors, rebels, cowards, they allowed the Portuguese to take possession of their land, and served as their porters during the war of that nation with the Dutch. This domestication proved fatal for them, for many succumbed to it, and those who were able to return to their huts no longer found the children and wives they had left there. In their absence, the Indian hordes of the Gês had carried out ruthless raids.... In 1818, Martins and Spix had the good fortune to found around 600 Kariris still living at Pedra Branca, half civilized. But in 1891 Ehrenreich confirmed that these pitiful remnants had disappeared down the road of extinction. Such is the sad history of this nation" (Introduction, tr: BM).

[KARO (Brazil)] Ramarama, also known as Karo, is a Tupian language of Brazil. Besides the dialect names, it also goes by a name variously spelled Itanga, Itogapuc, Itogapúk, Ntogapid, Ntogapig (Wiki).

Ethnologue: arr. Alternate Names: Arara-Karo, Arára, Arára de Rondonia, Arára do Jiparaná, Itogapuc, Itogapúk, Ntogapid, Ntogapig, Ramarama, Uruku, Urukú, Ytangá.

1998: [IUW] Estudo fonológico da língua Karo (Arara de Rondônia), by Nilson Gabas. München: LINCOM EUROPA, 1998. 87 p.; 21 cm. Library binding, incorporating original bright yellow wrappers, lettered in black. LINCOM studies in Native American linguistics; 31. Includes 711 individually numbered words, Karo-

Portuguese, throughout the phonological study. Includes bibliographical references (p. 85-87).

"Karo is a Brazilian language spoken ... by about 150 Arara Indians. The Arara are in contact with the white population since the 40's, and most of them understand Portuguese. Karo is exclusively used for communication among themselves.... This study... is meant as a contribution to the description and documentation of Karo" (rear cover).

[KAROK] Karuk or Karok is an endangered language of northwestern California. It is the traditional language of the Karuk people, most of whom now speak English. The name is derived from the word Káruk, which means 'upriver'. Linguist William Bright documented the Karuk language and produced a grammar of it in 1957 [see below]. When Bright began his studies in 1949 there were "a couple of hundred fluent speakers," but by 2011, there were fewer than a dozen fluent elders. A standardized system for writing the languages was adopted in the 1980s (Wiki). There is an on-line Karok dictionary.

Ethnologue: kyh. Alternate Names: Karuk.

1907-1930: see Vol. 13 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

1957: [IUW] The Karok language, by William Bright. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1957. xi, 457 p.: ill., ports., map; 26 cm. Library binding preserving original gray front wrapper, lettered in black. University of California publications in linguistics; v. 13. Karok-English lexicon, pp. 311-403, English-Karok lexicon, pp. 404-449. "Grammar" (p. [5]-152) based on the author's thesis (Ph. D.)--University of California, 1955. Includes bibliographical references (p. 2-3). Includes detailed preliminary information on earlier work on the Karok language.

"The Karok language is not closely or obviously related to any other.... My own field work was done from February to June, 1949; from June to August, 1950, and during a few days in April, 1951, and September, 1954" (Introduction).

[KASEM] Kasem (Kassena) is the language of the Kassena ethnic group and is a Gur language spoken in the Upper East Region of northern Ghana and in Burkina Faso (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xsm. Alternate Names: Kasena, Kasim, Kassem, Kassena.

An on-line dictionary of Kassem [Kasem] may be found at www.webonary.org.

1920: [LILLY] The natives of the northern territories of the Gold Coast: their customs, religion and folklore, by A.W. Cardinall; with 22 illustrations from photos by the author and a map. London: G. Routledge & Sons; New York: E.P. Dutton & Co., [1920]. xvi, 158 p., [26] leaves of plates: ill.; 23 cm. Original brown cloth, lettered and decorated in gold; with gray dust jacket, lettered in black. Hendrix 837 (giving date as 1921; only entry for this language). The title page of the Routledge edition is overlaid at the bottom with a printed slip from E.P. Dutton. Kassena [Kasem]-English vocabulary, language, p. [131]-158. Publication date from NUC. First vocabulary of this language. In addition, on p. 117, the author reports the existence of whistle speech among the Kassena and Builsa alike, and gives a detailed example. Second copy: IUW.

"In his Prefatory Note, Mr. Cardinall states that no work on the natives of whom he writes has, as yet, been published in English. This is, I believe, a fact, but in justice to the Political Officers of the Gold Coast and its Dependencies, I would add that tribal customs have been carefully studied by them, and are embodied in many Reports that have been despatched to Headquarters, and so to the Colonial Office" (Introductory Note, C. H. Armitage, Chief Commander of the Northern Territories, Tamale).

"In the two Districts of Navarro and Zuaragu one finds four distinct dialects and a language which is evidently fast disappearing. It is this last that I now endeavor to record—the language of Kassena, called by them Awuna.... The difficulties of writing down a hitherto unwritten language are immense. This is no immodesty on my part. The following vocabulary is one given me entirely by the Rev. White Fathers established at Navarro, missionaries who live among the people and who have perforce to speak the language every day and all day; all that I have done is to translate their work from French into English... I record this Kassena language not with a view of anyone ever troubling to learn to speak it, since it is a tongue of very small importance, but in an endeavor to perpetuate a language which our presence must in time cause to disappear" (pp. 113-115).

Reprinted 1969: [IUW] The natives of the Northern Territories of the Gold Coast; their customs, religion, and folklore, by A. W. Cardinall. With 22 illus. from photos. by the author. New York, Negro Universities Press [1969] xvi, 158 p. illus., map. 23 cm. Reprint of the 1920 ed.

1932: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[KASHINAWA] Cashinahua (also spelled Kaxinawá, Kaxynawa, Caxinawa, and Caxinawá), or Hantxa Kuin, Huni Kui, is an indigenous American language of western South America which belongs to the Panoan language family. It is spoken by about 1,600 Cashinahua people in Perú along the Curanja and Purus rivers; and in Brazil by 400 Cashinahua people in the state of Acre. About five to ten percent of Cashinahua speakers have some Spanish language proficiency, while forty percent are literate and twenty to thirty percent are literate in Spanish as a second language. Dialects are Brazilian Kashinawa, Peruvian Kashinawa, and the extinct Juruá Kapanawa (Capanahua of the Juruá River) and Paranawa.

Ethnologue: cbs. Alternate Names: Cashinahua, Caxinawa, Caxinawá, Kashinahua, Kaxinawá, Kaxynawa.

1914: [LILLY] Rã-txa hu-ní ku-ĩ, a lingua dos caxinawás do rio Ibuaçu, afluente do Muru (prefeitura de Tarauacá), por J. Capistrano de Abreu. Rio de Janeiro, Typ. Leuzinger, 1914. 630 p. 23 cm. original gray paper wrapper bound in; red library buckram, title and call number in gilt direct on spine, t.e.g., marbled endpapers; boards toned. An Ayer Linguistics duplicate, with Newberry Library labels on pastedowns, and stamps on title page. Notes: The author at first intended to publish his work in a volume of about 150 pages, to be presented to the Congress of Americanists at Buenos Aires in 1910. A much enlarged edition was destroyed in the fire of the Imprensa nacional at Rio de Janeiro, September, 1910, five or six incomplete copies being saved, one of which is now in the possession of the Library of Congress. The present edition contains an outline of grammar, a series of phrases arranged by topics and gathered in conversation with two Kashinawa Indians, and a glossary, Portuguese-Kashinawa, pp. [524]-547, and Kashinawa-Portuguese, pp. [548]-621. cf. Pref. (bookseller's description: Rob Rulon-Miller). Second copy: IUW, contemporary private binding, preserving original gray wrappers, lettered in black.

1973: [IUW] Términos de colores cashinahua (pano) [por] André-Marcel d'Ans [y] María Cortez Mondragón. [Lima] Universidad Nacional Mayor de San Marcos, Centro de Investigación de Lingüística Aplicada [1973]. 11 . 30 cm. Original yellow wrappers, lettered in black. Documento de trabajo (Universidad Nacional Mayor de San Marcos. Centro de Investigación de Lingüística Aplicada); no. 16. Glossary of color terms, Kashinahua-Spanish, pp. [1]-11.

[KASHMIRI] Kashmiri (/kæʃˈmɪəri/)[6] (कॉश्मूर, کٔاشُر), or Koshur, is a language from the Dardic subgroup of the Indo-Aryan languages and it is spoken primarily in the Kashmir Valley and Chenab regions of Jammu and Kashmir. There are approximately 5,527,698 speakers throughout India, according to the Census of 2001. Most of the 105,000 speakers in Pakistan are emigrants from the Kashmir Valley after the partition of India. They include a few speakers residing in border villages in Neelam District. The Kashmiri language is one of the 22 scheduled languages of India. Most Kashmiri speakers use Urdu or English as a second language. Since November 2008, the Kashmiri language has been made a compulsory subject in all schools in the Valley up to the secondary level (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kas. Alternate Names: Cashmeeree, Cashmiri, Kacmiri, Kaschemiri, Keshur, Koshur.

1935: [LILLYbm] English-Kashmiri. A Vocabulary of the Kashmiri Language, by Ernest F[rederic] Neve. Mysore City: The Wesley Press and Publishing House, 1935. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in gold. 58 pp. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Schmidt, p. 72 (listing 1973 edition).

"Kashmiri is a language with a small vocabulary. This has been greatly augmented by words borrowed from Sanskrit, Persian and Arabic. The language spoken by Muslims differs from that of the Hindus. The latter use more words derived from the Sanskrit, and the former more from Arabic...In 1872 the late Dr. Elmslie published a Vocabulary of the Kashmiri Language, which has long been out of print. I have made this the basis of my present work, with various alterations and corrections. It is of course short and limited in scope. My aim has been to provide the visitor to Kashmir, with a list of words for quick reference..."

2000: [LILLY] Kashmiri-English dictionary for second language learners, by Omkar Nath Koul [1941- ], Soom Nath Raina, & Roopkrishen Bhat [1951- ]. Mysore: Central Institute of Indian Languages, 2000. v, 126 p.; 25 cm. Original orange and white wrappers, lettered in black and white. First edition. Series: Central Institute of Indian Languages publication, no. 458. Includes Kashmiri (Roman and Devanagari)-English, pp. 7-125.

"The present Dictionary was initially prepared as a Kashmiri-English Glossary in 1976 for the use of teacher trainees who learn Kashmiri at the Northern Regional Language Centre, Patiala. As there is no other dictionary available for this purpose, it was decided to publish it in the present form. I am sure that learners of Kashmiri as a second language will find this Dictionary useful" (Foreword).

[KASHUBIAN] Kashubian or Cassubian (Kashubian: kaszëbsczi jãzëk, pòmòrsczi jãzëk, kaszëbskò-słowińskò mòwa; Polish: język kaszubski, język pomorski, język kaszubsko-słowiński) is a language variety of the Lechitic group, of the Slavic languages. Although it is often considered a language in its own right, it is sometimes considered a dialect of Pomeranian. In Poland, it has been an officially recognized ethnic-minority language since 2005. Approximately 106,000 people use mainly Kashubian at home. It is the only remnant of the Pomeranian language. It is close to standard Polish with influence from Low German and the extinct Polabian and Old Prussian (Wiki).

Ethnologue: csb. Alternate Names: Cashubian, Cassubian, Kaszubski.

1893: [IUW] Słownik języka pomorskiego czyli kaszubskiego ... by Stefan Ramułt. W. Krakowie, Nakładem Akademii umiejętności, 1893. xlviii, 298 p. 28 cm. Library binding. "Praca, odznaczona nagrodą Akademii umiejętności w Krakowie na konkursie im. S.B. Lindego w r 1889." Kashubian-Polish dictionary, pp. [1]-278.

New edition 1993: [IUW] Słownik języka pomorskiego czyli kaszubskiego / Stefan Ramułt; opracowała i wstępem opratrzyla Halina Horodyska.

Kraków: Wydawn. i Druk. "Secesja", 1993- v.; 29 cm. At head of title, v. 2: Polska Akademia Umiejętności. Includes bibliographical references.

1958-1983: [IUW] Pomoranisches Wörterbuch / Friedrich Lorentz. Berlin, Akademie-Verlag, 1958- 5 vols.; 24 cm. Vols. 1, 2 and 3 in library bindings. Vol. 4, Part I, library binding, incorporating original light brown front wrapper, lettered in brown; parts 2-3 in original light brown wrappers, lettered in brown. Veröffentlichungen des Instituts für Slawistik. Sonderreihe Wörterbücher. Issued also in parts. Kashubian-German dictionary: Vol. 1: A-P, pp. 1-[692]; Vol. 2: [P-T], pp. 1-592; Vol. 3: [T-Z and first section of Addenda], pp. 593-1264; Vol. 4 (Parts 1-3)-5 [continuation of Addenda], to p. 2111.

1960: [IUW] Słowniczek kaszubski, by Aleksander Wit Labuda. [Wyd. 1.] First edition. [Warszawa] Państwowe Zakłady Wydawn. Szkolnych [1960]. 114 p. 18 cm. Kashubian-Polish, Polish-Kashubian dictionary.

1965: [IUW] Wörterbuch und Lautlehre der deutschen Lehnwörter im Pomoranischen (Kaschubischen), by Friedhelm Hinze. Berlin, Akademie Verlag, 1965. x, 534 p. 24 cm. Veröffentlichungen des Instituts für Slawistik Nr. 37. Kashubian language-Foreign words and phrases--German.

1969: [IUW] A Kashubian idiolect in the United States, by Jan Louis Perkowski. Bloomington, Indiana University [1969]. 371 p. maps. 23 cm. Library binding. Indiana University publications. Language science monographs v. 2 Kashubian-English lexicon, pp. [101]-264. Bibliography: p. [353]-371.

"The first field trip took place during the summer of 1963. Its aim was to survey the Kashubian speakers in and near Minnesota in order to find a suitable informant.... After a preliminary analysis of data gathered in the first field trip, a basic informant was chosen and second field trip, lasting from mid-December, 1963, through the first week of January 1964, was launched. [With detailed descriptions of remaining informants]" (Introduction).

1980: [IUW] Słownictwo kociewskie na tle kultury ludowej / Bernard Sychta. Wrocław: Zakład Narodowy Im. Ossolińskich, 1980- v.; 25 cm. Includes bibliographical references. Kashubian-Polish dictionary.

1997: [IUW] Słownik gwarowy tzw. Słownictwo kaszubskich / redaktor Zenon Sobierajski. Wyd. 1. First edition. Warszawa: Slawistyczny Ośrodek Wydawniczy, 1997-v.: ill., maps; 24 cm. Includes bibliographical references. Incomplete contentst. 1. A-C. Kashubian language--Dictionaries--Polish. Slovincian dialect--Dictionaries--Polish.

[KASUA] Kasua is a Papuan language of Papua New Guinea (Wiki).

Ethnologue: khs.

1973: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KATCHA-KADUGLI-MIRI] Kadugli, also Katcha-Kadugli-Miri or Central Kadu, is a Kadu language or dialect cluster spoken in Kordofan [Sudan]. Stevenson treats the varieties as dialects of one language, and they share a single ISO code, though Schadeberg (1989) treats them as separate languages. There are five commonly cited varieties. Three of them are rather divergent, on the verge of being distinct languages: Katcha (Tolubi, Dholubi); Kadugli proper (Dakalla, Talla, Dhalla, Toma Ma Dalla, Kudugli, Morta); Miri. Of the two other commonly cited varieties, Damba is somewhat closer to Kadugli, while Tumma appears to be a (sub)dialect of Katcha (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xtc.

1969: [LILLYbm] Kadugli Language and Language Usage, by Abdalla Ibrahim Abdalla. University of Khartoum, 1969. Original wrappers. Bound typescript. First edition. Salamabi Prizes Series No. 3. First separate treatment of Kadugli, with brief vocabulary and sentences, Kadugli-English. Kadugli is one of the languages of the Nuba Mountains in Sudan. Second copy: IUW, with 1975 on cover.

[KÂTE] Kâte is a Papuan language spoken by about 6,000 people in the Finschhafen District of Morobe Province, Papua New Guinea. It is part of the Finisterre–Huon branch of the Trans–New Guinea phylum of languages (McElhanon 1975, Ross 2005). It was adopted for teaching and mission work among speakers of Papuan languages by the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Papua New Guinea in the early 1900s and at one time had as many as 80,000 second-language speakers (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kmg. Alternate Names: Kai, Kâte Dong.

1925: [LILLYbm] Wörterbuch der Kâte-Sprache gesprochen in Neuguinea. Dictionary of the Kâte-Language as spoken by New-Guinea, Christian Keysser. Berlin; Hamburg: Verlag von Dietrich Reimer (Ernst Vohsen); C. Boysen, 1925. 612 pp. First edition. Beihefte zur Zeitschrift für Eingeborenen-Sprachen, Siebentes Heft [Vol. 7]. Zaunmüller, col. 296. The entire dictionary is Kâte-German-English. Second copy: IUW.

"The Kâte people, a small tribe numbering about 4,000 souls, inhabit the mountainous hinterland of the Huon-Golf on the east coast of New-Guinea... The Kâte language, which belongs to the group of the Papuan languages, embraces several dialects, of which the Wena-dialect has been adopted by the missionaries to serve as a medium in church and in school. To this dialect my dictionary is restricted... [footnote:] The people and its language are still often called 'Kai' by the Europeans of New-Guinea, this a word belonging to the neighboring Jabêm-language" (from the English version of the preface).

Reprinted 1965: [IUW] Wörterbuch der Kâte Sprache gesprochen in Neuguinea; Dictionary of the Kâte language as spoken in New Guinea, by Christian Keysser. Berlin, D. Reimer (E. Vohsen) 1925. Nendeln, Liechtenstein, Kraus Reprint, 1969. xi, 612 p. 22 cm. Beiheft zur Zeitschrift für Eingeborenen-Sprachen; 7.

1975: [IUW] Kâte dictionary, by W. Flierl and H. Strauss, eds. [New rev. ed.]. Canberra: Australian National University, 1977. xxxiii, 499, 15 p.: map; 26 cm. . Keysser, Christian. Wörterbuch der Kâte-Sprache gesprochen in Neuguinea. Pacific linguistics: Series C; no. 41.

[KATEMBRI] Katembri (Catrimbi [sic], Kariri de Mirandela, Mirandela) was a divergent language of northeastern Brazil that appears to be distantly related to Taruma (Kaufman 1990). It is known only from 100 words collected in the early 1960s from an elder with vague memories of the language (Wiki). Ethnologue does not include Katembri, Kariri de Mirandela, or Mirandela in their latest linguistic listing (Kariri-Xocó: kzw).

1951: see under CHICHIMECA-JONAZ.

[KATO] Cahto (also spelled Kato) is an extinct Athabaskan language that was formerly spoken by the Kato people of the Laytonville and Branscomb area at the head of the South Fork of the Eel River. It is one of the four languages belonging to the California Athabaskan cluster of the Pacific Coast Athabaskan languages. Most Kato speakers were bilingual in Northern Pomo and some also spoke Yuki (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ktw. Alternate Names: Batem-Da-Kai-Ee, Cahto, Kai Po-Mo, Tlokeang.

1851-1857: see Vol. 3 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

1907-1930: see Vol. 14 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[KATUIC LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT] The fifteen Katuic languages form a branch of the Austroasiatic languages spoken by about 1.3 million people in Southeast Asia. People who speak Katuic languages are called the Katuic peoples. Paul Sidwell is the leading specialist on the Katuic languages. He notes that Austroasiatic/Mon-Khmer languages are lexically more similar to Katuic and Bahnaric the closer they are geographically. He says this geographic similarity is independent of which branch of the family each language belongs to. He also says Katuic and Bahnaric do not have any shared innovations, so they do not form a branch of the Austroasiatic family (Wiki).

1996: [LILLbm] Katuic Comparative Dictionary, by Ilia Peiros. Canberra: The Australian National University, 1996. Original pale pea-green wrappers, lettered in black. 198 pp. First edition. Pacific Linguistics Series C-132. Includes the comparative Katuic-English section, an English-Proto Katuic index, and word lists for each of the four major languages. "The Katuic languages belong to the Mon-Khmer language family and are spoken mostly in Vietnam, Laos and Thailand... Four of them (Bru, Kui [Kuay], Pakoh [Pacoh] and Katu) have good dictionaries and thus, the way is open for [this] detailed lexical reconstruction." Second copy: IUW.

[KAURNA] Kurna (/ˈɡɑːnə/ or /ˈɡaʊnə/) is a Pama-Nyungan language historically spoken by the Kurna peoples of the Adelaide Plains of South Australia. The people of the Adelaide plains are known as the Kurna people in contemporary times, but the Kurna nation is made up of various tribal clan groups, each with their own parkarra district of land, each having had their own dialectal form of language. These dialects were historically spoken in the area of the Adelaide Plains bounded by Crystal Brook and Clare in the north, Cape Jervis in the south, and just over the mount lofty ranges. It ceased to be spoken on an everyday basis in the 19th century, but, in a process that began in the 1990s, is being reclaimed and re-introduced (Wiki).

Ethnologue: zku. Alternate Names: Coorna, Gaurna, Jaitjawarra, Karnuwarra, Kaura, Koornawarra, Kurumidlanta, Medaindi, Medaindie, Meljurna, Merelde, Merildekald, Meyu, Midlanta, Milipitingara, Nantuwarra, Nantuwaru, Nganawara, Padnaindi, Padnayndie, Wakanuwan, Warra, Warrah, Widninga, Winaini, Winnaynie, Winnay-nie.

1840: [LILLYbm] Outlines of a Grammar, Vocabulary, and Phraseology of the Aboriginal Language of South Australia spoken by the Natives in and for Some Distance around Adelaide, by Christian Gottlieb Teichelmann & Clamor Wilhelm Schürmann. Adelaide: Published by the authors at the Native Location, 1840. Original dark blue wrappers, with most of spine perished. Pp. [2] (title, verso printer's colophon), (dedication, verso blank [i]), [ii-iii] (blank, errata), [iv]-viii, (title to Part I, verso blank), [1]-24, [2] (title to Part II, verso blank), 1-76. First edition. Bookplate of Edward Charles Stirling. Sir Edward Charles Stirling was author of Fossil remains of Lake Callabonna (1899-1913, 4 vols), as well as a Preliminary report on the discovery of native remains at Swanport, River Murray, with an inquiry into the alleged occurrence of a pandemic among the Australian aboriginals (1911). Contemporary signature of James Johnson [?] on title. page. Greenway 9044, Ferguson 3102, but his collation requires correction. This rare early work has been reprinted by South Australian Facsimile Editions No. 39 (Adelaide, 1962), by Chadwick-Healy micro-fiche, and in facsimile edition by Tjintu Books (South Australia, 1982), which identifies the language as Kurna. This is the first substantial vocabulary of Kurna, an aboriginal language of South Australia (separately paginated 1-63).

[KAUWERA] Kauwera is a Papuan language of Indonesia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xau. Alternate Names: Kabera, Kaowerawedj, Kauwerawec, Kauwerawetj, Kawera, Koassa, Tekutameso.

1926: [LILLYbm] "Expeditie naar het Nassauk-Gebergte in Centraal Noord Nieuw Guinee," by Ch. Le Roux. 1926. An offprint or extract from an unidentified journal, pp. [447]-513. Includes a Dutch-"Kauwerawetsch" vocabulary, classified, pp. 495-513. "Kauwerawetsch" is identified only as the language of a tribe from Central North New Guinea. The essay includes several photographs and folding maps and plates, and is dated 17 July 1926. It is bound in later plain wrappers together with a following essay, pp. 514-551, by B. Schrieke, "The Evolution of Culture in the Pacific in relation to the theories of the 'Kultur-historische' and the 'Manchester' schools of Social Anthropology."

[KAWACHA] Kawatsa is a nearly extinct Angan language of Papua New Guinea. According to one source, an estimated 12 people are believed to speak the language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kcb. Alternate Names: Kawatsa.

1973: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KAWAIISU] The Kawaiisu language is an Uto-Aztecan language spoken by the Kawaiisu people of California. In 1994, the language was severely endangered, with perhaps fewer than 20 remaining speakers. In 2011, The Kawaiisu Project received the Governor's Historic Preservation Award for its efforts to document the Kawaiisu language and culture, including "the Handbook of the Kawaiisu, language teaching and the Kawaiisu Language and Cultural Center [and] the Kawaiisu exhibit at the Tehachapi Museum." As of 2012, the Kawaiisu Language and Cultural Center offers language classes and DVDs for home learning, as well as training for other groups seeking to create language learning programs and materials (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xaw.

1991: [LILLYbm] Kawaiisu: A Grammar and Dictionary with Texts, by Maurice L. Zigmund, Curtis G. Booth, & Pamela Munro. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1991. Original orange and white wrappers, lettered in white and black. 399 pp. First edition. University of California Publications in Linguistics, Vol. 119. Second copy: IUW.

"Kawaiisu, a language of the Numic branch of Uto-Aztecan [is] now spoken by only a few people in central California's Kern County." This is the first dictionary of the language.

[KAWI] Kawi (from Sanskrit: kavi, "poet") is a literary and prose language on the islands of Java, Bali, and Lombok, based on Old Javanese, a language with a sizable vocabulary of Sanskrit loanwords. Kawi is the ancestor language of modern Javanese. The name "kawi" is derived from the root ku, which in Sanskrit means "poet", and, in derived forms, a "wise, educated man". The syllabic meter of Kawi poetry is sekar kawi, which means "flowers of the language", sekar itself deriving from the Sanskrit "sekhara" ("garland"). All Javanese languages are hierarchical and stratified, with strict social conventions for appropriate language subsets to be used for one's superiors or social and cultural functions. Kawi is commonly considered the pinnacle language (Wiki).

Kawi is not included in Ethnologue.

1817: see under ASIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1897-1912: [LILLY] Kawi-balineesch-nederlandsch woordenboek, by Hermanus Neubronner van der Tuuk. Batavia: Landsdrukkerij, 1897-1912. 4 vols. Original printed paper over boards, rebaked with modern black cloth. Not in Zaunmüller. Kawi is an old form of classical Javanese (see under Kawi). "The last volume of this extremely important Kawi-Balinese-Dutch glossary, was published 11 years after the untimely death of Van der Tuuk in 1893, as the preface by D.A. Rinkes reveals. The first corrector Dr. J.L.A. Brandes was so occupied with archaeological work that upon his death in 1906 only a few leaves had been corrected. He was succeeded by G. A. J. Hazeu for further correction, this progressed very slowly and in 1909 D. A. Hinlopen Labberton was called to assistance. The correction was finally finished by D. A. Rinke" (Bookseller's description: Gemilang).

1902: [LILLY] Kawi-Balinesch-Nederlandsch Glossarium op het oudjavaansche Râmâyana, by R. H. H. Juynboll. 'S-Gravenhage: Martinus Nijhoff, 1902. VI, 644 p. 24.3 cm. Original tan paper over boards, lettered in black; rebacked, reserving original spine. First edition. Includes Kawi-Bali-Dutch glossary, pp. 1-639. From the library of the noted linguist Johannes Rahder, with his ink ownership stamp and a few markings. Based on the Old Javanese version of the Ramayana. Juynboll published an Old Javanese-Dutch dictionary in 1923 (see under OLD JAVANESE).

1965: [IUW] Kamus Kawi (Djawa Kuno)--Indonesia, berdasarkan bahan dari Soewito Santoso. Malang: Lembaga Penerbitan IKIP Malang Pusat, 1965. 3, 327 p.; 32 cm. Kawi-Indonesian dictionary.

1980: [LILLYbm] A Kawi lexicon, by Soewojo Wojowasito, ed. by Roger F. Mills. Ann Arbor: University of Michigan, Center for South and Southeast Asian Studies, 1980. Original white wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. i-vi vii-xv xvi, 1-629 630-632. First edition. Series: Michigan papers on South and Southeast Asia, 17. Includes Kawi-English, pp. 1-629.

[KAYAH, EASTERN] Red Karen or Karenni, known in Burmese as Kayah, is a Karen dialect continuum spoken by over half a million Kayah people (Red Karen) in Burma. The name Kayah is "a new name invented by the Burmese to split them off from other Karen". Eastern Kayah is reported to have been spoken by 260,000 in Burma and 100,000 in Thailand in 2000, and Western Kayah by 210,000 in Burma in 1987. They are rather divergent. Among the Western dialects are Yintale and Manu (Manumanaw in Burmese) (Wiki).

Ethnologue considers Eastern Kayah a separate language: eky. Alternate Names: Karenni, Karenyi, Kayah Li, Kayay, Kayeh, Red Karen.

1997: [IUW] Eastern Kayah Li: grammar, texts, glossary, by David B. Solnit. Honolulu: University of Hawaii Press, c1997. xxviii, 385 p.: ill., map; 24 cm. Library binding, incorporating original tan, white and dark blue wrappers, lettered in dark blue. Part III, Glossary and Index: KayahL i-English glossary, pp. 337-360, English-Kayah Li index, pp. 361-376. Includes bibliographical references (p. 377-379).

"[This work] presents the first full-length study of a Karen dialect not heretofore described in linguistic literature... The language... is an Eastern dialect of Kayah Li... The glossary will be of value to professionals and visitors who come in contact with Kayah Li speakers" (from rear cover).

[KAYAN, BUSANG] Kayan (Kajan, Kayan proper) is a dialect cluster spoken by the Kayan people of Borneo. It is a cluster of closely related dialects with limited mutual intelligibility, and is itself part of the Kayan-Murik group of Austronesian languages. Baram Kayan is a local trade language. Bahau is part of the dialect cluster, but is not ethnically Kayan (Wiki).

Ethnologue: bfg. Alternate Names: Busang, Kajan, Kajang.

1910: [LILLY] Boesangsch-Nederlandsch woordenboek, by J.P.J. Barth. Batavia: Landsdrukkerij, 1920. Pp. I-VII VIII-IX X-XI XII-XXVI XXVII XXVIII, 1 2-228 229-231 232-279 280 281-286 287 288-291 292-293 294-343 344. Two linguistic maps tipped in at end of volume. 23 cm. Original dark green cloth, lettered in black. With a detailed introduction indicating the work on this dictionary began in 1898 with the support of the Dutch government. Includes Busang Kayan-Dutch, pp. [1]-228, a comparative vocabulary with three Dayak languages, Dutch-Busang Kayan-Kajang [which Ethnologue lists as an alternate name for Busang Kayan]- Penihing [Aoheng]-Long Glat [a dialect of Modang], pp. 234-279, and a Dutch-Busang Kayan index, pp. [293]-343. This copy with the ownership stamp of the noted linguist Johannes Rahder, with his notes in ink on similar linguistic material, pp. 228-[229].

[KAYTETYE] Kaytetye (Kaititj) is an Australian Aboriginal language of central Northern Territory. The language is considered to be threatened; The language is used for face-to-face communication within all generations, but it is losing users. The Kaytetye have (or had) a well-developed sign language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: gbb. Alternate Names: Gaididj, Kaiditj, Kaititj, Kaytej.

2000: [IUW] A learner's guide to Kaytetye, compiled by Myfany Turpin. Alice Springs, NT: IAD Press, c2000. viii, 184 p.: ill., map; 30 cm. + 2 sound discs (digital; 4 3/4 in.). Library binding, incorporating original purple front and rear wrappers, lettered in white, with a decorative color design on the front cover. Appendix 1: Theme-based wordlist, Kaytetye-English, pp. 149-154; Appendix 2: Kaytetye-English wordlist, pp. 155-158; Appendix 3: English-Kaytetye wordlist, pp. 159-163. Includes bibliographical references (p. 181).

"A Learner's Guide to Kaytetye comes with two audio CDs which give clear, practical instruction in the basics of the Kaytetye language" (rear cover).

"If you want a full alphabetical list of Kaytetye words these can be found in the Kaytetye Wordlist, which can be obtained from the Central Australian Dictionary Program at the Institute for Aboriginal Development. A Kaytetye to English Dictionary is also in preparation and should be available in the near future" (p. 149).

[KAZAKH] Kazakh (natively Қазақ тілі, Қазақша, Qazaq tili, Qazaqşa, تىلى قازاق; pronounced [qɑ'zɑq tɪ'ɫɘ]) is a Turkic language belonging to the Kipchak (or Northwestern Turkic) branch, closely related to Nogai, Kyrgyz, and especially Karakalpak. Kazakh is the official language of the Republic of Kazakhstan and a significant minority language in the Ili Kazakh Autonomous Prefecture in the Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Prefecture of the People's Republic of China and in the Bayan-Ölgii Province of Mongolia. Kazakh is also spoken by many ethnic Kazakhs through the former Soviet Union (approximately 5,000,000 in the Russian Federation according to the 2002 Russian Census), Afghanistan, Iran, Turkey, and Germany. Like other Turkic languages, Kazakh is an agglutinative language, and it employs vowel harmony (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kaz. Alternate Names: Kaisak, Kazak, Kosach, Qazaq.

1952: [IUW] Russko-kazakhskii sel'skokhoziaistvennyi slovar': s osnovnymi terminami biologii, S. Arzymbetov. Alma-Ata: Kazakhskoe gosudarstvennoe izdatel'stvo, 1952. 159 p.; 23cm. Added title page: Oryssha-qazaqsha auylysharuashylyq sözdigi. Russian-Kazakh agricultural dictionary.

1954a: [IUW] Kazakhsko-russkii slovar'. Otv. redaktor G. Mu. Alma-Ata, Izd-vo Akademii nauk Kazakhskoi SSR, 1954. 574 p. 17 cm. Added t.p. in Kazakh. In Cyrillic characters. Zaunmüller col. 226. Kazakh-Russian dictionary.

Third edition 1989: [IUW] Qazaqsha-oryssha sözdik / Kh. Makhmudov, Gh. Mūsabaev. 3-'e izd., ispravelennoe i dop. Third edition, corrected and enlarged. Almaty: Qazaq Sovet Ėntsiklopediiäsinyng Bas redaktsiiasy, 1989. 479 p.; 17 cm. Title on added t.p.: Kazakhsko-russkiï slovar'. Kazakh-Russian dictionary.

1954b: [LILLYbm] Russko-kazakhskii slovar. 50000 slov, by N. T. Sauranbaev. Moscow: Gos. izd-vo inostrannykh i natsionalnykh slovarei, 1954. Added title page: Oryssha-qazaqsha sozdik. Original dark blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold and decorated in blind. Pp. 1-5 6-935 936. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 226. Includes Russian-Kazakh, pp. [13]-925. Second copy: IUW.

Revised and enlarged edition 1978-1981: [LILLYbm] Oryssha-qazaqsha sozdik: 65.000 soz. I Tom (A-O). II Tom (O-a), by G[ainetdin] G[alievich] Musabaev. Two vols. Additional title page: Russko-kazakhskii slovar. Almaty: Qazaq Sovet Entsiklopediiäsinyng bas redaktsiiasy, 1978, 1981. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in gold and silver and decorated in black. Pp. [Vol. 1] 1-8 9-575 576; [Vol. 2] 1-4 5-588 589-592. First edition. Prefatory matter in Kazakh (v. 1) and Russian (v. 2) Based on the Russko-kazakhskii slovar of 1954 edited by N.T. Sauranbaev (see above) and the 2 vol. dictionary by S. Kenesbaev, and others, published in 1946. Includes Russian-Kazakh, pp. [Vol. 1] [11]-575; [Vol. 2] [10]-556. Second copy of set: IUW.

Third edition 2005: [IUW] Русско-казахский словарь: 70 000 слов / [под общей ред. Н.Т. Сауранбаева, Г.Г. Мусабаева, Ш. Ш. Сарыбаева]. Russko-kazakhskii slovar': 70 000 slov / [pod obshcheï red. N.T. Sauranbaeva, G.G. Musabaeva, Sh. Sh. Sarybaeva]. Third revised and enlarged edition. Алматы: Дайк-Пресс, 2005. Almaty: Daïk-Press, 2005. 1146 p.; 27 cm

1956: [IUW] Lingvistikalıq terimderding qysqasha oryssha-qazaqsha sözdigi / S. Kengesbaev, T. Zhanūzaqov. Almaty: Qazaq SSR Ghylym Akademiiäsinyng Baspasy, 1956. 81 p.; 21 cm. Russian title from colophon: Kratkiï russko-kazakhskii slovar' lingvisticheskikh terminov. Russian-Kazakh dictionary of linguistics.

Second edition, revised and enlarged 1966: [IUW] Russko-kazakhskii slovar' lingvisticheskikh terminov, Īsmet Kengesbaïūly Kengesbaev. Rel'khozha Zhanuzakov. Izd. 2., ispr. i dop. Alma-Ata: [Izd-vo "Nauka" Kazakhskoi SSR], 1966. 206 p. Added t.p. in Kazakh. Title varies; 1st ed.: Kratkiï russko-kazakhskii slovar' lingvisticheskikh terminov.

1959a: [IUW] Kratkiï russko-kazakhskii slovar'. 6 600 slov. Pod red. Kh.Kh. Makhmudova. Alma-Ata, 1959. 266 p. 21 cm. Added t.p. in Kazakh. Russian-Kazakh dictionary.

Third edition 1993: [IUW] Kratkiï russko-kazakhskii slovar': okolo 15000 slov. Pod obshcheï red. Sh.Sh. Sarybaeva. Izd. 3., pererab. i dop. Third revised and expanded edition. Almaty: Glavnaia red. "Kazak Ėntsiklopediiasy", 1993. 432 p.; 18 cm. Added title page: Qysqasha oryssha-qazaqsha-sözdik. Russian-Kazakh dictionary.

1959b: [IUW] Russko-kazakhskii terminologicheskii slovar'. Pod obshcheï red. S.A. Amanzholova. Alma-Ata, Izd-vo Akademii nauk Kazakhskoi SSR, 1959- v. 18 cm.

Added title pages, prefaces and tables of contents in Kazakh. Russian-Kazakh dictionary of scientific and technical terminology.

1959c: [IUW] Russko-kazakhskii tolkovyi biologicheskii slovar'. Talip Musakulov. Alma-Ata, Kazakhskoe gos. izd-vo, 1959. v. illus. Added t.p. in Kazakh. Russian-Latin-Kazakh biological dictionary with Kazakh definitions.

1962a: [IUW] Kazakhsko-russkii terminologicheskii slovar'; termini biologii. Talip Musakulov. Pod obshechi red. A. Abdrakhmanova. Alma-Ata, Izd-vo Akademii nauk Kazakhskoi SSR, 1962. 161 p. Added t.p. and text, in Kazakh. Kazakh-Russian biological dictionary.

1962b: [IUW] Kratkii russko-kazakhskii slovar' literaturovedcheskikh terminov. Gali Temirbolatovich Abetov. Pod obshechi red. K. Dzhumaliev. Alma-Ata: Izd-vo Akademii nauk Kazakhskoi SSR, 1962. 138 p. Added t.p. in Kazakh. Russian-Kazakh dictionary of literary terms.

1966a: [IUW] Kazakh-English dictionary, by Boris N. Shnitnikov. With a pref. by Nicholas Poppe. The Hague, Mouton, 1966. 301 p. 24 cm. Library binding, Uralic and Altaic series; v. 28. American Council of Learned Societies. Research and studies in Uralic and Altaic languages. Project no. 65. "Research ... performed pursuant to a contract between the United States Office of Education and the American Council of Learned Societies." Bibliography: p. 7-8. Includes Kazakh-English dictionary, pp. 13-301.

"The present Kazakh dictionary is the most complete ever compiled. It is much larger than the Kazakh-Russian dictionary by Kh. Makhmudov and G. Musabayev (Alma-Ata 1954) [see above] and is the first to be compiled outside the USSR. The author was not a professional scholar and worked on his dictionary only in his free time. He achieved, however, remarkable results, and his work ranks with that of authors of other well-known dictionaries of Turkic languages" (Foreword, Nicholas Poppe).

1966b: [IUW] Russko-kazakhskii tolkovyi geograficheskii slovar'. Pod obshechi red. S.K. Kenesbaeva i A.A. Abdrakhmanova. [Alma-Ata] Nauka [1966] 203 p. 21 cm. Added t. p. and preface in Kazakh. Russian-Kazakh geographical dictionary.

1974: [IUW] Aghylshyn-qazaq sózdigi / S.G. Akhmetova ... [et al.]. Almaty: "Mektep", 1974. 400 p.; 21 cm. Added t.p.: English-Kazakh dictionary; title in colophon: Anglo-kazakhskii slovar'.

1977: [IUW] Kazakh-Mongol tol' / B. Bazylkhaan; redaktor: Zh. Akhmet, B. Bataa. Ulaanbaatar: BNMAU, Shinzhlekh Ukhaany Akademi Khel Zokhiolyn Khureelén, 1977. 392 p.; 27 cm. Added t.p.: Qazaqsha-Mongholsha sózdik. Kazakh-Mongolian dictionary. A Mongolian-Kazakh dictionary appeared in 1984 (see below).

1979: [IUW] 汉哈辞典 . Han Ha ci dian. 第1版. Di 1 ban. First edition.

[乌鲁木齐?]: 新疆人民出版社: 新疆新华书店发行, 1979. [Wulumuqi?]: Xinjiang ren min chu ban she: Xinjiang xin hua shu dian fa xing, 1979. 53, 1550 p.; 27 cm. Added t.p.: Hanzuxa-Kazakxa sozdik. Includes indexes. Chinese-Kazakh dictionary.

1981: [IUW] 汉哈常用词典 = Hanzuxa-Kazakxa sawatteḱ sozdik / kurastergan: Daḱên. Han Ha chang yong ci dian = Hanzuxa-Kazakxa sawatteḱ sozdik / kurastergan: Daḱên. 第1版. Di 1 ban. First edition. 北京: 民族出版社: 新华书店发行, 1981.

Beijing: Min zu chu ban she: Xin hua shu dian fa xing, 1981. 4, 34, 467 p.; 14 cm. Chinese-Kazakh dictionary.

1984a: [IUW] Egīnshīlik zhōnīndegī orysshā-qazaqsha tūsīndīrme sözdīk / M.K. Meīrmanov, B.I. Islamqūlov. Almaty: Qaīnar, 1984. 148 p.; 23 cm. Title in colophon: Russko-kazakhskii tolkovyi slovar' po zemledeliu. Russian-Kazakh agricultural dictionary.

1984b: [IUW] 汉哈常用名词术语对照 / [木哈什, 伊不拉音合编]. Han Ha chang yong ming ci shu yu dui zhao / [Muhashi, Yibulayin he bian]. 第1版. Di 1 ban.

First edition. 乌鲁木齐市: 新疆人民出版社: 新疆新华书店发行, <1984- > Wulumuqi Shi: Xinjiang ren min chu ban she: Xijiang xin hua shu dian fa xing, <1984- > v. <2 >; 13 cm. Parallel title in Kazakh. Title page of v. 2 dated 1983. Chinese-Kazakh dictionary.

1984c: [IUW] Kazak Türkçesi sözlüğü / tercüme, Hasan Oraltay, Nuri Yüce, Saadet Pınar. İstanbul: Türk Dünyası Araştırmaları Vakfı, 1984. 327 p.; 24 cm. Uniform series: Türk Dünyası Araştırmaları Vakfı yayını; 8. "Kazak SSR İlim Akademisi Dil Bilimi Enstitüsü tarafından neşredilen ve İ.K. Kenesbayoğlu ... [et al.] tarafından hazırlanan Kazak tilinin sözdüğü'nden tercüme edilmiştir"--3rd prelim. p. Kazakh-Turkish dictionary.

1984d: [IUW] Монгол-Казак толь / Б. Базылхан = Моңғолша-Қазақша сөздік / Б. Базылхан. Mongol-Kazakh tol' / B. Bazylkhan = Monggholsha-Qazaqsha sözdik / B. Bazylkhan. Улаанбаатар: Өлгий, 1984. Ulaanbaatar: Ölgii, 1984. 885 p.; 27 cm. Includes short comparative grammars of Kazakh and Mongolian. In Mongolian Cyrillic and Qazaq. Mongolian-Kazakh dictionary.

1985a: [IUW] A Kazakh newspaper reader, including a complete Kazakh - English citation glossary, by John R. Krueger. Bloomington: Indiana University, Research Institute for Inner Asian Studies, 1985. 202 p.; 28 cm. Library binding. Teaching aids for the study of Inner Asia no. 10. At head of title: Indiana University, Research Institute for Inner Asian Studies. Book primarily in Kazakh, with preface and t.p. in English. "Kazakh-English Citation Glossary," pp. 57-200, with "Additional Glossary," Kazakh-English, p.201.

1985b: [IUW] Russko-kazakhskii frazeologicheskii slovar' / [redaktsionnaia kollegiia M.B. Balakaev, S.K. Kenesbaev, M.M. Kopylenko]. Alma-Ata: Akademiia nauk Kazakhskoi SSR, 1985. 220 p.; 21 cm. Title on added t.p. in Kazakh: Orysshā-qazaqsha frazeologiālyq sözdīk. Includes bibliographical references. Russian-Kazakh dictionary of phraseology.

1987: [IUW] Razgovornik russko-kazakhskii = Tīlashar orysshā-qazaqsha / [avtory: K. Segīzbaev, [et al.]; retsenzent Rabiga Syzdykova]. Alma-Ata: Kazakhskaiā Sov. Ėntsiklopediia, 1987. 316 p.; 10 x 13 cm. Includes Russian-Kazakh vocabularies.

1988: [IUW] Kazakhsko-russkii slovar'-minimum: dlia studentov russkikh otdelenii pedagogicheskikh institutov / K.D. Dzhunusbekova. Alma-Ata: "Mektep", 1988. 47 p.; 20 cm. "Uchebnoe izdanie"--Colophon. Basic Kazakh-Russian dictionary for the Russian Student Office of the Pedagogical Institute. "Training edition".

1989a: [IUW] Qazaqsha-khanzvsha sözdik / sözdiktī jasavga javaptī Nurbāk Abīkānuli. Beijing: Ulttar Baspasī, 1989. 1492 p.; 27 cm. Title on added t.p.: Ha han zi dian. Chinese-Kazakh dictionary.

- 1989b: [IUW] Qazaqsha-oryssha oqushylar sözdigi = Kazakhsko-russkiï shkol'nyï slovar': dliã shkol s russkim iazykom obucheniã / S. Kh. Dukenbaev. Almaty: "Mektep", 1989. 64 p.; 22 cm. Kazakh-Russian school dictionary.
- 1990: [IUW] Khanzwscha-Qazaqsha shetel kisi ättari / qurastırghan, Mellät Rämät uli = Han Ha wai guo ren ming shou ce. Ürimji: Shynjyang Khaliq Baspasi, 1990. 2, 678 p.; 21 cm. In Kazakh (Arabic script) and Chinese. Kazakh-Chinese dictionary of foreign words and phrases.
- 1991: [IUW] Oryssha-qazaqsha geologiiälyq túsindirme sözdik / K. Saparbaev, T. Nüsıpbäev. Almaty: "Qazaq universiteti", 1991. 132 p.; 17 cm. In Kazakh. Russian-Kazakh geological dictionary.
- 1992a: [IUW] Khanzwscha-Qazaqsha haywanattar sözdigi / avtorı, Qizir Shuqan uli = Han Ha dong wu ci dian. Biyyjng: Ulttar Baspasi, 1992. 2, 353 p.; 14 cm. In Kazakh and Chinese. Kazakh-Chinese nature dictionary.
- 1992b: [IUW] Kratkiï kazakhsko-russkiï slovar': 5500 slov / K. Bektaev ... [et al.]. Alma-Ata: Glav. red. Kazakhskoi sov. entsiklopedii, 1992. 245 p.; 17 cm. Added t.p. in Kazakh. Kazakh-Russian dictionary.
- 1992c: [IUW] Qazaqsha-nemısshe sözdik: 31 000 söz ben söz türkesteri = Kasachisch-deutsches Wörterbuch / Myrzabekova Q., Äbdikärimova Q., Äbdıghaliev S.; zhaly redaktııasyn Myrzabekova Q. Almaty: "Rauan", 1992. 380 p.; 25 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 378). Kazakh-German dictionary.
- 1992d: [IUW] Qazaqsha-oryssha zhãne oryssha-qazaqsha sözdik = Kazakhsko-russkiï i russko-kazakhskii slovar' / [Isaev S.M. ... (et al.); otv. redaktor, Omarov E.S.]. Alma-Ata: [Kazakhskii gos. zhenskii pedagog. in-t. Maloe predpiatie "Ai"], 1992. 125 p.; 21 cm. "Qazaq tili kurastarynyng tyngdaushylaryna, studentterge zhãne okyrman kauymgha arnaldy"--Colophon. Kazakh-Russian-Kazakh dictionary.
- 1992e: [IUW] Russko-kazakhsko-angliiskii razgovornik bytovoï leksiki i slenga = Oryssha-qazaqsha-aghylshynsha türmystyq slengtik söilesu sözdigi = Russian-Kazakh-English short conversation book of colloquial expressions and slang / [sostaviteli Gelovani G.G., Izbasarov M., Tsvetkov A.M.]. Alma-Ata: MGP "Print", 1992. 68 p.; 20 cm.
- 1992f: [IUW] Türkçe-Kazakça sözlük. Fatih, İstanbul: İlmî Neşriyat, 1992. First edition. 286 p.; 19 cm. Series: "İlmi Neşriyat; 5". "Kazak Türkçesinin kısa grameri [Brief Kazakh Turkish grammar]": p. 263-276. Turkish-Kazakh dictionary.
- 1993a: [IUW] Qazaqsha-oryssha sözdik: mektep oqushylaryna zhãne qazaq tiliñ üirenushilerge arnalghan / Sh. Bektürov, A. Bektürova. Almaty: "Rauan", 1993. 158 p.; 20 cm. Cover title: Kazakhsko-russkiï slovar'. Kazakh-Russian dictionary.
- 1993b: [IUW] Russko-kazakhskii slovar' = Oryssha-qazaqsha sözdik / Myrzataï Sergaliev. Almaty: [s.n.], 1993. 110 p.; 20 cm. Russian-Kazakh dictionary.
- 1994a: [IUW] Екі тілде іс жүргізу: сөздік-анықтамалық = Делопроизводство на двух языках: словарь-справочник / М. Қасымбеков [and four others]. Ekī tilde is zhürgizu: sözdik-anyqtamalyq = Deloproizvodstvo na dvukh iazykakh: slovar-spravochnik / М. Qasymbekov [and four others]. Алматы: Атамұра, Қазақстан, 1994. Almaty: Atamūra; Qazaqstan, 1994. 223 pages: forms; 20 cm. Includes bibliographical references (pages 5-6). Russian-Kazakh business dictionary.

1994b: [IUW] 汉哈财经词汇 = Hanzu-sha Qazaqsha qazina-ekunumika atavlari / [阿布都别克, 阿布拉希主编]. Han Ha cai jing ci hui = Hanzu-sha Qazaqsha qazina-ekunumika atavlari / [Abudubieke, Abulaxi zhu bian]. First edition. 乌鲁木齐市: 新疆人民出版社, 1994. Wulumuqi Shi: Xinjiang ren min chu ban she, 1994. 656 p.; 21 cm. Chinese-Kazakh dictionary of finance.

1995a: [IUW] Kazakhsko-russkiĭ sel'skokhoziĭstvennyiĭ slovar' / Kh. Tlemisov, E. Ramazanov. Almaty: "Kaĭnar", 1994. 427 p.; 21 cm. Russian-Kazakh agricultural dictionary.

1995b: [IUW] Zaŋg terminderinġ qazaqsha-oryssha zhăne oryssha-qazaqsha sözdġi = Kazakhsko-russkiĭ i russko-kazakhskiĭ slovar' iuridicheskikh terminov / kandidaty Nŭrlan Orynbasarŭly Dulatbekov ... [et al]. Almaty: Zhetĭ zharghy, 1995. 142 p.; 17 cm. Kazakh-Russian-Kazakh law dictionary.

1996: [IUW] Qazaqsha-aghylshynsha tolyq sözdik: 7000-gh zhuyq söz / A. Tazhutov. Almaty: "Sözdik-Slovar'", 1996- v.; 18 cm. Added title page: Kazakh-English comprehensive dictionary: 7000 entries approx. Preface also in English. Incomplete contents: 1. t. A-D --.

1997: [IUW] Türikshe-Qazaqsha sözdik / Aqas Tazhutov. Almaty: Sözdik-Slovar', 1997. 295 p.; 17 cm. Added title page: Türkçe-Kazakça sözlük. Turkish-Kazakh dictionary.

1998a: [IUW] Qazaqsha-oryssha ūlken sözdik: [on tomdyk] / A. Tazhutov. Almaty: Sözdik-Slovar', 1998- <1999> 10 v.; 17 cm. Added title page: Bol'shoĭ kazakhsko-russkiĭ slovar'. Incomplete contents: v. 1. A-Ā -- v. 2. Ā-D -- v. 3. D-Zh. Comprehensive Kazakh-Russian dictionary.

1998b: [IUW] Қазақша-орысша, орысша-қазақша дипломатиялық қысқаша сөздік: Қазақ тілін үйренушілерге арналған көмекші оқу құралы / Зейнахан Күзекова, Төрегелді Тұяқбаев = Казахско-русский, русско-казахский краткий дипломатический словарь: дополнительное учебное пособие для изучающих казахский язык / Зейнахан Күзекова, Төрегелді Тұяқбаев. Qazaqsha-oryssha, oryssha-Qazaqsha diplomatiialyq qysqasha sözdik: Qazaq tilin ūrenushĭlerge arnalghan kömekshĭ oqu qŭraly / Zeĭnakhan Kŭzekova, Töregeldĭ Tŭiaqbaev = Kazakhsko-russkiĭ, russko-kazakhskiĭ kratkiĭ diplomaticheskiĭ slovar': dopolnitel'noe uchebnoe posobie dlia izuchaiushchikh kazakhskiĭ iazyk / Zeĭnakhan Kŭzekova, Töregeldĭ Tŭiaqbaev. Астана: Елорда, 1998. Astana: Elorda, 1998. 127 pages; 17 cm . Kazakh-Russian-Kazakh consular and diplomatic dictionary.

1999a: [IULAW] English-Russian-Kazakh dictionary of law terms = Anglo-russko-kazakhskiĭ slovar' iuridicheskikh terminov = Aghylshynsha-oryssha-kazaksha zan termineri sözdigi / El'shat Seksembaeva ... [et al.]. Almaty (Kazakhstan): "Zheti Zharghy", 1999. 302 p.; 23 cm. In English, Russian and Kazakh. A gift from Higher Law School Almaty, Kazakhstan.

1999b: [IUW] Ūlken qazaqsha-oryssha, oryssha-qazaqsha sözdik / Qaldybaĭ Bektaev. Almaty: "Altyn Qazyna", 1999. 703 p.: port.; 27 cm. Added title page: Bol'shoĭ kazakhsko-russkiĭ, russko-kazakhskiĭ slovar'. Includes bibliographical references (p. [17]). Kazakh-Russian-Kazakh dictionary.

2000a: [IUW] Is qaghazdarynyng oryssh-qazaqsha sözdigi / Б. Бөрібаев [and others]. Is qaghazdarynyng oryssh-qazaqsha sözdigi / В. Бөрїбаев [and others]. Алматы: БІ. Алтынсарин атындағы Қазақтың білім академиясының Республикалық баспа кабинеті, 2000. Алматы: Y. Altynsarin atyndaghy Qazaqtyng bilim akademiiasynyng Respublikalyq baspa kabinetі, 2000. 240, [1] pages; 20 cm . Russian-Kazakh dictionary of business and management.

2000b: [IUW] Kratkiı russko-kazakhskii slovar' iuridicheskikh terminov / [sost. R.U. Zhambulova]. Алматы: "Zheti-Zharghy", 2000. 69 p.; 15 cm. Russian-Kazakh law dictionary.

2000c: [IUW] Orysha-qazaqsha-aghylshynsha pändik-taqyryptyq sözdik = Russko-kazakhsko-angliiskii slovar' / Viacheslav Frank = Russian-Kazakh-English subject thematic dictionary / edited by Vjacheslav Frank. Алматы: Bolashaq balapandary, 2000. 285 p.; 22 cm. Parallel title: Russian-Kazakh-English subject thematic dictionary. "Zhoghary synysh oqushylary men studentterge arналghan ambebaп anyqtamalyq." Includes bibliographical references (p. 271). In Kazakh, English, and Russian.

2001a: [IUW] Kazakhsko-russkii slovar' / Kh. Makhmudov, G. Musabaev. Алматы: Öner, 2001. 537 p.; 17 cm. Kazakh-Russian dictionary.

2001b: [IUW] Qazaq tili terminderiniң salalyq ghylymi tısindirme sözdigi äskeri is: 4000-nan asmat termin / [zhetekshiler, S.B. Toqpaqbaev ... (et al.)] Алматы: Mektep, 2001. 480 p.; 23 cm. "Oqulyq-anyqtamalyq basylym"--Colophon. Includes bibliographical references (p. 442-443) and index. Kazakh-Russian military science dictionary.

2002a: [IUW] Qazaqsha-orysha sözdik: 50 minggha zhuyq söz / red. basqarghan, R. Gh. Syzdykova, K. Sh. Khüsaıyn. Алматы: Дайк-Пресс, 2002. Алматы: Daik-Press, 2002. 1005 p.; 27 cm. Казахско-русский словарь. Kazakhsko-russkii slovar'. Kazakh-Russian dictionary.

2002b: [IUW] Sözdik: mektep oqushylary zhäne zhogary oqu oryndary studentterine arналghan = Slovar': dlia uchashchikhsia obshcheobrazovatel'nykh shkol, studentov vuzov i kolledzhei: 30000 slov / [qurastyrgandar, Baian Ismaghulova, El'vira Erezhepova, Gulbakhira Abdizhapbarova]. Алматы: Izd-vo "Aruna" baspasy, 2002. 415 p.; 17 cm. Kazakh-Russian-Kazakh school dictionary.

2003a: [IUW] Alghashqy äskeri daiyndyqtyng qazaqsha-orysha zhäne orysha-qazaqsha sözdigi = Kazakhsko-russkii, russko-kazakhskii slovar' nachal'noi voennoi podgotovki / [qurastyrushylar, Abeldinov, E.S., Abdırakhmanov, B.M., Rakhimov, K.K.]. Pavlovar: Izd-vo "Arman-PB", 2003. 64 p., [16] p. of plates: ill.; 14 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 64). Kazakh-Russian-Kazakh dictionary of military training.

2003b: [IUW] Qazaqsha-aghylshynsha, aghylshynsha-qazaqsha sözdik: 6000-gha zhuyq sözder men terminder: [ekonomisterge arналghan] / [qurastyrgan, Koch Levent]. Алматы: "Mektep", 2003. 207 p. Cover title: Kazakh-English, English-Kazakh dictionary for economists. Includes bibliographical references (p. 204-[205]). In Kazakh and English; pref. also in English. Kazakh-English dictionary of economics.

2004: [IUW] Russko-kazakhskii kazakhsko-russkii slovar' = Orysha-qazaqsha qazaqsha-orysha sözdik / [Sergaliev Myrzataı]. Алматы: Sözdik-Slovar', 2004. 673 p.; 18 cm. Russian-Kazakh-Russian dictionary.

2008: [IUW] Qysqasha qazaqsha-oryssha ekonomikalyq terminder sözdīgī / [qūrast., Qanafina, F. Q., Parashchenko, V. F., Onggharbaeva, A. T.]. Almaty: Daik-Press, 2006. 86 p.; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 86). In Kazakh-Kazakh-Russian dictionary of economics.

2009: [IUW] Türkiye türkçesi, Kazak türkçesi sözlüğü = Turkshe-qazaqsha sözdīk, Ayabek Bayniyazov - Janar Bayniyazova; editör, Kenan Koç. Fatih, İstanbul: IQ Kültür Sanat Yayıncılık, 2009. First edition.xiv, 797 p.; 25 cm. Uniform series: Araştırma-inceleme dizisi (IQ Kültür Sanat Yayıncılık); 316. "Eserin original ismi Türkshe-qazaqsha sözdīk"--T.p. verso. Includes bibliographical references (p. xiii). Turkish-Kazakh dictionary.

2013: [IUW] Сөздік: оқушыларға, студенттерге арналған = Dictionary: for school and university students / құрасырушы-афтор Чабденова С.Д.; бас редакторы Қ. Байғабдылова. Sözdīk: oqushylargha, studentterge arnalghan = Dictionary: for school and university students / qūrasyrushy-aftor Chabdenova S.D.; bas redaktory Q. Baighabylova. Алматы: Аруна баспасы, [2013]. Almaty: Aruna baspasy, [2013]. 523, [1] pages; 16 cm. Parallel title: Dictionary: for school and university students. Kazakh-English, English-Kazakh dictionary. "30000 söz - words". Includes bibliographical references (page 524).

[KEI] Keiese is an Austronesian language spoken in a small region of the Moluccas, a province of Indonesia. Keiese is mainly spoken in the Kei archipelago in Maluku Tenggara (The Southeast Moluccas), belonging to the province of Maluku, Indonesia. It has a population of around 140.000 people (source unknown), half of which lives in the only two cities, Tual and Langgur: respectively the Islamic and Christian capitals of the archipelago. It is difficult to estimate the number of speakers of Keiese. According to Ethnologue, the number lies around 85,000, out of a total of 140,000 inhabitants. Dictionaries and word lists: [sources for manuscript material not given; Ribbe & Kalbfus 1903 not noted]

Eijbergen, H.C. van, (compiler). 1865. Korte woordenlijst van de taal der Aroe- en Kei-Eilanden. [Short wordlist of the language of the Aru and Kei Islands]. Tijdschrift voor Indische Taal-, Land- en Volkenkunde 14:557-568.

Geurtjens, H. 1921b. Woordenlijst der Keieesche taal, Bataviaasch Genootschap van Kunsten en Wetenschappen, Weltevreden Albrecht & Co.

Geurtjens, H., Nieuwenhuis, A. 1940. (Dutch-Kei notebook). ms. [200p].

Kusters, J.D. 1895. Woordenlijsten van de Kei-eilanden [word listst of the Kei islands], IN Woordenlijsten van talen der Molukken, opgenomen in de handschriften-verzameling van het Bataviaasch Genootschap. Not. Bat. Gen., XXXIII, p45.

Nieuwenhuis, A. 1940 (Dutch-Kei handwritten notebook). ms. 200p.

Nieuwenhuis, A. 1948. (Dutch-Kei typescript). ms. [114p].

Royen, A. van. 1985. Woordenlijst Nederlands-Keiees A-K, K-Z. [Dutch-Kei dictionary,A-K, K-Z] [no pub.].

Rugebregt, J.F. et al. 1983. Inventarisasi bahasa daerah Maluku. [Inventory of Moluccan minority languages] Ambon: Proyek Penelitian Bahasa dan Sastra Indonesia dan Daerah Maluku (DEPDIKBUD).

Yuen, M.K. (Felix Ma). 2012. Kamus Bahasa Kei – Indonesia [Dictionary Kei – Indonesian].

Unknown author. 1930, Bijvoeging der Kei woordenlijsten [appendix of the Kei word lists]

Unknown author and year. Kamus Belanda-Kei [Dutch-Kei dictionary], Unknown author and year. Kata-kata Bahasa Kei dan Aru [List of words from the Kei and Aru languages]

Ethnologue: kei. Alternate Names: Kai, Keiese, Saumlaki, Veveu Evav.

1903: see under OCEANIC LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KEDANG] Kédang (Kdang, Dang, Kedangese) is a language of Lembata Island, east of Flores, in Indonesia. The language belongs to the Austronesian family and its sub-family, Malayo-Polynesian. More specifically, the language is within the Flores-Lembata subgroup. The name of the language is also the name of the region where the language is spoken, Kedang. As of today, there are approximately about 30,000 speakers of the language. The majority of the speakers is engaged in agricultural productions which are mainly farming and fishing (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ksx. Alternate Names: Dang, Kdang, Kedangese, Kédang.

2013: [LILLY] A dictionary of the Kedang language: Kedang-Indonesian-English. By U.B. Samely, R.H. Barnes. With the assistance of A. Sio Amuntoda, M. Suda Apelabi. Leiden: Brill, 2013. vi, 785 pages; 24 cm. Original black, brown and white paper over boards, lettered in white, brown and black. First edition. Kedang-English dictionary, pp. [37]-[712], English-Kedang finderlist, pp. [713]-785. First dictionary of the language.

"A Dictionary of the Kedang Language presents the first extensive published record of an Austronesian language on the remote Eastern Indonesian island of Lembata. A special interest of the dictionary resides in the fact that Kedang lies on the boundary line between Austronesian and Papuan languages in Eastern Indonesia. The Kedang entries are translated first into Indonesian and then into English. For ease of access, finder lists are provided in Indonesian and in English. The Introduction situates the language linguistically and sketches the phonology and morphology, as well as the 'pairing' (dyadic sets) in ritual and everyday usage of items of vocabulary characteristic of Kedang" (rear cover).

[KELE (Democratic Republic of the Congo)] The Kele language, or Lokele, is a Bantu language spoken in the Democratic Republic of the Congo by the Kele people. Foma (Lifoma) is a dialect (Wiki).

Ethnologue: khy. Alternate Names: Ekele, Kili, Likelo, Lokele, Yakusu.

1818: see under BOMA.

1926: [LILLYbm] Vocabulary of Ekele. The language spoken by the Lokele tribe living between Yanjali and Stanleyville. Congo Belge, compiled by W. Millman. Yakusu: B[aptist] M[issionary] S[ociety], 1926. Original dark red cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. [2] 1-246. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 840. Includes only English-Ekele. No prefatory material. W. Millman also published books in the African Home Library Series of the Sheldon Press, as well as a work in an unidentified native language published by the BMS in Yakusu in 1922. A French vocabulary appeared in 1937. This is the first extensive English-Kele vocabulary.

[KELE (Papua New Guinea)] Kele or Gele' is a language spoken in the easterly section of inland Manus Island, New Guinea. Its name comes from the Kele word for "there" (Wiki).

Ethnologue: sbc. Alternate Names: Gele'.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KENGA] Kenga is a Bongo–Bagirmi language of Chad (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kyq. Alternate Names: Cenge, Kenge.

2004: [IUW] Dictionnaire kenga (Tchad) / Pierre Palayer, avec le concours de Adoum Goudja Kodngargue et Charles Vandame. Louvain: Peeters, 2004. 215 p.: 2 maps; 24 cm. First edition. Library binding, incorporating original pale yellow wrappers, lettered in brown. Collection Afrique et langage; 6. Kenga-French, pp. [13]-182, French-Kenga index, pp. [183]-215. Includes bibliographical references (p. 11).

"Kenga is spoken in Chad ... by a population of some 50,000 persons.... Up to now the language has only been known through a grammar by Charles Vandame (1968) [also held by IUW]. After a brief geographical and linguistic introduction, the dictionary is the primary text. It includes around 3,700 entries, with numerous examples" (rear cover, tr: BM).

[KEORU-AHIA] Keuru, or Keoru-Ahia after two of its dialects, is a Trans–New Guinea language of Papua New Guinea (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xeu. Alternate Names: Ahia, Ahiaive, Haura, Haura Haela, Horo, Houro, Hovoiroro, Hovoyo, Ke'oru, Keuro, Keuru, Kouri, Lavau, Lower Ahia, O'o Moko, Pairi, Velep.

1973: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KERA] Kera is an East Chadic language spoken by 45,000 people in Southwest Chad and 6,000 people in North Cameroon. It was called "Tuburi" by Greenberg, a name shared with Tupuri (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ker

1976: [IUW] Sprache und Tradition der Kera (Tschad), by Karen H. Ebert. Berlin: Reimer, 1975-1979. 3 v.: maps; 24 cm. Vol. II: Library binding incorporating the front pale blue wrapper lettered in black. Marburger Studien zur Afrika- und Asienkunde. Serie A, Afrika; Bd. 6, 8, 15. Introductory material in French and German; texts in Kari with German and French translations. Includes bibliographical references. Contents: T. 1. Texte. T. 2. Lexikon/Lexique. T. 3. Grammatik. The second volume includes Kera-German-French, pp. 22-103, German-Kera index, pp. 106-135, and French-Kera index, pp. 138-168.

"The present work is based on the results of a research trip to southern Chad in the Winter of 1972-1973. The trip was supported by the Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft as part of a research project on Chadian-Hamitan languages in the Republic of Chad under the direction of H. Jungrathmayr" (Introductory Note, tr: BM).

[KERES, EASTERN] Keresan /kə'ri:sən/, also Keres /'kɛərɪs/, is a dialect cluster spoken by the Keres Pueblo people in New Mexico. The varieties of each of the seven Keres pueblos are mutually intelligible with its closest neighbors. There are significant differences between the Western and Eastern groups, which are commonly counted as separate languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kee. Alternate Names: Eastern Keres Pueblo, Rio Grande Keresan.

1907-1930: see Vol. 16 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[KERES, WESTERN] Keresan /kə'ri:sən/, also Keres /'kɛəɪs/, is a dialect cluster spoken by the Keres Pueblo people in New Mexico. The varieties of each of the seven Keres pueblos are mutually intelligible with its closest neighbors. There are significant differences between the Western and Eastern groups, which are commonly counted as separate languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kjq. Alternate Names: Western Keres Pueblo.

1907-1930: see Vol. 16 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[KEREWO] Kerewo is a Papuan language of southern Papua New Guinea (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kxz. Alternate Names: Kerewa, Kerewa-Goari.

1891: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1951: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1973: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KET] The Ket /'kɛt/ language, or more specifically Imbak and formerly known as Yenisei Ostyak /'ɒstiæk/, is a Siberian language long thought to be an isolate, the sole surviving language of a Yeniseian language family. It is spoken along the middle Yenisei basin by the Ket people. The language is threatened with extinction—the number of ethnic Kets that are native speakers of the language dropped from 1,225 in 1926 to 537 in 1989. Another Yeniseian language, Yugh, is believed to have recently become extinct (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ket. Alternate Names: Imbatski-Ket, Yenisei Ostyak, Yenisey Ostiak, Yenisey Ostyak.

1858: [LILLYbm] M. Alexander Castrén's Versuch einer Jenissei-ostjakischen und kottischen Sprachlehre nebst Wörterverzeichnissen aus den genannten Sprachen, edited by Anton Schiefner. St. Petersburg: Buchdruckerei der Kaiserlichen Akademie der Wissenschaften, 1858. 19th century red cloth and black paper over boards, spine lettered in gold; all edges marbled. Pp. I-V VI-XIX XX-XXIV, 1 2-264. First edition. Nordische Reisen und Forschungen 6. Zaunmüller, col. 293 (listed under Ostyak). Yenisei-Ostyak [Ket]-German, pp. [157]-192, Kott-German, pp. [195]-227, and German-Jenissy-Ostyak [Ket] /Kott, pp. [231]-259, and errata, pp. [263]-264. First extensive vocabulary of Ket.

1955: [IUW] Ketika; Materialien aus dem Ketischen oder Jenisseiostjakischen, aufgezeichnet von Kai Donner, bearb. und hrsg. von Aulis J. Joki. Helsinki, Suomalais-ugrilainen Seura, 1955. 135 p. 25 cm. Suomalais-ugrilaisen Seuran toimituksia, 108.

[KEWA] Kewa is a Trans–New Guinea language complex of the Southern Highlands province of Papua New Guinea. Kewa's elaborate pandanus avoidance register, which is used only in the forest during the pandan harvest, has been extensively documented. The grammar is regularized and the vocabulary is restricted, with about a thousand words that differ from normal language. The language was first described by Karl J. Franklin in 1972 in an article called "A ritual pandanus language of New Guinea" and published in Oceania 43, 66-76.

Ethnologue lists Kewa as two separate languages: 1) East Kewa (kis), and 2) West Kewa (kew; alternate names: Pasuma).

An on-line dictionary of Kewa may be found at www.webonary.org.

1968: [IUW] The dialects of Kewa, by K. J. Franklin. Canberra, Australian National University, 1968. iv, 72 p. maps, tables. 26 cm. Pacific linguistics. Series B no. 10. Bibliography: p. 69-72. Includes as Appendix B, a comparative list of kinship terms in the three major dialects of Kewa (East-South-West) with English and Pre-Kewa, pp. 47-48.

1973: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1978: [IUW] A Kewa dictionary with supplementary grammatical and anthropological materials, by Karl J. Franklin and Joice Franklin, assisted by Yapua Kirapeasi. Canberra: Dept. of Linguistics, Research School of Pacific Studies, Australian National University, 1978. xi, 514 p.: ill.; 26 cm. Library binding. Pacific linguistics: Series C, no. 53. Includes Kewa-English, pp. 103-255, and English to Kewa Index, pp. 281-347, with various appendices. Includes historical notes on the language, pp. 72-74.

"The Kewa language is spoken by over 50,000 people living in the Southern Highlands Province. Like many language names, the name Kewa is arbitrary and means 'stranger'" (Introduction).

[KEWA, WEST] Ethnologue treats Kewa as two separate Trans-New Guinea languages: East Kewa and West Kewa.

Ethnologue: kew. Alternate Names: Pasuma.

1973: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KGALAGADI] Kgalagadi (Kalahari) is one of the Bantu languages spoken in Botswana, along the South African border and in Namibia. It is spoken by about 40,000 people. In the language, it is known as Shekgalagari, pronounced [ʃɛkxalaxari] (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xkv. Alternate Names: Kgalagarhi, Kgalagari, Khalagari, Khalakadi, Kxhalaxadi, Qhalaxari, Sekgalagadi, Shekgalagadi, Shekgalagari.

2008: [IUW] Shekgalagari grammar: a descriptive analysis of the language and its vocabulary, by Stephen T.M. Lukusa, Kemmony C. Monaka. Cape Town, South Africa: Centre for Advanced Studies of African Society (CASAS), 2008. ix, 235 p.: ill.; 22 cm. CASAS book series; no. 47. Includes bibliographical references (p. 227-228) and index.

[KHAKAS] Khakas (Khakas: Хакас тили, Khakas tîli) is a Turkic language spoken by the Khakas people, who mainly live in the southwestern Siberian Khakas Republic, or Khakassia, in Russia. The Khakas number 75,000, of whom 20,000 speak the Khakas language, most of whom are bilingual in Russian. Traditionally, the Khakas language is divided into several closely related dialects, which take their names from the different tribes: Sagay, Kacha, Koybal, Beltir, and Kyzyl. In fact, these names represent former administrative units rather than tribal or linguistic groups. The people speaking all these dialects simply referred to themselves as Tadar (i.e. Tatar). The first major recordings of the Khakas language originate from the middle of the 19th century. The Finnish linguist Matthias Castrén, who travelled through northern and Central Asia between 1845–1849, wrote a treatise on the Koybal dialect, and recorded an epic. Wilhelm Radloff traveled the southern Siberian region extensively between 1859 and 1870. The result of his research was, among others, published in his four-volume dictionary, and in his ten volume series of Turkic texts. The second volume contains his Khakas materials, which were provided with a German translation. The ninth volume, provided with a Russian translation, was prepared by Radloff's student Katanov, who was a Sagay himself, and contains further Khakas materials. The Khakas literary language, which was developed only after the Russian Revolution of 1917, is based on the central dialects Sagay and Kacha; the Beltir dialect has largely been assimilated by Sagay, and the Koybal dialect by Kacha. In 1924, a Cyrillic alphabet was devised, which was replaced by a Latin alphabet in 1929, and by a new Cyrillic alphabet in 1939 (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kjh. Alternate Names: Abakan Tatar, Hakass, Khakhass, Xakas,
2006: [IUW] Хакасско-русский словарь: около 22 тыс. слов = Хакас-орыс сөстiк: 22 мун. сөске чагын, под общей редакцией О.В. Субраковой.
Khakassko-russkii slovar': okolo 22 tys. slov = Khakas-orys söstik: 22 mung söske chaghyn, pod obshchei redaktsiei O.V. Subrakovoi. Новосибирск: Наука, 2006. Novosibirsk: Nauka, 2006. 1111 p.; 27 cm. Includes bibliographical references. Khakas-russian dictionary.

2012: [IUW] Русско-хакасский словарь общественно-политических терминов = Kalykh-politika terminnerining opys-khakas söstigī, З.Е. Каскаракова.
Russko-khakasskii slovar' obshchestvenno-politicheskikh terminov = Kalykh-politika terminnerining opys-khakas söstigī, Z.E. Kaskarokova. Абакан: Хакасское книжное издательство, 2012. Abakan: Khakasskoe knizhnoe izdatel'stvo, 2012. 175 pages; 21 cm. Russian-Khakas dictionary of social and political terms.

[KHALAJ, TURKIC] Khalaj, also known as Arghu, is a divergent Turkic language spoken in Iran. Ethnologue and ISO list an Iranian language "Khalaj" with the same population, but Glottolog states it does not exist. The Khalaj speak their Turkic language and Persian, and the supposed Iranian language of the Khalaj is spurious (Wiki).

Ethnologue: klj. Alternate Names: Chaladsch, Khalaj.

1971: [IUW] Khalaj materials [by] Gerhard Doerfer, with the collaboration of Wolfram Hesse, Hartwig Scheinhardt [and] Semih Tezcan. Bloomington, Indiana University [1971]. 337 p. illus. 23 cm. Original white reddish-orange and gray, lettered in black. Uralic and Altaic series; v. 115. Includes excerpts from a Persian work by M. E. Moghadam entitled Güyishhā-yi Vafs va Āshtiyān va Tafrash (p. 60-137). Khalaj-English dictionary, pp. 290-311. Bibliography: p. [33]-36. With detailed preliminary material on the first notice taken of this language by linguists (1939), and its subsequent disappearance from scholarly study until 1967, when the author of the present work took note of the importance of the language and began further research.

1980: [IUW] Wörterbuch des Chaladsch: (Dialekt von Charrab) / Gerhard Doerfer und Semih Tezcan; [Adiutor, Edmond Schütz]. Budapest: Akadémiai Kiadó, 1980. 231 p., [1] leaf of plates: facsim.; 25 cm. Bibliotheca orientalis Hungarica; v. 26.

[KHALING] Khaling is a Kiranti language spoken in Solukhumbu district, Nepal and in India. It is one of the few Kiranti languages with tonal contrasts. Khaling has approximately 15,000 speakers and is therefore considered a vulnerable language. Khaling has a complex system of stem alternations: as many as 10 distinct stems have to be posited for a word (Jacques et al. 2012). Khaling is very unusual in having an auditory demonstrative (see Jacques and Lahaussois 2014). Khaling is also known as Rai, Khalinge Rai, Khael Bra, and Khael Baat (Wiki).

Ethnologue: klr. Alternate Names: Khael Braa, Khaling Kura.

An on-line dictionary of Kaling may be found at www.webonary.org.

1975: [LILLY]. A Khaling-English, English-Khaling glossary, by Sueyoshi and Ingrid Toba. [S.l.: s.n.], 1975 [Kathmandu]: University Press, Tribhuvan University. xiii, 86 p.; 23 cm. Original white wrappers, lettered and decorated in green. First edition. Khaling-English, pp. 1-45, English-Khaling, pp. 51-82. In the Lilly copy, pp. [42-43] and [46-47] are blank, evidently a printer's error, possibly in all copies. Includes bibliographical references (p. 86).

"The particular dialect recorded here is spoken in the village of Khastep in Solu-Khumbu and is considered to be the standard for the language. The Dumi dialect is slightly different from the Khastep dialect but both are mutually intelligible" (Introduction).

[KHAM, WESTERN PARBATE] Kham, also Kham Pang (Nepali: Kham)—narrowly defined—is a complex of Sino-Tibetan Magaric languages spoken natively in the highlands of the Rolpa and Rukum districts of Rapti and the westernmost part of Baglung district in Dhawalagiri Zone and Karnali region by western clans of the Kham tribes, called collectively western Khams. Randy LaPolla (2003) proposes that Kham magar and Dhut magar may be part of a larger "Rung" group. However both may ultimately go for separate ethnic identity as they have distinct linguistic and cultural barriers (Wiki).

Ethnologue divides Kham into four separate languages: 1) Eastern Parbate Kham [kif]; Gamale Kham [kgj]; Sheshi Kham [kip]; and Western Parbate Kham [kjl].

2002: [LILLY]. A grammar of Kham, by David E. Watters. Cambridge; New York: Cambridge University Press, 2002. xxv, 477 p. First edition. Original black cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Cambridge grammatical descriptions. Includes bibliographical references ([457]-466) and index. Includes English-Kham vocabulary "of 400+ words," pp. 442-456. Also available on-line. Main entries for Kham are for the Takale dialect [of Western Parbate Kham].

[KHAMTI] Khamti is a Southwestern Tai language spoken in Burma and India by the Khamti people. In Burma, Khamti is spoken by 3,500 in Sagaing Region, near Myitkyina and by 4,500 in Kachin State, Putao District (both reported in 2000). In India, it is spoken by 5,000 in Assam and Arunachal Pradesh, in the Dikrong Valley, Narayanpur, and north bank of the Brahmaputra (reported in 2007). Three dialects of Khamti are known: North Burma Khamti, Assam Khamti and Sinkaling Khamti. All speakers of Khamti are bilingual, largely in Assamese and Burmese (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kht. Alternate Names: Hkamti, Kam Ti, Khampti, Khampti Shan, Khamti Shan, Khandi Shan, Tai Kam Ti, Tai-Khamti.

1977: [IUW] Tai-Khamti phonology and vocabulary, by Alfons Weidert. 1. Aufl. First edition. Wiesbaden: Steiner, 1977. 92 p.; 24 cm. Original orange and white wrappers, lettered in black. Beiträge zur Südasiensforschung; Bd. 27. Khamti-English vocabulary, pp. 28-92. Bibliography: p. 26-27.

"The present phonological analysis and vocabulary is based on the speech of two persons... The word material was first collected in 1972 with the help of Mr. Manpoong and revised one year later by Mrs. Namchoom" (Acknowledgments).

[KHANTY] Khanty (Hanti), previously known as Ostyak (/ˈɒstiæk/), is the language of the Khant peoples. It is spoken in Khanty–Mansi and Yamalo-Nenets autonomous okrugs as well as in Aleksandrovsky and Kargosoksky districts of Tomsk Oblast in Russia. According to the 1994 Salminen and Janhunen study, there were 12,000 Khanty-speaking people in Russia. The Khanty language has a large number of dialects. The western group includes the Obdorian, Ob, and Irtysh dialects. The eastern group includes the Surgut and Vakh-Vasyugan dialects, which, in turn, are subdivided into thirteen other dialects. All these dialects differ significantly from each other by phonetic, morphological, and lexical features to the extent that the three main "dialects" (northern, southern and eastern) are mutually unintelligible. Thus, based on their significant multifactorial differences, Eastern, Northern and Southern Khanty could be considered separate but closely related languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kca. Alternate Names: Hanty, Khant, Khanti, Ostjak, Ostyak, Xanty.

1880: [LILLYbm] Über die Sprache, Nord-Ostjaken: Sprachtexte, Wörterammlung und Grammatik, by August [Engelbrekt] Ahlqvist. Helsingfors: G.W. Edlund, 1880. Later brown half-cloth and marbled paper over boards; spine lettered in gold. First edition. Series: Forschungen auf dem Gebiete der Ural-Altäischen Sprachen, Part III. Zaunmüller, col. 293. Ostyak [Khanty]-German, pp. [64]-158, and a German word index, pp. [159]-194 (double-column). First dictionary of Khanty. This copy with scattered manuscript additions.

1926: [IUW] Ostjakisches Wörterbuch, nach den Dialekten and der Konda und am Jugan, by Heikki Paasonen. Zusammengestellt, neu transskribiert und hrsg. von Kai Donner. Helsingfors, Société finno-ougrienne, 1926. xxiii, 332 p. 26 cm. Library binding. Lexica Societatis Fenno-Ugricae, 2. Khanty-German dictionary, pp. [1]-302, with a German index to the Khanty, pp. [303]-332. Kai Donner's introduction gives a detailed account of the background of this dictionary, pp.[III]-XXIII.

"The present Khanty dictionary contains a portion of the Khanty materials collected by Paasonen during almost a full year's stay in Siberia, from early August 1900 to the end of May 1901.... Paasonen himself... was deeply worried about the fate of his collected material. In a letter written from Surgut in Siberia on 18 May 1901 to Otto Donner, he had this to say: 'In spite of everything my heart is oppressed at the thought that my work in the service of scholarship threatens to be interrupted.—how can I, in this small provincial town, weighed down by an onerous position filled with only brief vacations, arrange and publish the rich material I've gathered, and what will be its fate? What an unthankful task it would be for others to take on the publication of work they had not collected themselves, with all the special difficulties that entails. But what can be done...?' Paasonen's personal concerns at the time were fortunately overcome, but later death intervened. What he feared, and had termed a difficult task for others, became a necessity. The major portion of Paasonen's material had to be edited and published by others" (Vorwort, tr: BM).

1948: [IUW] Ostjakisches Wörterbuch, by Kustaa Fredrik Karjanainen. Bearb. und hrsg. von Y.H. Toivonen. Helsinki, Suomalais-Ugrilainen Seura, 1948. 2 v. (xxxv, 1199 p.) 26 cm. Lexica Societatis Fenno-Ugricae; 10.

1961: [LILLYbm] Očerki dialektov khantyiskogo iazyka. [Description of the Dialects of the Language Khanty], by N[ikolai] I[vanovich] Tereshkin. Leningrad: Izd-vo Akademii nauk SSSR, 1961. Original powder blue paper over boards, lettered and decorated in black and white, with green linen spine, lettered in gold, and decorated in black, silver, and gold. Pp. 1-2 4-204, 28 cm., with corrigenda sheet tipped in at back. First edition. At head of title, v. 1-: Akademiia nauk SSSR. Institut iazykoznaniiia. This first volume in a series deals with the Vakhovskii dialect of Khanty. Includes Khanty-Russian vocabulary [Vakhovskii dialect?], pp. [126]-201. From the library of Carleton T. Hodge. Second copy: IUW.

1962: [IUW] Északi osztjak szójegyzék. [Irtak] Papai [si József [és] Beke Ödön. Budapest, Tankönyvkiadó, 1962. 88 p. Original tan wrappers, lettered in black. Khanty-German, pp. [1]-88.

1966: [LILLYbm] Dialektologisches und etymologisches Wörterbuch der ostjakischen Sprache, by Wolfgang Steinitz [1905-1968]. Akademie der Wissenschaften der DDR. Berlin: Akademie-Verlag, 1966-. v. 31 cm. Parts 1-5 [of at least 9 total]. Original tan wrappers, lettered in black. Series: Abhandlungen der Deutschen Akademie der Wissenschaften zu Berlin, Klasse für Sprachen, Literatur und Kunst;; Jahrg. 1966, Nr. 3.-; Variation: Abhandlungen der Deutschen Akademie der Wissenschaften zu Berlin, Klasse für Sprachen, Literatur und Kunst;; Jahrg. 1966, Nr. 3, etc. Includes Khanty-German in each part, building toward a complete dictionary of the language. Presentation copies as follow: Part I, presentation from the author to Aulis Joki, a leading scholar of linguistics from Helsinki, with his scattered annotations; Part II, presentation copy from the author to Joki; Part III (announcing Steinitz's death), with pencil marks presumably made by Joki; Part IV, presentation copy from Gert Sauer, who took over as editor; Part V, with Joki's ownership signature in ink. IUW holds Parts I-VIII through 1980.

1981a: [IUW] Lexikon der ostjakischen Sprache / Lieselotte und Erhard Schiefer. München: [Finnisch-Ugrisches Seminar an der Universität München], 1981- v.; 21 cm. Veröffentlichungen des Finnisch-Ugrischen Seminars an der Universität München. Serie B, Beiträge zur Erforschung der obugrischen Sprachen; Bd. 8. Incomplete contents: 1. Dialekt von Vach -- 2. Dialekt von Vasjugan -- 3. Dialekt von Tremjugan. Khanty-German vocabulary.

1981b: [IUW] Slovar' vostochno-khantyiskikh dialektov / N. I. Tereshkin. Leningrad: "Nauka", 1981. 544 p.; 23 cm. Original cream cloth over boards, lettered in dark and light brown. Includes Khanty dialect-Russian, pp. 11-540.

1982: [IUW] Nordostjakisches Wörterverzeichnis / László Honti. Szeged: [Universitas Szegediensis de Attila József Nominata], 1982. xi, 211 p.; 24 cm. Library binding. Studia Uralo-Altaica; 16. Preface and explanations in German, translated from the Hungarian. Includes Khanty-German, pp. [1]-210.

1996: [IUW] Ergänzungen aus Karjalainens südostjakischen Textaufzeichnungen zu seinem postumen Wörterbuch, von Edith Vértes. Helsinki: Suomalais-ugrilainen Seura, 1996. vi, 42 p.: facsim.; 26 cm. Library binding incorporating original white wrappers, lettered in black. Lexica Societatis Fenno-Ugricae; 10. Bibliographical references, p. VI. Includes vocabulary omitted from Karjalainen's posthumous Khanty dictionary (see above, 1948; Karjalainen died in 1919): Southeast Khanty-Finnish-German, pp. [1]-42.

[KHARIA] The Kharia language (autonym: k<sup>h</sup>aɽija or k<sup>h</sup>eɽija) is a Munda language that is primarily spoken by indigenous Kharia people of eastern India (Wiki).

Ethnologue: khr. Alternate Names: Haria, Khadia, Khariya, Kharvi, Khatria, Kheria.

1894: [LILLYbm] Introduction to the Kharia Language, by Gagan Chandra Banerjee. Calcutta: Printed at the Bengal Secretariat Press, 1894. Original green quarter-linen s.pine and blue paper pasted on boards, lettered and decorated in black. 46 pp. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes an alphabetical English-Kharia list of nouns, adjectives, verbs, adverbs, etc. pp. [31]-45. First study and printed vocabulary of this language.

"The Kharias are very shy and are unwilling to converse freely with any person who does not belong to their tribe, and it is very difficult to gather substantial information from them. This is the reason why no book from which their language can be learnt exists... During my stay near the Birn-Gangpur boundary which I had to demarcate, I devoted a part of my leisure in collecting Kharia words and sentences with a view to compile a book from which that language can be easily learnt... This book was completed in about two years, during which time I took especial care so that errors may not creep into it. But still I cannot venture to say that not a single mistake may not be found in it. The pronunciation of the Kharias is peculiar to themselves, and it is very difficult in many cases to catch the right word."

1965: [LILLYbm] Kharia. Phonology, Grammar and Vocabulary, by Hemmige Shriniwasarangachar Biligiri. Poona: [Deccan College Postgraduate and Research Institute], 1965. Original blue wrappers, lettered and illustrated in black. 206 pp. First edition. Building Centenary and Show Jubilee Series: 3. Includes Kahria-English vocabulary, pp. 121-206. Bibliographical notes pp. xvii-xviii.

"This monograph on Kharia is a somewhat revised version of my PH.D. dissertation [at] the University of Poona. Kharia... is spoken by about 160,000 people most of whom are concentrated in the Ranchi district of the Chotanagpur Division in Bihar... The [vocabulary] consists of about 1500 words." An English-Kharia Dictionary by H. Floor and V. Gheysens, and a Kharia-English Dictionary by G. Druart (Calcutta, 1934), neither of which are included in Zaunmüller, are referred to as "not satisfactory."

[KHASI] Khasi is an Austroasiatic language spoken primarily in Meghalaya state in India by the Khasi people. Khasi is part of the Austroasiatic language family, and is fairly closely related to the Munda branch of that family, which is spoken in east-central India. Although most of the 1.6 million Khasi speakers are found in Meghalaya state, the language is also spoken by a number of people in the hill districts of Assam bordering with Meghalaya and by a sizable population of people living in Bangladesh, close to the Indian border. Khasi has been "associate official language" in Meghalaya since 2005, and as of May 2012, was no longer considered endangered by UNESCO. Khasi is rich in folklore and folktale, and behind most of the names of hills, mountains, rivers, waterfalls, birds, flowers, and animals there is a story (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kha: Alternate Names: Kahasi, Kassi, Khasa, Khashi, Khasiyas, Khuchia.

[KHEHEK] Khehek is an Oceanic language spoken by approximately 1600 people on west-central Manus Island, Manus Province of Papua New Guinea. It has two dialects, Drehet and Levei, which are sometimes considered separate languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: tlx. Alternate Names: Levei-Drehet, Levei-Ndrehet.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KHINALUGH] Khinalug (also spelled Khinalig, Khinalugi, Xinalug(h), Xinaliq or Khinalugh) is a Northeast Caucasian language spoken by about 1,500 people in the villages of Khinalug and Gülüstan, Quba in the mountains of Quba Rayon, northern Azerbaijan. It forms its own independent branch within the Northeast Caucasian language family. Khinalug is endangered, and classified as "severely endangered" by UNESCO's Atlas of the World's Languages in Danger (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kjj. Alternate Names: Khinalug, Khinalugi, Xinalug.

2002: [IUW] Khinalugsko-russkii slovar', by F.A. Ganieva. Makhachkala: In-t̄iazyka, literatury i iskusstva im. G. T̄Sadasy, 2002. 492 p.; 21 cm. First edition. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Added title page: Khinalug-Russian dictionary. Seriiã "Natsional'no-russkie slovari". Bepis'mennye iãzyki Dagestana. Khinalugh-Russian, pp. 27-359, Russian-Khinalugh index, pp. 360-456. Includes bibliographical references (p. 490-[491]) and index.

[KHMER] Khmer /km̄æɾ/ or Cambodian (natively ភាសាខ្មែរ [p̄hi:əsa: k̄hma:e], or more formally ខ្មែរភាសា [k̄h̄eemaʔraʔ p̄hi:əsa:]) is the language of the Khmer people and the official language of Cambodia. With approximately 16 million speakers, it is the second most widely spoken Austroasiatic language (after Vietnamese). Khmer has been influenced considerably by Sanskrit and Pali, especially in the royal and religious registers, through Hinduism and Buddhism. The more colloquial registers have influenced, and have been influenced by, Thai, Lao, Vietnamese, and Cham, all of which, due to geographical proximity and long-term cultural contact, form a sprachbund in peninsular Southeast Asia. It is also the earliest recorded and earliest written language of the Mon-Khmer family, predating Mon and by a significant margin Vietnamese, due to Old Khmer being the language of the historical empires of Chenla, Angkor and, presumably, their earlier predecessor state, Funan. The vast majority of Khmer speakers speak Central Khmer, the dialect of the central plain where the Khmer are most heavily concentrated. Within Cambodia, regional accents exist in remote areas but these are regarded varieties of Central Khmer. Two exceptions are the speech of the capital, Phnom Penh, and that of the Khmer Khe in Stung Treng province, both of which differ sufficiently enough from Central Khmer to be considered separate dialects of Khmer. Outside of Cambodia, three distinct dialects are spoken by ethnic Khmers native to areas that were historically part of the Khmer Empire. The Northern Khmer dialect is spoken by over a million Khmers in the southern regions of Northeast Thailand and is treated by some linguists as a separate language. Khmer Krom, or Southern Khmer, is the first language of the Khmer of Vietnam while the Khmer living in the remote Cardamom mountains speak a very conservative dialect that still displays features of the Middle Khmer language (Wiki).

Ethnologue treats Khmer as two separate languages: 1) Central Khmer (khm: alternate names: Cambodian, Khmer) and 2) Northern Khmer (kxm: alternate names: Khmer Lue, Thailand Khmer).

1878: [LILLYbm] Dictionnaire khmer-français, E[tienne François] Aymonier [1844- ]. Saigon: 1878. Contemporary brown cloth over boards, blue paper label on spine, lettered in gold. Pp. [4]I II-XVII, 1 2-436 437-438. First edition. Entire work reproduced from calligraphy by Son Diep. Not in Zaunmüller (who lists only Aymonier & Cabaton's Dictionnaire cambodgien-français, 2 vols. 1910-1914, along with same authors' Dictionnaire français-cambodgien of 1874 and after). Includes Khmer-French, pp. [1]-436. First French dictionary of the language.

"This dictionary completes and terminates the series of publications which, although somewhat hasty and premature, were imposed upon me by necessity—for the lack of others better prepared—as a professor and at the same time practically a student. The mission assigned by my superiors is finished, the elementary materials for teaching Camodian have been created—the present work offering a sufficient and adequately detailed picture of the everyday language" (Avertissement, tr: BM).

1930: [IUW] Dictionnaire cambodgien-français, by Joseph Guesdon. Paris, Les Petits-fils de Plon et Nourrit, 1930. 2 v. 28 cm. Library binding. Includes Vol. 1: Khmer-French, pp. [1]-848 (A-To); Vol. 2: Khmer-French, pp. 849-1982 (Tho-end).

"Upon arriving in Cambodia, we were struck by the paucity of words contained in existing manuscripts. Over many years, we gathered all the documents we could... It was time to try to find a means to publish our Grand Dictionary. The Great War of 1914 interrupted our publication, which we took up again when peace returned. Our initial plan was to provide a Preface with grammatical principles, and a study of prefixes, suffixes and roots. Given that this would have slowed the publication of the Dictionary considerably, we decided to publish it separately.... Cambodians, having to this day neither a dictionary nor a grammar, will be far from in agreement about a large number of the words. We generally provide various spellings so that the user does not get lost in searching" (Avant propos, tr: BM).

1974: [IUW] A concise Cambodian-English dictionary [by] Judith M. Jacob. London, New York, Oxford University Press, 1974. xxxiv, 242 p. 26 cm. Bibliography: p. xxxiv.

1975a: [LILLYbm] Contemporary Cambodian Glossary, by Kem Soss, Lim Hak Kheang & Madeline E. Ehrman. Washington, D.C.: Foreign Service Institute, US

Department of State, 1975. Original rose wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. i-iii iv-vi, 1-355 356 [4]. First edition. A Joint Project of the Foreign Service Institute and the Defense Language Institute. Ex-library copy, with ink stamp of Wayne County Library. Includes Cambodian-English, pp. 1-176, with Cambodian script, and English-Cambodian, pp. 179-355. Second copy: IUW.

"The Glossary contains approximately 8,000 Cambodian entries in the first section and approximately 7,500 English entries in the second" (Preface).

1975b: [IUW] Kkhmersko-russkii slovar': okolo 20 000 slov / IŪ.A. Gorgoniev; pod red. Tkhat' Suonga. S prilozheniem kratkogo grammaticheskogo ocherka kkhmerskogo iazyka. Moskva: "Russkii iazyk", 1975. 952 p.; 26 cm. Added t.p. in Khmer. Includes bibliography: p. 11. Khmer-Russian dictionary.

1977: [IUW] Cambodian-English glossary, by Franklin E. Huffman and Im Proum. New Haven: Yale University Press, 1977. vi, 152 p.; 26 cm. Yale language series.

1978a: [IUW] English-Khmer dictionary, by Franklin E. Huffman and Im Proum. New Haven: Yale University Press, 1978. xix, 690 p.; 26 cm. Yale linguistic series. Bibliography: p. 689-690.

1978b: [IUW] Photchananukrom Khamen (Surin)-Thai-Angkrit = Khmer (Surin)-Thai-English dictionary, compiled by Dhanan Chantrupanth, Chartchai Phromjakarin. [Bangkok, Thailand]: Indigenous Languages of Thailand Research project, Chulalongkorn University Language Institute, 1978. 687 p. in various pagings: maps; 28 cm. T.p., introductory matter and indexes in Thai and English. Includes indexes. Bibliography: p. xxiv.

1980: [IUW] Medical guide & glossary, authors, Christa Wagner, Janet Rullo. 2nd Cambodian ed. Portland, Or. (3030 S.W. 2nd Ave., Portland 97201): Indochinese Language Resource Center, Indochinese Cultural Service Center, 1980. 158 p. in various pagings: ill.; 28 cm. "Mr. Nady Tan ... was responsible for the translation ... of the Cambodian edition"--Preface. Cambodian and English. Cover title also in Cambodian.

1987: [LILLYbm] Kratkii Russko-Kkhmerskii slovar. 2 700 slov, by Long Seam & R.S. Plam. Moscow: "Russkii iazyk", 1987. Original red cloth over boards, lettered in black. Pp. 1-4 5-708 709-712. First edition. Includes Russian-Khmer, pp. 35-[709].

1990: [LILLYbm] Cambodian-English English-Cambodian Dictionary, [by Kim Sos, Lim Hak Kheang, & Madeline E. Efram]. New York: Hippocrene Books, [1990]. Original pale pink wrappers, lettered and decorated in pale pink, red, yellow, and black. Pp. [4] 1-355 356-364. First edition. "Over 7,500 entries each way" (from rear cover). Second copy: IUW.

1991: [IUW] The new Oxford picture dictionary / E.C. Parnwell; translated by Im and Sivone Proum; illustrations by Ray Burns ... [et al.]. English/Cambodian ed. New York, NY, USA: Oxford University Press, c1991. iii, 152 p.: col. ill.; 26 cm. English and Cambodian. Includes indexes.

1995: [LILLYbm] Tuttle Practical Cambodian Dictionary. English-Cambodian. Cambodian-English, by David Smyth & Tran Kien. Rutland, Vermont: Charles E. Tuttle, 1995. Original brown plastic, lettered in gold; dust jacket, red and yellow, lettered and decorated in black, white, and yellow. Pp. i-vi vii-xiv, 1-2 3-211 212-218. First edition. Includes English-Cambodian, pp. 3-130, and Cambodian-English, pp. 133-200.

"This dictionary is intended for the English speaker who needs a source of basic Cambodian vocabulary in an easily understandable romanized form. The English-Cambodian section contains approximately 3,500 words and phrases and the Cambodian-English section, almost 2,000 words. Every entry is given in both romanized Cambodian and Cambodian script" (Introduction).

1996: [LILLYbm] An English-Spoken Khmer Dictionary with Romanized Writing System, Usage and Idioms, and Notes on Khmer Grammar and Speech, by Allen P.K. Keesee. London and New York: Kegan Paul International, 1996. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in gold; d.j. green and white, lettered in white and green, and decorated in yellow, with an illustration on the front cover. Pp. [6] 1-291 292. First edition. English-Khmer only, pp. 63-291.

"With more than 6,000 key word entries, the English-Spoken Khmer Dictionary has the distinctive feature of presenting Khmer words in an all-new easily-grasped Romanized writing system" (from the inner flap of the d.j.). "With the shift in Cambodian attention from military to econo-social matters has come an increase in tourism, foreign investment, the NGO/multilateral-institution/diplomatic presence and the general level of 'foreign' travel to and residence in Cambodia...Many...have an interest in acquiring some knowledge of Khmer. It is for such visitors to, and residents in, the Kingdom, as well as for students outside Cambodia, that this book has been prepared" (Introduction).

[KHMU] Khmu [k<sup>h</sup>mu?] is the language of the Khmu people of the northern Laos region. It is also spoken in adjacent areas of Vietnam, Thailand and China. Khmu lends its name to the Khmuic branch of the Austroasiatic language family, the latter of which also includes Khmer and Vietnamese. Within Austroasiatic, Khmu is often cited as being most closely related to the Palaungic and Khasic languages. The name "Khmu" can also be seen romanized as Kmhmu, Khmu', Kammu, or Khamuk in various publications or alternatively referred to by the name of a local dialect (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kjg. Alternate Names: Kamhmu, Kammu, Kamu, Khamu, Khamuk, Khmu', Khomu, Kmhmu, Lao Kang, Lao Terng, Mou, Pouteng, Pu Thenh, Tenh, Theng.

2012: [IUW] 老挝琅南塔省克木族及其语言 / 戴庆厦主编.

Laowo Langnanta Sheng Kemu zu ji qi yu yan / Dai Qingxia zhu bian. 第1版. Di 1 ban.

First edition. 北京: 中国社会科学出版社, 2012. Beijing: Zhongguo she hui ke xue chu ban she, 2012. 8, 478 p., [12] p. of plates: col. ill.; 24 cm. Original white wrappers, lettered in black and gold. Cover title: Kammu people and language in Luangnamtha, Lao PDR. Includes bibliographical references (p. [469]-475). Appendix 1: 2000 words of the Kammu [Khmu] language, Chinese-English-Khmu, pp. [354]-431. Abstracts and tables of contents also in English.

[KHOEKHOE] The Khoekhoe language /'kɔikɔ/, Khoekhoegowab, also known by the ethnic term Nama /'nɑ:mə/ and formerly as Hottentot, is the most widespread of those non-Bantu languages of southern Africa that contain "click" sounds and have therefore been loosely classified as Khoisan. It belongs to the Khoe language family, and is spoken in Namibia, Botswana, and South Africa by three ethnic groups, the Nama, Damara, and Hailom. It appears that the Damara picked up the language along with the Nama in Botswana, and that they migrated to Namibia separately from the Nama. The Hailom, who had spoken a Juu language, later shifted to Khoekhoe. The name for Nama speakers, Khoekhoen, is from the Nama word khoe "person", with reduplication and the suffix -n to indicate the plural. Georg Friedrich Wreede was the first European to study the language, after arriving in Cape Town in 1659. Khoekhoe is a national language in Namibia, where it is used for teaching up to the university level as well as in the public administration. In Namibia and South Africa, state-owned broadcasting corporations produce and broadcast radio programmes in Khoekhoe (Wiki).

Ethnologue: naq. Alternate Names: Bergdamara, Damara, Hai||'om, "Hottentot" (pej.), Khoekhoegowab, Khoekhoegowap, Maqua, Nama, Namakwa, Naman, Namaqua, Tama, Tamakwa, Tamma.

1634: see under MALAY for what is probably the first brief vocabulary of Khoekhoe.

1710: [LILLY] Juncker, Christianus: Commentarivs De Vita, Scriptisqve Ac Meritis illvstris viri Iobi Lvdolfi Consiliarii Qvondam Serenissimorum ... Avctore Christiano Ivnckero ... In Appendice Adiectae Svnt Tvm Epistolae Aliqvot Clarorum Virorum, Tvm Etiam Specimen Lingvae Hottentotticae Nvnqvam Alias Ad Notitiam Germanorum Perlatae. Christianus Juncker. Frankfurt: Braun, 1710. Contemporary full vellum. First edition, with one of the earliest vocabularies of Khoekhoe.

1845: [LILLY] *Nama- A.B.Z.:kannis,:gei. *hu- *ze khom-ei-:kannis. *Kunudsib ...* by H.C. Knudsen. Cape Town, Printed by Pike & Philip, 1845. 16 p.; 19 cm. First and only edition. "This spelling and reading book includes ... vocabularies with an English translation, and part of a catechism; viz., the Ten Commandments, part of St. Augustine's creed, the Lord's Prayer, &c."--cf. Grey, Sir G. The library of His Excellency Sir George Grey ... London, 1858-62. v. 1, p. 13-14. With the book label of antiquarian specialist John Lawson (Oxford, UK). In plain brown wrappers. top of spine split at crease.

Facsimile edition 1978?: Das älteste Schulbuch in Südwestafrika/Namibia: H.C. Knudsen und die Namafibel, by Walter Moritz. Swakopmund, Namibia: Gesellschaft für Wissenschaftliche Entwicklung, [1978?] 24 p.: ill.; 21 cm. Series: Aus alten Tagen in Südwest; Heft 6. Accompanied by: Nama-A.B.Z. kannis (16 p.) inserted in back pocket [facsimile reprint of 1845 ed. by H.C. Knudsen]. The four illustrations are also by Knudsen.

1854: [LILLY] Vocabular der namaqua-sprache, nebst einem abrisse der formenlehre derselben, [by Johann Christian Wallmann]. Barmen: Gedruckt bei J.F. Steinhaus, 1854. 32 p. Contemporary brown-quarter cloth and marbled boards, library binding, spine lettered in blind. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 1194 (identifying the author as Wallmann). First edition. Nama-German, pp. [3]-20. This copy, with stamp "Heller's Bibliothek" on title page, includes a continuation in manuscript of German-Nama, on pages stamped 33-67, in a contemporary hand. First substantial vocabulary of Nama, together with a brief sketch of Nama grammar, pp. [21]-32. Johann Christian Wallmann published Die formenlehre der namaquasprache. Ein beitrag zur südafrikanischen lingusitik (Berlin, 1857).

1857: [LILLY] A Grammar and Vocabulary of the Namaqua-Hottentot Language, by Henry Tindall, Wesleyan Missionary. [Cape Town?: G.J. Pike's machine printing office] Sold by A.S. Robertson [etc.], [1857]. Original [?] or contemporary unprinted brown quarter-cloth and brown marbled paper over boards. Pp. [2] 1-3 4-124. Includes errata slip following title page. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 1193.

Includes Nama-English, pp. [69]-124. First English grammar and vocabulary of Nama. A brief word-list of Nama was published in 1634 (see above).

"...until very recently their language has been a much neglected subject of enquiry. Its harsh and peculiar sounds have probably deterred many from grappling with its difficulties, and making it a field of philological research....A few missionaries, however, have taken an interest in the Hottentot language, and have published several small works in it [translations of portions of the Bible and catechism. A list is included; also Appleyard's work on the Kafir Language with an outline of the grammar of the Coranna language]...It will be interesting to preserve some additional record of the language spoken by a people so peculiar and once numerous, as it may assist in tracing their descent, and removing the obscurity in which their origin is at present involved." ["A Grammar," pp. [3]-5].

1889 [1969]: [IUW] Nama Wörterbuch. <Krönlein redivivus> J. G. Krönlein's Wortschatz der Khoi-khoin <erscheinen 1889 bei der deutschen Kolonialgesellschaft Berlin.> Überarb. und erg. von F. Rust. Hrsg. mit Unterstützung der Universität Natal. Pietermaritzburg, University of Natal Press, 1969. x, 390 p. 28 cm.

1971: [IUW] Wortschatz der Khoi-Khoin (Namaqua-Hottentotten). Gesammelt, aufgeschrieben und verdeutscht von J.G. Kroenlein; herausgegeben mit unterstützung der Königl. Academie der Wissenschaften. Berlin: Deutsche Kolonialgesellschaft; in Kommission bei C. Heymanns Verlag, 1889. vi, 350 p.; 25 cm. Printed in double columns. Photo-offset. Farnborough: Gregg International (Printed in offset by Anton Hain KG, Meisenheim/Glan Western Germany), 1971. 25 cm.

1891-1894: [LILLY] Grammaire complète de la langue des Namas / par G.H. Schils. Louvain: Lefever, 1891. xxi, 94 p. 30.5 cm. Later private binding, red cloth over boards, lettered in gold, bound with: Dictionnaire étymologique de la langue des Namas, part G. H. Schils. Louvain: Polleunis & Ceuterick, 1894. 106 p. 30.5 cm. Nama [Khoekhoe]-French dictionary, pp. [7]-101. From the library of the noted linguist Johannes Rahder, with his ownership stamps.

"In his Grammaire complète de la langue des Namas, of which this dictionary forms the second part, the author laid out in appropriate detail the formation of the words of this language. In listing known words up to the present, he assumes it unnecessary to repeat what he has already explained. To facilitate the reader, however, he lists below an abridged form of this graphic system he has employed for the grammar and the dictionary" (Preface to the dictionary, tr: BM).

1960: [LILLYbm] Deutsch-Nama Wörterbuch: nebst Anhang Afrikaans-Duitse woorderlys van die vernaamste Duitse woorde in die Deutsch-Nama Wörterbuch, by Fr[iedrich] Rust. Windhoek: Rheinische Mission in Südwestafrika, 1960. Original maroon imitation leather over thin boards, lettered in gold. Pp. I-V VI-IX X, 1 2-97 98. First edition. Not in Hendrix. Includes German-Nama, pp. [1]-78, double columned, and an Afrikaans-German word list, pp. [81]-97.

"There is an increasingly felt lack of dictionaries of the Nama language. Two Nama-German dictionaries are out of print: J. Olpp's Nama-Deutsches Wörterbuch, Eberfeld, 1888, and J. G. Krönlein's Wortschatz der Khoi-kihoin, Berlin, 1889. The latter is still the standard work on the Nama languages.

1999: [IUW] Khoekhoegowab-English mîdi saogub = English-Khoekhoegowab glossary, by Wilfrid H.G. Haacke, Eliphas Eiseb. Windhoek, Namibia: Gamsberg Macmillan, 1999. vi, 278 p.; 21 cm. Library binding incorporating original multicolored wrappers, lettered in white and black. Includes Khoekhoegowab-English glossary, pp. 1-125, and English-Khoekhoegowab, pp. 127-278.

"This Glossary has been extracted by computer from the KHOEKHOEGOWAB DICTIONARY with English-Khoekhoegowab Index by W.H.G. Haacke & E. Eiseb (forthcoming). The Glossary is a simplified and reduced version in the form of a owrđ list, intended mainly—but not only—for use in schools" (How to Use This Glossary).

[KHOWAR] Khowar (كهوار), also known as Chitrali (چترالي) and Arniya, is an Indo-Aryan language of the Dardic branch. It is spoken by the Kho people in Chitral in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, in the Ghizer district of Gilgit-Baltistan (including the Yasin Valley, Phandar Ishkoman and Gupis), and in parts of Upper Swat. Speakers of Khowar have also migrated heavily to Pakistan's major urban centres with Peshawar, Islamabad, Lahore and Karachi, having sizeable populations. It is spoken as a second language in the rest of Gilgit and Hunza. There are believed to be small numbers of Khowar speakers in Afghanistan, China, Tajikistan and Istanbul. Khowar is the predominant language of Chitral, and one of the 14 designated regional languages there (Wiki).

Ethnologue: khw. Alternate Names: Arniya, Chitrali, Chitrari, Citrali, Kashkari, Khawar, Patu, Qashqari.

1937: [LILLYbm] Grammar and Vocabulary of the Khowar Dialect (Chitrali). Third edition, by D[onatus] J[ames] T[homond] O'Brien. Delhi: Manager of Publications, 1937. Original black quarter linen and pale blue paper over boards, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [12] 1 2-178. Third edition. Not in Zaunmüller. No copy of the second 1896 edition located. English-Khowar, pp. 61-178.

"The book has been rewritten and somewhat simplified. Khowar is a primitive language without much grammar and with a small vocabulary and officers seldom stay in Chitral for more than two years; therefore this book has been arranged so as to enable them to make themselves understood, and to understand, as quickly as possible. Finer shades of meaning can be learnt by practice. Most of the revision has been done by Shahzada Muzaffar-ul-Mulk, the second son of His Highness the Mehtar Sahib, and without his invaluable assistance the book could not have been re-written" (Preface to the third edition, signed A.N.) "The state of Chitral or Chotrar is situated to the north of the North-West Frontier Province, between Kashmir and Afghanistan. It has an area of about 4,500 square miles and a population of about 90,000. The state derives its name from the village of Chetrar, where His Highness the Mehtar lives...His Highness is the only car owner in the country [1895]; he has five or six cars and three lorries. These were brought over the Lowari Pass with great difficulty, some two or three hundred men being employed.... The chief language of Chitral is Khowar. This is spoken all over the country, but every side valley has its own dialect and in the south Pushtu is spoken...The upper classes usually speak Urdu and Persian as well...There are many Mullahs in the country...and they have great power, but, since they are usually ignorant and bigoted, their influence is seldom for the good.... Polo is played by everyone who owns or can borrow a pony.... Hawking is also popular" (Brief sketch of the people and country).

[KHWAREZMIAN] Khwarezmian (Khwarazmian, Khorezmian, Chorasmanian) is an extinct East Iranian language closely related to Sogdian. The language was spoken in the area of Khwarezm (Chorasmanian), centered in the lower Amu Darya south of the Aral Sea (the northern part of the modern Republic of Uzbekistan, and the adjacent areas of Turkmenistan and Kazakhstan). Knowledge of Khwarezmian is limited to its Middle Iranian stage and, as with Sogdian, little is known of its ancient form. From the writings of the great Khwarezmian scholars, Al-Biruni and Zamakhshari, we know that the language was in use at least until the 13th century, when it was gradually replaced by Persian for the most part, as well as several dialects of Turkic. Other than the astronomical terms used by Al-Biruni, our other sources of Khwarezmian include Zamakhshari's Arabic–Persian–Khwarezmian dictionary and several legal texts that use Khwarezmian terms to explain certain legal concepts. The noted scholar W.B. Henning was preparing a dictionary of Khwarezmian when he died, leaving it unfinished (Wiki).

Ethnologue does not include this extinct language.

1971: [LILLYbm] A Fragment of a Khwarezmian Dictionary, by the late W[alter] B[runo] Henning, edited by D. N. MacKenzie. London: Lund Humphries, 1971. Original brown cloth over boards, lettered in black; brown dust jacket, lettered in black. Pp. [4] 1-55 56. First edition. Series: Tehran University. Publication no. 1317; Ganjine-ye Zaban va Loghat-e Iran no. 16. Includes Khwarezmian-English, pp. 6-50. Second copy: IUW.

"For more than thirty years until his death early in 1967, W. B. Henning was actively engaged in pioneering Khwarezmian philological studies. Unfortunately two major works which would have crowned his studies remained incomplete on his death. One was to have been a complete Khwarezmian Dictionary but only the present Fragment had been left nearly ready for publication and this has been seen through the press [and supplemented] by Dr. MacKenzie. This Fragment contains 260 entries and over 300 cross-references have been supplied" (from the front flap of the dust jacket). "The present khanate [Khiva, "formerly an important kingdom of Asia, but now a much reduced khanate dependent upon Russia"] is only a meagre relic of the great kingdom which under the name of Chorasmanian, Khwarezm (Khwarizm) and Urgenj (Jurjaniya, Gurgan), held the keys of the mightiest river in Central Asia. In 1097 the governor Kuthud-din assumed the title of king, and one of his descendants...conquered Persia, and was the greatest prince in Central Asia when Jenghiz Khan appeared in 1219. Khiva was conquered again by Timur in 1370; and finally fell under the rule of the Uzbeks in 1512, who are still the dominant race under the protection of the Russians" (Encyclopedia Britannica, 13th ed.)

[KHWEDAM] Khwe (also rendered Kxoe, Khoe; /'kweɪ/ or /'kɔɪ/) is a dialect continuum of the Khoe family of Namibia, Angola, Botswana, South Africa, and parts of Zambia, with some 8,000 speakers (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xuu. Alternate Names: Khoe, Khwe-||Ani, Kxoe, Kxoedam, Xun, "Barakwena" (pej.), "Barakwengo" (pej.), "Mbarakwena" (pej.), "Water Bushmen" (pej.).

2003: [IUW] Khwe dictionary, by Christa Kilian-Hatz; with a supplement on Khwe place-names of West Caprivi by Matthias Brenzinger. Köln: Rüdiger Köppe, c2003. 431 p.: map; 24 cm. Library binding preserving original green wrappers, lettered in white. Includes Khwe-English, pp. 14-225, and English-Khwe, pp. 228-382, with an appendix of proper names and place names.

[KIBIRI] Porome, also known as Kibiri, is a Papuan language of southern Papua New Guinea. There are over a thousand speakers. Porome was classified as a language isolate by Stephen Wurm. Although Malcolm Ross linked it to the Kiwaian languages, there is no evidence for a connection apart from the pronouns 1sg amo and 2sg do (Wiki).

Ethnologue: prm. Alternate Names: Gibiri, Polome, Porome.

1951: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1973: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[K'ICHE'] K'iche' ([k'i'tʃeʔ], also Qatzijob'al "our language" to its speakers), or Quiché (/ki:'tʃeɪ/), is a Maya language of Guatemala, spoken by the K'iche' people of the central highlands. With over a million speakers (some 7% of Guatemala's population), K'iche' is the second-most widely spoken language in the country after Spanish. Most speakers of K'iche' languages also have at least a working knowledge of Spanish. The Central dialect is the most commonly used in the media and education. The literacy rate is low, but K'iche' is increasingly taught in schools and used on radio. The most famous work in the Classical K'iche' language is the Popol Vuh (Popol Wu'uj in modern spelling) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: quc. Alternate Names: Central K'iche', Central Quiché, Chiquel, Qach'abel, Quiché.

1862: [IUW] Gramatica de la lengua quiche. Grammaire de la langue quichée, espagnole-française mise en parallèle avec ses deux dialectes, cakchiquel et tzutuhil, tirée des manuscrits des meilleurs auteurs guatémaliens. Ouvrage accompagné de notes philologiques avec un vocabulaire ... et suivi d'un essai sur la poésie, la musique, la danse et l'art dramatique chez les Mexicains et les Guatémaltèques avant la conquête; servant d'introduction au Rabinal-Achi, drame indigène avec sa musique originale, texte quiché et traduction française en regard. Recueilli par l'abbé Brasseur de Bourbourg ... Paris, A. Bertrand; [etc., etc.] 1862. 2 v. in 1. 26 cm. Collection de documents dans les langues indigènes, pour servir à l'étude de l'histoire et de la philologie de l'Amérique ancienne; v. 2. Contents: [1. ptie.] Grammaire de la langue quichée suivie d'un vocabulaire. 2. ptie. Rabinal-Achi ou Le drame-ballet du tun (quiché et français).

1892: see under MESOAMERICAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1954: [LILLYbm] Diccionario Quiché-Español, by Juan de Leon. Guatemala: [Editorial Landivar], 1954. Original pale green and tan wrappers, lettered in green and illustrated in brown. Pp. 1-8 9-91 92-96. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Quiché-Spanish, pp. 13-68. The earliest Quiché vocabulary appears to have been published in Paris in 1862 (Spanish-French-Quiché).

1959: [LILLYbm] Diccionario Castellano-Quiché y Voces Castellano-Pocomam, by Celso Narciso Teletor. Guatemala City: [Tipografía Nacional], 1959. Original powder blue wrappers, lettered in black with a photo illustration in blue on the front cover. Pp. 1-7 8-178. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Includes Spanish-Quiché, pp. [15]-104, and Spanish-Pocomam, p. 127-178. Bibliography, pp. [117]-123.

1965: [LILLYbm] Quiche-English dictionary, by Munro S. Edmonson. New Orleans: Middle American Research Institute, Tulane University, 1965. Original green wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. i-vii viii-x, 1 2-168 169-170. First edition. Series: Tulane University. Middle American Research Institute. Publication 30. Includes Quiché-English, pp. [1]-165, with bibliography, pp. [167]-168. First Quiche-English dictionary. Compiled from all previous sources and from informants. Second copy: IUW.

"The Quiche-English dictionary presented here is a preliminary survey of Mayan philology... Usage is described in terms of three main dialectic regions: Eastern (centering on Rabinal), Central (centering on Chichicastenango) and Western (centering on Quezaltenango)...A complete compilation of all the words here included...has been checked with at least one Western Quiche-speaker (from San Andrés Xecul). (I also worked with informants from Cantel and San Francisco el Alto). A complete list of all words which then appeared to be general to Quiche was checked with Cakchiquel-speakers from Panajachel and Sololá" (Introduction).

1996: [LILLYbm] Diccionario del idioma k'iche', by Pedro Florentino Ajpacaja Tum et al. Antigua Guatemala: Proyecto Lingüístico Francisco Marroquin, 1996. Original brownish-orange and white wrappers, lettered in yellow and black, with color illustrations on front and rear cover. Pp. [2]1-4 5-11 12, <sup>2</sup>1-538 539-542. First edition. 2000 copies. Includes Quiche-Spanish, pp. <sup>2</sup>1-538. Second copy: IUW.

2007: [IUW] Wokjalajoj choltzij pa K'icke' = Vocabulario de sinónimos K'iche' 1. ed. Guatemala: Academia de Lenguas Mayas de Guatemala (ALMG), 2007 220 p.; 21 cm. Quiché, with introductory material in Spanish and brief Spanish-Quiché glossary.

2010: [IUW] K'iche' choltzij = Vocabulario k'iche': K'iche'-kaxl'an tzij, kaxl'an tzij-k'iche' / [revision, Cristina Pérez Medrano]. [3. ed.]. Guatemala: Academia de Lenguas Mayas de Guatemala, 2010. 220 p.; 21 cm. Quiché and Spanish.

[KICKAPOO] Fox (known by a variety of different names, including Mesquakie (Meskwaki), Mesquakie-Sauk, Mesquakie-Sauk-Kickapoo, and Sac and Fox) is an Algonquian language, spoken by a thousand Fox, Sauk, and Kickapoo in various locations in the Midwestern United States and in northern Mexico. There are three distinct dialects: Fox (also called Mesquakie, Meskwaki), Sauk (also rendered Sac), and Kickapoo (also rendered Kikapú; considered by some to be a closely related but distinct language). If Kickapoo is counted as a separate language rather than a dialect of Fox, then there are only between 200 and 300 speakers of Fox. Extinct Mascouten was most likely another dialect, though it is scarcely attested. Most speakers are elderly or middle-aged, making it highly endangered. The tribal school at the Meskwaki Settlement in Iowa incorporates bilingual education for children. In 2011, the Meskwaki Sewing Project was created, to bring mothers and girls together "with elder women in the Meskwaki Senior Center sewing traditional clothing and learning the Meskwaki language" (Wiki).

Ethnologue considers Kickapoo a separate language: kic. Alternate Names: Kikapoo, Kikapú.

1967: [LILLY] Kickapoo grammar, by Paul H. Voorhis. Ph.D Dissertation, Yale University, 1967. xvii, 307 leaves; 20 cm. Original wrappers with black tape spine; text reproduced from typescript. Kickapoo-English, pp. 234-301. First substantial published vocabulary of Kickapoo.

1968: [LILLYbm] "The Kickapoo Whistle System: A Speech Surrogate," by William M. Hurley, in: Plains Anthropologist: Journal of the Plains Conference, 13-41, 1968. Offprint. "The Mexican and Oklahoma whistle and flute languages are presented as dual surrogates which have been maintained and utilized as communications systems for over 100 years" (abstract). Does not include a listing of the verbal meaning of specific whistles.

1988: [LILLYbm] Kickapoo vocabulary, by Paul H. Voorhis. Winnipeg: Algonquian and Iroquoian Linguistics, 1988. Original white wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [8] 1-205 206. First edition. Series: Algonquian and Iroquoian linguistics. Memoir, 6. Includes Kikapoo-English, pp. 3-157, and an English-Kikapoo index, pp. 159-202. With bibliography, p. 205. First separately published vocabulary of Kickapoo. Second copy: IUW.

"This vocabulary has been extracted from data collected from Kickapoo speakers in 1964, 1965, 1966 and 1970. Most of the data were gathered in Oklahoma, though sometimes from visitors or immigrants from Coahuila. Two weeks were also spent in Coahuila. .... There are perhaps somewhat fewer than 1000 Kickapoo speakers of all ages, though in Oklahoma some children of Kickapoo parents do not use the language" (Preface).

[KIGIRYAMA] [The language of the Giriama people of Kenya] is called Kigiriama, or Kigiryama, and is a sub-language to the Kimijikenda. The nine Mijikenda groups speak closely related languages, all types of Bantu language, which is the same group to which the more widely known Swahili belongs. The Giriama grow crops to sell and partake in subsistence agriculture. The Giriama people experience spirit possession (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nyf. Alternate Names: Agiryama, Giriama, Giryama, Kigiriama, Kinyika, Nika, Nyika.

1887: [LILLY] A Nika-English dictionary, by J. L. Krapf (1810-1881). London: Society for promoting Christian knowledge, 1887. Original olive green cloth, lettered in black. Includes Nika-English, pp. [1]-391. Hendrix 1283. Zaubmüller 286.

1891: [LILLYbm] Giryama vocabulary and collections, by W[illiam] E[rnest] Taylor [1855 or 6- ]. London: Society for Promoting Christian knowledge, 1891. Original green cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. i-v vi-xxvii xxviii, 1 2-140. First edition. Not in Zaubmüller. Hendrix 1236 (listed under Nyika). Includes English-Giryama, pp. [1]-121.

"I have been requested to write a Preface to this first attempt at a vocabulary of an East Equatorial African language. It belongs to the great Bantu family, and is the venacular of a tribe whose habitat is just to the north of Mombasa...and entirely within the sphere of British influence. .. The articles attached to some words are very full, and many local folk-lore and tribal subjects of interest are touched. On the whole it is a very credible performance, and will no doubt lead to translations of portions of the Holy Scriptures, and of religious and educational works" (Preface, by Robert Cust).

[KILIVILA] Kilivila (Kiriwina) is one of the Kilivila–Lousiades languages (of the Austronesian language family), spoken in the Trobriand Islands (Papua New Guinea). It is used in local schools (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kij. Alternate Names: Kiriwina.

1986: [LILLYbm] Kilivila: The Language of the Trobriand Islanders, Gunter Senft. Berlin: Mouton de Gruyter, 1986. xiii, 598 p.: ill., maps; 25 cm. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered in gold. First edition. Mouton grammar library; 3.

Part Two (pp. 175-599) consists of a Kilivila-English, English-Kilivila dictionary. "Selected bibliography on linguistic research on Austronesian languages": p. [163]-173. First dictionary of this language. Second copy: IUW.

1998: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KILIWA] Kiliwa (in Kiliwa: Koléew Ñaja') is a Yuman language spoken in Baja California, in the far northwest of Mexico, by the Kiliwa people. The Kiliwa language was extensively studied by Mauricio J. Mixco, who published Kiliwa texts as well as a dictionary and studies of syntax. As recently as the mid-1900s, Mixco reported that members of the native community universally spoke Kiliwa as their first language, with many Kiliwas also bilingual in Paipai. At the start of the twenty-first century, Kiliwa is still spoken; a 2000 census reported 52 speakers. However, the language is considered to be in danger of extinction (Wiki).

Ethnologue: klb. Alternate Names: Kiliwi, Ko'lew, Quiligua.

1985: [LILLYbm] Kiliwa Dictionary, By Mauricio J. Mixco. Salt Lake City: University of Utah Press, 1985. Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. 382 pp. First edition. University of Utah Anthropological Papers, No. 109. Includes Kiliwa-English and English-Kiliwa, as well as Spanish-Kiliwa. This is the first dictionary of the language. Second copy: IUW.

"The Kiliaw language is spoken in the Municipio (City-County) of Ensenada in the State of Baja California Norte, Mexico... Kiliwa is the sole member of its own branch within the Yuman family...The Yuman family as a whole is related to the extinct Cochimí dialects (or languages) once spoken to the south...in the vast central Desert of the Baja California peninsula." There were a "dozen or so" speakers in 1985.

1996: [IUW] Kiliwa del Arroyo León, Baja California, Mauricio J. Mixco. 1. ed. México, D.F.: El Colegio de México, [Centro de Estudios Lingüísticos y Literarios], 1996. 180 p.: ill.; 26 cm. Library binding incorporating original blue and orange wrappers, lettered in white. Archivo de lenguas indígenas de México; 18. Includes bibliographical references (p. 177-180). Includes Spanish-Kiliwa lexicon, pp. 161-175.

[KILMERI] Kilmeri is a Papuan language of Papua New Guinea near the border with Indonesian Papua. It is not being learned by children (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kih. Alternate Names: Kilmera.

1903: see under OCEANIC LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KIM MUN] Kim Mun language (金門方言) is a Hmong–Mien language spoken by some of the Yao people in the provinces of Guangxi, Hunan and Hainan [China]. Iu Mien and Kim Mun are very similar to each other, having a lexical similarity percentage of 78% (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mji. Alternate Names: Chasan Yao, Gem Mun, Hainan Miao, Jim Mun, Jinmen, Kem di mun, Kem Mun, Kimmun, Lan Tin, Lanten, Lowland Yao, Man Lantien, Men, Mun, Shanzi Yao.

1990: [LILLYbm] The Mun language of Hainan Island: its classified lexicon = Hai-nan tao Men yu fen lei tzu hui chi, Tadahiko Shintani [1946- ] & Shao Yang. Tokyo: Institute for the Study of Languages and Cultures of Asia and Africa (ILCAA), 1990. Original tan cloth over boards, lettered in black. Pp. [6] i ii-xi xii, 1 2-461 462-464. First edition. Series: Asian & African lexicon = Ya Fei yu yen tzu hui tsung shu, 20. Includes classified Mun-English, pp. [1]-271, a Chinese Pinyin index, pp. 285-331, an English index, pp. 333-381, a Mun phonetic index, pp. 383-431, and a Sino-Mun index, pp. 433-461. Second copy: IUW.

"The Mun language data of this work was gathered during our field research in Hainan Island which was carried out from December 1987 to January 1988" (Foreword). "The Mun language of Hainan Island is spoken by 23,000 people main living in the former Li and Miao Nationalities' Autonomous Prefecture... which is now dissolved and divided into 2 cities and 7 counties" (Introduction).

[KIMBUNDU] Kimbundu, or North Mbundu, one of two Bantu languages called Mbundu (see Umbundu), is the second-most-widely spoken Bantu language in Angola. It is concentrated in the north-west of the country, notably in the Luanda Province, the Bengo Province, the Malanje Province and the Cuanza Norte Province. It is spoken by the Ambundu (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kmb. Alternate Names: Dongo, Kimbundo, Kindongo, Loanda Mbundu, Loande, Luanda, Lunda, Mbundu, N'bundo, Nbandu, Ndongo, North Mbundu.

1804: [LILLYbm] Diccionario da lingua Bunda, ou Angolense, explicada na Portugeuza, e Latina, by Bernardo Maria de Cannecattim. Lisbon: Impressao Regia, 1804. Contemporary full mottled calf, gilt-paneled spine in 6 compartments, red morocco label lettered in gold. pp. [16], 720, [2]; text in triple column; old library rubberstamp and perforated stamp in title-page, perforated stamp also in penultimate leaf. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 36 (with second edition of 1859 erroneously listed--see under Koongo). Hendrix 1134.

"Cannecattim... became missionary Apostolic and Prefect of the Missions of Angola and the Congo, until 1805, when he became Superior of the Hospicio dos Missionarios Capuchinhos Italianos in Lisbon.... Regarding [the dictionary] Héli Chatelain... a discerning scholar, makes scathing comment [in 1889]: '[the information] is mixed up with so many errors and so much Latin instead of African grammar, that it is necessary to know the language in order to be able to distinguish that which holds good from the large amount which is false'.... The dictionary ... comprises over 10,000 'Mbundu' words, really a large compilation for the beginning of the 19th century, and reflecting on the author's industry despite Chatelain's criticism.... [However,] I think we must, on the whole, agree with Chatelain's 1894 appraisal.... Of the dictionary he writes: 'Owing to its incorrectness, confused spelling, and erroneous rendering of words, this large dictionary... has never been of any use to students of Kimbundu' (C.M. Doke, "Early Bantu Literature - The Age of Brusciotto," in Contributions to the History of Bantu Linguistics).

"First edition of the first dictionary of any of the Bantu dialects, Bunda being that spoken by the Abunda tribe in central Angola. The author also compiled an abbreviated Angolan grammar, Lisbon, 1805. Astor Catalogue of Asian and African Languages, p. 174" (bookseller's description: Rulon-Miller).

1805: [LILLY] Collecção de observações grammaticaes sobre a lingua bunda, ou angolense, compostas por Fr. Bernardo Maria de Cannecattim ... Lisboa: Na Impressão Regia, 1805. [4], xx, 218 p.; 21 cm. Bound in marbled boards with sheep shelfback and corners, leather label on gilt spine, edges sprinkled blue. "Diccionario abreviado da lingua congueza, a que accresce huma quarta columna, que conte'm os termos da lingua bunda, identicos, ou semelhantes à lingua congueza": p. [149]-216. NUC pre-1956 cites the 2nd ed. as 1859. Errata: p. 217-218. NUC pre-1956 94:43 (NC 0107525). BN 23:322.

1846: see 13) under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

1885: [LILLYbm] Vocabulary of the Umbundu Language Comprising Umbundu-English and English-Umbundu. Lists of Three Thousand Words used by the Inhabitants of Bailundu and Bihe, and other Countries of West Central Africa, prepared by Rev. W.H. Sanders, Rev. W.E. Fay, and other Missionaries of the [West Central African Mission] of the A[merican] B[oard] C[ommissioners] F[oreign] M[issions]. [Boston: Beacon Press, Thomas Todd, Printer], 1885. Original brown quarter-cloth and gray paper over boards, spine lettered in gold. Pp. 1-3 4-76. First edition. Place and printer indicated on verso of title page. Zaubmüller, col. 36. Hendrix 1144. Includes English-Umbundu, pp. [3]-35, and Umbundu-English, pp. 36-76. First English dictionary of Kimbundu. Published together with a similarly bound volume in black quarter-cloth and blue paper over boards: Observations upon the Grammatical Structure and Use of the Umbundu or the Language of the Inhabitants of Bailundu and Bike, and other Countries of West Central Africa, by Rev. Wesley M. Stover. [Boston: Beacon Press, Thomas Todd, Printer], 1885. 84 pp. There is no prefatory material in either volume to recount the story of the origin of these volumes.

Second, enlarged edition 1911: Vocabulary of the Umbundu Language Comprising Umbundu-English and English-Umbundu, [by Rev. William Fay and other Missionaries of the] West Central African Mission. [?Kamundongo, Angola]: A[merican] B[oard] C[ommissioners] F[oreign] M[issions], 1911. ?Original unlettered black half-leather and black cloth over boards. Pp. [12] 1 2-400, <sup>2</sup>1 2-248 249-260 (first and last six leaves blank). [Second, enlarged edition]. This enlarged edition not noted in Zaubmüller. Hendrix 1144 (listing it simply as a reprint of the first edition). This is a greatly expanded and revised edition of the 1885 title (almost 650 pages as opposed to 76), and is the first English dictionary of the language printed in Africa. Includes Umbundu-English, pp. [1]-400, and English-Umbundu, pp. <sup>2</sup>[1]-248. "NUC locates two copies, and suggests Boston as possible place of printing, which is ... certainly wrong, given the quality of the printing, and as the preface makes abundantly clear" (bookseller's description: Rulon-Miller). This copy with the contemporary ink ownership signature of H. W. Lane, Capango.

"The words accumulated, and for the most part tested, by Mr. Fay have been added to the former vocabulary, together with such others as have been contributed. When the first draft of the English-Umbundu (or Second Part) was just completed there came an opportunity to print. To delay so as to consult all concerned would have been to let it slip. It was believed that the majority of those for whose convenience the vocabulary has been prepared would favor immediate printing, without revision, rather than risk a long delay... The work of printing has been so exacting on all concerned that adding to, correcting, or classifying the Umbundu words in the second part could not be attempted... [and there are] several infelicities, occasioned by an inadequate supply of type" (Preface).

1888-1889: [LILLY] Kimbundu grammar; grammatica elementar do kimbundu ou lingua de Angola, by Héli Chatelain. Geneva: Typ.de C. Schuchardt, 1888-1889. xxiv, 172 p. 26 cm. Original black cloth, lettered in gold and decorated in blind (spine faded and covered in part with paper). Introduction by Robert Cust. Grammar interpreted in Portuguese; the meaning of words given in Portuguese and English. Contains various brief Kimbundu-Portuguese-English wordlists. With a pencil note indicating this copy was purchased from the estate of Dr. Werner in 1935, and the ink stamp of the B.F.B.S. Editorial Library.

Reprinted 1964: [IUW] Kimbundu grammar; grammatica elementar do kimbundu ou lingua de Angola por Heli Chatelain. Geneva, 1888-89. Ridgewood, N.J., Gregg Press, 1964. xxlv, 172 p. 26 cm. Introduction by Robert Cust. Grammar interpreted in Portuguese; the meaning of words given in Portuguese and English.

1903: [LILLY] Diccionario Portuguez-Kimbundu, by J[osé] Pereira do Nascimento [1861-1913] Huilla: Typographia da Missão, 1903. xviii, [4], 138 p.; 25 cm. Later black half-leather and marbled paper over boards, lettered in gold on spine; original wrappers preserved. Not in Zauhmüller. Hendrix 1136. Includes Portuguese-Kimbundu, pp. [1]-112, with supplementary vocabulary, pp. [131]-136.

1930: [LILLYbm] Mbundu English-Portuguese Dictionary, With Grammar and Syntax, by Amandus Johnson. Philadelphia: The International Printing Company, 1930. Original stiff brown wrappers, lettered in brown. 110 pp. First edition. Zauhmüller, col. 36. Hendrix 1142. Covers carries title as Mbundu (Kimbundu) English-Portuguese Dictionary, With Grammar and Syntax... in Ten Installments. This Part Contains: 1. Preface, pp. 7-10, 2. Introduction. Grammar and Syntax, pp. 11-88, 3. A-B of the Dictionary, pp. 89-110. "[This dictionary] will appear in ten installments of which [this] is the first and second." In spite of this announcement, only this first volume appeared. "This dictionary is largely the result of nearly two years' sojourn (1922-1924) among the Ambundu tribes in Angola, eastward from the coast of Loanda, and north and east of the Kwanza River... Mbundu has a certain wild beauty... The language is full of metaphors, picturesque conceptions and words with figurative meanings, whole sentences, at times, being built up of metaphors and words of allusive, figurative and suggestive significance, almost equalling the famous kennigar of old Icelandic poetry... Nor must I forget the native chiefs, who treated me with such whole-hearted hospitality in their primitive and often wild manner" (Preface).

1942: [IUW] Viagens e apontamentos de um portuense em África. Excerptos do "Diário" da António Francisco da Silva Pôrto. [Lisboa] Divisão de Publicações e Biblioteca, Agência Geral das Colónias, 1942. 253 p. 23 cm. Original cream wrappers, lettered in orange and black. Portuguese-Kimbundu, pp. 217-253.

1955: [IUW] Dicionário elementar português-omumbuim-mussele, dialectos do "kimbundu" e "bundu." Edição e propriedade do autor. 1. ed. 2,500 copies. Cucujães, Composto e impresso na Escola Tipográfica das Missões [1955]. 228 p. 20 cm. Library binding, incorporating original red front wrapper, lettered in black. Includes Portuguese-Omumbuim-Mussele, dialectos do 'Kimbundu' e 'Mbundu', pp. [13]-[230]. Preface dated 1953.

1964a: see 1964 (with second edition 1994) under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1964b: [IUW] Dicionário rudimentar Português-Kimbundo: língua nativa de Luanda a Malange: Angola, by António da Silva Maia. 1. ed. Cucujães: Editorial Missões, 1964. 146 p.; 17 cm. Library binding incorporating the original gray front wrapper, lettered in black. Includes basic dictionary Portuguese-Kibundu, pp. [11]-146. This copy with a presentation inscription from the author.

1987: [IUW] Léxicos temáticos de agricultura, pesca, pecuária: português-Kimbundu, coordenação Boubacar Diarra. Luanda: Instituto de Línguas Nacionais, 1987. 16 leaves; 30 cm. "Projecto ANG/77/009-"Desenvolvimento das Línguas Nacionais na R.P.A.". Portuguese-Kimbundu agricultural dictionary.

2011: [IUW] Parlons Kimbundu: langue de l'Angola, by Jean de Dieu N'sondé. Paris: Harmattan, c2011. 138 p.: ill.; 22 cm. Original white wrappers, lettered in reddish-brown, with a black and white scene of a harbor and ships on the front cover. Collection "Parlons". Includes Lexique Kimbundu-French, pp. 89-[113], and a Petit Lexique French-Kimbundu, pp. 115-[136].

2015: [IUW] Léxicos temáticos Português-Kimbundu, coordenação científica: Prof. Boubacar Diarra, perito da UNESCO/PNUD; autor: Ministério da Cultura; Instituto de Línguas Nacionais. 1a Edição. [Angola]: Ministério da Cultura, Instituto de Línguas Nacionais, 2015. 181 pages; 21 cm. Original blue wrappers, lettered and decorated in white. Includes extensive Portuguese-Kimbundus classified vocabularies, pp. 13-181.

[KIMÎIRU] Meru [Kimîiru] is the language spoken by the Meru people (Ameru) who live on the Eastern and Northern slopes of Mount Kenya, Kenya, Africa and on the Nyambene ranges. They settled in this area after centuries of migration from the north. The Meru people are a fairly homogeneous community and all share a common ancestry. They speak the same language, Kimeru, but there are some slight regional differences, in accent and local words. As the Meru language is similar to its surrounding neighbors, the Kikuyu and Embu could have possibly adopted parts of Meru (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mer. Alternate Names: Kimeru, Mero, Meru.

2008: [IUW] Kimeru: msamiati wa Kimeru-Kiswahili-Kiingereza na Kiingereza-Kimeru-Kiswahili = Meru-Swahili-English and English-Meru-Swahili lexicon / Yunus I. Rubanza. Dar-es-Salaam: Languages of Tanzania (LOT) Project, University of Dar-es-Salaam, 2008. xviii, 147 p.; 24 cm. Original multi-colored wrappers, lettered in white, blue, yellow and black, with a language map of Tanzania on the front cover. First edition. LOT publications. Lexicon series; no. 17. Kimîiru-Swahili-English, pp. 1-72, English-Kimîiru-Swahili, pp. 75-147.

"The aim of this work is to promote and preserve Meru. We hope the speakers of this language will use this book as a reference. Besides, the speakers of this language could use this work as a basis for compiling a comprehensive dictionary of the language [see 2012 below]. The second aim of this work is to provide data for research linguists who are interested in Bantu languages" (Introduction).

2012: [IUW] Kimeru-English dictionary, compiled & edited by mwalimu D.K. Mboroki. First edition. Meru, Kenya: Mwalimu D.K.M., 2012. 296 pages; 21 cm. First edition (from rear wrapper). Original multi-colored wrappers, lettered in white, green and black, with a photo of mountains on the front cover. Kimîiru-English, pp. 5-292.

"This being the first comprehensive Kimeru dictionary [see 2008 above] it has laid the basis for the later editions" (Preface). "The main purpose of writing this dictionary is after realising the new generation which has been urbanized and embraced Western culture thus ending up by diffusing their mother language. Now the book will be helpful to Kimeru learners especially the new Meru generation and the foreigners" (from rear cover).

[KINGA] Kinga is a Bantu language of Tanzania. Magoma is ethnically distinct, and mutual intelligibility with the Magoma variety is low (Wiki) Ethnologue: zga. Alternate Names: Bakinga, Ekikinga, Kikinga.

1905: [LILLYbm] Grammatik der Kinga-Sprache (Deutsch-Ostafrika, Nyassagebiet) nebst Texten und Wörterverzeichnis, by R. Wolff. Berlin: Kommissionsverlag von G. Reimer, 1905. Bound with three further volumes in the series, in dark-green quarter cloth and marbled paper over boards stamped "Bibliothek der Reichs-Kolonialamts"; spine lettered in gold; original wrappers bound in. Pp. I-VI-VIII, 1 2-243 244. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 225. Hendrix 855 (only entry for this language). Series: Archiv für das Studium deutscher Kolonialsprachen, Bd. III. Includes Kinga-German, pp. 161-206, and German-Kinga, pp. 207-243. First dictionary of the Kinga language. The author was a German Berlin missionary to Tandala.

"The present work deals with the language of the Kinga people, who live in the Livingston Mountains. It is the result of a seven-year activity among these people.... The Kinga country is very mountainous, rising at its highest peaks to around 2,400 meters above sea-level and is quite extensive. Up to now it has not been possible to establish exactly how large it is and how many inhabitants there are, since no measurements or count have been undertaken. Estimates are always deceptive, so they will not be offered here" (Introduction, tr: BM).

[KINNAURI] Kinnauri, also known as Kanauri, Kanor, Koonawur, or Kunawar, is a Sino-Tibetan dialect cluster centered on the Kinnaur district of the Indian state of Himachal Pradesh. Kaike, once thought to be Kinnauri, is closer to Tamangic. Bhoti Kinnauri and Tukpa are Bodish (Lahauli–Spiti) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kfk. Alternate Names: Kanauri, Kanaury Anuskad, Kanawari, Kanawi, Kanoreunu Skad, Kanorin Skad, Kanorug Skadd, Kinnaura Yanuskad, Kinner, Kinori, Koonawure, Kunawari, Kunawur, Lower Kinnauri, Malhesti, Milchan, Milchanang, Milchang, Tibas Skad.

1915: see under HIMALAYAN LANGUAGES AND DIALECTS.

[KINNAURI, CHITKULI] Wikipedia redirects Chitkuli Kinnauri to Kinnauri. Ethnologue considers Chitkuli Kinnauri a separate language from Kinnauri itself.

Ethnologue: cik. Alternate Names: Chitkhuli, Chitkuli, Kanauri, Kinnauri, Thebarskad, Tsíhuli, Tsitkhuli.

1915: see under HIMALAYAN LANGUAGES AND DIALECTS.

[KINYARWANDA] Kinyarwanda (Kinyarwanda: Ikinyarwanda, IPA: [icɪnɑrgwɑːnda]), also known as Rwanda (Ruanda) or Rwandan, or in Uganda as Fumbira, is the official language of Rwanda and a dialect of the Rwanda-Rundi language spoken by 12 million people in Burundi, Eastern Congo and adjacent parts of southern Uganda. (The Kirundi dialect is the official language of neighboring Burundi.)

Kinyarwanda is one of the three official languages of Rwanda (along with English and French), and is spoken by almost all of the native population. This contrasts with most modern African states, whose borders were drawn by colonial powers and did not correspond to ethnic boundaries or pre-colonial kingdoms (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kin. Alternate Names: Hima, Ikinyarwanda, Orunyarwanda, Ruanda, Rwanda, Rwandan, Urunyarwanda.

An on-line dictionary of Kinyarwanda may be found at www.webonary.org.

1912: [LILLY] Wörterbuch Deutsch-Kinyarwanda, von Felix Dufays. Trier: Mosella-Verlag, [1912]. 390 p.; 15 cm. Bound in blue cloth, spine and front cover stamped in white, with tan endpapers. Date of publication from foreword. Ex-library copy, with bookplate at front, ink stamp on t. p. and p. 390, ms. annotations on t. p., and sticker on spine. Hendrix 1336. Includes German-Rwanda, pp. [7]-390.

"The present dictionary has been compiled to help those officials, merchants and missionaries whose profession or business brings them to Rwanda, learn the native language.... A stay of nine years among a folk whose manner of thought and speech is so different from ours is not sufficient to learn all the subtleties and characteristics of their language. The present small work is intended merely as an initial aid to the beginner, and as a stimulus toward gaining a deeper knowledge of the language through their own efforts.... To have offered some help to my fellow countrymen, and to have contributed in this way to the religious and moral elevation of the natives of Rwanda, will be my greatest consolation and reward" (Introduction: Father Felix Dufays, Missionary in Rwanda, January, 1912)

1956: [IUW] Dictionnaire phonétique: français-runyarwanda, runyarwanda-français, par Pierre Schumacher. Kabgawi: Vicariat apostolique, [1956] ix, 364 p.; 20 cm. Original unprinted purple cloth over boards. Printing date: August 1956 (p. 364). Includes French-Kinyarwanda, pp. [1]-140, and Kinyarwanda-French, pp. 143-364.

"The Rev. Father Schumacher, who was missionary to Rwanda from 1907-1936 was well qualified to give us the work we have here, which has been awaited impatiently by all, of various titles, who are interested in the language of the Banyarwandas" (Preface, L. Déprimoz).

1982: [IUW] Abrégé agro-pastoral Rwanda, S. Desouter. Paris: Agence de coopération culturelle et technique, c1982. x, 235 p.; 24 cm. Includes index. Bibliography: p. 15-18. Kinyarwanda-French agricultural terms.

1984-1987: [IUW] Dictionnaire rwandais-français, en 3 volumes, par Irénée Jacob. [Butare, Rwanda]: Institut national de recherche scientifique, [1984-1987]. 3 v.; 30 cm. Original light orange wrappers, lettered in black. "Extrait du dictionnaire de l'Institut national de recherche scientifique." Vol. 2 has title: Dictionnaire rwandais-français de l'Institut national de recherche scientifique. Includes: Vol. I: Kinyarwanda-French, pp. [1]-598 (A-H); [IUW lacks volume 2]; Vol. III: pp. 5-509 (S-Z).

1992: [IUW] Lexique comptable et de gestion: français - kinyarwanda = Urutonde rw'ibaruramari n'icungamutungo: igifaransa - ikinyarwanda. Kigali, Rwanda: IWACU, [1992] i, 88 p.: ill.; 25 cm. "Mai 1992." French-Kinyarwanda accounting and management dictionary.

2005: [IUW] Inkoranya y ikinyarwaanda mu kinyarwaanda nó mu gifaraansá = Dictionnaire Rwanda-Rwanda et Rwanda-Français, A. Coupez ... [et al.]. Butare [Rwanda]: Institut de Recherche Scientifique et Technologique; Tervuren: Musée Royal de l'Afrique Centrale, cop. 2005. 3 v.; 30 cm. Dictionnaire Rwand - Rwanda et Rwanda – Français.

2009a: [IUW] English-Rufumbira dictionary. Kampala: Fountain Publishers; East Lansing, MI: Distributed in North America by Michigan State University Press, 2009. 139 p.; 21 cm. "Kisoro District Language Board"--Cover. English and Rufumbira [Kinyarwanda].

2009b: [IUW] I speak English and Kinyarwanda: first of all, how are you? = Mvuga icyongereza n'ikinyarwanda: icya mbere cy'ibanze ni ukubasuhuzza, Munezero Gasimba F. Saveri. Kigali: Munezero Gasimba F.S., 2009. xv, 329 p.: ill.; 18 cm. Original light yellow-brown and white wrappers, lettered in whit reddish-brown, black and violet. Classified English-Kinyarwanda, pp. 1-160, and Kinyarwanda-English, pp.163-329.

"This is your precious aid. Keep it with you everywhere and everytime: it will help you to practice and improve your English or Kinyarwanda language while communicating with other people. You will enjoy it" (from rear cover).

2009c: [IUW] Kinyarwanda-English, English-Kinyarwanda dictionary, by Cyprien Niyomugabo; assisted by J.P. Hagenimana, C. Ntawizera. Kigali: Fountain Publishers, 2009. xiv, 339 p.: ill.; 21 cm. Original green, black, red and blue wrappers, lettered in yellow and white. Includes English-Kinyarwanda, pp. 310-339.

"[T]his dictionary first came into my mind a long time ago when I realized that this kind of dictionary did not exist while it was sorely needed. In fact, we did not have a monolingual/bi-directionally Kinyarwanda-English dictionary at all... Given that this is a monolingual/bilingual basic language dictionary, it is meant to help those who wish to learn or have a working knowledge of either Kinyarwanda or English" (Introduction).

2012: [IUW] Urutonde rw'amagambo y'imiyoborere = Lexique de gouvernance = Governance lexicon, François-Xavier Gasimba. Kigali, Rwanda: Multicom Imprimerie & edition, 2012. 453 pages; 25 cm. Original orange and white wrappers, lettered in black and white, with a color photograph of mountainous countryside on the front cover. Includes bibliographical references. A legal dictionary, Kinyarwanda-French-English, pp. 9-147, English-Kinyarwanda-French, pp. 151-298, and French-Kinyarwanda-English, pp. 301-452.

"Here is a glossary of terms and phrases relating in governance, produced in the three official languages of Rwanda. As we know, this is the first time a lexicon of this kind was born in Rwanda" (Introduction).

[KIOWA] Kiowa /'kaɪ.əwə/ or Cáuijògà / Cáuijò:gyà ("language of the Cáuigù (Kiowa)") is a Tanoan language spoken by the Kiowa Tribe of Oklahoma in primarily Caddo, Kiowa, and Comanche counties. The Kiowa tribal center is located in Carnegie. Like most North American languages, Kiowa is an endangered language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kio.

1928: [LILLYbm] Vocabulary of the Kiowa Language, by John P. Harrington. Washington, DC: Government Printing Office, 1928. Hardbound without d.j. First edition. Smithsonian Institution, Bureau of Ethnology, Bulletin 84. Not in Zauhmüller. Kiowa is a member of the Uto-Aztecan language family. The Kiowa Indians were a small and distinct tribe originally living in what is now western Montana, who were moved to Anadarko, Oklahoma. There were about 1,000 speakers of Kiowa in 1986.

1978: [IUW] Indian signs and signals, by George Fronval and Daniel DuBois; [translated by E.W. Egan; photographs by George C. Hight; ill. by Jean Marcellin; period paintings by George Catlin]. New York: Sterling Pub. Co., c1978. 80 p.: col. ill.; 30 cm. Translation of Les signes mystérieux des peaux-rouges. Includes index. Photographs and text describe more than 800 signs used by the nomadic tribes of the Great Plains to communicate with each other. Indian sign language--North America--Juvenile literature. Kiowa sign language--Juvenile literature.

[KIPCHAK] The Kipchak language (also spelled Qypchaq) is an extinct Turkic language of the Kipchak group. The descendants of the Kipchak language include the majority of Turkic languages spoken in Eastern Europe and the Caucasus today, as Kipchak-Cuman was used as a lingua franca in Golden Horde-ruled lands. Kazakhs are remnants of Eastern Cuman-Kipchak tribes who lived in Northern Kazakhstan in the 10th century, but migrated to Europe later. So, their language originates from a more isolated form of earlier Kipchak. Bolgar-speaking Volga Bulgarians (later Kazan Tatars), Astrakhan Tatars, Balkars, Karachays, Kumyks, Cumans (later Crimean Tatars), Bashkirs and Mongolian aristocracy adopted the Kipchak language in the days of the Golden Horde (Wiki).

Ethnologue does not list this extinct language.

1954-1958: [IUW] Vocabulaire arabe-kiptchak de l'époque de l'État Mamelouk: Bulġat al-muštaq fī luġat at-Turk wa-l-Qifzāq / [édité par] Ananiasz Zajączkowski. [Wyd. 1]. First edition. Warszawa: Państwowe Wydawn. Naukowe, 1954-58 [v.1, 1958] 2 v.: facsim. Prace orientalistyczne; t. 7, t. 1. Texts of general introd. to v. 1-2 in French and Polish respectively. Facsimile of the ms. of the dictionary (Bibliothèque nationale, Paris, Mss. Turcs, Supplément, no. 293): 28 plates in v. 1, 137 plates in v. 2. Includes bibliographical references. Contents: 1. ptie. Le nom. 2. ptie. Le verbe.

[KIPUT] Kiput is a Malayo-Polynesian language spoken in northern Sarawak, Borneo, Malaysia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kyi.

2003: [LILLY] A short morphology, phonology and vocabulary of Kiput, Sarawak, by R. A. Blust. Canberra: Pacific Linguistics, 2003. vii, 102 p.; 25 cm. Original blue, green and white wrappers, lettered in green, white and black. Series: Pacific linguistics 546. First edition. Kiput-English, pp. 43-101.

“Very little has been published on this language. The principal aim of the present work is to provide an overview of the synchronic morphology and phonology of Kiput, a considerably longer and more accurate vocabulary than that in Ray (1913), and several hundred sentences” (rear cover).

[KIRIBATI] Taetae ni Kiribati or Gilbertese, also Kiribati (sometimes Kiribatese), is a Micronesian language of the Austronesian language family. The word Kiribati is the modern rendition for "Gilberts", so the name is not usually translated into English. "Gilberts" comes from Captain Thomas Gilbert, who, along with Captain John Marshall, was one of the first Europeans to visit the Gilbert Islands in 1788. Some of the islands had been sighted or visited earlier, including by Commodore John Byron, whose ships happened on Nikunau in 1765. Frequenting of the islands by Europeans and Chinese dates from whaling and oil trading from the 1820s, when no doubt Europeans learnt to speak it, as I-Kiribati learnt to speak English and other languages foreign to them. However, it wasn't until Hiram Bingham II took up missionary work on Abaiang in the 1860s that the language began to take on the written form known today. For example, Bingham was the first to translate the Bible into Gilbertese, and wrote several hymn books, dictionaries and commentaries in the language of the Gilbert Islands. The official name of the language is now te taetae ni Kiribati, or 'the Kiribati language'. The first complete description of this language was in Dictionnaire gilbertin-français of Father Ernest Sabatier (981p, 1954), a Catholic priest. This dictionary was later translated into English by Sister Olivia (with the help of South Pacific Commission). Over 99% of the 103,000 people living in Kiribati are ethnically I-Kiribati (wholly or partly) and speak Kiribati. Kiribati is also spoken by most inhabitants of Nui (Tuvalu), Rabi Island (Fiji), Mili (Marshall Islands) and some other islands where I-Kiribati have been relocated (Solomon Islands, notably Choiseul Province and Vanuatu) or emigrated (to New Zealand and Hawaii mainly). Unlike many in the Pacific region, the Kiribati language is far from extinct, and most speakers use it daily (Wiki).

Ethnologue: gil. Alternate Names: Gilbertese, Ikiribati, I-Kiribati, Kiribatese.

1846: see under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

1858: [LILLY] [Gilbertese alphabet and syllabary]. [Pohnpei Island, Micronesia: Printed by Luther H. Gulick for Hiram Bingham, 1858. 1 sheet ([1] p.); 25 x 20 cm. Other contributors: Bingham, Hiram, 1789-1869. Notes: First line: A a ba be bi bo bu am a*n. For imprint information, etc., cf. Bibliographical file. Printed in three columns of two, five, and two letters or syllables. Printed in black on cream wove paper. This single page primer is the earliest example of printing from the Gilbert Islands.

1898: [LILLYbm] Dictionary Gilbert-English. Nantes: Imprimerie Bourgeois, 1898. Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [6] I II-XI XII, 1 2-117 118-120. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Includes Gilbert-English, pp. [1]-117. First English language dictionary of Kiribati. This copy with some pencil markings and two ownership inscriptions, one in pencil on the half-title: "Actg. Captain | HR Hitchman | Ocean Island '09" and one in ink on front cover: "Geo. Darbishire | Beru". Beru is in the Gilbertese Islands.

1908: [LILLYbm] A Gilbertese-English dictionary, by Hiram Bingham [1831-1908]. Boston: American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, 1908. Original red cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. i-vii viii, 1 2-179 180. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Includes Gilbertese-English, pp. [1]-179. This copy with the contemporary ownership signature in ink on the free endpaper: 'J [or G] Heilson'.

"This people number about 30,000, and dwell in a rroup of islands now under the protectorate of the British government. They have been nominally Christianized, but they still need much help...It was the privilege of the compiler of this to be among the first who sent to carry the Gospel of Christ to that race of savages in 1857....This dictionary contains over 12,000 words including derivatives and 500 Gilbertized foreign words which occur in Gilbertese books printed since 1857, principally in the Bible, the Geography, and the Arithmetic" (Preface).

ca. 1927: [LILLYbm] A Gilbertese Grammar and Vocabulary, edited by a member of The Sacred-Heart-Mission. [printed in Tilburg, Holland]: Catholic-Mission Gilbert Islands (Central Pacific), n.d. [c. 1927]. Pp. [4] 7 8-132 133-134 [index, pp.

[133]-[134], may be intended to precede Preface, which would correct the pagination; no pages appear missing]. First edition. Not in Zaubmüller. Preface signed "E.A. m. S. C." Includes vocabulary lists arranged by grammatical categories and thematically, pp. 21-113.

1948: [LILLY] An English-Gilbertese vocabulary of the most commonly used words. G. H. Eastman. Rongorongo, Beru, Gilbert Islands, London Mission Press, 1948. 224 p. 22 cm. Second copy: IUW.

1951: [LILLYbm] The Structure of Gilbertese, by Reid Cowell. Beru, Gilbert Islands: Rongorongo Press, 1951. Original limp powder blue cloth, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [8] 1-59, L2-L7, P1-P3, [2] EVO EV1-EV18, GV1-GV14 GV15, fold-out chart, [4], interleaved with blank pages throughout, following EV1. First edition. Not in Zaubmüller. English-Gilbertese, pp. EV1-EV18, and Gilbertese-English, pp. GV1-GV14, double-columned. This copy with the ink stamp of the Australian School of Pacific Administration.

1971: [LILLYbm] Gilbertese-English Dictionary, originally compiled in French by E. Sabatier, and translated [into English] by Sister Oliva. Tarawa: Sacred Heart Mission, 1971. Original orange cloth over boards, lettered in gold; d.j. green, lettered in black and white. Pp. i-iv v-x, 1-426. First edition. Includes Gilbertese-English, pp. 1-423, with a list of species of shellfish, pp. 424-426. A translation from a French Dictionary published in the mid-Fifties. Second copy: LILLYbm, lacking d.j., with "Peace Corps Training Library" in felt-tip pen on the fly-leaf.)

[KISI] Kisi is a Bantu language of Tanzania. Though only half or so of the Kisi people speak the language, use is vigorous where it is still spoken (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kiz. Alternate Names: Kese, Kikisi.

1995: [IUW] A grammar of Kisi: a southern Atlantic language, by G. Tucker Childs. New York: Mouton de Gruyter, 1995. xiv, 370 p.: ill., maps; 25 cm. First edition. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Mouton grammar library; 16. Kisi-English lexicon, pp. [331]-349. Includes bibliographical references (p. [350]-367) and index.

2000: [IUW] A dictionary of the Kisi language: with an English-Kisi index, by G. Tucker Childs. Köln: Köppe, 2000. xxiv, 522, [2] p.: ill.; 24 cm. Original violet wrappers, lettered in white. Westafrikanische Studien; Bd. 22. Includes bibliographical references (p. [523]-[524]) and index. Includes Kisi-English, p. [1]-418, and an English-Kisi index, pp. [419]-522.

"This dictionary represent the compilation of some 6,000 words from the Kisi language translated into English.. This dictionary represents the second book emerging from time spent in the Kisi area. The first was a descriptive grammar published several years to (Childs 1995a). The grammar was the first of its kind on the Kisi language; this dictionary has the same status" (Introduction).

[KISI, SOUTHERN] Kisi (or Kisi) is a Mel language of West Africa, closely related to Temne of Sierra Leone. There are two dialects, northern and southern, both are tonal languages. The northern dialect is spoken in Guinea and in Sierra Leone. In its northern form, it often uses loanwords from the Malinke and the Mende languages. The southern dialect is spoken in Liberia and Sierra Leone. The two dialects are notably different, but are closely related. In Guinea, the main places Kissi is spoken are the cities of Kissidougou and Guéckédou and their préfectures.

Ethnologue: kss. Alternate Names: Gisi, Gizi, Kissi, Kissien.

[KITHARAKA] Wiki redirects Kitharaka to the language Meru, listing Tharaka as a subdivision "with some light regional differences" of the Meru-speaking community. Ethnologue considers Tharaka (Ethnologue: Kitharaka) and Meru (Ethnologue: Kimîru) two separate languages.

Ethnologue: thk. Alternate Names: Atharaka, Saraka, Sharoka, Tharaka.

1914: [LILLYbm] Outlines of a Tharaka grammar, with a list of words and specimens of the language, Gerhard Lindblom [1887- ]. Uppsala: J. -A. Lundell, 1914. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black (needs rebinding; partially perished spine reads vertically from top to bottom in black: "Archives Orient de Lundell: G. Lindblom"). Pp. 1-3 4-53 54-56. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 1608. Series: Archives d'études orientales, v.9. Includes Tharaka [Kitharaka]-English vocabulary, pp. 34-47. First published vocabulary of the language.

"The Atharaka... live south-east from Mount Kenia, on both sides of the river Tana, on its upper course, along which they spread eastward to the regions about the Great Falls.... The country is quite small, and the tribe certainly does not number more than 6000-70000 persons. Despite this, the brave and warlike people have known how to make themselves respected by their neighbours, and even Arabian traders and European travellers provided with fire-arms have, as much as possible, avoided passing through the district, which up till now has remained a closed territory.... I am sorry to say I have not myself been in a position to visit the Tharaka in their country. My kamba-carriers flatly refused to go with me, not did I succeed to securing others for the purpose, so extremely did the people fear the Atharaka. Nov.-Dec. 1911, however, two young Tharaka men were in my service, one of whom... spoke Kikamba admirably. The present study is founded on my conversations with them" (Introduction).

[KITUBA] Kituba is a widely used lingua franca in Central Africa. It is a creole language based on Kikongo, a family of closely related Bantu languages. It is an official language in Republic of the Congo and Democratic Republic of the Congo. It is not entirely accurate to call Kituba a creole language as it lacks the distinction between superstrate and substrate influence that is typical of creole development (Wiki).

Kikongo is the base for ... Kituba, also called Kikongo de L'état or Kikongo ya Leta ("Kongo of the state" in French or Kongo), Kituba and Monokituba (also Munukituba) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ktu. Alternate Names: Kibulamatadi, Kikongo Commercial, Kikongo Simplifié, Kikongo Ya Leta, Kikongo-Kituba, Kikongo-Kutuba, Kileta.

1900: see ca. 1900a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1969: [IUW] Dictionnaire kikongo (ya leta)-anglais-français = Kikongo (Ya Leta)-English-French dictionary / [by] Harold W. Fehderau. Kinshasa: Éditions Leco, 1969. xxxix, 323 p.; 28 cm. First edition. Library binding. Kituba-English-French, pp. 1-321.

"We devoted an entire year, from 1960 to 1961, to compiling the material necessary for this work on the Kituba language. [Includes a detailed description of how the dictionary was compiled].... This trilingual edition is intended to reach the largest possible number of readers." (Preface, tr: BM).

Second edition 1992: [IUW] Dictionnaire kituba (kikongo ya leta)-anglais-français et vocabulaire français-kituba / Harold W. Fehderau. 2e éd. Kinshasa, République du Zaïre: Editions CEDI, 1992. xxii, 390 p.; 22 cm. Library binding, incorporating the original front and rear yellow wrappers, leeterd in brown. Includes bibliographical references (p. vi).

"Only a few hundred copies of the first edition were printed. Since that time many people have requested a new edition, but there was neither the time nor the resources to do so. However the arrival of computers placed at our disposition a means of editing and modifying all the material easily. It was a great joy for us to be able to do the revision with this new tool.

We've corrected those errors of the first edition of which we are aware. And a large quantity of new words have been added..." (Preface to the Second Edition, tr: BM).

1973: [IUW] Dictionnaire kituba-français / par Kusopo Mayika, Paul Tollenier. [Kinshasa, Zaire]: Éditions St-Paul Afrique, 1973. 359 p.; 15 cm. First edition. Original white, orange, light blue and dark blue wrappers, lettered in black. Kituba-French, pp. 13-360]. Errata, p. [61-63].

"Five years of experience have shown us the necessity of compiling a vocabulary in which the words are equally acceptable in Bas Zaire, Kwango-Kwilu, and Bandundu. The goal of the compilers of this vocabulary is thus neither truly scholarly nor linguistic. They have simply tried to achieve a compromise by remaining as close as possible to the base of the languages and dialects spoken in these areas of Zaire, while limiting the influence of Lingala as it is spoken in Kinshasa" (verso of title page, tr: BM).

1979: see under KOONGO.

2002: see under AFRICAN LANUAGES... POLYGLOT.

2007: [IUW] Dictionnaire Kituba (Munukutuba)-Français = Dibuku ya bampova Kituba-Français. 1ere ed. First edition. Brazzaville, République du Congo: SIL-Congo, avec la collaboration des Département d'alphabétisation et d'éducation permanente et Institut national de recherche et d'action pédagogique, 2007. 462 p.; 22 cm. "Rédaction - Nicaise Bahouamio, Jean-Pierre Mary, Sabine Mûri"--Cf. p. [iii]. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in white. Kituba-French, pp. 1-423, French-Kituba index, pp. 425-462.

2009: [IUW] Grammaire et lexique munukutuba: Congo-Brazzaville, République démocratique du Congo, Angola / Jean-Alexis Mfoutou. Paris: Harmattan, 2009. 343 p.; 25 cm. First edition. Original white and yellow-orange wrappers, lettered in black, red and white, with a color illustration of a market street scene on the front cover. Munukutuba [Kituba]-French, pp. 235-274, French-Munukutuba [Kituba], pp. 277-332. Includes a substantial introduction. Bibliographical references (p. 333-338).

[KIWAI] Kiwai is a Papuan language, or languages, of southern Papua New Guinea. Dialects number 1,300 Kope, 700 Gibaio, 1,700 Urama, 700 Arigibi (together "Northeast Kiwai"), 3,800 Coast, 1,000 Daru, 4,500 Island, 400 Doumori (together "Southern Kiwai"). Wurm and Hattori (1981) classify Arigibi as a separate language (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists Kiwai as two separate languages: 1) Northeast Kiwai (kiw: alternate names: Gibaio, Urama-Kope; and 2) Southern Kiwai (kjd: alternate names: Kiwai).

1951: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KIWAI, NORTHEAST] Kiwai is a Papuan language of southern Papua New Guinea. Ethnologue lists Kiwai as two separate languages: 1) Northeast Kiwai (kiw: alternate names: Gibaio, Urama-Kope; and 2) Southern Kiwai (kjd: alternate names: Kiwai).

Ethnologue: kiw. Alternate Names: Gibaio, Urama-Kope.

1973: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KIWAI, SOUTHERN] Kiwai is a Papuan language of southern Papua New Guinea. Ethnologue lists Kiwai as two separate languages: 1) Northeast Kiwai (kiw: alternate names: Gibaio, Urama-Kope; and 2) Southern Kiwai (kjd: alternate names: Kiwai).

Ethnologue: kjd. Alternate Names: Kiwai.

1973: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KLAMATH-MODOC] Klamath /'klæməθ/, also Klamath–Modoc /'klæməθ 'moʊðɒk/ and historically Lutuamian /,lu:tu:'æmɪən/, is a Native American language that was spoken around Klamath Lake in what is now southern Oregon and northern California. It is the traditional language of the Klamath and Modoc peoples, each of whom spoke a dialect of the language. As of April 1998, it was spoken by only one person. As of 2003, the last fluent Klamath speaker in Chiloquin, Oregon was 92 years old. As of 2006 there were no fluent native speakers of either the Klamath or Modoc dialects (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kla. Alternate Names: Klamath.

1846: see 9) under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

1890: [LILLYbm] The Klamath Indians of Southwestern Oregon, by Albert Samuel Gatschet. Washington, D.C.: Government Printing Office, 1890. Hardbound without d.j. 711 pp. First edition. Contributions to North American Ethnology, Vol. II, Part II. Zaunmuller, col. 226. A Klamath-English, English-Klamath dictionary. First dictionary of the language.

Reprinted 2011: [IUW] Dictionary of the Klamath language: Klamath-English, by Albert Samuel Gatschet. Muenchen: LINCOM Europa, 2012. 711 pages; 24 cm. Facsimile reprint Originally published: The Klamath Indians of southwestern Oregon. Dictionary of the Klamath language / by Albert Samuel Gatschet. -- Washington: Dept. of the Interior, U.S. Geographical and Geological Survey of the Rocky Mountain Region: G.P.O., 1890 -- (Contributions to North American ethnology; v. 2, pt. 2). Includes index. Original ed. available online.

1907-1930: see Vol. 13 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

1963: [LILLYbm] Klamath Dictionary, by M[uhammad] A[bd-al-]R[ahman] Barker. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1963. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. i-iv v vi-viii, 1-550 [2]. First edition. University of California Publications in Linguistics, Vol. 31. Includes Klamath-English, pp. 19-475, and English-Klamath, pp. 479-550. Part of a three-volume study by the same author in the UC Publications in Linguistics series, of which Klamath Texts (1963) is vol. 30, and Klamath Grammar (1964) is vol. 32. Second copy: IUW.

"Klamath was spoken in aboriginal times by an estimated 1,200 persons.... At present the rolls of the Klamath Indian Reservation contain approximately 2,018 names, but the great majority of these no longer speak the language. No accurate census of speakers has been taken, but the present author heard of perhaps fifty or sixty good speakers, and there may be as many as two or three hundred persons with some knowledge of the language. The home of the Klamaths lies along the eastern slope of the Cascade range" (Introduction to the Grammar). "Previous publications dealing with the Klamath Indians may be divided into two types: (1) scholarly works, and (2) historical and popular works.... Of the former, Dr. Albert Samuel Gatschet's The Klamath Indians of Southwestern Oregon... is the only large work devoted to the Klamath language" (Bibliography to the Grammar).

[KOALIB] Koalib (also called Kwalib, Abri, Lgalige, Nirere, and Rere) is a Niger–Congo language in the Heiban family spoken in the Sudan. The Koalib Nuba, Turum, and Umm Heitan ethnic groups speak this language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kib. Alternate Names: Abri, Kawalib, Kowalib, Lgalige, Ngirere, Nirere, Rere.

2006: [IUW] Phonologie de la langue koalibe: dialecte réré, Soudan / Nicolas Quint; [avec la collaboration de Siddig Ali Karmal Kokko]. Paris: L'Harmattan, c2006. xv, 238 p.: ill., maps; 24 cm. Original green, white and red wrappers, lettered in green, red and black. "Grammaire d'une langue kordofanienne"--P. 1 of cover. Includes as Appendix 1 an comparison of Rüppell's 1829 list of Schabun words with Koalib equivalents in 2006, German-French-Schabun, Koalib-French, pp. [213]-216. Includes bibliographical references (p. [223]-230). Rüppell's comparative list of German words with their equivalents in seven Nubian languages, including Schabun, was published in his Reisen in Nubien, Kordofan und dem peträischen Arabien vorzüglich in geographisch-statistischer Hinsicht, Frankfurt, 1829, pp. 370-373 (see 1829 under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT).

[KOASATI] Koasati (also Coushatta) is a Native American language of Muskogean origin. The language is spoken by the Coushatta people, most of whom live in Allen Parish north of the town of Elton, Louisiana, though a smaller number share a reservation near Livingston, Texas, with the Alabama people. In 1991, linguist Geoffrey Kimball estimated the number of speakers of the language at around 400 people, of whom approximately 350 live in Louisiana. The exact number of current speakers is unclear, but Coushatta Tribe officials claim that most tribe members over 20 speak Koasati. In 2007, the Coushatta Tribe of Louisiana, in collaboration with McNeese State University and the College of William and Mary, began the Koasati (Coushatta) Language Project as a part of broader language revitalization efforts with National Science Foundation grant money under the Documenting Endangered Languages program. Koasati is most closely related to the Alabama language but, though the Coushatta and Alabama have historically lived near each other, their languages are no longer mutually intelligible without extensive exposure. The language is also related to the Mikasuki language; some native speakers of Coushatta report they can understand Mikasuki without previous exposure to the language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: cku. Alternate Names: Coushatta.

1994: [LILLYbm] Koasati Dictionary, by Geoffrey D. Kimball. Lincoln: The University of Nebraska Press, 1994. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in black and silver, and decorated in black (issued without d.j.). 407 pp. First edition. Includes Koasati-English and English-Koasati. This is "one of the first modern dictionaries ever published of a language of the Muskogean language family." "Koasati is ...presently spoken by two groups of people, one in Louisiana [300 to 400 speakers], the other in Texas [number of speakers unknown]." First dictionary of this language. Second copy: IUW.

[KOCH] Koch is a Sino-Tibetan language spoken by the Koch people of Republic of India , Rajbanshi people in Nepal and Bangladesh (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kdq. Alternate Names: Koc, Kocch, Koce, Kocha, Kochboli, Konch. An on-line dictionary of Koch may be found at www.webonary.org.

1909: see under GARO.

[KODAVA] The Kodava or Coorg language (Kannada script: ಕೊಡವ ತಕ್ಕ, Kodava takk, meaning 'speech of Kodavas', in the Kodava language) is a Dravidian language and the original language of the Kodagu district in southern Karnataka, India. The term Kodava has two related usages. Firstly, it is the name of the Kodava language and culture followed by a number of communities from Kodagu. Secondly, within the Kodava - speaking communities and region (Kodagu) it describes the dominant Kodava people. Hence, the Kodava language is not only the primary language of the Kodavas but also of a large number of other castes and tribes in Kodagu. The language has two dialects: Mendele (spoken in Northern and Central Kodagu, i.e. outside Kodagu's Kiggat naad) and Kiggat (spoken in Kiggat naad, in Southern Kodagu) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kfa. Alternate Names: Coorge, Coorgi Kodava, Kadagi, Khurgi, Kodagu, Kotagu, Kurja, Kurug.

1976: [LILLYbm] Phonology of Kodagu with vocabulary, by Ramaswami Balakrishnan [1943- ]. Annamalainagar: Annamalai University, 1976. Original dark-blue half-cloth and lilac paper over boards, lettered in black; dust-jacket orange and white, lettered and decorated in white and black. Pp. i-ix x-xxxviii, [2] 1 2-208 209-216. First edition. Series: Annamalai University, Department of Linguistics, Publication no. 40. Includes Kodagu-English, pp. [69]-208, with bibliography, pp. [209-210]. A revision of the author's thesis, Annamalai University, 1975. Bibliography: p. [209]-[211] First substantial published vocabulary of the language. Second copy: IUW. A Kodagu-Kannada vocabulary was published in 1982 and a Kodava-Kannada-Iglis [English] vocabulary in 1998.

"Kodavas (Coorgies as known by Anglicised form) are a distinct sect of inhabitants in Coorg district of Karnataka.... It lies at the Southern end of the Western Ghats.... Coorg is a rugged mountainous district with a high rain fall and the climate is pleasantly tempered by the altitude.... Kodavas are highly modernized in their general outlook. They are pious, God-fearing and traditional in their culture. Their main occupation is agriculture....Kodavas speak their own language which is named as kodagi in their homes and in conversation with other Kodavas outside their houses, i.e., in social and informal gatherings. The kodagi language is...spoken by about 75000 Kodavas (1971 census)....This language was the principal language spoken in Coorg District till the 17th century.... This Phonology of Kodagu with Vocabulary is a part of A Descriptive Grammar of Cadge language, a thesis submitted for the Ph.D. of the Annamalai University in 1975, is based on the data collected by the author during his field trips to Coorg District in 1968-1974.... There are two dialects found in Kodagu language viz. South Coorg and North Coorg dialects" (Introduction).

[KODEOHA] Kodeoha (Kondeha) is an Austronesian language of Southeast Sulawesi, Indonesia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: vko. Alternate Names: Kondea, Kondeha.

1999: see under BUNGKU-TOLAKI LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KOFYAR] Kofyar is an Afro-Asiatic dialect cluster spoken in Plateau State, Nigeria. Dialects are Bwol, Dimmuk (Doemak), Gworam, Jipal, Kofyar (Kwong), Kwagallak (Kwolla), and Mirriam (Mernyang) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kwl.

2004: [IUW] see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[KOGI] Kogi (Cogui), or Kagaba (Cágaba), is a Chibchan language of Colombia. The Kogi people are almost entirely monolingual, and maintain the only unconquered Andean civilization (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kog. Alternate Names: Cagaba, Coghui, Cogui, Kagaba, Kaggaba, Kogui.

[KOHISTANI, INDUS] Maiyã, also called Abasin Kohistani or Indus Kohistani, is a Dardic language spoken in Kohistan District, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Province, Pakistan (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mvy. Alternate Names: Khili, Kohistani, Kohistë, Mair, Maiyã, Maiyon, Shuthun.

1959: [LILLYbm] Kanyawali: Proben eines Maiya-Dialektes aus Tangir (Hindukusch), by Georg Buddruss. Munich: In Kommission bei J. Kitzinger, 1959. Original tan wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. 1-2 3-72. First edition. Series: Münchener Studien zur Sprachwissenschaft, Beiheft B. Includes Kanyawali-German, pp. 41-72. This copy with the pencil ownership inscription of Bernhard Forssman, co-editor of the series at a later date, with a note that it was a gift from J[ohnna] Narten, also a later editor of the series.

"The Maiyan dialects of Indus-Kohistan are still among the least known of the Dardic languages of the Hindu-Kush. The only slightly more detailed contribution to our knowledge of Maiya remains at present the quite brief treatment in the Linguistic Survey of India... The [present] material was gathered in June of 1955 during a stay in Tangir as part of the German Hindu-Kush expedition of 1955/56. The leader of the expedition was Prof. Dr. Adolf Friedrich, who died during the trip. Tangir is a northern side-valley of the upper Indus just east of the great Indus-Knies. The valley was annexed to Pakistan only in 1952 and had not been visited by Europeans prior to that time, with the exception of a short visit by Sir Aurel Stein... In all of the villages of Tangir a dialect of Shina is spoken, from which I was able to gather a few samples. Only in the village of Bankari on the west side of the central valley is the language to be found described here as Kanyavali, spoken in about thirty homes.... This tiny linguistic island in Tangir represents the most north-easterly known occurrence of a dialect of Maiya" (Introduction).

[KOIARI, GRASS] Grass Koiari (Koiali) is a language of Papua New Guinea. It is not very close to the other language which shares its name, Mountain Koiali (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kbk. Alternate Names: Koiari.

1991: [LILLYbm] A First Dictionary of Koiari, by Tom Dutton. Canberra: The Australian National University, 1991. Original mustard wrappers, lettered and illustrated in black. 178 pp. First edition. Pacific Linguistics Series C-122. Second copy: IUW.

This is "the first time that any sort of dictionary of Koiari has been produced (despite the fact that the Koiari were one of the first Papuan peoples in Papua New Guinea to be contacted by Europeans and brought under their influence)... Koiari is a Papuan language spoken just inland of Port Moresby, Papua New Guinea... When last surveyed some twenty years ago there were approximately 1,800 speakers of Koiari. However, now that the younger Koiari are tending to grow up speaking Hiri (formerly Police) Motu, Tok Pisin and/or English as first languages, the number of fully fluent speakers of Koiari today is probably considerably fewer than 1,800."

[KOK BOROK] Kok Borok (Kókborok), is the native language of the Borok people of the Indian state of Tripura and neighbouring areas of Bangladesh. The word Kók Borok stands for kók "language" and borok "borok society", which is used specifically for the Borok people. Kokborok is closely related to languages of Bodo Dimasa Kacharies of Assam. Kokborok was declared an official language of the state of Tripura, India by the State Government in the year 1979. Consequently, the language has been taught in schools of Tripura from the primary level to the higher secondary stage since the 1980's. Kokborok was introduced in the Bachelor of Arts (B.A) degree in the colleges affiliated to the Tripura University from the year 2012 and a Masters of Arts (M.A) degree in Kokborok was started by Tripura University from the year 2015 (Wiki).

Ethnologue: trp. Alternate Names: Halam, Kakbarak, Kokbarak, Kokborok, Tipura, Tripura, Tripuri, Usipi Mrung.

1885: see under INDO-AYRAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KOL (Bangladesh)] Kol is a Munda language of Bangladesh. Kim (2010)[3] considers Kol and Koda to be Mundari cluster languages. Kol villages include Babudaing in Rajshahi Division, Bangladesh, while Koda-speaking villages include Kundang and Krishnupur (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ekl. Alternate Names: Hor.

1905: [LILLYbm] Grammar of the Kol Language, by A[lfred] Nottrott [1837-1924], trans. by Paul Wagner, with an appendix of phrases by A. G. F. Fitzgerald. Ranchi: G. E. L. Mission Press, 1905. Contemporary (original?) unlettered brown half-leather and dark green cloth over boards. Pp. [6] 1-175 174, <sup>2</sup>1-2 3-35 36, i ii-viii viii-ix,

<sup>3</sup>1 2-19 20. First edition of this translation of Nottrott's Grammatik der Kolh-Sprache (Gutersloh: C. Bertelsmann, 1882). Includes brief Kol-English vocabulary lists arranged by parts of speech, pp. 97-124. This copy with contemporary marginal and end notes in ink, and with the later ink ownership stamp of Joseph Redlinger of Jacksonville, Florida. Redlinger was author of America's first pioneers: Santa Maria Filipina Mission at Pensacola, Florida 1559-1561 (Pensacola, 1954).

"The Kols into whose language the following Grammar will introduce, belong to the group of the so called Kolarians...[Their ancestors] used to live on the banks of the Ganges, when they were driven away by the invading Aryans, the Hindus. Pushed off by them further and further, they finally settled in the mountains of Chota Nagpur...For centuries they defended their new abodes in the forest-covered mountains of Chota Nagpur against the pursuing enemies, and even after they were conquered by them, they retained their own language and customs with great pertinacity till the present day" (Introductory remarks).

[KOLA] Kola is one of the Aru languages, spoken by inhabitants of the Aru Islands [Indonesia]. The Kola language is mostly used on the Kola island, on the north end of the Aru Islands, but is also spoken by Kola people living in Dobo and other parts of Maluku (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kvv. Alternate Names: Kulaha, Marlasi, Warilau.

1939: [LILLYbm] Koelawische taalstudien. Deel 1. Overzicht der spraakkunst, gesprekken en verhalen met verhalen met vertaling.- deel 2. Aanteekeningen bij de teksten in deel 1 met etymologisch aanhangsel.- deel 3. Nederlandsch-koelawisch-lindoesche woordenlijst. 3 vols., by N[icholaus] Adriani [1865-1926]& S[amuel] J[onathan] Esser [1900- ]. Bandoeng: Nix, 1939. Original tan wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [Vol. 1] I-V VI-VIII, I 2-91 92; [Vol. 2] [2] 1 2-90; [Vol. 3] [2] 1 2-113 114. First edition. Series: Bibliotheca I-III. Not in Zaunmüller. Vol. 3 includes Dutch-Kola-Lindu [Tado], pp. [3]-113. Second set: LILLY, lacking original wrappers, from the library of the noted linguist Johannes Rahder, with his ownership stamps, and what appears to be authorization inscription in ink in each volume.

[KOLAMI, NORTHWESTERN] Kolami (Northwestern Kolami) is a tribal Central Dravidian language used in Telangana State previously part of Andhra Pradesh state and Maharashtra state of India. It takes route from the central branch of Dravidian Language tree and falls under Kolami–Naiki group of languages. It is the most widely spoken Central Dravidian language (Wiki). Ethnologue also lists Southeastern Kolami as a language.

Ethnologue: kfb. Alternate Names: Kolam, Kolamboli, Kolamy, Kolmi, Kulme.

1955: [IUW] Kolami, a Dravidian language, by M. B. Emeneau. Berkeley, University of California Press, 1955. xvi, 302 p. map. 26 cm. Library binding, preserving original gray front wrapper, lettered in black. University of California publications in linguistics; v. 12. Northwestern Kolami-English vocabulary, pp. 175-288, English index to the vocabulary, pp. 289-302. Bibliography: p. xiii-xiv.

"My linguistic field work in India during theyear 1937-1938 included six weeks' work on the Dravidian language spoken by the Kolams of Maadhya Pradesh... It was with some hesitation that at intervals in the years 1938-1939 I worked on the material with a view to publish it. Six weeks is not long enough to acquire any real insight into a hitherto undescribed language.... The descriptive account, which is the nucleus of the presentation, is based entirely on my field material, which is all that I can control with any accuracy. In what follows it will be referred to as the Wardha dialect [Ethnologue lists Northwestern Kolami as the language spoken in Wardha]..." (Preface).

Second edition 1961: [IUW] Kolami, a Dravidian language, by M. B. Emeneau. [2d.ed.]. Annamalainagar, Annamalai University, 1961. xvi, 302 p. map, port. 24 cm. Original pale pink wrappers, lettered in black. Northwestern Kolami-English vocabulary, pp. 175-288, English index to the vocabulary, pp. 289-302. Bibliography: p. xiii-xiv. Annamalai University. Publications in linguistics; 2.

"The Government of India, at the time of the Silver Jubilee Celebration of the Annamalai University, made a grant for the development of Tamil Studies.... One of the recommendations was to reprint rare books on Dravidiology, not now available. When the department of Linguistics and Comparative Dravidian came to be organized, the Syndicate sanctioned the printing of the famous work on one of the Dravidian Languages—Kolami by Dr. M. B. Emeneau, with the kind consent of the author. The present edition, though the second edition, is only a mechanical reproduction through the photostat process. The additions and corrections, as suggested by the author, have also been included" (Introduction [to the second edition]).

[KOM (Cameroon)] The Kom language, Itanjikom, is the language spoken by the Kom people of Cameroon. Shultz 1997a and Shultz 1997b (available online) contain a comprehensive description of the language's grammar. Kom is a tonal language with three tones (Wiki).

Ethnologue: bkm. Alternate Names: Bamekon, Bikom, Kong, Nkom.

2001: [IUW] Provisional Kom-English lexicon: Boyo Division, North West Province, compiled by Randy Jones. Yaoundé, Republic of Cameroon: SIL, 2001. 225 p.; 21 cm. "First edition" on verso of title page. Library binding, incorporating original pale orange wrappers, lettered in black, with a drawing of a tribal native on the front cover. At head of title: Ministry of Scientific and Technical Research. Kom-English dictionary, pp. [9]-[124], English-Kom index, pp. [125]-221.

"The Kom language (Itanjikom) is spoken by over 150,000 speakers living in the Boyo Division, located in the North West Province of Cameroon.... The lexicon contains over 4,000 entries and is an introduction to Kom words and phrases. 'Inventaire thématique de 2000 termes,' published by SIL in 1987, served as a thematic basis for the initial collection of words. Among the entries are some loan words from other languages such as English and Hausa" (Introduction).

[KOMBAL] Kombai (Komboy) is a Papuan language of Indonesian New Guinea, it is spoken by the Kombai people. Tayan is a dialect. Ethnologue records a Wanggom language which is similar to Kombai. However, this has not been attested as a distinct language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: tyn. Alternate Names: Komboy.

1997: see under KOROWAI.

[KOMBE] The Kombe language, or Ngumbi, is a West Bantu family language spoken by the Kombe people of Equatorial Guinea, one of the Ndowe peoples of the coast. It may be a dialect of the Yasa language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nui. Alternate Names: Combe, Ndowe, Ngumbi.

1951: [LILLYbm] Diccionario Español-Kômbè, by L[eoncio] Fernández. Madrid: Instituto de Estudios Africanos, 1951. Original blue quarter-cloth and light blue paper over boards, lettered in red and blue; d.j. white, lettered and decorated in red and blue. 542 pp. + 7 pp. list of publications. First edition. Zauhmüller, col. 226. Hendrix 1770 (listed as Yasa). This is the first dictionary of the language. Second copy: IUW.

[KOMI-PERMYAK] Komi-Permyak language (перем коми кыв /'perem 'komi kiv/ or коми-пермяцкӧй кыв /'komi per'mjackəj kiv/) is one of two regional varieties of the pluricentric Komi language, the other variety being Komi-Zyrian. Komi is a Uralic language closely related to Udmurt. The Komi-Permyak language, spoken in Perm Krai of Russia and written using the Komi Cyrillic alphabet, was co-official with Russian in the Komi Okrug of the Perm Krai (Wiki).

Ethnologue: koi. Alternate Names: Kama Permyak, Komi-Perm, Komi-Permyat, Permian, Permyak.

1869: [IUW] Permiâtsko-russkîi i russko-permiâtskîi slovar', sostavlennyi Nikolaem Rogovym. Nikolai Abramovich Rogov. Sanktpeterburg, Prodaetsia u komissionerov Imp. Akad emii nauk, 1869. v, 415 p. 25 cm. Added t.p.: Permiâtsko-russkîi slovar'. Permyak-Russian-Permyak dictionary.

1880: see under KOMI-ZYRIAN.

1962: [IUW] Komi-permiâtskîi iazyk: vvedenie, fonetika, leksika i morfologiia, uchebnik dlia vysshikh ucheb. zavedeniï; pod red. i pri soavtorstve V.I. Lytkina. Vasilii Il'ich Lytkin. Kudymkar: Komi-permiâtskoe knizhnoe izd-vo, 1962. 339 p.; 23 cm. At head of title: Avtorskii kollektiv.

1968: [LILLYbm] Permjakisches Worterverzeichnis aus dem Jahre 1833 auf Grund der Aufzeichnungen F.A. Wolegows, by Karoly Redei. Bloomington; The Hague: Indiana University; Mouton, 1968. Original brown cloth over boards, lettered in black; dust jacket yellow-brown and white, lettered in black. First edition. Series: Indiana University publications. Uralic and Altaic series. Second copy: IUW: Budapest, Akadémiai Kiadó, 1968. Original brownish-yellow cloth over boards, lettered in black. 138 p. Includes Permyak-German, pp. 17-104, with a Russian index to the vocabulary, pp. 105-135.

1985: [IUW] Komi-permiâtsko-russkoi slovar': 27,000 gögör kyv, [avtory R.M. Batalova, A.S. Krivoshchekova-Gantman]. Moskva: "Russkii iazyk", 1985. 620 p.; 25 cm. Title on added t.p.: Komi-permiâtsko-russkii slovar'. At head of title: Institut iazykoznaniiâ Akademii nauk SSSR. Permskoi gosudarstvennoi pedagogicheskoi institut. Komi-Permyak-Russian dictionary.

[KOMI-ZYRIAN] Komi-Zyrian language (Коми кыв Komi kyv) or simply Komi, Zyrian or Zyryan, is one of the two regional varieties of the pluricentric Komi language, the other regional variety being Komi-Permyak. It is disputed whether Zyrian is a separate language or a dialect of Komi, because of its affinity to the Komi-Permyak language. Komi-Zyrian is spoken by the Komi-Zyrians' ethnic group in Komi Republic and some other parts of Russia. In 1994, Komi-Zyrian had about 285,000 speakers. The Komi-Zyrian language has a standard form. It was written in the form of Old Permic alphabet for liturgical purposes as early as the 14th century in the Old Permic script. Said alphabet was replaced by Cyrillic in the 17th century. A tradition of secular works of literature in the modern form of the language dates back to the 19th century (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kpv. Alternate Names: Komi, Komi-Zyryan, Zyrian.

1880: [LILLYbm] Syrjänisch-deutsches Wörterbuch nebst einem wotjakishch-deutschen im Anhang und einem deutschen Register, by F[erdinand J]ohann Wiedemann [1805-1887]. St. Petersburg: Commissionare der Kaiserlichen Akademie der Wissenschaften, 1880. Later unprinted paper over boards, with original front wrapper mounted on front cover and original rear wrapper bound in. Pp. [2] I II-XIV, I 2-692. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 297. Includes Komi-Zyrian-German, pp. [1]-456, with addenda, p. 457; Udmurt-German, pp.[461]-562, with addenda and corrigenda, pp. 562-567; German index to both languages, pp. [569]-692. Second copy: IUW.

"The sources of this dictionary, in addition to the oral material gathered from Zryians and Udmurts, were the manuscript word lists purchased in both earlier and more recent years by the Royal Academy of Science, in addition to the few published and unpublished studies present in the Academy library. Of the lexical collections, the primary source was undoubtedly the Russian-Zyrian dictionary of Popov in four folio volumes.... Since I desired, as far as was possible given the materials available, to present the entire vocabulary of the Biarmish group of the Uralic languages family, I have added to Komi-Zyrian in the narrower sense the vocabulary of the Komi-Permyak, which probably can not be said to be a separate language, as well as the more distant Udmurt" (Foreword, tr: BM).

Reprinted 1964: [IUW] Syrjänisch-deutsches Wörterbuch, nebst einem wotjakishch-deutschen im Anhang und einem deutschen Register, by F. J. Wiedemann. With an introd. by D. R. Fokos-Fuchs. The Hague, Mouton, 1964. 20, xiv, 692 p. 23 cm. Indiana University publications: Uralic and Altaic series; v. 40. "Photomechanischer Nachdruck." Introduction in German.

[KOMODO][Wiki redirects Komodo to the Manggarainese language [Manggarai]]: Ethnologue describes Komodo as a threatened language with no known dialects, spoken on Komodo Island, Indonesia, and states: "A separate language from Manggarai [mqy] (1982 J. Verheijen).

Ethnologue: kvh.

1982: [IUW] Komodo: het eiland, het volk, en de taal, by Jilis A. J. Verheijen. The Hague: M. Nijhoff, 1982. xiv, 260 p.: ill., maps; 24 cm. First edition. Library binding, preserving original light gray wrappers, lettered in black, with a photo of a tribal member on the front cover. Verhandelingen van het Koninklijk Instituut voor Taal-, Land- en Volkenkunde 96. Vocabulary, Komodo-Indonesian-Dutch-English, pp. [76]-136; Indonesian-Komodo, pp. [137]-164; Dutch-Komodo, pp. [165]-196; English-Komodo, pp. [197]-224, with addition lists of names of plants, animals, etc.; Appendix 8, 100 word Swadesh list, Indonesian-Bajo-Bima-Manggarai-Komodo, pp. [250]-252.

Bibliography: p. [258]-260.

[KONDA-DORA] Konda, also known as Konda-Dora, is one of the Dravidian languages spoken in India. It is spoken by the scheduled tribe of the Konda-Dora (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kfc. Alternate Names: Porja.

1969: [IUW] Koṇḍa or Kūbi, A Dravidian language; texts, grammar, and vocabulary, by Bh. Krishnamurti. Hyderabad, Tribal Cultural Research & Training Institute, Govt. of Andhra Pradesh, 1969. xvii, 423 p. illus., fold. map, port. 23 cm. First edition. Series: Tribal Cultural Research and Training Institute. Publication no. 2.

[KONKANI] Konkani (Kōṅkaṇī) is an Indo-Aryan language belonging to the Indo-European family of languages and is spoken along the western coast of India. It is one of the 22 scheduled languages mentioned in the 8th schedule of the Indian Constitution and the official language of the Indian state of Goa. The first Konkani inscription is dated 1187 A.D. It is a minority language in Maharashtra, Karnataka, northern Kerala (Kasaragod district), Dadra and Nagar Haveli, and Daman and Diu. Konkani is a member of the southern Indo-Aryan language group (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists Konkani as a macro-language of India (kok), which includes Kokani [Marathi Kokani] (knn) and Goan Kokani (gom).

1905: [IUW] Diccionario portuguez-konkanī, por Sebastião Rodolpho Dalgado. Lisboa: Imprensa Nacional, 1905. xxxii, 906 p.; 24 cm.

1916: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary of Concanim into English, by Aeixo Caetano Jose Francisco. Bombay: R. Anthony Lobo, [1916]. Original brown quarter-linen spine and gray paper on boards, lettered in black (copy defective, lacking last four pages and rear cover). 110 pp. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller.

"Innumerable letters from my firends, acquaintances and colleagues, requesting me to compile and publish a Concanim-English Dictionary--companion to that of my English-Concanim Dictionary--and the attempts which I see my countrymen making to promote the education of our youth...have induced me to bring out the present work...The want of such a dictionary was a long-felt one in order to facilitate the work of our students in their study of English through the medium of the mother tongue...The book contains about 8000 words in each language; and the number has been limited to that figure, because the moderate size and low price of the book would not permit me otherwise...P.S.--After commencing the printing of this book, another such dictionary in name was published by Mr. Jose Manoel Pinto. There is a vast difference in the compilation, ortography [sic], and even the price of his book and mine."

2005: [IUW] Vocabulario da lingoa canarim, feito pellos Padres da Companhia de Jesus que residem na Christandade de Salcete e novamente acrescentado com varios modos de fallar pello Padre Diogo Ribeiro da mesma Companhia, anno 1626; printed version compiled by Maruyama Toru. Nagoya, Japan: Dept. of Japanese Studies, Nanzan University, 2005. 392 p. , 3 p. of plates: ill.; 30 cm. Editorial information and preface in English. Includes Konkani-Portuguese, pp. 1-392.

"This is a private edition of the Konkani-Portuguese dictionary compiled by Jesuits and revised by Father Diogo Ribeiro in 1626.... [A]s an Indo-European language spoken in India, the Konkani voabulary is not easily available in any documented form, either printed or electronic. Even Ralph Turner's A Comparative Dictionary of the Indo-Aryan Languages contains not more than 800 Konkani words in the index, ... while no Kondani-Portuguese dictionary has been published so far" (Preface).

[KONKANI, GOAN] Goan Konkani. Under the ISO 639-3 classification, all the dialects of the Konkani language except for those that come under Maharashtrian Konkani are collectively assigned the language code ISO 639:gom and called as Goan Konkani. In this context, it includes dialects spoken outside the state of Goa, such as Mangalorean Konkani, Chitpavani Konkani Malvani Konkani and Karwari Konkani. In common usage, Goan Konkani refers collectively only to those dialects of Konkani spoken primarily in the state of Goa, e.g. the Antruz, Bardeskari and Saxtti dialects (Wiki).

Ethnologue: gom. Alternate Names: Goan, Gomataki, Konknni, Southern Kanara.

1868: [LILLY] Diccionario Portuguez-Conceni, composto por um Missionario Italiano. Nova-Goa: Imprensa Nacional, 1868. Pp. 1-3 4 5 6-273 274-275 276-280. 25 cm. Later brown half-leather and marbled paper over boards, lettered in gold. First edition. Includes Portuguese-Konkani, pp. [5]-273, with a Portuguese-Konkani supplement, pp. [275]-280. Preface dated 1868 and signed Joaquim Heliodoro da Cunha Rivara.

1967: [LILLYbm] Konknni-English Shabd-Sangraha (Konkani-English Vocabulary), by Sylvester Menezes. Mangalore: [Printed by the Codiyalbil Press, Manglore, and Published by Rev. C. C. A. Pai, S. J.], 1967. Original blue quarter-cloth and yellow paper over boards, lettered in black. 288 pp. First edition.

"The present work does not claim to be a dictionary of the Konkani language... [The author's] aim has been ...to produce something akin to a Konkani-English vocabulary to be of practical help to present-day writers in Konkani, whose number is happily on the increase...The work on this vocabulary commenced more than forty years ago...The Konkani language...has, during the last quarter of a century and more, witnessed a remarkable progress...a writer who [still] keeps referring to the Kannada dictionary is doing a positive disservice to his mother-tongue. At the present stage of our national and linguistic development, especially in Goa, an up-to-date, and an authoritative Konkani-English Dictionary is a desideratum; while an English-Konkani Dictionary is an even greater need. May we hope that the near future will produce one or more scholars who will give the Konkani language the ideal dictionary which it needs so much?"

1973: [LILLYbm] Vocabulario de lingua Canarina com versam portugueza. Lisbon: Junta de Invertigações do Ultramar, 1973. Original brownish-gold and white marbled wrappers over boards, lettered in brown. Pp. [unpaginated] [14] 1-204 [i.e.]-408]. First edition. Introd. in Portuguese and English. Reproduction of a 17th century manuscript in the Arquivo Historico Ultramarino, possibly the work of Padre Tomas Estêvão [i.e. Thomas Stephens] or of Padre Diogo Ribeiro. Second copy: IUW.

"The vocabulary is concani-portuguese. To call it also 'canarim' is an error for it has nothing to do with 'canarês,' an offshoot of the dravidic language. The language used in the vocabulary is clearly indo-european, that is concani" (Introductory note, trans. by Ruy Cinatti).

[KONKOMBA] Konkomba language (Likpakpaln) is a Gurma language spoken in Ghana and Togo. The Konkomba language, known natively as Likpakpaln, is spoken by Konkomba people, who are also known as Bikpakpaam. The Konkomba language has several dialects, including but not limited to Lichabol, Ligbeln, Likoonli, Limonkpeln and Linafeel. The different dialects emerged because different families and groups settled together and adopted unique pronunciation and vocabulary patterns, forming what could be called uniform dialect groupings (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xon. Alternate Names: Bikpakpam, Kpankpamba. Autonym: Likpakpaani.

An on-line dictionary of Likpakpaani [Konkomba] may be found at www.webonary.org.

1932: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1966: [IUW] Collected field reports on the phonology of Konkomba / Mary Steele and Gretchen Weed. [Legon]: Institute of African Studies, University of Ghana, 1966. v, 77 p.; 25 cm. First edition. Library binding, incorporating original blue front wrapper, lettered in black. Collected language notes; no. 3. "Word list," 200 words, English-Konkomba [phonetic], pp. 74-77.

"The purpose of the series... is to make available material which, though only of a tentative nature, might still, it is thought, be of interest to scholars concerned with West African languages" (Preface).

1981: [IUW] Konkomba-English, Likaln-Likpakpaln dictionary. Tamale, Ghana: Ghana Institute of Linguistics, [1981?]. 209 p.; 29 cm. First edition. Library binding, preserving original blue wrappers, lettered and illustrated in black. Konkomba-English, pp. 11-90, English-Konkomba, pp. 93-209. First dictionary of the language.

"This dictionary is intended to serve two purposes: 1. To provide a reference vocabulary for foreigners learning Konkomba. 2. To enable newly literate Konkombas to develop their understanding of English. For that reason, there is a minimum of technical information in the English-Konkomba section... An attempt has been made to use the Saboba dialect throughout, but there may be inconsistencies since most of the work has been carried out over a period when the editors [Margaret A. Langdon & Mary J. Breeze] were constantly moving. Thanks are due to Miss Mary Steele of the Ghana Institute of Linguistics, Literacy and Bible Translation, who provided the initial data and vocabulary" (Introduction).

[KONNI] The Koma language, Konni, is a Gur language of Ghana. Yikpabongo [is] the main village of the Konni people. Another village is Nangurima. Koma is related to Mampruli, Hanga and Buli.

Ethnologue: kma. Alternate Names: Koma, Komung, Koni.

1992: [IUW] A preliminary phonology of the Konni language / Michael Cahill. Ghana : Institute of African Studies : University of Ghana, 1992. 51 p. ; 29 cm. Original pale green wrappers, lettered in black. Swadesh 200 Word List for Konni (Yikpabongo dialect), English-Konni (phonetic/proposed phonemic (omitting tone)), pp. 44-51. Collected language notes ; no. 20.

[KONZO] The Konjo (Konzo) language, variously rendered Rukonjo, Olukonjo, Olukonzo and Lhukonzo, is Bantu language spoken by the Konjo people of Uganda and the Democratic Republic of the Congo. It has a 77% lexical similarity with Nande. There are many dialects, including Sanza (Ekisanza) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: koo. Alternate Names: Bayira, Konjo, Lhukonzo, Olukonjo, Olukonzo, Rukonjo.

2006: [IUW] Lhukonzo-English, English Lhukonzo dictionary, by Balinnandi Kambale. Kampala: Fountain Publishers; Oxford, United Kingdom: Africa Books Collective Ltd. [distributor], 2006. xvi, 320 p.; 21 cm. First edition. Original green, black and yellow wrappers, lettered in yellow and white, with a photo of the compiler on the rear cover. Lhukonzo [Konzo]-English, pp. 2-168, English-Lhukonzo [Konzo], pp. 171-320. This is the first dictionary of the language.

"This [dictionary] is a simplified guide to those wishing to learn and use either of the two languages. The dictionary gives the user the basic vocabulary of words commonly used in speaking or writing about everyday subjects.... This is a pioneering effort that we hope to make better with subsequent editions" (Preface).

[KOONGO] Kongo or Kikongo is one of the Bantu languages and is spoken by the Kongo and Ndundu people living in the tropical forests of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, the Republic of the Congo and Angola. It is a tonal language. It was spoken by many of those who were taken from the region and sold as slaves in the Americas. For this reason, while Kongo still is spoken in the above-mentioned countries, creolized forms of the language are found in ritual speech of Afro-American religions, especially in Brazil, Cuba, and Haiti. It is also one of the sources of the Gullah language and the Palenquero creole in Colombia. The vast majority of present-day speakers live in Africa. There are roughly seven million native speakers of Kongo, with perhaps two million more who use it as a second language. Kikongo is the base for a creole used throughout the region: Kituba, also called Kikongo de L'état or Kikongo ya Leta ("Kongo of the state" in French or Kongo), Kituba and Monokituba (also Munokituba). The constitution of the Republic of the Congo uses the name Kitubà, and the one of the Democratic Republic of the Congo uses the term Kikongo, even if Kituba is used in the administration.

Kongo was the earliest Bantu language which was committed to writing in Latin characters and had the earliest dictionary of any Bantu language. The dictionary was written in about 1648 for the use of Capuchin missionaries and the principal author was Manuel Robredo, a secular priest from Kongo (who became a Capuchin as Francisco de São Salvador). In the back of this dictionary is found a sermon of two pages written only in Kongo. The dictionary has some 10,000 words. Additional dictionaries were created by French missionaries to the Loango coast in the 1780s, and a word list was published by Bernardo da Canecattim in 1805 [see below]. Baptist missionaries who arrived in Kongo in 1879 developed a modern orthography of the language. W. Holman Bentley's Dictionary and Grammar of the Kongo Language was published in 1887 [see below]. In the preface, Bentley gave credit to Nlemvo, an African, for his assistance, and described "the methods he used to compile the dictionary, which included sorting and correcting 25,000 slips of paper containing words and their definitions." Eventually W. Holman Bentley with the special assistance of João Lemvo produced a complete Christian Bible in 1905 (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kng. Alternate Names: Congo, Kikongo, Kikoongo, Kongo.

1805: [LILLYbm] Collecção de observações grammaticas sobre a lingua bunda, ou angolense, by Bernardo Maria de Cannecattim. Lisbon: na Impressão Regia, 1805.

Contemporary brown half-leather and black marbled paper over boards. Pp. [8] I-XX, 1-218 [4]. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Not in Hendrix. Includes a separate title page, p. [149]: Diccionario abreviado da lingua congueza, a que accresce huma quarta columna, que contém os termos, da lingua bunda, identicos, ou semelhantes á lingua congueza, followed by a preface, then the dictionary in four columns, Portuguese-Latin-Kongo-Mbundu (when the Mbundu word is similar or identical to the Koongo), pp. 159-214, and a Portuguese-Kongo-Mbundu table of numbers, pp. 215-216, with errata, pp. 217-218. The Lilly also holds a copy of the first grammar of Koongo: Regulae quaedam pro difficillimi Congensium idiomatis faciliiori captu ad grammaticae normam redactae, by Giacinto Brusciotto. Roma: Typis S. Congr. de Prop. Fide, 1659, as well as its first English translation: Grammar of the Congo language as spoken two hundred years ago, by Giacinto Brusciotto. Ed. By H. Grattan Guinness (1835-1910). Trans. by James Mew (b. 1837). London: Hodder & Stoughton, 1882. The grammar did not include vocabulary lists.

"De Cannecattim [was] an Italian Capuchin of the Province of Palermo, who became missionary Apostolic and Prefect of the Missions of Angola and the Congo, until 1805, when he became superior of the Hospicio dos Missionaries Capuchinhos Italianos in Lisbon. The abbreviated Dictionary Portuguese-Latin-Congo-Mbundu' contains about 1,000 Congo words of the 'Sonho' dialect with Ndonggo equivalents to less than a quarter of them. It is possible...that this vocabulary was derived from Brusciotto's 1650 work" (C. M. Doke, "Early Bantu Literature--the Age of Brusciotto" in Contributions to the History of Bantu Linguistics). "In his preface he tells us that the 1,000 words [in Koongo] he gives us [to compare with Mbundu] are of the Sonho dialect. There are many mistakes, and many words which it is impossible to trace; but as he acknowledges his imperfect knowledge of Kongo, and only gives his list as a philological study, we must not criticize, but be thankful for his contribution" (W. Holman Bentley, Dictionary and Grammar of the Kongo Language, 1887).

Second edition 1859: [LILLYbm] Collecção de observações grammaticaes sobre a lingua bunda, ou angolense e Diccionario abreviado da lingua congueza. Segunda edição, by Bernardo Maria de Cannecattim. Lisbon: Imprensa Nacional, 1859. Contemporary (original?) black quarter-leather and brown marbled paper over boards; spine lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. [4] I-V VI-XVIII, 1 2-174. Second edition. Cf. Zauhmüller, col. 36 (where it is incorrectly listed as an 1859 second edition of the author's Portuguese-Bunda dictionary). Includes a separate title page, p. [107]: Diccionario abreviado da lingua congueza a que acresce uma quarta columna que contém os termos da lingua bunda identicos ou semelhantes á lingua congueza, followed by a preface, then the dictionary in four columns, Portuguese-Latin-Kongo-Mbundu (when the Mbundu word is similar or identical to the Kongo), pp. [117]-171, and a Portuguese-Kongo-Mbundu table of numbers, pp. [173]-174.

1846: see 13) under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

1883: [LILLY] English-Congo and Congo-English Dictionary, by Henry Craven, of the Livingstone (Congo) Inland Mission; and John Barfields, B.A. Lond, Senior Tutor in the East London Institute for Home and Foreign Missions. London: Harley House,

Bow, 1883. Contemporary worn unprinted boards and maroon-quarter cloth. Pp. i-iii iv-xii, 1 2-248, i-ii<sup>2</sup> iii-xix xx. First edition. Hendrix 868.

Reprinted 1971: [IUW] English-Congo and Congo-English dictionary, by Henry Craven and John Barfield. Freeport, N.Y., Books for Libraries Press, 1971. xii, 248 p. 23 cm. The Black heritage library collection. "First published 1883." Hendrix 868.

1887-1895: [LILLYbm] Dictionary and grammar of the Kongo language, as spoken at San Salvador, the ancient capital of the old Kongo empire, West Afrika [and Appendix] Compiled and prepared for the Baptist mission on the Kongo River, West Africa, 2 vols., by W. Holman Bentley. London: The Baptist Missionary Society and Trübner & Co., 1887, 1895. Original blue cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. [Vol. I] i-vii viii-xxiv, 1 2-718 (+ fold-out chart=719-720?); [Vol. II (Appendix)] iii-v vi-vii viii, 721 722-1052. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 227 (erroneous title and date: "Dictionary of the Congo Language, 1891"). Hendrix 862. Includes English-Kongo, pp. [1]-244, Kongo-English, pp. [245]-482, English-Kongo Appendix, pp. 485-490, Kongo-English appendix, pp. 491, Appendix to English-Kongo, pp. [721]-813, Appendix to Kongo-English, pp. 815-940, "Words included too late for insertion: English-Kongo," pp. 941-942, Kongo-English, pp. 942-944.

"Wonderful stories are told in Portuguese and Italian books, of the former magnificence of the city and kings of Kongo; but when we reached San Salvador we found only mouldering ruins. The King...exercised a nominal authority over a district extending in no direction more than 40 miles from his town." "More than seven years have passed since the completion of the Dictionary and Grammar of the Kongo language.... Kongo can no longer be spoken of as an unwritten language..... The Dictionary of 1887 contains some 10,000 Kongo words.... Some 4,000 new words are now added" (Preface to the Appendix volume).

Reprinted 1967: [IUW] Dictionary and grammar of the Kongo language as spoken at San Salvador, the ancient capital of the old Kongo Empire, West Africa; compiled and prepared for the Baptist Mission on the Kongo River, West Africa, by the Rev. W. Holman Bentley. London, Baptist Missionary Society and Trübner, 1887; [Farnborough, Gregg, 1967] 2 v. Vol. 2 consists of an Appendix.

1894: see 1894b under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1903: see 1903a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1904: [LILLYbm] Petit Vocabulaire Français-Congolais Congolais-Français. Extrait d'une grammaire Française en congolais, by Madame Bentley. Wathen, Lutete: Baptist Missionary Society, 1904. Original red cloth wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [6], [123]-168; text in double column. First separate edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 865. Mrs. Bentley was the wife of the compiler of the Dictionary and Grammar of the Kongo Language, 2 vols., London, 1887-1895.

1910: [LILLYbm] La langue congolaise: grammaire, vocabulaire systematique, phrases graduees et lectures, by A[ugust] Seidel [1863-1916] & I[von] Struyf. Paris: Jules Groos, 1910. Original red cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. I-VI [2] 1 2-223 224 + 8 pp. adverts. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 879. Includes rhematically-arranged Koongo-French, pp. 113-157.

1912: [IUW] Vocabulaire français-mabinza et mabinza-français. Dressé d'après les renseignements fournis par M. Hedborg. Bruxelles, Impr. Veuve Monnom, 1912. 24 p. 18 cm. Cover title. Hendrix 884.

1928: [LILLY] Le plus ancien dictionnaire bantu = Het oudste Bantu-woordenboek: vocabularium p. Georgii Gelensis, édité par J. van Wing & C. Penders. Louvain: J. Kuyl-Otto, 1928. xxxv, 365 p., [1] leaf of plates: facsim.; 26 cm. Original tan wrappers, lettered in black. Unopened and uncut copy. Hendrix 873 ("Original dictionary written about 1651"). Bibliothèque Congo, 28. Includes Koongo-French-Flemish dictionary, pp. [1]-361. Second copy: IUW.

1936 [1964]: Dictionnaire kikongo-français, avec une étude phonétique décrivant les dialectes le plus importants de la langue dite kikongo, by Karl Edvard Laman. Ridgewood, N.J., Gregg Press, 1964. 2 v. (xciv, 1183 p.) fold. map. 25 cm. Mémoires. Collection in-8o (Institut royal colonial belge. Section des sciences morales et politiques); v. 2, A-Z. Reproduction of the Brussels, 1936 ed. Bibliographical references included in "Introduction" (v. 1, p. [ix])

1948: [LILLY] Kikango Language Manual, by Seth Severn. Leopoldville: American Baptist Foreign Missionary Society Edition, 1948. 231 ff. Reproduced from typescript. Original black paper wrappers with unprinted black linen spine. Koongo-English vocabulary lists in almost every lesson, but no separate vocabulary section.

1957: [IUW] Lexique kikongo-français, français-kikongo. D'après le dictionnaire de K. E. Laman, by Léon Dereau. Namur, A. Wesmael-Charlier, 1957. 116 p. 20 cm. Library binding incorporating original tan front wrapper, lettered in black. "Classification des substantifs kikongo": 1 leaf inserted. Koongo-French dictionary, pp. [5]-50, and French-Koongo, pp. [51]-116.

1964: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT (with second edition 1994).

1972: [IUW] Vocabulaire kikongo-français - français-kikongo [par] K. E. Laman et M. Westling. [Leco, Kinshasa] Édition Leco [1972]. 59 p. 21 cm.

1979: [IUW] Dictionnaire kikongo- et kituba-français: vocabulaire comparé des langages kongo traditionnels et véhiculaires, by Pierre Swartenbroeckx. Bandundu: Ceeba, [1973]. xv, 815 p.: map; 23 cm.

1984: [IUW] Vocabulario Congo (el Bantu que se habla en Cuba), by Lydia Cabrera. Miami, Fl: CR [Cabrera y Rojas], 1984. Pp. 1-14 15-164 165-168. Original white wrappers, lettered in black. Colección del Chicherekú en el exilio. Includes Spanish- (Cuban) Koongo, pp. 15-164.

"[This work] follows the pattern traced in [Cabrera's 1957] Anago: vocabulario lucumí (el yoruba que se habla en Cuba). Here we have around 3,000 Koongo words taken directly from the mouths of the people, without consulting dictionaries or grammars which might falsify, quite unintentionally, the meaning expressed by the informants" (Prologo, tr: BM).

Second edition 2001: [IUW] Vocabulario congo: el bantú que se habla en Cuba: español-congo y congo-español / Lydia Cabrera. 2. ed. revisada y ampliada / ed. revisada por Isabel Castellanos. Miami, Fla.: Ediciones Universal, 2001. 294 p.; 22 cm. Colección del chicherekú. Includes bibliographical references. Text in Spanish, with Kongo vocabularies, phrases, etc.

1995: [IUW] Terminologie grammaticale et pédagogique: lexique français-kikongo, kikongo-français, sous la direction de Nyembwe Ntita; par Mundeke Otom'si, Eyupar Epietung, Makolila Nanzenza. Kinshasa XI: Editions universitaires africaines, 1995. 54 p.: map; 21 cm. At head of title: Rint, Réseau international de néologie et de la terminologie. Includes bibliographical references (p. 54).

1998: [LILLYbm] Diccionario de la lengua conga residual en Cuba, by Teodoro Díaz Fabelo. Santiago de Cuba: Casa del Caribe: Universidad de Alcalá: ORCALC, [1998]. 165 pages; 24 cm. Original purple and gray wrappers lettered in pale purple and white, with color illustration on front cover. Includes sacerdotal vocabulary, Spanish-Koongo, pp. 21-27, Koongo-Spanish, pp. 27-43, botanic vocabulary, Spanish-Koongo pp. 47-51, Koongo-Spanish-Lucumi, pp. 52-65, vocabulary of animal names, Spanish-Koongo, pp. 65-67, Koongo-Spanish, pp. 67-71, vocabulary of astronomy and geography, Koongo-Spanish, pp. 71-73, vocabulary of the human body, Spanish-Koongo, pp. 74-75, Koongo-Spanish, pp. 75-77, vocabulary of illnesses, Spanish-Koongo, pp. 77-78, Koongo-Spanish, pp. 78-81, vocabulary of the family and society, Koongo-Spanish, pp. 81-86, musical vocabulary, Spanish-Koongo, pp. 87-96, vocabulary of greetings, Spanish-Koongo, p. 97, Koongo-Spanish, p. 98, religious vocabulary, Spanish-Koongo, pp. 101-104, Koongo-Spanish, pp. 105-135.

1999: [IUW] Parlons kikongo: le lâri de Brazzaville et sa culture, Jean de Dieu Nsondé. Paris: L'Harmattan, 1999. 183, [2] p.: maps; 22 cm. Collection "Parlons". Includes bibliographical references (p. [185]).

2007: [IUW] Beto Tuba Kikongo, by Mazemba Anatole Nzwanga. Madison, Wis.: NALRC PRESS, 2007. xx, 274 p.: ill.; 26 cm. First edition. Original gray, white and gray-green wrappers, lettered in white, yellow and black, with color photo of young woman on front cover. Let's speak African language series. "A Multidimensional Approach to the Teaching and Learning of Kikongo as a Foreign Language"--Cover. Kikongo [Koongo]-English glossary, pp. 241-255, English-Kikongo [Koongo] glossary, pp. 257-273. Includes index.

2015: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[KOONZIME] Nzime (Koonzime) is a Bantu language of Cameroon, spoken by the Nzime and Dwe'e (Bajwe'e) people. Maho (2009) lists these as two languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ozm. Alternate Names: Djimu, Dzimou, Kooncimo, Koozhime, Koozime, Nzime.

1995: [IUW] Lexique koonzime-français, par Keith et Mary Beavon (éds.). Yaoundé, République du Cameroun: Société internationale de linguistique, 1995. 120 p.; 21 cm. Library binding, incorporating original cream wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. Koonzime-French, pp. 7-120. At head of title: Ministère de la recherche scientifique et technique.

"This little Koonzime-French lexicon is meant for anyone who wishes to study the Koonzime language, whether they are speakers who wish to read and write their own language, or non-speakers who simply wish to study the language...The lexicon includes approximately 4,300 words of which the vast majority are part of common language" (Avant Propos, tr: BM).

[KORAGA, KORRA] Koraga (Kannada script: ಕೊರಗ; also rendered Koragar, Koragara, Korangi) is a Dravidian language spoken by the Koraga people, a Scheduled tribe people of Dakshina Kannada, Karnataka, and Kerala in South West India. The dialect spoken by the Koraga tribe in Kerala, Mudu Koraga, is divergent enough to not be intelligible with Korra Koraga (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kfd: alternate names: Koragar, Koragara, Korangi, Korra.

1971: [IUW] The Koraga language, by D. N. Shankara Bhat. [1st ed.] Poona [Deccan College Postgraduate and Research Institute] 1971. 123 p. 22 cm. "First Edition: 1000 copies, April 1971" on verso of title page. Original tan wrappers, lettered in black. Linguistic survey of India series; 7. "LSI 170/1000." "Comparative Vocabulary of the Koraga Dialects" [Onti, Tappu, Mudu], pp. [88]-118. Ethnologue lists Onti and Tappu as dialects of Korra Koraga, and Mudu as a separate language, Mudu Koraga. The volume also includes an appendix on the Bellari language, pp. [119]-122, Belari [Bellari]-English "list of vocables" pp. [119]-120.

"Koraga is a Dravidian language spoken by about a thousand Koragas of the South Kanara district, Mysore, southern India. . . . The sketch of its three distinct dialects given in the present monograph makes it abundantly clear that Koraga is a distinct language of the Dravidian family and is only remotely connected to Tulu. The existence of this extremely interesting Dravidian language was noted by scholars way back in 1880s, but it had failed to attract any further attention later on." (Introduction).

[KORAGA, MUDU] Koraga (Kannada script: ಕೊರಗ; also rendered Koragar, Koragara, Korangi) is a Dravidian language spoken by the Koraga people, a Scheduled tribe people of Dakshina Kannada, Karnataka, and Kerala in South West India. The dialect spoken by the Koraga tribe in Kerala, Mudu Koraga, is divergent enough to not be intelligible with Korra Koraga (Wiki).

Ethnologue: vmd: alternate name: Muudu.

1971: see under KORAGA, KORRA.

[KORANA] Khoemana, also known as Korana or Griqua, is a moribund Khoe language of South Africa. "Khoemana" (from khoe 'person' + mana 'language') is more commonly known as either Korana /kɔːrɑːnə/ or Griqua (also Gri [xri], Xri, Xiri, Xirikwa). These names reflect the endonym !Ora [!ora] or !Gora [g!ora].[4] Sometimes !Ora is also known as Cape Khoe or Cape Hottentot, though the latter is derogatory. The various names are often treated as different languages (called South Khoekhoe when taken together), but they do not correspond to any actual dialect distinctions, and speakers may use "Korana" and "Griqua" interchangeably. Khoemana is closely related to Khoekhoe, and the sound systems are broadly similar. Reports as to the number of Khoemana speakers are contradictory, but it is clear that it is nearly extinct. It was thought to be extinct until the discovery of four elderly speakers around Bloomfontein and Kimberley. A 2009 report by Don Killian of the University of Helsinki estimated that there were less than 30 speakers at the time. Matthias Brenzinger reported in 2012 that one possible speaker remained, but that she refused to speak the language. The discrepancies could be because the language has multiple dialects and goes by several names, with scholars not always referring to the same population. Khoemana is listed as "critically endangered" in UNESCO's Language Atlas (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kqz. Alternate Names: !Kora, !Ora, Gorachouqua, Koranna, Koraqua.

1920: [LILLY] Vokabular der Korana-Sprache, by C. F. Wuras, ed. By Walther Bourquin. Berlin, Verlag von Dietrich Reimer, Hamburg, C. Boysen, 1920. 58 p. 8vo. Original brownish-orange wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Series: Beihefte zur Zeitschrift für Eingeborenen-Sprachen; Erstes Heft. Zaunmüller col. 182. Hendrix 888. English-Korana-German vocabulary, pp. 8-58, in double columns. Edited from Wuras's manuscript in the Gray Collection at the Auckland Public Library.

"It goes without saying that the vocabulary prepared by Wuras will be of great interest for the study of the Hottentot languages, which are so difficult, particularly since the Korana dialect has practically disappeared and very little other material remains."

(Preparatory Remark, W. Bourquin; tr: BM).

Reprinted 1969: [IUW] Vokabular der Korana-Sprache, von C.F. Wuras, hrsg. und mit kritischen Anmerkungen versehen von Walther Bourquin. Nendeln, Liechtenstein: Kraus Reprint, 1969. 58 p.; 22 cm. Beiheft zur Zeitschrift für Eingeborenen-Sprachen Heft 1. Reprint of Berlin 1920 edition.

1930 [1969]: [IUW] Der Koranadialekt des Hottentottischen, dargestellt von Carl Meinhof. Nendeln, Liechtenstein: Kraus Reprint, 1969. 152 p.; 22 cm. Library binding. Afrika und Übersee. Beiheft; 12. Reprint of the 1930 ed. published by D. Reimer, Berlin. Includes Korana-German vocabulary, with Nama also indicated where it differs from Korana, pp. 79-119, and German-Korana, pp. 120-145, followed by an appendix with Griqua dialect-German, 147-152.

"At the invitation of the Missionary Gerhard Kuhn M.A. of the Berlin Mission in Beaconsfield near Kimberley in South Africa, I traveled to Pniel near Kimberley to consult with the Korana natives living there about their language. The language has long been known as a dialect of the Hottentot language... Bleek was aware on a wordlist in manuscript, but was not able to consult it... the Missionary W. Bourquin managed to discover a copy of this manuscript... and publish it in an edited version as Beiheft 1 for the Zeitschrift für Eingeborenen-Sprachen" (Vorwort: tr:BM). The foreword continues with a detailed discussion of the genesis of Meinhof's work.

"In addition to Korana another dialect, Griqua, is spoken in Pniel and the surrounding region. I have attempted to provide some information on it too" (Anhang: tr: BM).

[KOREGUAJE] Correguaje (Korewaje, Ko'reuaju) is a Tucanoan language of Colombia. The language was spoken in the film Out of the Dark (Wiki).

Ethnologue: coe. Alternate Names: Caquetá, Chaocha Pai, Coreguaja, Coreguaje, Correguaje, Ko'reuaju, Korewahe.

1882: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF SOUTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[KORKU] The Korku language is the language of the Korku tribe of central India. It belongs to the Kolarian or Munda family, isolated in the midst of a Dravidian (Gondi) population. Korkus are also closely associated with the Nihali people, many of whom have traditionally lived in special quarters of Korku villages. Korku is spoken by half a million people, mainly in four districts of southern Madhya Pradesh (Khandwa, Harda, Betul, Hoshangabad) and three districts of northern Maharashtra (Rajura and Korpana tahsils of Chandrapur district, Manikgarh pahad area near Gadchandur in Chandrapur district) (Amravati, Buldana, Akola). Korku is spoken in a declining number of villages and is gradually being replaced by Hindi (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kfq. Alternate Names: Bondeya, Bopchi, Korki, Kuri, Kurku, Kurku-Ruma, Ramekhera.

1990: [IUW] The Korku tribals, by S.G. Deogaonkar, S.S. Deogaonka; foreword by B.K. Roy Burman. New Delhi: Concept, 1990. 134 p.: ill.; 22 cm. First edition. Original pale orange cloth over boards. Castes and tribes of India; no. 1. Appendix 1: "Some Korku Words," thematically arranged, Korku-English, pp. [117]-120, "Pieces of Conversation in Korku," Korku-English, pp. 120-122, "Botanical Terms of the Trees/Plants," Korku-Latin, p. [123]. Bibliography, p. [124]. Includes index.

[KORLAI CREOLE PORTUGUESE] Korlai Indo-Portuguese is a creole language based on Portuguese, spoken by some 1,000 Luso-Indian Christians in an isolated area around the village of Korlai in Raigad District of Maharashtra state, India. It is located between Goa and Daman. It has vigorous use and it is also known as Kristi ("Christian"), Korlai Creole Portuguese, Korlai Portuguese, or Nou Ling ("our language" in the language itself). What is known about the history and the grammar of No Ling can be found in the 1996 book The Genesis of a Language: Formation and Development of Korlai Portuguese written by J. Clancy Clements. The village lives on the mouth of Kundalika River, across from the ruins of a large Portuguese fort, which is located in Revdanda. No Ling has certain similarities with Papiá Kristang, spoken in the Malaysian town of Malacca. Until the 20th century, Korlai, its Christian inhabitants, and its language were relatively isolated from the Marathi-speaking Hindus and Muslims surrounding them. Since 1986, there is a bridge across the Kundalika River, because of which industry has now moved into the area (Wiki)..

Ethnologue: vkp. Alternate Names: Creole Portuguese.

1996: [IUW] The genesis of a language: the formation and development of Korlai Portuguese, by J. Clancy Clements. Amsterdam; Philadelphia: J. Benjamins Pub. Co., 1996. xii, 281 p.: ill.; 23 cm. Original yellow, white and gray cloth over boards, lettered in black and gray. Creole language library v. 16. Appendix B: Core Word list, English-Middle Portuguese-Korlai [Creole] Portuguese-Marathi, pp. [247]-255; Appendix C: Extended Word List, thematically-arranged, English-Middle Portuguese-Korlai [Creole] Portuguese-Marathi, pp. [257]-278. Includes extensive history of the language, bibliographical references (p. [233]-237) and index. Also available on-line.

"Based on the results of the small survey presented in the last section, the Korlai villagers are well aware that their language is being affected by Marathi. One villager... even suggested that in the near future Korlai Portuguese will cease to exist, although at present it is still very much alive and is spoken as the first language by all Korlai villagers" (p. 21).

[KOROMFÉ] Koromfe is a Gur language spoken in a U-shaped area around the town of Djibo, in the north of Burkina Faso and southeastern Mali, bordering Dogon Country. There are two major dialect areas, most conveniently termed East and West. The traditional centre of the Eastern area is Aribinda and of the Western area Pobé-Mengao. The western area is also known as Lorom (with two short close mid vowels), which should not be confused with the recently created province of Loroum centred on Titao. (Titao is ethnically Koromba, but Koromfe is no longer spoken there.) The grammar of Rennison (1997) describes the Western dialect.

Ethnologue: kfz. Alternate Names: Fula, Fulse, Koromba, Kouroumba, Kuruma, Kurumba, Kurumfe.

1972: [IUW] Die Kurumba von Lurum: Monographie eines Volkes aus Obervolta <Westafrika> / [Von] Annemarie Schweeger-Hefel [und] Wilhelm Staude. [Illustr.] Wien: Schendl, [1972]. 532 p.: ill.; 25 cm. First edition. Original black cloth over boards, lettered in white. German-Koromfé, pp. 475-494. Bibliography: p. 495-497.

"The present work is the result of eleven years of research since 1961" (Vorwort, tr: BM).

1980: [IUW] La Langue des Kouroumba ou akurumfe, by André Prost. Wien: A. Schendl, c1980. 179 p.: map; 23 cm. Original pale yellow wrappers, lettered in black. Includes index. Bibliography: p. 178-179. Includes a Koromfe-French vocabulary of verbs, pp. 132-155, and a French-Koromfe vocabulary, pp. 156-177.

1986: [IUW] Dictionnaire koromfe (dialecte de Mengao): koromfe-français, français-koromfe, by John R. Rennison; utilisant aussi du matériel non-publié de Wilhelm Staude. Hamburg: H. Buske, c1986. xvii, 276 p.: ill.; 22 cm. Original blue cloth over boards, lettered in black. Includes Koromfe-French dictionary, pp. 1-206, and a French-Koromfe index, pp. [207]-272.

1997: [IUW] Koromfe, by John R. Rennison. London; New York: Routledge, 1997. xxxiv, 541.; 24 cm. Original black cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in silver. First edition. Includes bibliographical references (p. 533-534) and index. A descriptive grammar. Includes "basic vocabulary," English-Koromfe, pp. 485-527.

"This book is the result of 16 years work on Koromfe, alongside other linguistic interests" (Preface).

"Koromfe is a small, local language spoken in the north of Burkina Faso (formerly Upper Volta)... This is a part of the Sahel that is rapidly declining in population because of the rapid and unavoidable encroachment of the Sahara.... This monograph is therefore a documentation of a language that is dying—not only from linguistic pressure... but from ecological pressure. The Koromba who take the road south are unlikely to preserve their language for much longer than the present generation; and in Burkina Faso, one generation is about half as long as in Western Europe" (Introduction).

[KORONI] Koroni is an Austronesian language (one of the Celebic languages) of Southeast Sulawesi, Indonesia.

Ethnologue: xkq. Alternate Names: Oengsongi.

1999: see under BUNGKU-TOLAKI LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KOROP] The Dorop language, Korop also known as Ododop or Erorop, is an Upper Cross River language of Nigeria (Wiki).

Ethnologue: krp. Alternate Names: Durop, Kurop, Ododop.

2013: [IUW] Durorp-English dictionary, compiled by Ekpe Inyang.

Mankon, Bamenda, Cameroon: Langaa Research & Publishing CIG, [2013] ©2013. 185 p.; 22 cm. First edition. Original red wrappers, lettered in white. Durorp [Korop]-English, pp. 3-185. First true dictionary of the language.

"Durorp-English dictionary is probably the first attempt of compiling a comprehensive Dictionar of Duropr, the language of the people of Korup.... The Dictionary has introduced quite a number of new but understandable words" (from rear cover).

2014: [IUW] Kpewi Durorp: language of the Bororp of the Korup ethnic group / Ekpe Inyang. Mankon, Bamenda, Cameroon: Langaa Research & Publishing Common Initiative Group, [2014] ©2014. x, 112 pages: illustrations; 22 cm. Original green wrappers, lettered in white. Includes thematically arranged vocabularies by parts of speech, English-Korop, throughout.

Two previous word lists of the language are mentioned in the introduction: Buka Bende by Eyoh Otu Ekpenyong (no date given), "a kind of mini bilingual dictionary," followed by an M.A. thesis on Durorp by an unnamed "foreign post-graduate student," which also "focused more of less on English equivalents of words and simple expressions, albeit with some attempt at the linguistic dissection of the language" (p. v.).

"Kpewi Durorp is the third attempt at bringing Durorp into the public domain, and it is a more detailed introduction to the language. It contains sixteen chapters which address important elements of grammar, with some including mini bilingual dictionaries, with words organized not alphabetically, but thematically, with the singular aim of facilitating learning and easy acquisition of the language" (from the rear cover).

"Durorp is a language spoken by a minority group of people, Bororp of the Korop ethnic group (some inhabiting the South Western part of Cameroon and others the South Eastern tip of Nigeria), who are said to have migrated from somewhere in the Central African Republic. It is an interesting semi-Bantu, or Bantoid, language which, unfortunately, has not received the literary and academic attention it deserves" (Preface).

[KOROSHI] Koroshi (Balochi: ی کوروش), is a Balochi dialect. The speakers of Koroshi live in scattered pockets in Southern Iranian Fars province. The number of speakers was roughly estimated to be 1000 in 2006. According to Ethnologue the dialect has 180 speakers within 40 to 50 families (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kti.

2015: [IUW] Koroshi: a corpus-based grammatical description, by Maryam Nourzaei [and 3 others]. Uppsala: Uppsala Universitet, [2015]. 315 pages: 2 maps; 24 + 1 CDRom (4 3/4 in.) First edition. Original red and white wrappers, lettered in black, red and white, with color photos of textiles on front cover. Acta Universitatis Upsaliensis. Studia Iranica Upsaliensis; 13. Glossary, Koroshi-English, pp. 291-312. Includes bibliographical references.

"The corpus for this study has been gathered among speakers of the dialect of Koroshi spoken around Shiraz. The book opens with a brief overview of the Korsh people and their culture. The main part of the study consists of an in-depth... study of the Koroshi language... and a glossary of more than 1200 items" (from rear cover).

[KOROWAI] Korowai (Kolufaup) is a Papuan language of Papua, Indonesia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: khe. Alternate Names: Kolufaup.

1997: [IUW] The Korowai of Irian Jaya: their language in its cultural context, by Gerrit J. van Enk and Lourens de Vries. New York: Oxford University Press, 1997. xi, 321 p.: ill., maps; 25 cm. Oxford studies in anthropological linguistics; 9. Appendix 1: Comparative Korowai-Kombai lexical items: English-Korowai-Kombai, pp. 221-225; Appendix 2: Vocabulary, Korowai-English, pp. 226-257; Appendix 3: Indonesian Loan Words in Korowai (Indonesian source words are glossed only when changes have occurred), Korowai-English-Indonesian, pp. 258-261. Includes bibliographical references (p. 297-302) and index. Also available on-line.

[KORYAK] Koryak is a Chukotko-Kamchatkan language spoken by about 1,700 people in the easternmost extremity of Siberia, mainly in Koryak Okrug. It is mostly spoken by Koryaks. Its close relative, the Chukchi language, is spoken by about three times that number. The language together with Chukchi, Kerek, Alutor and Itelmen forms the Chukotko-Kamchatkan language family. Its name in Koryak is нымылан Nymylan, but the Russian name is more common. The Chukchi and Koryaks form a cultural unit with an economy based on reindeer herding and both have autonomy within the Russian Federation (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kpy. Alternate Names: Chavchoven, Nymylan.

1917: [LILLY] Koryak texts, by Waldemar Bogoras \(1865-1936\). Leyden, E.J. Brill; New York, G.E. Stechert, 1917. Pp. vii, 153, [1] p. 25 cm. English Series: Publications of the American Ethnological Society, ed. by F. Boas.; v. 5. Original half-cloth and marbled paper, spine lettered in gold. Includes Koryak-English, pp. [107]-142, and English-Koryak, pp. 142-153. First published English-Koryak vocabulary. Second copy: IUW.

"The present volume was intended to include a collection of Kamchadal texts. Owing to the war, it has been impossible to communicate with Mr. Bogoras; and since the volume has been in type for over two years, it seems best to publish the collection of Karyak texts alone" (Editor's note).

"The texts contained in this volume were collected by me between December, 1900, and April, 1901. ... A considerable part of this time was spent in covering the long distances between the villages, the journey being made by reindeer or dog sledge and on snowshoes. Some parts of this territory had never been visited by any white man, not even by a single Russian trader..." (Introduction).

1926: see under EVEN.

1939: [IUW] Nymylansko (koriaĭskko)-russkiĭ slovar'; sostavil G. M. Korsakov, pod redaktsiei S. N. Stebnitskogo. Slovar' sodержit 5000 slov s prilozheniem grammaticheskogo ocherka nymylanskogo iazyka. Moskva, Gos. izd-vo inostr. i natš. slovarei, 1939. 350 p., 1 l. 14 cm. "Slovar' sostavlenn ... na osnove literatury, izdannoĭ na nymylanskom iazyke s 1932 goda i na osnove lichnykh zapiseĭ avtora."-p. 4. Koryak-Russian dictionary.

1967: [IUW] Russko-koriaĭskii slovar'. 18 500 slov. Sost. A.N. Zhukova. S. pril. kratkogo grammat. ocherka koriaĭk. iaz. Moskva, "Sov. èntsiklopediia, 1967. 749 p. 16 cm. In Cyrillic characters. Russian-Koryak dictionary.

1980: [IUW] Īazyk palanskikh koriaĭkov, A. N. Zhukova. Leningrad: "Nauka", Leningradskoe otd-nie, 1980. 288 p.; 23 cm. At head of title: Akademiia nauk SSSR. Institut iazykoznaniiā.

1990: [IUW] Slovar' koriāksko-russkiĭ i russko-koriākskiĭ: okolo 4000 slov: posobie dlia uchashchikhsia nachal'noi shkoly, A.N. Zhukova. 2-e izd., dorabotannoe. Leningrad: "Prosveshchenie", 1990. 221 p.; 21 cm. Koriāksko-russkiĭ, russko-koriākskiĭ slovar'. Koryak-Russian-Koryak dictionary.

2004: [IUW] Basic topical dictionary of the Koryak-Chukchi languages = Basovyĭ tematicheskii slovar' koriāksko-chukotskikh iazykov, Alevtina N. Zhukova, Tokusu Kurebito. Tokyo, Japan: Research Institute for Languages and Cultures of Asia and Africa, Tokyo University of Foreign Studies, 2004. xiv, 542 p.; 27 cm. Asian & African lexicon; no. 46. Introd. in English; words listed in Russian, English and the Koryak-Chukchi languages.

[KOTT] The Kott (Kot) language (Russian: Коттский язык) is an extinct Yeniseian language that was formerly spoken in central Siberia by the banks of Mana River, a tributary of the Yenisei river. It became extinct in the 1850s. Some linguists believe the Assan language was a dialect of Kott. Kott was closely related to Ket, still spoken farther north along the Yenisei river. In 1858, Matthias Castrén published the grammar and dictionary (Versuch einer jennissei-ostjakischen und kottischen Sprachlehre) [see under KET], which included material on the Kott and Ket (Yenisei-Ostyak) languages (Wiki).

Kott is not included in Ethnologue.

1858: see under KET.

[KOYUKON] Koyukon (also called Denaakk'e) is the geographically most widespread Athabaskan language spoken in Alaska. The Athabaskan language is spoken along the Koyukuk and the middle Yukon River in western interior Alaska. In 2007, the language had approximately 300 speakers, who were generally older adults bilingual in English. The total Koyukon ethnic population was 2,300 (Wiki).

Ethnologue: koy. Alternate Names: Ten'a.

2000: [IUW] Koyukon Athabaskan dictionary, by Jules Jetté and Eliza Jones; editor-in-chief, James Kari. Fairbanks, AK: Alaska Native Language Center, University of Alaska Fairbanks, 2000. xciv, 1118 p.: ill., maps; 29 cm.

[KPEEGO] The Kpee language, Kpeego, commonly called Numu (Noumoukan), is a Mande language spoken by blacksmiths (numu) in Burkina Faso. It is thought to be similar to Ligbi in Ghana, but no comparison has been done (Wiki).

Ethnologue: cpo. Alternate Names: Noumou, Noumoukan, Numu.

1904: see 1904a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1921: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[KPELLE, GUINEA] The Kpelle /kə'pələ/ language (endonym: "Kpələɛ") is spoken by the Kpelle people and is part of the Mande family of languages. Guinean Kpelle (known as Guerze in French), spoken by half a million people, concentrated primarily, but not exclusively, in the forest regions of Guinea, whose capital, Nzérékoré, is the third largest city in Guinea and the largest city in the Guinée forestière region of south-eastern Guinea bordering Liberia, Ivory Coast, and Sierra Leone. Liberian Kpelle, spoken by half again as many, is currently taught in schools in Liberia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: gkp. Alternate Names: Akpese, Gbese, Gerse, Gerze, Guerze, Kpele, Kpelese, Kpelesetina, Kperese, Kpese, Kpwessi, Northern Kpele, Pessa, Pessy.

1910: see under AVATIME.

1952: [LILLYbm] I. - R. P. J. Casthelain. La Langue Guerzé. Grammaire (p. 7) - Dictionnaire (p. 105). II. - R. P. P. Lassort. Grammaire Guerzé (p. 303). Dakar: IFAN, 1952. Original white and orange wrappers, lettered in black and orange. Pp. [2] 1-9 10-423 424-426. First edition. Mémoires de l'Institut Français d'Afrique. Noir, No. 20. Not in Zauhmüller. Henrix 851. The Kpelle-French dictionary is on pp. [107]-302. This appears to be the first French dictionary of Kpelle. Second copy: IUW. It was reprinted in 1971 by Swets & Zeitlinger.

"The first Kpelle, legend tells us, fell from the moon. They still show the spot where he landed, between Beyla and Boola... Beneath its appearance as a legend, the opening of the story confirms what we know from other sources, that the Kpelle entered the forests from the North, after the Manons and the Tomas were already there... Like all indigenous languages, Kpelle varies more or less according to region. The Kpelle reflected in this dictionary is the dialect of the regions of Gouecké, Samoé, and the canton of Boo, that is, the dialect spoken by the majority of the Kpelle living in French Guinea" (Preface, tr: BM).

[KPELLE, LIBERIA] The Kpelle /kə'pələ/ language (endonym: "Kpɛɛ") is spoken by the Kpelle people and is part of the Mande family of languages. Guinean Kpelle (known as Guerze in French), spoken by half a million people, concentrated primarily, but not exclusively, in the forest regions of Guinea, whose capital, Nzérékoré, is the third largest city in Guinea and the largest city in the Guinée forestière region of south-eastern Guinea bordering Liberia, Ivory Coast, and Sierra Leone. Liberian Kpelle, spoken by half again as many, is currently taught in schools in Liberia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xpe. Alternate Names: Gbese, Kpele, Kpwessi, Pessa, Pessy.

1930a: [LILLYbm] The Kpelle Language in Liberia. Grammatical Outline. Colloquial Sentences and Vocabulary, by D[iedrich] Westermann & H[ans] J[oachim] Melzian. Berlin: Dietrich Reimer / Ernst Vohsen, 1930. Original limp brown cloth, lettered in black. Pp. I-V VI VII-VIII, 1-85 86-88. First edition thus. Zauhmüller col. 230 (listing only Die Kpelle Sprache in Liberia, Berlin, 1924). Hendrix 894. "In cooperation with the Firestone Plantations Company and the American Advisory Committee on Education in Liberia." This copy with the ink stamp "Central Office / Firestone Plantations / 34" and the ownership signature of Marks Danna Watkins. Second copy: IUW.

"The Kpelle language is spoken in the western part of the Republic of Liberia, on both sides of the middle and supper St. Paul's River... The languages loosely related to Kpelle are Mano and Gio in Eastern Liberia and Mende in Sierra Leone. All the languages mentioned thus form a linguistic unit, which may be called the Kpelle-Mende group. The Kpelle language is not limited to Liberia, but is also spoken in part of the adjoining French Guinea... The present book is intended as a guide for those who have to learn the language... [It] is based partly on material which I collected during a stay in Liberia in 1914 and 1915, and which is published in the following two books: Die Kpelle, ein Negerstamm in Liberia, Göttingen 1921, and: Die Kpelle Sprache in Liberia, Berlin 1924. When I visited Nigeria in 1929, the Firestone Corporation, who were interested in the compilation of this book had...made arrangements for a young Kpelle man...to accompany me to Nigeria and back to Monrovia. This gave me an excellent opportunity...of supplementing and deepening my knowledge of the language and of preparing the outline of this book...In the final compilation of the book I had the pleasure of working together with Mr. Melzian who, during several years of study, has acquired a thorough knowledge of the language" (Westermann, Preface).

1930b [1969]: [IUW] Die Kpelle-Sprache in Liberia; grammatische Einführung, Texte und Wörterbuch, by Diedrich Westermann. Berlin, D. Reimer, 1924. Nendeln, Kraus Reprint, 1969. vii, 278 p. 22cm. Beiheft zur Zeitschrift für Eingeborenen-Sprachen. Hendrix 893.

1973: [IUW] Kpelle-English dictionary, by Theodore E. Leidenfrost and John S. McKay. Totota: Kpelle Literacy Center, Lutheran Church in Liberia, 1973-. Pagination inconsistent. iv, 4 p. 22 cm. Original green wrappers lettered and decorated in black. Reproduced from typescript. Cover title: Wóo-su-kula kòlò 1. Hendrix 852. In English and Kpelle. "A Kpelle-English Dictionary, Part One [a-z]" pp. [1]-64.

"The compilers are happy to present this PART ONE of a larger Kpelle-English dictionary publishing project. It is planned that a dictionary of about ten thousand entry-words will be published in five to ten installments. The final installment will contain all previously published material in alphabetic order. And English-Kpelle dictionary is also planned with the assistance of Dr. W.E. Welmers in 1974. The present dictionary contains over one thousand entry-words and several hundred additional words in illustrative phrases and in idiomatic expressions under the entry-word. The entry-words for Part One were compiled from W.E. Welmers and O. Spehr SPOKEN KPELLE 1957 ed. and from Nos. 1-5 of our Kpelle Literature titles published by the Kpelle Literacy Center" (Introduction).

New edition 2007: [IUW] Kpelee-woo-Kwii-woo su-kula kòlò = Kpelle-English dictionary: with a grammar sketch and English-Kpelle finderlist, by Theodore E. Leidenfrost and John S. McKay. Moscow, Ida.: Palaverhut Press, c2007. xxxii, 400 p.; 24 cm. Library binding, incorporating original yellow front wrapper and spine, lettered in black. Includes bibliographical references (p. xxiii-xxv). Includes Kpelle-English dictionary, pp. 69-291, and English-Kpelle finderlist, pp. 295-399.

"We hope that this new edition of the Kpelle-English dictionary, even though it is only an incomplete sample of the vast word treasure of the Kpelle people and their still largely unrecorded rich culture of oral tradition, of parables, folk tales, will inspire our future younger native Kpelle lexicographers.... Their future work will accomplish what Luther did by unifying the variant German dialects. The future Kpelle lexicographers will complete the publication of an exhaustive collection of a monolingual Kpelle dictionary" (Acknowledgements).

1981: [IUW] Kpelle, a reference handbook of phonetics, grammar, lexicon and learning procedures, by Sharon V. Thach with David J. Dwyer. [S.l.: s.n.], 1981. iii, 204 p.: ill., maps; 28 cm. Library binding. Cover title: A reference handbook of Kpelle. Prepared for the United States Peace Corps at the African Studies Center of Michigan State University. Includes Kpelle-English dictionary, pp. 98-131, and English-Kpelle, pp. 133-173.

"[The present volume] was written for the learner who has the commitment to further his/her language study, but who lacks the general knowledge of how to proceed. It is the purpose then to give the learner the sufficient skills and knowledge to be able to carry out the orderly study of a foreign language on his/her own" (Introduction).

1997: [IUW] Kpelle-English dictionary, with English-Kpelle glossary, by Elizabeth Grace Winkler; assisted by Clara Jimmy-Samba. Bloomington, IN, U.S.A. (720 E. Atwater Ave., Bloomington 47401-3634): Indiana University Linguistics Club Publications, 1997. xxii, 101 p.; 28 cm. Library binding. Includes bibliographical references (p. xxi-xxii). Kpelle-English, pp. 7-67, and English-Kpelle glossary, pp. 71-101.

"The information found in this dictionary was collected over a four year period, beginning in... 1993. I began the dictionary by making lists of words from the environment. Later, I culled words from articles on Kpelle and glossaries, including a list of Mende words provided by fellow student Bill Anderson" (Preface).

2009: [IUW] Kwaa pa Kpelee-woo ma kori = We have come to learn Kpelle, by Paul Kanmu Ricks. 1st ed. Suakoko, Liberia: Cuttington University, 2009. v, 38 p.; 20 cm. Original reddish-brown wrappers, lettered in black, with a color illustration of a family reading on the front cover. Kpelle-English vocabulary, pp. 31-8.

"This manuscript is intended to begin the process of educating and promoting Kpelle knowledge to others. It will teach the Kpelle culture to the younger generation since moonlight oral tradition is no longer extensively practiced. It will help to perpetuate the positive aspects of our culture. Above all, this book will make the learning of the Kpelle language much easier and interesting" (Introduction).

[KRACHE] Krache (Krachi, Krakye) is a Guang language spoken by 58,000 in Ghana (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kye. Alternate Names: Kaakyi, Krachi, Krakye.

1966: see 1966a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1989: see 1989b under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[KRAHN, WESTERN] Western Krahn is the principal language spoken by the Krahn people of Liberia and Ivory Coast. It is part of a series a dialects of the Wee (Guere) dialect continuum spoken by the Krahn and Guere peoples (Wiki).

Ethnologue: krw. Alternate Names: Krahn, Kran, Northern Krahn, Western Kran.

1904: see 1904a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[KRAHÔ] [Wiki redirects Krahô to Timbira]: Timbira is a dialect continuum of Ge languages of Brazil. The various tribal dialects are distinct enough to sometimes be considered separate languages. The principal varieties, Krahô /'kra:hou/(Craô), and Kanela /kæ'nelə/(Canela), have 2000 speakers apiece, few of whom speak Portuguese. Kreye, however, is nearly extinct, with only 30 speakers in 1995.

Ethnologue: xra. Alternate Names: Craho, Craô, Kraô.

1931: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF SOUTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[KRENAK] The Krenak language, or Botocudo, is the moribund sole surviving language of a small family believed to be part of the Macro-Gê languages. It was once spoken by the Botocudo people in Minas Gerais, but is known primarily by older women today (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kqq. Alternate Names: Botocudo.

1948: [IUW] Vocabulário português-Botocudo, by C. Monteiro; organização, prefácio e notas de M. de L. de Paula Martins. Sao Paulo, Brasil: Museu Paulista, 1948. 51 p.: ill., facsim., fold. table; 27 cm. Series: Boletim (Museu Paulista). Documentação lingüística 2. Bibliography: p. 47-50.

[KRIO] Sierra Leonean Creole or Krio is the lingua franca and the de facto national language spoken throughout the West African nation of Sierra Leone. Krio is spoken by 97% of Sierra Leone's population and unites the different ethnic groups in the country, especially in their trade and social interaction with each other. Krio is the primary language of communication among Sierra Leoneans at home and abroad. The language is native to the Sierra Leone Creole people or Krios, (a community of about 300,000 descendants of freed slaves from the West Indies, United States and Great Britain), and is spoken as a second language by millions of other Sierra Leoneans belonging to the country's indigenous tribes. English is Sierra Leone's official language, while Krio, despite its common use throughout the country, has no official status. Due to its similarity to English, it is often mistaken for English slang (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kri. Alternate Names: Creole, Patois.

1964: [IUW] Introductory Krio language training manual (Preliminary Copy), co-authors, James L. Wilson ... [et al.]. [Bloomington, IN.: s.n. ], 1964. 332 f.: ill.; 28 cm. Library binding, preserving original gray wrappers, lettered in black and outline black. Indiana University. Sierra Leone Peace Corps Project. Photoreproduction of typescript. "This manual was compiled under the auspices of the Sierra Leone Peace Corps Project at Indiana University, Summer, 1964." Part VI, Lexicon, Krio-English, ff. 311-332.

"Included in the Lexicon presented here are the vocabularies and idioms from each lesson... arranged alphabetically" (f. 310).

1980: [LILLY] A Krio-English Dictionary, compiled by Clifford N. Fyle & Eldred D. Jones. Oxford: Oxford University Press, 1980. Original dark blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold; d.j. green and white, lettered in white and green. Pp. i-iv v-li lii, l 2-418 419-428. First edition. Hendrix 899. Clifford Fyle's copy with his annotations, two carbon copies of letters from him to Eldred D. Jones, and one t.l.s. from Jones to Fyle at the Centre for African Studies at the University of Edinburgh, all discussing the dictionary and the Krio language in some detail. Second copy: LILLYbm. Third copy: IUW.

"Krio is an English-oriented... creole language... Modern Krio closely follows the pattern of development to be expected of creole languages. At the same time, it is a West African language which has adapted even its English and European borrowings into the mould of other West African languages, particularly of the Kwa language group to which Yoruba belongs... In Sierra Leone at present, Krio is important not only as a native language but equally or even more as a national lingual franca. It continues to exist side by side with English, but while this coexistence still makes for large-scale borrowing it does not destroy the distinctiveness of Krio as a separate language" (Introduction). "[This dictionary is] the most comprehensive and thorough-going record available of any pidgin or creole, and among the most complete of any African language" (from inner flap of d.j.).

1983: [IUW] A handbook of Krio, by M.E. Ajayi Coomber. [S.l.]: Fourah Bay College Bookshop, 1983. 109 p.; 25 cm. Bibliography: p. 109.

[KRIOL] Kriol is an Australian creole language that developed from a pidgin used initially in the region of Sydney and Newcastle in New South Wales in the early days of White colonisation, and that then moved west and north with White and Black stockmen. The pidgin died out in most parts of the country, except in the Northern Territory, where the contact between European settlers, Chinese and other Asians and the indigenous people in the northern regions of Australia has maintained a vibrant use of the language. It is spoken by about 30,000 people. Despite the language's similarities to English in vocabulary, it has a distinct syntactic structure and grammar, and is, therefore, a language in its own right (Wiki).

Ethnologue: rop. Alternate Names: Roper-Bamyili Creole.

1941: [LILLY] Handbook of Pidgin English: Aboriginal and South Sea Islands. Melbourne: Australian Army, 1941. Original tan wrappers lettered in black. Pp. 1 2-11 12. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Not in Reinecke. "Notified in A.S.Os., dated 31st August, 1941" on front wrappers. "Issued by command of the Military Board" (verso of front wrapper). Includes "Short Vocabulary of Aboriginal Pidgin English," pp. 2-5, and "Short Vocabulary of South Sea Islands Pidgin English," pp. 7-[12].

"Pidgin English varies according to the islands and the individual... [A] boat boy's explanation of engine trouble was 'He yes yes, he no no, he yes, he no, now he is no allatime.' It is, therefore, to be realized [that] some degree of patience and ingenuity is required for conversing in Pidgin English" (p. 6).

1979: [IUW] Beginnings of a Ngukurr-Bamyili Creole dictionary, compiled by John R. and Joy L. Sandefur. Darwin [Australia]: Summer Institute of Linguistics, Australian Aborigines Branch, 1979. v, 136 p.; 26 cm. Original orange wrappers, lettered in black, with unprinted black tape spine. Series: Work papers of SIL-AAB: Series B; v. 4. Includes Kriol-English, pp. [1]-136.

"Because of the preliminary nature of most of the material to appear in the Work Papers, these volumes are being circulated on a limited basis" (Preface). "Entries for this dictionary have, for the most part, come from the fieldwork of the compilers. Entries have, however, also been taken from personal dictionaries of word lists compiled by [a series of other named people]... The English gloss or meanings given for entries are only the primary or basic meanings" (Introduction).

[KRONGO] Krongo, also spelled Korongo or Kurungu and known as Dimodongo, Kadumodi, or Tabanya after local towns, is a Kadu language spoken in Kordofan. Fama is a dialect (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kgo. Alternate Names: Dimodongo, Kadumodi, Korongo, Kurungu, Niino mo-di, Tabanya.

1985: [LILLYbm] Die Krongo-Sprache (niino mó-di). Beschreibung, Texte, Wörterverzeichnis, by Mechthild Reh. Berlin: Dietrich Reimer Verlag, 1985. Original wrappers wrappers, lettered in green. Pp. i-v vi-xv xvi, 1 2-490 491-492 (2 pp. adverts.). First edition. Kölner Beiträge zur Afrikanistik, Vol. 12. Includes Krongo-German, pp. 405-444, and German-Krongo, pp. 445-484, with bibliography, pp. [485]-490. Second copy: IUW.

"Krongo, which the speakers themselves call niino mó-di ('home language') is spoken in the southwest of the linguistically quite heterogeneous Nuba Mountains in the Democratic Republic of Sudan... The number of speakers was estimated by Nadel in 1947 at 14,000. There are no more recent figures. The speakers of Krongo are, like all Nubas, farmers. Their primary crop is sorghum... Domestic animals include pigs, cattle, goats, sheep and chickens... Krongo belongs, along with eight further languages and dialects, to the Kadugli group of languages" (Introduction, tr: BM).

[KRUMEN, PLAPO] Krumen is a dialect continuum spoken by the Krumen people of Liberia and Ivory Coast (Tabou and Grabo subprefectures). It is a branch of the Grebo languages, a subfamily of the Kru languages and ultimately of the Niger–Congo languages. It had 48,300 speakers in 1993. The main varieties are Tepo. Ply and Plapo. Plapo has only a hundred speakers and no dialectical variation (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ktj. Alternate Names: Plapo.

1904: see 1904a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[KRUMEN, PYE] Krumen is a dialect continuum spoken by the Krumen people of Liberia and Ivory Coast (Tabou and Grabo subprefectures). It is a branch of the Grebo languages, a subfamily of the Kru languages and ultimately of the Niger–Congo languages. It had 48,300 speakers in 1993. The main varieties are Tepo. Ply and Plapo. Plapo has only a hundred speakers and no dialectical variation (Wiki).

Ethnologue: pye. Alternate Names: Kroumen, Northeastern Krumen, Southeastern Krumen.

1904: see 1904a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[KRUMEN, TEPO] Krumen is a dialect continuum spoken by the Krumen people of Liberia and Ivory Coast (Tabou and Grabo subprefectures). It is a branch of the Grebo languages, a subfamily of the Kru languages and ultimately of the Niger–Congo languages. It had 48,300 speakers in 1993. The main varieties are Tepo. Ply and Plapo. Plapo has only a hundred speakers and no dialectical variation (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ted. Alternate Names: Kroumen, Kru, Krumen, Southern Krumen, Southwestern Kroumen.

1904: see 1904a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1964: [LILLYbm] "'Le Langaige de Guynee': A Sixteenth Century Vocabulary from the Pepper Coast," by David Dalby and P.E.H. Hair, in: African Language Studies V, Collected Papers in Oriental and African Studies. London: School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, 1964, pp. [115]-191. Kru-French, pp. 178-180, with modern English-Kru translations, pp. 183-186.

"Little information is available from before the seventeenth century on African languages south of Ethiopia and the Sahara... Recent research, however, has shown that interest in African languages was first aroused during the sixteenth century, when a number of individuals collected vocabularies which have remained in manuscript, but which are substantial enough to be of interest to linguists. One such vocabulary, entitled le langaige de guynee et le francoys, is included in a French navigational manual, compiled in manuscript during the 1540's and subsequently unpublished. The language of the vocabulary has hitherto been unidentified, but comparison with modern forms indicates that the language is in fact Kra (i.e. 'Kru'). The vocabulary, totalling over eighty words, with translations in French, represents the earliest substantial record, as yet discovered, of any African language south of Ethiopia and the Sahara."

[KUANUA] The Tolai language, or Kuanua, is spoken by the Tolai people of Papua New Guinea, who live on the Gazelle Peninsula in East New Britain Province. (This language is often referred to in the literature as Tolai. However, Tolai is actually the name of the cultural group. The Tolais themselves refer to their language as a tinata tuna, which translates as "the real language". Kuanua is apparently a word in Ramoaaina meaning "the place over there".) Unlike many languages in Papua New Guinea, Tolai is a healthy language and not in danger of dying out to Tok Pisin, although even Tolai suffers from a surfeit of loanwords from Tok Pisin, e.g. the original kubar has been completely usurped by the Tok Pisin braun for brown or the Tok Pisin vilivil for bicycle has replaced the former aingau. It is considered a prestigious language and is the primary language of communication in the two major centers of East New Britain: Kokopo and Rabaul (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ksd. Alternate Names: Blanche Bay, Gunantuna, New Britain Language, Tinata Tuna, Tolai, Tuna.

1907: [LILLYbm] Theoretisch-praktischer Lehrgang der Neu-pommerschen Sprache (Bismarck-Archipel) nebst einem deutsch-neupommersch und neupommersch-deutschen Wörterbuch, by Assunto Costantini. Berlin: Kommissionsverlag von Georg Reimer, 1907. Bound with three further volumes in the series, in dark-green quarter cloth and marbled paper over boards stamped "Bibliothek der Reichs-Kolonialamts"; spine lettered in gold; original wrappers bound in. Pp. [8] 1 2-222 223-224. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Series: Archiv für das Studium deutscher Kolonialsprachen, Bd. V. Includes German-Neupommersch [Kuanua], pp. [75]-144, and Neupommersch [Kuanua]-German, pp. [145]-222. Costantini published an earlier version of the dictionary in 1902.

"The author of the present work, Mr. Assunto Costantini, former missionary in the Bismarck Archipelago and now a plantation manager there, is known as one of the most eminent authorities on the linguistic relationships of the island group. An earlier publication by him, Elementarbuch der neupommerschen Sprache [einem deutsch-pommerschen Wörterbuch], appeared in Sydney in 1902. He presented this larger work on the same subject to the Seminar for Oriental Languages, for which I would like to offer here my heartfelt thanks. Since Mr. Costantini lives in the Bismarck Archipelago, it was unfortunately not possible to send him the galley proofs of his work" (Untitled note, Ed. Sachau, tr: BM).

1920: [LILLYbm] A New Britain Phrase Book, compiled by J. H. L[awry] Waterhouse. Rabaul, New Britain: printed and published at the Mission Press, Malakuna, 1920. Original brown wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [4] i ii, 1-26 (interleaved with blank pages) [6]. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes New Britain-English phrases, "some useful words" (p. 22), numerals, days of the week, native names of plants, etc.

"This booklet does not profess to be anything more than a collection of some 200 short, useful sentences in the New Britain language with English equivalents.... It need hardly be pointed out that there are very many different dialects in use throughout New Britain and adjacent islands. That used in this booklet ("a tinata Kuanua") is spoken and understood by many thousands of natives in New Britain and New Ireland, and already a considerable Mission literature has been printed in it" (Preface). This is a presentation copy from the author: "W. E. Armstrong Esq. | With the Compiler's compliments | Rabaul. | 26.ii.'21." Wallace Edwin Armstrong was a government anthropologist in New Guinea whose Report on the Suau-Tawala was published in Sydney in 1923. His report included information on magic, feasts and social organization.

1939: [LILLYbm] A New Guinea Language Book (Blanche Bay Dialect), compiled by J. H. L[awry] Waterhouse. Sydney: Australian National Research Council / Australasian Medical Publishing Company, 1939. Original limp red cloth, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. 1-9 10-44 (interleaved following p. 18 with blank pages). First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. English-Blanche Bay vocabulary, pp. [29]-44.

"Mr. J. H. L. Waterhouse has had thirty years' experience of Melanesian peoples.... For the last ten years he has devoted himself to the study of what is known as the Blanche Bay language spoken by between 30,000 and 40,000 natives in New Britain and by several thousands in New Ireland. He has had access to the language studies of the late Rev. J. H. Magetts, whose work he has edited and augmented in the present volume, which now contains 1300 words and over 300 phrases" (Foreword, W. Ramsay McNicoll, Administrator to the Mandated Territory of New Guinea). "There are many natives...coming from Mr. Waterhouse's own school at Nodup, as well as from mission schools, who will welcome this Language Book and by means of the interleaving enlarge its scope and usefulness. The selling price of the book is being kept down to a minimum so that the natives, as well as the whites, may be able to buy it" (Introduction, A. P. Elkin, University of Sydney). "The dialect with which this booklet deals is known variously as the tinata tuna or tinata Kuannua, and with slight variations is the mother tongue of the natives of the Gazelle Peninsula in the northeast corner of New Britain....A recent development has been its introduction to the important goldfield areas on the New Guinea mainland, in the west of the Mandated Territory. Groups of boys, almost all of whom can read and write in the Blanche Bay dialect, go constantly to Administration and private employment and establish their mother tongue on new ground.... An enlarged dictionary of the Blanche Bay dialect based on Rev. R. H. Rickard's valuable holograph work is in course of preparation, but is hope that meantime this booklet will fill a gap" (Preface).

Ca. 1950: [LILLY] English-Kuanua dictionary, by A.J. Mannering. Rabaul [Papua New Guinea]: Methodist Overseas Missions, [ca. 1960]. 120 leaves. Reproduced from typescript. 26 cm. In gray printed wrappers with a red adhesive spine. First edition. Includes English-Kuanua, pp. 1-120.

"Jean Mannering taught school with the Methodist Overseas Mission at Vatnabara on the Duke of York Islands after World War II, and then at Vunairima on New Britain until 1965. She compiled this dictionary over a period of seven years" (dealer information).

1960: [Lillybm] A dictionary of the Raluana language (New Britain, S.W. Pacific). Raluana-English, with an Introduction and English-Raluana Index, by Peter A.

Lanyon-Orgill. Victoria, B.C.: Published by the author, 1960. Original orange cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. 1-6 7-652 653-656. First edition. Includes Raluana [a dialect of Kuanua]-English, pp. 91-505, and an English-Raluana [a dialect of Kuanua] index, pp. 509-635. This is the first true dictionary of this dialect. Second copy: IUW.

"My first knowledge of the Raluana (Kuanua, or Tuna) language was in the form of short word-lists which I constructed as a result of my reading of the translations of Genesis and Exodus (1917 edition) in the latter part of 1936. Shortly after this I compiled larger vocabularies... More extensive vocabularies resulted from the New Testament, the revised translation of which had just appeared. Together with the work of Costantini [see above] and Dempwolff's vocabulary, these materials formed the basis of my own vocabulary which I issued in a tentative form in 1942.... This [present] book has been a quarter of a century in the making... it contains over 12,000 basic Raluana words.... The language here represented in a comparatively pure form is no longer to be heard spoken in that form, for the advance of pidgin-English, as well as 'pidgin-Japanese', has been accelerated by the invasions of large foreign elements into the area" (Preface).

"The Raluana language... is spoken around the great strategic centre of Rabaul in New Britain, and belongs to the Melanesian family of languages... Of these eight hundred Melanesian languages only about twenty are covered by extensive word-lists in print... [I]t may be remarked that Raluana is likely to become the lingua franca for the whole of the Bismarck Archipelago" (Introduction).

1974: [IUW] Tolai language course, by Karl J. Franklin, Harland B. Kerr, Clive H. Beaumont. 3d ed. Huntington Beach, Calif.: Summer Institute of Linguistics, 1974. 140 p.; 23 cm. Original pale yellow wrappers, lettered and decorated in brown. Language data. Asian-Pacific series; no. 7. Bibliography: p. 137-[138]. English-Tolai vocabulary, pp. 77-99, and Tolai-English "working" vocabulary, pp. 100-124. The second edition in 1967 expanded the Tolai-English vocabulary and completely revised the grammar section. The third edition (1974) does not seem to have significantly expanded the vocabulary.

"This study was undertaken by the authors as members of the Summer Institute of Linguistics for the Department of the Administrator. The purpose is to prepare materials by which government officers are aided in learning to speak the Tolai language. Most of the Tolai expressions have been checked with Rev. Lutton of the Methodist Overseas Mission.... The initial field work was carried out in December 1959, and January 1960 and the material has been subsequently revised" (Preface to the First Edition, 1961).

[KUAY] Kuy, also known as Kui, Soui or Kuay (Khmer: ភ្នំស្រីក្រវែល), is a Katuic language, part of the larger Austroasiatic family spoken by the Kuy people of Southeast Asia. Kuy is one of the Katuic languages within the Austroasiatic family. It is spoken in Isan, Thailand by about 300,000 people, in Salavan, Savannakhet and Sekong Provinces of Laos by about 64,000; and in Preah Vihear, Stung Treng and Kampong Thom Provinces of northern Cambodia by 15,500 people (Wiki)

Ethnologue: kdt. Alternate Names: Cuoi, Khamen-Boran, Kui, Kui Souei, Kuoy, Kuuy, Soai, Suai, Suay, Suei, Sui, Suoi.

1996: see under KATUIC LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KUBO] Kubo is a Trans-New Guinea language of New Guinea, spoken in the plains of the Strickland River (Wiki).

Ethnologue: jko.

1973: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KUGBO] Kugbo is a Central Delta language of Nigeria (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kes.

1969: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[KUI (India)] Kui (also Kandh, Khondi, Khond, Khondo, Kanda, Kodu (Kōdu), Kodulu, Kuinga (Kūinga), Kuy) is a South-Central-Dravidian language spoken by the Khonds. It is mostly spoken in Orissa, and written in the Oriya script. With 641,662 registered native speakers, it figures at rank 29 in the 1991 Indian census. Distinct but closely related are the Gondi, Konda and Kuvi languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kxu. Alternate Names: Kanda, Kandh, Khond, Khondi, Khondo, Kodu, Kodulu, Kuinga, Kuy.

1913: [LILLYbm] Kuinga Bassa. The Khond language as spoken by the Parjas (and kindred tribes) of the Madras Presidency, by A. G. Fitzgerald. Calcutta: [Printed and Published for for Proprietor by M. Apel, at The Catholic Orphan Press], 1913. Original dark olive cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. 206 pp. and 4 photographic plates. First edition. English-Kuinga-Bassa, pp. 111-168. Not in Zaunmüller.

"This book...has been written from a Tea-Garden point of view for Tea-Planters, and simplicity has been the chief aim throughout...I am much indebted to Baba Durga Dutta of Dibrugarh for the fine photographic studies of typical Parjas...This book treats the language of the [Western Khonds], who were returned as numbering 190,695 souls at the census of 1901...Parjas have recollections of have practised the bloody rites of the Merriah, or Toki Sacrifice, in times gone bye. This horrible custom--human sacrifice--has now, however, been stamped out amongst the Khonds, and a pig, goat, or buffalo, takes the place of a human victim. Parjas are a fine sturdy race, and make most excellent labourers for Tea Gardens...They have an inordinate craving for beef flesh, and this has been a source of great trouble on Tea Gardens where a ready supply cannot be easily procured. Butcher shops for the sale of beef should be established near Gardens where Khonds are to be found in any number..."

1966: [IUW] Lezginsko-russkiĭ slovar: okolo 28 000 slov, Sostavili B. Talibov i M. Gadzhiev; pod redaktsieĭ R. Gaĭdarova; s prilozheniem grammaticheskogo ocherka lezginskogo iazyka B. Talibova. Moskva: Izd-vo "Sovetskaia entsiklopediia", 1966. 603 p.; 21 cm. Bibliography: p. 602-603. Kui-Russian dictionary.

[KUI (Indonesia)] Kui is a Trans-New Guinea language spoken by 4,240 people (as of 2000) in several enclaves on Alor Island, East Nusa Tenggara, Indonesia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kvd. Alternate Names: Lerabain, Masin-Lak.

1978: [LILLY] Kui (Suai)-Thai-English Dictionary, by Prasert Sriwises, edited by Theraphan L. Thongkum & Jerry W. Gainey. Bangkok: Indigenous Languages of Thailand Research Project; Chulalongkorn University Language Institute, 1978. First edition. [8] [32 pp. numbered in Thai] xxvii, 434 p., 18 p. [second pagination], 13 p. [third pagination], 23 p. [fourth pagination]. 26.5 cm. Reproduced from typescript.

Original light blue wrappers, lettered in black. Title page in Thai and English. Preliminaries include two pages of errata. Kui-Thai-English, pp. 1-434; Addenda, Kui-Thai-English, pp. 1-18 [second pagination]; Thai index, pp. [1]-13 [third pagination]; English index, pp.[1]-23 [fourth pagination]. This is the first dictionary of the language.

"This Kui-Thai-English Dictionary is the second in a series of dictionaries of unwritten languages spoken in Thailand produced by the Indigenous Languages of Thailand Research Project.... Writing dictionaries, especially for previously unwritten and unresearched languages, is a task which requires a considerable amount of time and effort. And more often than not the 'finished' product is inadequate and inaccurate in several ways. During the beginning stages of the approximately three years required to produce this dictionary, ILTRP staff members carried out a complete phonetic and phonological analysis of Kui, choosing to use the transcription system of the IPA... for the benefit of phoneticians and linguists in general. Dictionary entries are also transcribed in a standard Thai-based orthography for Thai-speaking readers who are not familiar with the IPA system" (Preface).

[KUKAMA-KUKUMIRIA] Cocama (Kokáma) is an indigenous language spoken by thousands of native people in western South America. It is spoken along the banks of the Northeastern lower Ucayali, lower Marañón, and Huallaga rivers and in neighboring areas of Brazil and an isolated area in Colombia. There are three dialects. The robust dialect is known as Cocama, Kokama, Kukama-Kukamiria, Ucayali, Xibitaoan, Huallaga, Pampadeque, and Pandequebo. By 1999, Cocamilla (Kokamiya) was moribund, being only spoken by people over 40. Out of a projected ethnic population of 15,000, the majority of Cocama speakers, 2,000, live in Perú. Remaining speakers live in Amazonas state in Brazil, where 50 out of 411 ethnic Chayahuitas speak it and it is known as Kokama or Kokamilla. Most speakers are trilingual and can also speak Portuguese and Spanish. Very few are monolingual. There are 20 ethnic groups in Colombia's Lower Putumayo area with an unknown number of Cocama-Cocamilla speakers. Most expected speakers would also be trilingual, but the language may be extinct in the region. Cocama is closely related to Omagua, a nearly extinct language spoken in Peru and Brazil (Wiki).

Ethnologue: cod. Alternate Names: Cocama, Cocama-Cocamilla, Huallaga, Kokama, Kokama-Kokamilya, Kukama, Pampadeque, Pandequebo, Ucayali, Xibitaoan.

1972: [IUW] Gramática cocama: lecciones para el aprendizaje del idioma cocama, by Norma Faust W[ille]. Yarinacocha, Perú: Instituto Lingüístico de Verano, Ministerio de Educación, 1972. 173 p.; 22 cm. Library binding. Serie Lingüística peruana; no. 6. "Versión española de Ezequiel Romero." Appendix II: Cocama-Spanish vocabulary, pp. 149-162.

[KUKELE] The Kele language, Kukele (Bakele, Ukele), is an Upper Cross River language of Nigeria (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kez. Alternate Names: Bakele, Ukele.

1923: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[KUKU-YALANJI] Guugu Yalandji (Kuku-Yalanji) is an Australian Aboriginal language of Queensland. It is the traditional language of the Kuku Yalanji people. Despite conflicts between the Kuku Yalanji people and British settlers in Queensland, the Kuku Yalanji language has a healthy number of speakers, and that number is increasing. Though the language is threatened, the language use is vigorous and children are learning it in schools. All generations of speakers have a positive languages attitudes. The Kuku Yalanji still practice their traditional religion, and they have rich oral traditions. Many people in the Kuku Yalanji community also use English, but use is discouraged. 100 Kuku Yalanji speakers can both read and write in Kuku Yalanji (Wiki).

Ethnologue: gvn. Alternate Names: Gugu Yalandyi, Gugu Yalanji, Guguyalanji, Koko-Yalanji, Kuku-Yalangi.

1964: [IUW] "Gugu-Yulanji Vocabulary," by William and Lynette Oates, in: Gugu-Yalanji and Wik-Munkan language studies, by William and Lynette Oates ... [et al.]. Canberra: Australian Institute of Aboriginal Studies, 1964. 146 leaves; 26 cm. Red cloth library binding. Series: Occasional papers in aboriginal studies; no. 2. Linguistic series; no. 1. Gugu-Yalanji-English vocabulary, ff. 80-131, and English-Gugu-Yalanji, ff. 132-146. First printed vocabulary of this language.

"This vocabulary of approximately 1,200 words was compiled during two months field work on the Bloomfield River in 1959. Most of the material was transcribed from information supplied by Nr. Norman Baird which he took from notes he had previously made. An English index is included for convenience" (Preface).

[KULANGO, BONDOUKOU] Kulango is a Niger–Congo language of Ivory Coast and across the border in Ghana. There are two principal varieties, distinct enough to be considered separate languages: the Kulango of Bondoukou (Bonduku), and that of Bouna (Buna). Ethnologue report Bouna-dialect speakers understand Bondoukou, but not the reverse (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kcz.

1921: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1958: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

2005: [IUW] Parlons koulango: Côte d'Ivoire, by Kouakou Appoh Enoc Kra. Paris: L'Harmattan, c2005. 187 p.: map; 22 cm. Original peach-colored wrappers, lettered in green and black, with a color photo on the front cover. Collection "Parlons". Bibliographical references (p. 183-184). French-Kulango thematic vocabulary, pp. 143-159, Kulango-French vocabulary, pp. 160-182.

"The language itself includes two dialects: Bouna and Bondoukou-Tanda.... In fact, those who speak the Bouna dialect understand the Bondoukou-Tanda dialect, but the inverse has not been shown. The dialect used here is Bondoukou-Tanda" (Introduction, tr: BM).

[KULANGO, BOUNA] Kulango is a Niger–Congo language of Ivory Coast and across the border in Ghana. There are two principal varieties, distinct enough to be considered separate languages: the Kulango of Bondoukou (Bonduku), and that of Bouna (Buna). Ethnologue report Bouna-dialect speakers understand Bondoukou, but not the reverse. Bouna in addition has (sub)dialects Sekwa and Nabanj. In Ghana, the principal towns in which the language is spoken are Badu and Seikwa, both in the Tain district of the Brong Ahafo Region. Variations of the name 'Kulango' include Koulango, Kolango, Kulange, Nkurange, Nkoramfo, Nkuraeng, and Kulamo; alternate names are Lorhon, Ngwela, and Babé (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nku. Alternate Names: Koulango, Kulange, Nkuraeng, Nkurange.

1933: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1958: see 1958a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[KULISUSU] Kulisusu is an Austronesian language (one of the Celebic languages) of Southeast Sulawesi, Indonesia. It is part of a dialect chain with two minor languages, Koroni and Taloki (Wiki).

Ethnologue: vkl. Alternate Names: Kalisusu, Kolensusu, Kolinsusu.

1999: see under BUNGKU-TOLAKI LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KULUNG (Nepal)] Kulung (autonym: Kulu rɨŋ, [kulu rɨŋ]) is a Kiranti language spoken by an estimated 33,000 people. Kulung in some ten villages along the upper reaches of the Huŋga or Hoŋgu river (a tributary of the Dūdḥkosī), in Solu Khumbu District of Sagarmāthā Zone, Nepal. The main Kulung-speaking villages are Chhemsī and Chheskam. The particular dialect of the language spoken in these two villages is considered by the Kulung to be the most original form of their language. Downstream, on both sides of the Huŋga river, in villages that are now called Luchcham, Gudel, Chocholung, Nāmluŋ, Pilmo, Bung, Chhekmā, and Sātdi, less prestigious varieties of Kulung are spoken (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kle. Alternate Names: Kulu Ring, Kulunge.

2005: [LILLY] Kulu Rai-Nepali Shabdakosh (Kulung Rai-Nepali Dictionary), by Bhupa Dhoj Rai. Italian Research Project, Everest K<sup>2</sup>-CNR: 2005. 203 p. Original two-tone blue, white and gray wrappers, lettered in white, blue and black. Kulung-Neapli, pp. 1-203. All entries are in Davnagari script. Introduction also in English. A Nepali-Kulung dictionary was published in 1992.

"[Mr. Bhopa Choj Rai] put many years into the editing of the Kulung-Nepali Dictionary, which is the first exhaustive dictionary of the Kulung Rai language. His work is a rare and important contribution to the knowledge of the linguistic heritage of the little-known Tibeto-berman speaking group of Eastern Nepal" (Introduction, Dr. Martino Nicoletti, Director, Anthropological Section of the Italian Research Project, Everest K<sup>2</sup>-CNR).

2006: [IUW] A grammar of Kulung, by Gerard Jacobus Tolsma. Leiden; Boston: Brill, 2006. xiv, 286 p.: ill., map; 25 cm. Original mustard-yellow cloth over boards, lettered in black, with a color photo of tribal members on the front cover. First edition. Brill's Tibetan studies library; v. 5/4. Brill's Tibetan studies library. Languages of the greater Himalayan region. Appendix 3: Kulung-English lexicon, pp. [229]-278. Includes bibliographical references (p. [285]-286). Preliminary material includes a detailed summary of previous published vocabularies of Kulung, with judgments on their value (pp. 4-5).

"The data presented here were collected during four field trips which the author undertook to Nepal between 1992 and 2005. This grammar of Kulung is an exhaustive reference work for Tibeto-Burman linguistics, language typology, and linguistic theory" (from rear cover).

[KUMAN (Papua New Guinea)] Kuman (also Chimbu or Simbu) is a language of Chimbu Province, Papua New Guinea. In 1994, it was estimated that 80,000 people spoke Kuman, 10,000 of them monolinguals; in the 2000 census, 115,000 were reported, with few monolinguals. Like other Chimbu languages, Kuman has rather unusual lateral consonants (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kue. Alternate Names: Chimbu, Simbu.

1969: [IUW] A comparative study of Kuman and Pawaian, by D. Trefry. Canberra, Australian National University, 1969. iv, 94 p. fold. map. 26 cm. First edition. Original light green wrappers, lettered in black, with green cloth spine lettered in silver. Pacific linguistics. Series B. "Lexical Comparison," based on 100 word Swadesh list, English-Pawaia-Kuman, pp. 2-4, with "Comparison of another 100 common words," English Pawaia-Kuman, pp. 4-7.

[KUMAONI] Kumaoni is spoken by over 2,360,000 (1998) people in Uttarakhand, primarily in districts Almora, Nainital, Pithoragarh, Bageshwar, Champawat, Udham Singh Nagar as well as in areas of Himachal Pradesh and Nepal. Almost all people who can speak and understand Kumaoni can also speak and understand Hindi, the official language of India. Due to a number of reasons (including the predominance of Hindi), the use of Kumaoni is shrinking very rapidly. UNESCO's Atlas of the World's Languages in Danger designates Kumaoni as language in the unsafe category and which requires consistent conservation efforts (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kfy. Alternate Names: Kamaoni, Kumau, Kumauni, Kumawani, Kumgoni, Kumman, Kunayaoni.

1994: [LILLY] Hindī-kumāṁnī-Āngreṣī śabdakośa: Hindi-Kumaoni-English dictionary / lekhaka Śera Simha Bishta. Saṁskaraṇa 1. First edition. Almorā: Śrī Almorā Buka Dīpo, 1994. [8], xxxv, 343 p.; 23 cm. Bound in purple cloth, spine stamped in gold, with original orange, white, yellow and black dust jacket, lettered in black. Preliminary material in Hindi. Hindi-Kumaoni-English, pp. 1-343.

[KUMBAINGGAR] Kumbainggar language (also spelled Gumbaingari, Gumbaynggir, Kumbaingeri, Gambalamam, and also called Baanbay) is an aboriginal Australian language. It is spoken by the Gumbaynggir people, native to the New South Wales Mid North Coast. It is the only surviving language in the Gumbaynggiric family of Pama-Nyungan stock. Ethnologue: kgs. Alternate Names Baanbay, Gambalamam, Gumbaingari, Gumbainggar, Gumbaynggir, Gumbayunggir, Kumbaingeri.

1903: [LILLY] "Das Kūmbainggeri: Eine Eingeborenen-sprache von Neu-Süd-Wales," by R. H. Mathews. "Sonderdruck aus Band XXIII (der dritten Folge Band III), der 'Mitteliungen der anthropologischen Gesellechaft in Wien', pp. [321]-328. Vienna: Selbstverlag der Anthropologischen Gesellschaft, 1903. Original printed yellow wrappers. German-Kumbainggar vocabulary, pp. 324-328. This is an [unsigned] German translation from the original English manuscript, according to the cover title. By 1981, the remaining speakers numbered "1 possibly". First printed vocabulary of this language.

2001: [IUW] A Gumbaynggir language dictionary = Gumbaynggir bijaarr jandaygam, produced by the Muurrbay Aboriginal Language and Culture Cooperative. Canberra: Aboriginal Studies Press for the Australian Institute of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Studies, 2001. 160 p.: ill., map; 25 cm.

[KUMIAI] Kumeyaay (Kumiai), also known as Central Diegueño, Kamia, and Campo, is the Native American language spoken by the Kumeyaay people of southern San Diego and Imperial counties in California. Hinton (1994:28) suggested a conservative estimate of 50 native speakers of Kumeyaay. A more liberal estimate (including speakers of Ipai and Tipai), supported by the results of the Census 2000, is 110 people in the US, including 15 persons under the age of 18. There were 377 speakers reported in the 2010 Mexican census, including 88 who called their language "Cochimi". Kumeyaay belongs to the Yuman language family and to the Delta–California branch of that family. Kumeyaay and its neighbors, Ipai to the north and Tipai to the south, were often considered to be dialects of a single Diegueño language, but the current consensus among linguists seems to be that at least three distinct languages are present within the dialect chain (e.g., Langdon 1990). Confusingly, Kumeyaay is commonly used as a designation both for the central language of this family and for the Ipai-Kumeyaay-Tipai people as a whole. Tipai is also commonly used as a collective designation for speakers of both Kumeyaay and Tipai proper (Wiki).

Ethnologue: dih. Alternate Names: Campo, Cochimí, Comeya, Cuchimí, Diegueño, Kamia, Kamiai, Kamiyahi, Kamiyai, Ki-Miai, Ko'al, Ku'ahl, Kumeyaai, Kumeyaay, Kumia, Kw'aal, Quemayá, Tipai', Tipái, Tipéi.

1907-1930: see Vol. 15 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

1973: [LILLYbm] Dictionary of Mesa Grande Diegueño. 'Lipay Aa-English / English - 'Lipay Aa, by Ted Couro and Christina Hutcheson, with introduction and notes by Margaret Langdon. Illustration by Leanne Hinton. Morongo Indian Reservation, Banning, California: Malki Museum Press, 1973. Original green and black wrappers, lettered in white and black, with photos on front and rear covers. Pp. [6] i-x, [2] 1-118. First edition. Includes Kumiái-English, pp. 1-57. and English-Kumiái, pp. 61-103. This copy signed and dated 1973 by Ted Couro and Margaret Langdon. Second copy: IUW.

"...the first dictionary of a Yuman Indian language, ... introduces a world of words, sounds, and ideas which directly reflect a still vital and cultural tradition of California and the Southwest. Diegueño is the major native language of San Diego County, and is still spoken today in a variety of dialects in the northern part of Baja California" (from rear cover).

[KUMYK] Kumyk (къумукъ тил, qumuq til) is a Turkic language, spoken by about 426,212 speakers (the Kumyks) in the Dagestan republic of Russian Federation. Irchi Kazak (Yırçı Qazaq; born 1839) is usually considered to be a founder of Kumyk literature. Kumyk was written using Arabic script until 1928, Latin script from 1928–1938, and Cyrillic script since then. The first regular newspapers and magazines appeared in 1917–18. It was composed sequentially of several Turkic dialects—those of the Oghur, Oghuz and Kypchak types—, which, in addition, have been interacting with Caucasian languages, namely Avar, Dargwa, Chechen, as well as with Ossetic. The language has also been influenced by Russian during the last century (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kum. Alternate Names: Kumuk, Kumuklar, Kumyki.

1960: [IUW] Russko-kumyksiĭ slovar'. Pod red. Z. Z. Bammatova. Okolo 30 000 slov. Moskva, Gos. izd-vo inostrannykh i natsional'nykh slovareĭ, 1960. 1148 p. 21 cm. Added t.p. in Kumyk.

1969: [IUW] Kumyksko-russkiĭ slovar'. [Sostavil A.G. Magomedov] Okolo 13 000 slov. Pod redaksiĭ Z.Z. Bammatova. Moskva, Sov. entsiklopediĭa, 1969. 408 p. 21 cm. At head of title: Dagestanskiĭ filial Akademii nauk SSSR. Institut istorii, ĭazyka i literatury im. G. TŠadasy. Added t. p. in Kumyk.

[KUMZARI] Kumzari (Persian: ی‌کمزار) is a Southwestern Iranian language that is similar to the Larestani and Luri languages. Although vulnerable, it survives today with between 4,000 and 5,000 speakers. It is spoken by Kumzaris in the Kumzar coast of Musandam Peninsula, northern Oman. This is the only Iranian language spoken exclusively in the Arabian Peninsula. Kumzaris can also be found in the towns of Dibba and Khasab as well as various villages, and on Larak Island. The speakers are descendants of fishermen who inhabited the coast of the Persian Gulf and the Gulf of Oman (Wiki).

Ethnologue: zum. Alternate Names: Kumzai.

1930: [LILLYbm] The Kumzari dialect of the Shihuh tribe, Arabia and a vocabulary, Bertram Thomas [1892- ]. London: The Royal Asiatic society, 1930. Original gray paper pasted to boards, with tan paper spine, lettered in and decorated in black. Pp. [2] 1 2-70. First edition. Series: Asiatic society monographs, vol. xxi. Includes English-Kumzari, pp. 19-57. First published vocabulary of the language. This copy with the ownership stamp of Joseph Redlinger, Jacksonville, Florida. Redlinger was author of America's first pioneers, Santa Maria Filipine Mission at Pensacola, Florida, 1954, and The Holy Mass according to the Syrian rite of Antioch with Anaphora of the Twelve Apostles, Jacksonville, Fla., 1955.

"Kumzari is a dialect spoken exclusively by certain coastal elements of the Shihuh tribe.... Kumzari is largely a compound of Arabic and Persian, but is distinct from them both. As it is spoken it is comprehensible neither to the Arab nor to the Persian visitor of usual illiteracy.... Kumzari is not a written language (not before written up), and the grammatical rules and vocabulary which follow I have collected, with the help of Ali Muhammad my Arab secretary, from the lips of its illiterate exponents" (p. [1]).

[KUNA] The Kuna language, spoken by the Kuna people of Panama and Colombia, belongs to the Chibchan language family. The Kunas were living in what is now Northern Colombia and the Darién Province of Panama at the time of the Spanish invasion, and only later began to move westward towards what is now Kuna Yala due to a conflict with the Spanish and other indigenous groups. During the first decades of the twentieth century, the Panamanian government attempted to suppress many of the traditional customs. This was bitterly resisted, culminating in a short-lived yet successful revolt in 1925 known as the Tule Revolution (or people revolution), led by Iguabilikinya Nele Kantule of Ustupu and supported by American adventurer and part-time diplomat Richard Marsh - and a treaty in which the Panamanians agreed to give the Kuna some degree of cultural autonomy (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists two separate languages for Kuna: 1) Border Kuna (kvn: alternate names: Caiman Nuevo, Colombia Cuna, Cuna, Paya-Pucuro) and 2) San Blas Kuna (cuk:

alternate names: Cuna, Guna, San Blas Cuna).

1852: [LILLY] The Isthmus of Darien ship canal, by Dr. Cullen. London: E. Wilson, 1852. 64, iv p., [2] leaves of plates: ill. (part fold.), maps; 22 cm. Bound in green/grey stiff boards, with yellow paper label on spine, edges sprinkled brown. "Appendix. Vocabulary of words in the language of the Tule or Darien Indians." -- p. [1]-iv at end. NUC pre-1956, 129:123. BM, 46:908.

1890: [IUW] Vocabulario castellano-cuna, por A.L. Pinart. Paris: Ernest Leroux, 1890. 63 p.; 19 cm. Library binding. Petite bibliothèque américaine 1. Spanish-Kuna vocabulary, pp. [9]-58, followed by "Algunas palabras de la lengua secreta de los leles o adivinos," and names of places and rivers, pp. [59]-63.

1913: [LILLYbm] Grammar and Glossary of the Tule Language of Panama, by J. Dyneley Prince. Lancaster, Penn.: The New Era Printing Company, 1913. New decorative paper over original blue wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [2] 479-481 482-528. First edition. "Reprinted from the American Anthropologist (N.S.), vol. 15, no. 3 (July-September 1913)." Includes Cuna [Kuna, San Blas]-English, pp. 488-528. First substantial vocabulary of the language, compiled from all previous sources.

"The present article is a study of the words and analogies in the extant Tule material, based on a collation of [five previous sources, including Pinart's Vocabulario Castellano-Cuna, 1890]" (p. [480]).

1952: [LILLYbm] Ethno-linguistic Cuna dictionary, with indices and references to A critical and comparative Cuna grammar (Etnologiska studier 14) and The grammatical sketch in Cuna chrestomathy (Etnologiska studier 18), by Nils M[agnus] Holmer [1904- ]. Goteborg: Etnografiska Museet, 1952. Original tan wrappers, lettered in red and black. Pp. 1-5 6-193 194-196 with 38 illustrations.. First edition. Series: Etnologiska Studier, v. 19. Zaunmüller, col. 43. Includes Kuna-English, pp. [1]-193. This copy with the ink stamps: "University of California" and "Anthropological Library" and the ownership stamp of A. L. Kroeber. Alfred Louis Kroeber [1876-1960] was one of the outstanding American linguists and anthropologists of his time. A prolific scholar, one of his earliest works was Shoshonean dialects of California, (Berkeley: The University Press, 1907), with comparative vocabularies of 19 Shonshonean dialects.

"The Cuna Dictionary ...comprises only such words and phrases as the author noted down during his and Dr. Henry Wassén's joint expedition to the Cuna Indians of Panama and Colombia in 1947" (Preface).

1985: [LILLYbm] Diccionario de la Lengua Kuna, Jesus Erice. [S.l.: s.n.], Impresora de la Nacion, 1985. Original blue and white wrappers, lettered and decorated in blue. Pp. 1-8 9-287 288. First edition. Includes Spanish-Kuna, pp. 9-165, and Kuna-Spanish, pp. 177-287. First true dictionary of the language.

"Finished in 1980, we were able to bring to public light the Grammar of the Kuna Language, as one of the fruits of our evangelization, for 38 consecutive years, on the Comarca de San Blas, known there as Kuna-Yala. Given its positive reception by the public, and at a point when the first edition was out of print, we thought of undertaking a second edition, corrected and augmented. In the meantime, we have brought to a happy conclusion this Dictionary of the same language" (Observacion, tr: BM).

2002: [IUW] Hable kuna, by Remi Henríquez B. Panamá, Rep. of Panamá: AUDOCYT, 2002 (Panamá, Rep. de Panamá: Impr. Articsa) 137 p.: ill.; 17 cm. Original light blue wrappers, lettered in black and yellow, with multi-colored decorations and a color photography on the front cover. In Kuna and Spanish. "Contiene: Aspectos generales sobre el pueblo Kuna. Gramática general Kuna. Frases y conversaciones sobre diferentes temas. Diccionario de palabras más usadas Español-Kuna"--P. [4] of cover. Includes Spanish-Kuna dictionary, pp. 98-137.

"The final section consists of a small dictionary which may be consulted additionally as needed. With this section we hope that the reader will be able to progress on his own in learning the Kuna language" (Introduction, tr: BM).

[KUNAMA] The Kunama language is a language isolate which has been included in the proposed Nilo-Saharan language family. Kunama is spoken by the Kunama people of western Eritrea and just across the Ethiopian border. The language has several dialects including: Barka, Marda, Aimara, Odasa, Tika, Lakatakura, Sokodasa, Takazze-Selit, and Tigray. Ilit and Bitama are not mutually intelligible and so may be considered distinct languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kun. Alternate Names: Baada, Baaden, Baaza, Baazayn, Baazen, Bada, Baden, Baza, Bazan, Cunama, Diila.

1873: [LILLY] Ett litet prof på Kunama-Språket, by P. Englund. Stockholm: Evangeliska Fosterlands-Stiftelsens Förlag, 1873. Original tan wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. Not in Hendrix. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes Kunama-Swedish, pp. 35-71. Probably earliest study/vocabulary of this language. "This rare grammar with texts and vocabulary is mentioned in Tucker and Bryan but not in the I.A.I. Cumulative Bibliography of African Studies [Fumagalli: 1215 vis.]"

1881-1891: [LILLY] Die Kunama-Sprache in Nordost-Afrika, by Leo Reinisch [1832-1919]. Wien: C. Gerold, 1881-1891. 4 pts. 24 cm. Part one in contemporary (original?) quarter-cloth and marbled boards; Part II in original tan wrappers, lettered in black; Part III in later blue wrappers; Part IV in original tan wrappers, lettered in black. Series: Sitzungsbericht der Kais. Akademie der Wissenschaften in Wien, Philosophisch-historische Klasse.; Bd. 98/1, 118, 122/5, 123/1; Variation: Österreichische Akademie der Wissenschaften.; Philosophisch-Historische Klasse.; Sitzungsberichte.; Bd. 98, Abh. 1, etc. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 904.

1918: [LILLY] Note grammaticali di Lingua Cunàma coll'aggiunta di alcune frasi più comuni e di un piccolo vocabolario: A cura della Missione Catholica di Barentù. [Umschlagtitel:] Grammatica della Lingua Cunama con annesso vocabolario. Italiano-Cunama e Cunama-Italiano. Asmara: Tip. Francescana, 1918. 262 S., 1 Bl. Original gray wrappers, lettered in red and black, and decorated in black. Includes Italian-Kunama, pp. [101]-180, and Kunama-Italian, pp. [181]-261. Not in Hendrix. Not in Zaunmüller.

1950: [LILLY] Vocabolario della lingua Cunama: Cunama Àura-Bucià, by Giuseppe Fermo de Castelnuovo. Roma: Curia Generalizia dei Fr. Min. Cappuccini, 1950. xi, 604 S. Contemporary red cloth, lettered in gold. Zaunmüller 231. Hendrix 903. Includes Kunama-Italian, pp. [3]-334, and Italian-Kunama, pp. [337]-585. One of 600 numbered copies [this copy 375], with the pencil inscription "P. Giuseppe Fermo | Via Sicilia, 159 | Roma, 350," most probably in the hand of the compiler, and with the bookplate of Wolf Leslau, author of many works on Ethiopia and linguistics, including a Concise Amharic dictionary: Amharic-English, English-Amharic (University of California Press, 1976).

[KUNG-EKOKA] Western !Xuun (North-Central Ju) or Ekoka !Kung (Ekoka !Xuun, Ekoka-!Xû, Kung-Ekoka) is a variety of the !Kung dialect cluster, spoken originally in the area of the central Namibian–Angolan border, west of the Okavango River, but since the Angolan civil war also in South Africa (Wiki).

Ethnologue: knw. Alternate Names: !Hu, !Khung, !Ku, !Kung, !Xu, !Xun, !Xung, Ekoka !Xung, Ekoka-!Xû, Kung, Qxü.

2008: [IUW] A concise dictionary of northwestern !Xun, by Christa König and Bernd Heine. Köln: R. Köppe, 2008. 186 p.: 1 map; 24 cm. Original red and white wrappers, lettered in white and black. First edition. Quellen zur Khoisan-Forschung; Bd. 21. !Xun [Kung-Ekoka]-English, pp. [15]-106, English-!Xun [Kung-Ekoka], pp. [107]-186. Includes bibliographical references (p. 11-14).

"The present volume grew out of our work on the grammar of the !Xun language of southern Angola, northern and eastern Namibia and northwestern Botswana between 2000 and 2008" (Preface).

"The present work is based on the Northwestern !Xun dialects, but our research was largely restricted to the W2 dialect, spoken in Eenhana District of northern Namibia. The lexical and grammatical items listed are, so far as we were able to establish, intelligible to most speakers of Northwestern !Xun and the dictionary can therefore be used in the whole area of this dialect cluster in northern Namibia and southern Angola, but not to speakers of Southeastern !Xun" (Introduction).

[KUNJEN] Kunjen, or Uw, is a Paman language spoken on the Cape York Peninsula of Queensland, Australia, by the Uw Oykangand people, Uw Olkola, and related peoples. It is closely related to Kuuk Thaayorre, and perhaps Kuuk Yak. Two of its dialects, Uw Olkola (Olgolo) and Uw Oykangand (Koko Wanggara), are very close, being mutually intelligible and sharing 97% of their core vocabulary. Another two, Ogh-Undjan and Kawarrangg, are also close, but somewhat more distant from the first pair. Kokinj (Kokiny) is a subdialect of Ogh-Undjan. Glottolog reports a variety Athima, but this is not documented at AIATSIS (Wiki).

Ethnologue: knj. Alternate Names: Guguminjen, Kukumindjen.

1972: [IUW] Kunjen syntax: a generative view [by] Bruce A. Sommer. Canberra, Australian Institute of Aboriginal Studies, 1972. xii, 160 p. illus. 26 cm. First edition. Library binding, incorporating original brown and white front wrappers, lettered and illustrated in black. Australian aboriginal studies no. 45. Linguistic series, no. 19. Chapter 13: "Sample text and Lexicon," lexicon, Kunjen-English, pp. 148-152. Bibliography: p. 157-160.

"Research into the Kunjen dialects was begun by the author and his wife in July 1964, under the auspices of the Summer Institute of Linguistics and Wycliffe Bible Translators. It is intended that this research be the first phase of a programme which will also embrace vernacular literacy and Bible Translation for the Kunjen people. The overall aim of the programme is to offer the moral strength and ethnical values of Christianity to Aboriginal people who are making the tortuous but inevitable transition from their own culture to the way of life espoused by their white neighbours" (Preface).

[KUNZA] Kunza aka Cunza, also known as Likanantaí, Lipe, Ulipe, or Atacameño, is an extinct language isolate once spoken in the Atacama Desert of northern Chile and southern Perú (specifically in Peine, Socaire (Salar de Atacama), and Caspana) by the Lickan-antay people, who have since shifted to Spanish. The last Kunza speaker was found in 1949, although some have been found since according to anthropologists. There are 2,000 Atacameños (W. Adelaar). A dictionary was made for Kunza. Kaufman (1990) found a proposed connection between Kunza and the likewise unclassified Kapixaná to be plausible; however, when that language was more fully described in 2004, it turned out to be an isolate (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kuz. Alternate Names: Atacameño, Likanantaí, Lipe, Ulipe.

ca. 1900: [LILLY] Vocabularios y nuevos materiales para el estudio de la lengua de los Indios Lican-Antai (Atacameños)—Calchaqui, por Rodolfo R. Schuller. Santiago: F. Becerra, [190-?] 124, [3] p.; 28 cm. Series: Biblioteca de lingüística americana (Zona Atacameña--Cunza--Calchaquí) t. II. "Obras consultadas": p. 117-124. Bound in quarter black leather and gold decorated boards, red and white decorated endpapers.

[KUR] Teor and Kur are two varieties of Austronesian (geographically Central–Eastern Malayo-Polynesian) spoken near Kei Island, Indonesia. They are reportedly mutually intelligible (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kuv.

1867: see under OCEANIC LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1903: see under OCEANIC LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KURDISH] Kurdish (کوردی, Kurdí) is a continuum of Northwestern Iranian languages spoken by the Kurds in Western Asia. Kurdish forms three dialect groups known as Northern Kurdish (Kurmanji), Central Kurdish (Sorani), and Southern Kurdish (Pehlewani). A separate group of languages, Zaza-Gorani, is also spoken by several million Kurds, but is linguistically not Kurdish. Recent (as of 2009) studies estimate between 20 and 30 million native speakers of Kurdish in total. The majority of the Kurds speak Kurmanji. The literary output in Kurdish was mostly confined to poetry until the early 20th century, when more general literature began to be developed. Today, there are two principal written Kurdish dialects, namely Kurmanji in the northern parts of the geographical region of Kurdistan, and Sorani further east and south. The standard Sorani form of Central Kurdish is, along with Arabic, one of the two official languages of Iraq and is in political documents simply referred to as Kurdish (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists Kurdish (kur) as a macro-language of Iraq, including: 1) Southern Kurdish (sdh), 2) Central Kurdish (ckb: alternate names: Kurdi, Sorani), and 3) Northern Kurdish (kmr: alternate names: Kermancî, Kirmancî, Kurdi, Kurdí, Kurmancî, Kurmanji).

1787: [LILLYbm] Grammatica e Vocabolario della lingua Kurda, compiled by Maurizio Garzoni. Rome: Stamperia della Sacra Congregazione di Propaganda Fide, 1787. Contemporary vellum over boards, spine strengthened with later tan linen. Pp. 1-2 3-288. First edition. Zauhmüller, col. 232. Italian-Kurdish vocabulary, pp. 79-282, followed by the Our Father and Hail Mary in Kurdish and Latin. First dictionary of the Kurdish language.

"The first systematic Kurdish grammar, including an Italian-Kurdish dictionary and a preface concerning missionaries. The author Garzoni was a Dominican missionary, the second to go into the region of the Kurds setting out from Mosul in 1764 (the first missionary in Kurdistan was also a Dominican, Leopoldo Soldini, resident 1760 to 1779). Garzoni stayed until 1787 and managed to learn the language, understand the grammar and compile a vocabulary of some 4500 words that are given here with an Italian translation. -; This work is very important in the Kurdish history as it is the first acknowledgement of the originality of the Kurdish language on a scientific base. Garzoni was given the title of Father of Kurdology, and of the pioneer Kurdish grammarian' (Mirella Galetti)" (bookseller's description of another copy: Rezek).

1879: [LILLYbm] Dictionnaire kurde-français, by Auguste Jaba, edited by Ferdinand Justi. St. Petersburg: Commissionnaire de l'Academie Imperiale des Sciences; [etc.], 1879. Modern brown half-leather and marbled paper over boards, spine decorated in gold, with red leather label lettered in gold. Pp. I-III IV-XVIII, 1 2-463 464. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 232. Includes Kurdish-French, pp. [1]-463.

"[Auguste Jaba's] manuscript was delivered to the Imperial Academy in 1867. A short time later Jaba added to the Kurdish vocabulary an even more thorough French-Russian-Kurdish dictionary. I have incorporated the new words from the latter in the present Kurdish-French dictionary. M. Jaba placed at my disposal in manuscript form a rich collection of Kurdish dialogues that deserve publication. I have taken the liberty of adding new words from this manuscript to the dictionary as well" (Foreword, Ferdinand Justi, tr: BM).

1957a: [LILLYbm] Kurdsko-russkii slovar: okolo 14000 slov, by Ch[erkes] Kh[udoevich] Bakaev. Moscow: Gos. izd-vo inostrannykh i natsionalnykh slovarëi, 1957. Original green cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in black and gold. 620 pp. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 232, as "in preparation." There is also a Russian-Kurdish dictionary in the same series, Moscow, 1957, by Farizov (see below). From the library of Carleton T. Hodge. First Russian dictionary of the language. Second copy: IUW.

1957b: [IUW] Russko-kurdskiï slovar'. Okolo 30 000 slov. Sostavil I.O. Farizov. Moskva, Gos. izd-vo inostrannykh i natsional'nykh slovarëi, 1957. 781 p. 21 cm. Added t. p. in Kurdish. Bibliography: p. 6.

1965: [IUW] Dictionnaire kurde-français-anglais, by Joyce Blau. Bruxelles, Centre pour l'étude des problèmes du monde musulman contemporain, 1965. xvii, 263 p. 25 cm. Correspondance d'Orient; no. 9 Added t. p.: Kurdish-French-English dictionary. Bibliography: p. xiii-xvi.

1975: [IUW] ضياء الدين باشا الخالدي المقدسي ؛ حققه وقدم له مع / الهدية الحميدية في اللغة الكردية دراسات لغوية محمد مكري , *al-Hadīyah al-Ḥamīdīyah fī al-lughah al-Kurdīyah / Ḍiyā' al-Dīn Bāshā al-Khālīdī al-Maqdisī; ḥaqqaqahu wa-qaddama la-hu ma'a dirāsāt lughawīyah Muḥammad Mukrī. Yusuf Ziyaeddin Paşa. مكتبة لبنان، بيروت: 1975. Bayrūt: Maktabat Lubnān, 1975. 240, 56 pages; 25 cm. Added title page: Dictionnaire kurde-arabe. Textes et études religieux, linguistiques et ethnographiques no 4. Introd. in French and English. Kurdish-Arabic dictionary.*

1977: [IUW] Uchebnyï russko-kurdskiï slovar' dliā izuchaiushchikh russkiï iazyk: 2100 slov, E. I. Kedaītene, Kurdistan Mukriani, V. I. Mitrokhina; Pod red. E. I. Kedaītene. Moskva: Russkiï iazyk, 1977. 368 p.; 17 cm. Russian-Kurdish dictionary.

1979: [IUW] Kurdsko-russkiĭ frazeologicheskiĭ slovar': Soderzhit okolo 8000 frazeologicheskikh stateĭ, M. U. Khamoĭan. Erevan: Izd-vo AN ArmSSR, 1979. 275 p.; 27 cm. Kurdish-Russian dictionary of phraseology.

198-?: [IUW] Khvudāmūz-i kāmīl-i Kurdī, ta'līf-i Muṣṭafā Īlkhānī. Chāp-i 3. Saqiz [Iran]: Intishārāt-i Muḥammādī, [136-?] [198-?] 112 p.; 17 cm. Kurdish-Persian dictionary, conversation and phrase book.

1983: [IUW] Kurdsko-russkiĭ slovar' (sorani): okolo 25,000 slov, K.K. Kurdoev, Z.A. ĪUsupova. Moskva: "Russkiĭ ĭazyk," 1983. 752 p.; 21 cm. Kurdish-Russian dictionary.

1992: [IUW] Wörterbuch Kurdisch: Kurdisch/Deutsch [Deutsch/Kurdisch], Amîrxan. First edition. Ismaning: Hueber, 1992. 2 v.; 21 cm. Sprachen der Welt. Kurdish-German, German-Kurdish dictionary.

2001-2010: [IUW] Этимологический словарь курдского языка / Р.Л. Цаболов. Ètimologicheskii slovar' kurdsogo ĭazyka, by R.L. ṪSabolov. Moskva: "Vostochnaia lit-ra" РАН, 2001-2010. Moskva: "Vostochnaia lit-ra" RAN, 2001-2010. 2 v.; 25 cm. Contents: t. 1. A-M; t. 2. N-Ž. Kurdish-Russian etymological dictionary.

2003: [IUW] Kurdish-English dictionary = Ferhenga Kurmancî-Inglîzî, by Michael L. Chyety; with selected etymologies by Martin Schwartz. New Haven [Conn.]: Yale University Press, c2003. xlii, 847 p.: 1 map; 29 cm. Yale language series. Includes bibliographical references (p. xxiv-xxxvi).

2006?: [IUW] Farhang-i Fārsī – Kurdī, ta'līf, Shukr Allāh Bābān. چاپ 1. . Chāp-i 1. انتشارات کردستان، ایران: سنندج، 1384 [2005 or 2006] Sanandaj, Īrān: Intishārāt-i Kurdistān, 1384 [2005 or 2006] 422 p.; 22 cm. Also issued online. Persian-Kurdish dictionary.

2014: [IUW] Kurdisch Grundwortschatz = Kurdī, bingeha xezîne ya bêjeyan, by Isabella Bêrivan. Wiesbaden: Reichert Verlag, 2014. ©2015 140 pages; 18 cm. Includes bibliographical references. German-Kurdish dictionary.

[KURDISH, CENTRAL] Central Kurdish (کوردی ناوەندی; kurdîy nawendî) also called Sorani (سۆرانی; Soranî) is a Kurdish dialect spoken in Iraq, mainly in Iraqi Kurdistan, as well as the Kurdistan Province of western Iran. Sorani Kurdish is one of the two official languages of Iraq, along with Arabic, and is in political documents simply referred to as "Kurdish". The term Sorani (سۆرانی; Soranî), after the name of the former principality of Soran, is used especially to refer to a written, standardized form of Central Kurdish written in an adapted form of the Kurdo-Arabic alphabet, developed in the 1920s by Sa'îd Sidqi Kaban and Taufiq Wahby (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ckb. Alternate Names: Kurdi, Sorani.

1967: [LILLYbm] Kurdish-English dictionary, dialect of Sulaimania, Iraq, by Ernest N[asseph] McCarus [1922- ]. Ann Arbor: University of Michigan Press, 1967. Original green and black wrappers, lettered in green and black. Pp. [2] i-ii iii-x, 1-194 195-196. First edition. University of Michigan Publications in Kurdish, no. 5. Includes Kurdish-English, pp. 1-194. Ethnologue lists Suleimani as a dialect of Central Kurdish. Second copy: IUW.

"In 1960 the Office of Education proposed that Ernest N. McCarus... begin the preparation of a Basic Course and a series of graded Readers for the instruction of students of [Kurdish]... The Department of Near Eastern Languages and Literatures is proud that ... Professor McCarus has thus brought to successful completion a series of volumes devoted to the study of a language, Kurdish, which (through spoken by a substantial number of people in the Near East) has received comparatively little attention hitherto in the United States" (Preface).

[KURDISH, NORTHERN] Northern Kurdish (نێرۆژێکورد; kurdiya jorîn), also called Kurmanji (کۆرمانجی; Kurmancî), is a group of Kurdish dialects predominantly spoken in southeast Turkey, northwest Iran, northern Iraq and northern Syria. It is the most widespread dialect group of the Kurdish languages. While Kurdish is generally categorized as one of the Northwestern Iranian languages along with Baluchi, it also shares many traits with Southwestern Iranian languages like Persian, apparently due to longstanding and intense historical contacts, and some authorities have gone so far as to classify Kurmanji as a Southwestern or "southern" Iranian language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kmr. Alternate Names: Kermancî, Kirmancî, Kurdi, Kurdî, Kurmancî, Kurmanji.

1887-1890: [LILLYbm] Sammlungen: Erzählungen und Lieder im Dialekte des Tur'Abdin, ed. and trans. by Eugen Prym [Heinrich Eugen] & Albert Socin. St. Petersburg: Commissionnaires de l'Akademie Impériale de sciences, etc., 1887-1890. Two volumes bound in one. Contemporary brown half-leather and blue marbled paper over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. The text and translation paged separately and bound according to parts as issued rather than pagination: [I]-XIII, [1]-70, [2 pp.], 1-98, [8 pp.], [XV]-[71]-350, [8 pp.], [99]-284. First edition. Not in Zaubmüller. Kurdish-German vocabulary, pp. [281]-347. Northern Kurdish is spoken in the Tur Abdin region of Turkey. From the library of Carleton T. Hodge.

1913: [LILLYbm] Grammar of the Kurmanji or Kurdish Language, by E[ly] B[anister] Soane. London: Luzac & Co., 1913. Later brown cloth over boards, lettered in gold, with ink stamp of Publishers United of Lahore on flyleaf. 290 pp. First edition. Not in Zaubmüller, who lists no English-language book for Kurdish. Includes, pp. 170-289, an English-Kurdish vocabulary.

"It was not so long ago that Kurdish was described by travellers as a harsh jargon, a very corrupt dialect of Persian, unintelligible to any but the folk who spoke it naturally; or again by others as an artificial language composed of Persian, Armenian, and Turkish words. It is neither of these. A little research proves it to be as worthy of the name of a separate and developed language as Turkish or Persian themselves...[Kurdish is] a tongue as different from the artificial Persian as the rough Kur See Malay 1634 [Herbert], which includes what is probably the first word-list of Nama [unnamed], p. 16. d himself is from the polished Persian." This may be the first extensive vocabulary of Kurdish published in English. From the library of Carleton T. Hodge.

1956: [LILLYbm] Farhang-i Bahdinin, by Jamshid Soroush Soroushian. Sutudah, Manuchihr, ed. Tihiran: Farhang-i Iran zamin, Chapkhanah-yi Danishgah-i Tihiran, 1956. [29], 218 p., [9] leaves pf plates (1 folded); illus.; 24 cm. Light orange-brown quarter-leather, with tan paper over boards; spine lettered in Persian in gold. Series: Farhang-i Iran zamin 3. Added title page: Farhang-e Behdinin. By Jamshid Soroush Soroushian with a preface from I. Poure-Davoud. Edited by Manoochehr Sotoodeh. Iranian Persian-Northern Kurdish dictionary. In Iraq, Northern Kurdish has alternate names, including Badinani, Bahdini, and Behdini. From the library of Carleton T. Hodge.

1965: [LILLYbm] Iazyk azerbaidzhanskikh kurdov, by Ch[herkes] Kh[udoevich]. Moscow: Izd-vo "Nauka," 1965. Original gray quarter-cloth and orange paper over boards, lettered and decorated in black and white. 284 pp. + errata slip. First edition. Includes texts in the Kurdish of Azerbaijan [Northern Kurdish] with Russian translation, and a Kurdish-Azerbaijan-Russian vocabulary, pp. 190-281. From the library of Carleton T. Hodge. Second copy: IUW.

1993: [LILLYbm] Kurdish-English. English-Kurdish (Kurmançî) Dictionary. Ferhang Kurdî-Îngîlîzî. Îngîlîzî-Kurdî, by Baran Rizgar [M.F. Onen]. London: [published by the author], 1993. Original red, yellow and green wrappers, lettered and decorated in black, white and yellow. Pp. 1-3 4-400. First edition. Includes Kurdish-English, pp. 20-210, and English-Kurdish, pp. 212-376, with a bibliography, pp. 15-17. Second copy: IUW.

"The first section (Kurdish-English) of this dictionary has been prepared by examining more than 300 Kurdish books, magazines and newspaper... I then added words I had gathered from spoken Kurdish, thus the number of the words totaled up to 25,000... Although this dictionary includes words from all Kurdish dialects, it has been based on Kurmançî which is the dialect spoken by most of the Kurds in Turkish Kurdistan, all the Kurds in Syria, the Soviet Union and Lebanon, and some of the Kurds in Iraq and Iranian Kurdistan" (Introduction).

2007a: [IUW] کردی / تالیف حافظ قاضي؛ تحقیق اسماعیل طه شاهین-قاموس القاضي: عربي Qāmūs al-Qāḏī: ‘Arabī-Kurdī / ta’līf Ḥāfiẓ Qāḏī; taḥqīq Ismā‘īl Ṭāhā Shāhīn. الطبعة 1. al-Ṭab‘ah 1. 2007. 469 p.; 24 cm. In Kurmanji Kurdish (Arabic script) and Arabic. Arabic-Kurdish dictionary.

2007?b: [IUW] (فارسی / مؤلف، عباس جلیلیان (ناکو-کردی-فرهنگ باشوور: کردی Farhang-i Bāshūūr: Kurdī-Kurdī-Fārsī / mu’allif, ‘Abbās Jalīliyān (‘Akū). 1. چاپ [Tehran]: Intishārāt-i Pursimān, 1385 [2006 or 2007] 37, 810 p.; 29 cm. Also issued online. Kurdish-Persian dictionary.

[KURIA] Kuria is spoken by the Kuria peoples of Northern Tanzania, with some speakers also residing in Kenya. Maho (2009) treats the Simbiti, Hacha, Surwa, and Sweta varieties as distinct languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kuj. Alternate Names: Egikuria, Ekikuria, Igikuria, Ikikuria, Kikuria, Kikuria cha juu, Kikuria cha Mashariki, Korja, Kulia, Kurya, Kurye.

1996: [IUW] Kuria-English dictionary, edited by S.M. Muniko, B. Muita oMagige, M.J. Ruel. Hamburg: LIT, [1996]. x, 137 p.; 21 cm. Library binding incorporating the original green and white wrappers, lettered in black, with a drawing of Kuria people on the front cover. Series: Monographs from the International African Institute. A Kuria-English dictionary, pp. 1-137.

"Kuria is an eastern Bantu language, spoken by around a million people whose homeland lies in Kuria District, Nyanza Province, of southwestern Kenya and the neighboring area of Tarime District of the Mara Region of northern Tanzania.... The present dictionary has developed out of a word-list first made as part of an anthropological study carried out during the 1950s. Transcribed onto a computer and printed out in 1991 it aroused much local interest but it was also apparent that Kuria vocabulary had changed considerably in the interval. For it to have any value it was necessary both to extend this original word-list and to update it. The original word-list had perhaps 2,000 entries. The present dictionary has some 6,400 entries and definitions for a total of about 8,500 words" (Introduction), With a further detailed discussion of the compilation of the dictionary.

[KURNAI] The Gunai language (also spelt Gunnai, Ganai, Gaanay, Kurnai, Kurnay) is an Australian aboriginal dialect cluster of the Gunai people in Gippsland in south-east Victoria. Bidhawal (Birrdhawal) was either a divergent dialect or a closely related language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: unn. Alternate Names: Cunni, Ganai, Gooni, Gunna, Gunnai, Kunnai.

1907: [LILLY] "Language of the Birdhawal Tribe, in Gippsland, Victoria," by R. H. Mathews. Reprinted from Proceedings of the American Philosophical Society, Vol. XLVI, 1907, pp. [346]-359. With original printed wrappers. "Birdhawal Vocabulary," English-Birdhawal, pp. 354-357, arranged thematically. The tribe lived in the "extreme eastern corner of the state of Victoria, but also a small strip of country within the New South Wales frontier, adjacent to the Kurnai tribe." First printed vocabulary of this language.

" The Bidhawal (also known as Bidawal and Bidwell) were an Australian Aboriginal tribe of Gippsland, Victoria. According to A. W. Howitt, the Bidhawal were composed of "refugees from tribal justice or individual vengeance" from neighbouring tribes. The Bidhawal spoke a dialect of the Kurnai language, which was also spoken by the Kurnai tribes to the west. However, the Bidhawal dialect had borrowed a number of words referring to mammals, birds and celestial bodies from Ngarigo, as well as a smaller number of words from Thawa and Dhudhuroa. The Bidhawal called their own dialect mük-dhang ("good speech"), and that of the neighbouring Kurnai gūnggala-dhang. The Kurnai, however, called their own dialect mük-dhang, and that of the Bidhawal kwai-dhang ("rough speech")" (Wiki).

[KURUMBARU, ALU] Alu Kurumba, also known as Hal Kurumba or alternatively Pal Kurumba, is a Southern Dravidian language of the Tamil–Kannada subgroup spoken by the Alu Kurumba tribe [in India]. It is often considered to constitute a dialect of Kannada; however, Ethnologue classifies it as a separate language. Alu Kurumba speakers are situated on the Nilgiri Hills cross-border area between Tamil Nadu and Karnataka (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xua. Alternate Names: Alu Kurumba Nonstandard Kannada, Hal Kurumba, Pal Kurumba.

1982: [LILLYbm] Alu-Kurumbaru Nayan: die Sprache der Alu-Kurumbas: Grammatik, Texte, Wörterbuch, by Dieter B. Kapp. Wiesbaden: Otto Harrassowitz, 1982. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. I-VI VII-XXXIII XXXIV, 1 2-442. First edition. Series: Neuindische Studien, Vol. 7. Not in Hendrix. Includes as Part III an etymological dictionary, Alu-Kurumbaru-German, pp. 275-436, with bibliography, pp. 437-442. Presentation copy from the author, inscribed on the free endpaper: "Mit herzlichen Grüßen | und allen guten Wünschen | Ihr Dieter B. Kapp." With the ink ownership stamp of Prof. Dr. Joh. Schröpfer of Heidelberg. A noted scholar of linguistics, Schröpfer was author of Hussens Traktat "Orthographia Bohemica": die

Herkunft des diakritischen Systems in der Schreibung slavischer Sprachen und die älteste zusammenhängende Beschreibung slavischer Laute (Wiesbaden: Otto Harrassowitz, 1968). This is the first true dictionary of the language.

"The present work represents an attempt to provide a sufficiently complete description of an unwritten Dravidian language spoken by a tribe whose approximately 1000 members generally refer to themselves simply as 'Kurumbas,' and, in order to differentiate themselves from various Kurumba tribes living in varying degrees of proximity, as 'Alu-Kurumbas.' ... The Alu-Kurumbas, often referred to as the magicians of the Nilgiris Hills because they practice black magic,... gather jungle products of various sorts and hunt now and then with the aid of traps, snares and nets.... The prior published linguistic material on the Alu-Kurumbas is limited to: 1. 19th century word lists and a summary of a few grammatical forms, and 2. the transcription of a text based on a phonographic recording from the year 1922" (Introduction, tr: BM).

[KURUDU] Kurudu is an Eastern Yapen languages dialect of the Malayo-Polynesian languages, in Papua Province of Western New Guinea, northeastern Indonesia. It is spoken on Kurudu Island, located in Cenderawasih Bay between Serui Island of the Yapen Islands, and the New Guinea mainland (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kjr.

1961: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[KURUX] Kurukh /'kʊrʊx/ (also Kurux and Oraon or Uranw; Devanagari: कुडुख) is a Dravidian language spoken by nearly two million Oraon and Kisan tribal peoples of Odisha and surrounding areas of India (Bihar, Jharkhand, Madhya Pradesh, Chhattisgarh, and West Bengal), as well as by 50,000 in northern Bangladesh, 28,600 a dialect called Dhangar in Nepal, and about 5,000 in Bhutan. It is most closely related to Brahui and Malto (Paharia). The language is marked as being in a "vulnerable" state in UNESCO's list of endangered languages. Kurukh is written in the Devanagari script, a script used to write Sanskrit, Hindi, Marathi, Nepali and other Indo-Aryan languages. Narayan Oraon, a medical doctor, has invented the Tolong Siki script for Kurukh language. Many books and magazine have been published in Tolong Siki script. The Kurukh Literary Society of India have been instrumental to spread the Tolong Siki script for Kurukh literature (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kru. Alternate Names: Kadukali, Kurka, Kurukh, Oraon, Urang, Uraon.

1903: [LILLYbm] Kurukh (Orāō)-English dictionary. Part I., by Ferd[inand] Hahn. Calcutta: Bengal Secretariat Press, 1903. Original dark blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. [2] i ii, 1 2-184. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. This appears to be the earliest substantial published vocabulary of the language. There is no indication that Part II, presumably English-Kurux, was ever published. Includes Kurux-English, pp. [1]-184. Second copy: IUW.

This copy with a red ink stamp on the title page stating: "Forwarded by order of T. Ellumn [?] NT Governor of Bengal. 9 December 1903" and a black ink ownership stamp: "Bibliothèque Émile Senart". Émile Charles Marie Senart [1847-1928] was author of Les castes dans l'Inde: les faits et le système (Paris: E. Leroux, 1896; English version 1935) and Origines bouddhiques (Paris: E. Leroux, 1907).

"The original intention of the author of this volume was to write a vocabulary only; however, since Government wished it to be as complete as possible...illustrations and phrases have been incorporated in this collection to such an extent that it is more properly called a Dictionary.... This dictionary contains more than 5,000 words and phrases" (Introductory Remarks).

1924: [LILLYbm] An Oraon-English Dictionary in the Roman character with numerous phrases illustrative of sense and idiom and notes on tribal customs, beliefs, etc., by A. Grignard. St. Gabriel-Mödling near Vienna, Austria: Administration of "Anthropos." 1924; For India: Calcutta: sold at the Catholic Orphan Press, 1924. Original? dark olive cloth over boards, lettered in gold; original wrappers preserved. Pp. I-III IV-VII VIII, 1 2-697 698. First edition. Series: Anthropos Linguistische Bibliothek, Vol. II. Not in Zaunmüller. This dictionary was reprinted in 1986 in New Delhi. Includes Oraon-English, pp. [1]-697.

"The present work, being the first of its kind of size to appear in the field of Oraon Lexicography, can lay no claim to exhaustiveness as a record of terms, or to unfailing accuracy with regard to their interpretation. The compiler, however, has spared no pains to achieve as fair an approach to these desirable features as has been in his power. In addition to the extensive lists of terms gleaned by himself during an intercourse of several years with native speakers, he has derived much useful material from an Oraon Vocabulary published in 1900 [actually 1903, see above] by the late F. Hahn, of the G.E.L. Mission in Chota-Nagpore....For a still larger quota of word-entries...the author is indebted to a lithographed Lexicological Essay, designed on masterly lines by the Rev. Fr. Théophile Bodson S.J., in the early nineties. This distinguished scholar, unfortunately, was prevented by a premature end from pushing his work further than the letter L."(Preface).

1936: [LILLYbm] An English-Oraon Dictionary, compiled by several missionaries in collaboration, ed. by C. Bleses. Ranchi: Dharmik Sahitya Samiti, 1936. Original brown cloth over boards, lettered in black. 178 pp. + 1 p. advertisement. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. "This dictionary was originally compiled by Fr. A. Grignard, S.J., the author of An Oraon-English Dictionary (Anthropos, Vienna, 1924) (see above). Owing to his untimely death, the work was taken over by [three other missionaries]. The manuscript was then handed over to me for final revision."

[KUSAAL] Kusaal, or Kusasi (Qusasi), is a Gur language spoken primarily in northern Ghana. It is spoken by roughly 400,000 people and takes its name from the Kusasi people, who form the majority of the population of the area in the far northeast of Ghana, between the Gambaga escarpment, the Red Volta, and the national borders with Togo and Burkina Faso. There are some villages of Kusaasi in Burkina and also a few speakers in Togo. Kusaal is closely related to Mampruli, the language of the Mamprussi, who live to the south, and to Dagbani. There is a major dialect division between Agole, to the east of the White Volta river, and Toende, to the West. Agole has more speakers, and the only large town of the district, Bawku, is in Agole. The New Testament translation is in the Agole dialect (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kus. Alternate Names: Kusaasi, Kusale, Kusasi.

1932: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[KUSUNDA] Kusunda (Kusanda) is a language isolate spoken by a handful of people in western and central Nepal. It has only recently been described in any detail. For decades the Kusunda language was thought to be on the verge of extinction, with little hope of ever knowing it well. The little material that could be gleaned from the memories of former speakers suggested that the language was an isolate, but without much evidence either way it was often classified along with its neighbors as Tibeto-Burman. However, in 2004 three Kusundas, Gyani Maya Sen, Prem Bahadur Shahi and Kamala Singh, were brought to Kathmandu for help with citizenship papers. There, members of Tribhuvan University discovered that one of them was a fluent speaker of the language. Several of her relatives were also discovered to be fluent. There are now known to be at least seven or eight fluent speakers of the language, the youngest in her thirties. However, the language is moribund, with no children learning it, as all Kusunda speakers have married outside their ethnicity. Watters (2005) published a mid-sized grammatical description of the language, plus vocabulary, which shows that Kusunda is indeed a language isolate, not just genealogically but also lexically, grammatically, and phonologically distinct from its neighbors. It appears that Kusunda is a remnant of the languages spoken in northern India before the influx of Tibeto-Burman- and Indo-Iranian-speaking peoples, however it is not classified as a Munda or a Dravidian language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kgg. Alternate Names: Kusanda.

1970: [IUW] A preliminary linguistic analysis and vocabulary of the Kusunda language [by] Johan Reinhard [and] Tim Toba. [Kirtipur, Summer Institute of Linguistics and Tribhuvan University] 1970. 31 l. 28 cm. Library binding. Reproduced from typescript. V. Lexicon: Kusunda-English, ff. 23-31. Bibliography: leaves 2-3.

"On the basis of vocabulary, the Kusunda language does not appear to be related with any of the major language families of South Asia.... The term 'Kusunda' is used by some villagers to denote any group which lives in the forest and hunts. The Kusundas refer to themselves as 'gilong-dei mihaq' (forest people) or preferably 'ban raja' (forest kings). The Kusundas are not listed in the Nepal Government Census of 1961-62, and there are only three known speakers at present" (Introduction).

[KUTENAI] The Kutenai language (English pronunciation: /'ku:tːneɪ, -ni/), also Kootenai, Kootenay and Ktunaxa, is named after and is spoken by some of the Kutenai people Native American/First Nations, indigenous to the area of North America that is now Montana, Idaho, and British Columbia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kut. Alternate Names: Kootenai, Kootenay, Ktunaxa.

1846: see 9) under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

1863: [LILLY] New Indian sketches, by Rev. P.J. de Smet, S.J. New York; Boston: D. & J. Sadlier, 1863. 175 p., [2] leaves of plates: ill., front.; 16 cm. "A vocabulary of the Skalzi, or Koetenay tribe": p. 118-125. Sabin, [82267]. Howes, U.S.iana, no. D285. Second copy: IUW.

1894: [LILLY] New words in the Kootenay language, by A. F. Chamberlain. [Washington D.C.: Anthropological Society], 1894. 8vo, pp. [2], 187-192 (i.e. 8 pages); inscribed by the author to J. C. Pilling; gray paper wrappers with paper label on upper wrapper, laid into a red cloth folder; paper label partially perished on spine. An Ayer Linguistics duplicate, with Newberry library label and release stamp on inner covers. An offprint from the American Anthropologist. Classified vocabulary, Kutenai with English explanations, pp.[186]-192.

"In this brief essay, the writer discusses the names for "things new"" in the Kootenay language of southeastern British Columbia, on the study of which he has been engaged for the last two years" p. [186].

1907-1930: see Vol. 7 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[KUVI] Kuvi is a Dravidian language spoken by the Khonds. It is mostly spoken in Orissa (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kxv. Alternate Names: Jatapu, Khondh, Khondi, Kond, Kuvi Kond, Kuvinga, Kuwi.

1913: [LILLYbm] Vocabulary of Kuvi-Kond Language with short sentences on general subjects for conversational purposes, by F. V. P. Schulze. Madras: Printed by Graves, Cookson & Co., 1913. Later black quarter leather and blue and white patterned paper over boards, unlettered. 151 pp. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. English-Kuvi-Kond vocabulary arranged by groups; Part II: "Vocabulary of Verbs" English-Kui, pp. 89-151.

Most Khond people speak Kui, a Dravidian language. Kuvi as presented here is totally different from the "Western Khond" language Kuvinga Bassa presented under Kui.

[KUWAA] The Kuwaa language, also known as Belle, Belleh, Kowao, and Kwaa, is a Kru language of the Niger–Congo language family. It is spoken in northwestern Liberia, primarily in Lofa County. The speech of the Lubaisu and Gbade, the two Kuwaa clans, is differentiated only by minor variations in pronunciation (Wiki)..

Ethnologue: blh. Alternate Names: Belle, Belleh, Kowao, Kwaa.

1974: [IUW] A general primer in Belle / contributing writers, Doris Thompson, F. Dianne Stelling, Edward Stelling. Monrovia, Liberia: Institute for Liberian Languages, [1974]. 1 volume (unpaged); 22 x 33 cm. Original yellow wrappersw, lettered in black. Reproduced from hand-written text. "For test purposes only. Not for republication" (first page). Includes two leaves of Glossary at end, Belle [Kuwaa]-English, 45 words.

[KWAIO] The Kwaio language, or Koio, is spoken in the centre of Malaita Island in the Solomon Islands (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kwd. Alternate Names: Koio.

1975: [IUW] Kwaio dictionary, by R. M. Keesing. Canberra: Department of Linguistics, Research School of Pacific Studies, Australian National University, 1975. xxxiv, 295 p.: map.; 26 cm. Pacific linguistics: series C: Books, no. 35.

[KWAKIUTL] Kwak'wala (English /kwa:'kwa:lə/), also known as Kwakiutl (English /'kwa:kjətəl/), is the indigenous language spoken by the Kwakwaka'wakw (which means "those who speak Kwak'wala"). It belongs to the Wakashan language family. There are fewer than 200 fluent Kwak'wala speakers today, which amounts to 3% of the Kwakwaka'wakw population. Their language consists of four dialects of what is commonly referred to as Kwak'wala. These dialects are Kwakwala, 'Nakwala, Gučala and Tlatlasikwala (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kwk. Alternate Names: Kwagiutl, Kwak'wala.

1907-1930: see Vol. 10 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

1913-1914: [LILLYbm] Ethnology of the Kwakiutl, by Franz Boas, in: Thirty-Fifth Annual Report of the Bureau Of American Ethnology to the Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, 1913-1914. Two volumes. Washington, D.C.: Government Printing Office, 1921. Original olive green cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. [Vol. 1] [2] 1-2 3-794, I II-XI XII [2]; [Vol. 2] [4] I-II III-VIII, 795 796-1481 1482 [2]. First editions. Not in Zaubmüller. Includes Kwakiutl-English, pp. 1390-1438, and English-Kwakiutl, pp. 1439-1466, double-columned. Exhaustive ethnological study of the Kwakiutl, a North American Indian tribe native to Vancouver Island and British Columbia. This dual translation contains information on the industries, beliefs, customs, cooking methods, family histories, and songs; as well as sections on, hunting, fishing and food gathering techniques.

1934: [IUW] Geographical names of the Kwakiutl Indians, by Franz Boas. New York, Columbia University Press, 1934. 83 p. 22 (i.e. 25) maps. 25 cm. Columbia University contributions to anthropology, vol. XX. "Printed in Germany." Bibliographical footnotes.

1977: [LILLYbm] A practical writing system and short dictionary of Kwakw'ala (Kwakiutl), by David McC. Grubb. Ottawa: National Museum of Canada, 1977. ix, 251 p.: port.; 27.8 cm. Original white wrappers lettered in black. First edition. Mercury series 0316-1854. Paper - Canadian Ethnology Service no. 34 0316-1862. Includes English-Kwakw'ala, pp. 37- 156, and Kwakw'ala-English, pp. 158-225. Second copy: IUW.

"The purpose of this work is to present a phonemically accurate, practical spelling system of Kwakw'ala....The second section is a two-way, cross-indexed dictionary: English-Kwakw'ala, consisting of approximately 12,000 entries, and Kwakw'ala-English of about 4,000 entries. The dictionary is more an exemplification of the use of the writing system than it is an exhaustive study of the language" (Abstract).

[KWALHIOQUA-CLATSKANIE] Kwalhioqua-Clatskanie (Kwalhioqua-Tlatskanai) is an extinct Athabascan language of Washington State, along the lower Columbia River. Dialects were: Kwalhioqua (aka Willapa or Willoopah) (north of the lower Columbia River); Willapa or Wela'pakote'li subdialect; Suwal subdialect; Clatskanie (aka Tlatskanai) (south of the lower Columbia River) (Wiki).

Ethnologue does not list this extinct language.

1846: see 9 under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

1907-1930: see Vol. 9 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

1924: see under TSETSAUT.

[KWAMERA] Kwamera, or South Tanna, is a language spoken on the southeastern coast of Tanna Island in Vanuatu (Wiki).

Ethnologue: tnk. Alternate Names: Nafe, Neninafe.

1986: [IUW] Kwamera dictionary = Nikukua sai nagkiariien Nininife, by Lamont Lindstrom. Canberra, A.C.T., Australia: Dept. of Linguistics, Research School of Pacific Studies, Australian National University, 1986. ix, 195 p.: map; 25 cm. Pacific linguistics. Series C, 0078-7558; no. 95.

[KWANGALI] Kwangali, or RuKwangali, is a Bantu language spoken by 85,000 people along the Okavango River in Namibia, where it is a national language, and in Angola. It is one of several Bantu languages of the Okavango which have click consonants. Maho (2009) includes Mbundza as a dialect, but excludes Sambyu, which he includes in Manyo (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kwn. Alternate Names: Kwangare, Kwangari, Rukwangali, Rukwangari, Sikwangali.

1974: [IUW] Kwangali, Departement van Bantoe-Onderwys. Windhoek: [s.n.], 1974. 100 p.; 21 cm. Original green wrappers, lettered in black. "Orthography, no. 2". English and Afrikaans on opposite pages. Includes Kwangali-Afrikaans-English word list, pp. 84-100. This is a revised edition of Orthography No. 1 (see note below).

"The first official orthographical guide for Kwangali (Orthography No. 1) was published in 1968. During the past seven years certain shortcomings in the orthography were revealed by practical usage and additional research into the language....An attempt has been made to make the revised edition as practical and serviceable as possible. It is hoped that a more detailed indication of contents, the inclusion of a word list and examples of the pronunciation of the Kwangali sounds approximated in Afrikaans/English, may be of value" (Foreword).

Third edition 2010: [IUW] Ntjangeso zoRukwangali 3 = Rukwangali orthography 3. Windhoek, Namibia: Macmillan Education Namibia Publishers, 2010. xv, 76 p.: maps; 21 cm. "Produced by the Upgrading African Languages Project (AfriLa), Namibia"--T.p. verso. Parallel text in Kwangali and English. Includes Kwangali-English word list, pp. 60-76.

This revised edition omits the Afrikaans in the word list.

1994: [LILLYbm] Bukenkango. Rukwangali-English English-Rukwangali Dictionary, compiled by J. K. Kloppers, expanded by D. Nakare & L. M. Isala. Windhoek, Namibia: Gamsberg Macmillan, 1994. Original purple wrappers, lettered and decorated in white. Pp. [6] 1-164. First edition. Includes Rukwangali-English, pp. 1-49, English-Rukwangali, pp. 53-156, with appendices of place names, plants, birds, and larger mammals, pp. 157-164. Second copy: IUW.

[KWASIO] The Kwasio language, also known as Ngumba / Mvumbo, Bujeba, and Gyele / Kola, is a language of Cameroon, spoken in the south along the coast and at the border with Equatorial Guinea by some 70 000 members of the Ngumba, Kwasio, Gyele and Mabi peoples. The Kwasio, Ngumba, and Mabi are village farmers; the Gyele (also known as the Kola or Koya) are nomadic Pygmy hunter-gatherers living in the rain forest. Dialects are Kwasio (aka Kwassio, Bisio), Mvumbo (aka Ngumba, Ngoumba, Mgoumba, Mekuk), and Mabi (Mabea). The Gyele speak the subdialects of Mvumbo, Gyele in the north and Kola aka Koya in the south, variously spelled Giele, Gieli, Gyeli, Bagiele, Bagele, Bajele, Bajeli, Bogyel, Bogyeli, Bondjiel and Likoya, Bako, Bakola, Bakuele, also Bekoe. The local derogatory term for pygmies, Babinga, is also used. Glottolog adds Shiwa. Kwasio is a tonal language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nmg. Alternate Names: Magbea, Mvumbo, Ngumba.

1910: see under AVATIME.

[KWAYA] Kwaya is a Bantu language of Tanzania. Jita–Kara–Kwaya are close to being dialects; Maho (2009) separates Ruri from Kwaya as equally distinct (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kya. Alternate Names: Kikwaya.

2005: [IUW] Eciruuri: omusamiati gwa Eciruuri-Eciswaili-Ecingereja na Eciingereja-Eciruuri-Eciswaili = Msamiati wa Ciruuri-Kiswahili-Kiingereza na Kiingereza-Ciruuri-Kiswahili = Ciruuri-Kiswahili-English and English-Ciruuri-Kiswahili vocabulary, by David P.B. Massamba. Dar es Salaam: Languages of Tanzania (LOT) Project, University of Dar es Salaam, 2005. xxx, 236 p.; 24 cm. LOT publications. Lexicon series; no. 3. Ruri, Swahili, and English. Ruri is considered a dialect of Kwaya by Ethnologue, but may be a separate language (see above).

[KWAZA] Kwaza (also written Kwazá or Koaiá) is an endangered language spoken by the Kwaza people of Brazil. Like many other languages in the area, it is an unclassified language, but there are hypothesized long-distance genetic relationships. Little is known about Kwaza people and language due to the minimal historical sources available; if mentioned in reliable documents, it is usually in reference to its neighbors. What is known, is that the Kwaza people were at one point a fierce nation of a few thousands persons, which could be subdivided into various groups. As of 2005 there were only 25 known speakers who make up two ethnically mixed families. They live South of the original habitat on the Indian reserve Tubarão-Latundê and speak Kwaza on a day-to-day basis. Most of the speakers are trilingual in Aikanã and Portuguese (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xwa. Alternate Names: Coaia, Koaiá, Koaya, Quaiá.

2000: [LILLY] A Grammar of Kwaza, by Hein van der Voort. N.p., n.p., 2000. "Proefschrift." xxii, 758 p. 24 cm. One of an unstated number of copies printed for the defense of the author's thesis. Original green and white wrappers, lettered in white. Part III: Dictionary, Kwaza-English, pp. 618-729, English-Kwaza index, pp. 730-754. This copy with a printed invitation to the defense laid in. This thesis appears to have been for the Research Master's in Linguistics in Descriptive and Comparative Linguistics at the University of Leiden. The work was first published in 2004 by Mouton de Gruyter, Berlin (see below).

"This [lexicon] consists of 2150 unique free and bound morphemes of the language that I have encountered so far" (p. 617).

"This is a comprehensive description of the Kwaza language of Southern Rondonia, in the Brazilian Amazon. Kwaza is not clearly related to any other known language. Until recently, almost nothing was known about Kwaza and with only 25 remaining speakers this indigenous language is likely to become extinct some time this century. Moreover, the history and the culture of its speakers are otherwise undocumented. The present work is part of an attempt to preserve the Kwaza language. Part I deals with the grammar of Kwaza in detail and gives an overview of its social, cultural and historical context. Part II contains a selection of Kwaza texts with morphological analyses and free translations.

Part III is a dictionary of Kwaza, with many examples and an English-Kwaza register" (publisher's description for 2004 edition).

2004: [LILLY] A grammar of Kwaza, by Hein van der Voort. Berlin; New York: Mouton de Gruyter, c2004. xxxviii, 1026 p., [7] p. of plates: ill., maps; 25 cm. First edition thus. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Mouton grammar library; 29. Dictionary, introductory pages [815]-816. Kwaza-English, pp. 817-967, English-Kwaza index, pp. 968-996. Includes bibliographical references (p. [997]-1008) and indexes. Also available on-line.

[KWESE] Kwese is a Bantu language of the Democratic Republic of Congo (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kws. Alternate Names: Kikwese, Kwezo, Pindi, Ukwese.

2015: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[KWOMA] Kwoma is a Sepik language of Papua New Guinea (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kmo. Alternate Names: Washkuk.

1997: [LILLYbm] A dictionary of Kwoma: a Papuan language of north-east New Guinea, by Ross Bowden. Canberra, A.C.T., Australia: Pacific Linguistics, Research School of Pacific and Asian Studies, Australian National University, 1997. Original olive-green wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [2] i-iv v-xxxi xxxii, 1-339 340-342. First edition. Series: Pacific linguistics. Series C, no. 134. Includes Kwoma-English, pp. 1-263, and English-Kwoma finder list, pp. 264-315. First dictionary of the language. Second copy: IUW.

"This dictionary is based on data collected during anthropological research among the Kwoma of the East Sepik Province of Papua New Guinea principally between October 1972 and January 1974 but also several shorter trips since.... The dictionary emerged quite by chance in the course of another project... One body of vocabulary that I have deliberately omitted consists of thousands of names Kwoma use for different varieties of plants and animals... I have not had these varieties scientifically identified and I could see little point in defining three hundred different terms simply as 'a tree' or forty terms simply as 'a banana'" (Preface).

"The Kwoma are a non-Austronesian people numbering approximately 3,000 who live in the Washkuk Hills and adjacent low-lying country... in Papua New Guinea. The Kwoma language... is closely related to Kwanga spoken by some 13,000 people in the Torricelli Mountains twenty kilometers to the north" (Introduction).

[KYANGA] Kyenga (also spelled Tyenga, Tienga, Kyanga, Tyanga, Cenka, Kenga), is a Mande language of Nigeria and Benin. Usage is declining, with speakers shifting to Hausa in Nigeria and Dendi in Benin (Wiki).

Ethnologue: tye. Alternate Names: Canga, Changa, Kenga, Kyangawa, Kyenga, Kā, Tienga, Tyanga, Tyenga.

1998: see under BOKO.

[KYRGYZ] Kyrgyz or Kirghiz /kɪrˈɡiːz/ (natively кыргызча/قىرعىزچا, kyrgyzcha, pronounced [qɪrˈkɪzʃɑ] or кыргыз тили/قىرعىز تىلى, kyrgyz tili, pronounced [qɪrˈkɪz tɪlɪ]) is a Turkic language spoken by about four million people in Kyrgyzstan as well as China, Afghanistan, Kazakhstan, Tajikistan, Turkey, Uzbekistan, Pakistan and Russia.

Kyrgyz is a member of the Kyrgyz–Kipchak subgroup of the Kypchak languages, and modern-day language convergence has resulted in an increasing degree of mutual intelligibility between Kyrgyz and Kazakh. Kyrgyz was originally written in the Turkic runes, gradually replaced by an Arabic alphabet (in use until 1928 in USSR, still in use in China). Between 1928 and 1940, the Latin-based Uniform Turkic Alphabet was used. In 1940 due to general Soviet policy, a Cyrillic alphabet eventually became common and has remained so to this day, though some Kyrgyz still use the Arabic alphabet. When Kyrgyzstan became independent following the Soviet Union's collapse in 1991, there was a popular idea among some Kyrgyz people to make transition to the Latin alphabet (taking in mind a version closer to the Turkish alphabet, not the original alphabet of 1928–1940), but the plan has not been implemented yet [2016] (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kir. Alternate Names: Kara-Kirgiz, Kirghiz, Kirgiz.

1957: [IUW] Russko-kirgizskii slovar'. Pod red. K.K. Īudakhina. 51,000 slov. Moskva, Gos. izd-vo inostrannykh i natsional'nykh slovareĭ, 1957. 990 p. 27 cm. Russian-Kyrgyz dictionary.

1964: [IUW] Russko-kirgizskii slovar' anatomo-fiziologicheskikh terminov, Isa Konoevich Akhunbaev. Frunze, Ilim, 1964. 417 pages illustrations. Added title in Kirghiz. Russian-Kyrgyz dictionary of anatomical and physiological terms.

1965: [IUW] Kirgizsko-russkii slovar'. Okolo 40 000 slov. Sostavil K.K. Īudakhin. Moskva, Sovetskaĭa ěntsiklopediĭa, 1965. 973 p. 27 cm. Kyrgyz-Russian dictionary.

Reprinted 1985: [IUW] Киргизско-русский словарь: в двух книгах; около 40 000 слов / составил К.К. Юдахин. Kirgizsko-russkii slovar': v dvukh knigakh; okolo 40 000 slov, sostavil K.K. Īudakhin. Фрунзе: Киргизской Советской Энциклопедии, 1985. Frunze: Kirgizskoiĭ Sovetskoĭ Ęntsiklopedii, 1985. 2 v.; 27 cm. Reprint. Originally published: Moskva: Izd-vo "Sovetskaĭa ěntsiklopediĭa", 1965.

1979: [IUW] Russko-kirgizskii gnezdovoĭ slovar'. Sost. P. I. Kharakoz, A. O. Osmonkulov. Frunze: Mektep, 1979. 525 p.; 17 cm. Russian-Kyrgyz dictionary.

Second enlarged edition 1993: [IUW] Russko-kyrgyzskii gnezdovoĭ slovar', sostaviteli P.I. Kharakoz, A.O. Osmonkulov. Izd. 2., dop. Second enlarged edition. Bishkek: Glav. red. KĘ, 1993. 367 p.; 21 cm. Russian-Kyrgyz dictionary.

1981: [IUW] Ękonomikalyk terminderdin oruscha-kyrgyzcha sōzduk-spravochnigi, K. Zhumadylov. Frunze: "Kyrgyzstan", 1981. 267 p.; 17 cm. Russia-Kyrgyz dictionary of economics.

1982: [IUW] Khimiĭalyk terminderdin oruscha-kyrgyzcha sōzdugū = Russko-kirgizskii slovar' khimicheskikh terminov, by K. Sulaĭmankulov, K. Tashkenbaev, K. Shatemirov. Frunze: Izd-vo "Ilim", 1982. 634 p.; 21 cm. Russian-Kyrgyz dictionary of chemical terms.

1983: [IUW] Mediĭtsinalyk terminderdin oruscha-kyrgyzcha sōzdugū = Russko-kirgizskii slovar' mediĭtsinskikh terminov, M.A. Aliev, T.A. Tynalieva, M.S. Mambetov. Frunze: "Ilim" basmasy, 1983. 643 p.; 21 cm. Russian-Kyrgyz medical dictionary.

1985a: [IUW] Arkheologiĭa terminderinin oruscha-kyrgyzcha sōzduk-spravochnigi = Russko-kirgizskii terminologicheskii slovar'-spravochnik po arkheologii, Urstanbekov Beishe. Frunze: Izd-vo "Ilim", 1985. 488 p.; 21 cm. Russian-Kyrgyz dictionary of archeological terms.

1985b: [IUW] Onomastikalyk teriminderdin oruscha-kyrgyzcha sözdüğü = Russko-kirgizskii slovar' onomasticheskikh terminov, Ch. Zhumagulov, A.B. Isabekova. Frunze: Izd-vo "Ilim", 1985. 76 p.; 20 cm. Russian-Kyrgyz dictionary of onomastics.

1986a: [IUW] Asker ishi boiuncha teriminderdin oruscha-kyrgyzcha sözdüğü = Russko-kirgizskii terminologicheskii slovar' po voennomu delu, K. Usenbekov, B. Abylgaziev, Y. Kadyrov. Frunze: "Ilim", 1986. 284 p.; 21 cm. Russian-Kyrgyz dictionary of military terms.

1986b: [IUW] Khanzucha-Qurghizcha jöñököy sözdük = Han ke xue xi xiao ci tian / tüzüüchülör, Jumabay Ajiqan, Tursun Toychubek, Örügül Japar. [S.l.]: Qızılsuu Qırghız Aptonom Oblastıq Oquu-Aghartuu Til-Jazuu İshqanası, [1986] 324 p.; 16 cm. In Kyrgyz (Arabic script). Chinese-Kyrgyz dictionary.

1987: [IUW] Ish kagazdary boiuncha teriminderdin oruscha-kyrgyzcha sözdüğü = Russko-kirgizskii slovar' terminov po deloproizvodstvu, [tüzüüchülör V. Zakirova, R. Akmatbaeva]. Frunze: "Ilim" basması, 1987. 82 p.; 21 cm. Russian-Kyrgyz dictionary of commercial terms.

1988: [IUW] Ateizm boiuncha teriminderdin oruscha-kyrgyzcha sözdüğü = Russko-kirgizskii slovar' terminov po ateizmu, [tüzüüchülör M. Abdyldaev, È. Maanaev; redaktorlar Mambetaliev, S.; Zakirova, V.]. Frunze: "Ilim" basması, 1988. 135 p.; 20 cm. Russian-Kyrgyz dictionary of athemism.

1988: [IUW] Oruscha-kyrgyzcha sözdük: 13500 sözdön ashyk, tüzüüchülör B.O. Oruzbaeva ... [et al.]; B.O. Oruzbaevanın redaktsiiasy menen. Ongdolup, toluktalğan 4. basylyshy. Frunze: Kyrgyz sovet ènsiklopediiasynyn bashky redaktsiiasy, 1988. 479 p.; 21 cm.

1987: [IUW] Biologiialyk teriminderdin oruscha-kyrgyzcha sözdüğü = Russko-kirgizskii slovar' biologicheskikh terminov: aibanat attary, A.A. Aldashev. Frunze: Izd-vo "Ilim", 1987. v.; 21 cm. Russian-Kyrgyz dictionary of biological terms.

1989a: [IUW] Anglo-rusko-kirgizskii slovar' geograficheskikh terminov: dlia studentov 3-5 kursov (spetsial'nost' 2004), [sost. Blinnikova V.İA., Chokubaeva A.K.; otv. redaktor S.O. Orozaliev]. Frunze: Kirg. gos. un-t, 1989. 27 p.; 21 cm. Original white self-wrappers, lettered in black. Includes bibliographical references (p. [3]). English-Russian-Kyrgyz dictionary of geographical terminology, pp. 4-[28].

1989b: [IUW] Ètnografiia boiuncha teriminderdin oruscha-kyrgyzcha sözdüğü = Russko-kirgizskii terminologicheskii slovar' po ètnografii, [tüzüüchü S. Attokurov]. Frunze: "Ilim", 1989. 249 p.; 21 cm. Russian-Kyrgyz dictionary of ethnography.

1990a: [IUW] Avtotransport, avtomobil' zholdoru zhana zhol kurulush mashinalary boiuncha teriminderdin oruscha-kyrgyzcha sözdüğü = Russko-kirgizskii slovar' terminov po avtotransportu, avtomobil'nym dorogam i dorozhno-stroitel'nym mashinam, T.U. Abekov. Frunze: "Ilim", 1990. 152 p.; 20 cm. Russian-Kyrgyz automotive dictionary.

1990b: [IUW] Geografiia: teriminderdin tushündürmө sözdüğü: mektep okuuchulary uchün, [bashky red. M. Borbugulov; tüz.: S. Baiguttiev ... et al.] Frunze: Kyrgyz sovet ènsiklopediiasynyn bashky redaktsiiasy, 1990. 252, [1] p.; 20 cm. Russian-Kyrgyz geographical dictionary.

1991a: [IUW] Razgovornik russko-kyrgyzskii, R.B. Bekdzhanova, B.O. Oruzbaeva, R.P. Khvan. 2. izd, ispr. i dop. Bishkek: Glav. red. Kyrgyzskoï sov. èntsiklopedii, 1991. 239 p.; 99 mm. x 13 cm. Russian-Kyrgyz dictionary of colloquialisms.

1991b: [IUW] Topografiã-geodeziãalyk terminderdin kyskacha oruscha-kyrgyzcha sözdüğü = Kratkii russko-kirgizskii slovar' topografo-geodezicheskikh terminov, A. Omorov. Bishkek: Ilim, 1991. 87 p.; 20 cm. Russian-Kyrgyz dictionary of geodesy.

1992: [IUW] Zharatylyshty païdalanuu, aïlana-chöïronü korgoo terminderinin oruscha-kyrgyzcha sözdüğü = Russko-kyrgyzskii slovar' terminov po prirodopol'zovaniü i okhrane okruzhãushcheï sredy, K. Atyshov; [zhooptuu adis redaktor: A. Imanbekov]. Bishkek: "Ilim," 1992. 228 p.; 20 cm. Russian-Kyrgyz dictionary of ecology.

1993: [IUW] Kratkii kyrgyzsko-russkii slovar' = Kyskacha kyrgyzcha-oruscha sözdük, sostavitel' È. Abduldaev. Bishkek: Glav. red. Kyrgyzskoï èntsiklopedii, 1993. 239 p.; 17 cm. Kyrgyz-Russian dictionary.

1994: [IUW] Kyrgyzcha-Oruscha-Anglische sözdük, tüzüüchülör, Shambaev Syrgabek, Dzhusaev Dzholdosh. 2-chi basylyshy. Bishkek: "Kyrgyzstan" basmasy, 1994. 223 p.; 18 cm. Library binding, incorporating original blue-green wrappers lettered and decorated in black. Includes Kyrgyz-Russian-English dictionary, pp. 5-200.

1998: [IUW] Kyrgyz: Kyrgyz-English/English-Kyrgyz glossary of terms, by Karl A. Krippes. New York: Hippocrene Books, c1998. 404 p.; 18 cm. Original reddish-brown wrappers, lettered in reddish-brown, white and black, with a multi-colored illustration of riders on horses on the front cover. Hippocrene concise dictionary. Includes Kyrgyz-English, pp. 1-219, and English-Kyrgyz, pp. 221-404.

"This concise Kyrgyz-English/English-Kyrgyz dictionary of approximately six thousand entries is an abridgement of Yudakhin's 'Kyrgyzsko-Russkij Slovar' [see above, 1965]. It is intended for beginning students and travelers who are speakers of American English. . . . This dictionary presents a more di-Russified form of Kyrgyz than Soveity-era dictionaries, that have an artificially large volme of Russian loan words" (Preface).

2000: [IUW] Kyrgyzcha-oruscha oruscha-kyrgyzcha tematikalyk frazeologiãalyk sözdük: 1,5 mingge zhakyn frazeologiãalyk birdik = Kyrgyzsko-russkii russko kyrgyzskii tematicheskii frazeologicheskii slovar': okolo 1,5 tys. frazeologicheskikh edinits, G.Zh. Zhamshitova. Bishkek: "Sham", 2000. 335 p.; 21 cm. Kyrgyz-Russian, Russian-Kyrgyz dictionary of phraseology.

2003: [IUW] Ishkerdik boiuncha oruscha-kyrgyzcha tushündürmô sözdük, K. Atyshov, T. Aliev, R. Surtaev; Razidin Surtaevdin redaktsiãasy menen. Bishkek: "Kesip", 2003. 604 p.; 21 cm. "Terminder oruscha-kyrgyzcha zhana chet tildegi körsötküchü": p. 520-599. "Maalymdama basylmasy"--Colophon. Includes bibliographical references (p. 5-6 and 600-603). Russian-Kyrgyz business dictionary. Introduction and definitions in Kyrgyz with terms in Kyrgyz and Russian.

2004: [IUW] Lingvistikalyk terminderdin kyrgyzcha-türkchö, türkchö-kyrgyzcha sözdüğü / B.Ö. Oruzbaeva, B. Sagynbaeva = Kırgızca-türkçe, türkçe-kırgızca lengüistik terimler sözlüğü, B.Ö. Oruzbaeva, B. Saginbaeva. Bishkek: [Avrasya], 2004. 216 p.; 30 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 213-215). In Kyrgyz (Cyrillic script) and Turkish. Kyrgyz-Turkish, Turkish-Kyrgyz dictionary of linguistics.

2005a: [IUW] English-Kyrgyz Dictionary = Anglische-kyrgyzcha sözdük, editors: Camilla D. Sharshekeeva ...[et al.]. Bishkek: Inter Constructions LLC, 2005. 599 p.; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 599). English and Kyrgyz (Cyrillic script). English-Kyrgyz dictionary.

2005b: [IUW] English-Russian-Kyrgyz dictionary = Anglo-russko-kyrgyzskii slovar' = Anglische-oruscha-kyrgyzcha sözdük, [perevodchiki T. Abdiev, L. Sadykova; redaktor russkogo teksta L. Garaiushchenko; redaktor kyrgyzskogo teksta A. Toktomametov]. Bishkek: Fond "Soros-Kyrgyzstan", 2005. 775 p.; 28 cm. Original blue, green, red, and white wrappers, lettered in white and green. Includes English-Russian-Kyrgyz, pp. 1-775. "This Tri-lingual Edition of the Oxford Study Dictionary originally published in English in 1991 is published by arrangement with Oxford University Press" (verso of title page).

2006: [IUW] Atooldun = Terminlerdin: söz aïkashtarynyn oruscha-kyrgyzcha sözdüğü, [redaktorlar, T. Mambetzhunushov, Ö. Kalyeva]. Toluktalyp 3. basylyshy Bishkek: [Maml. til zhana entsiklopediia borboru], 2006. 219 p.; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 218). In Kyrgyz. Russian-Kyrgyz dictionary.

2008: [IUW] Кыргызча-орусча-англисче макал-лакаптар = Кыргызско-русско-английские пословицы и поговорки = Kyrgyz-Russian-English proverbs and sayings / tüzgöndör, Shambaeva Burul Syrgabekovna, Iptarova Asel Sabyrovna. Kyrgyzcha-oruscha-anglische makal-lakaptar = Kyrgyzsko-russko-angliïskie posloviïsy i pogovorki = Kyrgyz-Russian-English proverbs and sayings, tüzgöndör, Shambaeva Burul Syrgabekovna, Iptarova Asel Sabyrovna. Бишкек: Бийиктик, 2008. Bishkek: Biïiktik, 2008. 199 p.; 21 cm.

2009: [IUW] Kitepkanalyk ish: terminderdin kyrgyzcha tushündirmö sözdüğü, [ilmiï redaktor, Zh.K. Bakashova, R.A. Zhumabaev]. Бишкек: Кыргыз Республикасынын улуттук китепканасы. Жусупбек Бакиев атындагы коомдук фонду, 2009. Bishkek: Kyrgyz Respublikasynyn uluttuk kitepkanasy. Zhusupbek Bakiev atyndagy koomduk fondu, 2009. 183 p.; 21 cm. Russian-Kyrgyz dictionary of library science.

2015: [IUW] Khakassko-kyrgyzsko-russkii istoriko-etnograficheskii slovar = Khakass-Kyrgyz-Russian historical-ethnographical dictionary, V.IA. Butanaev. Bishkek: Altyn bulak, 2015. 452 p.

[LAAL] Laal is an unclassified language spoken by 749 people (as of 2000) in three villages in the Moyen-Chari prefecture of Chad on opposite banks of the Chari River, called Gori (lá), Damtar (bual), and Mailao. It may be a language isolate and thus would represent an isolated survival of an earlier language group of Central Africa or alternatively a language descending from a language of a group of Neolithic near eastern farmers who immigrated to Chad, because people speaking this language have significant Eurasian admixture similar to Natufians and Neolithic Levantines. It is unwritten except in transcription by linguists. According to former Summer Institute of Linguistics-Chad member David Faris, it is in danger of extinction, with most people under 25 shifting to the locally more widespread Bagirmi. This language first came to the attention of academic linguists in 1977 through Pascal Boyeldieu's fieldwork in 1975 and 1978. His fieldwork was based, for the most part, on a single speaker, M. Djouam Kadi of Damtar (Wiki).

Ethnologue: gdm. Alternate Names: Gori.

1982: [IUW] Deux études laal: (Moyen-Chari, Tchad) / Pascal Boyeldieu. Berlin: Verlag von Dietrich Reimer in Verbindung mit SELAF, Paris, 1982. x, 233 p.; map; 24 cm. Marburger Studien zur Afrika- und Asienkunde. Serie A, Afrika; Bd. 29. Bibliography: p. 233

[LAARI] Wiki redirects Laari to the general description of Kongo [Koongo] (see above) and treats it as a dialect of that language. Ethnologue treats Laari as a separate language.

Ethnologue: ldi. Alternate Names: Kilari, Laadi, Ladi, Lali, Lari.

1982: [IUW] Lexique laadi (koongo), by André Jacquot. Paris: Société d'études linguistiques et anthropologiques de France: Office de la recherche scientifique et technique outre-mer, 1982. 269 p.; 24 cm. Oralité-documents; 3. French and Kongo. Includes bibliographical references.

2002: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[LA'BI] La'bi is the esoteric ritual language of male initiation among the Gbaya Kara, the Mbum, and some Sara Laka, in the area of Touboro near where the CAR, Chad, and Cameroon meet. It has no native speakers. It is related to Mbum, with substantial loans from one or more Sara languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue:

1931: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[LADAKHI] The Ladakhi language (Wylie: La-dwags skad), also called Bhoti, is the predominant language in the Leh district of Ladakh region of Jammu & Kashmir, India. Ladakhi is a Tibetic language, but is not mutually intelligible with Standard Tibetan. Ladakhi has approximately 100,000 speakers in India, and perhaps 12,000 speakers in the Tibet Autonomous Region of China, mostly in the Qiangtang region. Ladakhi has several dialects, Ladakhi proper (also called Lehskat after the capital of Ladakh, Leh, where it is spoken); Shamskat, spoken to the northwest of Leh; Stotskat, spoken to the southeast in the Indus valley; and Nubra, spoken in the north. The varieties spoken in Upper Ladakh and Zangskar have many features of Ladakhi and many other features of western dialects of Central Tibetan. Most dialects of Ladakhi lack tone, but Stotskat and Upper Ladakhi are tonal like Central Tibetan (Wik).

Ethnologue: lbj. Alternate Names: Ladak, Ladakh Skat, Ladaphi, Ladhakhi, Ladwags.

1991: [LILLY] Ladakhi-English | [title in Ladakhi script] | English-Ladakhi Dictionary, [by Gyelong Paldan and Helna Norberg-Hodge]. Leh, Ladakh, India; Clifton, Bristol, England: The Ladakh Ecological Development Group and The Ladakh Project, 1991. "First Edition, 1991" on verso of title page. vii, 336 p.; 21 cm. Original bright green cloth, lettered in gold. Ladakhi-English [Ladakhi script-Ladakhi roman script-English], pp. 1-208, English-Ladakhi [roman script], pp. 211-336. First dictionary of the Ladakhi language.

"The history of this dictionary goes back sixteen years, to the time when Ladakh was first opened up to the outside world. In 1975, Gyelong Paldan and I put together a first draft of some 3,000 Ladakhi words, together with their phonetic equivalents and English translations. In the intervening years... the dictionary sat gathering dust. In 1990, we revived the old manuscript and added about 1,000 new words.... I should stress that this work is not aimed at the 'academic' readers.... Instead, the emphasis is on readability and usability—even at the expense of accuracy. My strong sense is that for most people an easy-to-read close approximation to the sound of a foreign word is vastly more helpful than a precise rendering in unfamiliar phonetic symbols" (Preface, Helena Norberg-Hodge).

[LADINO] Judeo-Spanish (also Judæo-Spanish and Judæo-Spanish: Judeo-Español, Hebrew script: איספאנייל-גודיאו, Cyrillic: Худео-Еспањол), commonly referred to as Ladino, is a Romance language derived from Old Spanish. During the second half of the nineteenth century and then the twentieth century, Judeo-Spanish blossomed into a language of journalism and popular literature, resulting in a bibliography of almost four hundred periodical titles and a corpus of novels, theatrical plays, poems, and other minor genres. Originally spoken in the former territories of the Ottoman Empire (the Balkans, Turkey, the Middle East, and North Africa) as well as in France, Italy, Netherlands, Morocco, and the UK, today it is spoken mainly by Sephardic minorities in more than 30 countries, most of the speakers residing in Israel. Although it has no official status in any country, it has been acknowledged as a minority language in Bosnia and Herzegovina, Israel, Spain, Turkey and France.

Ethnologue: lad. Alternate Names: Dzhudezmo, Haquetiya, Judeo Spanish, Judeo-Espagnol, Judezmo, Sefardi, Sephardic, Spanyol.

1976: [IUW] Dizionario ladino fassano (cazét)-italiano: con indice italiano-ladino / Massimiliano Mazzel. Vigo di Fassa: Istituto culturale ladino, 1976. x, 368 p.; 22 cm. Ladino-Italian dictionary, with Italian-Ladino index.

1981: [IUW] Contributo allo studio del lessico ladino dolomitico: Livinallongo, Colle S. Lucia, Rocca Pietore, Selva di Cadore, Alleghe / Vito Pallabazzer. Firenze: Istituto di studi per l'Alto Adige, 1981. 136 p.; 24 cm. Includes index. Bibliography: p. 15-19. Italian-Ladino dialect dictionary.

1988: [IUW] Dizionario del dialetto ladino di Auronzo di Cadore / Ida Zandegiacomo De Lugan; con prefazione del prof. G.B. Pellegrini. Belluno: Istituto bellunese di ricerche sociali e culturali, [1988]. 316 p.: ill.; 24 cm. Serie "Dizionari"; n. 6. Italian-Ladino dialect dictionary.

1994: [IUW] Sephardic folk dictionary: English to Ladino, Ladino to English: a collection of the most used words from the everyday speech and correspondence of the American descendants of Sephardic Jews, researched and compiled by Albert Morris Passy. [Los Angeles, Calif.]: AMPCO, c1994. Second edition. 292 p.; 28 cm.

2000a: [IUW] Ladino-English, English-Ladino concise encyclopedic dictionary (Judeo-Spanish), by Elli Kohen and Dahlia Kohen-Gordon. New York: Hippocrene Books, c2000. vii, 602 p.; 21 cm. Hippocrene concise dictionary. Includes bibliographical references (p. 599-602).

2000b: [IUW] Milon Sefaradit-Yehudit (Ladino)- 'Ivrit, 'Ivrit-Sefaradit-Yehudit (Ladino), by Maimon Benshemol, Maṭildah Kohen-Sarano. [Yerushalayim]: Merkaz Elyashar, Universitat Ben-Guryon ba-Negev, 2000, c1998. Third edition. 90, lxxxviii p.; 30 cm. Added title page: Vokabulario Djudeo-Espanyol (Ladino)-Ebreo, Ebreo-Djudeo-Espanyol (Ladino). Hebrew-Ladino-Hebrew dictionary.

2009/2010: [IUW] מילון עבריי-לאדינו (ספרדית יהודית) / מאת מתילדה כהן-סראנו; עריכה עברית לימור ארזי. Milon 'Ivri-Ladino (Sefaradit-Yehudit) / me-et Matildah Kohen-Sarano; arikhah 'Ivrit, Limor Arzi. ש.ז.ק., 770 ירושלים: [2009 or 2010]. Yerushalayim: Sh. Zaq, 770 [2009 or 2010. 25, 448, 492, xxvii p.; 25 cm. Hebrew-Ladino dictionary.

2012: [IUW] Diksyonaryo Judeo Espanyol-Turko = Ladino-Türkçe sözlük / Klara Perahya & Karen Gerson Şarhon, ed. Segunda edision ampliada = Genişletilmiş ikinci baskı. Teşvikiye, İstanbul: Sentro de Investigaciones sobre la Kultura Sefardi Otomana-Turka: Gözlem Gazetecilik Basın ve Yayın, [2012]. ©2012. 550 pages; 22 cm. Previous ed. has title: Judeo Espanyol-Türkçe, Türkçe-Judeo Espanyol. Ladino-Turkish dictionary.

[LAGWAN] Lagwan (Logone) is a Chadic language spoken in northern Cameroon and southwestern Chad. Dialects include Logone-Birni and Logone-Gana (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kot. Alternate Names: Kotoko-Logone, Lagouane, Lagwane, Logone.

1936: [LILLYbm] Die Logone-Sprache im zentralen Sudan, mit Beiträgen aus dem Nachlass von Gustav Nachtigal, by Johannes Lukas. Leipzig: Deutsche Morgenländische Gesellschaft, im Kommission bei F. A. Brockhaus, 1936. Original light brown wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. I-VI VII-VIII, 1 2-148. First edition. Series: Abhandlungen für die Kunde des Morgenlandes, XXI, 6. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes Logone-German, pp. 82-128, and German-Logone, pp. 129-148. First dictionary of the language. Reprinted by Kraus in 1966.

"The first researcher of the Logone language was the great German African explorer Heinrich Barth, who published in 1862 an extensive vocabulary of the language in his 'Zentralafrikanischen Vokabularien.' As important as the contributions of Barth were in this area...we must still admit that he failed to grasp essential aspects of the language, and that his attempt to reproduce the particularly complicated sounds of Logone failed...Logone is, together with the other dialects spoken by the Kotoko tribes, a branch of a widespread group of languages that I...characterize as Chado-Hamitic. Its nearest neighbor to the North is Buduma (Yidena), in the South it is Muzgu" (Introduction, tr: BM).

2014: [IUW] Lexique pratique du lagwan: lagwan-français, français-lagwan: Suivi d'un Manuel d'apprentissage de la lecture et de l'écriture en lagwan, Aaron Shryock avec Marouf Brahim. [Dallas?]: SIL, 2014. iv, 204 pages; 20 cm. Original wrappers with color photo of a lake and boat, lettered in black and white. Kotoko dialect. Includes Lagwan-French, pp. 25-105, and French-Lagwan, pp. 107-139.

"We have compiled this practical lexicon of Lagwan to give speakers of that language a foretaste of the future. If you, Lagwans who already can read and write French, like this small sample and follow it carefully from the first page to the last, you will discover the pleasure of reading and writing your own language. Lagwan is a Chadic language spoken by around 15,000 people in Longone-Birni and the villages around this town in the district of Logone and Chari in the Far North province of Cameroun. It's also spoken in a few villages in Chad along the Logone River... This practical lexicon includes more than 2,000 entries" (Introduction).

[LAHU] Lahu (autonym: Ladhof [la'lxo]) is a Tibeto-Burman language spoken by the Lahu people of China, Thailand, Myanmar, and Laos. It is widely used in China, both by Lahu people, and by other ethnic minorities in Yunnan, who use it as a lingua franca.

However, the language is not widely used nor taught in any schools in Thailand, where many Lahu are in fact refugees and illegal immigrants, having crossed into Thailand from Myanmar (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lhu. Alternate Names: Kaixien, Kucong, Kutsong, Lahuna, Laku, Lohei, Moso, Muhso, Mussar, Musso, Mussuh, Namen.

1988: [IUW] The Dictionary of Lahu, by James A. Matisoff. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1988. Original orange-brown cloth over boards, lettered in gold. i-xxv, xxvi, 1-1436, [25] pp. of plates. First edition. University of California publications in linguistics, vol. 111.

"When I began making my first fileslips in 1965, I never dreamed that I was embarking on a project that would be a major preoccupation for 23 years... Why has it taken so long?... Until late 1983, when I finally began to use a word-processor, the work was done using what a high-tech friend once uncharitably called "Stone Age tools" - notebooks, fileslips, colored pens, without, paper clips, scissors, and scotch tape... [these and other difficulties may be of interest] as a kind of memorial to the paleolithic of 'cottage-industry' school of lexicography.... The Lahu people as a whole are not in control of any particular block of territory. Like other hillfolk of Southeast Asia they live in scattered villages in the mountains... Such is the ethnic and cultural complexity of Southeast Asia, that on a given mountain, one is apt to find villages inhabited by hillfolk whose languages are all mutually unintelligible... Lahu villages are to be found over a wide area, including the southwestern portion of China's Yunnan Province; the Kongtung area of Burma's Shan State;... northern Thai provinces...; and Nam Tha Province in NW Laos... It is curious that Lahu seems to enjoy rather more prestige among other groups of hillfolk than the average minority language, and is often used as a lingua franca by such peoples as the Akha and the Mien [Yao]... It is impossible to give precise figures for the total Lahu population... Our latest best guess... estimates... the total Lahu population at about half a million. To them all one can only say, Pru u-rvu u-mil'u et ha'arets, v'xivshulia! ('Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it!...' By far the most comprehensive dictionary of the language. J.H. Telford published a handbook of Lahu, with a "Lahu-English Dictionary" (Rangoon, 1938); Paul Lewis produced a Lahu-English-Thai dictionary in Chiang Mai in 1986.

[LAK] The Lak language (лаккы маз, lak:u maz) is a Northeast Caucasian language forming its own branch within this family. It is the language of the Lak people from the Russian autonomous republic of Dagestan, where it is one of six standardized languages. It is spoken by about 157,000 people. In 1890 a textbook was published on Lak grammar compiled by P.K. Uslar named as The Lak Language. Lak has throughout the centuries adopted a number of loanwords from Arabic, Turkish, Persian, and Russian. Ever since Dagestan was part of the USSR and later Russia, the largest portion of loanwords have come from Russian, especially political and technical vocabulary. There is a newspaper and broadcasting station in Lak language. In accordance with the Constitution of the Republic of Dagestan of 1994, Lak language was named as the state language along with Russian and some other major languages spoken in Dagestan (about 20 local languages are unwritten and have no official status). Lak language is used as a teaching tool in elementary school and taught as a subject in secondary schools, vocational schools and universities. The standard Lak language is based on the dialect of the city of Kumukh.

Initially Lak language by lexicon was found to be close to Dargin language and the two were often combined in one Lak-Dargin subgroup of Dagestani languages. However, further research has led the scientists to conclude that this association was weak. Recent research points to the grammatical closeness of the Lak language with Avaro-Ando-Tsezic subgroup of languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: Ibe. Alternate Names: Kazikumukhtsy, Laki.

1962: [IUW] Laksko-russkiĭ slovar'. Sostavil S.M. Khaĭdakov. Pod red. L.I. Zhirkova. Okolo 13 000 slov, s prilozheniem grammaticheskikh tablits lakskogo iazyka L.I. Zhirkova. Moskva, Gos. izd-vo inostrannykh i natsional'nykh slovareĭ, 1962. 422 p. 21 cm. Lak-Russian dictionary.77.

[LAKI] Laki (لکی; Lekî) is a speech variety that is either considered an independent Iranian language, a dialect of Lurish, or of Southern Kurdish. Lexical similarity with Khorramabadi Luristani is 78%, with Persian is 70%, and with Northern Luri is 69%. Laki is presently spoken in the areas south of Hamadan and including the towns of Nahavand, Tuyserkan, Nursbad, Ilam, Gilan, and Pahla (Pehle), as well as the countryside in the districts of Horru, Selasele, Silakhur, and the northern Aleshtar in western Iran (Wiki).

Ethnologue: Iki. Alternate Names: Alaki, Lekî.

2005/2006a: [IUW] Farhang-i vāzhagān: Lakī bih Fārsī / ta'lif-i 'Alīmardān 'Askarī 'Ālim. [ 'Asgarī 'Ālam, 'Alī'mardān, 1949 or 1950-] Chāp-i 1. Khurram'ābād: Aflāk, 1384 [2005 or 2006] 262 p.; 24 cm. First edition. Original black paper over boards, lettered in red and light brown, with color illustrations on both covers. Laki language (Iran)--Dictionaries. Persian language--Dialects--Iran--Luristān--Dictionaries.

2005/2006: [IUW] (پورنامہ / کامین (عالی دستور زبان لکی، ضرب المثلها و واژه Dastūr-i zabān-i Lakī, zarb al-maṣal'hā va vāzhah'nāmah / Kāmīn ('Ālī'pūr). 1. چاپ. Chāp-i 1. [آبادخرم]: [Aflāk, 1384 [2005 or 2006]. [Khurram'ābād]: Aflāk, 1384 [2005 or 2006] 241 p.; 23 cm. white and yellow. Original black wrappers, lettered Includes bibliographical references (p. 241). Also issued online. In Persian and Laki (Iran). On the grammar, proverbs and vocabulary of Laki language, spoken in Luristān and Īlām provinces of Iran. Persian-Laki vocabulary, final 40 pages.

[LAKOTA] Lakota (also Lakhota, Teton, Teton Sioux) is a Siouan language spoken by the Lakota people of the Sioux tribes. Though generally taught and considered by speakers as a separate language, Lakota is mutually intelligible with the other two languages (cf. Dakota language), and is considered by most linguists one of the three major varieties of the Sioux language. The Lakota language represents one of the largest Native American language speech communities in the United States, with approximately 2,000 speakers living mostly in northern plains states of North Dakota and South Dakota. There is a Lakota language program online available for children to use. There is also a Lakota Language Program with classes for children at Red Cloud Indian School. The language was first put into written form by missionaries around 1840 and has since evolved to reflect contemporary needs and usage (Wiki).

Ethnologue: Ikt. Alternate Names: Lakhota, Lakotiyapi, Teton.

1907-1930: see Vol. 3 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

1970: [LILLYbm] A dictionary of the Teton Dakota Sioux language; Lakota-English, English-Lakota, with considerations given to Yankton and Santee. Oie wowapi wan Lakota-Ieska, Ieska-Lakota, by Eugene Buechel, ed. by Paul Manhart. Pine Ridge, S.D.: Red Cloud Indian School, Holy Rosary Mission, 1970. Original dark gray cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in red. PP. i ii-vi, 1-852 853-854.. First edition. Includes Lakota-English dictionary, pp. 54-660, and English-Lakota, pp. 661-847. Bibliography, p. 852. The most complete dictionary of the language till then.

"If it were a warm summer afternoon, you would have found him sitting on the green bench under the trees behind the faculty building of St. Francis Mission, St. Francis, South Dakota. He would be chatting in Lakota with those patriarchs of the Brule Sioux, Black Spotted Horse, German Good Breast, and George Horse Looking. He was Black Eagle, Wanbli Sapa, - a stooped but thick-set man of 80, dressed in a black cassock, with gray, close-cropped hair and beard...this was Father Eugene Buechel, S.J., missionary to the Dakota, building of a Sioux museum writer of a Lakota grammar, Bible History, and dictionary, and authority on the Lakota language, customs and culture."

Revised edition: 2002: [IUW] Lakota dictionary: Lakota-English/English-Lakota, compiled and edited by Eugene Buechel and Paul Manhart. New comprehensive ed. Lincoln: University of Nebraska Press, c2002. xxi, [22], 530 p.; 26 cm. Rev. ed. of: A dictionary of the Teton Dakota Sioux language. 1970. Includes bibliographical references (p. [529]-530).

1971: [LILLYbm] Lakota Primer Sioux Indian Translation, by Bonnie C. Manley. Chadron, Nebraska: Dawes Co. Circulating Library, 1971. Original pink and black wrappers, lettered and illustrated in pink and black, with brown plastic spine. 162 pp. First edition, second printing (November 30, 1971). First printing was May 30, 1971. Includes an unpaginated Sioux-English vocabulary, pp. [132]-[155]. Primer intended for primary-age school children.

"It is with a great deal of feeling that I dedicate this long delayed work to the memory of Senator Robert F. Kennedy. Senator Kennedy's recent trip from Chadron, Nebraska to the Sioux Nation near Pine Ridge, South Dakota, and his subsequent desire to help the Sioux Indian has inspired me, an adopted daughter of the Sioux."

1974: [LILLYbm] Everyday Lakota. An English-Sioux Dictionary for Beginners, ed. by Joseph S. Karol & Stephen L. Rozman. St. Francis, S.D.: Rosebud Educational Society, 1974. Original ochre wrappers, lettered in black and illustrated in color with needlework designs. Pp. i-xii, 1-124. Revised edition. First edition was published in Lincoln, Nebraska at the Nebraska Curriculum Development Center, 1971.

"This book contains 3800 entries, 300 phrases, idiom drills, expressions of time, coinage, native birds and animals, and rules for forming Lakota sentences" (description on title page). "To the tremendous, wonderful Sioux people, who have kept their language and culture, despite many efforts to destroy them through ethnocide" (Dedication). "The dictionary is colloquial, comprised of expressions heard today in reservation talk...This dictionary is the first of its kind, so this first edition must necessarily serve as an experimental book" (Preface).

1976: [LILLYbm] Elementary Bilingual Dictionary: English-Lakhóta / Lakhóta-English. Boulder, CO: University of Colorado Lakhóta Project, 1976. Original wrappers. Bound typescript. First edition. "This is a preliminary edition."

"The language is that of the Oglala and Brulé dialects of the Teton (Western) branch of the Dakota language."

1994: [LILLYbm] Dictionary of Modern Lakota (Lakota Eyapi Ognayan Wašicun Wicoiye Kin Yuieskapi), by Edward Starr. Kendall Park, N.J.: Lakota Books, 1994. Original black and white wrappers, lettered in black. 1-2 3-113 114-116. First edition. Includes English-Lakota, pp. 8-62, and Lakota-English, pp. 64-112. Second copy: IUW.

"These are new Lakota words. The White man, through industry, is making many things for which there are no Lakota words. These words were created by Lakota speakers on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation" (p. 4). "These tribal members believe that ... if something is not done to preserve the language in the present generation, we will lose it in the next generation" (p. 5).

2008: [IUW] New Lakota dictionary: Lakhótiyapi-English, English-Lakhótiyapi & incorporating the Dakota dialects of Yankton-Yanktonai & Santee-Sisseton, Lakota Language Consortium. Bloomington, [Ind.]: Lakota Language Consortium, 2008. xii, 1100 p.: ill., maps; 27 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 1099-1100). Contents: Dictionary symbols and abbreviations -- Quick user's guide, key to English-Lakota entries -- Key to Lakota-English entries -- Guide to cross-referencing among derivatives and sections -- Introduction letter -- Foreword -- Acknowledgments -- Introduction, Jan Ullrich -- Lakota-English section -- Grammar -- Lakota orthography and alphabet -- Phonology -- Verbs -- Nouns -- Pronouns -- Determiners -- Postpositions -- Conjunctions -- T-words -- Enclitics -- Adverbs -- Interjections -- Syntax - sentence structure -- Language in change -- English-Lakota section -- Bibliography -- Brief pronunciation guide -- Lakhóta na Dakhóta Makhócheowápi (map of Lakota and Dakota country).

[LALA-BISA] Lala-Bisa is a Bantu language of Zambia that is closely related to Bemba. Swaka dialect is divergent, and sometimes classified as a separate language (Nurse 2003). Maho (2009) lists Biisa (Wisa), Lala, Ambo, Luano, and Swaka as distinct languages, with Ambo and Luano closest to Lala (Wiki).

Ethnologue: leb. Alternate Names: Biza-Lala.

1906: [LILLYbm] Wisa handbook: a short introduction to the Wisa dialect of North-East Rhodesia, by A[rthur] C[ornwallis] Madad [b. 1846]. Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1906. Original brown cloth over boards, lettered in black. Pp. 1-3 4-136. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Not in Hendrix. Includes English-Wisa, pp. [87]-136, with extensive alphabetically arranged lists of verbs, nouns, etc. This copy with the later ink ownership stamp of Harry Wells Langworthy, author of Zambia before 1890: aspects of pre-colonial history (Longman, 1972) and Africa for the African: the life of Joseph Booth (Christian Literature Association in Malawi, 1996). This is the first vocabulary of the language.

"The Wisa (Bisa, or Visa) dialect is spoken by a somewhat scattered and broken tribe in the central region of North-East Rhodesia. Though not wanting in individual energy and intelligence, the tribe collectively has not been able latterly to maintain its ground against its more warlike neighbours, Wemba and Ngoni, backed as they were till recently by Swahili slave-raiders from the East Coast.... Nothing, it seems, has been at the present date published as to the Wisa dialect, except a few lists of words.... Wisas call themselves Wawisa, their country Uwisa, and their language Chiwisa... The separate alphabetical lists of nouns, verbs, &c., in Part I will supply in some degree the place of a Wisa-English supplement to the English-Wisa vocabulary in Part II" (Preface). "PS. ...n reports from Nkushi that the Lalas...speak a language hardly distinguishable from Wisa, so that this handbook will have a wider range than was contemplated at the time it was written" (PS to Preface, signed "F.M.").

1908: [LILLYbm] Lala-Lamba handbook, a short introduction to the south-western division of the Wisa- Lala dialect of northern Rhodesia, with stories and vocabulary, by A[rthur] C[ornwallis] Madan. Oxford: The Clarendon Press, 1908. Original brown cloth over boards, lettered in black. 17 cm. Pp. 1-4 5-142 143-144. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 916/922. Includes Lala (Lamba)-English, pp. [77]-142. double-columned. This is the first vocabulary of this dialect. Madan published a Lala-Lamba-Wisa Dictionary in 1913. Second copy: IUW.

"The Lala and Lamba dialects are so nearly identical, and both so closely allied to the Wisa [Biisa], that knowledge of either is a sufficient introduction to the others. A Wisa Handbook has already been published (Clarendon Press, 1906). But in view of the size of the Lake country, and its position on the direct route from the Victoria Falls to Lake Tanganyika, making it more accessible than the Wisa, a short supplementary account of Lala...may be of value.... [the] Lala-English Vocabulary...may also be used to supplement the English-Wisa Vocabulary in the 'Wisa Handbook'" (Preface). "The total number of people speaking Lala-Lamba-Wisa can only be guessed, but is probably not less than 100,000" (Introduction).

1950: [IUW] La langue bisa; grammaire et Dictionnaire, by André Prost. Ouagadougou, Haute-Volta, Centre IFAN [1950]. 198 p. maps. 28 cm. Original red cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Includes Bisa [Lala-Bisa]-French dictionary, pp. 77-198. First dictionary of the language.

"This Bisa dictionary and grammar... is the fruit of a long stay among the people. Having arrived in Garano, in the Tenkodogo district, for the first time in December 1932, I lived there almost continuously until November of 1942, and since then until now (1949), I have had occasion to speak with the Boussansé dispersed throughout the A. O. F. on an almost daily basis" (Introduction; tr: BM). Includes an extensive discussion of the language and background of this work.

[LAMA] Lama is a Gur language spoken by the Lamba people in Togo, Benin, and by a few in Ghana (Wiki).

Ethnologue: las. Alternate Names: Lamba, Losso.

An on-line dictionary of Lama may be found at www.webonary.org.

1966: see under DANGME. Hendix cites only Accam's Adangme Vocabularies (1966), which contains a Klama [Lama] vocabulary list (Hendrix 918).

1983a-b: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[LAMAHOLOT] Lamaholot, also known as Solor or Solorese, is a Central Malayo-Polynesian dialect cluster of Flores, Indonesia. The varieties may not be all mutually intelligible; Keraf (1978) reports that there are 18 languages under the name. The language shows evidence of a Papuan (non-Austronesian) substratum.

Ethnologue: slp. Alternate Names: Solor, Solorese.

1999: [IUW] Koda kiwã: dreisprachiges Wörterbuch der Lamaholot-Sprache, Dialekt von Lewolema; aufgezeichnet 1994-98 im Dorf Belogili-Balukhering, Ostflores,

Provinz Nusa Tenggara Timur, Indonesien: Lamaholot-Indonesisch-Deutsch, mit Beispieltexen und deutscher Wörterliste, by Karl-Heinz Pampus. Stuttgart: Deutsche Morgenländische Gesellschaft: Steiner, 1999. ii, 663 p.: map; 24 cm. Abhandlungen für die Kunde des Morgenlandes, Bd. LII, 4 Includes bibliographical references (p. 21-22). Lamaholot-Indonesian-German dictionary.

[LAMANG] Lamang (Laamang) is an Afro-Asiatic language of Nigeria. Blench (2006) classifies the Woga variety as a separate language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: hia. Alternate Names: Gbuhwe, Laamang, Waha.

1994: [IUW] Our people's own (ina Lamang) / compiled and edited by H. Ekkehard Wolff; in cooperation with Alhaji Abdullahi Ndaghra and Eleonore Adwirraah. Hamburg: RaP Research and Progress Verlagsgesellschaft, 1994. x, 403 p.: ill.; 23 cm. Original blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Afrikanistische Forschungen; Bd. 11. Appendix C: glossary of cultural terms, Lamang-English, pp. 357-376. Introduction refers to a forthcoming Lamang-English dictionary, with English-Lamang glossary (appeared in 2015). Includes bibliographical references.

[LAMBA] Lamba is a language found in Zambia and is commonly spoken in the Copperbelt. There are about 210,000 native speakers in the northern parts of Zambia and southern fringes of the Democratic Republic of the Congo. Lamba is also spoken in Lusaka, mainly because many speakers have migrated there for jobs. Lamba is a Bantu language. (In fact, "mu ntu" means "one person" in Lamba and "ba ntu" means "two or more people".) Depending on who does the counting, Zambia has between 42 and 78 local languages besides English. Some people might say Lamba is a dialect of Bemba. Though the two languages share many words, they are not as close as say Cockney and Haitian Creole are to English or French. Maho (2009) lists the Lima (Bulima) and Temba varieties as distinct languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lam. Alternate Names: Chilamba, Ichilamba.

1908: see under LALA-BISA.

1933: [LILLYbm] English-Lamba Vocabulary, compiled by Clement M. Doke. Johannesburg: Witwatersrand University Press, 1933. Hardbound without d.j. 134 pp. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 919. Second copy: IUW.

Second revised and enlarged edition 1963: [IUW] English-Lamba vocabulary, by Clement M. Doke. [2d ed. rev. & enl.] Johannesburg, Witwatersrand University Press, 1963. v, 179 p. 20 cm.

1983a-b: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[LAMBADI] Lambadi or Goar-boali, also called Banjari, is a language spoken by the once nomadic Banjara people across India and it belongs to Indo-Aryan group of languages. The language does not have a native script. Regional dialects are divided between the Banjara of Maharashtra (written in Devanagari), Karnataka (written in the Kannada script) and Telangana (written in the Telugu script). Speakers are bilingual in either Telugu, Kannada, or Marathi (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lmn. Alternate Names: Bangala, Banjara, Banjari, Banjori, Banjuri, Brinjari, Gohar-Herkeri, Goola, Gormati, Gurmarti, Kora, Labhani, Labhani Muka, Lamadi, Lamani, Lambani, Lambara, Lavani, Lemadi, Lumadale, Singali, Sugali, Sukali, Tanda, Vanjari, Wanji.

1970: [IUW] The grammar of Lamani / by Ronald L. Trail. Norman: Summer Institute of Linguistics of the University of Oklahoma, c1970. v, 225 p.: ill.; 23 cm. Original pale cream wrappers, lettered and decorated in purple. Summer Institute of Linguistics publications in linguistics and related fields publication no. 24. The author's thesis--University of Poona, 1968. Lamani [Lambadi]-English, pp. 180-222. Bibliography: p. 223.

"The dialect here described is spoken in the Gulbarga District of northern Mysore State—the area from which the Lamanis living next to Deccan College, Poona, have migrated.... Not much work has been done previously on Lamani. Only two works have come to my notice. One is Sir George Grierson's Linguistic Survey of India... [The other is an article by M. Chidananda Murty in the journal Prabuddhakarnataka, written in Kannada, "largely ethnological in character"]" (Introduction).

[LAMNSO'] Nso (Lamnsɔ, Lamnsɔ') is the language of the Nso people of western Cameroon. A few may remain in Nigeria. It is a Grassfields language with ten major noun classes. The ISO 639-3 code is lns. This language is spoken by about over 100,000 people (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lns. Alternate Names: Bansaw, Banso, Banso', Lamnsok, Lamso, Nsaw, Nsho', Nso, Nso', Panso. Autonym: Lamnsɔ'.

2008: [IUW] How to read and write Lamnsɔ' / Karl Grebe. 3rd ed. Cameroon: Cameroon Association for Bible Translation and Literacy, 2008. 120 p.: ill.; 21 cm. Original yellow wrappers, lettered in black, with a drawing of two tribal members reading on the front cover. Lamnsɔ'-English word list, pp. 90-113. "First edition 1974 / Second edition 1986 / Third edition 2008" on verso of title page.

"This book was prepared to help members of the Nso' people group to learn to read and write their own language, Lamnsɔ'.... This third edition is essentially the same as the one of 1986 through to Lesson 16. Lessons 17-25 are for the most part new" (Preface).

2015: [IUW] Lamnsɔ'-English dictionary = D̀wà' nsàv / compiled by Karl Grebe and Patrick Siyatan; final editing: Robert Hedinger, Alfred Vensu Chin and Njeck Mathaus; contributors: Sheey Yungsi Christopher [and 11 others]. Yaoundé, Cameroon: Cameroon Association for Bible Translation and Literacy (CABTAL), 2015. Köln: Rüdiger Köppe Verlag ©2015. 838 pages: color illustrations, map; 25 cm. Original blue and white wrapper, lettered in white and black, with a color photo of thatched hut in landscape on front cover. African languages monographs; v. 8. Lamnsɔ'-English, pp. [117]-685, English-Lamnsɔ' index, p. [713]-830, index of scientific names, Latin-Lamnsɔ', pp. [831]-834. Includes bibliographical references (pages 105-115) and indexes. First dictionary of the language.

"It needs to be recognised that this dictionary presents a first attempt to compile a significant corpus of Lamnsɔ' vocabulary items and to define them grammatically, semantically and derivationally, as well as to illustrate their use in context" (Introduction).

"The Lamnsɔ'-English part is 570 pages long and contains a wealth of information about each word. There are 8,445 headwords with 11,280 definitions... The English-Lamnso' part has 8,900 entries with 13,233 pointers to the relevant main entry" (from rear cover).

[LAMPUNG] Lampung is the language of the Indonesian province of Lampung at the southern tip of Sumatra. It is a dialect cluster with two main dialects, perhaps distinct enough to be considered distinct languages: Abung/Pepadun (Lampung Nyo) and Pesisir/Say Batin (Lampung Api). A third, Komering, is sometimes considered part of Lampung Api, by others a distinct language. Lampung Api is the prestige variety. Before the introduction of the Roman script, Lampung was written in a script called "Aksara Lampung" or "Had Lampung", which is a variant of the Ulu scripts used throughout central and south Sumatra. The script is seldom used today but is taught in schools throughout Lampung as a means of preserving its linguistic history (Wiki).

Ethnologue divides Lampung into three separate languages: 1) Komering: kge Alternate Names: Kumoring. 2) Lampung Api: ljp. Alternate Names: Api, Lampong, Lampung, Lampung Pesisir. 3) Lampung NYO: abl. Alternate Names: Abung, Lampong.

1817: see under MALAYAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[LANGI] Rangi or Langi (there is no distinction between /r/ and /l/; also known as Irangi, Kilaangi, etc.) is a Bantu language of spoken by the Rangi people of Kondoa District in the Dodoma Region of Central Tanzania. Whilst the language is known as Rangi in English and Kirangi in the dominant Swahili spoken throughout the African Great Lakes, the self-referent term is Kilaangi. Estimates at the number of Rangi-speakers range from 270,000[4] to 410,000 speakers. Rangi is the largest linguistic group in the Babati-Kondoa region. Two main varieties of Rangi are identified - that spoken in the Rangi Highlands (known in Swahili as Irangi ya Juu) and that of the Lowlands (Irangi ya Chini). Despite differences, these varieties are mutually intelligible. However, some dialectal variation is also found between the varieties spoken in the main town of Kondoa, as well as in the surrounding villages of Bereko, Bukulu, Isabe, Humai, Kwadinu, Kolo, Choka, Gubali, Nkuku, Bicha, Kingale, Kelema, Paranga, Kidoka, Haubi and Mondo (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lag. Alternate Names: Irangi, Kelangi, Kilangi, Kirangi, Klaangi, Rangi, Valaangi. Autonym: Kilaangi.

2005: [IUW] Éléments de description du langi: langue bantu F.33 de Tanzanie: phonologie, grammaire, lexicque / Margaret Dunham. Leuven; Dudley, Mass.: Peeters, 2005. 335 p.: ill.; 24 cm. Langues et littératures de l'Afrique noire 13. Société d'études linguistiques et anthropologiques de France (Series); 413. Includes bibliographical references (p. [329]-331).

[LANGO] Lango (also called Lwo, Lwoo, or Leb-Lango,) is a Southern Luo dialect spoken by the Langi people of Uganda. It is mostly spoken in Lango sub-region, in the Northern Region, by approximately 1.8 million speakers, or five percent of the population of Uganda. An orthography for it using the Latin script has been introduced and is taught in primary schools. It is generally counted as a distinct language because the Langi people are ethnically distinct from other Luo (Wiki).

Ethnologue: laj. Alternate Names: Langi, Leb-Lango, Lwo, Lwoo.

1923: [LILLYbm] The Lango. A Nilotic Tribe of Uganda, by J[ack] H[erbert] Driberg. London: T. Fisher Unwin Ltd., 1923. Original dark blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold and decorated in blind. Pp. 1-4 5-468. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 924. Lango-English vocabulary, pp. 357-414, and English-Lango, pp. 415-440. This appears to be the first substantial published vocabulary of Lango. Second copy: IUW.

"This record has been inspired by my affection for a race with whom I have lived and worked for several years, and among whom I have been fortunate enough to form some of my most enduring friendships.... This work was [undertaken], in order that in these days of rapid change and transition to newer modes of life and thought some memorial might remain of their past traditions and of customs, which may too easily be overwhelmed by the hurrying and ruthless march of an alien civilization" (Prefatory Notes).

1992: [IUW] A grammar of Lango, by Michael Noonan. Berlin; New York: Mouton de Gruyter, 1992. xvi, 352 p.; 25 cm. First edition. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Lango-English, pp. [300]-324, English-Lango, pp. [325]-349. Mouton grammar library; 7. Includes bibliographical references (p. [289]-293) and index.

"There is very little published work on Lango. The earliest and most useful work is Driberg (1923) [see above], which contains a short grammar and a dictionary. While this is a most valuable work, it is seriously flawed in a number of crucial areas [which are then discussed].... The primary material upon which this work is based was collected over a period of several years, from 1977-1983" (Introduction).

2005: [IUW] Lwo-English dictionary, by Alexander Odonga. Kampala: Fountain Publishers, c2005. xix, 283 p.; 25 cm.

[LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT]

1555: [LILLY] [Book] Mithridates. De differentiis linguarum tum ueterum tum quae hodie apud diuersas nationes in toto orbe terrarum in usu sunt, by Konrad Gesner (1516-1565). Froschauer, Christoph., Tiguri [Zurich]: Excudebat Froschouerus, 1555. Later full plain vellum. Includes Lord's Prayer in 22 different languages on large folded leaf. This copy belonged to the poet Philippe Desportes (1546-?1606) (faded signature on title page) and later to the scholar Abraham Girard (signed and dated by him 1668 on the title page).

1806-1809-1812-1817: [LILLYbm] Mithridates oder allgemeine Sprachkunde mit dem Vater Unser als Sprachprobe in bey nahe fünf hundert Sprachen und Mundarten, mit wichtigen Beyträgen zweyer grossen Sprachforscher fortgesetzt von Dr. Johann Severin Vater, 4 vols., by Johann Christoph Adelung. Berlin: Vossische Buchhandlung, 1806-1809-1812-1817. Contemporary brown half-leather and black marbled paper over boards, with red and green leather labels on spines, lettered and decorated in gold; all edges stained red. Pp. [Vol. I] I-III IV-XXII [8] I II-XXXIV, 1-3 4-686; [Vol. II] I-III IV-XXIV, 1-3 4-808; [Vol. III] I-III IV-X XI-XII, 1-3 4-708, I-III IV-VI VII-VIII, 1 2-474; [Vol. IV] I-III IV-XII, 1 2-530. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 304. From the library of C.A. Meusel with his ink bookplate stamp in each volume.

"The writings of Adelung are very voluminous, and there is not one of them, perhaps, which does not exhibit some proofs of the genius, industry and erudition of the author... No [other] man before Jakob Grimm did so much for the language of Germany.

Shortly before his death he issued Mithridates, oder allgemeine Sprachenkunde (1806)... Unfortunately he did not live to finish what he had what he had undertaken. The first volume, which contains the Asiatic languages, was published immediately after his death; the other [volumes] were issued under the superintendence of Johann Severin Vater" (Encyclopedia Britannica, 13th edition). The four volumes contain vocabularies from over 500 languages around the world, gathered from all known sources. The Lord's Prayer is used a sample text in each language throughout.

1820: [LILLY] Uebersicht aller bekannten Sprachen und ihrer Dialekte, by Friedrich von Adelung [1768-1843]. St. Petersburg: Gedr. bey N. Gretsche, 1820. xiv, 186 p.; 23 cm. Original tan paper over boards, lettered and decorated in black. Front and rear covers detached. Lilly copy is a presentation copy from the author to "Herrn Pastor Kurtz, zum freundlichen Andenken", with an autograph letter from the author tipped in. "A likely continuation of J.C. Adelung's and J.S. Vater's linguistic work of a similar title issued in 1812. ...Not in Field, Pilling, or Ayer (bookseller's description)." Note(s): Includes section on Indian languages of California and the West (p. 102-108). Includes indexes. This is a list of all the known languages.

1846 [1968]: [IUW] Ethnography and philology, by Horatio Hale. Ridgewood, N.J., Gregg Press [1968] xii, 666 p. maps. 24 cm. United States Exploring Expedition (1838-1842). United States Exploring Expedition v. 6. Reprint of the 1846 ed. Includes under the section "Philology":

1) "Essay at a Lexicon of the Polynesian Language," introductory pages [291]-293, followed by the lexicon "Polynesian-English" [as spoken in "Fakaafu [Tokelauan], [Hawaii [Hawaiian], Mangareva [Mangareva], Nukuhiva [North Marquesan], New Zealand [Maori], Paumotu [Tuamotuan], Rarotonga [Cook Islands Maori], Samoa [Samoan], Tahiti [Tahitian], Tahuata [South Marquesan], Tarawa [Kiribati], Tonga [Tongan]"], pp. [294]-339, and "English-Polynesian," pp. [342]-356.

2) "Dialect of Fakaafu and Vaitufu," introductory pages [357]-361, vocabulary, English-dialect of Fakaafu and Vaitufu [Tokelauan], pp. [362]-364.

"... the resemblance of dialect is so close that it seemed superfluous to give separate vocabularies for the two clusters, the words obtained at both being for the most part exactly alike..." (p. [357]).

3) "A Grammar and Vocabulary of the Vitian Language," introductory pages [365]-389, "AVitian Dictionary," Vitian [Fijian]-English, pp. [392]-424. Viti Levu is the largest island in the Republic of Fiji, the site of the nation's capital, Suva, and home to a large majority of Fiji's population.

4) "Vocabulary of the Dialect of Tobi, or Lord North's Island," introductory pages [425]-426, "Tobian Vocabulary," English-Tobian, pp. [427]-429.

"Of Horace Holden, to whom we are indebted for the following vocabulary, some account is given on page 78. Besides the list of separate words, many sentences were written down, for the purpose of elucidating the grammatical structure of the language. It was, however, soon evident that this was expecting too much. The situation in which the captive seamen were placed, was such as to deprive them of all desire of acquiring a better knowledge of the language of their inhuman masters, than was absolutely necessary for the purpose of communicating with them.... They were therefor contented with learning the most common words, which they strung together so as to be intelligible, but with little or no regard to the proper idiom of the language" (p. [427]).

5) "Vocabulary of the Dialect of Mille, one of the Radack Islands," introductory pages [431]-432, English-Radack [Marshallese], pp. 432-434.

"We are indebted for this vocabulary... to the Rev. H. Bingham, who obtained the materials for it from the two seamen, Lay and Hussey, shortly after their rescue from captivity" (p. [431]).

"A comparison of this vocabulary with that of the Radack language, given in the appendix to Kotzebue's first Voyage, leaves no room for doubt that the natives of Mille, thought differing in some of their customs from the inhabitants of the northern islands, are yet of the same stock and speak the same language" (p. 434).

"Mille": "Mili Atoll (Marshallese: Mile, [mīlie̯]) is a coral atoll of 92 islands in the Pacific Ocean, and forms a legislative district of the Ratak Chain of the Marshall Islands" (Wiki).

"Radack": "The Ratak Chain (Marshallese: Ratak, [rʷɑqɔdʷɑk]) is a chain of islands within the island nation of the Marshall Islands. Ratak means "sunrise". It lies to the east of the country's other island chain, the Ralik Chain. In 1999 the total population of the Ratak islands was 30,925" (Wiki).

6) "A Vocabulary of the Tarawan Language," Tarawan [Kiribati]-English, pp. [446]-468. Hale referred to Kingsmill Islands (now called the Gilbert Islands) by the name of one of the islands in the chain, Tarawa. The language spoken was later called Gilbertese, or Kiribata (now the preferred form).

"The sources from which the materials have been derived for the grammar and vocabulary which follow are, firstly, a collection of about four hundred words made during the brief intercourse which we had with the natives: and, secondly, the information obtained from two seaman, Kirby and Grey, the one Irish and the other Scotch, who were taken by us from the islands of Kuria and Makin, on which they had been resident, the former three and the latter five years" (p. [435]).

7) "Notes on the Language of Rotuma," Rotuman Vocabulary, Rotuman-English, pp. [474]-478.

"The materials for the following remarks were obtained... during a brief intercourse with some natives of the island.... Although, from the unfavorable circumstances under which the notes were made, they are necessarily imperfect, they may yet serve to give some idea of the nature of the languages, and its relations to other idioms" (p. [469]).

8) "The Languages of Australia," comparative vocabulary of the aboriginal languages spoken in various locations in Australia: English-Moreton Bay-Lake Maquarie-Sydney-Liverpool-Muruya-Peel River-Mudgee-Wellington-Bathurst, pp. [479]-481. Kamilarai [Gamilaraay]-Wiradurai [Wiradhuri]-English vocabulary, pp. 505-510, followed by Kamilarai [Gamilaraay]-Wiradurai [Wiradhuri]-English sentences, pp. [511]-531.

9) "The Languages of the Northwestern America," Vocabularies, English-Tahkali (Carriers) [Carrier]-Tlatskanai [Kwalhioqua-Clatskanie]-Umkwa (Umpqua) [Upper Umpqua]-Kitunaha (Coutanias, Flat-Bows) [Kutenai]-Shushwapumsh (Shushwaps, Atnhas [Shuswap]-Selish (Flatheads) [Kalispel-Pend d'oreille]-Skitsuish (Coeur d'alène) [Coeur d'alene]-Piskwans (Piscous)-Skwale (Nasqually) [Nisqually: dialect of Southern Lushootseed]-Tsihailish (Chickailis, Chilts) [Lower Chehalis]-Kawelitsk (Cowelits) [Cowlitz]-Nsietshawus (Killamuks) [Tillamook]-Sahaptin (Nez-Perçés) [Nez Perce]-Walawala (Wallawallas) [Walla Walla]-Waiilatpu (Willetpoos, Cayuse) [Cayuse]-Molele-Watlala (Upper Chinooks) [Wasco-Wishram]-Tshinuk (Chinooks) [Chinook]-

Kalapuya-Iakon (Lower Killamuks) [Kalapuya]-Lutuami (Tlmatl, Clamets) [Klamath-Modoc]-Saste (Shasties) [Shasta]-Palaihnih (Palaiks) [Achumawi/Atsugewi]-Shoshoni (Shoshonees, Snakes)-Wihinast (Western Shoshonees) [Western Shoshoni: dialect of Shoshoni]-Satsikaa (Blackfeet)-Kwoneatshatka (Newitsee) [Nuu-chah-nulth]-San Raphael [Southern Sierra Miwok]-San Gabriel [Gabrielino]-San Juan Capistrano [Juaneño: dialect of Luiseño] pp. 570-629.

10) Miscellaneous Vocabularies: English-Upper Sacramento [Wintu] (22 words), p. [630], English-Telatūi [Southern Sierra Miwok], p. 631, English-Pujūni [Nisenan]-Sekumne [Northwest Maidu]-Tsamak [Northwest Maidu], pp. 631-633, English-La Soledad [Northern Ohlone]-San Miguel [Miguelito: dialect of Salinan], pp. 633-634, English-Hailtsa [Heiltsuk], p. 634.

11) The "Jargon" or Trade-Language of Oregon: English-Trade Language [Chinook Wawa] vocabulary, pp. 646-650.

"The following list contains all the simple words of the trade language, and some of the compound ones. ... What is given here will be sufficient to satisfy and curiosity which may be felt concerning this singular speech" (p. 646).

12) Patagonia: Arucano [Mapudungun]-Chileno [Mapudungun], pp. 652-853 [the list is presented to show that the two vocabularies collected are the same language]; English-Puelches [Puelche], 654-656.

13) Southern Africa: English-Eyo [Yoruba]-Kambinda [Kimbundu]-Mundjola-Congo [Koongo]-Angola-Bengera-Makua [Makhuwa]-Mudjana-Makonde-Takwani [Takwane]-Masena [Sena?]-Sofala [Ndau]-Nyambana-Zulu-Bichuana [Tswana], pp. 659-666.

1860: [LILLYbm] Opuscula. Essays chiefly philological and ethnographical, by Robert Gordon Latham [1812-1888]. [London]; Edinburgh; Leipzig: Williams Norgate, 14 Henrietta Street, Covent Garden, London and 20 South Frederick Street, Edinburgh. Leipzig, R. Hartmann, (Leipzig printed by B.G. Teubner), 1860. Original purple-brown cloth over boards, decorated in blind, spine lettered in gold. Pp. I-III IV-VI, 1 2-418. First edition. Includes numerous comparative vocabularies of languages from around the world from published and unpublished sources, in the form of papers delivered for the most part before the London Philological Society, of which Latham was the first President, between 1840 and 1856, including: "On the Affinities of the Languages of Caucasus with the Monosyllabic Languages," pp. [156]-167; "On the Negrito Languages," pp. [191]-216," "Remarks on the Vocabularies of the Voyage of the Rattlesnake: Appendix to MacGillivray's Voyage of the HMS Rattlesnake, 1852," pp. [223]-241, "On a Zaza [Northern Zazaki] Vocabulary," pp. [242]-244, "On the Personal Pronouns and Numerals of the Mallicollo and Erromango Languages by the Reverend C. Abraham," pp. [243]-248, ""On the Languages of the Oregon Territory", pp. [247]-265, "Miscellaneous Contributions to the Ethnography of North America," pp. [275]-297, "On a Short Vocabulary of the Loucheux [Gwhic'in] Language," pp. [298]-299, "On the Languages of New C]lifornia," pp. [300]-316, "Note upon a Paper of the Honourable Captain Fitzroy's on the Isthmus of Panama," pp. [323]-325, "On the Languages of Northern, Western, and Central America," pp. [326]-377, with several further comparative vocabularies included in the "Addenda and Corrigenda," pp.[378]-418.

"The ... [Zaza] vocabulary is one taken by Dr. H. Sandwith from a Kurd of the Zaza tribe, one of the rudest of the whole Kurd family, and one for which we have no 2000:

2000a: [IUW] EnDic2000: Ympäristösanakirja = Keskkonnasõnastik =

Environmental Dictionary = Umweltwörterbuch = Miljöordbok = Vides Vārdnīca = Ēkologiskie slovar' / Aleksander Maastik, Pertti Heinonen, Veli Hyvärinen, Juha Kajander, Krister Karttunen, Heido Ots, Pertti Seuna. Helsinki; Tartu: Finnish Environment Institute, 2000. 702 pages; 25 cm. Includes bibliographical references (pages 25-30) and indexes. Prefatory matter in Finnish, Estonian, English, German, Swedish, Latvian, and Russian; terms in Finnish with definitions in English, Estonian, and Finnish and translations into Estonian, English, German, Swedish, Latvian, and Russian; indexes of Estonian, English, German, Swedish, Latvian, Russian, and Latin terms.philological specimens". p. [242].

2000b: [IUMusicLibrary] Orgelwoordenboek = Organ dictionary / Wilfried Praet ... [et al.]. [2. udg., rev.]. Nieuwkerken [Belgium]: CEOS, c2000. 508 p.: ill.; 24 cm. Catalan, Czech, Danish, Dutch, English, Esperanto, Finnish, French, German, Hungarian, Italian, Japanese, Latin, Norwegian, Portuguese, Romanian, Russian, Spanish, and Swedish. Chapter titles in various languages on 3 cards ([2] p. each; 16 x 17 cm.) inserted. Includes indexes.

2002: [IUW] Hello world!: greetings in 42 languages around the globe! / by Manya Stojic. New York: Scholastic, c2002. 38 p.: col. ill.; 28 cm. "Cartwheel books." Includes index. Children from around the world say "hello" in forty-two languages, from Amharic to Zulu.

2008: Northern Europe: 10 essential languages for city breaks. Footscray, Vic.; London: Lonely Planet, 2008. 127 p.: ill., maps; 15 cm. Small talk (Lonely Planet Publications (Firm)) Includes index. English, Danish, Estonian, Faroese, Finnish, Greenlandic, Icelandic, Latvian, Lithuanian, Norwegian, Swedish.

2009: [IUW] Loanwords in the world's languages: a comparative handbook / edited by Martin Haspelmath, Uri Tadmor. Berlin, Germany: De Gruyter Mouton, c2009. xxi, 1081 p.: maps; 25 cm. Includes bibliographical references and index.

General chapters:

- I. The loanword typology project and the world loanword database / Martin Haspelmath and Uri Tadmor
- II. Lexical borrowing: Concepts and issues / Martin Haspelmath
- III. Loanwords in the world's languages: Findings and results / Uri Tadmor
- THE LANGUAGES: 1. Loanwords in Swahili / Thilo C. Schadeberg
2. Loanwords in Iraqw, a Cushitic language of Tanzania / Maarten Mous and Martha Qorro
3. Loanwords in Gawwada, a Cushitic language of Ethiopia / Mauro Tosco
4. Loanwords in Hausa, a Chadic language in West Africa / Ari Awagana and H. Ekkehard Wolff, with Doris Löhr
5. Loanwords in Kanuri, a Saharan language / Doris Löhr and H. Ekkehard Wolff, with Ari Awagana
6. Loanwords in Tarifiyt, a Berber language of Morocco / Maarten Kossmann
7. Loanwords in Seychelles Creole / Susanne Michaelis with Marcel Rosalie
8. Loanwords in Romanian / Kim Schulte
9. Loanwords in Selice Romani, an Indo-Aryan language of Slovakia / Viktor Elšík
10. Loanwords in Lower Sorbian, a Slavic language of Germany / Hauke Bartels
11. Loanwords in Old High German / Roland Schuhmann
12. Loanwords in Dutch / Nicoline van der Sijs

13. Loanwords in British English / Anthony Grant
14. Loanwords in Kildin Saami, a Uralic language of northern Europe / Michael Riessler
15. Loanwords in Bezhta, a Nakh-Daghestanian of the North Caucasus / Bernard Comrie and Madzhid Khalilov
16. Loanwords in Archi, a Nakh-Daghestanian of the North Caucasus / Marina Chumakina
17. Loanwords in Manange, a Tibeto-Burman language of Nepal / Kristine A. Hildebrandt
18. Loanwords in Ket, a Yeniseian language of Siberia / Edward Vajda
19. Loanwords in Sakha (Yakut), a Turkic language of Siberia / Brigitte Pakendorf and Innokentij N. Novgorodov
20. Loanwords in Oroqen, a Tungusic language of China / Fengxiang Li and Lindsay J. Whaley
- Loanwords in Japanese / Christopher K. Schmidt
22. Loanwords in Mandarin Chinese / Thekla Wiebusch and Uri Tadmor
23. Loanwords in Thai / Titima Suthiwan and Uri Tadmor
24. Loanwords in Vietnamese / Mark J. Alves
25. Loanwords in White Hmong / Martha Ratliff
26. Loanwords in Ceq Wong, an Austroasiatic language of Peninsular Malaysia / Nicole Kruspe
27. Loanwords in Indonesian / Uri Tadmor
28. Loanwords in Malagasy / Alexander Adelaar
29. Loanwords in Takia, an Oceanic language of Papua New Guinea / Malcolm Ross
30. Loanwords in Hawaiian / 'Ōiwi Parker Jones
31. Loanwords in Gurindji, a Pama-Nyungan language of Australia / Patrick McConvell
32. Loanwords in Yaqui, a Uto-Aztecan language of Mexico / Zarina Estrada Fernández
33. Loanwords in Zinacantán Tzotzil, a Mayan language of Mexico / Cecil H. Brown
34. Loanwords in Q'eqchi', a Mayan language of Guatemala / Søren Wichmann and Kerry Hull
35. Loanwords in Otomí, an Otomanguean language of Mexico / Ewald Hekking and Dik Bakker
36. Loanwords in Saramaccan, an English-based creole of Suriname / Jeff Good
37. Loanwords in Imbabura Quechua / Jorge Gómez Rendón and Willem Adelaar
38. Loanwords in Kali'na, a Cariban language of French Guiana / Odile Renault-Lescure
39. Loanwords in Hup, a Nadahup language of Amazonia / Patience Epps
40. Loanwords in Wichí, a Mataco-Mataguayan language of Argentina / Alejandra Vidal and Verónica.

[LAO] Lao, also referred to as Laotian, (ລາວ 'lao' or ພາສາລາວ 'lao language') is a tonal language of the Tai–Kadai language family. It is the official language of Laos, and also spoken in the northeast of Thailand, where it is usually referred to as the Isan language. The Lao language serves as an important lingua franca as the country of Laos consists of multiple ethnic groups, whose population speaks about 86 different languages. Spoken Lao is mutually intelligible with the Thai language; the two languages are written with slightly different scripts, but linguistically similar. Lao, like many languages in Laos, is written in the Lao script, an abugida. Although there is no official standard, the Vientiane dialect has become the de facto standard (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lao. Alternate Names: Eastern Thai, Lào, Lao Kao, Lao Wiang, Lao-Lum, Lao-Noi, Lao-Tai, Laotian, Laotian Tai, Lum Lao, Phou Lao, Rong Kong, Tai Lao.

1894: [LILLYbm] Mission Pavié. Exploration de l'Indo-Chine: mémoires et documents... Tome II: Littérature et linguistique. Deuxième fascicule: Dictionnaire laotien, by M. Massié. Paris: Ernest Leroux, 1894. Original tan wrappers, lettered in black, preserved in later dark blue unprinted wrappers glued at spine. Pp. [4] 1 2-127 128. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Includes French-Lao, pp. [5]-127. First dictionary of the language. Zauhmüller lists only two dictionaries of Lao, both French, 1906 and 1912.

1904: [LILLYbm] Lexique français-laocien, by Marie Joseph Cuaz [1862- ]. Hongkong: Société des mission étrangères, 1904. Later brown cloth over boards, spine lettered in gold. Pp. I-V VI-LXXV LXXVI, 1 2-490 491-492. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Includes French-Lao, pp. [1]-490. Pages arranged in three columns: French, Romanized Lao, and Lao script. Cuaz was Bishop of Hermopolis and Apostolic Vicar to Laos. This copy with the bookplate of the Breezewood Foundation.

"The dialect Thai Lao, or the Lao language, with which this dictionary is concerned, is the language generally spoken throughout the Me Kong River delta, on both sides of the river, from Cambodia to the Chinese border... For the most complete study of the mandarin language in general, one should consult the Dictionnaire français-siamois published in Bangkok [in 1903], with the support of the Government of Indo-China [see Cuaz entry under Thai]. The present lexicon, which is in principle nothing more than a simple supplement to the Dictionnaire français-siamois, was also made possible through the support of the Government of Indo-China" (Foreword, tr: BM).

1906: [LILLY] An English-Laos dictionary, by D. G. Collins. Chieng Mai: Mission Press, 1906. Libraries Worldwide: 1 (Wheaton College). Second Edition, 100 copies. Not in Zauhmüller.

1912 [1971]: [IUW] Dictionnaire laotien-français, by Théodore Guignard. Hongkong, Impr. de Nazareth, 1912. [Farnborough, Gregg, 1971]. lxx, 959, [9] p. (1 fold.) 23 cm. Added title in Lao. Reprint of first edition.

1962: [IUW] Vatchanānukom 'Angkit-Lāo, rūaprūam dōi Bunthom Bunyavong. Vīangchan: Samākhom Lāo-'Amērikan, 2505 [1962] xi, 367 p.; 18 cm. English-Lao dictionary.

1968: [LILLYbm] English-Lao: Lao-English Dictionary, by Russell Marcus. Bangkok: Russell Marcus, 1968. Hardbound in clear plastic. First edition. English Lao dictionaries appeared in 1906 and 1915.

Later edition 1970: [IUW] English-Lao, Lao-English dictionary, by Russell Marcus. Rutland, Vt., C. E. Tuttle Co. [1970]. 416 p. illus. 17 cm.

1972: [IUW] Lao-English dictionary, by Allen D. Kerr; assisted by Sing Bourommavong ... [et al.]. Washington, D.C.: Catholic University of America Press, 1972 [distributed 1982]. 2 vols. Vol I: xxiv, pp. 1-616; Vol II: pp. 617-1223. Bound uniformly in original red cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Publications in the language of Asia; 2. Lao-English, pp. 1-1223.

"This dictionary was compiled over a period of twelve years from 1960 to 1971, of which eight years were spent in Laos and two in Thailand. The material was drawn from all available dictionaries, both in Lao and Thai, from current vernacular publications and from conversations with native speakers of the language.... [I]t is hoped that this, the first reasonably comprehensive dictionary of the Lao language, will be of real assistance to the practical user, and that it may stimulate a greater interest in a little-known language and people" (Preface).

1980a: [LILLYbm] English-Lao Phrasebook with Useful Wordlist (for Loatians). Arlington, Virginia: Center for Applied Linguistics, [1980]. Original orange wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. i-ii iii-viii, 1-152. First edition. Ex-library copy. Includes Lao-English wordlist, pp. 93-123, and English-Lao, pp. 125-152.

"The Center for Applied Linguistics has responded to the urgent need created by the immigration of thousands of Indochinese refugees to this country by developing materials for use by the refugees and others working with them. It is our hope that this present work, designed specifically for Laotian refugees, will contribute to bridging the language and cultural barriers, and help the refugees to take their place as new members of American society."

1980b: [IUW] Medical guide and glossary, authors Christa Wagner, Janet Rullo [i.e. Rollo]; translation and layout Khamking Souvanlasy ... [et al.] Portland, Oregon: Indochinese Language Resource Center, Indochinese Cultural and Service Center, 1980. [12], 139 p.: ill.; 28 cm. Preface in English and Laotian, text in Laotian. Appendix: English-Laotian medical dictionary. Bibliography: p. 139.

1985: [IUW] Pathānukom Latsīa-Lao samlap nakhīan san bamlung: 5000 kham, Lō. Nō. Mōlāp [Morev, L. N. (Lev Nikolaevich)];; kūat dōi Tō. Mō. Mōbasāyuk. Moskva: "Russkiĭ ĭazyk," 1985. 560 p.; 22 cm. Added title page: Russko-laoskiĭ uchebnyi slovar'. Russian-Lao dictionary.

[LARAGIA] The Laragiya language (Larrakia), also known as Gulumirrgin, is an Australian language isolate spoken by just six people near the city of Darwin in northern Australia as of 1983. The 2006 census reports 23 speakers, but these are not necessarily native or fluent. Laragiya was once considered a language isolate, but Mark Harvey has made a case for it being part of a family of Darwin Region languages. Linguist Arthur Capell wrote, "Even in 1950 there were no children speaking it, and most of the older people who spoke it in 1952 (when the bulk of these notes was gathered) were found on the Delissaville Reserve (now Belyuen), across the harbour from Darwin. By 1968, reports of only two speakers could be gained, and these far away from Darwin. In former times, however, the tribe was fairly large, and its territory extended to the Adelaide River, where it joined that of a tribe called "Woolna" by the early writers, while on the south-east it was bounded by the Warrai. These latter languages are practically unrecorded. "The present outline of Laragia is based on notes taken at various periods, chiefly 1949 and 1952. The notes have been systematised as far as possible, but they make no claim to provide a fully laid out grammar, especially on the phonetic level." (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lrg. Alternate Names: Gulumirrgin, Laragiya, Larakia, Larakiya.

1895: see under AUSTRALIAN ABORIGINAL LANGUAGES:
POLYGLOT.

[LARI] Lari, also known as Larestani (Persian: لاریستان), is a southwestern Iranian language related to Luri and Persian. Lari is spoken in different counties of the Fars province (Larestan, Khonj, Gerash, Lamerd) and in the mountainous Bastak County in Hormozgan. The language is spoken by Larestani people, the majority of Larestani people are Sunni Muslims. Lari has several dialects: Khonji, Lari, Gerashi, Evazi (Awadhi), Fedaghi, Aradi, Bastaki, Fishvari, Khookherdi and Kandari (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lrl. Alternate Names: Achomi, Larestani.

1955: [LILLYbm] Farhange Lârestâni, by A. Egedari. Introduction by Pour-Davoud. Tehrân: 1955. Original light blue cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in black. A Western Farsi-Lari dictionary. From the library of Carleton T. Hodge.

[LARTEH] Larteh is spoken 74,000 speakers in Ghana. The Lartehs and the closely related Kyiripons, are the main inhabitants of the mountainous parts of the Eastern region of Ghana. Due to the language's ability to adapt to any accent of speaking, it seems to vary from town to town and it currently uses the Akuapem-Twi (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lar. Alternate Names: Gua, Late, Lete.

1966: see 1966a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[LATGALIAN] Latgalian is spoken in Latgale, the eastern part of Latvia. It is debated whether it is a separate language or a dialect of Latvian. Nevertheless, its standardized form is recognized and protected as a "historical variety of the Latvian language" (vēsturisks latviešu valodas paveids) by Latvian law. The 2011 Latvian census established that 8.8% of Latvia's inhabitants, or 164,500 people, speak Latgalian daily. 97,600 of them live in Latgale, 29,400 in Riga and 14,400 in the Riga region (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ltg. Alternate Names: Latgaliešu. Autonym: Latgališu. Ethnologue lists Latvian (lav) as a macrolanguage including Latgalian [ltg] and Standard Latvian [lvs].

1969: [IUW] Latgaļu-vōcu un vōcu-latgaļu vōrdneica. Latgalisch-deutsches und deutsch-latgalisches Wörterbuch, by Mikelis Bukšs, [München] P/s Latgaļu izdevnīceiba, 1969. 206 p. 21 cm. "1943. goda izdavuma porspidums."

[LATVIAN, STANDARD] Latvian (latviešu valoda ['latviɛʃu 'valuɔda] is the official state language of Latvia. It was previously known in English as Lettish which remains the standard today in various forms in most other Germanic languages. There are about 1.3 million native Latvian speakers in Latvia and 100,000 abroad. Altogether, 2 million, or 80% of the population of Latvia, speak Latvian. Of those, 1.16 million or 56% use it as their primary language at home. The use of the Latvian language in various areas of social life in Latvia is increasing. Latvian is a Baltic language and is most closely related to Lithuanian. In addition there is some disagreement whether Latgalian and New Curonian, which are mutually intelligible with Latvian, should be considered varieties or separate languages. Latvian first appeared in Western print in the mid-16th century with the reproduction of the Lord's Prayer in Latvian in Sebastian Münster's Cosmographia Universalis (1544), in Latin script (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lvs. Autonym: Latviešu valoda, Latviski. Ethnologue lists Latvian (lav) as a macrolanguage including Latgalian [ltg] and Standard Latvian [lvs].

1789: [IUW] Lettisches Lexikon: in zween Theilen abgefasset, und den liebhabern der lettischen Litteratur / gewidmet von Gotthard Friedrich Stender ... Mitau: J.F. Steffenhagen, [1789]. 2 pts. in 1 v.; 404 p., 773 p., 19 cm. Library binding. Part I: Lettish [Latvian]-German, pp. [1]-404, Part II: German-Lettish [Latvian], pp.[3]-742 (second pagination). Includes an introduction dealing with the Latvian people and the need for this dictionary.

1872-1880: [IUW] Lettisches Wörterbuch ... con bischof Dr. Carl Christian Ulmann ... Riga, H. Brutzer & Co., 1872-80. 2 v. 25 cm. The work was begun by Georg Neiken and continued after his death (1868) by Ulmann. Edited after Ulmann's death by a Bielenstein (v. 1 and G. Brasche (v. 2.)). 1. th. Lettisch-deutsches Wörterbuch. 2. th. Deutsch-lettisches Wörterbuch.

1913: [IUW] Kreewu-latwee[s]chn wahrdniza. Sa[s]tahdijis J. Drawneeks. Rīgā, J. Brigadera apgahdibā, 1913. Added t.-p. in Russian. 4 p. l., 992 p. 23 cm. Original green quarter-cloth, lettered in gold, with brown marbled paper over boards. Russian-Latvian, pp. [1]-992.

1923: [IUW] Latwju-kreewu wahrdnīza, J. Drawneeka sastahdīta. Rīgā, Walters un Rapa, 1923. 353 p. Latvian-German dictionary.

1923-1932: [IUW] K. Mūlenbacha Latviešu valodas vārdnīca. Rediģējis, papildinājis, turpinājis J. Endzelīns ... Izdevusi Izglītības ministrija ... K. Mühlenbachs Lettisch-deutsches Wörterbuch. Redigiert, ergänzt und fortgesetzt von J. Endzelin ... Herausgegeben vom lettischen Bildungsministerium. Riga, 1923-32. 4 v. 28 cm. Vols. 2-4: ... Kultūras fonda izdevums ... Herausgegeben vom lettischen Kueturfonds; v. 4: ... Rediģējis, papildinājis, nobeidzis J. Endzelīns. 1. A-I. II. Ie-Or. III. Pa-Sv. IV. Ša-Zv. Latvian-German dictionary.

Second edition 1953-1955: [IUW] K. Mūlenbacha Latviešu valodas vārdnīca. Rediģējis, papildinājis, turpinājis J. Endzelīns ... Izdevusi Izglītības ministrija ... K. Mühlenbachs Lettisch-deutsches wörterbuch. Redigiert, ergänzt und fortgesetzt von J. Endzelin ... Herausgegeben vom lettischen Bildungsministerium. 2. negrozits izdevums. Second edition. Čik āgā: Izdevusi Čikāgas Baltu Filologu Kopa, 1953-1955. 6 v.; 28 cm. Vols. 2-4: ... Kultūras fonda izdevums ... Herausgegeben vom lettischen Kueturfonds; v. 4: ... Rediģējis, papildinājis, nobeidzis J. Endzelīns. Contents: I. A-I. II. Ie-Or. III. Pa-Sv. IV. Ša-Žv. Vols. V and VI are supplements to I-IV. (V. A-M. VI. N-Z.), continuing the vol. numbering.

1929: [IUW] Lietuviškai-latviškas žodynas, sudarē J. Ryteris. Lietuviskilatviska vārdnīca, sastādījis J. Rīteris. Rīgā, Autora izdevums, 1929. viii, 1368 p. 18 cm. Lettish title on cover. Lithuanian-Latvian dictionary.

1930: [IUW] A Latvian-English dictionary, compiled by K. Brandt and Dr. W.K. Matthews, edited by Prof. P. Schmidt. Added t.p.: Latviešu-angļu vārdnīca, sakārtojuši K. Brants un dr. V.K. Matiuss, rediģējis prof. P. Šmits. Riga, A. Gulbis, 1930. 420 p.; 16 cm. Contemporary binding, probably an embassy binding. Latvian-English, pp.[11]-420. This copy from the Library of the Embassy of the United States of America at Moscow, and from the Library of the Legation of the United States of America at Riga, Latvia, stamped as a Reference Copy, not to leave the State Department premises, and with Indiana University ownership stamp.

"Intercourse between the English-speaking countries and Latvia is constantly increasing in all spheres of life, and with it the need of an adequate command of the two idioms. To encourage and facilitate the study of these we offer the reader our Latvian-Engllsh dictionary" (Preface).

1935: [IUW] Latviski-vāciska un vāciski-latviska vārdnīca. Lettisch-deutsches und deutsch-llettisches Wörterbuch. Sakārtojis Ed. Ozoliņš, rediģējis J. Endzelīns. Papildināts 2. izdevums. Second edition. Rīgā, A. Gulbis, 1935- v. 16 cm. Latvian-German, German-Latvian dictionary.

1936: [IUW] Angļu-latvju vārdnīca / J. Dravnieka. 3. iespiedums. Third edition. Rīga: Valtera un Rapas akciju sabiedrības apgāds, 1936. 606 p.; 18 cm. Original gray cloth over boards, lettered in gold. English-Latvian, pp.[33]-604. The first edition was published in Riga in 1924, the second in 1931, the third in 1933 and 1936, the fourth in 1938.

1938: [IUW] Deutsch-llettisches Wörterbuch. 5. Aufl., umgearb. von Zenta Mauriņa. Rīga, Walters & Rapa, 1938. 706 p. 23 cm. At head of title: J. Drawnieks. Added t.p.: Vāciski-latviska vārdnīca. German-Latvian dictionary.

1942a: [LILLY] Latviešu, vācu un krievu grāmatiūpniecības vārdnīca, ar vāciski-krievisku un krieviski-vācisku alfabētisku terminu sarakstu un 12 reprodukciju pielikumiem / A. Auziņš. Rīga: Apgāds Latvju Grāmata, 1942. 518 p., 1 leaf: 12 plates (part mounted); (8vo) Title also in German and Russian. In original boards with cloth spine and corners. Library science dictionary, Latvian-German-Russian.

1942b: [IUW] Latviski-vāciska vārdnīca / sastādījusi E. Lauva. 2. iespiedums. Second edition. Rīgā: Latvju Grāmata, 1942. 339 p.; 18 cm. Latvian-German dictionary.

1942c: [IUW] Latyšsko-russkiĭ slovar', Sostavil prof. Ī. V. Loīa. 2. izd. dop. i ispr. Okolo 40 000 slov s prilozheniem kratkoĭ grammatiki latyšskogo ģazyka. Second enlarged edition. Moskva, Ogiz, Gos. izd-vo inostrannykh i natsional'nykh slovareĭ, 1942. 250 p., 1 l. 20 cm. "Literatura": p. 250. Latvian-Russian dictionary.

1943: [IUW] Litauisch-deutsches Wörterbuch [von] K. Fulst, A. Scholz [und] J. Talmantas. Lietuviškai vokiškas žodynas. Kaune, Valstybine Leidykla [1943- v. 16 cm. Latvian-German dictionary.

1945a: [IUW] Angliski-latviska vārdnīca / sastādījuši Klaudija un Kārlis Roze; rediģējis E. Blese. [2. izdevums]. Second edition. Goepingen: K. Roze, 1945. xvi, 442 p.; 15 cm. Added t.p.: An English-Latvian dictionary. The first edition was published in Riga in 1931. English-Latvian, pp. 1-442. Original tan wrappers, lettered in green, with unprinted green cloth spine. Printed by Kirchner (see verso of title page). Text ends with p. [243] (no text on verso). This second edition was also published in 1945 in Flensburga.

Reprinted 1946: [IUW] Angliski-latviska vārdnīca. An English-Latvian dictionary. Sastādījuši Klaudija un Kārlis Roze. Rediģējis E. Blese. Goepingen, 1946. xvi, 448 p. 15 cm. Original gray-green paper over boards, lettered in black, with unprinted tan cloth spine. Printed by NWZ (see verso of title page). Text continues pp. [443]-448 (weights, mesures, etc). Also published in Stockholm in the same year. This copy a duplicate from the Library of Congress.

1945b: [IUW] Angliski-latviska vārdnīca. Sastādījis J. Kalnberzs. [Würzburg] Virsburgas centralās nometnes latviešu komiteja, 1945. 151 p. 15 cm. English-Latvian dictionary.

1946a: [IUW] Latviski-angliska kabatas vārdnīca un angļu valodas gramatika / sakārtojis K. Grāvelis; red. B. Kingstone. Esslingen (Neckar), Germany: K. Grāvelis apgāds, 1946. 110 p.; 15 cm. Latvian-English dictionary.

1946b: [IUW] Latviski-angliska vārdnīca / Jānis Kalnbērzs. [Wurtsburg]: Latviešu studentu savienības izdevums, 1946. 270 p.; 21 cm. Original tan wrappers, lettered and ruled in black. Latvian-English, pp. [7]-270.

195- [IUW] Angliski-latviska vārdnīca. Ar fonētisku izrunu, gramatiku, īpatnējiem izteicieniem un saīsinājumu paskaidrojumiem. Vārdnīcā ir ap 30.000 vārdus. [Kopenhāgenā] Imanta [195-] 1062 p. 14 cm. Original red cloth over boards, lettered in dull yellow. English-Latvian, pp. 26-1058. English-Latvian dictionary.

1951: [IUW] Russko-latyšskii slovar'; okolo 40 000 slov, sastāvil ĪA. V. Loīa; okolo 40 000 slov. Moskva, Gos. izd-vo inostrannykh i natsional'nykh slovareī, 1951. 870 p. 21 cm. Added t.p., pref., and introductory matter in Latvian. Russian-Latvian dictionary.

1953: [IUW] Latviešu-krievu vārdnīca / sastādījis autoru kolektīvs. Rīgā: Latvijas valsts izdevniecība, 1953. 736 p. Added t.p.: Latyšsko-russkii slovar'. Latvian-Russian dictionary.

1955: [IUW] Lāsāma grāmata: 7. klasei skolās ar krievu mācību valodu / I. Brakovska, H. Grase, O. Kostīluka; vārdnīcu sastādījusi E. Šmite. Rīgā: Latvijas Valsts Izdevniecība, 1955. 125 pages: illustrations; 23 cm. Includes Latvian-Russian vocabulary lists at end.

1956: [IUW] Latviešu-krievu vārdnīca skolām / sastādījuši A. Gūtmanis, O. Loginova, P. Rogozīņņikovs; vārdnīcā ir ap 14 000 vārdus. Papildināts 2. izdevums. Second edition. Rīgā: Latvijas valsts izdevniecība, 1956. 323 p.; 23 cm. Added t.p.: Latyšsko-russkii slovar' dlīa shkōl. Latin-russian school dictionary.

1958: [IUW] Научная и техническая терминология. Nauchnaīa i tehnhicheskaīa terminologīa. Rīga: Изд-во Академии наук Латвийской ССР, 1958- Rīga: Izd-vo Akademii nauk Latvīiskoi SSR, 1958- v.; 17 cm. Errata slips inserted. Russian-Latvian, Latvian-Russian dictionary of science and technology terms.

1959a: [IUW] Krievu-latviešu vārdnīca. [Sagatavojuši Latvijas PSR Zinātņu akadēmijas Valodas un literatūras institūts un Latvijas Valsts izdevniecības Vārdnīcu redakcija]. Rīgā, Latvijas Valsts Izdevniecība, 1959. 2 v. in 1; 27 cm. Added t. p.: Russko-latyšskii slovar. Russian-Latvian dictionary.

1959b: [IUW] Lāti-eesti sõnaraamat / Karl Aben. Tallinn, Eesti Riiklik Kirjastus, 1959. 264 p. 17 cm. Latvian-Estonian dictionary.

1962: [IUW] Latviešu-angļu vārdnīca, by E. Turkina, edited by M. Andersone. 2d ed. rev. and enlarged. Rīga, Latvijas Valsts Izdevniecība, 1962. 775 p.; 22 cm. Added t. p.: Latvian-English dictionary. Bibliography: p. [7].

Fourth edition 1982: [IUW] Latviešu-angļu vārdnīca: ap 30,000 vārdus / E. Turkina. 4. pārstrādāts izdevums. Fourth edition. Rīga: "Avots," 1982. 638 p.; 22 cm. Title on added t.p.: Latvian-English dictionary.

1963: [IUW] Valodniecības terminu vārdnīca. 2945 latviesū termini. Sastādījuši R. Gra-bis, Dz. Barbare, A. Bergmane. Rīgā, Latvijas valsts izdevniecība, 1963. 255 p. 17 cm. Zinātniskā un tehniskā terminoloģija; 4. At head of title: Latvijas PSR Zinātņu akadēmija. Terminoloģijas komisija. Added t.p.: Slovar' lingvisticheskikh terminov. Latvian-Russian linguistic terms.

1964: [IUW] Lietuviešu-latviešu vārdnīca, by A. Bojāte, rediģējis: J. Balkevičs; ap 50000 vārdus. Rīgā: Latvijas valsts izdevniecība, 1964. 915 p. At head of title: A.

Bojāte, V. Subatnieks. Added t.p. in Lithuanian: Lietuvių-latvių kalbų žodynas. Lithuanian-Latvian dictionary.

1965: [IUW] Latviešu-krievu frazeoloģiskā vārdnīca, by D. Caubulina. Rīgā: Liesma, 1965. 673 p. Added t.p.: Latyšshsko-russkiĭ frazeopogicheskiĭ slovar'. Latvian-Russian dictionary of terms and phrases.

1966: [IUW] Angļu-latviešu vārdnīca. 2. izdevums izlabots un pārstrādāts. Ap 42 000 vārdu. [Sastādījuši: Z. Belzēja et al.] Second edition. Rīgā, Liesma, 1966. 1076 p. 23 cm. Added t.p.: English-Latvian dictionary. "Revised Second Edition: Approx. 42000 entries" on title page. Original brownish-red cloth over boards, lettered in white and black. English-Latvian, pp. [11]-1009; also includes names and abbreviations, English-Latvian. Bibliography: p. [5]-6. The first edition was published in Riga in 1957.

New edition 1971: [IUW] English-Latvian dictionary. Compiled by: Z. Belzēja [and others] The chapter of American slang, new words, proverbs, and sayings compiled and edited by V. Silmalis. Waverly, Iowa, Latvju Gramata, 1971. 1133 p. 23 cm. Original black cloth over boards, lettered in gold. English-Latvian, pp. 11-1009; Proverbs, idioms, and sayings, English-Latvian, pp. 1010-1059; "A selection of American Slang," English-Latvian, pp. 1060-1130.

1967: [IUW] Igauņu-latviešu vārdnīca, by Karl Aben, Dz. Plakides redakcijā. Ap 23000 vārdu. Rīgā, Liesma, 1967. 616 p. 17 cm. At head of title: K. Abens. Bibliography: p. [15]. Estonian-Latvian dictionary.

1973: see under LIV.

1975a: [IUW] Ekonomikas terminu vārdnīca: aptuveni 11 000 latviešu terminu / sastādījis autoru kolektīvs [A. Rūsas vadībā]. Rīga: Liesma, 1975. 597 p.; 16 cm. Terminoloģija; 11. "Apstiprinājusi Latvijas PSR Zinātņu akadēmijas Terminoloģijas komisija." Added t.p.: Slovar' terminov ēkonomiki. Russian-Latvian, Latvian-Russian dictionary of economic terms.

1975b: [IUW] Latyšshsko-russkiĭ slovar': okolo 7500 slov / sostavil A. Gutmanis. Rīga: Liesma, 1975. 279 p.; 18 cm. Added t.p.: Latviešu-krievu vārdnīca. "Kratkie svedeniĭa iz grammatiki latyšshskogo ĭazyka": p. [255]-279. Latvian-Russian dictionary.

1976: [IUW] Angļu-latviešu vārdnīca: Ap 20000 vārdu / sastādījuši J. Raškevičs, M. Sosāre, L. Timenčika. Izlabots un papildināts 3. izdevums. Rīga: Liesma, 1976. 790 p.; 18 cm. Added t.p.: English-Latvian dictionary. Bibliography: p. 5-6. The first edition was published in Riga in 1962; the second in 1964.

Fourth edition 1985: [IUW] Angļu-latviešu vārdnīca: ap 22 000 vārdu / J. Raškevičs, M. Sosāre, L. Timenčika. 4. izlabotais un papildinātais izdevums. Fourth edition. Rīga: Avots, 1985. 818 p.; 17 p. Title on added t.p.: English-Latvian dictionary. Subsequent edition appeared in 1993 and 1997.

1977a: [IUW] Angļu-latviešu-krievu frazeoloģiskā vārdnīca: ap 6500 frazeoloģismu = [Anglo-latyšshsko-russkiĭ frazeologicheskiĭ slovar' (romanized form)]: ap 6500 frazeoloģismu / sastādījuši J. Raškevičs ... [et al.]. Rīga: Liesma, 1977. 717 p.; 15 cm. Added t.p.: English-Latvian-Russian phraseological dictionary. Bibliography: p. 5-6.

1977b: [IUW] Krievu-latviešu politehniskā vārdnīca: Aptuveni 58,000 krievu terminu / Sastādījis autoru kolektīvs A. Ziņģiša redakcijā; Apstiprinājusi Latvijas PSR

Zinātņu akadēmijas Terminoloģijas komisija. Rīga: Liesma, 1977. 565 p.; 23 cm.
Russian-Latvian dictionary of terminology

1979-1981: [IUW] Latviešu-krievu vārdnīca: divos sējumos sastādījis autoru kolektīvs; ap 53,000 vārdu. Rīga: Izdevniecība Liesma, 1979-1981. 2 v.; 22 cm. Added t.p. in Russian. Latvian-Russian dictionary.

1980a: [IUW] Latviešu-vācu vārdnīca. Ap 33,000 vārdu / sastādījis autoru kolektīvs; V. Bisenieka un I. Niseloviča redakcijā. 2. otrais izdevums. Second edition. Rīga: "Avots", 1980. 890 p.; 23 cm. Latvian-German dictionary.

1980b: [IUW] Vācu-latviešu frazeoloģiskā vārdnīca / sastādījušas I. Celmrauga ... [et al.]; E. Pampes redakcijā. Rīga: Izdevniecība "Liesma", 1980. 445 p.; 15 cm. Title on added t.p.: Deutsch-lettisches phraseologisches Wörterbuch. German-Latvian dictionary of terms and phrases.

1981: [IUW] Angļu / latviešu vārdnīca: ap 8500 vārdu / I. Birzvalka. Rīga: "Avots", 1981. 389 p.; 15 cm. Added t.p. English / Latvian dictionary. First edition.

1984 [1986]: [IUW] Latviešu valodas pamata un tematiskā vārdu krājums / Māra Soikane-Trapāne. [Rockville, Md.]: Amerikas latviešu apvienība. 1986, c1984. xii, 392 p.; 18 cm. Library binding, incorporating original red and white front wrapper, lettered in light brown. Title on added t.p.: Latvian basic and topical vocabulary. "Second printing" on title page. "Basic vocabulary," Latvian-English, pp. 8-72, "Topical vocabulary," Latvian-English, pp. 75-379. Bibliography: p. 381-388.

1988a: [IUW] Čehu-latviešu vārdnīca: ap 22 000 vārdu / sastādījis autoru kolektīvs; [sastādījuši Marta Kelpa ... et al.]. Rīga: "Avots", 1988. 667 p.; 18 cm. Title on added t.p.: Česko-l

1988b: [IUW] Krievu-latviešu vārdnīca: ap 40,000 vārdu / vārdnīcu sastādījuš: A. Gūtmanis ... et al.]. Izlabots un papildināts 2. izd. Second edition. Rīga: "Avots", 1988. 603 p.; 25 cm. Added t.p.: Russko-latyšskij slovar'. Russian-Latvian dictionary.

1989a: [IUW] Anglicismi latviešu valodā / Juris Baldunčiks. Rīgā: Zinātne, 1989. 540 p.; 23 cm. Preface in Russian and English. Includes bibliographical references (p. [35]-37). English-Latvian dictionary of anglicisms.

1989b: [IUW] Latviešu-angļu vārdnīca: ap 8000 vārdu / M. Sosāre. 3. pārstrādātais izdevums. Third edition. Rīga: Avots; Chicago, Ill.: Imported Publications, 1989. 205, 286 p.; 17 cm. English-Latvian and Latvian-English dictionary. Importer info. from label on cover.

1989c: [IUW] Tekstilrūpniecības terminu vārdnīca: aptuveni 14000 latviešu terminu / [vārdnīcu sastādījis autoru kolektīvs, P. Blinkens, V. Bērziņa, I. Krieviņš; atbildīgā redaktore A. Blinkena]. Rīga: "Zinātne", 1989. 854 p.; 18 cm. Terminoloģija; 15. Latvian-Russian, Russian-Latvian dictionary of textile terms.

1991: [IUW] Medicīnas termini / [atb. red. M. Ķirīte]. Rīga: "Zinātne", 1991. 142 p.; 20 cm. Latvijas Zinātņu akadēmijas Terminoloģijas komisijas ... biļetens; 62 Latvian-Russian, Russian-Latvian dictionary of medical terms.

1993 [2000]: [IUW] Latvian-English, English-Latvian dictionary / M. Sosāre & I. Borzvalka [i.e. Birzvalka]. New York: Hippocrene Books, c1993. 205, 286 p.; 18 cm. Original red wrappers, lettered in white and black. Series: Hippocrene practical dictionary. Latvian-English, pp. [12]-199, English-Latvian, pp. [13]-282 (second pagination). Two earlier editions of this work had been published in Riga in 1989 and 1993. This Hippocrene edition appeared as the third edition in 2000.

"This completely modern dictionary contains 16,000 entries and includes phrases and idiomatic expressions.... Clear and comprehensive, this dictionary will prove an invaluable communication tool for both Latvians living in North America and for native English speaking students, travelers and business people" (from rear cover).

1995a: [IUW] Ekonomikas, lietvedības un darba organizācijas termini: latviešu, krievu, angļu un vācu valodā: aptuveni 11 000 latviešu terminu / sastādījis autoru kolektīvs V. Skujiņas vadībā; apstiprinājusi LZA Terminoloģijas komisija. Rīga: LZA Latviešu valodas institūts, 1995. 910 p.; 21 cm. Latvian-Russian-English-German dictionary of economic and other business terms.

1995b: [IUW] Latviešu-krievu un krievu-latviešu ģeoloģisko terminu vārdnīca / I. Danilāna un I. Gavenas sakārtojumā un redakcijā. Rīga: Latvijas Universitāte: Ģeoloģijas institūts, 1995. 278 p.; 21 cm. Latvian-Russian, Russian-Latvian dictionary of geology.

1998-1999: [IUW] Latviešu-angļu vārdnīca: ap 42,000 vārdu divos sējumos / [sastādījusi Dz. Kalniņa]. Rīga: Avots, 1998-1999. 2 v.; 22 cm. sēj. 1. A-M. sēj. 2. N-Ž. Latvian-English dictionary.

1999: [IUW] 9 kalbų žodynas: Lietuvių k., anglų k., vokiečių., prancūzų k., ispanų k., italų., portugalų k., suomių k., norvegų k. / [žodyną lietuvių kalba parengė Nijolė Bražėnienė]. Vilnius: Romuna, 1999. 721 p.; 17 cm. Latvian 9-language polyglot dictionary with Lithuanian, English, German, French, Spanish, Italian, Portuguese, Finnish, and Norwegian.

2003: [IUW] Angļu-latviešu, latviešu-angļu vārdnīca / [sastādījusi Dz. Kalniņa]. Rīga: Avots, 2003. 1084 p.; 25 cm. Includes bibliographical references. English-Latvian, Latvian-English dictionary. The first, smaller, edition of this dictionary was published in Riga in 1999.

2005: [IUW] Jaunā latviešu-angļu vārdnīca = The new Latvian-English dictionary, aptuveni 62 000 šķirkļu / Andrejs Veisbergs. Rīgā: Zvaigzne ABC, c2005. 920 p.; 21 cm. Original green pink and yellow paper over boards, lettered in white and black. Latvian-English, pp. 9-884.

2009?: [IUW] New passport English-Latvian learner's dictionary = Angļu-latviešu mācību vārdnīca / [redaktore Ieva Tarvida]. Jauns papildināts izdevums. Rīgā: Zvaigzne ABC, [2009?] 679 p.: ill. (some col.); 23 cm.

2012: see under LIV.

[LAU] The Lau language is a Malayo-Polynesian group language spoken on northeast Malaita of the Solomon Islands. In 1999 it had about 16,937 first-language speakers, with a large number of second-language speakers through Malaitan communities in the Solomon Islands, especially in Honiara (Wiki).

Ethnologue: llu.

1921: [LILLYbm] Grammar and vocabulary of the Lau language, Solomon Islands, by Walter G[eorge] Ivens [1871- ]. Washington: Carnegie Institution of Washington, 1921. Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [2] 1-2 3-64. Three photographic plates. First edition. Series: Carnegie Institution of Washington publication no. 300. With the ink call number and stamp of the Connecticut State Library on the front cover. Includes Lau-English, pp. 27-64. This is the first published vocabulary of the language. A full Lau dictionary was published by Charles Fox in 1974 (Australian National University).

"Lau is the name given to the language spoken by the inhabitants of the artificial islets which lie of the northeast coast of Big Malaita, Solomon Islands.... The purest Lau is spoken at Sulufou, one of the artificial islets near Atta Cove.... In Port Adam (Malau) on Little Malaita, some twelve miles north of Sa'a, there are two villages, Ramarama and Malede, inhabited by Lau-speaking people....The Lau of this grammar and vocabulary was learned from dealings with the Port Adam natives and also from a stay of several weeks with Rev. A. I. Hopkins, at Mangoniia, on the mainland opposite the artificial islet Ferasubua.... It will be seen that Lau is a typical Melanesian language... The grammar here given is an alteration of the grammar prepared by the present writer, and printed at Norfolk Island by the Mission Press in 1914" (Preface)

1974: [IUW] Lau dictionary, with English index, by Charles E. Fox. Canberra: Dept. of Linguistics, Research School of Pacific Studies, Australian National University, 1974. vi, 260 p.; 26 cm. Pacific linguistics. Series C.

[LAVUKALEVE] Lavukaleve is one of the four Central Solomons languages of the Solomon Islands. It is thus assumed to be the descendant of the languages spoken in the Solomon Islands before the spread of the much more numerous Austronesian languages. The name Lavukaleve derives from the ethnonym Lavukal. The Lavukals are the indigenous peoples of the Russell Islands, part of the Solomon Islands Central Province. A comprehensive grammatical description of Lavukaleve was published by the linguist Angela Terrill in 2003 [see below]" (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lvk. Alternate Names: Laube, Laumbe, Russell Island.

2003: [IUW] A grammar of Lavukaleve, by Angela Terrill. Berlin; New York: Mouton de Gruyter, 2003. xxiii, 562 p.: ill., maps; 25 cm. Mouton grammar library; 30. Appendix 3—List of lexemes, Lavukaleve-English, pp. 536-540. Includes bibliographical references (p. [547]-553) and index. Also available on-line.

"This is a list of the 150 most frequent words in the corpus" (p. 536).

[LAZ] The Laz language (ლაზური ნენა, lazuri nena; Georgian: ლაზური ენა, lazuri ena, or ჭანური ენა, çanuri ena, also chanuri ena; Turkish: Lazca) is a Kartvelian language spoken by the Laz people on the southeastern shore of the Black Sea. It is estimated that there are around 20,000 native speakers of Laz in Turkey, in a strip of land extending from Melyat to the Georgian border (officially called Lazistan until 1925), and about 2,000 in Georgia.

Ethnologue: lzz. Alternate Names: Chan, Chanuri, Chanzan, Laze, Lazuri, Zan.

2013: [IUW] Lazuri lek'sikoni: lazuri nenap'una, by Ali T'andilava. T'bilisi: Gamomc'emloba "Saari", 2013. 919 pages; 25 cm. Title in colophon: Laz dictionary Includes bibliographical references (page 7). In Laz and Georgian; with summary in English. Laz-Georgian dictionary.

[LEGA-SHABUNDA] Lega is a Bantu language, or dialect cluster, of the Democratic Republic of the Congo. There are two major varieties, Shabunda Lega and Mwenga Lega; Mwenga Lega, with about 10% of speakers, finds Shabunda difficult to understand. Kanu has been assigned a separate ISO code but is a dialect of Shabunda, and no more divergent than other dialects. Variant spellings of 'Lega' are Rega, Leka, Iлека, Kilega, Kirega. Shabunda is also known as Igonzabale, and Mwenga as Shile or Ishile. Gengele is reported to be a Shabunda-based creole. According to Ethnologue, Bembe is part of the same dialect continuum. Nyindu is a dialect of Shi that has been heavily influenced by Lega (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lea. Alternate Names: Igonzabale, Ileka-Igonzabale, Kilega, Kirega, Lega, Lega-Malinga, Leka-Igonzabale, Rega.

1910: see under AVATIME.

1994: [IUW] A Lega and English dictionary with an index to Proto-Bantu roots / compiled by Robert Botne, with Kisanga Salama-Gray. Köln: R. Köppe, c1994. xviii, 124 p.: ill.; 23 cm. First edition. Library binding incorporating original light gray-green wrappers, lettered in black, with an African mask on front cover. East African languages and dialects; v. 3. Lega-English, pp. 1-42, English-Lega, pp. 47-95.

"This dictionary has developed out of work conducted in a Field Methods class at Indiana University during the academic year 1992-1993.... This dictionary is intended to fulfill two purposes. First, it represents a contribution to the meager sources that are available on Lega, particularly as it depicts a variety of the language hitherto unpublished. Second, it provides an indexed reference to reconstructed Proto-Bantu lexical terms" (Introduction).

[LEIPON] Leipon, or Pityilu, is an Austronesian language spoken on Hauwai, Ndrilo, and Pityilu islands, just off Manus Island in Papua New Guinea (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lek. Alternate Names: Pitilu, Pityilu.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[LELE] Lele is an East Chadic language spoken in the Tandjilé Region, in the Tandjilé Ouest department, south of Kélo [in Chad] (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lln.

1982: [IUW] Lexique lélé-français, by Christophe Weibegué [et] Pierre Palayer. Sarh, Tchad: Centre d'études linguistiques, 1982. 112 p., [4] p. of plates: maps; 21 cm. Library binding incorporating original pink wrappers, lettered in black. Includes Lele-French, pp. 1-99, with appendices of the names of the months, names of plants, animals, birds, reptiles and fish (French/Scientific-Lele), as well as a list of words borrowed from Arabic, French, Sango, and held in common with the Ngambay language. First dictionary of the language.

"This lexicon is the result of a year-long collaboration between Pierre Palayer and myself, based on a systematic revision of the small lexicon in the [unpublished] thesis of Martine Garrigues Kaselem Mbaymu, étude d'un village lele (Tschad), presented for the doctorat in Ethnology at the Université René Descartes, 1974.... This first lexicon is not perfect. A number of additions and corrections need to be added. We hope that the work of revision will take place thanks to the participation of all readers interested in the promotion of the Lélé language" (Preface, tr: BM).

2010: [IUW] Dictionnaire lélé-français: suivi d'un index français-lélé. Essai de description lexicale de la langue tchadique parlée dans la région de Kélo, Tchad / Pamela Simons Cope; préface de Nicolas Quint. Paris: L'Harmattan, c2010. 163 p.; 22 cm. First edition. Original white and red wrappers, lettered in black and white. Lele-French, pp. 17-106, French-Lele, pp. 107-163.

"The more than 2,700 entries presented [in this dictionary] cover a large part of the vocabulary of the language as currently spoken, and constitute as well a precious witness of the traditional universe of the Lélés. One finds here a large number of technical terms (agriculture, iron work...), animal and plant names, most of them followed by their Latin equivalents.... [The compiler] lived in the Lélé country from 1981 to 1988 as part of a team translating the Bible into the language of their community. It was in the course of this long stay that she was able to amass the lexical material necessary to produce this dictionary" (from rear cover).

[LELEMI] Lelemi or Lefana (Lɛ-lɛm(Wiki).i, Lɛ-fana) is spoken by the Buem people in the mountainous Volta Region of Ghana. It belongs to the geographic group of Ghana Togo Mountain languages (traditionally called the Togorestsprachen or Togo Remnant languages) of the Kwa branch of Niger-Congo (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lef. Alternate Names: Buem, Lafana, Lefana.

1967: see 1967a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES...POLYGLOT.

1971: [IUW] The structure of Lelemi language. With texts and glossary, by Hildegard Höftmann. Leipzig, Verlag Enzyklopädie [1971]. 130 p. 22 cm. Original brown cloth over boards, lettered in white and decorated in red. Includes bibliographical references. Lelemi-English glossary, pp. [105]-130.

"The present paper has resulted from the analysis of linguistic research material collected in the Buem District of the Central Volta Region of Ghana [during 1963-64, and 1965].... The investigation was started with the so-called 'remnant peoples'... Lelemi, the most widespread and most significant of these languages, has been the first to be dealt with by the workers" (Preface).

[LENAKEL] Lenakel, or West Tanna, is a dialect chain spoken on the western coast of Tanna Island in Vanuatu. Lenakel is one of five languages spoken on Tanna. The native name for the language is Netvaar, and speakers refer to their language as Nakaraan taha Lenakel "the language of Lenakel". Lenakel has been extensively researched and documented by John Lynch, and both a dictionary [see below] and a detailed linguistic description of the language have been published (Wiki).

Ethnologue: tnl. Alternate Names: Tanna.

1977: [LILLYbm] Lenakel Dictionary, by John Lynch. Canberra: Australian National University, 1977. Original gray-green wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [2] i-ii iii-vii viii, 1-2 3-167 168 + 16 pp. adverts. [2]. First edition. Includes Lenakel-English 7-110, and English-Lenakel, pp. 114-167. First dictionary of the language. Lynch has also published a grammar of Lenakel.

"The Lenakel language is the first language of about 3,000 people living in the central west of the island of Tanna, Southern District, New Hebrides Condominium. Due to the influence of Mission and Government, as well as to the fact that all five Tanna languages are quite closely related, Lenakel is quite widely spoken and understood in other parts of the island. This dictionary is a by-product of about one year's study of Lenakel and other languages of the Southern District between 1968 and 1976" (General Introduction).

[LENDU] The Lendu, or Balendru, are an ethno-linguistic agriculturalist group residing in eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo in the area west and northwest of Lake Albert, specifically the Ituri Region of Orientale Province. Their language is one of the most populous of the Central Sudanic languages. There are three-quarters of a million Lendu speakers in the DRC, and 10,000 more in Uganda. A conflict between the Lendu and Hema people was the basis of the Ituri conflict. Ethnologue gives Bbadha as an alternate name of Lendu, but Blench (2000) lists Badha as a distinct language. A draft listing of Nilo-Saharan languages, available from his website and dated 2012, lists Lendu/Badha. Besides the Balendru themselves, Lendu is spoken as a native language by a portion of the Hema, Alur, and Okebu (Wiki).

Ethnologue: led. Alternate Names: Bale, Baledha, Balendru, Baletha, Batha, Bbadha, Bbaledha, Hema-Nord, Kihema-Nord, Kilendu, Ndrulo.

1910: see under AVATIME.

2001: [IUW] Dictionnaire bbadha-swahili-français, par Fernand Mertens. Tervuren, Belgique: Musée royal de l'Afrique centrale, 2001. xxi, 422 p.; 30 cm. Original cream wrappers, lettered in black. Annales. Sciences humaines; v. 149. Lendu-Swahili-French dictionary, pp. 1-422. Includes lengthy definitions with explanations. The Introduction suggests that the first part of the dictionary was completed in 1978; in 1987 the Lendu portion was revised in its entirety; the French portion appears to have been added in 1995.

[LENGUA LANGUAGES] The Mascoian also known as Enlhet–Enenlhet, Lengua–Mascoty, or Chaco languages are a small, closely related language family of Paraguay. The languages are: Maskoy (Toba-Maskoy); Enxet (Southern Lengua); Enlhet (Northern Lengua); Kaskihá (Guaná); Sanapaná; Angaité (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists these same languages in the Mascoan family. The two retaining Lengua as an alternate name are Enlhet and Enxet.

1910-1911: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF SOUTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[LENJE] Lenje is a Bantu language of central Zambia. The Lukanga dialect is spoken by the Lukanga Twa Pygmies, fishermen of the Lukanga Swamp (Wiki).

Ethnologue: leh. Alternate Names: Chilenje, Chinamukuni, Ciina, Ciina Mukuni, Lengi, Lenji, Mukuni.

1987: [IUW] A classified vocabulary of the Lenje language, by Ryohei Kagaya. Tokyo: Institute for the Study of Languages and Cultures of Asia and Africa, 1987. 141 p.; 26 cm. Bantu vocabulary series 4.

[LEPCHA] Lepcha language, or Róng language (Lepcha: Róng ríng), is a Himalayish language spoken by the Lepcha people in Sikkim and parts of West Bengal, Nepal and Bhutan. Lepcha speakers comprise four distinct communities: the Renjóngmú of Sikkim; the Támsángmú of Kalimpong, Kurseong, and Mirik; the ?ilámmú of Ilam District, Nepal; and the Promú of southwestern Bhutan. Lepcha-speaking groups in India are larger than those in Nepal and Bhutan. The Indian census reported 50,000 Lepcha speakers, however the actual number of native Lepcha speakers in India may be closer to 30,000 (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lep. Alternate Names: Lapche, Nünpa, Rong, Rongke, Rongpa.

2007: [IUW] A grammar of Lepcha, by Heleen Plaisier. Leiden; Boston: Brill, 2007. xiii, 254 p.: ill., map; 25 cm. First edition. Original yellow cloth over boards, lettered in black. Brill's Tibetan studies library; v. 5/5. Lepcha-English glossary, pp. [215]-245. Includes bibliographical references (p. [247]-252) and index.

[LESE] Lese is a Central Sudanic language of northeastern Congo-Kinshasa, as well as a name for the people who speak this language. The Lese people, who live in association with the Efé Pygmies, share their language, which is also occasionally known as Lissi or Efe (Wiki).

Ethnologue: les. Alternate Names: Balese, Lesa, Lesse, Lissi, Mbuti, Walese, Walisi.

1904: [LILLYbm] "Vocabulary of the Language of the Pygmies of the Ituri Forest (Wambutti)," by Dr. J. David from a paper on "Notizen über die Pygmäen des Ituri Waldes" in "Globus" (Friedrich Vieweg und Sohn, Brunswick) (Band 46. No. 12) 22 September 1904. A single page typescript of approximately 80 words in German with equivalents in the language of the Mbuti pygmies of the Ituri Forest. With accents and one word added in ink.

1974: [LILLYbm] Preliminary Efé (Pygmy) grammar, by Jean-Pierre Hallet ... Manuscript. [Los Angeles: the author, 1974] 1 v. (various pagings); 29 cm.. With: Preliminary Efé (Pygmy) grammar -- Notes about the simple material culture of the Efé pygmies -- English-Swahili-Efé dictionary. Also includes various other inserted photocopies, including: 2. p. T.L.S. 4 July 1974 from Jean-Pierre Hallet to Dr. Edwin S. Munger; [1] p. A.L.S. 16 July 1974 from Jean -Pierre Hallet to Ed[win S. Munger]; Jean-Pierre Hallet's formal biography, [1] leaf; Schematic summary on the Efé use and knowledge of the flora and fauna, double page chart on two leaves. The English-Swahili-Efé dictionary is a photocopy of an English-Swahili dictionary with Efé hand printed insertions. Seems to be preparatory study for a dictionary never issued. Second copy: IUW.

"The Efé are a group of part-time hunter-gatherer people living in the Ituri Rainforest of the Democratic Republic of Congo. In the depths of the forest they do not wear much clothing, using only leaf huts as shelter for their bodies in the intense heat. The Efé are Pygmies, and one of the shortest peoples in the world. The men grow to an average height of 142 cm (4 ft. 8 in.), and women tend to be about 5 cm (2 in.) shorter. Dr. Jean-Pierre Hallet was very involved with the Efé, from raising awareness to the plight of the tribe, to the introduction of new foods and methods previously unknown (such as a legume called the "winged bean" of New Guinea). He also introduced new methods of farming to the Efé, who likely had been a hunter-gatherer society for many thousands of years. The Efe can be said to live in cooperation with the Lese, who live in villages of between fifteen and a hundred people and grow their food. The Efe speak Lese without any dialectical distinction from the Lese themselves" (Wiki).

[LETI (Austronesian)] Leti is an Austronesian language spoken on the island of Leti in Maluku, although it shares a lot of vocabulary with the neighboring Luang language, and is marginally mutually intelligible. Fewer than 1% of Leti speakers are literate in Leti, though between a quarter and a half are literate in another language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lti.

1751: [LILLY] Barchewitz, Ernst Christoph. Der edlen Ost-Indianischen Compagnie der vereinigte[n] Niederlande gewesenenen commandirenden Officiers auf der Insul Lethy, Neu-vermehrte Ost-Indianische Reise-Beschreibung Seine durch Teutsch- und Holland nach Indien gethane Reise. Seine eilff-jähriger Aufenthalt auf Java, Banda und den Sudwester-Iusulen [sic] ...Seine Rück-Reise der dabey erlitten[e] grausame Sturm ...nebst einem vollständigen Register [Second edition] Deren bey dieser andern Auflage ... Erfurt: verlegts Joh. David Jungnicol, 1751. [20], 680, [16] p., [6] leaves of plates (1 folded): ill., map; 19 cm. (8vo). Author's name at head of title. Signatures: a<sup>8</sup> (-a8) b<sup>4</sup> (-b4) A-E<sup>8</sup> F<sup>8</sup>(-F4.5) G-Y<sup>8</sup> (-Y4.5) Z-Tt<sup>8</sup> Uu<sup>4</sup> Xx<sup>8</sup>. Leaves a8, b4 blank?, lacking; library copy imperfect, lacking leaves F4.5, Y4.5. Fore-edge trimmed close, minor loss of text passim, several plates (especially folded plate) imperfect. J. Landwehr, V O C no. 332 cites the first (1730) and third (1762) ed., but NUC pre-56 also cites this ed. and a 1752 ed. From the library of C.R. Boxer, with his annotations, indicating this is the second edition. Bound in half calf and grey boards, rubbed, spine imperfect. NUC pre-56, 35:112. Includes "the earliest note on the Leti language" (see following entry), Leti-German, numerals one through ten, p. 579, at the end of a longer Malay-German vocabulary.

2004: [IUW] Leti: language of Southwest Maluku, by Aone van Engelenhoven. Leiden: KITLV Press, 2004. xvii, 468 p.: ill., map; 24 cm. Library binding, incorporating original white wrappers, lettered in black, with color photos of African sculptures. Verhandelingen van het Koninklijk Instituut voor Taal-, Land- en Volkenkunde 211. Includes indexes. Includes bibliographical references (p. [449]-459). Includes a Leti-English wordlist, pp. [409]-448. First Leti-English vocabulary.

"The bulk of the data used for the present description were collected during my PhD research on Leti Island in 1989 and 1990.... The earliest note on the Leti language is a short list of numerals at the end of an itinerary by Barchewitz (1730: 558-9) [see above, 2nd edition, 1751]. ... The language remained virtually unnoticed till the arrival of the Dutch Mission in 1829.... Until now [2004] all descriptive publications had been in Dutch... In 1985 Kodupun circulated an Indonesian-Leti dictionary manuscript among Leti migrants in the Jakarta and Jawa Barat regencies" (General Introduction, passim).

[LHOWA] Wiki has no page for this language.

Ethnologue: loy. Alternate Names: Glo Skad, Lhopa, Lo Montang, Loba, Loke, Loket, Lopa, Lowa, Loyu, Mustangi.

An on-line dictionary of Lhowa may be found at www.webonary.org.

1995: [IUW] Erzählungen und Dialekt aus Südmustang / Monika Kretschmar. Bonn: VGH-Wissenschaftsverlag, 1995. 4 v.; 24 cm. Original black and white wrappers, lettered in gray. Beiträge zur tibetischen Erzählforschung; Bd. 12. Vol. 2 contains 79 tales in transliterated Lopa. First detailed study of the Bahragaun dialect of Lhowa.

1. Untersuchung zur Grammatik des Südmustang-Dialekts
2. Die Verschriftung der mündlich überlieferten Texte
3. Deutsche Übersetzung der verschrifteten Texte
4. Wörterbuch zum Südmustang-Dialekt.

Vol. 4: Dictionary, Südmustang-Dialekt [Bahragaun dialect of Lhowa]-German, pp. 11-439, German-Südmustang-Dialekt [Bahragaun dialect of Lhowa], pp. 443-527.

[LIBERIAN ENGLISH] Kreyol (Liberian Pidgin English, Vernacular Liberian English) is an English-based pidgin spoken in Liberia. It was spoken by 1,500,000 people as a second language (1984 census) which is about 70% of the population in that time. Today the knowledge of some form of English is even more widespread. It is historically and linguistically related to Merico, a creole spoken in Liberia, but is grammatically distinct from it. There are regional dialects such as the Kru Pidgin English used by the Kru fishermen. Kreyol originated in Liberia among the Settlers, the free English-speaking African Americans from the Southern United States who emigrated to Liberia between 1819 and 1860. It has since borrowed some words from French and from other West African languages. Kreyol is spoken mostly as an inter-tribal lingua franca in the interior of Liberia (Wiki) Ethnologue: lir. Alternate Names: Liberian Pidgin English.

1967: [IUW] Some terms from Liberian speech, by Warren L. d'Azevedo. Liberia: Published by United States Peace Corps in Liberia, 1967. iii, 74 p.; 28 cm. Library binding, incorporating the original light yellow-green front wrapper, lettered in black. Hendrix 110 (giving date as 1970). Bibliography: p. iii. Includes Liberian English-English glossary, pp. 1-63.

"This book is intended to provide an introduction to Liberian culture for the foreign visitor by means of a survey of certain terms and phrases of Liberian speech which may be unfamiliar. The glossary which follows is far from comprehensive, and the author is fully aware that such a list could be expanded indefinitely and still fail to embrace the profusion of material which might be included" (Introduction). "An early precursor of the present book was a list of fifty terms entitled "Some Liberian English Usages," prepared by William Welmers and Warren d'Azervdo in 1962 for the first Peace Corps Project in Liberia. An expanded version of this list was prepared by the present author in 1966 for the Peach Corps Training Program ..." (Acknowledgements).

Second edition 1970: [IUW] Some terms from Liberian speech, by Warren L. d'Azevedo. 2d ed. [s.l.]: published by United States Peace Corps in Liberia, 1970. iii leaves, 76 p.; 28 cm. Hendrix 111 (giving date as 1971: revised and enlarged by Michael E. Gold"). Bibliography: leaf iii.

1981: [IUW] An introduction to Liberian English, by John Victor Singler, with J. Gbewhalahyee Mason ... [et al.]. [East Lansing]: Peace Corps/Michigan State University, African Studies Center, 1981. xii leaves, 260 p.: ill., maps; 28 cm. Includes index. Bibliography: p. 93.

[LIGBI] Ligbi (or Ligby) is a Mande language spoken in Ghana in the north-west corner of the Brong-Ahafo Region. Ligbi is spoken by approximately 10,000 speakers (1988 GILLBT/SIL). It is fairly closely related to Jula, Vai and Kono. A small population of Ligbi speakers (around 4,000) is reported to live in Ivory Coast (Vanderaa 1991). Ligbi is also known as Wela (Hwela) or Numu. The latter of these refers to a subsection of the Ligbi people; Numu is Dyula for 'blacksmith'. (See blacksmiths of western Africa.) The Ligbi area in Ghana is bordered to the west by Nafaanra, the Senufo language of the Nafana people. The Ligbi people have come to the area of Begho (Bighu), an ancient trading town on the Tain river in Ghana, in the early 17th century before the Nafana (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lig. Alternate Names: Banda, Dzowo, Jogo, Ligwi, Namasa, Nigbi, Nigwi, Tsie, Tuba, Weela, Weila, Wiila.

1904: see 1904a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[LIMBA, WEST CENTRAL] The Limba language family is a small Atlantic subfamily spoken in Sierra Leone and Guinea. It is not closely related to other languages and appears to form its own branch of the Niger–Congo family. It is subdivided into two distinct languages, East Limba and West-Central Limba. Limba languages have a system of noun classes, marked by an old, eroded set of prefixes augmented by a newer set of enclitics (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lia. Alternate Names: Yimba, Yumba.

1929: [LILLYBM] Limba-English Dictionary, by Mary Lane Clarke. [Freetown: Government Printer, 1929]. Original green quarter-cloth and brown wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [10] 1-150 151-152. First edition printed in West Africa. Printer's label and date of 1929 pasted on inside front cover. Zauhmüller, col. 258. Hendrix 930. This copy with the ink stamp of the Registrar General of Sierra Leone on the free endpaper, and inscribed in ink as follows: "No. 4/33. This book was delivered to me for | registration by the Honorable the Colonial | Secretary this 21st day of June A. D. 1933. | W. S. Grant | Deputy Registrar General | for the Colony of Sierra Leone". This is the first dictionary of the language.

"This Dictionary is a collection of Limba words which the author gleaned from the people of the Limba country [in Sierra Leone] during her labors as a missionary among them...The Biriwa and Safroko chiefdoms are the largest ones among the Limbas, and the dictionary is based primarily on these two dialects."

The Biriwa and Safroko chiefdoms are located in the Bombali District of the Northern Province of Sierra Leone, where Ethnologue locates West Central Limba (as distinct from East Limba, spoken in the Manou region of Guinea, on the Sierra Leone border).

Reprinted 1971: [IUW] A Limba-English dictionary; or Tampeñ ta ka taluñ ta ka Hulimba ha in huiñkilisi ha. Farnborough, Gregg, 1971. [9], 150 p. 25 cm. Reprint of the 1922 ed. published by Houghton, New York.

[LIMBU] Limbu is a Sino-Tibetan language spoken in Nepal, India Darjeeling, Kalimpong, Sikkim, Assam, and Nagaland, Bhutan, Burma, Thailand, the United Kingdom, Hong Kong, Canada, and the USA. The Limbu refer to themselves as Yakthung and their language as Yakthungpan. Yakthungpan has four main dialects: Phedape, Chhathare, Tambarkhole, and Panthare dialects. Yakthungpan (Limbu language) is one of the major languages spoken and written in Nepal, Darjeeling, Kalimpong, Sikkim, Bhutan, Burma, and Thailand. Today, linguists have reached the conclusion that Yakthungpan resembles Tibetan and Lepcha (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lif. Alternate Names: Yakthung Pan.

1987: [IUW] A grammar of Limbu / George van Driem. Berlin; New York: Mouton de Gruyter, 1987. xxviii, 565 p., [6] p. of plates: ill.; 25 cm. First edition. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Mouton grammar library; 4. Appendix II: Limbu-English glossary, pp. [403]-549. Bibliography: p. [559]-565.

[LIMBUM] Limbum is a Grassfields language of Cameroon, with a small number of speakers in Nigeria. It is used as a trade language by some, but is primarily the mother tongue of the Wimbun people, who live in Donga-Mantung division of the Northwest Region, at the top of the Ring Road. Linguists consider Limbum to have three "dialects," which may be better called accents: a northern, a middle, and a southern dialect. Limbum is closely related to some neighboring languages like Yamba and more geographically distant ones like Bamum, Ngemba and Bamileke. It is quite different from some other neighboring languages like Bebe and Noni (Wiki).

Ethnologue: Imp. Alternate Names: Bojiin, Limbom, Llimbumi, Ndzungle, Ndzungli, Njungene, Nsungali, Nsungli, Nsungni, Wimbun.

1995: [IUW] Limbum-English lexicon / Virginia Bradley, editor. Provisional ed. Yaoundé, Republic of Cameroon: Société Internationale de Linguistique, 1995. 73 p.; 23 cm. Original purple wrappers, lettered in black. Limbum-English, pp. 7-73. No further edition has appeared as of 2017.

"The Limbum-English lexicon has been prepared primarily for speakers of the Limbum language, in order to help new readers and writers spell their language correctly, and to help standardise spellings. It should also be helpful to Limbum speakers in learning some new English vocabulary.... The lexicon contains about 2,800 entries.... This edition of the lexicon is considered a preliminary one, since it is the first one printed for general distribution, and it needs the input of many more people. It is hoped that a revised edition will be printed in another two or three years" (Introduction).

[LINGALA] Lingala (Ngala) is a Bantu language spoken throughout the northwestern part of the Democratic Republic of the Congo and a large part of the Republic of the Congo, as well as to some degree in Angola and the Central African Republic. It has over 10 million speakers. The Lingala language can be divided in several dialects or variations. The major variations are considered to be Standard Lingala, Spoken Lingala, Kinshasa Lingala and Brazzaville Lingala. European missionaries called the language Bangala, after the Bangala people, or Lingala. The latter was intended to mean '(language) of the Bangala' or 'of the River' (that is, 'Riverine Language'). However, this was an error, as the proper Bangi form would have been Kingala. The name Lingala first appears in writing in a publication by the C.I.C.M. missionary Egide De Boeck (1903) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lin. Alternate Names: Ngala.

1935: [IUW] Lingala grammar and dictionary, edited by G. Malcom Guthrie. Léopoldville-ouest, Congo Belge, Conseil protestant du Congo [1935]. xi, 233 p. 19 cm. Library binding. Hendrix 949. English-Lingala, pp. 63-142, Lingala-English, pp. 145-202, Bangala-English, pp 209-233.

"This new Lingala Grammar and Dictionary is in itself proof of ... devotion and co-operation and also, in a most noteworthy way, links together the heroic labours of the pioneers with those of many of God's younger servants of the present day.... The present work is a serious effort on behalf of the Conseil Protestant du Congo to unify the work of all the Protestant missions using 'Lingala' or 'Bangala' throughout the whole of the Congo" (Preface).

French translation 1939 [1966]: [IUW] Grammaire et dictionnaire de lingala: la langue universelle actuellement parlée sur les deux rives de la partie centrale du fleuve Congo: avec un manuel de conversation français-lingala, par Malcolm Guthrie. Westmead, Farnborough, Hants., Angleterre: Gregg Press, 1966. x, 191 p.; 19 cm. Hendrix 951. Reprint. Originally published [Cambridge: Heffer, 1939]; 2. éd. Léopoldville: Libr. évangélique au Congo, 1951. Includes index.

Revised English edition 1988: [IUW] Lingala grammar and dictionary: English-Lingala, Lingala- English, by Malcolm Guthrie, John F. Carrington. London: Baptist Missionary Society, c1988. 238 p.; 21 x 10 cm. Library binding incorporating original light-blue wrappers, lettered in dark blue. Revised edition. English-Lingala, pp. 79-182, Lingala-English, pp. 185-238.

"We offer here tribute and thanks to John F Carrington, BSc, PhD, revered missionary, teacher and linguist in Zaire from 1938-1977, who completed this revision before his sudden death in 1986" (verso of title page).

1956: [IUW] Lingala woordenboek: Lingala-Nederlands; Nederlands-Lingala, by René van Everbroeck. Brussel: Scheut, 1956. 444 p. (p. 444 advertisement); 22 cm. Original limp tan cloth, lettered and decorated in brown. Hendrix 948. Lingala-Dutch, pp. 11178, Dutch-Lingala, pp. 181-443.

"This work was conceived not merely as a list of words with their meanings, but as a practical dictionary in which the reader will find the most commonly used words, with several examples. Exception is made for those words which seldom arise even in the literary language, and words of common speech whose meaning is clear and does not differ from that of our own language" (p. [3], tr: BM).

1958: [IUW] Dictionnaire. Woordenboek. Lingala-français-néerlandais. Français-lingala-néerlandais. Nederlands-Langala-Frans, by E. Blavier. 2. éd. Léopoldville, Librairie congolaise, 1958 [c1953]. 542 p. 16 cm. Hendrix 940. Dutch-Lingala-French dictionary.

1966: [IUW] Dictionnaire français-lingala, lingala-français. Kinshasa: Edition Service d'Education de l'A.N.C., 1966. 179 p. + 4 pp. for notes; 22 cm. Library binding, preserving original pink wrappers, lettered in black. Not in Hendrix. Congo (Democratic Republic). Armée nationale. Service d'éducation et d'information. Manuel; no 32. Printed May 1, 1966 (p. [184]). "1967"—Front wrapper. French-Lingala dictionary, pp. [7]-96, Lingala-French dictionary, pp. [99]-179.

1970's?: [IUW] Dictionnaire lingala-français, français-lingala / Dictionnaire Classique Lingala, [by Abbé Médard Bokula]. Kinshasa: Limete, [1960's?]. "B.P. 724" at bottom of title page. 378 p.; 15 cm. Library binding incorporating original green front wrapper, lettered in black. Includes Lingala-French, pp. 7-83, French-Lingala, pp. 87-167, and "Dictionnaire Classique Lingala," with a series of vocabularies of French-Lingala terms from such fields as administration and law, arithmetic, geometry, morals and religion, and zoology, pp. 171-377.

"One day, during an explication of Latin grammar, having exhausted my verbal resources, I was forced to fall back on my native language; unfortunately I could not recall the precise terms immediately without a dictionary; which led to the idea of a classical dictionary of Lingala. For the scientific portion I utilized the work of R. P. Norbert Jans, a professor at the School of Agronomy at Mondongo, and that of Père Insepector Herman de Graeve of Boyange." (Abbé Médard Bokula, Avant-Propos, tr: BM).

1979: [IUW] Dictionnaire lingala-français: suivi d'une grammaire Lingala, par Adolphe Dzokanga. 1. Aufl. First edition. Leipzig: Verlag Enzyklopädie, VEB, 1979. 304 p.; 24 cm. Original black cloth over boards, lettered in silver. Hendrix 945. Lingala-French, pp. [9]-201.

1981: [IUW] Lexique français lingala. [Paris]: Nathan Afrique, 1981. 285 p.; 22 cm. Institut national de recherche et d'action pédagogiques (Congo) Langues nationales africaines. "Avant-propos" signed: A. Ndinga-Oba.

1982: [IUW] English-Lingala dictionary, by John Ellington; manuscript preparation by John Krause. 1st ed. [Kinshasa, Zaire]: J. Ellington, c1982. ca. 150 p.; 21 cm. Library binding preserving original blue wrappers, lettered in black. Reproduced from typescript. English-Lingala, unpaginated, ca. 145 pp.

"Earlier grammars and dictionaries have presented Lingala as a seven vowel language...but more and more speakers today no longer make the distinction between [two sets of two vowels]. For this reason (as well as practical considerations) this dictionary presents Lingala as a five vowel language. The language learner, however, should be aware of the fact that some Zairians—especially those from up river—still use seven vowels and one is advised to listen carefully to the Africans and seek to imitate them as accurately as possible... A second edition is planed in which I hope to include additional words and information and to correct any errors that may be discovered" (Introduction).

1983: [IUW] Lingala-russkii slovar': okolo 10,000 slov / I.N. Toporova; s prilozheniem "Kratkikh svedenii o iazyke lingala" I.N. Toporovoï. Moskva: "Russkii iazyk", 1983. 332, [2] p.; 21 cm. Bibliography: p. [333]. Lingala-Russian dictionary.

1984: [IUW] Dictionnaire lingala-français, français-lingala. Limete, Kinshasa: L'Epiphanie, [1984]. 159 p.; 14 cm. Dictionnaire de poche. Lingala-French, French-Lingala dictionary.

1985: [IUW] Maloba ma lokóta. Dictionnaire Lingála, Lingála-Français Français-Lingála, by René van Everbroeck. Kinshasha, Zaire: Éditions l'Epiphanie, 1985. Library binding, blue cloth over boards, utilizing the original pale blue and white wrappers, lettered in black. 358 pp. First edition.

"Originally Lingala was not a first language; it became one over many decades, and spread throughout a great territory. It is spoken in parts of the Congo Republic, the Republic of Central Africa, and a large portion of Zaire. To the question, 'Where did Lingala come from?' we may reply that it is based on the languages of the tribes living along the river, notably Bobangi, Mongo, Mangala, Libinza, Lokonda, Lingombe, Motembo, Limbuza, Lokele, and others. That explains the large number of synonyms... Lingala is a living language, in constant evolution. This implies that a dictionary is never up-to-date, but must be constantly revised and adapted" (tr: BM).

1992: [IUW] Vocabulaire lingala classifié, by Shigeki Kaji. Tokyo, Japan: Institute for the Study of Languages and Cultures of Asia and Africa, 1992. viii, 271 p.: 1 map; 19 cm. Library binding incorporating original black wrappers lettered in white. African languages and ethnography; 26. French-Japanese-Lingala, pp. 17-166, Lingala-Japanese index, pp. 169-200. Editorial note in English.

1994a: see 1994 under BANGALA.

1994b: [IUW] Dictionnaire bangála-français-lingála = Bagó na monoko na bangála-frase-lingála, by Edema Atibakwa Baboya. Paris: Agence de coopération culturelle et technique; Saint-Maur: SEPIA, [1994]. 238 p.: map; 25 cm. "Suivi d'un lexique lingála-bangála-français et d'un index français-bangála-lingála." Includes bibliographical references (p.23-24).

1994c: [IUW] Lingala-English dictionary, by Lumana Pashi & Alan Turnbull. Kensington, Md.: Dunwoody Press, c1994. vi, 256 p.; 24 cm. Original black imitation leather over boards, lettered in gold. Lingala-English, pp. 1-256.

1995: [IUW] Terminologie grammaticale et pédagogique: lexique français-lingala, lingala-français, sous la direction de Nyembwe Ntita; par Matumele Maliya, Ayibite Pela Asey, Epanga Pombo. Kinshasa XI: Editions universitaires africaines, 1995. 54 p.; 21 cm. At head of title: Rint, Réseau international de néologie et de la terminologie. Includes bibliographical references (p. 54). French-Lingala, Lingal French dictionary of grammatical and pedagogical terms.

1996: [LILLYbm] Lingala-English. English-Lingala, by Thomas A. Akowuah. New York: Hippocrene Books, 1996. Original green and yellow wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [2] 1-2 3-120 121-126. First edition. Includes English-Lingala, pp. 9-37, and Lingala-English, pp. 39-65. Second copy: IUW.

"Everyday, the number of Africans and non-Africans who desire to learn the Lingala language increases, it has been the vehicle for sweet music and a rich, varied folk culture" (Introduction).

2000: [IUW] Lexique de l'information sanitaire: français-lingala, lingala-français, sous la direction de Nyembwe Ntita par Matumele Maliya, Ayibe Pela Asey, Epanga Pombo. Kinshasa: Editions universitaires africaines, 2000. 95 p.; 21 cm. Collection "Bilinguisme et développement". Includes bibliographical references (p. 95). French-Lingala, Lingala-French dictionary of medical terminology.

2001a: [IUW] Diccionario lingala-español, español-lingala; Historia y origen africano del negro ecuatoriano, by [Jean Kapenda]. 1. ed. Quito: Organización de las Naciones Unidas para la Educación la Ciencia y la Cultura, 2001. 145 p.: ill., maps; 21 cm. Library binding incorporating original yellow-green wrappers, lettered in blue and yellow-green. Includes bibliographical references. Lingala-Spanish, pp. 13-31, Spanish-Lingala, pp. 59-81.

2001b: [IUW] Dictionnaire sémantique illustré français-lingala, by Adolphe Dzokanga. Bonneuil-sur-Marne: A. Dzokanga, 2001. 2 v. (1240 p.): ill.; 21 cm. V. 1. A-H. v. 2. I-Z.

2002: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

2003: [IUW] Parlons lingala = Tobola Lingala, by Edouard Etsio. Paris: L'Harmattan, c2003. 240 p.: maps; 22 cm. Collection "Parlons". Includes bibliographical references (p. 231-233).

2004a: [IUW] Bagó ya lingála mambí ma lokóta: dictionnaire lingala / Kawata Ashem Tem. Paris: Karthala, c2004. xxxiii, 482 p.; 24 cm. First edition. Library binding incorporating original pale green wrapper, lettered and decorated in black. Dictionnaires et langues. Lingala-French, pp. 1-368. A Lingala dictionary with primary definitions and explanations in Lingala and single word French definitions.

2004b: [IUW] Tosolola na Lingála = Let's speak Lingála: a multidimensional approach to the teaching and learning of Lingála as a foreign language / by Eyamba

Georges Bokamba, Molingó Virginie Bokamba. Madison, Wis.: National African Language Resource Center, University of Wisconsin-Madison, c2004. xxx, 492 p.: ill., maps; 27 cm. First edition. Original light green, purple and white wrappers, lettered in white and black. Let's speak African language series. Lingala-English glossary, pp. 381-418, English-Lingala glossary, pp. 419-479. Includes index.

2006: [IUW] Learn to speak Lingala, by Arizona M. Baongoli. Eldoret, Kenya: A.M. Baongoli, c2006. xviii, 194 p.: maps; 30 cm. Original blue and yellow wrappers, lettered in black, with illustration of a guitar and drum on front cover. Includes bibliographical references (p. 194). Lingala-English, pp. 101-113, English-Lingala, pp. 114-127.

"Learn to Speak Lingala... contains authentic Lingala reflecting real life of the Congolese native speakers. This practical book will help the reader learn and use everyday Lingala right from the first lesson" (About the Book).

2008: [IUW] Le lingala de poche, by Rogério Goma Mpasí; adaptation française de José Nzolani; illustrations de J.-L. Goussé. Chennevières-sur-Marne [France]: Assimil, c2008. x, 181 p.: ill.; 15 cm. Original white, light and dark blue wrappers, lettered in black, red, blue and white, with a color illustration of a man on the front cover. Assimil évasion. Assimil langues de poche. Originally published as: Lingala für Kongo und Rep. Kongo Wort für Wort. Includes bibliographical references (p. 148). Lingala-French vocabulary, pp. 153-166, and French-Lingala, pp. 167-181.

2011: [IUW] Lingala learner's dictionary: Lingala-English, English-Lingala / Arizona M. Baongoli. Nairobi: Congoman Publishers, 2011. xxx, 518 p.: maps; 25 cm. Original multi-colored wrappers, lettered in white, dark blue, and black. First edition. Includes Lingala-English, pp. 2-239, English-Lingala, pp. 360-510.

"Dear Lingala student, This dictionary is meant to meet your needs as a learner of Lingala Language, but since language is dynamic, the author plans to update the dictionary on a regular basis in order to incorporate the changes. Except for the second edition of this dictionary which is planned for 2013, the subsequent editions will be published every three years" (Dedication).

"At long last one of our very own has taken the bull by the horn and made all of us proud by applying lexicography to one of the most popular African languages in sub-Saharan Africa" (Foreword).

2012: [IUW] Buku ya bilili na lingala pe falase = dictionnaire visuel lingala-français, edité par Angela Williams-Ngumbu. Première édition. First edition. Brazzaville, Congo: SIL-Congo, [2012] ©2012. viii, 150 pages: illustrations; 21 cm. Original blue and white wrappers, lettered in black and white. Includes bibliographical references (page 150). Classified and illustrated, Lingala-French, pp. 2-130, Lingala index, pp. 131-140, French index, pp. 140-149.

"It's well known that images are a great aid to learning and memory. This dictionary is founded upon this principle. Words are organized in thematic groups. You will find an entire spectrum covering Congolese life" (About this dictionary, tr: BM).

[LINGAO] Ong Be (native pronunciation: [ʔaŋlɔe]), also known as Bê, or Vo Lingao (臨高, Lin'gao) in Chinese, is a language spoken by 600,000 people, 100,000 of them monolingual, on the north-central coast of Hainan Island, including the suburbs of the provincial capital Haikou. The language is taught in primary schools and broadcast on the radio. Ong Be is a Tai–Kadai language, but it has no close relatives and its relationship within that family has not been determined (Wiki).

Ethnologue: onb. Alternate Names: Bê, Limkow, Linkow, Ongbe, Ong-Be, Vo Limkou.

1965: [LILLYbm] Le vocabulaire Bê de F. M. Savina [1876-1941], ed. by A. G. Haudricourt. Paris: École Française d'Extrême-Orient, 1965. Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [2] 1-5 6-170. First edition. Series: Publications de l'École Française d'Extrême-Orient, LVII. Includes Bê [Lingao]-French, pp. [11]-137. This copy with the ink surplus stamp of the Library of Congress on front wrapper, and accession stamp of Smithsonian Institution dated March 1 1966 on title page.

"Up to that time only a few words of this language were known, published in the China Review in 1890... and 1893.... Finally, H. Stübel, in Die Li-Stämme der Insel Hainan (Berlin, 1937), also provided a few words, poorly transcribed.... The linguistic and ethnological interest of Savina's manuscript being self-evident, we did not feel it sufficient to simply publish it unchanged. Savina required the translation of all abstract terms necessary for missionary purposes [while we have reversed the order of the manuscript from French-Bê to Bê-French]" (F.M. Savina et son œuvre, tr: BM)

[LISU] Lisu (Lisu; Chinese: 傣傣语, translit. lisùyǔ; Burmese, pronounced: [lis<sup>h</sup>ù bàðà zəgá]) is a tonal Tibeto-Burman language spoken in Yunnan (southwestern China), northern Burma (Myanmar), and Thailand and a small part of India. Along with Lipo, it is one of two languages of the Lisu people. Lisu has many dialects that originate from the country in which they live. Hua Lisu, Pai Lisu, and Lu Shi Lisu dialects are spoken in China. Although they are mutually intelligible, some have many more loan words from other languages than others. The Lisu language is closely related to the Lahu and Akha languages and is also related to Burmese, Jinghpaw, and Yi languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lis. Alternate Names: Chedi, Cheli, Chung, Khae, Leisu, Leshuopa, Lesuo, Li, Li-Hsaw, Lip'a, Lisaw, Li-Shaw, Lishu, Liso, Lissu, Loisu, Lusu, Lu-Tzu, Yao Yen, Yaw Yin, Yaw-Yen, Yeh-Jen.

1988: [LILLY] A guide book to Lisu language, by Asim Maitra. Delhi, India: Mittal Publications, 1988. x, 99 p.; 23 cm. Original dark blue cloth, lettered and decorated in orange; dust jacket pale green and white, lettered in black and violet. First edition. Includes English-Lisu, pp. [60]-93.

"This book is purposed to help the administrators, other officials and teachers who are serving in Arunachal Pradesh to carry on the conversation in Lisu" (Preface).

1994: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary of the Northern Dialect of Lisu (China and Southeast Asia), by David Bradley. Canberra: The Australian National University, 1994. Original pale pea-green wrappers, lettered in black. 258 pp. First edition. Pacific Linguistics Series C-126. Includes Lisu-English and English Lisu. Based on the Lisu-Chinese dictionary published by the Yunnan Nationalities Publishing House in 1985. This is the first Lisu-English dictionary. Second copy: IUW.

"It describes the northern dialect of Lisu as spoken by most Lisu, especially those living in the Juniang Autonomous Prefecture of north-western Yunnan...Lisu is in the central subgroup of the Loloish group of the Burmese-Lolo sub-family of the Tibeto-Burmese family; Tibeto-Burmese is...one of two main components of the Sino-Tibetan phylum along with Sinitic (Chinese). The total Lisu population is now nearly 900,000 and increasing at over two per cent per year. Nearly two-thirds of these live in China, ...Thailand [25,000], ...India [1,000]. No reliable census of the Lisu areas of Myanmar has ever been taken, but roughly thirty per cent of the Lisu live there."

[LITHUANIAN] Lithuanian (lietuvių kalba) is the official state language of Lithuania and is recognized as one of the official languages of the European Union. There are about 2.9 million native Lithuanian speakers in Lithuania and about 200,000 abroad. Lithuanian is a Baltic language, related to Latvian. It is written in a Latin alphabet. Lithuanian is often said to be the most conservative living Indo-European language, retaining many features of Proto-Indo-European now lost in other Indo-European languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lit. Alternate Names: Lietuviu, Litauische, Litewski, Litovskiy.

1851: [IUW] Wörterbuch der littauischen Sprache, by George Heinrich Ferdinand Nesselmann. Königsberg, Gebrüder Bornträger, 1851. xi, 555 p. 23 cm.

[further entries being compiled]

[LIV] Livonian (Latvian: līvõ kēļ or rāndakēļ) is a Finnic language. It is a dormant language, with its last native speaker having died in 2013. It is closely related to Estonian. The native land of the Livonian people is the Livonian Coast of Gulf of Livonia, located in Latvia, in the north of the Kurzeme peninsula. Some ethnic Livonians are learning or have learned the language in an attempt to revive it, but because ethnic Livonians are a small minority, opportunities to use Livonian are limited. The Estonian newspaper Eesti Päevaleht erroneously announced that Viktors Bertholds, who died on 28 February 2009, was the last native speaker who started the Latvian-language school as a monolingual. Some other Livonians argued, however, that there are some native speakers left, including Viktors Bertholds' cousin, Grizelda Kristiņa. Kristiņa died in 2013. An article published by the Foundation for Endangered Languages in 2007 stated that there were only 182 registered Livonians and a mere six native speakers. In a 2009 conference proceeding, it was mentioned that there could be "at best 10 living native" speakers of the language. The language is taught in universities in Latvia, Estonia and Finland, which constantly increases the pool of second-language speakers who do not constantly reside in Latvia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: liv. Alternate Names: Livõ kel, Livonian.

1861: [IUW] Livisch-deutsches und deutsch-livisches Wörterbuch / Joh. Andreas Sjögren; bearbeitet von Ferdinand Joh. Wiedemann. St. Petersburg: Eggers, 1861. 398, 298 p.; 32 cm.

1938: [IUW] Livisches Wörterbuch, mit grammatischer Einleitung, von Lauri Kettunen. Helsinki, Suomalais-Ugrilainen Seura, 1938. lxxi, [1] 648 p. map. Lexica Societatis Fenno-Ugricae, V.

1973: [IUW] Die jungen lettischen Lehnwörter im Livischen, by Seppo Suhonen. Helsinki, Suomalais-Ugrilainen Seura, 1973. 250 p. 25 cm. Uniform series: Suomalais-ugrilaisen Seuran toimituksia; 154. Bibliography: p.[244]-248. Latvian loan words in Liv glossary.

2012: [IUW] Līvõkēļ-ēstikēļ-leļkēļ sōnārōntōz = Liivi-eesti-lāti sōnaraamat = Lībiešu-igauņu-latviešu vārdnīca / Tiit-Rein Viitso, Valts Ernštreits. Tartu: Tartu Ülikool; Rīga: Latviešu valodas aģentūra, 2012. 415 pages; 25 cm. In Livonian, Estonian and Latvian.

[LOBI] Lobi (also Miwa and Lobiri) is a Gur language of Burkina Faso, Ivory Coast and Ghana (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lob. Alternate Names: Lobiri, Miwa.

1958: see 1958a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

2007: [IUW] Parlons lobiri: langue et culture des Lobis, Burkina Faso / Fané Maïmouna Le Men. Paris: L'Harmattan, c2007. 154 p.: ill., map; 22 cm. First edition. Original light brown, lettered in dark brown, with a map of Burkina Faso on the front cover, and a color photo of the author on the rear cover. Collection "Parlons". French-Lobiri, pp. 111-141, thematic vocabulary, Lobiri-French, pp. 143-150.

"This work has three objectives: to discover a people, the Lobis, to introduce an African language: Lobiri, one of the multiple minor languages of Burkina Faso, and to establish a cultural dialogue using the Lobi culture as a matrix" (from rear cover, tr: BM).

[LOKO] Loko, or Landogo, is a Southwestern Mande language spoken by the Loko people, who primarily live in Northern Sierra Leone. There are two main varieties, Landogo and Logo, but they are mutually intelligible. Ethnic Loko outnumber native Loko speakers due to the linguistic encroachment of Temne and Krio and urbanization to Freetown, where Loko is internally and externally seen as a low-prestige language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lok. Alternate Names: Landogo.

1964: [LILLYbm] "An Outline Grammar of Loko with Texts," by Gordon Innes, in: African Language Studies V, Collected Papers in Oriental and African Studies. London: School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, 1964, pp. [115]-173. Includes a Loko-English glossary, pp. 169-173. First published vocabulary of Loko.

"Loko, which is spoken in the Northern Province of Sierra Leone by about 76,000 people, is a member of the South-western group of Mande languages... The South-western Mande languages other than Loko have all been the subject of linguistic descriptions... but as far as I am aware, the only generally known linguistic fact which has been published on Loko is that it is closely related to Mende... During a study leave in 1960 I was able to pay a brief visit to the Loko area; the material on which this outline is based was collected at Bendembu, near Makeni... The American Wesleyan Mission has produced a few booklets, mostly Gospel translations, in Loko, but otherwise the language is completely undocumented."

[LOMA] Loma (Loghoma, Looma, Lorma) is a Mande language spoken by the Loma people of Liberia and Guinea. Dialects of Loma proper in Liberia are Gizima, Wubomei, Ziema, Bunde, Buluyiema. The dialect of Guinea, Toma (Toa, Toale, Toali, or Tooma, the Malinke name for Loma), is an official regional language. In Liberia, the people and language are also known as "Bouze" (Busy, Buzi), which is considered offensive (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lom. Alternate Names: "Bouze" (pej.), "Busy" (pej.), "Buzi" (pej.), Loghoma, Logoma, Looma, Lorma, Toa.

1946: [IUW] Beginning Loma; a course for speakers of English (Revised Edition). Authors: Elizabeth Solinsky Terplan, Anthony Berrocoso, Beverley Dorsey, Gayflor Zubah. San Francisco, 1946. 394 f.+ 30 f. illus. Library binding. Reproduced from typescript. "Experimental—not for publication. Prepared by Liberian Language Research Project. San Francisco State College, 10-67, Contract No. PC 82-1946" (at bottom of title page). Loma-English, ff. [382]-390, indexed to lessons. Additional Vocabulary Loma-English, ff. 391-394.

"These lessons are designed for a three hundred hour course in Loma. Although these materials were developed with classroom instruction in mind, they can easily be adapted for work with a native speaker of the language who is not a trained teacher" (Preface).

1967: [IUW] Le loghoma; [esquisse grammaticale suivie de textes et d'un glossaire], par] A. Prost. Dakar, Université de Dakar, Faculté des lettres, 1967. 168 p. 27 cm. Original cream wrappers, lettered in black. Hendrix 933. Documents linguistiques (Dakar, Senegal); no. 13. French-Loma, pp. 149-159.

[LOMBARD] Lombard (lumbaart, or lingua lumbarda, in Milanese classical orthography "lingua lombarda") is a member of the Cisalpine or Gallo-Italic group within the Romance languages. It is spoken natively in Northern Italy (most of Lombardy and some areas of neighbouring regions, notably the eastern side of Piedmont) and Southern Switzerland (Ticino and Graubünden). The two main varieties (Western Lombard dialect and Eastern Lombard dialect) have significant differences and are not always mutually intelligible (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lmo. Alternate Names: Lombardo.

1895: [IUW] Die Sprache der Langobarden, by Wilhelm Bruckner. Strassburg, K. J. Trübner, 1895. 338 p. 23 cm. First edition. Original brown quarter-cloth and brown marbled paper over boards, spine lettered and decorated in gold. Based on author's thesis, Basel. Quellen und Forschungen zur Sprach- und Kulturgeschichte der germanischen Völker; v.75. "Langobadsiches Wörterbuch," Lombard-German, pp. [199]-336, including names.

1981: [IUW] Tre glossari Longobardo-latini / Federico Albano Leoni. Napoli: Giannini editore, 1981. 108 p.: facsim.; 25 cm. Fonti e ricerche per la storia sociale e culturale del Mezzogiorno d'Italia 1. Facsimile reprint of three glossaries: Glossario di Madrid; Glossario di Cava, and Glossario Vaticano. At head of title: Società nazionale di scienze lettere e arti in Napoli. Includes "Indice lessicale". Bibliography: p. [38]-41.

[LOMWE] The Lomwe (Lowe) language, Elomwe, also known as Western Makua, is the fourth-largest language in Mozambique. It belongs with Makua in the group of distinctive Bantu languages in the northern part of the country. A mutually unintelligible form containing elements of Chewa, Malawian Lomwe, is spoken in Malawi. Maho (2009) separates out Ngulu (Mihavane) as a separate language, close to Malawi Lomwe (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ngl. Alternate Names: Acilowe, Alomwe, Chilowe, Cilowe, Elomwe, Ilomwe, Ingulu, Lomue, Mihavane, Mihavani, Mihawani, Ngulu, Nguru, Walomwe, West Makhwa, Western Makua.

An on-line dictionary of Elomwe [Lomwe] may be found at www.webonary.org.

2006: [IUW] A chilomwe course in three languages, by David Jones Kaunjika. Malawi: Montfort Media, 2006. 106 p.; 25 cm. Original pale orange wrappers, lettered in black and white. Know your language series; 2. Includes Lomwe-English-Chichewa vocabularies throughout.

"This book is a comprehensive analysis of the Chilomwe Language. The Chilomwe that I have written in here is Chimihavani. Almost all the other Lomwe Tribal groupings are able to speak and understand Chimihavani... I for one do regard any Language as a Holy tool of communication because it was created by God for His people. In this undersanding therefore, as you study this language, I wish you God's blessings..." (Introduction).

[LONIU] Loni is an Austronesian language spoken on Los Negros Island, immediately east of Manus Island in Manus Province, Papua New Guinea (Wiki).

Ethnologue: los. Alternate Names: Lonio, Ndroku.

1994: [LILLYbm] A Grammar and Lexicon of Loni, Papua New Guinea, by Patricia J. Hamel. Canberra: Australian National University, 1994. Original yellow-green wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. 276 pp. First edition. Pacific Linguistics, Series C-103. This is the first dictionary of the language.

"The Loni language is spoken in Loni and Lolak villages on the southern coast of the Los Negros section of Manus Province, Papua New Guinea... There are said to be some 450 to 500 native speakers of Loni, although many of these reside in other Manus villages or in cities on the mainland of Papua New Guinea... Previous work on Loni is scanty."

[LONWOLWOL] Lonwolwol, or West Ambrym, is a moribund language of Ambrym Island, Vanuatu (Wiki).

Ethnologue: crc. Alternate Names: Ambrym, Craig Cove, Fali, Fanting, West Ambrym.

1973: [LILLYbm] Ambrym (Lonwolwol) dictionary, by W. F. Paton. Canberra: Dept. of Linguistics, Research School of Pacific Studies, Australian National University, 1973. Original blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold; dust jacket yellow-green, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [2] i-ii iii-ix x-xiv, 1-337 338, 1 2-1112 [2]. First edition. Pacific Linguistics Series C - No. 21. Includes Lonwolwol-English, pp. 1-251, and English-Lonwolwol, pp. 254-335. "The Ambrym (Lonwolwol) Dictionary provides one of the most extensive dictionaries yet published in the southwest Pacific" (front flap of dust jacket). First dictionary of the language. Second copy: IUW

"The present population of [the island of] Ambrym is approximately 4,300. Five languages are currently spoken on the island, as follows: 1. North Ambrym (1,900 speakers), 2. Lonwolwol (400 speakers), 3. DaKaKa (Sesivi) (400 speakers), 4. Port Vato (500 speakers), 5. South-East Ambrym (1,000 speakers). The first four languages... are very closely related, sharing in the vicinity of 70% common cognates on a basic vocabulary list. The language of South-East Ambrym is most clearly related to that of Paama, and rather different from the remaining Ambrymese languages. The [Dictionary] consists of two parts... In the first part, the main entries are all from Lonwolwol, spoken in the south-west of the island. Comparative forms are, however, also included for the North Ambrym language wherever possible... In the second part, an English-Lonwolwol-North Ambrym comparative list is presented [three columns]" (Introduction, the Editors). Paton died in 1970, after having completed his dissertation on the languages and life of Ambrym, but prior to its publication in four volumes, of which this is the second. A dictionary of South-East Ambrym was published by the ANU in 1970.

[LOU] Lou is a Southeast Admiralty Islands language spoken on Lou Island of Manus Province, Papua New Guinea by 1,000 people (Wiki).

Ethnologue: loj. Alternate Names: Baluan-Lou-Pam.

An on-line dictionary of Lou may be found at www.webonary.org.

1998: [LILLYbm] "A Lou Vocabulary. With Phonological Notes," by Robert Blust, in Papers in Austronesian Linguistics No. 5, (1998), ed. by Darrell Tryon, pp. 35-99. Original green wrappers, lettered and decorated in green. First edition. Series: Pacific Linguistics, Series A-92. Lou-English vocabulary, pp. 70-90 (804 words), with an addendum, "Some Baluan vocabulary," Baluan-English, pp. 90-93 (103 words). This is the first substantial published vocabulary of Lou, and the first tentative vocabulary of Baluan, with the exception of "a vocabulary of about 180 items" published in "Comparative wordlists of the Admiralty Islands," collected by W. E. Smythe & J. Z'graggan, in Work Papers in New Guinea Linguistics 14 [1975]: 117-216 [see above].

"Lou is a volcanic island situated some 25 km southeast of Manus in the Admiralty Islands of western Melanesia... Its closest neighbours are the much smaller and lower Pam and St Andrew islands less than 7 km to the south, and the high round island of Baluan (roughly 5 km in diameter), about 12 km in the southwest.... The following [Lou] vocabulary of approximately 800 words was collected between February and May 1975, during a linguistic survey of the Admiralty Islands" (Introduction and Aims). "Following the Lou vocabulary I have included my very imperfectly recorded Baluan material, for whatever it is worth" (p. 70).

[LOUISIANA CREOLE] Louisiana Creole (kréyol la lwizyàn; French: créole louisianais) is a French-based creole language spoken by some of the Creole people of the state of Louisiana. The language largely consists of elements of French, Native American, and African languages. Louisiana Creole French (LCF) is a contact language that arose from interactions between speakers of French and various African languages in the 18th century. For this reason, prior to its establishment, the precursor to LCF was considered a pidgin language. In its historical backdrop, this pidgin was born to facilitate communication between African slaves and francophone land owners. Once the pidgin tongue was transmitted to the next generation (who were then considered the first native speakers of the new grammar), it could effectively be considered a creole language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lou. Alternate Names: Kréyol, Louisiana Creole French.

1998: [LILLYbm] Dictionary of Louisiana Creole, by Albert Valdman, Thomas A. Klinger, Margaret M. Marshall & Kevin J. Rottet. Bloomington, Ind.: Indiana University Press, 1998. Green cloth over boards, lettered in copper; d.j. gray-gold, pale green and red, lettered in red and white, with photographic illustration on front cover. Pp. [10] 1 2-656 657-650. First edition. Includes Louisiana Creole French-English, pp. [37]-499, and English-Louisiana Creole French, pp. [501]-656. This copy inscribed by the author. Second copy: IUW.

"Louisiana Creole (LC) is the most endangered of the French-related speech varieties of Louisiana. Scarcely any monolingual speakers of the language remain... This Dictionary of Louisiana Creole is intended to document LC as it still exists today" (preface). "Louisiana Creole... is one of three French-related varieties spoken in what is referred to as Acadiana or the Francophone Triangle, a region stretching to the Texas border located west and southwest of New Orleans. Unlike the other two varieties-Cajun French and Colonial French-LC is not a variety of French but a separate language. It is spoken by an estimated 20,000-30,000 personas, mostly African-Louisianans, but also some whites" (p. [3]).

2010: [IUW] Dictionary of Louisiana French: as spoken in Cajun, Creole, and American Indian communities / senior editor, Albert Valdman; associate editor, Kevin J. Rottet; assistant editors, Barry Jean Ancelet ... [et al.]. Jackson: University Press of Mississippi, c2010. xl, 892 p.; 29 cm.

[LOZI] Lozi, also known as siLozi and Rozi, is a Bantu language of the Niger–Congo language family within the Sotho languages branch of Zone S (S.30), that is spoken by the Lozi people, primarily in southwestern Zambia and in surrounding countries. Lozi and its dialects are spoken and understood by approximately six percent of the population of Zambia. The Lozi language developed from a mixture of two languages: Luyana and Kololo. The Luyana people originally migrated south from the Luba-Lunda empire in the Katanga area of the Congo River basin, either late in the 17th century or early in the 18th century. The language they spoke, therefore, was closely related to Luba and Lunda. They settled on the floodplains of the upper Zambezi River in what is now western Zambia and developed a kingdom, Barotseland, and also gave their name to the Barotse Floodplain or Buluzi. The Kololo were a Sotho people who used to live in what is now Lesotho. The Kololo were forced to flee from Shaka Zulu's Mfecane during the 1830s. Using tactics they had copied from the Zulu armies, the Kololo conquered the Luyana on the Zambezi floodplains and imposed their rule and language. However, by 1864 the indigenous population revolted and overthrew the Kololo. By that time, the Luyana language had been largely forgotten; the new hybrid language is called Lozi or Silozi and is closer to Sesotho than to any other neighbouring languages in Zambia. Lozi is also spoken in Zimbabwe, Botswana, and Namibia (Zambezi Region).

Ethnologue: loz. Alternate Names: Kololo, Kolololo, Rotse, Rozi, Rutse, Silozi, Tozvi.

1914?: [LILLY] Sekalolo Grammar with Vocabulary. N.p., n.d. [circa 1914]. 52 pp. Original brown quarter-linen and green paper over boards, lettered in black. Includes English-Sekalolo [Lozi] vocabulary, pp. [25]-52. Not in Zauhmüller. Cf. Hendrix 964: Stanley Colyer: Sikololo. Notes on the Grammar with a Vocabulary (London: John Bale, 1914), 6, 53 p. Lozi-English. If Hendrix is correct, the Lilly copy may be an unpublished companion volume, English-Lozi. This copy with the typed bookplate and ownership signature of R. E. Broughall Woods, author of A short introductory dictionary of the Kaonde language, with English-Kaonde appendix (London, Religious tract society, 1924). "Sekalolo" is equivalent to "Sikololo," parallel to "Silozi" for "Lozi."

1937: [LILLY] Elementary grammar of the Lozi language with graduated exercises, by Adolphe Jalla. London: United Society for Christian Literature, [1937]. 108 p. 19 cm. Original black cloth over boards, lettered in red. This copy with bookplate stating "Produced by The United Society for Christian Literature" with penciled date of 1937. With brief Lozi-English vocabularies for the exercises.

1960: [LILLYbm] An English-Lozi vocabulary, by J. P. Burger. Mongu, Barotseland Protectorate: Book Depot of P[aris] M[issionary]S[ociety], Sefula, 1960. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in black. Pp. [4] 1-171 172. First edition. Henrix 963. Includes English-Lozi, pp. 1-171.

"This Vocabulary has been compiled from the manuscript of an English-Lozi Dictionary which the late Rev. A. Jalla had hoped to publish as a companion volume to his Lozi-English Dictionary [cf. Hendrix 965-966]. Owing to shortage of paper during World War II, the book never came out and now after nearly 25 years, it would be difficult to publish it without considerable amendments. This Vocabulary is intended for Europeans who wish to gain a good working knowledge of Silozi. It contains just over 3,500 words" (Introduction).

1982: [IUW] Silozi-English dictionary, by A. Jalla. 3rd ed. / revised and enlarged by the Literature Committee of the United Church of Zambia. Lusaka: National Educational Co. of Zambia, 1982. 497 p.; 18 cm. Original blue imitation leather over boards, lettered in gold. Silozi-English, pp. 1-497.

"A new dictionary comes to life! ... The last edition of the Rev. A. Jalla's Lozi-English Dictionary has been out of print for many years, and for various reasons could not be reprinted as it was... The revision of a dictionary is always a very long, but highly interesting enterprise, and this revision has been no exception. We have aimed at tiving not only a full list of Silozi words currently used, but also illustrative sentences as a necessary supplement to definitions" (Preface to the Third Edition).

1991: [IUW] Silozi-English phrase book, by R.M. Mukuni. Lusaka, Zambia: Kenneth Kaunda Foundation, 1991. viii, 83 p.; 20 cm. First edition. Library binding, incorporating original green and white wrappers, lettered in black and green. Includes classified Lozi-English phrases, pp. 1-58, and "Some English Vocabulary," English-Lozi, pp. 59-82.

"It is hoped that the phrases in this book will be helpful to those Lozis whose language is a bit tumbled down and to the English speakers who would like to learn Lozi... By any means, this work is not meant to be exhaustive and conclusive, it merely scratches the surface of this important subject" (To the Reader).

"This book, which has about 2,000 phrases and a vocabulary of about 2,000 words, will enable you to acquire a basic working knowledge of either English or Lozi in a short time" (from rear cover).

1993: [LILLYbm] English-Silozi Dictionary, by Owen O'Sullivan. Lusaka: Zambia Educational Publishing House, 1993. Original orange wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. i-iv v-xxii, 1-362. First edition. Includes English-Silozi, pp. 1-346, a Lozi-English appendices of birds, pp. 347-350, trees, pp. 351-355, and witchcraft, pp. 356-360. Second copy: IUW.

"Silozi, like other Zambian languages, belongs to the Bantu group, and its grammatical structure is similar to other Zambian languages. Its vocabulary, however, is much closer to Sitswana, the language of Botswana... Silozi is today the mother tongue of about 150,000 people, and the lingua franca of perhaps 350,000 more. It is one of Zambia's seven officially recognized vernacular languages, and is taught in primary and secondary schools in the Western Province... The viability of the Lozi language is under threat. The increasing use of English as the country's official language, as the international language, as the language of science and technology, and as the almost sole language of Zambian television, have called into doubt the future of Lozi and indeed of other Zambian languages as well...Siliozi needs to develop new terms for the new realities of the third millenium. If, in the name of preserving tradition, it closes itself to what is new and evolving, if it regards the Silozi of the past as the only authentic Silozi, then it will have condemned itself to extinction...The challenge to the Lozi people today, and especially to the younger generation, is to create a new literature of prose, poetry and song in Lozi. Failure to do so will result in the death of Silozi in two or three generations."

[LUANG] Luang, also known as Literi Lagona (Letri Lgona), is an Austronesian language spoken in the Babar Islands in Maluku, Indonesia. It shares much vocabulary with the neighboring Leti language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lex. Alternate Names: Letri Lgona, Lgona, Literi Lagona.

1967: [IUW] Wetan fieldnotes: some eastern Indonesian texts with linguistic notes and a vocabulary, J.P.B. de Josselin de Jong. Dordrecht, Holland; Providence, U.S.A.: Foris Publications, 1987. ix, 335 p.: map; 24 cm. Verhandelingen van het Koninklijk Instituut voor Taal-, Land- en Volkenkunde 130. Wetan and English translation on opposite pages. Includes bibliographical references and index.

[LUBA-KASAI] Luba-Kasai, also known as Western Luba, Bena-Lulua, Ciluba/Tshiluba, Luba-Lulua or Luva, is a Bantu language (Zone L) of Central Africa, and an official language of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, alongside Lingala, Swahili, and Kikongo. An eastern dialect is spoken by the Luba people of the East Kasai Region, and a western dialect by the Lulua people of the West Kasai Region. The total number of speakers was estimated at 6.3 million in 1991 (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lua. Alternate Names: Bena-Lulua, Ciluba, Luba-Lulua, Luva, Tshiluba, Western Luba.

1900: see ca. 1900a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1906: [LILLYbm] Grammar and dictionary of the Buluba-Lulua language as spoken in the upper Kasai and Congo basin, by W[illiam] M[cCutchan] Morrison [1867-1918]. New York: American Tract Society, 1906. Original brown quarter-leather and maroon cloth over boards, spine lettered in gold. Pp. iii-iv v-x, I 2-417 418-422 [appears to be missing half title]. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 984. Includes Buluba-Lulua-English, pp. 143-295, and English-Buluba-Lulua, pp. 299-407. This copy with scattered additions in ink. This is the first English dictionary of Luba-Kasai. The only earlier vocabulary listed in Hendrix is part of a French grammar published in 1903.

"These people are remarkably docile, peaceable, industrious and eager for civilization, and are in many respects far superior to many African tribes. It has thus come about that the Baluba, especially, are eagerly sought after as slaves, with the result that many thousands of them have been carried into captivity, often into foreign tribes. These facts...have made their tongue the lingua franca or 'trade' language of the greater part of the upper Kasai and Congo basin" (Preface).

1937: [LILLY] Dictionnaire Luba. par S. Exc. Monseigneur Aug. De Clercq. Leopoldville: Procure des Missions de Scheut, 1937. 2 vols. Vol. 1: pp. I-V VI-VII VIII I 2-306 307-308; Vol. 2: pp. [8] I 2-272 273-274. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Première Partie: Luba-Français. Title page dated 1936, but printed January 1, 1937 (see p. 306). Includes Luba-French, pp. [1]-306. Deuxième Partie: Français-Luba. Title page dated 1937. Includes French-Luba, pp. [1]-272. The first edition of this work was published in 1914.

New revised and enlarged edition of Luba-French portion 1960: [IUW] Dictionnaire tshiluba-français [par] Aug. de Clercq. Nouv. ed., revue et augmentée par Em. Willems. Leopoldville: Impr. de la Société Missionnaire de St. Paul, 1960. 392 p. 22 cm.

Third edition of French-Luba portion 1986: [IUW] Dictionnaire français-tshiluba, Emile Willems, avec la collaboration de Bakole wa Ilunga, Basekela Balufu, Paul Lissens. Kananga, Zaïre: Editions de l'Archidiocèse, 1986. 342 p.; 21 cm. Library binding, incorporating original tan front wrapper, lettered in black and red, with an illustration of school children at a desk. Includes French Luba-Lulua [Luba-Kasai], pp. [9]-[344].

"For any language, a dictionary is truly a multivalent instrument... This volume is the fruit of many hours of labor, research and corrections. It is based on the pioneering work of Mon. Auguste De Clercq... With remarkable perspicacity, he was one of the first to study the genius of the Luba language. He had already compiled the very first Luba-French, French-Luba dictionary, published in Brussels in 1914, with a second edition in 1937. After the death of Mon. De Clercq in 1939, it was Father Emile Willems, CICM, who continued the study of Luba. ... He spent many years reviewing, enlarging and perfecting De Clercq's dictionary, so much so that the work with which you are presented today may be justly considered a title from his own hand. All speakers of Luba owe him a debt of profound gratitude" (Preface, Mon. Bakole wa Ilunga; tr: BM).

"This second edition of the Français-Luba dictionary has been out of print for some time and the demand for a new edition having become increasingly pressing, we have tried to satisfy that demand for those interested" (Introduction, Emile Willems; tr: BM).

Second edition, revised and enlarged, of entire dictionary 1989: [IUW] Vocabulaire tshiluba-français et français-tshiluba, par Em. Willems. 2. ed., nouv. ed. rev. et augm. Kananga: Editions de l'archidiocèse, 1989. 103 p.: ill.; 21 cm. In French and Luba-Lulua.

1992: [IUW] A classified vocabulary of the Luba language, by Yasutoshi Yukawa. Tokyo, Japan: Institute for the Study of Languages and Cultures of Asia and Africa (ILCAA): [Published by the International Scientific Research Program, Ministry of Education, Science and Culture, Japan], 1992. iv, 104 p.; 26 cm. Bantu vocabulary series 7.

1995: [IUW] Terminologie grammaticale et pédagogie: lexique français-ciluba, ciluba-français, sous la direction de Nyembwe Ntita; par Kadima Batumona Adi, Mukendi Tshalu Tshalu, Mpoyi Badinenganyi. Kinshasa XI: Editions universitaires africaines, 1995. 40 p.: map; 21 cm. At head of title: Réseau international de néologie et de la terminologie.

2000: [IUW] Lexique de l'information sanitaire: français-ciluba, ciluba-français, sous la direction de Nyembwe Ntita par Kadima Batumona Adi ... [et al.]. [Kinshasa]: Editions universitaires africaines, 2000. 171 p.; 21 cm. Medical dictionary.

[LUBA-KATANGA] Luba-Katanga, also known as Luba-Shaba and Kiluba, is one of the two major Bantu languages spoken in the Democratic Republic of the Congo called Luba, the other being Luba-Kasai. It is spoken mostly in the south-east area of the country by the Luba people. Kiluba is spoken in the area around Kabongo, Kamina, Luena, Lubudi, Malemba Nkulu, Mulongo, Manono and Kaniama, mostly in Katanga. Some 500 years ago or more, the Luba Kasai left Katanga and settled in the Kasai; since then, the Luba Kasai (Chiluba) language has evolved until it is no longer mutually intelligible with Luba Katanga (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lub. Alternate Names: Kiluba, Luba-Shaba.

1908: [LILLY] Traité de kiluba-sanga: tel qu'il est parlé au Secteur du Haut-Luapula (Katanga) et régions limitrophes, by J. M. Jenniges. [Bruxelles]: État Indépendant du Congo, 1908. 44 p.; 25 cm.

1909: [LILLY] Dictionnaire français-kiluba, exposant le vocabulaire de la langue kiluba telle qu'elle se parle au Katanga, by Emile Jenniges. Bruxelles: Ministère des colonies de Belgique; en dépôt chez Spineux, 1909. 192 p. 17 cm. Fine in original gray-blue wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. Hendrix 974. Include French-Kiluba [Luba-Ktanga], pp. 5-192. First true dictionary of this language. Brief English-Luba vocabularies had been previously published in 1892 in Charles Swan's Notes on the Grammatical Construction of Chiluba.

1969: [IUW] Dictionnaire français-kiluba et kiluba-français. Katanga: Congo Evangelistic mission, 1969. 147 p.; 17 cm. Original pale orange wrappers, lettered in black. French-Luba, pp. 9-124, and Luba-French, pp. 129-147.

"This dictionary has been compiled by the teachers and students of the L'Ecole Secondaire Pédagogique EPECO (C.E.M) at Kamina II. We have noticed that pupils in primary school and the first years of secondary school have difficulties using an ordinary French dictionary. When they look for a word they don't know, the definition often includes words they don't know either! We hope that this dictionary will help by giving them a definition in their native language. In order to keep the price of the dictionary down, we have limited the number of words to five or six thousand" (Note des auteurs: tr: BM).

1973-1974: [IUW] Mwendela Kiluba: grammaire pour debutants, par A. Gillis. Gent: [Seminarie en Laboratorium voor psychologische en experimentele pedagogiek], 1973-1974. 2 vols.; 24 cm. Original cream wrappers, lettered in black. Vol. 1: Mwendela Kiluba: grammaire pour debutants. VII, 96 p., 111 p. (v1-v111). Includes Luba-French verbs, alphabetically by root, pp. v1-v13, Luba-French vocabulary, pp. v14-v41, and French-Luba vocabulary, pp. v42-111. Vol. 2: Mwendela Kiluba: vocabulaire et graphie phonétique. Vol 2: 111p. Includes Luba-French, pp. 14-41, and French-Luba, pp. 42-111.

1981: [IUW] Dictionnaire Français-kiluba, par A. Gillis. Gent: H. Dunantlaan, 1981. xii, 693 p.: map; 24 cm. Original dark blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Errata slip inserted. Includes French-Luba, pp. 1-545, with index to French, pp. 549-693.

"There has long been a felt need for a French-Luba dictionary if one wishes to make the French language—the primary foreign language of the country—available in its written form where French is the language of instruction, at least at the secondary level"

(Introduction; tr: BM). Includes an extensive discussion of the background of this dictionary.

[LUBUKUSU] Bukusu is a dialect of the Masaba language spoken by the Bukusu tribe of the Luhya people of western Kenya. It is one of several ethnically Luhya dialects; however, it is more closely related to the Gisu dialect of Masaaba in eastern Uganda (and to the other Luhya dialect of Tachoni) than it is to other languages spoken by the Luhya (Wiki).

Ethnologue: bxx. Alternate Names: Bukusu.

1975: [LILLYbm] Bukusu Generative Phonology and Aspects of Bantu Structure, by K[ornelis] F[rans] de Blois. Tervuren, Belgium: Musée Royal de l'Afrique Centrale, 1975. Original cream-colored wrappers, lettered in blue. Pp. I-VI VII-XIV, 1-232. First edition. Not in Hendris. Series: Musée Royal de l'Afrique Centrale, Tervuren, Belgique. Annales. Série in -8. Sciences humaines, no 85. Bukusu-English vocabulary, pp. 173-200, and English-Bukusu, pp. 201-231, with bibliography, p. 232. First extensive printed vocabulary of the language.

"This study of aspects of Bukusu linguistic structure is based on fieldwork which was carried out in and around Eloret, Kenya, at various intervals from 1970 to 1974" (Preface). "Bukusu (or lu:bukusu) is spoken by more than 200,000 people... living along the Southern slopes of Mount Elgon in Western Kenya. It was classified by many linguists as a member of the Gisu (Gishu) or Masaaba cluster of dialects spoken in Uganda, just across the border... The Bukusu people were supposed to learn Standard Luyia, an artificial language based on the Central dialects. This policy had to be abandoned because of such an unrealistic approach" (Introduction).

[LUCUMI] Lucumí is a Yoruba dialect and the liturgical language of Santería in Haiti and in Cuba. It is sometimes known as Yorùbá (Wiki).

Ethnologue: luq. No known L1 speakers. No ethnic community. Secret language used for ritual by Santería religion.

1957: [LILLY] Anago: vocabulario lucumí (el yoruba que se habla en Cuba), by Lydia Cabrera, Prólogo de Roger Bastide. Havana: [Cabrera y Rojas], 1957. Pp. 1-7 8-326 327-328; 23.5 cm. Colección del chicherekú. Includes an eight-page introduction by the compiler. Lucumi-Spanish, pp. 21-326.

Reprinted 1970: [IUW] Anago: vocabulario lucumí (el yoruba que se habla en Cuba), by Lydia Cabrera, Prólogo de Roger Bastide. Miami: [Cabrera y Rojas], 1970. 326 p.; 22 cm. Library binding. Colección del chicherekú en el exilio. Reprint of the edition published in Havana, 1957, with identical pagination.

198-?: see under ABAKUÁ.

[LUGBARA] Lugbara is the language of the Lugbara people. It is spoken in the West Nile region in northwestern Uganda, as well as the Democratic Republic of the Congo's Orientale Province. The Aringa language, also known as Low Lugbara, is closely related, and sometimes considered a dialect of Lugbara. Some scholars classify the Lugbara language itself as a dialect of the Ma'di language, though this is not generally accepted. Lugbara was first written by Christian missionaries in 1918, based on the Ayivu dialect.

In 2000, a conference was held in the city of Arua in northwestern Uganda regarding the creation of a standardised international orthography for Lugbara. In 1992, the Government of Uganda designated it as one of five "languages of wider communication" to be used as the medium of instruction in primary education; however, unlike the other four such languages, it was never actually used in schools. More recently it was included in the curriculum for some secondary schools in the West Nile region, including St. Joseph's College Ombaci and Muni Girls Secondary School, both in Arua District (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lgg. Alternate Names: High Lugbara, Logbara, Lubarati, Lugbarati, Western Lugbara.

1902: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1912: [LILLY] Vocabulaire français-lugaret et lugaret-français, dressé d'après les renseignements fournis par M. Amet. Bruxelles: Impr. veuve Monnom, 1912. 28 p. 18 cm. Cover title. Original grey printed wrappers. First edition. Hendrix 988. Second copy: IUW.

1960: [LILLYbm] A Study of the Logbara (Ma'di) Language. Grammar and Vocabulary, by J[oseph] P[asquale] Crazzolara. London, New York, Toronto: Published for the International African Institute by Oxford University Press, 1960. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in gold; d.j. cream-colored, lettered and decorated in green. Pp. [2] i-iv v-xvii xviii, 1 2-373 374. First edition. Hendrix 987. Logbara-English vocabulary, pp. [177]-373. This is the first comprehensive vocabulary of the language. Second copy: IUW.

"The Logbara live mainly in the West Nile District of Uganda, on the Nile-Congo watershed, which is the boundary between Uganda and the Belgian Congo. They number approximately 200,000. Father J. P. Crazzolara, of the Verona Fathers, has spent many years in Uganda as a missionary, and is well known as the author of A Study of the Acooli Language... 1938... and of articles and monographs on the Nuer, Lwoo and other peoples of Uganda and the Sudan" (from the inner front flap of the d.j.).

"The Logbara language belongs to the Ma'di group of languages, just as, say, Acooli belongs to the Lwoo group. The name 'Logbara' was introduced into general use by the white colonizers, probably first by the Belgians... The name has since remained as the collective name for this division. All Logbara agree, however, that they are of the Ma'di nation, that they are Ma'di.... The Ma'di are entitled to lay claim to the title of 'ancestors' of at least a considerable section of the Lwoo.... The Ma'di appear to be infinitely older than the Lwoo... Existing conditions... have made it difficult to decide which dialect of the language to choose for purposes of this analysis. In deciding upon the dialect spoken around Arua, the district headquarters of the West Nile (Northeastern Province), i.e. the dialect of the Aivu and Pàdzùlù, as a basis for this Grammar and Vocabulary, the author has allowed considerations of practicability alone to influence his choice and has disregarded such criteria as - which is the 'authentic' or 'proper' or 'best type of' Logbara, since such claims are, in his opinion, untenable when applied to any one of the existing dialects." (Introduction).

1965: [IUW] A course in Lugbara, by L.I. Barr. 1st ed. Nairobi: East African Literature Bureau, 1965. 146 p.; 22 cm.

1999: [IUW] A simplified Lugbara-English dictionary, compiled by Paul Ongua Iga. Kampala: Fountain Publishers, 1999. iv, 71 p.; 21 cm. Original brownish-orange wrappers, lettered in black and white. Includes Lugbara-English, pp. 1-67.

"This small pocket Lugbara-English Dictionary has been compiled to assist those interested in a deeper understanding of Lugbara, foreigners learning the language, visitors and tourists" (Preface). "I must acknowledge the late Rev. Father A. Maccagnan at one time Parish Priest of Maraca Mission (Arua) for it was his English-Lugbara-Luo Dictionary that inspired me into writing" (Acknowledgement)

2009: [IUW] Lugbara-English and English-Lugbara dictionary, compiled by Willy Ngaka, Edward O'du'bua, Paul Iga Ongua. Kampala: Fountain Publishers, 2009. Distributed in North America by Michigan State University Press. First edition. viii, 70 p.; 21 cm. Original green, yellow red, brown and ochre wrappers, lettered in black and white. Lugbara-English, pp. 1-39, and English-Lugbara, 40-63.

"This dictionary deals with words commonly used while speaking and writing about everyday events.... The dictionary is mainly intended to meet the needs of primary school teachers. It will also be useful to secondary school students, non-Lugbara speakers who may, for academic purposes or any other reason, want to know and make use of the language" (Introduction).

[LUISEÑO] The Luiseño language is an Uto-Aztecan language of California spoken by the Luiseño, a Native American people who at the time of the first contacts with the Spanish in the 16th century inhabited the coastal area of southern California, ranging 50 miles (80 km) from the southern part of Los Angeles County, California, to the northern part of San Diego County, California, and inland 30 miles (48 km). The people are called "Luiseño" due to their proximity to the Mission San Luis Rey de Francia. The language is highly endangered, but an active language revitalization project is underway, assisted by linguists from the University of California, Riverside. The Pechanga Indian Reservation offers classes for children, and in 2013, "the tribe .. began funding a graduate-level Cal State San Bernardino Luiseño class, one of the few for-credit university indigenous-language courses in the country." As of 2012, a Luiseño video game for the Nintendo DS is being used to teach the language to young people. The dialect spoken by the Juaneño people is extinct (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lui.

ca. 1840 [2011]: [IUW] Pablo Tac, indigenous scholar: writing on Luiseño language and colonial history, c. 1840 / Lisbeth Haas; with art by James Luna; including the complete manuscript of Pablo Tac, transcribed by Marta Eguia ... [et al.]. Berkeley: University of California Press, c2011. xx, 267 p.: ill.; 24 cm. Original black cloth over boards, lettered in silver. Includes bibliographical references and index. "Pablo Tac's Luiseño-Spanish Dictionary, A-Cu," Luiseño-Spanish-English, pp. 215-261.

"The contents of Tac's three dictionary booklets are listed below, with folio numbers of the manuscript given in the margins of the page... English translations of the Spanish have been added on the right" (p. 215).

"Pablo Tac, a young Indian boy from the village of Quechla, which is now the site of Mission San Luis Rey, was taken to Rome, where he was trained as a scholar. His enormously significant writings are the only primary source of Luiseño language and culture written by a Luiseño until the twentieth century" (Foreword).

1846: see 9) under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

1907-1930: see Vol. 15 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

1968: [IUW] A Luiseño dictionary, by William Bright. Berkeley, University of California Press, 1968. 88 p. 26 cm. University of California publications in linguistics; v. 51. Bibliography: p. 88.

1971: [IUW] An introduction to the Luiseño language, by Villiana Calac Hyde. Banning, Calif.: Malki Museum Press, 1971. iii, 236 p.; 23 cm. Library binding incorporating original blue wrappers, lettered in black, with photos on front and back. Luiseño-English vocabulary, pp. 222-230, and English-Luiseño, pp. 231-236.

[LUKPA] Lukpa (Legba, Logba) is a Gur language spoken in Benin and Togo (Wiki).

Ethnologue: op. Alternate Names: Dompago, Legba, Logba, Lokpa, Lugba.

1952: see 1952b under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1983a-b: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1984: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[LULE] Lule is an indigenous language of northern Argentina. Lule may be extinct today. Campbell (1997) writes that in 1981 there was an unconfirmed report that Lule is still spoken by 5 families in Resistencia in east-central Chaco Province. It is unclear if it is the same language as Tonocoté (Wiki).

Lule is not listed in Ethnologue.

1732: [LILLY] Arte y vocabulario de la Lengua Lule y Tonocoté, by Antonio Machioni de Cerdeña. Madrid: Herederos, 1732. [18], 97, [1], 135, [1], 17, [3] p.; 16 cm. (8vo). Contemporary half leather and marbled paper over boards. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. First edition. First published vocabulary of Lule and Tonocote, now extinct. Vilela, now nearly extinct, is a language of Argentina descended from Lule.

“Es esta lengua propria, y nativa de cinco naciones muy numerosas, que son Tonocoté, Lule, Yxistiné, Toquistiné, y Oristiné; sola la primera tiene oy mas de cinquenta mil almas, y todas Infieles, que viven en lo interior del Chaco sobre las riberas del rio Pilcomayo” (p. 1, 2nd count). General remarks on the language are followed by grammatical study in Spanish with Lule examples (p. 1-91), concluding with a list of kinship terms in Lule with Spanish equivalents (p. 92-97). Followed by “Vocabulario de la lengua tonocoté, y lulé (p. 1-135), listing over 2000 terms in Spanish with Lule or Tonocote equivalents (printed in 3 columns: for verbs, indicative and imperative forms in Lule are given in two columns next to each Spanish infinitive). Also contains “Catecismo, y doctrina christiana en lengua lule, y Tonocoté” in Lule with Spanish headings (p. 1-13, at end) and a bilingual catechism (p. 14-17. Censura, dated 1729, by Padre Juan Montijo, missionary among the Lule Indians for three years at the Mission de Miraflores (p. [5], 1st count). (Description from copy at John Carter Brown Library).

[LULOGOOLI] Logoli (Logooli) is a Bantu language with several hundred thousand speakers in Kenya and a few hundred speakers in Mara Region, Tanzania. It is spoken by the Maragoli, the second-largest Luhya tribe, but is not particularly close to other languages spoken by the Luhya (Wiki).

Ethnologue: rag. Alternate Names: Llogole, Llugule, Logooli, Lugooli, Luragoli, Maragoli, Maragooli, Ragoli, Uluragooli.

2005: [IUW] Lulogooli English translation (dictionary), with Joseph Olindo Ndanyi. 1st ed. Nairobi: Ndanyi Enterprises, 2005. xxxiii, 228 p.; 17 cm. Library binding incorporating original pale orange wrappers, lettered in black, with color photos on front and rear covers. Lulogooli-English dictionary, pp. 1-228.

"Probably the first time an attempt was made to write the Lulogooli language was around the year 1901. This was during the time when the Religious Society of Friends Missionaries established themselves at Kaimosi and Vihiga... Also in their attempt to assist new Missionaries, they wrote what they called [a] 'Lulagoli dictionary.' The dictionary was a mixture of Lulogooli and other Luhya dialects and English.... From the year 1986, I started to research and consult and collect all Lulogooli words from surviving documents and from older persons who could remember the usage of these words. I have therefore put in this book all the Lulogooli words and their usage as much as I could remember. This is the main reason why I wrote this book which I completed in 1988" (Foreword). The author, Elisha Ugaada Ndanyi died two years after completing this draft. The Foreword continues the story of the eventual publication of the dictionary.

[LUMBU] Lumbu is a Bantu language spoken in Gabon and the Republic of Congo (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lup. Alternate Names: Baloumbou, Ilumbu, Yilumbu.

2010: [IUW] Dictionnaire yilumbu-français / Paul Achille Mavoungou, Bernard Plumel. Libreville, Gabon: Éditions Raponda Walker, 2010. 801 p.: ill. (some col.), col. maps; 21 cm. Original pale pink, marron green yellow and white wrappers, lettered in green, white and black. Lumbu-French, pp. 59-796. Includes bibliographical references (p. 53-58).

"With more than 6000 entries, the present lexicon integrates the basic vocabulary of everyday life, those of special areas (such as hunting, fishing, gathering), as well as a certain number of borrowed words (primarily from Portuguese, English and French)" (from the rear cover).

[LUNDA] Lunda, also known as Chilunda, is a Bantu language spoken in Zambia, Angola and, to a lesser extent, in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC). Lunda and its dialects are spoken and understood by perhaps 4.6% of Zambians (1986 estimate), and the language is used mainly in the Northwestern and Luapula provinces of Zambia. The majority of the Lunda can be found in DRC, especially Katanga Province, as well as in Angola. A small number of Lunda dialects are represented in Namibia.

Ethnologue: lun. Alternate Names: Chilunda.

1894: see 1894a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES...POLYGLOT.

1957: [LILLY] A Lunda-English Vocabulary, by C. M. N. White. London: University of London Press, in association with The Publications Bureau, Lusaka and Blantyre, 1957. Pp. [2] 1-6 7-79 80-82. 18 cm. Original pale green wrappers, lettered in reddish-brown. Second, expanded edition. Hendrix 996. Includes Lunda-English, pp. 7-[80].

"This Lunda-English Vocabulary first appeared in a much simpler form in 1943. The present text is greatly expanded, but makes no pretensions to being a dictionary.... Arguments as to whether certain words are Lunda or Luvale are generally sterile; many words are the same in both languages whilst others have been freely borrowed.... In deciding what words merit inclusion I have preferred to be guided by the experience of seventeen years of spoken Lunda rather than by other criteria" (Introduction).

1984: [LILLY] Lunda-Ndembu Dictionary: English-Lunda: Lunda-English, by M.K. Fischer. Ikelenge, Zambia: Lunda-Ndembu Publications, 1984. Pp. 1-3 4-107 108 109-186 187-192. Original dark rose wrappers, lettered in white. Cf. Hendrix 993-995. "Revised edition 1984—3,000 ... Printed by Christian Literature Press, Chingola, Zambia" on p. [3]. Includes English-Lunda (Ndembu), pp. 9-107, and Lunda (Ndembu)-English, pp. [108]-185, with classified English-Lunda vocabulary as Appendix, pp. 186-[192].

"This dictionary is intended for general practical use. Some words heard in certain districts are not heard in others.... For the benefit of Lunda people learning English, the Lunda-English vocabulary often gives several English words for the same Lunda word. This should also help English-speaking people to get an idea as to what the word really means" (Foreword).

2013: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES...POLYGLOT.

[LURI] Luri or Lurish (Luri: عروژا) is a Western Iranian language continuum spoken by the Lurs in Western Asia. Luri forms five language groups known as Feyli, Central Luri, Bakhtiari, Laki and Southern Luri. This language is spoken mainly by the Feyli Lurs, Bakhtiari and Southern Lurs (Kohgiluyeh and Boyer-Ahmad, Mamasani, Sepidan, Bandar Ganaveh, Deylam) of Iran and beyond.<sup>i</sup>

Ethnologue lists four separate languages under Luri: 1) Bakhtiāri: bqi. Alternate Names: Lori, Lori-ye Khaveri, Luri; Autonym یاریخت (Bakhtiāri); 2) Kumzari: zum. Alternate Names: Kumzai; 3) Northern Luri: lrc. Alternate Names: Lori, Luri, Luristani; and 4) Southern Luri: luz. Alternate Names: Lor, Lori, Lori-ye Jonubi, Lur, Ruliy Luri.

1984: [IUW] Farhang-i Lurī / girdāvardah-'i Ḥamīd Īzadpanāh. Chāp-i 2. Tih-rān: Mu'assasah-'i Intishārāt-i Āgāh, 1363 [1984]. Second edition. 16, 159 p.: ill.; 25 cm. Persian-Luri dictionary.

2007/8: [IUW] مردان عسکری عالم فرهنگ عامه لرستان / تالیف، علی. Farhang-i 'āmah-i Luristān / ta'lif, 'Alī'mardān 'Askarī 'Ālam. چاپ 1. Chāp-i 1. آبادخرم. انتشارات افلاک، 1386- [2007 or 8-]. Khurram'ābād: Intishārāt-i Aflāk, 1386- [2007 or 8-]. v.; 24 cm. Vol. 2 published by: Khurram'ābād: Intishārāt-i Shāpūr'khvāst.

1. فرهنگ مردم الشتر
2. فرهنگ و باورهای مردم لرستان
3. های لری فرهنگ مثل فر
1. Farhang-i mardum-i Alīshtar
2. Farhang va bāvarhā-yi mardum-i Luristān
3. Farhang-i maṣal'hā-yi Lurī.

2014: [IUW] شن، نگاهی به تاریخ شامل گلگشتی کوتاه در جغرافیای مناطق لر: فرهنگ گویش لری = نامه‌عمران بر جسته لر، نکات دستور گویش لر و واژه‌رسی اشعار دو تن از شامناطق لور کوچک، نقد و بر Lorī dialect culture / تاءلف محمد نظری

Farhang-i gūyish-i Lurī: shāmil-i gulgashī kūtāh dar jughrāfiyā-yi manātiq-i Lur'nishīn, nigāhī bih tārikh-i manātiq-i Lūr-i kūchak, naqd va bar'rasī-i ash'ār-i dū tan az shā'irān bar justah-i Lur, nukāt-i dastūri-i gūyish-i Lur va vāzhah'nāmah = Lori dialectic culture / ta'lif-i Muḥammad Naẓarī. چاپ اول. Chāp-i avval. تهران. مؤسسه فرهنگی انتشاراتی پازینه، 1393 [2014]. Tih-rān: Mu'assasah-i Farhangī-i Intishārāt-i Pāzīnah, 1393 [2014]. 416 pages, 4 unnumbered pages: maps; 24 cm. Includes bibliographical references (page 417-420). Persian-Luri dictionary.

[LUSHOOTSEED] Lushootseed (also: x<sup>w</sup>əlšucid, dx<sup>w</sup>ləšucid, Puget Salish, Puget Sound Salish or Skagit-Nisqually) is the language or dialect continuum of several Salish Native American tribes of modern-day Washington state. Lushootseed is a member of Coast Salish, one of two main divisions of the Salishan language family. Ethnologue quotes a source published in 1990 (and therefore presumably reflecting the situation in the late 1980s), according to which there were 60 fluent speakers of Lushootseed, evenly divided between the northern and southern dialects. On the other hand, the Ethnologue's list of United States languages also lists, alongside Lushootseed's 60 speakers, 100 speakers for Skagit, 107 for Southern Puget Sound Salish, and 10 for Snohomish (a dialect on the boundary between the northern and southern varieties). Some sources given for these figures, however, go back to the 1970s when the language was less critically endangered. Linguist Marianne Mithun has collected more recent data on the number of speakers of various Native American languages, and could document that by the end of the 1990s there were only a handful of elders left who spoke Lushootseed fluently. The language was extensively documented and studied by linguists with the aid of tribal elder Vi Hilbert, d. 2008, who was the last speaker with a full native command of Lushootseed. There are efforts at reviving the language, and instructional materials have been published (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists four languages under the Lushootseed family: Lushootseed [proper], Southern Lushootseed, Skagit, and Snohomish.

1976: [LILLYbm] Dictionary of Puget Salish, by Tom Hess. Seattle and London: University of Washington Press, 1976. Original gray cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in silver. 772 pp. First edition. Puget Salish-English, with an English index.

"Puget Salish in the American Indian language spoken in the vicinity of Seattle, Washington... [It] is one of just over twenty related languages belonging to the Salish language family. These languages, spoken in an area extending from the Pacific to western Montana and from central British Columbia into Oregon, all descend from a single ancestor language spoken thousands of years ago." This is the first dictionary of the language.

Revised and expanded edition 1994: [LILLYbm] Lushootseed Dictionary, by Dawn Bates, Thom Hess, & Vi Herbert. Seattle: University of Washington Press, 1994. Original gold, black, and white wrappers, lettered in white and black. 381 pp. First edition. Includes Lushootseed-English and an English-Lushootseed index. Second copy: IUW.

"This is a completely reformatted and greatly revised and expanded update of Thom Hess's Dictionary of Puget Salish (1976)." "Lushootseed... is a Native language spoken in the vicinity of Seattle... also called Puget Salish and Skagit-Nisqually... At the time of European contact, there were over twenty Salish languages, spoken in an area extending from the Pacific to western Montana and from central British Columbia into Oregon."

[LUSI] Lusi is an Austronesian language of New Britain. Kaliai is a dialect (Wiki). Ethnologue: khl. Alternate Names: Kaliai, Kaliai-Kove.

1969: [IUW] A grammar of Kaliai-Kove, by David R. Counts. [Honolulu]: University of Hawaii Press, 1969. xiii, 169, [1] p.: map; 23 cm. Library binding, incorporating original ochre-yellow front wrapper, lettered in black. Oceanic linguistics special publication; no. 6. Bibliography: p. [170]. Includes "Lexicon," (Kandoka-Lusi)-English-Index, pp. [139]-169.

"The research on which this dissertation is based was conducted in Kandoka village of the Kaliai census subdivision, Talasea subdistrict, West New Britain, district of the Territory of New Guinea. I resided in Kanoka village from September, 1966, to August, 1967" (Preface).

"The language treated in this grammar, Kandoka-Lusi, is spoken as the first language by the people living in Kandoka village... Kandoka-Lusi appears to differ hardly at all from the language of four neighboring coastal villages... all of which call their native language Lusi.... Kandoka-Lusi is a dialect of Kaliai-Koße, which is spoken in the five villages above and in nineteen other villages on the coast and small adjacent islands of northern New Britain. The Koße dialect of the language varies only in minor respects from Kandoka-Lusi and the two dialects are mutually intelligible.... Finally, Kandokak-Lusi has as a neighbor one apparently non-Austronesian language. This language, Anem, differs greatly from any of the others known to the author in West Britain" (Introduction).

1982: see under ANEM.

[LUVALE] Luvale (also spelled Chiluvale, Lovale, Lubale, Luena, Lwena) is a Bantu language spoken by the Lovale people of Angola and Zambia. It is recognized as a regional language for educational and administrative purposes in Zambia, where about 168,000 (2006) people speak it. Luvale is closely related to Chokwe. In the Swedish 1997 murder mystery novel "Faceless Killers", Inspector Kurt Wallander investigates a murderous racist attack on a refugee center in Skane and finds it difficult to communicate with a witness who speaks only the Luvale language. The problem is resolved when a 90-year-old woman is found, who is a former missionary who speaks Luvale fluently, and she acts as the interpreter (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lue. Alternate Names: Chiluvale, Lovale, Lubale, Luena, Lwena.

2013: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES...POLYGLOT.

[LUWO] Jur, also known as Luwo (Luo, Dheluwo), is a language spoken by Luwo people of Bahr el Ghazal region in South Sudan. The language is most prominently spoken in western and northern parts of Bahr El Ghazal. These people are one of the Luo peoples of East Africa.

Ethnologue treats Jur as two separate languages: 1. Modo Jur (bex; alternate names: Jur, Modo) and 2. Luwo (lwo; alternate names: Dhe Luwo, Dhe Lwo, Giur, Jo Lwo, Jur Luo, Jur Luwo, Jur Lwo, Lwo.)

1953: see under JUR.

[LUXEMBOURGISH] Luxembourgish, Luxemburgish (/ˈlʌksəmˌbɜːrɡɪʃ/) or Letzeburgesch (/ˌletsbɜːrˈɡɛʃ, -sə-/ or /ˈletsˌbɜːrɡɪʃ, -sə-/) (Luxembourgish: Lëtzebuergesch) is a West Germanic language that is spoken mainly in Luxembourg. Worldwide, about 390,000 people speak Luxembourgish. While it could be considered a standardized variety (i.e., a dialect with a written form) of German, its official use in the state of Luxembourg and the existence of a separate regulatory body has removed Luxembourgish, at least in part, from the domain of the Dachsprache Standard German. Despite the lack of a sharp boundary between Luxembourgish and the neighboring German dialects, this has led several linguists (from Luxembourg as well as Germany) to regard it as a separate, yet closely related language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ltz. Alternate Names: Frankish, Letzburgerisch, Luxembourgeois, Luxemburgian, Luxemburgish, Moselle Franconian; Autonym: Lëtzebuergesch.

1982 [1995]: [IUW] English-Luxembourgish dictionary = Englesch-Letzbuergesch dictionnaire / Lycée Michel-Rodange; team-work directed by Jul[es] Christophory. Réédition de l'ouvrage paru en 1982. Esch/Alzette [Luxembourg]: Editions Schortgen, c1995. 288 p.; 19 cm. Library binding, incorporating original red, white and blue wrapper, lettered in white and red. English-Luxembourgish, pp. 19-247. Bibliography: p. 267-281.

"In 1980 the Lycée Michel-Rodange published a Portuguese Luxembourgish dictionary. The present English-Luxembourgish pocket dictionary is the result of a similar collective effort started in September 1979. It was compiled and revised by well over 300 pupils and several teachers" (Preface).

[LWEL] Lwel is a Bantu language spoken in the Kwilu District of the Democratic Republic of the Congo. It is listed in Maho's (2009) updated Guthrie list as B862. It has not been assigned an ISO code as of 2017.

Ethnologue does not list Lwel.

2015: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[LYÉLÉ] The Lyélé language (Lele) is spoken in the Sanguié Province of Burkina Faso by approximately 130,000 people known as Lyéla, Léla, Gourounsi or Gurunsi. It is spoken in the towns of Réo, Kyon, Tenado, Dassa, Didyr, Godyr, Kordié, Pouni and Zawara. The language is also sometimes known by the wider term Gurunsi (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lee. Alternate Names: Gurunsi, Lela, Lele, Lyela.

1953: [IUW] Grammaire l'élé / [par] G. Bon; Glossaire l'élé-français [par] F. Nicolas. Dakar: IFAN, 1953. 452 p.: ill., map; 29 cm. Library binding. Hendrix 1011. Mémoires de l'Institut français d'Afrique noire; no. 24. Bibliography: p. [129]-132, 138-139. Part II, by R. P. F. Nicolas: Lyélé-French glossary, pp. [197]-452. First dictionary of this language.

"It will quickly become apparent that the two works published here are intended for linguists and for users—two complementary groups.... [T]he glossary of R. P. Nicolas appears to cover the semantic aspect of the language exhaustively... We also believe that Lyélé is a language, including several dialects, and not itself a dialect" (Avertissement; tr: BM).

[MA] Ma, also known as Amadi, Madi, Madyo, is a Ubangian language spoken in DRC Congo (Wiki). Ma is also the name of a now extinct Papuan language of the Mailuan family once spoken in Papua New Guinea.

Ethnologue: msj. Alternate Names: Amadi, Madi, Madyo.

1912: [LILLY] Vocabulaire français-amadi et amadi-français, dressé d'après les renseignements fournis par M. Dupont. Bruxelles: Impr. Veuve Monnom, 1912. Pp. [2] / 2-14 15 16-28 29-30. Fine in original wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. Hendrix 109. French-Amadi, pp. [1]-14, Amadi-French, pp. [15]-[29]. The two sections of the vocabulary are headed chapter XIII and XIV respectively, indicating it was part of a larger work [not found by compiler] by Dupont or another author. First published vocabulary of Ma. Second copy: IUW, in original wrappers.

[MAASAI] Maasai or Masai (English pronunciation: /'ma:sai/; autonym: ɔl Maa) is an Eastern Nilotic language spoken in Southern Kenya and Northern Tanzania by the Maasai people, numbering about 800,000. It is closely related to the other Maa varieties: Samburu (or Sampur), the language of the Samburu people of central Kenya, Chamus, spoken south and southeast of Lake Baringo (sometimes regarded as a dialect of Samburu); and Parakuyu of Tanzania. The Maasai, Samburu, il-Chamus and Parakuyu peoples are historically related and all refer to their language as ɔl Maa.

Ethnologue: mas. Alternate Names: Maa, Masai.

1854: [LILLY] Vocabulary of the Engútuk Eloikob, or of the language of the Wakuafi-nation in the interior of equatorial Africa, by J. L. Krapf (1810-1881). Tübingen: Printed by L.F. Fues, 1854. Original badly faded purple cloth, lettered in gold and decorated in blind. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 1016.

1885: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES...POLYGLOT.

1901: IUW] The Masai language; grammatical notes together with a vocabulary compiled by Hildegard Hinde. Cambridge [Eng.] The University press, 1901. ix, 1., 75 p. 19 cm. Editor's note signed: E.C.M.

1902: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES...POLYGLOT.

1905: [LILLYbm] The Masai: their language and folklore, by [Sir] A[lfred] C[laud] Hollis [1874- ]. Oxford: The Clarendon Press, 1905. Original red cloth over boards, spine lettered in gold. Pp. i-ii iii-xxviii, 1 2-359 360 + 27 plates and folding map. First edition. Hendrix 1015. With Maasai-English wordlists as examples throughout.

1955: [LILLYbm] A Maasai Grammar with vocabulary, by A[rchibald] N[orman] Tucker & J[ohn] Tomp Old Mpaayei. London; New York; Toronto: Longmans, Green and Co., 1955. Original dark blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. i-vi vii-xvii xviii, 1-2 3-317 318. First edition. Series: Publications of the African Institute, Leyden, No. II. Zaunmüller, col. 270. Hendrix 1019. Maasai-English vocabulary, pp. 240-281, and English-Maasai, pp. 282-314. With fold-out linguistic map. Second copy: IUW.

"I can recommend this scholarly work to anyone wishing to learn the language of the once dreaded Masai, who I am very pleased to know are now advancing in education. They are, moreover, already making a contribution to civilization and may perhaps one day exert a powerful influence on the future of East Africa" (Forward, Claud Hollis).

1958: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1978?: [IUW] Maa, a dictionary of the Maasai language and folklore: English-Maasai, by Frans Mol. Nairobi, Kenya: Marketing & Publishing, [1978?] 190 p.; 27 cm. Bibliography: p. 177-190.

1996: [IUW] Maasai language & culture: dictionary, by Frans Mol. [Lemek, Kenya]: Maasai Centre Lemek, 1996. xvii, 411 p.: ill.; 25 cm. English and Masai.

2005: [IUW] Parlons massai, by Grace Mesopirr Sicard, Michel Malherbe. Paris; L'Harmattan, c2005. 194 p.; map; 22 cm. Collection "Parlons". Includes bibliographical references (p. [191]).

[MAAY] Maay Maay (also known as Af-Maay, Af-Maymay, Rahanween, Rahanweyn or simply Maay, and sometimes spelled Mai Mai) is a language of the Cushitic branch of the Afro-Asiatic family and a variety of the Somali language. It is spoken mostly in Somalia and adjacent parts of Ethiopia and Kenya. Its speakers are known as Sab Somalis. The centre of the language is around Baidoa. The language is written using the Latin script (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ymm. Alternate Names: Af-Maay, Af-Maay Tiri, Af-May, Af-Maymay, Rahanween, Rahanweynl.

2007: [IUW] English-Maay Dictionary, by Mohamed Haji Mukhtar & Omar Moalim Ahmed. London: Adonis & Abbey, 2007. 213 p. 24 cm. Original blue, black and gray paper over boards, lettered in black and white. English-Maay, pp. 13-213.

"Somali people speak quite a number of languages and dialects. Maay and Mahaa being the lingua franca of the majority. In 1972, the latter was put in a written format and became the national language of the country. This experiment alienated the other Somali languages and produced tremendous disenchantment, particularly on the part of the Maay speakers. In 2003, however, the Somali Peace and Reconciliation Conference at Mbegathi, Kenya, acknowledged that Maay will be another official language of the Somali Republic. This English-Maay Dictionary is the first experiment exploring the roots of the Maay language and its relationship to the other Somali dialects as well as the Kushitic family of languages in the Horn of Africa. The dictionary provides over 15,000 of the most frequently used words in Maay and their English translations" (from the rear cover).

[MABA (Chad)] Maba (Maban, Mabang) is a Maban language spoken in Chad and Sudan. It is divided into several dialects, and serves as a local trade language. Maba is closely related to the Masalit language (Wiki). Maba is also the name of a language of Indonesia.

Ethnologue: mde. Alternate Names: Aulad Djema, Awlad Djema, Borgu, Bura Mabang, Kana Mabang, Mabaa, Mabak, Mabang, Ouaddai, Ouaddaien, Uled Djemma, Wadai, Waddayen.

1819: see under NUBIAN. Brief Maba vocabulary, p. 491-492.

1862-1866: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1947: [IUW] La bura-mabang du Ouadaï; notes pour servir à l'étude de la langue maba, by Georges Trenga, Commandant des affaires militaires musulmanes. Paris, Institut d'ethnologie, 1947. xi, [3], 300 p. map. 28 cm. Library binding. Travaux et mémoires de l'Institut d'ethnologie; 49 "Bibliographie": p.[2]. French-Maba-Arabic vocabulary, pp. [219]-296.

"One may well ask why this documentation, finished as early as 1907, was not published sooner. The fault does not lie with M. Trenga, who made attempts to do so in 1907, 1911, 1913 and finally in 1939, before obtaining the indispensable assistance of the Institute of Ethnology [of the University of Paris] in publishing this work, which rounds out our knowledge by filling a regrettable lacuna" (Introduction, Henri Labouret, tr: BM).

1991: [IUW] Maba-group lexicon, by John T. Edgar. Berlin; D. Reimer, 1991. 426 p.; ill., map; 25 cm. Sprache und Oralität in Afrika; 13. Bd. Includes bibliographical references (p. 418-426).

[MACAGUAGJE] Macaguaje is an extinct Tucanoan language of Colombia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mcl.

1882: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF SOUTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[MACAGUÁN] Macaguán is a Guahiban language that was spoken by about 400 people in Colombia. Many of its speakers are monoglots (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mbn. Alternate Names: Agualinda Guahibo, Hitnü, Macaguane, Macaguane-Hitnu.

1993: [IUW] Observaciones preliminares acerca del idioma macaguan: apuntes culturales, fonología, apuntes gramaticales, vocabulario macaguan-español / por Edgar Buenaventura V.; redactado por Stephen H. Levinsohn. 1. ed. Santafé de Bogotá, Colombia: Asociación Instituto Lingüístico de Verano, 1993. First edition. iv, 104 p.: ill., map; 23 cm. Library binding incorporating original green and white wrappers, lettered in black. "Primera edición, 1993 / 125 ejemplares" on verso of title page. Macaguán-Spanish vocabulary, pp. 53-80. Includes bibliographical references (p. iii-iv). Material for this dictionary was gathered on site in the early 1980's.

[MACANESE] Macanese Creole or Macanese Patois (known as Patuá to its speakers) is a Portuguese-based creole language with a substrate from Malay, Cantonese, also Sinhalese, which was originally spoken by the Macanese community of the Portuguese colony of Macau. It is now spoken by a few families in Macau and in the Macanese diaspora. On February 20, 2009, the new edition of UNESCO's Atlas of the World's Languages in Danger classified Patua as a "critically endangered" language. The Atlas puts the number of Patua speakers at 50 as of the year 2000. It underwent decreolization and a shift to Standard Portuguese while Macau was still under Portuguese administration. The language is also called by its speakers Papiá Cristam di Macau ("Christian speech of Macau"), and has been nicknamed Dóci Língu di Macau ("Sweet Language of Macau") and Doci Papiaçam ("sweet speech") by poets. In Portuguese it is called Macaense, Macaista Chapado ("pure Macanese"), or Patuá (from French patois) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mzs. Alternate Names: Macaense, Macao Creole Portuguese, Makista, Patuá.

1978: [LILLY] Papiá Cristám di Macau: epitome de gramática comparada e vocabulário, dialecto Macaense / José dos Santos Ferreira. Macão: [s.n.], 1978 [tipografia da Missão] 107 p.; 22 cm. Original white wrappers, lettered in red. Macanese-Portuguese, pp. 43-96. From the library of C. R. Boxer, with his signature on the inner front wrapper. No introductory material to the grammar or vocabulary.

[MACEDONIAN] Macedonian (/ˌmæsiˈdouniən/; македонски, tr. makedonski, pronounced [maˈkɛdɔnski ˈjazik]) is a South Slavic language spoken as a first language by around two million people, principally in the Republic of Macedonia and the Macedonian diaspora, with a smaller number of speakers throughout the transnational region of Macedonia. It is the official language of the Republic of Macedonia and a recognized minority language in parts of Albania, Romania and Serbia. Standard Macedonian was implemented as the official language of the Socialist Republic of Macedonia in 1945 and has since developed a modern literature. Most of the codification was formalized during the same period. The name of the Macedonian language is a matter of political controversy in Greece and Bulgaria as is its distinctiveness compared to Bulgarian in Bulgaria (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mkd. Alternate Names: Macedonian Slavic. Autonym: македонски (Makedonski), македонски јазик (makedonski jazik).

1958: [IUW] Un lexique macédonien du XVI<sup>e</sup> siècle / Par C. Giannelli, avec la collaboration de André Vaillant. Paris: Institut d'études slaves de l'Université de Paris, 1958. 69 p.: ill.; 25 cm. Library binding, incorporating original tan front wrapper, lettered in black. Annotated vocabulary of Macedonian from 16th century manuscript, Macedonian, with French meanings added, pp. 23-44. Textes publiés par l'Institut d'études slaves 5. Includes bibliographical references.

[further entries being compiled]

[MACHAME] Machame is a language of Tanzania. Wiki entry redirects Machame to West Kilimajaro (or West Chaga), and lists it (as Mashami) as a dialect of that language. Ethnologue considers it a separate language.

Ethnologue: jmc. Alternate Names: Kimachame, Kimashami, Macame, Machambe, Madjame, Mashami.

2008: [IUW] Kimashami: kamusi ya Kimashami-Kiingereza-Kiswahili = Mashami-English-Swahili dictionary, by Josephat M. Rugemalira. Dar es Salaam: Languages of Tanzania Project, University of Dar es Salaam, 2008. xi, 83 p.; 25 cm. LOT publications. Lexicon series; no. 6. Mashami language dictionary with English and Swahili definitions, for research linguists and general users.

[MACUNA] Macuna, also known as Buhagana, Wahana, is a Tucanoan language of Colombia and Brazil (Wiki).

Ethnologue: myy. Alternate Names: Buhagana, Emoa, Ide, Jepa-Matsi, Makuna, Makuna-Erulia, Paneroa, Roea, Suroa, Tabotiro Jejea, Umua, Wuhána, Yeba, Yepá-Mahsá.

1993: [IUW] Masa ye, gawa ye rãca ãmara tuti: macuna-español, diccionario de 850 palabras. 1. ed. Santafé de Bogotá: Editorial A. Lleras Camargo, 1993. 206 p.: ill., map; 23 cm. "Compiladores, Jeffrey R. y Josephine H. Smothermon"--Verso t.p. Library binding, incorporating original yellow, blue, red and black wrappers, lettered in black. "Primera edición, 1993 / 168 ejemplares" on verso of title page. Macuna-Spanish, pp. 13-116, with illustrations; Spanish-Macuna, p. 141-190.

[MACUSHI] Macushi is the most populous of the Cariban languages, spoken by 30,000 in Brazil and Guyana. It is also spelled Makushi, Makusi, Makuxi, Macusi, Macussi, and also known as Teweya (Teueia). Abbot 1991 describes Macushi as having OVS order, with SOV order used to highlight the subject (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mbc. Alternate Names: Macusi, Macuxi, Makuchi, Makushi, Makusi, Makuxi, Teueia, Teweya.

1932: [LILLY] Grammar, notes and vocabulary of the language of the Makuchi Indians of Guiana, by James Williams (1862- ). St. Gabriel-Mödling near Vienna, Austria: "Anthropos", 1932. 2 preliminary leaves, [3]-413 pages. 24 cm. Original brown wrappers, lettered in black. Anthropos; linguistische bibliothek, t. 8. English-Macushi vocabulary arranged by grammatical groups, pp. 133-342, an English index to the vocabulary, pp. [347]-365, and a Macushi index to the vocabulary, pp. [366]-387. First printed vocabulary of the Macushi language.

2008: [IUW] Dicionário da língua makuxi, by Celino Alexandre Raposo. Boa Vista, RR, Brasil: Editora UFRR, c2008. 92 p.; 18 cm. First edition. In Macusi and Portuguese.

[MADA (Cameroon)] Mada is a Chadic language spoken in northern Cameroon (Wiki). Mada is also the name of a language spoken in Nigeria.

Ethnologue: mxu. Alternate Names: Ma'da.

2000: [IUW] Dictionnaire mada: langue de la famille tchadique parlée dans l'extrême-nord du Cameroun, Daniel Barreteau; André Brunet. Berlin: Dietrich Reimer Verlag, 2000. 422 p.: ill., map; 25 cm. Sprache und Oralität in Afrika; 16. Bd. Includes bibliographical references (p. 59-60).

[MADAGASCAR SIGN LANGUAGE] Norwegian Sign Language, or NSL (Norwegian: norsk tegnspråk, NTS), is the principal sign language in Norway and Madagascar. Norwegian Sign was introduced to Madagascar, and the dialects are still close (Wiki). Ethnologue lists Madagascar Sign Language as a language of its own, "reportedly similar to Norwegian Sign language."

According to Nobukatsu MINOURA in "A Preliminary Comparative Study of Norwegian Sign Language and Malagasy Sign Language" (2014), the first School for the Deaf was established at Antsirabe in Madagascar in 1960 by the local Lutheran Church with the help of Norwegian people and Norwegian Organizations. This was the initial introduction of NSL into Madagascar. The Federation of the Deaf in Madagascar produced an on-line Diksionera'ny Tenin'ny Tenana Malagasy (A Dictionary of Madagascar Sign Language) in 2009.

Ethnologue: mzc. Alternate Names: Malagasy Sign Language.

1883: [LILLY] Notes on relics of the sign and gesture language among the Malagasy, by James Sibree [1836-1929]. London: Harrison and sons, 1883. 10 p.; in-8°. First separate publication. Appeared simultaneously in the Journal of the Anthropological Institute of Great Britain and Ireland, vol.12, 1883. With the printed label of John Lawson. This brief account deals with traditional gestures and symbolic acts in social situations among the people of Madagascar, not with sign language conveying specific meanings among the mute. Nevertheless it represents an interesting moment in the study of sign and gesture in language: "Systematic attempts are ... now being made by the officials of the Bureau of Ethnology of the Smithsonian Institution at Washington to gain information from all parts of the world of this branch of ethnological inquiry." The author offers his notes on the Malagasy as a contribution to this general interest. The meaning of the gestures and acts described are given in some detail, and an accompanying summary of discussion of the paper, which was well received, includes references to the sign language of the mutes of Constantinople, and to Professor Graham Bell's "illustration of deaf mute language and Indian sign language, which, unfortunately, did not admit of reproduction in the Journal."

[MADARÉ, SOUTHERN BOBO] Bobo (Bɔbɔ; also known as Bobo Fi, Bobo Fing, Bobo Fing, Bobo Mandaré, Black Bobo) is a major Mande language of Burkina Faso; the western city of Bobo Dioulasso is named partly for the Bobo people. Bobo consists of: Southern dialects: Syabéré (Sya), Benge, Sogokiré, Voré, Zara (Bobo Dioula/Jula). Northern a.k.a. Konabéré dialects: Yaba, Sankuma (Sarokama), Jèrè, Tankri, Kure, Kukoma (Koma). Northern and Southern Bobo share only 20%–30% intelligibility according to Ethnologue, and by that standard are considered separate languages. The terms Bobo Fing 'Black Bobo' and Bobo Mandaré are used to distinguish them from Bobo Gbe 'White Bobo' and the Bobo Oule 'Red Bobo' of Burkina.

Ethnologue: bwq. Alternate Names: Black Bobo, Bobo, Bobo Fi, Bobo Fing.

1904: see 1904a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[MA'DI] The Ma'di language (pronounced [màdī]) is found in Uganda and South Sudan. (The apostrophe before the letter d denotes it as an implosive). The Madi people refer to their language as Ma'di ti literally: Ma'di mouth. The Ma'di people are found in Magwi County in the Sudan, and in Adjumani and Moyo districts in Uganda. The population is about 390,000 people (90,000 in the Sudan). Ma'di language is mutually intelligible with Olu'bo, Lugbara, Moru, Avokaya, Kaliko and Logo, all of which are part of the Moru-Madi clade (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mhi. Alternate Names: Ma'adi, Ma'aditi, Madi, Ma'di Ti.

1902: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

2000: [IUW] Ma'di English-English Ma'di dictionary, by Mairi John Blackings. München; Lincom Europa, 2000. 126 p.; 21 cm. Library binding, incorporating original yellow wrappers, lettered in black. Ma'di-English, pp. 7-103, and English-Ma'di, pp. 105-126. Languages of the world. Dictionaries; 25.

Second edition 2011: [IUW] Ma'di English - English Ma'di dictionary, by Mairi J. Blackings. 2nd ed. München; Lincom Europa, 2011. vii, 232 p.; 21 cm. Original olive, red yellow and white wrappers, lettered in white, red and black. Languages of the world. Dictionaries; 25. Considerably revised new edition. Ma'di-English pp. 1-192, and English-Ma'di, pp. 194-232.

"This dictionary, composed by a native linguist, is written using the suggested orthography for the language.... Though the main entry is primarily in the Lokayi dialect spoken in South Sudan, where applicable, cross-references have been made across all the other main dialects of the language.... The core part of this second edition of the dictionary has about 7000 entries"(p. [233]).

[MADURA] Madurese is a language of the Madurese people of Madura Island and eastern Java, Indonesia; it is also spoken on the neighbouring small Kangean Islands and Sapudi Islands, as well as from migrants to other parts of Indonesia, namely the Tapal Kuda ("horseshoe") area of neighbouring Java (comprising Pasuruan, Surabaya, Malang to Banyuwangi), the Masalembu Islands, and even some on Kalimantan. The Kangean dialect may be a separate language. It was traditionally written in the Javanese script, but the Latin script and the Pegon script (based on Arabic script) is now more commonly used. The number of speakers, though shrinking, is estimated to be 8–13 million, making it one of the most widely spoken language in the country. A variant of Madurese that is Bawean is also spoken by Baweanese (or Boyan) descendants in Malaysia and Singapore. Madurese is a Malayo-Sumbawan language of the Malayo-Polynesian language family, a branch of the larger Austronesian language family. Thus, despite apparent geographic spread, Madurese is more related to Balinese, Malay, Sasak, and Sundanese, than it is to Javanese, the language right next door. Links between Bali–Sasak languages and Madurese are more evident with the "low" form (common form). There are some common words between Madurese and Filipino languages as well as between Madurese and Banjar (a Malayic language) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mad. Alternate Names: Basa Mathura, Madhura, Madurese.

1817: see under MALAYAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1904: [LILLY] Madoereesch-Nederlandsch woordenboek, by H.N. Kiliaan. Leiden: E.J. Brill, 1904. Two volumes. Contemporary half leather. Zaunmüller 262.

1912: [IUW] Handleiding met woordenboek tot de beoefening der Madoereesche taal, door W.J. Elzevier Stokmans en J.C.P. Marinissen. Soerabaja, H. Van Ingen, 1912. vi, 201 p. 24 cm.

1913?: [LILLY] Practisch Madoereesch-Hollandsch woordenboek, samengesteld door P. Penninga ... en H. Hendriks ... Met een aanhangsel bevattende een klein handleiding voor 't aanleeren der Madoereesche taal, met aanwijzing voor de uitspraak en woordleer. Benevens leesstukjes om de taal eenigzins in haar constructie te leeren kennen. Semarang; G.C.T. von Dorp & Co., [192-? [1913?]]. xvi, [17]-360, [2], 38, ii p.; 23 cm. Bound in half green cloth and light green cloth over boards, decorated green and cream endpapers, lettered in black on front cover and spine. Cf. Zaunmüller 262 (giving date as 1913).

[MAFA] Mafa is an Afro-Asiatic language spoken in northern Cameroon and eastern Nigeria.

Ethnologue; maf. Alternate Names: "Matakam" (pej.), Mofa, Natakan.

1990: [IUW] Lexique mafa; langue de la famille tchadique parlée au Cameroun, Danieal Barreteau, Yves Le Bléis. Paris; Orstom; Librairie Orientaliste Paul Geuthner, c1990 473 p.; ill., map; 25 cm. Etudes tchadiques. Monographies Includes bibliographical references (p. 56-57).

[MAGUINDANAON] Maguindanaon is an Austronesian language spoken by majority of the population of Maguindanao Province in the Philippines. It is also spoken by sizable minorities in different parts of Mindanao such as the cities of Zamboanga, Davao, and General Santos, and the provinces of North Cotabato, Sultan Kudarat, South Cotabato, Sarangani, Zamboanga del Sur, Zamboanga Sibugay, as well as Metro Manila (Wiki).

The Moro people is a coined term for the population of Muslims in the Philippines, forming the largest non-Catholic group in the country, and comprising about 5.1% (as of August 2007) of the total Philippine population. The "Moro" term came into use during the Spanish colonial period, drawing upon a term used centuries earlier to refer the Muslims of al-Andalus in southern Spain known as the "Moors" during the Reconquista and applied to the native Muslims within conquered islands. Traditionally, the Filipino Muslims were offended with the term "Moro", for it was taken from the "Moro-Moro" stage plays from the Spanish era, in which Muslims were always depicted as antagonists. In modern history, influential groups such as the Moro National Liberation Front (MNLF) espoused the Moro identity to unify all Muslim groups in the Philippines (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mdh. Alternate Names: Magindanao, Magindanaon, Magindanaw, Magindanawn, Maguindanaw.

1779: [LILLY] A voyage to New Guinea and the Moluccas, from Balambangan: including an account of Magindano, Sooloo, and other islands ... performed in the Tartar Galley, belonging to the Honourable East India company, during the years 1774, 1775, and 1776, by Captain Thomas Forrest; to which is added, a vocabulary of the Magindano tongue ... Dublin: Price, W. and H. Whitestone, [etc. ,etc.], 1779. xxi (i.e. xxiii), 447, [1] p.: fold. map, plates (part fold.); 21 cm. Bound in contemporary leather. The map measures 33 x 48 cm. Errors in paging: no. iii-iv repeated in numbering. From the library of Bernardo Mendel. Copy from the library of Mrs. Elizabeth Vessy. Cf. W.H. Robinson's Catalogue, no.14. English-Magindano [Maguindanaon] vocabulary, pp. [415]-442, and "A Few Papua Words," English-Papua [Meyah], pp. [443]-447, with the footnote: "In the bad weather we had crossing the China Sea, I lost a list of many words, else this would be more complete." Forrest gathered these Papua words during a stop at Dory Bay (present-day Northeast Bird's Head Peninsula of West Papua)—see the final pages of Chapter XI, describing his visit. The village he calls Dory is present-day Manokwari. Ethnologue identifies the Papuan language spoken in this area as Meyah.

Reprinted 1969: [IUW] A voyage to New Guinea and the Moluccas, 1774-1776, by Thomas Forrest. With an introd. by D. K. Bassett. Kuala Lumpur, New York, Oxford University Press, 1969. 22, xxiii, 411 p. illus., geneal. table, maps, port. 28 cm. Oxford in Asia historical reprints. Reprint of the re-set second edition of 1780 ed. with Bassett's introd. added. In this second edition (which was published in London, rather than Dublin) the English-Maguindanaon vocabulary, appears on pp. [389]-400, and "A Few Pappua Words" on pp. 400-401.

1887: [LILLY] Cartilla moro-castellana para los maguindanaos, by [Jacinto Juanmartí (1833-1897)]. Manila: Impr. de M. Perez, hijo, 1887. [1], 56 p. 20 cm. Original badly-chipped violet wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. Includes lessons with Spanish-Arabic vocabulary, pp. 1-56, including both words and phrases. With the printed paper label of John Lawson. Second copy: IUW, in library binding.

1903: [LILLYbm] A primer and vocabulary of the Moro dialect (Magindanau), by R[alph] S[tribling] Porter. Washington, D.C.: Government Printing Office, 1903. Early twentieth-century tan cloth over boards, red leather label, lettered in gold. Pp. 1 2-77 78 (with several blank leaves bound in at the rear). First edition. Withdrawn from the Minnesota Historical Society library, with their book plate. Porter was a First Lieutenant, Assistant Surgeon, in the U.S. Army. English-Moro [Maguindanaon] vocabulary, pp. 19-71. Second copy: IUW.

"This little pamphlet is intended to be an elementary aid to the beginning of the study of the Moro dialect as it is spoken in the vicinity of Cotabato, Parang Parang, Malabang, and Baras, and with the variations around the Lake of Lanao. It will in time be found to be inaccurate in some minor particulars, but as it is the first thing of its kind in the English language no apology is offered... After one has become somewhat familiar with the dialect I would recommend the purchase of the dictionary of Father Juan Martin [Diccionario Moro-Magindanao-Espanol, Manila, 1892, trans. into English in 1906-see below], but not before, as its many inaccuracies will only serve to confuse the student and give entirely wrong impressions" (Introduction).

1906: [LILLYbm] A Grammar of the Maguindanao Tongue according to the manner of speaking it in the interior and on the south coast of the island of Mindanao, by J[acinto] Juanmarti, trans. from the Spanish by C[ornelius] C[ole] Smith. Washington, D.C.: Government Printing Office, 1906. Original blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold and decorated in blind. 80 pp. First edition. "A Brief Vocabulary of English, Maguindanao, and Malay," pp. 65-80. A Maguindanao-English English-Maguindanao dictionary was published in 1986 by Sullivan.

This copy with a typed note pasted to the inside cover: "This book is for circulation among officers or enlisted men wishing to acquire a knowledge of the Moro Language. Any additional copies desired can be furnished by the Intelligence Officer, Department of Mindanao. [signed] C.B. Humphrey, Captain, 21st Infantry, Intelligence Officer" with an ink stamp dated April 1, 1910.

"[This] work was undertaken with a view to learning something of Moro. The dialect of the Maguindanaos of the Cotabato district, and that of the Lanaos of the lake region is quite similar, and it is believed that the grammar of the former, treated of in these pages, will suffice for the latter. The vocabulary of one is slightly different, however, from that of the other. In the last paragraph of the preface the author states that in the final pages of the book there is a vocabulary of Spanish, Moro, and Malay. For this, one of English, Maguindanao, and Malay will be substituted in the translation." ("Translator's Remarks").

[MAH MERI] Mah Meri, also known as Besisi and Betise', is an aboriginal Mon-Khmer language spoken in Malaya. It is the only such language spoken on the coast, in Malacca outside the capital Kuala Lumpur. The small number of speakers is increasing. A dictionary of the Mah Meri language has been recently written by Nicole Kruspe [see below] (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mhe. Alternate Names: Besisi, Cellate.

2010: [IUW] A dictionary of Mah Meri as spoken at Bukit Bangkong, by Nicole Kruspe; illustrated by Azman Zainal. Honolulu; University of Hawai'i Press, c2010. xiv, 410 p.; ill., maps; 23 cm. Oceanic linguistics special publication; no. 36. Includes bibliographical references. English, Maylay and Mah Meri.

[MAHOU] Wiki redirects Mahou, a language of the Côte d'Ivoire, to the Mankinka languages.

Ethnologue: mxx. Alternate Names: Mahu, Maou, Mau, Mauka, Mauke, Mawu, Mawukakan.

1904: see 1904a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[MAIDUAN LANGUAGES] Maiduan (also Maidun, Pujunan) is a small endangered language family of northeastern California. The Maiduan consists of 4 languages:

Maidu (aka Maidu proper, Northeastern Maidu, Mountain Maidu)

Chico † (aka Valley Maidu)

Konkow (aka Northwestern Maidu)

Nisenan (aka Southern Maidu)

The languages have similar phonologies (i.e. sound systems) but differ significantly in terms of grammar. They are not mutually intelligible, even though many works often refer to all of the speakers of these languages as Maidu. The Chico dialects are little known due to scanty documentation, so their precise genetic relationship to the other languages probably cannot be determined (Mithun 1999). Chico is now extinct. The other languages are extremely endangered and nearing extinction: Northeastern Maidu has 1 or 2 speakers, Konkow has 1–2 speakers, Nisenan has only 1 speaker (Hinton 1994, reported in Gordon 2005) (Wiki).

Ethnologue list the following Maidu languages: 1) Nisenan: nsz: alternate names: Neeshenam, Nishinam, Pujuni, Southern Maidu, Wapumni; 2) Northeast Maidu: nmu: alternate names: Maidu, Mountain Maidu; 3) Northwest Maidu: mjd: alternate names: Concow, “Digger” (pej.), Holólupai, Konkau, Konkow, Maidu, Meidoo, Michopdo, Nákum, Secumne, Sekumne, Tsamak, Yuba; 4) Valley Maidu: vmv.

[MAIDU, NORTHEAST] Maidu /'maidu:/, also Northeastern Maidu or Mountain Maidu, is an extinct Maidu language spoken by Maidu peoples traditionally in the mountains east and south of Lassen Peak in the American River and Feather River river drainages. These river regions include such valleys in the northern Sierra Nevada mountains of California as: Indian Valley, American Valley, Butte Valley, and Big Meadows. Maidu may also refer to the related Konkow and Nisenan languages.

Ethnologue: nmu: alternate names: Maidu, Mountain Maidu.

1907-1930: see Vol. 14 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

1963: [Lillybm] Maidu Texts and Dictionary, by William F. Shipley. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1963. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. 262 pp. First edition. With the ownership signature of Judith G. Gray. Maidu-English, pp. 87-209, and English-Maidu, pp. 211-261. This is the first dictionary of the language. Second copy: IUW.

"Maidu is a member of the Maidu family of languages, classified as California Penutian... The Maidu languages were spoken in the northern Sierra of California, in an area more or less conterminous with the drainages of the American and Feather Rivers... There were about a dozen speakers of Maidu known to me: five have died since I began my field work in 1956."

[MAIDU, NORTHWEST] The Konkow language (also called Concow-Maidu, Northwestern Maidu — or Koyoomk'awi, in the language itself) is a part of the Maidu language group. The word koyoo means, "meadow", with the additional 'm' being the adjective form of the word. 'Koyoo+ [m, adj.] k'awi + [m, adj.] Ma'a [tribe].' It is, or was, spoken in California. It is severely endangered or perhaps extinct, as only two or three persons remained who spoke it as a first language in the 1990s. As part of an effort to regain official recognition of one of the Konkow groups as an officially recognized tribe from the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs, an effort to provide language instruction amongst the descendants of the original tribe and affiliated family members has begun (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mjd. Alternate Names: Concow, "Digger" (pej.), Holólupai, Konkau, Konkow, Maiduan, Meidoo, Michopdo, Nákum, Secumne, Sekumne, Tsamak, Yuba.

1846: see 10 under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

[MAIDU, VALLEY] Chico (also Valley Maidu) is an extinct Maiduan language formerly spoken by Maidu peoples who lived in Northern California, between Sacramento and the Sierra foothills (Wiki).

Ethnologue: vmv.

1907-1930: see Vol. 14 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[MAILU] Mailu, or Magi, is a Papuan language of Papua New Guinea. Magi is a non-Austronesian language spoken by upwards of 6000 people living on the islands of Mailu, Lалуoru, Loupomu and Eunuoro and along the south coast between Cape Rodney and mid-Orangerie Bay of the Central Province of Papua New Guinea. It is often referred to as 'Mailu' as one of the major villages speaking this language is the village of that name on Mailu Island. It is related to the other languages of the Mailuan family (Ma, Laua, Morawa, Neme'a, Domu and Bauwaki whose speakers live or lived inland of this area). Ma and Laua are now extinct. Magi speakers have for a long time had close contacts and (probably extensive) integration with Austronesian speakers, with the result that there has been a significant adoption of Austronesian vocabulary (around 30–40%, particularly Magori, Gadaisu, Suau, Ouma, Yoba and Bina, of which the last three are now extinct). Magi itself is divided into two main groups of dialects: the eastern (Maisi/Varo) dialects, and the western (Island) dialects.

Ethnologue: mgu. Alternate Names: Magi.

1944: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary of the Mailu Language, edited and enlarged from the researches of the Rev. W. J. V. Saville and the Comte D'Argigny, by Peter A. Lanyon-Orgill. London: Luzac & Co., 1944. Original blue-gray wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. 1-4 5-72. First edition. Zauhmüller, col. 296. Mailu-English, pp. 14-72. First dictionary of the language. Second copy: IUW.

"The present work is, in its present form, the product of a mind but eighteen years old. This fact so impressed me that I asked the author to permit me to write this foreword...Dr. Lanyon-Orgill is a present serving in H. M. Royal Navy. May all scholars of these languages in particular, and of all tongues in general, pray that the world will not lose him too soon" (Foreword, Ernst Schwarzenburg). "The Mailu or Magi language is spoken on the south coast of the Eastern Division of Papua...The dictionary in the following pages includes words from the Domara, West Moikodi, and 'lakatoi' dialects, as well as Mailu proper...The Mailu words are generally taken from a magnificent dictionary in typescript by the Rev. W. J. V. Saville" (Introduction).

[MAITHILI] Maithili (/ˈmaɪt̪ɪli/; Maithilī) is an Indo-Aryan language spoken in Mithila state of Nepal and northern India by 34.7 million people as of 2000, of which 2.8 million speakers were in Nepal. It is written in the Devanagari script and is the second largest language of Nepal. In the past, Maithili was written primarily in Mithilakshar. Less commonly, it was written with a Maithili variant of Kaithi, a script used to transcribe other neighboring languages such as Bhojpuri, Magahi, and Awadhi. In 2002, Maithili was included in the Eighth Schedule of the Indian Constitution, which allows it to be used in education, government, and other official contexts. It is recognized as one of the largest languages in India and is the second most widely used language in Nepal. In 2007, Maithili was included in the Interim Constitution of Nepal 2063, Part 1, Section 5 as a language of Nepal (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mai Alternate Names: Apabhramsa, Bihari, Maitili, Maitli, Methli, Tirahutia, Tirhuti, Tirhutia.

1881-1882: [LILLY] An introduction to the Maithili language of North Bihár, containing a grammar, chrestomathy and vocabulary, by George Abraham Grierson (1851-1941). Calcutta: J.N. Banerjee and Son, 1881-1882. Two volumes. Each volume in original wrappers (fragile). Not in Zaunmüller. "This seems to be the first serious attempt at a grammar and vocabulary of the Maithili language." (Du Rietz: book-seller's description).

1984: [LILLYbm] Basic colloquial Maithili: a Maithili-Nepali-English vocabulary with some structure notes, by Alice Irene Davis. Delhi: Motilal Banarsidass, 1984. Original light gray cloth over boards, lettered in bright green; dust-jacket gray-green, dark green and white, lettered in white, dark green and black (front inner flap cut away, except for ISBN number and price). Pp. [2] ii-v vi-xxii, 1-242 243-244. First edition. Based on the author's 1978 MA thesis at the University of Illinois at Chicago Circle. Maithili-Nepali-English, pp. 1-107, Nepali index, pp.[150]-187, and English index, pp.[188]-242.

"To my knowledge, this is the first Vocabulary of this kind to be published in Maithili" [The author appears unaware of Grierson's 19th century work (see above).] (Foreword). "Research arrangements were kindly granted by Tribhuvan University, Kathmandu, Nepal under a joint venture of that university and the Summer Institute of Linguistics during the period 1966-1976" (Acknowledgements). "To the author's knowledge, no Maithili-English glossary has been produced to date except the Bribat Maithili Shabdakosh by Dr. Jayakant Mishra (published by the Indian Institute of Advanced Study, Simla; 1973), which covers only those words beginning with 'a'." (Preface).

[MAKA] Maká is a Matacoan language spoken in Paraguay by the Maká people. Its 1,500 speakers live primarily in Presidente Hayes Department near the Río Negro, as well as in and around Asunción (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mca. Alternate Names: Enimaca, Enimaga, , Macá, Maká, Mak'á, Towolhi.

1999: [IUW] Diccionario etnolingüístico maká-español. Índice español-maká / Ana Gerzenstein. Buenos Aires; Instituto de Lingüística, Facultad de Filosofía y Letras, Universidad de Buenos Aires, c1999.590 p.; 25 cm. Original pink and white paper over boards, lettered in black. Archivo de lenguas indoamericanas Nuestra América (Buenos Aires, Argentina) Includes bibliographical references (p. 571-586). Maka-Spanish, pp. 113-399, Spanish-Maka index, pp. 403-553.

[MAKAA] Makaa (Maka), or South Makaa, is a Bantu language of Cameroon. It is not intelligible with the other language spoken by the Makaa people, North Makaa (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mcp. Alternate Names: Mekaa, South Makaa, South Mekaa.

1995: [IUW] Lexique Mkaa-français et français-mkaa / par Jean Ewané Etam'e sous la direction de Robert Hedinger. Yaoundé; [The Author?], 1995. 138 p.; 21 cm. Library binding, incorporating original page gray-green wrappers, illustrated and lettered in black. "Litterature Bakaka"--Cover. Makaa-French, pp. [9]-77, French-Makaa, pp. [79]-138. Includes introductory material.

[MAKAH] The Makah language is the indigenous language [of the United States] spoken by the Makah people. Makah has not been spoken as a first language since 2002, when its last fluent native speaker died. However, it survives as a second language, and the Makah tribe is attempting to revive the language, including through preschool classes. The endonymous name for Makah is q<sup>w</sup>i·q<sup>w</sup>i·diččaq. Makah is spoken by the Makah people who reside in the northwestern corner of the Olympic Peninsula of Washington state, on the south side of the Strait of Juan de Fuca. It is closely related to Nuuchah-nulth and Ditidaht, which are languages of the First Nations of the west coast of Vancouver Island on the north side of the strait, in the Canadian province of British Columbia. Makah is the only member of the Wakashan language family in the United States, with the other members spoken by in British Columbia, from Vancouver Island to the Central Coast region (Wiki).

Ethnologue: myh. Alternate Names: Kweedishchaht, Kwe-Nee-Chee-Aht.

1907-1930: see Vol. 11 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[MAKASAR] Makassarese (sometimes spelled Makasar, Makassar, or Macassar) is a language used by the Makassarese people in South Sulawesi in Indonesia. It is a member of the South Sulawesi group of the Austronesian language family, and thus closely related to, among others, Buginese. Although Makassarese is now often written in Latin script, it is still widely written in its own distinctive script, also called Lontara, which once was used also to write important documents in Bugis and Mandar, two related languages from Sulawesi. The Makassar symbols are written using mostly straight oblique lines and dots. In spite of its quite distinctive appearance, it is derived from the ancient Brahmi scripts of India (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mak. Alternate Names: Goa, Macassar, Macassarese, Makassa, Makassaarsche, Makassar, Makassarese, Mangasara, Mengkasara, Taena, Tena.

1817: see under MALAYAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1859: [LILLYbm] Makassaarsch-Hollandsch Woordenboek, met Hollandsch-Makassaarsche Wordenlijst, opgave van Makassaarsche Plantennamen, en verklaring van een tot opheldering bijgevoegden ethnographischen Atlas, by B[enjamin] F[rederik] Matthes. Amsterdam: Het Nederlandsch Bijbelgenootschap, bij Ferderik Muller, 1859. Original full black cloth over boards, lettered in gold and decorated in blind. Pp. I-III IV-VIII, 1 2-943 944. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 262. "Printed in double columns. Entries in macassarese script, romanized-dutch, errata and supplementary notes printed on page 918-943. Glossary Macassarese-dutch, entries in macassarese script-transcription (romanized)-dutch, which includes an extensive word-list dutch-macassarese and a list of macassarese plant names, with etymological explanations. The first glossary ever published, compiled by a dutch deputy protestant minister and missionary, who worked for an extended time amongst the Macassarese and Buginese population of South Sulawesi in the nineteenth century. Printed and published by command of the Dutch Bible Society" (Bookseller's description: Gemilang). Macassar oil comes from this region of the Celebes, against which the anti-macassar was devised for chairs and sofas. Second copy: LILLYbm.

1979: [LILLYbm] Makassaars-Nederlands woordenboek, by A. A. Cense & Abdoerrahim. 's-Gravenhage: Martinus Nijhoff, 1979. Original red cloth over boards, lettered in gold and decorated in blind. Pp. I-VII VIII-XXXI XXXII, 1-989 990-992. First edition. Macassar-Dutch, pp. 1-914, with a Dutch-Macassar index (prepared by J. Noorduyn), pp. 917-989. This dictionary bears a printed dedication to B. F. Matthes, "the first compiler of dictionaries in the two languages Macassar and Bugis" (tr: BM). This is the first major dictionary of the language since Matthes.

2015: [IUW] Papilajarang basa Mangkasara, by Zainuddin Tika [and 4 others]. [Makassar]: Lembaga Kajian dan Penulisan Sejarah Budaya Sulawesi Selatan, 2015. 80 pages: illustrations; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references (page 80). In Indonesian and Mankasar (Lontara and Latin scripts). On Makasar language in Lontara script used in Sulawesi Selatan Province, Indonesia. Indonesian-Makasar vocabulary.

[MAKHUWA] The Makua or Makhuwa languages are a branch of Bantu languages spoken primarily in Mozambique. The name Makua (Macua), more precisely Makhuwa, is used on three levels. Some sources distinguish these with differences in spelling 'Makua' vs. 'Makhuwa', but they are not consistent:

- 1) Central Makhuwa, or "Makhuwa-Makhuwana", the prestige dialect and the basis of the national language of Mozambique;
- 2) The Makhuwa language, including various dialects which also go by the name Makhuwa; sometimes called 'core' or 'nuclear' Makua, but this is not consistent
- 3) Closely related languages which often have their own names, such as Lomwe (also known as Western Makua) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: vmw. Alternate Names: Central Makhuwa, Emakhuwa, Emakua, Macua, Makhuwa-Makhuwana, Makhuwwa of Nampula, Makoane, Makua, Maquoua.

1846: see 13) under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

1879: [LILLY] Collections for a handbook of the Makua language, by Chauncy Maples [1852-1895]. London: Society for promoting Christian knowledge, 1879. xii, 100 p. 17 cm. Original brown linen decorated in black and lettered in gold. Early, most likely the first published work devoted to the Makua language (Charlotte du Rietz, Cat. 29). With bookplate from The Waterhouse Collection 1902. Second copy: IUW.

1887: [LILLY] Breve estudo sobre a ilha de Moçambique: acompanhado d'um pequeno vocabulario Portuguez-Macúa, by Ayres de Carvalho Soveral. Porto: Livraria Chardron, 1887. Original brown wrappers, lettered in black. 32 pp. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 1031. Portuguese-Makua, pp. 25-29.

1975: [LILLYbm] Dicionário Português-Macua, by Alexandre Valente de Matos. Lisbon: Junta de Investigações Científicas do Ultramar, 1975. 428 p. Original blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold; d.j. pale turquoise lettered and decorated in red and black. First edition. Not in Hendrix.

1984 [IUW] Dicionário Português-Macua, by P. Prata. [Porto, Portugal]; Sociedade Missionária Portuguesa, [1984]. xvi, 374 p.; 22 cm. Original yellow-green cloth, lettered in black. Portuguese-Makhuwa, pp. 1-374. For date and place of publication see opening paragraph of the Introduction to the Dicionário Macua-Português of 1990 below.

1990: [IUW] Dicionário Macua-Português, by A. Pires Prata. Lisboa; Instituto de Investigação Científica Tropical, 1990. xxii, 508 p.; 25 cm. Original dark blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Makhuwa-Portuguese, pp. 1-508.

[MAKIAN, EAST] Taba (also known as East Makian or Makian Dalam) is a Malayo-Polynesian language of the South Halmahera – West New Guinea group. It is spoken mostly on the islands of Makian, Kayoa and southern Halmahera in North Maluku province of Indonesia by about 20,000 people (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mky. Alternate Names: Makian Dalam, Makian Timur.

1903: see under OCEANIC LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1982: [IUW] The Makian languages and their neighbours / C.L. Voorhoeve, ed. Canberra: Dept. of Linguistics, Research School of Pacific Studies, Australian National University, 1982. viii, 148, 19 p.: ill.; 26 cm. Original ochre wrappers, lettered in black. Pacific linguistics. Series D no. 46. Materials in languages of Indonesia no. 12. English, East Makian, and West Makian. Includes bibliographies. "The West Makian Language, Noerh Moluccas, Indonesia: a Fieldwork Report," by E. L. Voorhoeve: West Makian-English, pp. 48-59, English-West Makian finder list, pp. 60-69. "Further Notes towards a West Makian Vocabulary," by James T. Collins: West Makian-English, pp. 79-87, "Cumulative West Makian-English Index," pp. 88-94. "A short Vocabulary of East Makian," by James T. Collins: East Makian—English, pp. 101-115, English-East Makian (cumulative) index, pp. 116-127. "Short wordlists from South Halmahera, Kayoa, Makian, Ternate, Tidore, and Bacan," by Dick Teljeur, English-Indonesian-Weda-Foya/Mafa-Wosi-Gane-Saketa-Kayoa-Mailoa-Soma-Tahane-Peleri/Samsuma-Ngofakiaha-Ngofagita-Habale-Talapao-Tafasoho-Tagono-Ngofabobawa-Bobawa-Malapa-Ternate-Tidore-Bacan-Bajo, pp. 133-147.

"One of the linguistically least known parts of the Moluccas, Indonesia, is the southern peninsula of Halmahera and the offshore islands to the west: Bacan, Kayoa, Makian. Until recently all that was known of the languages in this area was based on a few wordlists dating from the late 19th and early 20th century. Since 1979 however surveys conducted by Collins, Teljeur and myself have yielded a substantial amount of new data in these languages, especially in the languages of Makian Island" (Introduction, C. L. Voorhoeve).

[MAKIAN, WEST] West Makian (also known as Moi) is the most divergent of the 48-59 Papuan languages of Halmahera. It is spoken on the coast near Makian Island, and on the western half of that island. It has been strongly influenced by an Austronesian language or languages, and was once classified as Austronesian, as the East Makian language (Taba) still is. A brief description of the language can be found in Voorhoeve (1982) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mqs. Alternate Names: Makian Barat, Makian Luar.

1982: see under MAKIAN, EAST.

[MAKONDE] Makonde, or Kimakonde, is the language spoken by the Makonde, an ethnic group in southeast Tanzania and northern Mozambique. Makonde is a central Bantu language closely related to Yao. The Matembwe and Mabiha (Maviha) dialects are divergent, and may not be Makonde (Nurse 2003). Chikungunya, the name of a mosquito-borne viral fever, is derived from the Makonde root verb kungunyala (meaning "that which bends up", "to become contorted," or "to walk bent over") after the disease was first identified on the Makonde Plateau (de). The derivation of the term is generally falsely attributed to Swahili (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kde. Alternate Names: Chimakonde, Chinimakonde, Kimakonde, Konde, Matambe, Matambwe, Mekwengo, Simakonde.

1846: see 13) under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

1882/3: [LILLYbm] "Journey to the District West of Cape Delgado Bay, Sept.-Oct. 1882," by H.E. O'Neill, H.J. Consul, Mozambique, in: Proceedings of the Royal Geographical Society and Monthly Record of Geography, Vol. V, No. 7, July, 1883, pp. 393-404. Original blue wrappers, printed and decorated in black. With folding map of Country West of Cape Delgado Bay, E. Africa [not included in on-line source]. English-Mavia [dialect of Makonde] vocabulary, two columns, pp. 403-404.

2013: [IUW] Cimakonde: kamusi ya Kimakonde-Kiingereza-Kiswahili ikiwa na faharasa za Kiingereza na Kiswahili = Makonde-Swahili-English dictionary with English and Swahili glosses, by Josephat M. Rugemalira. Toleo la kwanza. First edition. Dar es Salaam: Mradi wa Lugha za Tanzania, Chuo Kikuu cha Dar es Salaam = Languages of Tanzania (LOT) Project, University of Dar es Salaam, 2013. xi, 203 pages; 25 cm. LOT publications. Lexicon series; no. 21.

[MALA] Mala, or Pay, is a Papuan language of Madang Province, Papua New Guinea (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ped. Alternate Names: Alam, Banara, Dagoi, Dagui, Hatzfeldhafen, Malala, Pai, Pay.

1891: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MALACCAN CREOLE PORTUGUESE] Papia Kristang ("speak kristang"), or just Kristang, is a creole language. It is spoken by the Kristang, a community of people of mixed Portuguese and Asian ancestry, chiefly in Malacca (Malaysia) and Singapore. The language is also called Cristão or Cristan ("Christian"), Portugues di Melaka ("Malacca Portuguese"), Linggu Mai ("Mother Tongue") or simply Papia. Papia means speak. However, locals and most of the Kristang community refer to the language as "Portugis". The language has about 750 speakers in Malacca and another 100 in Singapore. A small number of speakers also live in other Portuguese Eurasian communities in Kuala Lumpur and Penang in Malaysia, and in diaspora communities in Perth, Canada, the United Kingdom and elsewhere. The language is currently in steep decline, although efforts to revive it have begun in recent years in both Malacca and Singapore. The Kristang language originated after the conquest of Malacca (Malaysia) in 1511 by the Portuguese Empire. The community of speakers descends mainly from interracial relationships between Portuguese men and local women, as well as a number of migrants from Portuguese India, themselves of mixed Indo-Portuguese ancestry. Kristang had a substantial influence on Macanese, the creole language spoken in Macau, due to substantial migration from Malacca after its takeover by the Dutch. Even after Portugal lost Malacca and almost all contact in 1641, the Kristang community largely preserved its language. The language is not taught at school, although there are still some Church services in Portuguese (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mcm. Alternate names: Bahasa Geragau, Bahasa Serani, Luso-Malay, Malacca Creole, Malaccan, Malaqueiro, Malaquenho, Malaquense, Malaquês, Malayo-Portuguese, Malaysian Creole Portuguese, Papia Cristao, Papia Kristang, Portuguese Patois, Português de Malaca, Serani. Autonym: Kristang.

2004: [LILLY] The most comprehensive Eurasian Heritage Dictionary: Kristang-English / English-Kristang, by Valerie Scully & Catherine Zuzarte. Singapore: SNP Reference, 2004. 256 p. 22.8 cm. Original multicolored red, orange and green wrappers, lettered in brown, yellow, white and green. First edition. Kristang-English, pp. 34-147, English-Kristang, pp. 148-256.

"The Eurasian Heritage Dictionary is the first comprehensive dictionary of this singular language and culture. Exhaustively researched and compiled from interviews with native speakers of Kristang, it has a complete set of language features, include pronunciation guide and grammar notes, as well as dual-language explanations of Eurasian culture and its oral traditions" (from the rear cover).

"Lest we forget, we have put together this dictionary to help all those interested in this fascinating language learn more about it, and thereby remember our roots" (Acknowledgements).

[MALAGASY LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT] Malagasy (/mælə'gæsi/; Malagasy: [mala'gasɪ]) is an Austronesian language and the national language of Madagascar. Most people in Madagascar speak it as a first language as do some people of Malagasy descent elsewhere. The Merina dialect of Malagasy is considered the national language of Madagascar. It is one of two official languages alongside French in the 2010 constitution putting in place the Fourth Republic. Previously, under the 2007 constitution, Malagasy was one of three official languages alongside French and English. It is the language of instruction in all public schools through grade five for all subjects, and remains the language of instruction through high school for the subjects of history and Malagasy language. There are two principal dialects of Malagasy, eastern, including Merina, and western, including Sakalava, with the isogloss running down the spine of the island, the south being western, and the central plateau and much of the north (apart from the very tip) being eastern. Ethnologue encodes a dozen varieties of Malagasy as distinct languages. They have about a 70% similarity in lexicon with Merina dialect (Wiki).

The first dictionary of the language is Étienne de Flacourt's Dictionnaire de la langue de Madagascar published in 1658 [see 1905 edition below] though earlier glossaries written in Arabico-Malagasy script exist. A later Vocabulaire Anglais-Malagasy was published in 1729. An 892-page Malagasy–English dictionary was published by James Richardson of the London Missionary Society in 1885 [see below], available as a reprint; however, this dictionary includes archaic terminology and definitions. Whereas later works have been of lesser size, several have been updated to reflect the evolution and progress of the language, including a more modern, bilingual frequency dictionary based on a corpus of over 5 million Malagasy words [See below: Winterton, Matthew et al. (2013). Malagasy–English, English–Malagasy Dictionary / Diksonera Malagasy–Anglisy, Anglisy–Malagasy. Lulu Press] (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists Malagasy as a macro-language including eleven separate languages considered by many others as dialects of Malagasy.

1896: [IUW] Vocabulaire des principales racines malaises et javanaises de la langue malgache, by Aristide Marre. Paris: E. Leroux, 1896. 57 p. Series: Bibliothèque franco-malgache. Vocabulary given in French-Malagasy-Malay-Javanese.

1983: [IUW] Lexique des dialectes du nord de Madagascar / par des missionnaires et séminaristes catholiques ; édité par Velonandro. Tulear, Madagascar : Centre de documentation et de recherche sur l'art et les traditions orales à Madagascar, Centre universitaire régional ; Valbonne, France : Centre de documentation et de recherche sur l'Asie du sud-est et le monde insulindien, 1983. ix, 263 p., [1] leaf of plates : ill. ; 24 cm. Original green and white wrappers, lettered in black, with background photo of Madagascar native among trees. Combined lexicon of Malagasy "dialects" followed by French meanings: [Northern] Betsimisaraka, Sakalava, Merina [a dialect of Plateau Malagasy], Sainte-Marie (Northern Betsimisaraka as spoken on an island off the east coast of Madagascar formerly named Sainte-Marie, now called Nosy Boraha), Antankarana, and Tsimihety, pp. [1]-236. Bibliography: p. vii. The lexicon is a compilation of four manuscripts of northern dialects produced in earlier years by the missionaries at the Catholic Mission in Madagascar.

2001: [IUW] Langages non conventionnels à Madagascar : argot des jeunes et proverbes gaillards / Clément Sambo ; préface de Noël J. Gueunier. Paris : Karthala : INALCO, 2001. 392 p. ; 24 cm. Series Dictionnaires et langues Includes bibliographical references (p. [380]-388) and index. French dictionary of Malagasy slang and argot.

[MALAGASY, BARA] Bara Malagasy, considered a dialect by many linguists, and as a separate language by Ethnologue, is spoken in south-central Madagascar.

Ethnologue: bhr.

2010: [IUW] Dictionnaire ethnologique Bara-Français, by Elli Luigi. [Madagascar]: Communauté de Turin de Madagascar, 2010. 737 p.: map; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references.

[MALAGASY, ANTANKARANA] Antankarana Malagasy, considered a dialect by many linguists, and as a separate language by Ethnologue, is spoken in the northern tip of Madagascar.

Ethnologue: xmv. Alternate Names: Antakarana, Antakarana Malagasy, Antekarana, Antekarana Malagasy, Tankarana, Tankarana Malagasy.

1983: see under MALAGASY LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MALAGASY, NORTHERN BETSIMISARAKA] Northern Betsemisaraka Malagasy, considered a dialect by many linguists, and as a separate language by Ethnologue, is spoken in northeastern Madagascar.

Ethnologue: bmm.

1842: see under MALAGASY, SAKALAVA.

2013: see under MALAGASY, PLATEAU.

[MALAGASY, PLATEAU] Plateau Malagasy, considered a dialect by many linguists, and as a separate language by Ethnologue, is based primarily on the Merina dialect and thus closest to the standard national language of Madagascar.

Ethnologue: plt. Alternate Names: Ambaniandro, Borizany, Hova, Malagasy, Malgache, Official Malagasy, Standard Malagasy, Teny ofisialy.

1729 [1890]: [IUW] Madagascar: or, Robert Drury's journal, during fifteen years' captivity on that island. And a further description of Madagascar, by the Abbé Alexis Rochon. Ed. with an introd. and notes by Capt. Pasfield Oliver. London, T.F. Unwin; New York, Macmillan, 1890. 398p. illus. 22cm. Adventure series (London, England). Contains facsimile of t.-p. of 1st ed., London, 1729. Appendix: "A vocabulary of the Madagascar language": p. 319-335. The vocabulary in three columns: English-"Drury's Malagasy"-"Modern Malagasy." The vocabulary here is reprinted from "Drury's 'Vocabulary of the Madagascar Language,' with Notes," by J. Richardson, as published in the Antananarivo Review, 1875. Drury's original English-Malagasy vocabulary appeared on pp. 457-464 of the 1729 edition.

Reprinted 1969: [IUW] Madagascar; or, Robert Drury's journal during fifteen years' captivity on that island. And a further description of Madagascar by the Abbé Alexis Rochon. Edited, with an introd. and notes, by Pasfield Oliver. New York, Negro Universities Press [1969] 398 p. illus., fold. map. 23 cm. Reprint of the 1890 ed. "An account of the island of Madagascar, by the Abbé Rochon (abridged from the English version of 1792)": p. [351]-398.

1835: [IUW] A dictionary of the Malagasy language in two parts: Part I, English and Malagasy, by J[oseph] J[ohn] Freeman [1794-1851]. An-Tananarivo: Press of the London Missionary Society, by R. Kitching, 1835. 2 pts. in 1 ([3], 421; [6], 307 p. fold. table). 22 cm. Pt. I. English and Malagasy. By J.J. Freeman; Ny faharoga'ny, Malagasy sy English, no foroni'ny D. Johns. Library binding. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 1051. English-Malagasy, pp. 1-421, and Malagasy-English, pp. 1-307. First dictionary of the language. The Lilly holds an 1845 Grammar of Malagasy by E. Baker, with no separate vocabulary. Second copy of Part I: [LILLYbm]: Original unbound signatures. Pp. [6] 1-421 422. With the partially legible ink stamp of a Dutch library on the front wrapper.

1853-1855: [LILLY] Dictionnaire Malgache-Français, rédigé, selon l'ordre des Racines, par les missionnaires Catholiques de Madagascar, et adapté aux dialects de toutes les provinces, [by Jean Nicolas Lorient]. Two vols. Ile Bourbon: L'establissement Malgache de Notre-Dame de la Ressource, 1853, 1855. In 19th century quarter-calf and marbled paper over boards. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Astor catalogue, p. 98, noting only the second volume, termed "extremely scarce". These copies belonged to Gustave Julien, were bound for him (with his initials on the spines) and are signed by him. Julien was the author of various books on Madagascar. First French dictionary of the language.

1854: [LILLYbm] A grammar of the Malagasy language, in the Ankova dialect, by David Griffiths. Woodbridge: Printed by Edward Pite, 1854. Original black quarter-leather and green patterned cloth over boards. Pp. i-vii viii-xi xii, 5 6-244 [= 252 pages (no pages missing)]. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Malagasy-English stem vocabulary, pp. 22-78. This copy inscribed in ink on the free endpaper: "To David Griffiths | From the Author | Aug 23-1862" and on the half-title: "Presented to | David Griffiths | by his uncle "The Author" | with best wishes | Aug. 23rd, 1862". Appears to be the second English-language grammar of Malagasy, preceded only by Edward Baker's grammar in 1845. Laurent Alilloud published a French grammar of Malagasy in 1872, held by the Lilly, but containing no bilingual vocabulary.

"In learning any language, a grammar and vocabulary are of the utmost importance.... Having, through long residence in Madagascar, acquired a perfect knowledge of its language, the desirableness of undertaking the task of preparing a Grammar has often been pressed on his attention, by many friends of missions at home and abroad... Being, at this present time, engaged in revising the Malagasy translation of the Holy Scriptures... and having to give constant attention to the structure and rules of the language, it appeared to the author to be a suitable opportunity for pursuing his long-cherished purpose" (Preface). "[The] character [of Malagasy] is so peculiar, philosophical, and original, as to render it truly amazing that uneducated, and semi-civilized people, should have preserved it in such perfection. They have no literature; the language has therefore reached its present state of excellence merely by ordinary conversation, speeches in the public assemblies, and pleadings in the courts of justice.... The Ankova dialect is by far the most regular, copious, and extensive.... It is the only dialect of the country in which anything has been written, or printed... The Malagasy language bears a very singular resemblance to one of the most ancient languages of Europe-The Welsh language" (Introduction).

1884: [LILLY] Malagasy for beginners: a series of graduated lessons and exercises in Malagasy as spoken by the Hovas: parts I., II., by J[ames]. Richardson (1844-1922). Antananarivo: London Missionary Society, 1884.: 4, vii, 120 p.; 22 cm. Original green cloth, lettered in gold. Includes scattered brief Malagasy-English vocabularies. Richardson published a dictionary the following year (see below). With the ownership label of John Lawson.

1885: [LILLYbm] A New Malagasy-English Dictionary, edited and rearranged by Rev. J[ames] Richardson. Antananarivo: The London Missionary Society, 1885. Worn original black leather, lettered and decorated in gold and blind. Pp. i-v vi- lix lx, 1 2-832. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 263. Malagasy-English, pp. [1]-832. A. Capell's copy, with his ownership inscription in ink and the date 7.1.44 on the inside front cover, as well as several manuscript notes in the section on language (see under 1958 TESO for details on Capell). This copy is on relatively poor quality paper. Second copy: LILLYbm, on better paper bulking half an inch thicker (the binding lacks the spine and is bound in unlettered black leather, possibly original for this issue). Third copy: IUW. Library binding.

"The first complete Malagasy Dictionary was prepared by the missionaries of The London Missionary Society, and printed at their press in Antananarivo in the year 1835 [see above]... The second Dictionary, Malagasy-French and French-Malagasy, was prepared by the Jesuit Fathers, and printed by them in the Island of Bourbon in 1853 [see above]... The present, the third complete Malagasy Dictionary, is based upon the two preceding dictionaries" (Editor's Preface).

1888 [1899]: [IUW] Dictionnaire malgache-français, par les RR. PP. Abinal et Malzac, S.J. 2e éd., rev. et considérablement augm. Tananarive; Imprimerie de la Mission catholique, Mahamasina, 1899. xvii, 840 p.; 23 cm. Contemporary brown half-letter, spine with five raised bands, with original printed labels preserved. Malagasy-French, pp. [1]-840. Reprints the preface to the first edition, dated 1888, and adds new preface for this second edition.

Reprint 1970: [IUW] Dictionnaire malgache-français, par Abinal et Malzac. Paris, Éditions maritimes et d'outre-mer, [1970] xv, 876 p. 22 cm. At head of title: Mission catholique de Tananarive.

Reprint 1993: [IUW] Dictionnaire malgache-français, Abinal et Malzac. Fianarantsoa; [s.n.], 1993. xv, 876 p.; 22 cm.

1893 [1899]: [LILLYbm] Dictionnaire français-malgache. Nouvelle édition, by V. Malzac. Paris: Augustin Challamel, 1899. Contemporary brown half-leather, spine lettered in gold with raised bands. Pp. [2] i-vii viii-xv xvi, 1 2-860 861-866. New edition. First edition appeared in 1893. Zaubmüller, col. 263 (listing only editions of 1930 and 1953). Not in Hendrix. French-Malagasy, pp. 1-860, with errata, p. [861]. A Malgache-Français dictionary, jointly authored with Antoine Abinal, appeared in 1886, with a second edition in 1899 (see below).

Photographic reprint 1949: [LILLY] Dictionnaire français-malgache, by [Victorin] Malzac. Nouv. éd. Paris; Société d'éditions géographiques, maritimes et coloniales, 1949. xv, 860 p. Cf. Zaubmüller 263 (does not list this reprint). Lacks original front and rear wrappers, but with original spine of wrappers, lettered in black. Title page replaces original publisher information with reprint publisher. This copy from the library of the noted linguist Johannes Rahder, with his ink ownership stamp on the title page.

Photographic reprint 1953: [IUW] Dictionnaire français-malgache, by [Victorin] Malzac. Nouv. éd. Paris; Société d'éditions géographiques, maritimes et coloniales, 1953. xv, 860 p. Zaubmüller, col. 263.

Augmented edition 1967: [IUW] Vocabulaire français-malgache, par [Victorin] Malzac. Nouv. éd., rev., corr. et augm. d'un précis de grammaire malgache. Paris, Éditions maritimes et d'outre-mer, 1967. xiv, 446 p. 16 cm.

1895a: [LILLYbm] Cours pratique de langue malgache. Deuxième Partie. Dialogues usuels et vocabulaire français-malgaches, by Basilide Rahidy. Paris: Librairie africaine et coloniale, Joseph André et Cie., 1895. Original gray-blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. [4] 1 2-291 292. First edition. Not in Zaubmüller. Not in Hendrix. French-Malagasy vocabulary, pp. [49]-291. Second volume of a three volume work; the third included a Malagasy-French vocabulary.

1895b: [LILLY] Notes on the Malagasy and Créole languages, by Gerald Hope Wildig O'Sullivan. Simla, Government Central Printing Office, 1894. 115 pp. 25x15cm. First edition. Lilly copy with withdrawn stamp of the [British] War Office Library, dated 1955. English-Malagasy, pp. 6-12, Malagasy-English, pp. 12-30, and English-Creole, pp. 107-113.

1895c: [LILLY] Petit fascicule pour l'usage de la langue hova avec indication de la prononciation, by A. Durand. Tamatave, Madagascar, 1895. 57 p. 17 cm. Original rose wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. Cover title: "Vocabulaire | Franco-Hova | a | l'Usage du Corps Expéditionnaire". French-Hova [Malagasy], thematically arranged, pp. 6-33, with pronunciation indicated in French.

1905: [LILLY] Dictionnaire de la langue de Madagascar, d'après l'édition de 1658 et l'Histoire de la grande isle Madagascar de 1661, by Etienne de Flacourt [1607-1660], ed. by Gabriel Ferrand [1864-1935] Paris: E. Leroux, 1905. xxxix, 296 p. facsim. 26 cm. Later quarter white cloth and red cloth, unlettered. Zaubmüller 263. Hendrix

1050. French-Malagasy, pp. 15-292.

1928a: [LILLY] La langue Malgache et les origines Malgaches, by [Joseph]. Razafintsalama. Tananarive: G. Pitot & Cie, 1928-1929. Two volumes. Vol. 1, 168 p, 27 cm.; Vol. 2, 106 p. 28.5 cm. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Razafintsalama is identified as the author on the front cover of the original wrappers, but no author is indicated on the separate title pages for each volume nor in the text. Rebound copies have sometimes been attributed to Damantsoha. This copy with the ownership stamps of the noted linguist Johannes Rahder.

Vol. 1. Le fond initial du vocabulaire malgache (étude de vocabulaire): Malay-Sanskrit-Malagasy, pp. 15-41 [Sanskrit elements common to the other two languages]; Sanskrit-Malagasy, pp. 45-90 [Sanskrit elements found in Malagasy]; Sanskrit-Malay, pp. [91]-93 [Sanskrit elements found in Malay]; Malay-Malagasy, pp. 102-132 [Malay elements found in Malagasy]; Mota-Malagasy, pp. 138-139 [Mota elements found in Malagasy]; Maori-Malagasy, pp. [145] [Maori elements found in Malagasy]; Arabic-Malagasy, p. 153 [Arabic elements found in Malagasy]; Arabic-Swahili-Malagasy, pp. 153-157 [Arabic elements found in both Swahili and Malagasy]; Swahili-Malagasy, pp. [158]-160 [Swahili elements found in Malagasy].

Vol. 2. La morphologie malgache, ses origines (essai d'analyse linguistique).

1928b: see under MALAGASY, TANDROY-MAHAFALY.

1930: [LILLY] Dikisioneran' ny teny malagasy ABA-AFAKA, Boky Voalohany Nataon' i Joseph Razafintsalama, by Joseph Razafintsalama. Antananarivo: Merinalavasofina, [1930]. 28 pp. 23 cm. Original pale green wrappers lettered in black. The first fascicle of a single-language Malagasy dictionary, included in the present bibliography for its general interest, covering letters indicated in the title. The complete dictionary may never have been published. This copy from the International Institute of African Languages and Cultures, London, with the ownership label of John Lawson, and an a.l.s. from the author to Miss D. G. Brackett, Secretary of the Institute, about the proposed dictionary.

1957: [IUW] Petit guide de toponymie malgache / par L. Molet. Tananarive-Tsimbazaza : Institut de recherche scientifique de Madagascar, Section des sciences humaines, 1957. 62 p. : map. Publications de l'institut de recherche scientifique, Tananarive-Tsimbazaza. Volumes hors série. Page 60 numbered incorrectly as p. 62. Bibliographical references: p. 62.

1965: [IUW] Vakoka, dictionnaire des synonymes de la langue malgache [par] Rajemisa-Raolison. 4. éd. Fianarantsoa, Ambozontany, 1965. 334 p. 19 cm. Cf. also 2006.

1966: [LILLYbm] Malgashko-russkii slovar: 21000 slov, by Lev A[leksandrovich] Korneev. Moscow: Sovetskaia entsiklopediia, 1966. Original gray cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in green and silver. 648 pp. First edition. Bibliography, p. 646. Malagasy-Russian dictionary, pp. 11-593. From the library of Carleton T. Hodge. First Russian dictionary of the language. A Russian-Malagasy dictionary by the same author appeared in 1970 (see below).

1969a: [IUW] Dictionnaire français-malgache / J. Sims, J.C. Kingzett. Tananarive : Trano Printy Loterana, 1969. 359 p. ; 21 cm.

1969b: [IUW] Rakibolana Malagasy-Italianina. Dizionario italiano-malgascio. Antananarivo : [s.n.], 1969. 240, 489 p. 22 cm.

1970: [IUW] Russko-malagasiïskii slovar': okolo 24 000 slov, sost. L.A. Korneev; pod red. M. Rakutumangi. Moskva: "Sov. èntsiklopediia," 1970. 543 p.; 21 cm. Added t.p.: Diksiõary Rosianina-Malagasy.

1971: [IUW] Guide-interprète français-malagasy : conversation et prononciation, guide des mœurs et usages, dictionnaire pratique. 2. éd. Antananarivo : Editions Madprint, [between 1971 and 1996]. 290 p. ; 15 cm. Les guides de poche de Madagasikara.

1973: [IUW] Diksiõnera Malagasy-Englisy : misy teny 7,000 voalahatra araka ny abidy. Antananarivo : Andro Vaovao : Trano Printy Loterana, 1973. 103 p. ; 21 cm.

1974: [IUW] Diksiõnera Malagasy-Frantsay / nataon' i F.S. Hallanger. Antananarivo : Trano Printy Loterana, 1974. 97 p. ; 21 cm.

1982: [IUW] A pronouncing dictionary of Malagasy place names / Max Mangold. Hamburg : Buske, c1982. v, 176 p. ; 21 cm. Forum phoneticum ; Bd. 25. Bibliography: p. 176.

1991: [IUW] Madagassisch-Deutsches Wörterbuch = Rakibolana Malagasy-Alema / herausgegeben von Henning Bergenholtz gemeinsam mit Suzy Rajaonarivo ... [et al.]. Moers : Edition Aragon, 1991. 653 p. : ill. ; 22 cm. Leximal ; 1 Title on spine: Malagasy-Alema.

1995: [IUW] Dictionnaire du malgache contemporain : malgache-français, français-malgache / Narivelo Rajaonarimanana. Paris : Éditions Karthala, c1995. 403 p. : chart, map ; 25 cm. Hommes et sociétés. Includes index.

1998a: [IUW] Dictionnaire malgache (dialectal)-français : dialect tañala, sud-est de Madagascar : avec recherches étymologiques / Philippe Beaujard. Paris, France : L'Harmattan, c1998. 891 p. : map ; 24 cm. Cover title: Dictionnaire malgache-français. A dictionary of the Tanala dialect of Plateau Malagasy.

1998b: [IUW] Lexique français-malgache des mots-clés de la justice / idée et compilation de Maria Sylvie Raharinarivonirina ; traduction de Jean Désiré Ramalanjaona. Antananarivo : CITE : Tsipika, [1998]. 80 p. : ill., maps ; 21 cm. French-Malagasy dictionary of legal terms.

1998c: [IUW] Malagasy newspaper reader / Thomas P. Jedele and Lucien Em. Randrianarivelo. With A concise introduction to the Malagasy language / by the Rev. W.E. Cousins. Kensington, Md., U.S.A.; Dunwoody Press, c1998. xv, lxxxii, 250 p.; 24 cm. Original black imitation leather paper over boards, lettered in gold. Glossary, Malagasy-English, pp. 189-250.

"This book is intended to provide an introduction to the reading of Malagasy journalistic prose. It is entirely self-contained so that it can be used for self-study, even by someone with no previous knowledge of the language... In the preparation of this reader, particular use was made of Richardson (1885) [see above] and above all of Rajemaisa-Radison (1985) [a single-language dictionary] and Abinal-Malzac (1888) [see above].... The work of Abinal and Malzac is invaluable for its wealth of examples, which illustrate actual usage" (Preface).

1999a: [IUW] Dikan-tenin-draharaha = Dictionnaire des affaires = Business-dictionary. 2e ed. Antananarivo : Centre d'Information Technique et Economique : TSIPIKA Editeur, c1999. 64 p. ; 21 cm. English, French, and Malagasy business dictionary.

1999b: [IUW] An elementary English-Malagasy dictionary : containing the 10,000 words most used in modern English. [Tananarive : Trano Printy Loterana, 1999] 160 p. ; 22 cm. Uniform series: Andro vaovao.

2001a: [IUW] Malagasy-English, English-Malagasy : dictionary and phrasebook / Janie Rasoloson. New York : Hippocrene Books, c2001. ix, 170 p. : map ; 19 cm.

2001b: [IUW] Voambolana momba ny zahatany : Malagasy-Frantsay = Vocabulaire du tourisme : français-malgache. Antananarivo : Edisiona Tsipika, c2001. 223 p. ; 19 cm. "Foibe momba ny Teny [na] Ofisim-Pirenena Misahana ny Teny = Centre des langues [ou] Office national des langues"--Cover. Logos of Agence intergouvernementale de la francophonie and Rifal on cover. Includes bibliographical references (p. 13). Malagasy-French-Malagasy dictionary of tourism.

2006: [IUW] Dictionnaire des synonymes malgaches traduits en français = Vakoka fitahirizan-teny Malagasy nalahatra araka ny hevitra ifandraisany ary voadika amin' ny teny Frantsay / Régis Rajemisa-Raolison. 3ème éd. Antananarivo : Librairie MIXTE, 2006. 312 p. ; 20 cm. See also 1965 above.

2007: [IUW] Voambolana momba ny fitondran-draharaham-panjakana sy ny an'ny sehatra miahny tena ho amin'ny fampandrosoany : Malagasy-Frantsay = Vocabulaire sur l'organisation administrative publique et privée pour le développement : français-malgache. Antananarivo : Centre des langues, Office national des langues, 2007. xxv, 153 p. ; 19 cm. Malagasy-French dictionary of public administration.

2013: [IUW] Malagasy--English phrasebook & dictionary = Rakibolana Malagasy--Anglisy: English--Malagasy & Malagasy English, with over 16,000 entries and regional dialects, by Jackson Bell, Matthew Winterton. [Antananarivo]: Trano Printy Fiangonana Loterana Malagasy, [2013] xi, 304 pages; 21 cm. Original white wrappers, lettered in orange and blue. Malagasy-English, pp. 1-167, English-Malagasy, pp. 169-264, Antambahoaka (Dialect of Mananjary)-English, p. 265, Antanosy (Dialect of Ft. Dauphin and Toliara)-English, pp. 266-267, Atandroy (Dialect of Ft. Daupin and Toliara)-English, pp. 268-270, Betsileo (Dialect of Fianarantsoa)-English, pp. 271-272, Betsimisaraka (Dialect of Toamasina)-English, pp. 273-275, Mahafaly (Dialect of Toliara), p. 276, Teny Mahajanga (Dialect of Mahajanga; Mix of Sakalava, Atandroy, and others)-English, p. 277, Sakalava (Dialect of Antsiranana)-English, pp. 278-279, Tanalana (Dialect of Toliara)-English, p. 280, Vezo (Dialect of Toliara)-English, p. 281, and French-English vocabulary, pp. 282-294 "to help primarily with comprehension."

"I first took an interest in the Malagasy language after being called to serve a mission for two years for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints in Madagascar in 2006.... While it is true that there exist a few dictionaries and books designed to help English-speaking foreigners learn the Malagasy language, these proved difficult to use for a variety of reasons, including their organization by root, inaccurate definitions, archaic words, and lack of a more comprehensive text. Moreover, the previous works had not been updated in some time; the Malagasy language, as any language, is evolving, and I saw the need for a new dictionary that reflected the modernization of the Malagasy language and useage" (Preface).

[MALAGASY, SAKALAVA] Sakalava Malagasy, considered a dialect by many linguists, is listed as a separate language by Ethnologue. It is spoken in western Madagascar.

Ethnologue: skg.

1842: [LILLY] Vocabulaire et grammaire pour les langues malgaches Sakalave et Betsimitsara, by Pierre Dalmond (1800-1847). Saint-Denis, Réunion: Lahuppe, 1842. Libraries Worldwide: 3, bound with Vocabulaire malgache-français pour les langues Sakalave et Betsimitsara. Paris: H. Vrayet, 1844. Contemporary vellum over boards. 124 pp. + 40 pp. With ownership signature of A[uguste] Bernus and earlier ownership signature of J. Maguet. Not in Zauhmüller. Hendrix 1041-1042.

2013: see under MALAGASY, PLATEAU.

[MALAGASY, SOUTHERN BETSIMISARAKA] Southern Betsimisaraka Malagasy, considered a dialect by many linguists, and as a separate language by Ethnologue, is spoken in southeastern Madagascar.

Ethnologue: bzc. Alternate Names: Betsimisaraka Antatsimo Malagasy, Betsimisaraka Malagasy.

1842: see under MALAGASY, SAKALAVA.

2013: see under MALAGASY, PLATEAU.

[MALAGASY, TANDROY-MAHAFALY] Tandroy-Mahafaly Malagasy, considered a dialect by many linguists, and a separate language by Ethnologue, is spoken in the south of Madagascar.

Ethnologue: tdx. Alternate Names: Tandroy.

1928: [LILLY] Lexique français-antandroy, by Raymond Decary [1891- ] Tananarive: Imprimerie moderne de l'Emyrne, G. Pitot & cie, 1928. Original green wrappers, lettered in black. 73 p. 28 cm. French-Merina [major dialect of Plateau Malagasy]-Antandroy [Tandroy-Mahafaly Malagasy] vocabulary in three columns, pp. [7]-68. Not in Zauhmüller. Henrix 1045.

1996: [IUW] Dictionnaire Malgache Dialectal-Français : dialecte tandroy / Narivelo Rajaonarimanana, Sarah Fee. Paris : Langues & Mondes/L'Asiathèque, 1996. 316 p. : ill. ; 15 cm. Dictionnaires des langues'O. Includes bibliographical references.

2013: see under MALAGASY, PLATEAU.

[MALAGASY, TASAKA] Tasaka Malagasy, considered a dialect by many linguists, and as a separate language by Ethnologue, is spoken in southern Madagascar.

Ethnologue: tkg. Alternate Names: Antaisaka, Antesaka, Atesaka, Tesaka Malagasy.

1936: [LILLY] Le dialecte Antaisaka (langue Malgache), by Hubert Deschamps. Tananarive (Madagascar): Imprimerie Moderne de l'Emyrne, Pitot de la Beaujardiere, 1936. Original brown wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [2] 1-13 14-126 127-128. First edition. Antaisaka [Tasaka Malagasy]-French, pp. [37]-87, and French-Antaisaka [Tasaka Malagasy], pp. [91]-109.

2013: see under MALAGASY, PLATEAU.

[MALAGASY, TSIMIHETY] Tsimihety Malagasy, considered a dialect by many linguists, and as a separate language by Ethnologue, is spoken in norther Madagascar.

Ethnologue: xmw. Alternate Names: Tsimihety.

1983: see under MALAGASY LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MALAY] Malay (/məˈleɪ/; Malay: Bahasa Melayu; Jawi alphabet: بهاس ملايو) is a major language of the Austronesian family. It has an official status in Brunei, Indonesia, Malaysia, and Singapore. It is spoken by 270 million people across the Strait of Malacca, including the coasts of the Malay Peninsula of Malaysia and the eastern coast of Sumatra in Indonesia, and has been established as a native language of part of western coastal Sarawak and West Kalimantan in Borneo. As the Bahasa Kebangsaan or Bahasa Nasional (National Language) of several states, Standard Malay has various official names. In Singapore and Brunei it is called Bahasa Melayu (Malay language); in Malaysia, Bahasa Malaysia (Malaysian language); and in Indonesia, Bahasa Indonesia (Indonesian language) and is designated the Bahasa Persatuan/Pemersatu ("unifying language/lingua franca"). However, in areas of central to southern Sumatra where the language is indigenous, Indonesians refer to it as Bahasa Melayu and consider it one of their regional languages. Standard Malay, also called Court Malay, was the literary standard of the pre-colonial Malacca and Johor Sultanates, and so the language is sometimes called Malacca, Johor, or Riau Malay (or various combinations of those names) to distinguish it from the various other Malayan languages. According to Ethnologue 16, several of the Malayan varieties they currently list as separate languages, including the Orang Asli varieties of Peninsular Malay, are so closely related to standard Malay that they may prove to be dialects. There are also several Malay trade and creole languages which are based on a lingua franca derived from Classical Malay, as well as Macassar Malay, which appears to be a mixed language (Wiki).

1597: [LILLY] Dictionarivm malaico-latinvm et latino-malaicvm, cvm aliis qvam-plvrimis quæ quarta pagina edocebit, by David Haex, b. ca. 1597. Romæ, typis & impensis Sac. congr. de propag. fide, 1631. Zaunmüller 266.

1634: [LILLY] A relation of some yeares travaile, begunne anno 1626: Into Afrique and the greater Asia, especially the territories of the Persian monarchie, and some parts of the Oriental Indies and iles adiacent. Of their religion, language, habit, discent, ceremonies and other matters concerning them. Together with the proceedings as also the two great monarchs, the king of Persia, and the great Mogol / by T.H. ... [Sir Thomas Herbert, 1606-1682]. London: Printed by William Stansby, and Jacob Bloome, 1634. [10], 225, [15] p.: ill., maps (engravings); 27 cm. (fol.) Added t.p. engr.: A description of the Persian monarchy ... by Th. Herbert ... Signatures: [A]<sup>4</sup> B-Hh<sup>4</sup>. Bound in calf, rebacked, corners restored, replacement spine label. "A discourse and prooffe that Madoc ap Owen Gwynedd first found out that continent now call'd America": p. 217-224. Includes index. Sabin, 31471. STC (2nd ed.), 13190. Cox, E.G. Travel, I, 248. NUC pre-56, 241:568. Includes what is probably the first word-list of Khoekhoe (Nama) [unnamed], p. 16; brief English-Arabic, and Arabic-English-Persian wordlists, pp. 43-45; last two pages misnumbered 46-47]; and a longer word-list of English-Malay, pp. 202-205. A brief Javanese-English wordlist is included on p. 204: "The people in Java call these thus, somewhat differeing from the Malay." The first English-Malay dictionary was published in 1701.

"I will insert some words of the Malayan Tongue spoken in many Ilands of the Orient, expecially in Malacca, Java, Sumatra, Macassar, and indeed no lesse general then the Arabique, Latine and Sclavonian are in other Kingdomes" (p. 201).

1646: [LILLY] Begin ende voortgangh, van de Vereenighde Nederlantsche geoctroyeerde Oost-Indische Compagnie: vervatende de voornaemste reysen, by de inwoonderen der selver provincien derwaerts gedaen ...: gedrukt in den Jare 1646. [Amsterdam?: s.n.], 1646. Includes, pp. 43-56, Vol. I, pt. 3, vocabulary of Javanese, Malay and Dutch, with a second vocabulary of Malay and Dutch. With ms. Notes in an early hand on slips pasted in, some ms. Corrections and cancellations in text.

1751: see under LETI. Malay-German vocabulary, pp. 575-578.

1795: [IUW] Travels in Europe, Africa, and Asia, made between the years 1770 and 1779; in four volumes, by Charles Peter Thunberg. 2nd ed. London; Printed for F. and C. Rivington, and sold by W. Richardson, 1795. 4 v., [11] leaves of plates (1 folded); ill.; 22 cm. Spine title: Linnæan travels. Includes glossaries, phrases, and vocabularies of the Malay language (v. 2) and the Chinese language (v. 4) Translation of: Resa uti Europa, Africa, Asia. Errata: v. 4, p. [xxii] Includes bibliographical references and indexes. v. 1. Containing a voyage to to the southern parts of Europe and to the Cape of Good Hope in Africa, in the years 1770, 1771, 1772, 1773. V. 2. Containing two expeditions to the interior part of the country adjacent to the Cape of Good Hope, and a voyage to the Island of Java; performed in theyears 1773, 1774, and 1775. V. 3. Containing a voyage to Japan, and travels in different parts of that empire, in the years 1775 and 1776. V. 4. Containing travels in the empire of Japan, and in the islands of Java and Ceylon, together with the voyage home.

1801: [LILLY] A dictionary of the Malay tongue: as spoken in the Peninsula of Malacca, the islands of Sumatra, Java, Borneo, Pulo Pinang, &c., &c.: in two parts, English and Malay, and Malay and English: to which is prefixed the grammar of that language, embellished with a map, by James Howison. London: Printed at the Arabic and Persian Press, by S. Rousseau ... for John Sewell ... J. Debrett ... Murray and Highley ... Vernor and Hood ... A. and J. Black and H. Parry ... and S. Rousseau ... 1801. Not in Zaunmüller. First edition, 2nd ed. published in 1804, cf. NUC pre-56 257:281. With the inkstamp of the Mercantile Association Library, New-York on t.p. Originally bound in half calf and marbled boards; worn, rebacked with imitation leather.

1812: [LILLY] A dictionary of the Malayan language; in two parts, Malayan and English and English and Malayan ... by William Marsden ... London; Printed for the author by Cox and Baylis, and sold by Longman, Hurst, Rees, Orme, and Brown ..., 1812. [4], xv, [2], 2-589, [3] p.; 27 cm. Bound in rust cloth, edges sprinkled red. English and Malay (Roman and Arabic script). "Ceylon observer extraordinary" Tesuday, April 5, 1881, (1 sheet; 28 x 10 cm), removed from Lilly Library copy, cataloged separately; with pencilled notes on verso. BM 153:443. NUC pre-1956 363:344 (NM 0243788). First edition. Zaunmüller 266. The English-Malay section is interleaved with numerous additions in ink. Translated into Dutch in 1825-26 (see below). Second copy: IUW.

Reprint 1984 together with Marsden's Grammar: [IUW] A dictionary and grammar of the Malayan language, by William Marsden; with an introduction by Russell Jones. Singapore; New York; Oxford University Press, 1984. 2 v.; 29 cm. Oxford in Asia historical reprints. Reprint (1st work). Originally published: A dictionary of the Malayan language, in two parts, Malayan and English and English and Malayan. London; Printed for the Author by Cox and Baylish, 1812. With new introd. Reprint (2nd work).

A grammar of the Malayan language. London; Printed for the Author by Cox and Baylis, 1812. Bibliography: v. 1, p. xxi-xxiii.

1817: see under MALAYAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

ca. 1820: [LILLY] Manuscript English-Malay vade mecum for use in the East Indies trade. Batavia?: ca. 1820.. Single large folio sheet (45 x 35 cm.). English-Malay text in facing double-columns, two pairs of columns to each page.

1824: [LILLYbm] Nederduitsch en maleisch woordenboek: onder goedkeuring en begunstiging der hooge regering en Nederlandische indie, by P[hilippus] P[ieter] Roorda van Eysinga [1796-1856]. Batavia: Ter Lands drukkerij, 1824. Later 19th century green quarter-cloth and green and black marbled paper over boards with hand-lettered paper label on spine. Pp. [6] I II-XIX XX, 1 2-497 498-500, I II-XXXVIII. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller (who lists only the author's Maleisch en nederduitsch woordenboek, in the 13th edition of 1869). Wolf 4279. Dutch-Malay, pp. [1]-497, with an appendix of additional Dutch-Malay words, pp. [I]-XXXVIII. This copy with the release ink stamps of the Library of the Colonial Department (Bibliotheek Departement von Kolonien).

Second copy: LILLY: Nederduitsch en Maleisch woordenboek; onder goedkeuring en begunstiging der hooge regering van Nederlandsch Indië, vervaardigd en uitgegeven door P.P. Roorda van Eysinga ... Batavia; ter Lands Drukkerij, 1824. [8], xix, [2], 2-497, [4], ii-xxxviii p.; 21 cm. Bound in half sheep and decorated boards, rebaked, gilt spine title. BM 69:1046 cites the 2 vol. set, 1824-1825, which includes the "Maleisch en Nederduitsch" volume, NUC pre-1956 cites the two works separately. Octavo in 4s. Gathered in pairs of half sheets, signed A, four leaves, A2, four leaves, B, four leaves, B2, et seq. The final xxxviii pp. are an Aanshangsel van het Nederduitsch en Maleisch woordenboek. All Malay words are in Jawi script. NUC pre-1956 503:314 (NR 0410583).

1825a: [LILLYbm] Dictionnaire malai, hollandais et français, par C. P. J. Elout [1795-1843], traduit du dictionnaire malais et anglais de W[illiam] Marsden [1754-1836]. Harlem: Jean Enschedé et fils, 1825. Contemporary brown quarter-leather and black marbled paper over boards, spine lettered in gold. Pp. [4] I-III IV-XV XVI, <sup>2</sup>I-III IV-XXI XXII-XXIV, 1 2-432. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes separate Dutch title page, translator's preface in Dutch and French, Marsden's preface in Dutch and French, the Malay alphabet, and a table of contents for the grammar (which is not included in this copy), and the Malay alphabet, followed immediately by the 432 page translation of the English-Malay portion of Marsden's dictionary, with Dutch-Malay, pp. [1]-202, and French-Malay, pp. [203]-432..". This copy appears to combine part of the first 1825 edition bound with the first edition of the translation of the second part of the dictionary, but without title page. This copy with the ink ownership stamp of Eugene de Froberville on the title page. De Froberville was co-author of Voyage a Madagascar et aux iles Comores (1823 a 1830), Paris: L. Desessart, 1840. This appears to be the second French-Malay dictionary, preceded only by a dictionary published the previous year in Paris by Bose.

"Marsden's grammar and dictionary of 1812 were translated into Dutch in 1824 and 1825-26, respectively; they became an indispensable part of the Dutch tradition of Malay studies" (Collins, Malay, World Language of the Ages).

1825b: [LILLY] Dictionnaire malai, hollandais et français, par C. P. J. Elout

[1795-1843], traduit du dictionnaire malais et anglais de W[illiam] Marsden [1754-1836]. Harlem: Jean Enschedé et fils, 1825. 2 p. l., xxi, [1] p., 1 l., 604 p. 28 x 23 cm. Contemporary [original?] binding with original printed label. This copy with the bookplate of John Lawson. Copies of this title at Berkeley, LOC and NYPL also give 604 pages, with the note that "The Dictionnaire hollandais et malai, suivi d'un Dictionnaire français et malai, par C.P.J. elout; d'après le Dictionnaire anglais et malai de mr. W. Marsden, Harlem, 1826, forms the 2d part of this work."

1825c: [LILLY] Maleisch, Nederduitsch en Fransch woordenboek = Dictionnaire malai, hollandais et Français, par C.P.J. Elout; traduit du Dictionnaire malai et anglais de mr. W. Marsden. Te Harlem; bij Johannes Enschedé en Zonen, 1825. [4], xxi, [3], 604 p.; 29 cm. (4to). Bound in marbled boards with drab paper shelfback, printed paper spine label; binding and label skuffed and imperfect. Translation of: A dictionary of the Malayan language, in two parts, English and Malayan, and Malayan and English .... 1812. Dutch and French title-pages and prelims. on facing pages. Malay words in Arabic characters followed by transcription in Roman type, glosses in Dutch and French. The Dictionnaire hollandais et malai, suivi d'un Dictionnaire français et malai, par C.P.J. elout; d'après le Dictionnaire anglais et malai de mr. W. Marsden, Harlem, 1826, form the 2nd part of this work. Cf. Voorberigt/Avant-propos, p. [ii]-v. NUC pre-1956 363:344 (NM 0243787).

1826: [LILLYbm] Dictionnaire hollandais et malai, suivi d'un Dictionnaire français et malai, de C. P. J. Elout [1795-1843], d'après le dictionnaire anglais et malais de W[illiam] Marsden [1754-1836]. Added title page in Dutch: Nederduitsch en Maleisch woordenboek, gevolgd van een Fransch en Maleisch woordenboek (vertaald) door C.P.J. Elout; naar het Engelsch en Maleisch woordenboek. Dictionnaire Hollandais et Malai, suivi d'un dictionnaire Français et Malai de W. Marsden. Harlem: J. Enschedé et fils, 1826. Original parchment and blue marbled paper over boards, with original paper label printed in black. Pp. [6] 1 2-432. First edition. Not in Zaubmüller. A translation of Marsden's English-Malay dictionary of 1812. This copy with the ink stamps of the Library of the Colonial Department of Holland. Dutch-Malay, pp. [1]-202, and French-Malay, pp. [203]-432.

1863: [LILLYbm] Maleisch-nederduitsch woordenboek naar het werk van D', W. Marsden en andere Bronnen, compiled by J[an] Pijnappel [1822-1901]. Haarlem, Amsterdam: Joh. Enschedé en Zonen; Frederik Muller, 1863, bound with Supplement op het Maleisch-Nederduitsch Woordenboek van Dr. J. Pijnappel, Gz., by H[illebrandus] C[ornelius] Klinkert, 1869, with separate title page. Contemporary unlettered black quarter-leather and marbled paper over boards. Pp. I-V VI-XII, 1 2-272, [4] <sup>2</sup>1 2-275 276. First edition. Zaubmüller, col. 265 (listing Maleisch-Hollandsch woordenboek of 1875, without indicating that this is the second edition). Malay-Dutch, pp. [1]-235, with the Malay-Dutch supplement, pp. <sup>2</sup>1 2-275. Klinkert's supplement is based on thirty years living among the Malay people. This copy with the ink stamp of the Nederlandsche Zendingsschool Oegstgeest, and with scattered notes and added words in ink in a contemporary hand.

"The supplement shows once more that a good Malay dictionary can not be the work of single person, but must be based on material from many people" (Preface to Supplement, tr: BM)

1879: [LILLYbm] Nieuw Hollandsch-Maleisch, Maleisch-Hollandsch

woordenboek . Derde, veel vermeerderde en verbeterde druk, by A. H. L. Badings. Schoonhoven: Nooten, 1879. Contemporary black quarter-cloth and brown marbled paper over boards. Pp. [4] [2] I 2-397 398. Third, greatly enlarged and improved edition. Not in Zauhmüller. This copy lacks a least one leaf of the preface to earlier editions, but the pages present indicate the second edition appeared in 1876. A brief preface to this third edition is included. Dutch-Malay, pp. [17]-184, a special Dutch-Malay list of sea terms, pp. [217]-224, and Malay-Dutch, pp. [227]-368.

1880: see under ACEHNESE.

1885: [LILLY] Nieuw Nederlandsch-maleisch woordenboek, by H. C. Klinkert. Leiden: Brill, 1885. Original green cloth, lettered in gold and decorated in blind. Pp. [4] I II-VIII, I 2-811 812. First edition. Cf. Zauhmüller, col. 265 (listing only later edition of 1916 and 1926-47). Dutch-Malay, pp. [1]-811.

1887: see under NIAS.

1889: [LILLYbm] Vocabulaire Français-Malais et Malais-Français, précédé par un précis de grammaire malaise, by J. Montano, by J[ohn] Errington de la Croix [1848-1905]. Paris: Ernest Leroux, 1889. Original red cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [2] I II-XLVIII, I 2-252. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. French-Malay, pp. [1]-113, and Malay-French, pp. [115]-249, with errata, pp. [251]-252. First portable French dictionary of Malay.

"After the considerable works published on the Malay language up to now, in English, Dutch and French, I have no pretensions to undertaking anything new. I have only desired to fill a gap by offering to my compatriots who travel to or stay in Malaysia, a portable vocabulary that they will find useful, I hope, for the everyday uses of practical life. The dialect is, in a general way, that of the nearby island of Malacca, where I have often sojourned... In composing this little volume, I have been inspired by the works of Marsden, Crawford, Abbé Favre, W.E. Maxwell and F.A. Swettenham" (Introduction, tr: BM).

1892: [LILLYbm] Nieuw Maleisch-Nederlandsch Zakwoordenboek, ten behoeve van hen, die het Maleisch met Latijnsch karakter beoefenen, by H[illebrandus] C[ornelius] Klinkert. Leiden: E. J. Brill, 1892. Original brown cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [8] 1-400. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Malay-Dutch, pp. 1-399, with corrigenda, pp. 399-400. This copy with the ownership signature "Joh. Retzlaff, Batavia / 1908" on the title page.

1893a: see 1893 under SULU.

1893b: [LILLY] Nieuw Maleisch-Nederlandsch woordenboek, by H. C. Klinkert. Leiden: Brill, 1893. Original green cloth, lettered in gold and decorated in blind. Pp. [4] I-III IV-VII VIII, 712. First edition. Cf. Zauhmüller, col. 265 (listing only later edition of 1916 and 1926-47). Malay-Dutch, pp. [1]-712.

1894-1902: [LILLY] A dictionary of the Malay language: Malay-English [in five parts], by Hugh [Charles] Clifford [1866-1941] and Frank Athelstane Swettenham [1850-1946]. Taiping, Perak: Printed for the authors at the Govt. Print. Off., 1894-1902. 1 p., iii, iii-vi, 509 p.; 29 cm. In original wrappers lettered and decorated in black, as issued in parts: Part I.—The letter A, in gray wrappers; Part II—The letter B, in gray wrappers; Part III—The letter Ch., in blue wrappers; Part IV—the letters D, E and F, in tan wrappers; Part V—the letter G, in brown wrappers. Note: Each part has special t.p., not included in paging. Contains letters A-G inclusive. Zauhmüller 265.

1894a: [LILLYbm] Lijst van Woorden in het Maleish, Hollandsch, Rottineesche en Timoreesch, by E. F. Kleian. Batavia: Albrecht & Rusche, 1894. Original gray wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. 1 2-76 [4]. First edition. Not in Zaubmüller. Reprinted from the Tijdschrift voor Indische Taal- Land- en Volkenkunde, Vol. 37. Malay-Dutch-Roti-Timorese [Uab Meto] vocabulary, pp. 3-76. No preliminary matter except for a brief explanation of the symbols used.

1894b: [LILLY] Neues Wörterbuch der Deutschen, Malaischen und Halländischen Sprache, by A. H. L. Badings. Amsterdam: Verlagsgesellschaft "Elsevier", 1894. Zaubmüller 265. Original red cloth lettered in black. First edition. Appears to be the first German-Malay dictionary.

1894c: [LILLYbm] Vocabulary of the English and Malay Languages with notes. Third edition. Vol. I- English-Malay, by Frank A[thelstane] Swettenham. Paris: Ernest Laroux, 1894. Original olive-green cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [6] III-XXXII, 1 2-245 246-248. Third edition. Vol. I only of two volume set. English-Malay, pp. [1]-166. This copy with ink ownership inscription dated 3 November 1896. Reprints the introductions to the first (1881) and second (1885) editions.

Revised edition 1896: [LILLYbm] Vocabulary of the English and Malay Languages with notes. Revised edition (Vol. II), by Frank A[thelstane] Swettenham. London: W. B. Wittingham, 1896. Original olive-green quarter-leather and marbled paper over boards, spine with stamped black panel, lettered in gold. Pp. i-iii iv-xv xvi, 1 2-130 131-136. Revised edition (of the second edition, which appeared in 1887). A two-volume edition appeared in 1881. Zaubmüller, col. 265 (listing only the two volume edition, Shanghai, 1922-1927). This copy with an ink ownership inscription: "C. H. Knox, Rifle Brigade / Singapore June 21/97." Malay-English, pp. [1]-128. Vol. I was English-Malay.

Eighth edition 1909: [IUW] Vocabulary of the English and Malay languages with notes, by Sir Frank A. Swettenham... Eighth edition... Shanghai [etc.] Kelly & Walsh, Ltd., 1909. 20 cm.

1902: [LILLYbm] Malay-English vocabulary: containing 6500 Malay words or phrases with their English equivalents together with an appendix of household, nautical and medical terms, etc., by W[illiam] G[irdlestone] Shellabear [1862-1947]. Singapore: American Mission Press, 1902. Original reddish-brown cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. i-iii iv-xii, 1 2-141 142-146. First edition. Malay-English, pp. [1]-131, and appendix of English-Malay words thematically arranged, pp. [133]-141.

"This Vocabulary has been prepared for use in connection with my 'Practical Malay Grammar'... [but] it has been thought better to published the vocabularies separately and to make them as complete as is consistent with the low price at which such works are expected to sell. The list of words which is here offered to the public contains over six thousand words and phrases... The omission of the Arabic characters has enabled the printers to put out this work in a very compact form and at a cost considerably below what it would otherwise have been... In the preparation of this vocabulary I am particularly indebted to Favre's Malay-French Dictionary and to Klinkert's Malay-Dutch Pocket Dictionary. When in doubt as to the precise meaning of a word I have occasionally referred to Wilkinson's Dictionary, Part I, but as the second part has not yet been published this work has only been referred to in regard to such words as come in the first half of the Malay alphabet" (Preface).

Second, revised and enlarged edition 1912: [LILLYbm] Malay-English vocabulary containing over 7000 Malay words or phrases with their English equivalents, together with an appendix of household, nautical and medical terms, etc., by W[illiam] G[irdlestone] Shellabear. Singapore: Printed and Published by The Methodist Publishing House, 1912. Original maroon cloth, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. i-iii iv-xii, 1 2-157 158 [p.iv misnumbered as v]. Second edition, revised and enlarged. Malay-English, pp. [1]-157, double columns. This copy with the contemporary ownership signature of Montague Moore. An 8-page advertising booklet of the Methodist Publishing House, dated "March, 1912" is tipped at the end of the book.

"The demand for a new edition of this vocabulary has enabled me to correct a few errors which crept into the first edition, and to add a number of words which, though not in frequent use, are liable to be met with by the student. An attempt has also been made in this edition to indicate words which are peculiar to the Malay spoken by the 'Babas,' or Straits-born Chinese" (Preface to the Second Edition).

Third edition, revised and enlarged 1925: [IUW] Malay-English vocabulary; containing over 7000 Malay words or phrases, with their English equivalents, together with an appendix of household, nautical and medical terms, etc., by Rev. W.G. Shellabear. 3d ed., rev. and enl. Singapore, Methodist publishing house, 1925. xii, 157 p. 22 cm. Label inserted: London, K. Paul Trench, Trubner & co. ltd.

1903: see under OCEANIC LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1902-1903: [LILLYbm] A Malay-English dictionary [Part I]; Part II (Sin to Nya); Part III. Appendices, Index, Addenda and Corrigenda, by R[ichard] J[ames] Wilkinson [1867-1941]. Singapore: Kelly & Walsh, 1903, 1902-1903. Contemporary brown half-calf and brown cloth over boards, spines lettered in gold. Pp. [Part I] [2] 1 2-355 356; [Part II] [2] 357-700; [Part III] 701-702, <sup>1</sup>i ii, <sup>2</sup>i ii-ix x, 703-705 706-717 718, [2] <sup>3</sup>i ii-liv, [2] <sup>4</sup>i ii-v vi. Part I in second printing. First edition of Parts II-III. Zaunmüller, col. 265 (listing only the 2-vol. edition of 1932, along with the 7th abridged edition of 1949, and the 1956 2-vol. reprint of the full unabridged edition). Parts I and II were originally published together in 1901-1902. Part III was first added in 1903. It appears that some copies contain Parts I-III all in first printings. This copy combines Part I dated 1903 with the first 1902-1903 edition of Parts II-III. Malay-English, pp. [1]-355, 357-700, Malay index, pp. <sup>3</sup>[i]-liv, a Malay list of wild birds, pp. <sup>4</sup>[i]-ii, of snakes, pp. <sup>4</sup>iii, a list of words omitted, p. <sup>4</sup>iv, and corrections, p. <sup>4</sup>v.

"It is often thought that the merits of a Malay Dictionary are to be measured by the number of new words that it contains. This is a somewhat narrow view of the matter.... A story is related of a local student who was delighted to discover a term so rare that it was confined to folk-lore about the otter; his pleasure was dampened by the exclamation of one of his hearers, 'think how useful this word will be to all of us'... [M]y primary aim has been the more precise explanation and illustration of the better-known words rather than the inclusion of the less-known.... But for the existence of the Dictionaries of Klinkert, Pijnappel, and von Dewall, this work would have been impossible on its present scale. They in their turn owed much to the labour of predecessors such as Roorda van Eysinga, who owed much to Marsden. I have also been greatly assisted by... the unfinished Malay-English Dictionary of Mr. Clifford and Sir Frank Swettenham" (Preface to Part III).

1904: [LILLYbm] Bijdragen tot de kennis van het Midden Maleisch (Besemahsch en Serawajsch dialect), by O[scar] L[ewis] Helfrich. Batavia: Landsdrukkerij, 1904. Later full black cloth, with original front wrapper mounted on front cover. Pp. i-iii iv, 1-3 4-284. First edition. Verhandelingen van het Bataviaasch Genootschap van Kunsten en Wetenschappen, Deel LIII. Not in Zaunmüller. Middle-Malay-Dutch word list, pp. [3]-194, with four plates showing detailed vocabulary for wooden houses on stilts.

1906: [LILLYbm] Kelly & Walsh's Handbook of the Malay Language for the use of tourists and residents (Third edition). Singapore: Kelly & Walsh, 1906. Original limp dark blue-green cloth, lettered in gold. Pp. [4] i ii-iv v-x, 1-98. Third edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Second edition was 1903; first edition unascertained.

1908: [LILLYbm] An abridged Malay-English dictionary (romanised), by R[ichard] J[ames] Wilkinson [1867-1941]. Kuala Lumpur: Printed at the F.M.S. Government Press, 1908. Original dark brown cloth over boards; original printed paper labels on spine with title and author. Pp. [8] 1 2-248. First edition thus. Not in Zaunmüller (who lists, col. 265, the 2 vol. unabridged dictionary of 1932 and later edition). Malay-English, pp. [1]-248. This copy with a printed book label pasted on inside front cover: 'CONVICT ESTABLISHMENT | TAIPING, | PERAK, | F.M.S.' With the blindstamp of Pritchard Booksellers Penang on the title page. Wilkinson's Malay-English dictionary was published by Kelly & Walsh in 1901-2 (2 vols. in one). The second part, English-Malay, appeared in the second edition in 1922 (first edition unascertained).

"In preparing this abridged edition of a larger work my aim has been to supply a full Malay vocabulary in a book of conveniently small size" (Preface).

1934: [LILLYbm] Nieuw praktisch Nederlandsch-Maleisch woordenboek, by W. H. Ridderhof & C. D. L. Janssen. Zutphen: W. J. Thieme & Co., 1934. Original dark blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold and decorated in gold and blind. Pp. [8] 1-260. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Dutch-Malay, pp. 1-260. The dictionary includes business, nautical and other terms not found in other dictionaries, as well as usage on Java, according to the preface. This copy with the ink stamp of the Middelbare Koloniale Landbouwschool Deventer.

1936: [LILLYbm] Nieuw praktisch Maleis-Nederlands woordenboek, by W. H. Ridderhof. Zutphen: W. J. Thieme & Co., 1936. Original dark blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold and decorated in blind (uniform with Dutch-Malay volume). Pp. [8] 1-218. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Malay-Dutch, pp. 1-218.

1937: [LILLYbm] Dictionary of Colloquial Malay (Malay-English & English-Malay), by R[ichard] O. Winstedt. Singapore: Kelly & Walsh Limited, 1937. Original dark blue quarter cloth and brown paper, printed in black, over boards. No edition indicated. Zaunmüller, col. 265 (with date of 1952). Preface dated 1920.

1939: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary of Malayan Medicine, by John D[esmond] Gimlette & H[enry] W[agstaffe] Thomson. London, New York, Toronto: Oxford University Press, 1939. Original blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold; dust jacket, gray-green lettered in black. Pp. i-v vi-xvi, 1 2-259 260. First edition. Malay-English, pp. [1]-250, and a classified English-Malay index, pp. [251]-259.

"This work represents the last work of a well-known member of the Medical Service of the Malayan Government, completed and edited after his death. It contains, in the form of a Malay-English Dictionary, the names of ailments and a description of the remedies prescribed for them by native practitioners, together with articles on many allied subjects. An English-Malay index has been added to facilitate reference" (from the front flap of the dust jacket).

Reprinted 1971: [IUW] A dictionary of Malayan medicine, by John D. Gimlette. Edited and completed by H. W. Thomson. With a foreword by Malcolm Watson. Kuala Lumpur, New York, Oxford University Press [1971]. xvi, 259 p. 22 cm. Oxford in Asia paperbacks. Reprint of the 1939 ed. Bibliography: p. [xv]-xvi.

1942: [LILLYbm] A Pocket vocabulary of Malay, Pidgin English and Japanese phrases: for the use of U.S. troops in the Southwest Pacific Area. United States Army Forces, Pacific. General Staff, G-2. N.p.: 1942. 96 pp. 13.3 cm. "Not for sale or distribution" on fly-leaf. English-Malay, pp. 16-46, Malay-English, pp. 47-76, and Pidgin English-English, pp. [79]-84, with an appendix of English-Japanese words and phrases, pp. [86]-90.

1944: [LILLY] A Malay dictionary; Malay-English; English-Malay, prepared in the Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-2, United States Army Forces in the Far East. [Sydney; U.S. Army, 1944] (Sydney; Alfred Henry Pettifer, Acting Government Printer) xvi, [3], 285 p.; 21 cm. Edited by R. R. Dykstra; principal translator, Johanna C. Riedhorst. "1 June 1944 ... published for the use of the United States Armed Forces in the Southwest Pacific area by command of General MacArthur."--p. [ii]. Imprint from NUC pre-1956 and colophon. t.p. verso. From the Breon Mitchell collection of bi-lingual dictionaries. Also issued online. Bound in orange cloth lettered in black. NUC pre-1956 610:149 (NU 0056711).

"The following Malay-English Dictionary is based primarily on a translation of Van Ronkel's Malay-Dutch Dictionary amplified and amended to meet the specific need of United States Forces operating in territory where Malay is the common medium of expression. ... The birthplace of the Malayan language is the island of Sumatra. From here it spread in the thirteenth century to the peninsula of Malacca and subsequently, as the result of Malay immigration, over the greater part of the Eastern Archipelago. Under Indian influence Malay adopted a large number of Sanskrit words, and later, owing to the advance of the Mohammedan religion and civilization, borrowed largely from Arabia, and later still from Western languages, especially Portuguese and Dutch" (Note).

1944: [LILLYbm] Handbook of the Malay Language containing Phrases, Grammar and Dictionary with special attention to Military and Vocational Requirements, by Eduard F[erdinand] Winckel. South Pasadena, California: P.D. and Ione Perkins, 1944. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in black. Pp. I-vi vii-viii xix-xii, 1-5 6-183 184. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. English-Malay dictionary, pp. [85]-183.

"Dedicated to Indonesia, my native land. May this book help in the early liberation from the usurpers. Salam dan Bahagia!" "This handbook deals primarily with the conversational language which is in common use throughout the thousands of islands of the Netherlands East Indies, the Malayan Peninsula, parts of Siam, Burma, Indo-China, and the Philippine Islands. Without a knowledge of this language, it is practically impossible to conduct any kind of business or vocation in Indonesia... Attention must be called to a peculiarity of Malay speech. Certain words are used by the natives only when addressing their superiors, such as their chiefs, or white people - never vice-versa. In this handbook, these words - which will be heard, but seldom used by the Westerner - are designated 'polite.' There are also some words which the natives use only when speaking to a subordinate or close relative. The Occidental might use them occasionally - to a coolie for instance. These are designated 'familiar'" (Foreword).

1944: [LILLYbm] A simple but complete grammar of the Malay language including an English-Malay vocabulary, a Malay-English dictionary, three appendices and a number of translation exercises, by James Pearce. Perth: [the author?] Service Printing Co., 1944. Original gray wrappers, lettered and decorated in black and ochre. Pp. 1-4 5-192. First edition. Not in Zaubmüller. OCLC lists an edition of 1944 published by the Malay Publishing House of 235 pp. that appears to be a commercial edition, still in print as late as 1960. English-Malay, pp. 83-114, and Malay-English, pp. 117-192. This copy with the ink stamp of the Australian Army Educational Library.

"[This is] the most comprehensive Text Book in the Malay language available anywhere, and it is published at a price well within the means of all" (Foreword). "The millions who speak [Malay] have been, almost overnight, precipitated into the maelstrom of active world economy and politics. They lived on the outer edge until 1941. Intercourse between us and these near neighbours will expand to gigantic proportions in the post-war era. Opportunities for trade, opportunities for securing posts as officials and as commercial representatives, will be plentiful... Who knows how close will be the relationship between Australians and Malays in the post-war era?" (Introduction).

1945: [LILLYbm] Dictionary of Standard Malay (Malay-English), by Vernon E[dwards] Hendershot & W[illiam] G[irdlestone] Shellabear. Mountain View, California: Pacific Press Publishing Association, 1945. Original gray-green cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in black; dust jacket red, white and blue, lettered in white. Pp. [2] 1-6 7-235 236. First edition. Zaubmüller, col. 265.

"The Malay-English part of A Dictionary of Standard Malay makes its appearance in the United States at a time when Indonesia and Malaya are cut off from direct communication with us because of the war in the Pacific" (Preface, Hendershot). "This dictionary is based to some extent of the Malay-English vocabulary of about 6,500 words which I published at Singapore in 1902. Dr. Hendershot was formerly an educator and missionary in Malaya and Borneo, making frequent visits to Java and Sumatra. He has brought the book up to date by the addition of a large number of words, and especially those words which are used in the Netherlands Indies" (Foreword, Shellabear).

1950a: [IUW] A practical modern English-Malay dictionary, by Richard Winstedt. 2nd ed., rev. Singapore, Kelly & Walsh, 1954. 388 p. 19 cm.

1950b: [IUW] Malayisch-Deutsches und Deutsch-Malayisches Wörterbuch, by Gerhard Kahlo. Berlin, Akademie-Verlag, 1950. 422 p. 18 cm.

1953: [LILLYbm] A Practical Modern Malay-English Dictionary with an Appendix of Arabic Spellings, by Sir Richard Winstedt. Singapore: Kelly & Walsh Limited, [1953]. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in black: d.j. green, lettered in black. First edition. Zaubmüller, col. 265.

"With changed conditions in life and the introduction of modern ideas in the fields of politics, warfare, and science, the Malay language has acquired... a far larger vocabulary than it had when Sir Richard Winstedt compiled his now famous large English-Malay Dictionary... This volume, which has been designed for all races of Malaya, is a companion work to A Practical Modern English-Malay Dictionary by the same author" (from the dust jacket).

Second edition, revised and enlarged 1957: [IUW] A practical modern Malay-English dictionary, by Richard Winstedt. 2d ed., rev. and enl. Singapore; Marican, [1957] 203 p.

1957a: [IUW] A Malay-English dictionary (romanised), by R.J. Wilkinson. London; Macmillan; New York; St. Martin's, 1957. 2 v. (iv, 1291 p.); 26 cm. Malay language--Dictionaries--English.

1957b: [LILLYbm] Buku Kata Tiga Bahasa Melayu-Inggeris-China Dengan Bunyi Melayu dan China. Vocabulary in Three Languages, Malay-English-Chinese (with Pronunciation) [Title also in Chinese characters], by Jamaluddin bin Haji Ibrahim. Seremban: Anika Store, [1957]. Original blue-gray cloth over boards, lettered in black. Pp. [6] 1-192 193-198. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Preliminary material in Indonesian and Chinese.

1958: [LILLYbm] Dictionary of English-Malay and Malay-English, by Sulaiman Bin Ahmad. Kuala Lumpur: Jubilee (Book) Store, 1958. Original green cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [4] [English-Malay]1-150 [2] [Malay-English] 1-150. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller.

"Translating English words into Malay and vice-versa has been my profession for life and it is hoped that this dictionary which is compiled entirely from that experience, an experience extending over forty years, would be of great use to the people of Malaya..." (Preface).

1958: [LILLYbm] An Unabridged English-Malay Dictionary, by Richard Winstedt. Singapore: Marican & Sons, 1958. Original green cloth over boards, lettered and illustrated in black; d.j. green, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. 1-6 7-398 [2]. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. English-Malay, pp. 7-395, with appendix, pp. 396-398. This copy with ownership inscription: "Personal property of S. P. Miller" inside front cover. (An ink stamp in a companion volume reads: "Spencer Paul Miller | American Embassy | Kuala Lumpur, Malaya").

"It is more than forty years since Sir Richard Winstedt published his well-known large English-Malay Dictionary. The present companion volume to his Unabridged Malay-English Dictionary is an entirely new work with closer definitions of old words and a large number of additional English words that of recent years have found Malay or Indonesian equivalents, following the cultural and political progress of the Malay race. This new work should be invaluable to all who wish to speak or write Malaya's national language idiomatically and with precision" (from the front flap of the dust jacket).

1959: [IUW] An unabridged Malay-English dictionary, by Richard Winstedt. Third edition with a new appendix. Singapore; Marican and Sons, 1959. 375 p.; 23 cm. Based on the work of Richard James Wilkinson.

1966: [IUW] An unabridged new crown dictionary of national language, English-Malay, by Dr. S. Santoso. 2d ed. Singapore, Phoenix Publications, 1966. 366 p. New crown dictionary of national language, English-Malay.

25th edition 1968: [IUW] Unabridged standard new crown dictionary of national language: Malay-English, English-Malay, by S. Santoso. 25th ed. Singapore, Phoenix, 1968. 526 p.

ca. 1967: [LILLYbm] Malay-English. English-Malay Dictionary. No place, no publisher, n.d. [pre-1968]. Bound in red cloth over boards, lettered in red. with homemade cloth tabs. Ff. 130, reproduced from typescript. With the ownership signature of Lynn Ray Callender (Ph.D. 1968).

1968: [IUW] New Crown Dictionary of national language: Malay-English, English-Malay, by S. Santoso. 11th ed. Singapore, Phoenix Company, 1968. 1 v. (various pagings).

12th edition 1969: [IUW] Practical new crown dictionary of national language, Malay - English, English - Malay., by Suwito Santoso. 12th ed. Singapore, Phoenix Co., 1969. 345, 506 p.

1970a: [IUW] Istilah kejuruteraan: Inggeris-Melayu, by Dewan Bahasa dan Pustaka. First edition. [Chetakan 1.] Kuala Lumpur, 1970. xvi, 542 p. 19 cm. English-Malay dictionary of technology.

1970b: [IUW] Istilah undang-undang: Inggeris-Melayu, by Dewan Bahasa dan Pustaka. First edition. [Cetakan 1.] Kuala Lumpur, Dewan Bahasa dan Pustaka, 1970. xv, 323 p. 18 cm. English-Malay law dictionary.

1970c: [LILLYbm] Mini Dictionary Malay-English English-Malay, by Haji Abdul Musa. Singapore: Central News Agency, 1970. Original red, white, and blue wrappers, lettered in red, white, and blue. Printed dos-a-dos. 307 pp. [English-Malay]; 220 pp. [Malay-English], with pp. 221-284 printed on yellow paper with "rules of grammar ... and other relevant matter ... of immense value to candidates sitting for ... public examinations." First edition.

"It is my earnest hope that this MINI DICTIONARY be a constant companion to every student. It has been aptly sized so as to enable every student to carry it along with him. It can fit easily into a pocket."

1975 [1992]: [IUW] Bahasa Malaysia-English, English-Bahasa Malaysia, by Haji Abdul Rahman bin Yusop; [general editor, W.T. McLeod] Revised ed. Glasgow; HarperCollins, c1975 (1992 printing) xxiv, 614 p.; 11 cm. Collins gem. Cover title: Malay dictionary, Malay-English, English-Malay. Latest reprint 1992. Over 46,000 references.

1976 [1978]: [IUW] A Malay-English dictionary, by A.E. Coope. Student ed. London; New York; Macmillan, 1978, c1976. iv, 310, vii, 189 p.; 18 cm. Cover title: Macmillan's Malay-English English-Malay dictionary. "Revised in the new Malay spelling (ejaan baru)."

New edition 1983: [IUW] Malay-English, English-Malay dictionary, by A.E. Coope. Rev. ed. New York; Hippocrene Books, 1993. vi, 631 p.; 22 cm. Hippocrene standard dictionary "Originally published by Macmillan Education Limited"--T.p. verso.

1977: [IUW] Malažišsko-russko-angliški slovar'; okolo 1500 slov, by N. V. Rott, V. A. Pogadaev, A. P. Pavlenko. Moskva; Russkii ĭazyk, 1977. 400 p.; 21 cm. Russian in Cyrillic script. Added t. p.: Kamus Malaysia-Russia-Inggeris. Bibliography: p. 8. Malay-Russian-English dictionary.

1986: [IUW] Russko-malažišskii slovar'; okolo 30,000 slov, by V.A. Pogadaev, N.V. Rott; pod redaktsiē V.A. Pogadaeva. Moskva; "Russkii ĭazyk", 1986. 502 p.; 23 cm. Title on added t.p.: Kamus bahasa Russia-bahasa Malaysia. Malay-Russian-Russian-Malay dictionary.

2013: [IUW] Kamus Cina-Melayu Dewan = 国家语文局华马词典.
Kamus Cina-Melayu Dewan = Guo jia yu wen ju Hua Ma ci dian. Cetakan pertama. Kuala Lumpur; Dewan Bahasa dan Pustaka; United Publishing House (M) Sdn. Bhd., 2013. xiii, 28, 1021 pages; 23 cm Chinese-Malay dictionary. Includes index.

[MALAYALAM] Malayalam /mɒləˈjɑːləm/ (മലയാളം, Malayāḷam [mələjaːləm]) is a language spoken in India, predominantly in the state of Kerala. It is one of the 22 scheduled languages of India and was designated a Classical Language in India on 2013. It belongs to the Dravidian family of languages and is spoken by some 38 million people. Modern Malayalam still preserves many words from the ancient Tamil vocabulary of Sangam literature. Due to its lineage deriving from both Tamil and Sanskrit, the Malayalam script has the largest number of letters among the Indian language orthographies. The Malayalam script includes letters capable of representing almost all the sounds of all Indo-Aryan and Dravidian languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mal. Alternate Names: Alealum, Malayalani, Malayali, Malean, Maliyad, Mallealle, Mopla.

1772: [LILLY] Alphabetum grandonico-malabaricum sive samscrudonicum, Peani, Clemente, d. 1782. Romae, typis Sac. congregationis de propag. fide, 1772. The earliest printed examples of Malabarese type, now known as Malayalam.

1846: [LILLYbm] A dictionary of high and colloquial Malayalim and English, dedicated by permission to His Highness the Rajah of Travancore, by B[enjamin Bailey [1791-1871]]. Cottayam: Printed at the Church Mission Press, 1846. Contemporary brown leather over boards, decorated and lettered in blind. Pp. i-v vi-viii, 1 2-852. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 264. Malayalam-English, pp. [1]-852. J. Ph. Fabricius published a Malabar [Malayalam] and English Dictionary near Madras in 1779. Bailey makes no mention of this dictionary.

"With reference to the work now submitted to the public the Author would... remark that it is the first of its kind ever published, and he flatters himself that it will prove of service to those who are desirous of obtaining a tolerably competent knowledge of the Malayalim language.... A work of this kind has long been a great desideratum.... Very soon after his arrival in the country, upwards of twenty-nine years ago, he commenced collecting materials in order to supply this desideratum at some future period, should it please God to spare his life, which He has mercifully done.... Being the first work of its kind ever published it cannot be expected to be entirely free from defect.... There still remains another desideratum to which the attention of the Author has been drawn, viz. an English and Malayalim Dictionary to accompany the present work. He has prepared sufficient materials to commence printing such a work, and should his life be spared, he hopes to publish it..." (Preface).

1871-1872: [LILLYbm] A Malayalam and English dictionary, by Hermann Gundert (1814-1893). Mangalore; London: C. Stolz; Trubner & Co., 1871-1872. Contemporary red half-leather and red cloth over boards, lettered in gold, preserving the original colored wrappers of the Prospectus and all five parts. Pp. [2] I-III IV-XVIII, 1 2-

1116. First edition, issued in parts. Zaunmüller, col. 264. This copy with release stamp from the British Museum, in the BM binding with "British Museum" and crown in gold on front and rear covers, and "British Museum" stamped on top edge. Malayalam-English, pp. [1]-1116.

"The materials for this work have been collected during more than twenty-five years' study of the language. The words have been taken from all available sources, from the lips of speakers of all ranks, castes and occupations, from the letters and records of many different districts, and from the writers in prose and poetry of every age.... To discard coarse and even obscene modes of speech, has not been thought advisable, however much their existence and currency may be regretted. They are marked 'obsc.', as was done by the fathers of Vorapoli in their day, that they may be avoided.... It is one of the chief defects of [the Rev. Mr. Bailey's Dictionary (Cottayam, 1846)] that it does not discriminate between Malayalam and Sanscrit terms and leaves the student completely in the dark, both as regards the etymology and the proportional importance of words. For it concedes to unknown and useless words... as well as to those that are comparatively unimportant... more space, than to words of the genuine native stock that occur frequently in idioms of daily current use" (Preface).

Reprinted 1999: [IUW] Malayalam-English dictionary, by H[ermann] Gundert. New Delhi; Asian Educational Services, 1999. xviii, 1116 p.; 23 cm. Reprint of: A Malayalam and English dictionary. 1872. Subtitle in Malayalam.

1907: [LILLY] An English-Malayalam dictionary, by Tobias Zacharias. Mangalore: Basel Mission Book and Tract Depository, 1907. xiv, 1386 p.; 22 cm. Contemporary half-leather and maroon paper over boards, with "Dic." in ink on the spine. Ownership signature of S. J. Cohen dated 1952. Zaunmüller 264 lists only the second edition of 1933, Anglo-Malayalam (see below).

Second edition 1933: [LILLYbm] Anglo-Malayalam dictionary. Second Edition, by Tobias Zacharias, revised and enlarged by his son, Oliver Zacharias. Mangalore: Basel Mission Book and Tract Depository, 1933. Original black half-leather and yellow cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. i-iii iv-xiv, 1 2-1362 1363-1364. Second edition. Zaunmüller, col. 264. The first edition appeared in 1907 (see above). English-Malayalam, pp. 1-1362.

"A second edition of this dictionary has been necessitated by the increasing demand for it. The Publishers, who own the copyright, deemed it fit to entrust the revision of the book by me, probably, because I am the son of the Original Compiler. The aim of the revision has been to include Malayalam terms and expressions current in Travancore and Cochin usage, which did not find place in the Original Edition" (Preface to the Second Edition).

Reprinted 1999: [IUW] English-Malayalam dictionary, by Tobias Zacharias; revised and enlarged by Oliver F.E. Zacharias. 2nd ed. New Delhi; Asian Educational Services, 1999. xiv, 1362 p.; 22 cm. Reprint. Originally published: 1933.

1969: [IUW] Sridevi Malayalam-English dictionary. Compiled by Karunakara Menon Vadakkekara. Revised and enlarged second edition. Ernakulam, C.I.C.C. Book House, 1969. 1220 p. Added t.p. in Malayalam.

1971: [LILLYbm] Malaialam-russkii slovar. okolo 40 000 slov, Mikhail Sergeevich Andronov. Moscow: "Sov. entsiklopediia," 1971. Original orange cloth over boards, lettered in silver and blind. Pp. 1-5 6-871 872. First edition. Malayalam-Russian, pp. [15]-826. First Russian dictionary of Malayalam. A Russian-Malayalam dictionary appeared in 1984. Second copy: IUW.

[MALAYAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT] The Malay or Malayan languages are a group of closely related languages spoken by Malays and related peoples across Brunei, Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore, Southern Thailand and the far southern parts of the Philippines. They have traditionally been classified as Malay, Para-Malay, and Aboriginal Malay, but this reflects geography and ethnicity rather than a proper linguistic classification. The Malayan languages are mutually unintelligible to varying extents, though the distinction between language and dialect is unclear in many cases (Wiki).

1817: [LILLY] The history of Java. By Thomas Stamford Raffles, Esq. ...; In two volumes ...; With a map and plates. London:: Printed for Black, Parbury, and Allen, Booksellers to the Hon. East-India Company ... and John Murray ..., 1817. 2 v.: ill., facsim., fronts., maps (1 fold. col.), ports.; 27 cm. (4to). Bound in quarter calf, marbled boards. A comparative vocabulary of the Maláyu, Jávan, Madurese, Báli and Lampúng languages, vol. II. p. [lxxi]-clxvi; Comparative vocabulary of the Sánskrit, Káwi, and Páli, p. clxvii; Vocabulary [English-]Kawi, p. clxviii-clxxiv; Comparative vocabulary of the Bugis, Makasar, Mandhar, Búton, Sasak, Bíma, Sembáwa, Tembóra and Endé languages, p. [cxcviii-cic]; Comparative vocabulary of the Gunung Talu, TMenadu, Ternati, Sang'ir, Sirang or Ceram, and Saporúa languages, p. [cc-cci]. Printers' imprint on verso of t.p. and at end of each vol.: Printed by Cox and Baylis ... Advertisements: [1] p. at end of v. 2 (Abbey records two leaves). From the library of C.R. Boxer.

[MALAYO-POLYNESIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT] The Malayo-Polynesian languages are a subgroup of the Austronesian languages, with approximately 385.5 million speakers. The Malayo-Polynesian languages are spoken by the Austronesian people of the island nations of Southeast Asia and the Pacific Ocean, with a smaller number in continental Asia. Cambodia, Laos, and Vietnam serve as the northwest geographic outlier, going well into the Malay peninsula. On the northern most geographical outlier does not pass beyond the north of Pattani, which is located in southern Thailand. Malagasy is spoken in the island of Madagascar located off the eastern coast of Africa in the Indian Ocean. Part of the language family shows a strong influence of Sanskrit and particularly Arabic as the Western part of the region has been a stronghold of Buddhism, Hinduism, and, since the 10th century, Islam (Wiki).

1906: [LILLY] Ein Prodrömus zu einem vergleichenden wörterbuch der malaio-polynesischen sprachen für sprachforscher und ethnographen. Malaio-polynesische Forschungen, by Dr. Renward Brandstetter. Zweite Reihe. III. Luzern: Verlag der Buchhandlung E. Haag, 1906. Original Wrpps, 8vo. 74pp. Arranged in three sections: 1. theoretical 2. Excerpt from a Malayo-Polynesian comparative dictionary, pp. [30]-68, and 3. a practical criticism of theory and excerpt.

1941: [LILLYbm] Kleines vergleichendes malayo-polynesisches Wörterbuch, by Gerhard Kahlo [1893- ]. Leipzig: Otto Harrassowitz, 1941. Original tan wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. 1-9 10-78 79-80. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 305. Includes comparative vocabulary of over 200 German words arranged alphabetically, followed by equivalents in over 90 different Malayo-Polynesian languages, pp. 13-70, with a list of common stems with German meanings, pp. [71]-78. This copy with the ink stamps of the Ostasiatische Institut der Universität Leipzig.

"This little book merely offers a compilation of scattered individual bits of knowledge; naturally my own observations and conclusions are also included here and there. If there are occasional uncertainties, it arises from the thousand of sources from different eras with their sometimes limited perspectives.... In some areas we still lack precise information; as recently as 1932 Bernatzik found tribes in German New Guinea who had never seen a white man... It is not possible here to list all the hundreds of sources (texts, dictionaries, grammars, essays) employed. I merely mention that I began over thirty years ago with Brandstetter's methods; more recently Dempwolff clarified various matters for me in letters and in his works, for which I thank the now departed scholar publicly" (Basic Remarks, tr: BM).

[MALDIVIAN] Maldivian (divehi or divehi-bas) is an Indo-Aryan language predominantly spoken by about 350,000 people in the Maldives, where it is the national language. It is also the first language of nearly 10,000 people on the island of Minicoy in the Union territory of Lakshadweep, India, where the Mahl dialect of the Maldivian language is spoken. The ethnic autonym for the language, Divehi, is occasionally found in English as Dhivehi, which is the official spelling as well as the common usage in the Maldives. Maldivian is written in the Thaana script. The major dialects of Maldivian are Malé, Huvadhu, Mulaku, Addu, Haddhunmathee, and Maliku. The standard form of Maldivian is Malé, which is spoken in the Maldivian capital of the same name. The Maliku dialect spoken in Minicoy is officially referred to as Mahl by the Lakshadweep administration. This has been adopted by many authors when referring to Maldivian spoken in Minicoy. Maldivian is a descendent of Maharashtri Prakrit and is closely related to the Marathi, Konkani and Sinhalese languages, but not mutually intelligible with them. The English words atoll (a ring of coral islands or reefs) and dhoni (a vessel for inter-atoll navigation) are anglicised forms of the Maldivian words atoḷu and dōni (Wiki).

Ethnologue: div. Alternate Names: Dhivehi, Divehi, Divehi Bas, Divehli, Mali, Malikh, Malki.

1619: [LILLY] Voyage de François Pyrard, de Laval: contenant sa navigation aux Indes orientales, Maldives, Moluques, Bresil: les diuers accidens, aduétudes & dangers qui luy sont arriuez en ce voyage, tant en allant & retournant, que pendant son sejour de dix ans dans ces païs là: avec la description des pays, moeurs, loix, façons de faire, police & gouvernement: du trafic & commerce qui s'y fait: des animaux, arbres, fruicts, & autres singularitez: divisé en deux parties ... avec vn petit dictionnaire de la langue des Maldives, by François Pyrard de Laval [ca. 1570-1621]. A Paris: Chez Samuel Thiboust ... et chez la veufue Remy Dallin ..., Troisième et dernière ed., revue corrigée & augmentée de beaucoup outre les précédents, 1619. 2 v. ([xii], 366, [xxxii]; [xvi], 434, [lxiv] p.); 18 cm. Kress Lib.; S.457; Brunet.; IV:991. Note(s): Vol. 2 has its own title page, and an added title page; Traité et description des animaux ... Also attributed to Jérôme Bignon and/or Pierre Bergeron. Cf. NUC, BN, Brunet. Originally published 1611, first thus in 1615. Traité et description des animaux is on p. 363 of v. 2 to the end; has special t.p. Includes indexes. Contemporary calf with spines decorated in gold. Third edition, first (and only?) with the “petit dictionnaire de la langue des Maldives”, consisting of a two-page introduction and ten pp. French-Maldivian, immediately following p. 434 of the second volume. From the library of Charles Boxer, with his signature.

1990: [LILLYbm] Say it in Maldivian (Dhivehi), by H[assan] A[hmed] Maniku & J[ayaratna] B[anda] Disanayaka. Colombo, Sri Lanka: Lake House Investments, 1990. Original multi-colored wrappers, lettered in white, yellow and black, with an illustration on the front cover. Pp. [6] / 2-358. First edition. English-Dhivehi only, pp. 253-351.

"When in the Maldives it would help a great deal if you can speak Dhivehi, the language of the Maldivian" (from rear cover). "The language spoken by the Maldivians belongs to the Indo-Aryan group of languages and it has developed on its own line from the mainstream of Indian language...Maldivians are hospitable and they treat you with respect and love. They may invite you to their humble abodes with joy and try to help you. You, the gentle stranger, on these islands, are most honoured and welcomed...it is assumed that you would not venture so far off the main road as to need the complete mastery of the language...This is a 'first aid in Dhivehi', for minor risks you may want to take while in the Maldives. But, then, if adventure was not good for your nerves, you wouldn't be reading this booklet anyway!...Throughout this booklet the dialect spoken in Malé has been used. But at various points regional variants are given to show what a rich language Dhivehi is" (Introduction).

[MALE] Maale (also spelled Male), is an Omotic language spoken in the Omo Region of Ethiopia by the Male people. It is called Male (Ethiopia) in ISO 639-3 to distinguish it from Male (Papua New Guinea) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mdy. Alternate Names: Maale.

1909: see under BONGU.

[MALECITE-PASSAMAQUODDY] Malecite–Passamaquoddy (also known as Maliseet–Passamaquoddy) is an endangered Algonquian language spoken by the Maliseet and Passamaquoddy peoples along both sides of the border between Maine in the United States and New Brunswick, Canada. The language consists of two major dialects: Malecite, which is mainly spoken in the Saint John River Valley in New Brunswick; and Passamaquoddy, spoken mostly in the St. Croix River Valley of eastern Maine. However, the two dialects differ only slightly, mainly in accent. Malecite-Passamaquoddy was widely spoken by the indigenous people in these areas until around the post-World War II era, when changes in the education system and increased marriage outside of the speech community caused a large decrease in the number of children who learned or regularly used the language. As a result, in both Canada and the U.S. today, there are only 600 speakers of both dialects, and most speakers are older adults. Although the majority of younger people cannot speak the language (particularly the Passamaquoddy dialect), there is growing interest in teaching the language in community classes and in some schools (Wiki).

Ethnologue: pqm. Alternate Names: Maliseet-Passamaquoddy.

1851: [IUW] The Indian of New-England, and the north-eastern provinces; a sketch of the life of an Indian hunter, ancient traditions relating to the Etchemin tribe, their modes of life, fishing, hunting, &c.; with vocabularies in the Indian and English, giving the names of the animals, birds, and fish; the most complete that has been given for New-England, in the languages of the Etchemin and Micmacs ... derived from Nicola Tenesles, by a citizen of Middletown, Conn. Middletown, Conn.; Charles H. Pelton, printer, 1851. 24 p.; 21 cm. Attributed to Joseph Barratt. "Key to the Indian language of New-England"; p. 15-24.

1899: Maliseet vocabulary, by Montague Chamberlain [1844-1924]. Cambridge, Mass.: Harvard Cooperative Society, 1899. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. 1-4 5-94 95-96. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. English-Maliseet [Malecite] thematically arranged, pp. 18-66, with English-Maliseet phrases and sentences, pp. 67-92. The first substantial published vocabulary of the language.

"The tribe of Indians now commonly known as the Maliseets is confined chiefly to the valley of the River St. John, in the Province of New Brunswick. It includes, according to the official figures of 1892, six-hundred and fifty-three individuals; and for some years they have been slowly increasing in numbers.... The published vocabularies of the Maliseet tongue are very few.... Mr. Pilling... has so nearly exhausted the subject that we can do no better than refer all students to his work.... The very scantiness of this list forcibly illustrates the service of such a work as Mr. Chamberlain's" (Introduction, William Ganong).

1981: [LILLY] Indianisches Wörterbuch: Malecite, Deutsch, Englisch, by László Szabó [1922- ]. Wiesbaden: Harrassowitz, 1981. 257 p.; 24 cm. Original purple wrappers, lettered in white. First edition. Malecite-German-English, pp. [29]-257.

1984: [IUW] Kolusuwakonol: peskotomuhkati-wolastoqewi naka ikolisomani latuwewakon = Philip S. LeSourd's English and Passamaquoddy-Maliseet dictionary, edited and revised by Robert M. Leavitt and David A. Francis. Fredericton, N.B.: Micmac-Maliseet Institute, University of New Brunswick, 1984. xii, 184 p.; 28 cm. First edition. First true dictionary of the language.

"Philip S. LeSourd originally created this dictionary for the Wabnaki Bilingual Education Program at Indian Township, Maine. It was first issued there in 1979 as a typed manuscript. Working in Maine and New Brunswick, LeSourd designed the format for Passamaquoddy entries which is used in this volume and compiled the original collection of words. The dictionary was circulated in Maine and New Brunswick. In 1984 the Pleasant Point Title IV-A Program... decided to expand and publish the dictionary... Robert M. Leavitt.. and David A. Francis... took on the task of editing, amending, and cross-referencing the entries. .. Clearly, the greatest credit goes to those speakers of Passamaquoddy-Maliseet who have provided the words in the dictionary" (Preface).

2003: see under ABENAKI, EASTERN.

2008: [IUW] A Passamaquoddy-Maliseet dictionary; Peskotomuhkati Wolastoqewi Latuwewakon, by David A. Francis and Robert M. Leavitt. 1st ed. Orono, ME; University of Maine Press; Fredericton, N.B.; Goose Lane Editions, 2008. xiii, 1198 p.; map; 29 cm. Original black cloth over boards, lettered in silver. Includes bibliographical references (p. 48-49). Passamaquoddy-Maliseet-English, pp. 53-636, and English-Passamaquoddy-Maliseet, pp. 697-1198. Includes a discussion of the origins of the Dictionary in the Acknowledgements, p. v.

"Since 1984 Francis and Leavitt have continued expanding the dictionary collection.... They, together with community research coordinator Margaret Apt (also a fluent, first-language Passamaquoddy speaker), have created and edited the present collection for publication. Approximately 16,500 of the more than 18,000 entries in this volume may also be found online" (Acknowledgements).

[MALTESE] Maltese (Maltese: Malti) is the national language of Malta and a co-official language of the country alongside English, while also serving as an official language of the European Union, the only Semitic language so distinguished. Maltese is descended from Siculo-Arabic, the variety of Arabic that developed in Sicily and was later introduced to Malta, between the end of the ninth century and the end of the twelfth century. Maltese is a unique branch of Arabic because it has evolved independently of Literary Arabic into a standardized language over the past 800 years in a gradual process of Latinisation. About half of the vocabulary is derived from standard Italian and Sicilian; English words make up between 6% and 20% of the Maltese vocabulary, according to different estimates. The original Semitic base (Siculo-Arabic) comprises around one-third of the Maltese vocabulary, and typically includes words that denote basic ideas and the function words. Maltese has always been written in the Latin script, the earliest surviving example dating from the late Middle Ages. It remains the only Semitic language written in the Latin script in its standard form (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mlt. Alternate Names: Malti.

1750: [LILLY] Della lingua punica presentemente usata da Maltesi &c. ovvero nuovi documenti, li quali possono servire di lume all'antica lingua etrusca; stesi in due dissertazioni &c., by Giovanni Pietro Francesco Agio de Soldanis, 1710 (ca.)-1760. Roma: Generoso Salomoni, 1750. 199 p. 17 cm. Cointemporary vellum with leather label on spine lettered in gold. Maltese-Italian, pp. 118-184, Italian-Maltese, pp. 185-197. Not in Zauhmüller (pre-dates any dictionary of Maltese listed there). Note(s): On the title page, the date of publication follows the place of publication. Signatures: A-L8 M12. Grammar: 'Nuova scuola di grammatica per agevolmente apprendere la lingua Punica-Maltese ...' with separate title-page (p. [65]) and varying imprint: 'In Roma. MDCCL. Per Generoso Salomoni ...'. Woodcut vignettes on both title pages; woodcut head and tail pieces; initials. Another edition of this text appeared in the same year, with Generoso Salomoni named in both imprints. With errata on page 199.

1938: [LILLYbm] A Maltese-Arabic Word-list, Showing which of the corresponding Arabic roots are shared by other Semitic Tongues or used in the Quran, C.L. Dessoulaby. London: Luzac & Co, 1938. Original tan quarter-cloth and gray paper on boards, lettered in black. 146 pp. First edition. Zauhmüller, col. 266.

"From a manuscript Comparative Lexicon of the Semitic Tongues which I have had in hand for many years, I have lifted bodily the Maltese roots, and, after sorting them out in the order of the European alphabet, I am offering the outcome to that tiny public that takes an interest in such matters...I am assuming the reader has access to one or other of the Maltese-English dictionaries from which to supplement the all-too-brief definitions of Maltese words here given...Finally, a word of excuse is due to the reader for the form in which the present work appears [a copy of the hand-written manuscript]...I found myself producing the bulk of the book at home; hence too the plentiful smudges with which my inexperience has besmirched it. For this, pardon is humbly asked."

1939-1940: [IUW] Dizionario maltese-arabo-italiano, con una grammatica comparata arabo-maltese, by Giuseppe Maria Barberaa. Beirut, Lebanon: Imprimerie catholique, 1939-1940. 4 v. 25 cm. Contents: v. 1. A-E.--v. 2. F-L.--v. 3. M-S.--v. 4. T-. Note(s): At head of title: D. Giuseppe Barbera./ Title in Arabic on p. [4] of cover of each volume. "Bibliografia": v. 1, p. [xvi]-xxii.

1987: [LILLYbm] Maltese-English Dictionary, Vol. One A-I, Vol. Two M-Z and Addenda, by Joseph Aquilina. Malta: Midsea Books Ltd, 1987. Original brown cloth over boards, lettered in gold; dust jackets photographic imitation of heavy jute, lettered in brown. Pp. [Vol. 1] i-vii viii-xliii xliv, 1 2-764; [Vol. 2] [8] 765-1673 1674. First edition. Maltese-English, pp. 1-1637, addenda, pp. 1639-1650, and a bibliography of Maltese dictionaries arranged chronologically, pp. xxv-xxvi. A comprehensive and scholarly dictionary.

1998: [IUW] Maltese-English, English-Maltese dictionary and phrasebook, by Grazio Falzono. New York: Hippocrene Books, 1998. 155 p.; 18 cm. ISBN: 0781805651; 9780781805650 LCCN: 97-41115. Note(s): Includes bibliographical references (p. 155).

2006a: [IUW] Concise Maltese English, English Maltese dictionary, Joseph Aquilina. Sta Venera, Malta: Midsea Books, 2006. 1189 p.; 20 cm. ISBN: 9993270709.

2006b: [IUW] Dictionary for financial services: English-Maltese, Maltese-English, by Carlo Farrugia. Valletta, Malta: Midsea Books, 2006. ix, 164 p.; 25 cm. Notes: Includes bibliographical references (p. [viii]-ix). ISBN: 9993271225 .ISBN: 9789993271222.

[MAM] Mam is a Mayan language with half a million speakers in the Guatemalan departments of Quetzaltenango, Huehuetenango, San Marcos, and Retalhuleu, and 10,000 in the Mexican state of Chiapas. There are also thousands more in the states of California and Washington, D.C., in the United States. Because of Spanish colonial policy, which enforced a harsh penalty upon the written use of indigenous languages, the language can vary widely from village to village. Because of the lack of a standardized written dialect throughout the colonial era, different villages developed regional accents which evolved into full differentiated dialects, even though the villages may only be a few miles apart from each other. Furthermore, the Mam people have continually occupied their present-day territory, long before the Spanish Conquest, possibly as early as 500 A.D. according to linguist Terrence Kaufman (England 1983:6). This would explain the great dialectal diversity among the Mamean languages. Nevertheless, mutual intelligibility, though difficult, is possible through practice (England 1983) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mam. Alternate Names: Huehuetenango Mam.

1892: see under MESOAMERICAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1916: [IUW] Vocabulario de la lengua mame, compuesto por el padre predicador fray Diego de Reynoso ... impreso por Francisco Robledo en 1644 y reimpresso con una breve noticia acerca de los mames y de su lengua por Alberto Maria Carreño. Mexico, Impr. de la Secretaria de fomento, 1916. 144 p. 20 cm. At head of title: Sociedad Mexicana de Geografia y Estadistica. Introduction includes outline of grammar by the editor. "La copia manuscrita que posee la Sociedad de geografía y que me ha servido para esta reproducción, fué hecha por el sabio d. Francisco Pimentel": p. 6.

1983: [IUW] Diccionario de San Ildefonso Ixtahuacán Huehuetenango; mam-español, by Juan Maldonado Andrés, Juan Ordonez Domingo, Juan Ortiz Domingo. Hannover; Verlag für Ethnologie, 1983. 2 v.; 20 cm. First edition. Dictionarios mayances; vol. 1. Cover title: Diccionario mam-español. Bibliography: v. [2], p. 81-84.

Central American edition 1986: [LILLYbm] Diccionario mam: San Idelfonso Ixtahuacan Huehuetenango: mam-espanol, by Juan Maldonado Andres, Juan Ordonez Domingo, & Juan Ortiz Domingo. Guatemala, C.A.: s.n., Talleres graficos del Centro de Reproducciones de la Universidad Rafael Landivar, 1986. Original white wrappers, lettered in black, with a color illustration of Mayan artisans at work on the front cover. Pp. [2] I-VIII IX-XCII, 1-513 514-518. With two folding linguistic maps. First Central American edition. Mam-Spanish, pp. 1-513. The first edition appeared in 1983 in Hannover, Germany, also in Spanish (see above). Second copy: IUW.

2003: [IUW] Pujboil yol mam / Koulboil Yol Twitz Paxil; Koulboil Yol Mam = Vocabulario mam, Academia de Lenguas Mayas de Guatemala; Comunidad Lingüística Mam. Guatemala; Koulboil Yol Twitz Paxil, 2003. 336 p.; 22 cm. Mam and Spanish; introd. in Mam and Spanish. Spanish-Mam dictionary.

Revised edition 2011: [IUW] Pujb'il yol Mam = Diccionario bilingüe Mam-Español, revisión y versión final Juventino de Jesús Pérez Alonzo. Guatemala; Academia de Lenguas Mayas de Guatemala, 2011. 684 p.; ill.; 21 cm. Diccionario bilingüe Mam-Español At head of title: K'ulb'il Yol Mam, K'ulb'il Yol Twitz Paxil. Originally published 2003. Includes bibliographical references. Mam entries with Spanish explanations.

2007: [IUW] Diccionario bilingüe estándar Mam ilustrado = pujb'il yol Mam, by Juventino de Jesús Pérez Alonzo. 1a ed. Guatemala; Fundación Cholsamaj / OKMA (Oxlajuuj Keej Maya' Ajtz'iib'), 2007. 656 p.; 22 cm.

[MAMBAI] Mangbai (Mamgbay, Mambai) is an Mbum language of northern Cameroon and southern Chad (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mcs. Alternate Names: Mambay, Mamgbay, Mamgbei, Manbai, Mangbai, Mangbei, Mongbay.

2014: [IUW] Dictionnaire mambay-français: index français-mambay: accompagné d'un guide d'orthographe et d'une esquisse grammaticale, élaboré par Erik J. Anonby avec Oussoumanou Kada Bouba = Mambay-French dictionary: French-Mambay index: accompanied by an orthography guide and a grammar sketch, compiled by Erik J. Anonby with Oussoumanou Kada Bouba. Garoua, Région du Nord, Cameroun: COLAMA (Comité de langue mambay); Yaoundé: SIL Cameroun, [2014]. ©2014. xii, 317 pages: illustrations, maps; 25 cm. Mambay-French dictionary. African languages monographs 6. Includes bibliographical references (pages 93-96).

[MAMBWE-LUNGU] The Mambwe and Lungu peoples living at the southern end of Lake Tanganyika in Tanzania and Zambia speak a common language with minor dialectical differences. Perhaps half of the Fipa people to their north speak it as a native language. When spoken by the Fipa, it is called "Fipa-Mambwe"; this is also the term for the branch of Bantu languages which includes Fipa and Mambwe-Lungu (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mgr. Alternate Names: Mambwe-Rungu.

1994: [LILLYbm] Mambwe-English Dictionary, by Andrezej Halemba. Ndola, Zambia: Mission Press, 1994. Original brown cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. [2] I-II III-XXIII XXIV, 1-984 985-986. First edition. This is the first dictionary of the language. Halemba is also co-translator of the New Testament into Mambwe. Second copy: IUW.

"The Mambwe tribe lives on the upland plateau in the north of Zambia...and in southwest Tanzania...The Mambwe tribe can be divided in two: the Isa people, who cultivate the grasslands, and the Maswepa people, who live in the area covered by thin forests. The Mambwe tribe in addition to their agricultural activities were also shepherds; they were also known as experts in iron extraction (ore-melting) and forging both tools and weapons...[According to Kashoik and Mann, the Mambwe and Lungu languages have a 92 percent overlap in vocabulary]" (Preface). "When in May 1983 I began to learn the language of Mambwe, it was with amazement and some jealousy that I looked at the bi-lingual dictionary that had been published several years ago by the White Fathers, it was the Bemba-English Dictionary...I decided to make, for my own personal use, an alphabetical list of all [Mambwe]words and their meanings...And so work on my dictionary was begun...I am only sorry, that through lack of time, I was unable to append to the dictionary a full work concerning the Mambwe grammar. I can only hope that it will be possible to achieve together with the publication of the English-Mambwe dictionary" (From the Author).

[MAMPRULI] The Mamprusi language, Mampruli (Mampelle, Mmampulli), is a Gur language spoken in northern Ghana by the Mamprusi people, and partially mutually intelligible with Dagbani. Comparatively little linguistic material on the language has been published; there is a brief sketch as an illustration of this subgroup of languages in Naden 1988. A collection of Mampruli proverbs has been published by R.P. Xavier Plissart, and a translation of the New Testament is in print, a sample of which can be read and heard online. There are also beginning Mampruli lessons in which the spoken language can be heard (Wiki).

Ethnologue: maw. Alternate Names: Mampelle, Mamprule, Mamprusi, Manpelle, Ngmamberli.

1932: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1967: [LILLYbm] Diccionario analitico del Mampruli, Evangelina Arana Swadesh & Mauricio Swadesh. Mexico City: Museo de las culturas, Instituto nacional de Antropologia e Historia, S.E.P., 1967. Original gray wrappers, lettered and decorated in black and reddish-brown. 96 pp. First edition. Bilingual edition, Spanish and English. Includes a Mampruli-English-Spanish dictionary, pp. [47]-75, a Spanish-Mampruli appendix, pp. [77]-86, and an English-Mampruli appendix, pp. [87]-94. First dictionary of the language. Second copy: IUW.

"The Mamprusi people are the largest single ethnic group inhabiting the area which is now known as the South Mamprusi District of the Northern Region of Ghana... The language which the Mamprusi consider to be 'Mampruli' has a number of variants. That spoken in the center of the District has greater prestige than the language spoken farther from the traditional capital of the indigenous state. But several variant forms are accepted as 'Mampruli.' Likewise, a particular type of facial scar is considered typically Mamprusi. But Mamprusi often bear other facial scars which are typical of other groups... The King, his court, and the chiefs, who receive titles from the king, are considered by the Mamprusi themselves to be the most typical features of their way of life. They consider themselves superior to their non-Mamprusi neighbors because of these institutions... The routine and etiquette which is part of courtly procedure among the Mamprusi, involves special linguistic behavior. Certain words and names are tabooed in the king's presence. Certain forms of speech are required... Cleverness in conversation is highly valued... Language might well be considered the most highly developed art form among the Mamprusi."

[MAMVU] Mamvu is a Central Sudanic language of northeastern Congo. It is quite similar to Lese (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mdi. Alternate Names: Tengo.

1912: [LILLY] Vocabulaire français-monvu et monvu-français. Dressé 'après les renseignements fournis par MM. Coens & Goderie. Bruxelles, Impr. Veuve Monnom, 1912. 53 p. 18 cm. Cover title. Original printed tan wrappers. First edition. Hendrix 1078. Second copy: IUW.

[MANAMBU] Manambu is one of the Ndu languages of Sepik River region of northern Papua New Guinea. A Manambu-based pidgin is used with speakers of Kwoma (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mle.

2008: [IUW] The Manambu language of East Sepik, Papua New Guinea / Alexandra Y. Aikhenvald ; with the assistance of Jacklyn Yuamali Ala and Pauline Agnes Luma Laki. Oxford ; New York : Oxford University Press, 2008. xxv, 702 p. : ill., map ; 26 cm. Series: Oxford linguistics. Vocabulary: Manambu-English, pp. [665]-675. ("Only words occurring in the examples and texts above are listed here"). Includes bibliographical references (p. [679]-687) and indexes. In spite of the limitation noted, this offers a substantial vocabulary of the language.

[MANCHU] Manchu (Manchu: manju gisun) is a severely endangered Tungusic language spoken in Northeast China; it was the native language of the Manchus and one of the official languages of the Qing dynasty (1636–1911). Most Manchus now speak Mandarin Chinese. According to data from UNESCO, there are 10 native speakers of Manchu out of a total of nearly 10 million ethnic Manchus. Manchu language sources have two main uses for historians of China, especially for the Qing dynasty. They supply information that is unavailable in Chinese and, when both Manchu and Chinese versions of a given text exist, they provide controls for understanding the Chinese. Like most originally Central Asian languages such as Turkic and Mongolian, Manchu is an agglutinative language that demonstrates limited vowel harmony. It has been demonstrated that it is derived mainly from the Jurchen language though there are many loan words from Mongolian and Chinese. Its script is vertically written and taken from the Mongolian alphabet (which in turn derives from Aramaic via Uyghur and Sogdian) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mnc.

1780 [2008]: [LILLY] Yu zhi Manzhu Menggu Han zi san he qie yin Qing wen jian. "Gyosei Manju Mōko kanji sangō setsuin Shin bunkan" Manshūgo hairitsu taishō goi. / Kuribayashi Hitoshi, Hurilebate'er [Chin. reading] hen. Sendai; Tōhoku Daigaku Tōhoku Ajia Kenkyū Sentā, 2008. [6], 569, [2] p.; 26 cm. Added title page: Manchu-Mongolian-Chinese triglot dictionary of 1780 arranged by Manchu words. Series: Tōhoku Ajia Kenkyū Sentā sōsho; dai 30-gō. Uniform series: Tōhoku Ajia Kenkyū Sentā sōsho; dai 30-gō. Includes bibliographical references. Dictionary in Manchu, Mongolian & Chinese; prefatory matter, notes, etc. in Japanese. In white and tan printed wrappers.

1786: [LILLY] 宜興, 18th century. Yi, Xing, 18th century. Manju gisun be niyeceme isabuha bithe = 清文補彙 / [宜興]. Manju gisun be niyeceme isabuha bithe = Qing wen bu hui / [Yi Xing]. [北京: s.n., 1786?] [Beijing: s.n., 1786?]. 8 v.; 27 cm.

Compiled as a supplement to: Manju isabuha bithe = 清文彙書. On double leaves, oriental style, in case. Manchu and Chinese. In original tan/brown wrappers, stitched.

1864: [IUW] Sse-schu, Schu-king, Schi-king in mandschischer Uebersetzung, mit einem mandschu-deutschen Wörterbuch, hrsg. von H. C. von der Gabelentz. Leipzig, F.A.Brockhaus, 1864. 2 v. 23 cm. Series: Abhandlungen für die Kunde des Morgenlandes, Bd. 3, nr.1-2. Manchu-German dictionary.

1890 [1969]: [IUW] Manju ōmunō yōn'gu, Pak Ũn-yong chō. [Taegu]: Hyōngsöl Ch'ulp'ansa, [1969- ] v.; 26 cm. English title in v. 2: Study of written Manchurian. Vol. 1 includes reprint of the original text of the Chinese-Manchu dictionary under the Chinese title: Ch'ohak p'iltok (Chu xue bi du) with date Kwangsō 16 (1890) and index arranged in Manchu romanization.

1937: [IUW] Man-Wa jiten = Manju ži-ben gisun kamcibuha bithe, Haneda Tōru hen. Kyōto; Kyōto Teikoku Daigaku Man-Mō Chōsakai, Shōwa 12 [1937]. vii, 478 p.; 23 cm. Hatsubai: Ibundō Shoten, Maruzen (Tōkyō). Manchu-Japanese dictionary.

Reprinted 1972: [IUW] Man-Wa jiten; = b Manju ži-ben gisun kamcibuha bithe, Haneda Tōru hen. Tōkyō; Kokusho Kankōkai, Shōwa 47 [1972], Shōwa 53 [1978] printing. vii, 478 p.; 22 cm. Originally published: 1937.

1952-1955: [LILLYbm] Handwörterbuch der Mandschusprache. I. Lieferung (A-gungung). II. Lfg. (gunghun-niyalamaingge). III. Lierferung (niyalmangge-z'urz'ung), in three parts, by Erich Hauer [1878-1936]. Tokyo: Verlag Deutsche Gesellschaft für Natur- und Völkerkunde Ostasiens, 1952 [Parts I-II], 1955 [Part III]. Original pink wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [Part I] [6] 1 2-10, <sup>2</sup>1 2-384 [4]; [Part II] [6] 385-712 [4]; [Part III] [2] 713-1032. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 267. Manchu-German, pp. [2<sup>1</sup>]-1032. Includes a list of the previous dictionaries of Manchu utilized in this one, pp. 3-4. Second copy: IUW.

"The present 'Handwörterbuch der Mandschusprache' is the life work of Erich Hauer, Professor at the University of Berlin, who departed life all too soon." (Foreword, tr: BM).

1967: [IUW] A Manchu-English dictionary, by Jerry Norman. Taipei; [The Liberal Arts Press], 1967. [6], 447 p.; 27 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. [5]). Manchu (romanized) and English; some terms also have Chinese equivalents. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society. This is the first English language dictionary of Manchu.

1968: [IUW] Manju Monggöl toli bicig; jokiyagsan, Cü. Lubsangjab, C. Sarakuü; erkilegsen, L. Misig. Ulağanbağatur; [Shinzhlëkh Ukhaany Akademiin Khëvlëkh üildvër], 1968. xi, 584 p.; 20 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. ix). In Manchu and Mongolian (Mongolian script, with some Cyrillic script). From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society. Manchu-Mongolian dictionary.

1969: [IUW] 滿洲語口語基礎語彙集 / 山本謙吾著; アジア.

アフリカ言語文化研究所編 Manshūgo kōgo kiso goishū / Yamamoto Kengo cho; Ajia Afrika Gengo Bunka Kenkyūjo hen. 東京; 東京外国語大学アジア.

アフリカ言語文化研究所, 昭和44[1969]. Tōkyō; Tōkyō Gaikokugo Daigaku Ajia Afrika Gengo Bunka Kenkyūjo, Shōwa 44 [1969] 234 p.; 27 cm. On verso of t.p.: A classified dictionary of spoken Manchu. Manchu-Japanese-English dictionary.

1975: [IUW] Index des Gesprochenen Mandjurisch zu Yamamoto Kengo; a classified dictionary of spoken Manchu with Manchu, English and Japanese indexes. edited by Institute for the study of languages and cultures of Asia and Africa; zusammengestellt von Dieter Kuhn, Erling von Monde. [S.l.; s.n.], 1975. viii, 89 p.; 21 cm. Classified dictionary of spoken Manchu. Cologne (Germany). Universität. Ostasiatisches Seminar. Miscellanea - Ostasiatisches Seminar; 2.

1975-1977: [IUW] Sravnitel'nyĭ slovar' tunguso-man'chzhurskikh iazykov; materialy k ètimologicheskomu slovariū, [otv. redaktor V.I. TŠintsius]. Leningrad; Nauka, 1975-1977. 2 v.; 27 cm. At head of title: Akademiia nauk SSSR. Institut iazykoznaniiā. Manchu-Russian dictionary.

1978a: [LILLYbm] A Concise Manchu-English Lexicon, by Jerry Norman. Seattle: University of Washington Press, 1978. Original dark gray cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in silver. Pp. i-vi vii-xii, 1-2 3-320 321-324. First edition thus. Publications on Asia of the School of International Studies, No. 32. Includes, Manchu-English, pp. 3-317. Norman had previously published A Manchu-English Dictionary (Taipei: Liberal Arts Press, 1967), which was the first English language dictionary of Manchu. Second copy: IUW.

"Manchu was, in theory at least, the official language of the Ch'ing dynasty in China for more than two hundred and fifty years (1644-1911). Because the ruling Manchus were vastly outnumbered by their Chinese subjects, most of the day-to-day business of the empire was undoubtedly carried out in Chinese, [but] up to the very last days of the dynasty all important documents were bilingual, having both a Manchu and Chinese version.... Manchu is of great interest to the linguist. As the best documented member of the Tungusic language family, it has played an important role in the development of the Altaic theory that relates Turkic, Mongolian, and Tungusic together in one of the world's great language families"(Preface). "I first began work on this dictionary in 1966 when I was a Fulbright Fellow in Taipei" (Acknowledgments).

1978b: [LILLYbm] Deutsch-mandjurisches Wörterverzeichnis: nach H[ans] C[anon] von der Gabelentz' Mandschu-deutschem Wörterbuch, ed. by Hartmut Walravens & Martin Grimm. Wiesbaden: Franz Steiner, 1978. Original orange and white wrappers. Pp. I-V VI-IX X, 1 2-612 613-614. First edition. Series: Sinologica coloniensiā. Östasiatische Beiträge der Universität zu Köln, Band 4. German-Manchu, pp. [1]-610, and a complete listing of all previous dictionaries of Manchu (six in number), p. VI, plus all manuscript vocabularies involving another language.

"In examining the papers of Berthold Laufer... in the Chicago Field Museum a four-volume bound manuscript German-Manchu dictionary was discovered, compiled according to a note, in the years 1885-1912. The compiler is not identified.... The manuscript is based on the well-known dictionary of Hans Canon von Gabelentz (Leipzig, 1864), to which some material from [Erwin von] Zach has been added (identified in the manuscript with 'v. Z'). The major value of the present dictionary lies in the fact that it enables the reader, for the first time, to find a word in Manchu starting with the German word. All previously published Manchu dictionaries have been Manchu-foreign language.... In addition many are old and hard to come by... As the first work of its kind, this German-Manchu dictionary will be of real practical use to those studying the Manchu language" (Foreword, tr: BM).

1981a: [IUW] A reverse index of Manchu, by William Rozycki with the assistance of Rex Dwyer. Bloomington, Ind.; Research Institute for Inner Asian Studies, Indiana University, 1981. vi, 186 p.; 23 cm. Uralic and Altaic series; v. 140. Based on "the 17,461 head-words of Hauer's Handwörterbuch der Mandschusprache."--p. ii. Bibliography: p. vi.

1981b: [IUW] 御製滿蒙蒙古漢字三合切音清文鑑 Yu zhi Man zhu Menggu Han zi san he qie yin Qing wen jian. [Taipei]; 商務 [1981]. [Taipei]; Shang wu, [1981] 8 v.; 20 cm. Series: 四庫全書珍本十一集; 027-034. Si ku quan shu zhen ben 11 ji; 027-034. Photoreprint ed. of the 文淵閣 copy. Photoreprint ed. of the Wen Yüan Ko copy. Manchu-Chinese dictionary. Manchu-Mongolian dictionary.

1988: [IUW] 簡明滿漢辭典 / 刘厚生 ... [et al.]; 王钟翰审订. Jian ming Man Han ci dian / Liu Housheng ... [et al.]; Wang Zhonghan shen ding. 第1版. Di 1 ban. First edition. 开封市; 河南大学出版社; 河南省新华书店发行, 1988. Kaifeng Shi; Henan da xue chu ban she; Henan sheng xin hua shu dian fa xing, 1988. [8], 469 p.; 21 cm. Manchu-Chinese dictionary.

1993: [IUW] 滿漢大辭典 / 主编安双成. Man Han da ci dian / zhu bian An Shuangcheng. 第1版. Di 1 ban. First edition. Shenyang; Liaoning min zu chu ban she, 1993. 3, 7, 1292 p.; 27 cm. Includes index. Manchu-Chinese dictionary.

1994a: [IUW] 新滿漢大詞典 = Iche Manzhu Nikan gisun kamchibuha buleku bithe / 主编胡增益; 编著胡增益 ... [et al.]. Xin Man Han da ci dian = Iche Manzhu Nikan gisun kamchibuha buleku bithe / zhu bian Hu Zengyi; bian zhu Hu Zengyi ... [et al.]. 第1版. Di 1 ban. First edition. 乌鲁木齐市; 新疆人民出版社, 1994. Wulumuqi Shi; Xinjiang ren min chu ban she, 1994. 5, 115, 1016 p.; 27 cm. Comprehensive Manchu-Chinese dictionary Includes indexes. Bibliography: p. 7-8 (2nd group). In Chinese and Manchu with preface and index also in English.

1994b: [IUW] Mongol elements in Manchu, by William Rozycki. Bloomington, Ind.; Indiana University, Research Institute for Inner Asian Studies, 1994. 255 p.; 24 cm.

Uralic and Altaic series; v. 157. Includes bibliographical references (p. 249-255) and index.

1999: [IUW] 清代中国語・満洲語辞典 / 中嶋幹起編

[編集東京外国語大学アジア・アフリカ言語文化研究所]; 今井健二, 高橋まり代協力. Shindai Chūgokugo Manshūgo jiten / Nakajima Motoki hen, [henshū Tōkyō Gaikokugo Daigaku Ajia Afurika Gengo Bunka Kenkyūjo]; Imai Kenji, Takahashi Mariyo kōryoku. 東京; 東京外国語大学アジア・アフリカ言語文化研究所; 発売不二出版, 平成11 [1999]. Tōkyō; Tōkyō Gaikokugo Daigaku Ajia Afurika Gengo Bunka Kenkyūjo; Hatsubai Fuji Shuppan, Heisei 11 [1999]. 31, 2166 p.; 27 cm. Asian & African lexicon 35. Includes indexes. Japanese-Chinese-Manchu dictionary.

2007: [IUW] 漢滿大辞典 = Nikan Manju yongkiyangen buleku bithe /

主編安双成; 副主編关嘉祿; 編委安双成 ...[et al.]. Han Man da ci dian = Nikan Manju yongkiyangen buleku bithe / zhu bian An Shuangcheng; fu zhu bian Guan Jialu; bian wei An Shuangcheng ... [et al.]. 第1版. Di 1 ban. First edition. 沈阳; 辽宁民族出版社, 2007. Shenyang; Liaoning min zu chu ban she, 2007. 2, 2, 1, 84, 1460 p.; ill.; 27 cm. Includes index. Manchu-Chinese dictionary.

2008: [IUW] 大清全書 / 沈啓亮輯 Da Qing quan shu / Shen Qiliang ji. 第1版. Di

1 ban. First edition. [沈阳市]; 遼寧民族出版社, 2008. [Shenyang Shi]; Liaoning min zu chu ban she, 2008. [1], 3, [1], 383 p.; 26 cm. Uniform series:

清代滿語文語法古籍集成叢書 Qing dai Man yu wen yu fa gu ji ji cheng cong shu. Manchu-Chinese dictionary.

2009: [IUW] 清代滿蒙漢文詞語音義對照手冊 / 江橋整理. Qing dai Man Meng

Han wen ci yu yin yi dui zhao shou ce / Jiang Qiao zheng li. 第1版. Di 1 ban. First edition. 北京市; 中華書局, 2009. Beijing Shi; Zhonghua shu ju, 2009. 2, 10, 2, 2, 6, 896 p.; ill.; 21 cm. Transliteration based on Paul Georg von Möllendorff's "A Manchu grammar (1892)", with Chinese characters. Includes bibliographical references and indexes. Manchu-Mongolian-Chinese dictionary.

2013: [IUW] A comprehensive Manchu-English dictionary, by Jerry Norman; with the assistance of Keith Dede and David Prager Branner. Cambridge, Mass.; Harvard University Asia Center; Distributed by Harvard University Press, 2013. xxvi, 418 p.; ill.; 26 cm.

[MANDA] Manda, or Manda-Matumba, is a Bantu language of Tanzania. It was assigned to the Bena–Kinga (G60) group by Nurse (1988), though Ehret retains it in N10 Rufiji–Ruvuma (Songea) (Wiki) Ethnologue: mgs. Alternate Names: Kimanda, Kinyasa, Manda-Matumba, Nyasa.

1877: [LILLY] Dictionary of the Kiniassa language, by the Rev. John Rebman; edited by his colleague, the Rev. Dr. L. Krapf. St. Chrischona, near Basle, Switzerland; at the request and expense of the Church Missionary Society, 1877. viii, 184 p.; 19 cm.

Only ed. cited in NUC pre-56 483:610 and BM 199:610. With the bookplate of the United Free Church of Scotland Foreign Mission Office Reference Library. Bound in original brown publisher's cloth, blocked in blind, gilt spine title. Hendrix 1080. Not in Zaubmüller.

Reprinted 1967: [IUW] Dictionary of the Kaniassa Language, compiled by Rev. John Rebman. Westmead: Gregg Press, 1967. Hardbound without d.j. Reprint of 1877 edition.

[MANDAIC] Mandaic is the language of the Mandaean religion and community. Classical Mandaic is used by a section of the Mandaean community in liturgical rites. The modern descendent of Classical Mandaic, known as Neo-Mandaic or Modern Mandaic, is spoken by a small section of the Mandaean community around Ahvaz, Khuzestan Province, Iran. Speakers of Classical Mandaic are found in Iran, Iraq (particularly the southern portions of the country) and in diaspora (particularly in the United States). It is a variety of Aramaic, notable for its use of vowel letters (see Mandaic alphabet) and the striking amount of Persian influence in its lexicon (Wiki)..

Ethnologue: mid. Alternate Names: Mandaayi, Mandaean, Mandi, Mandini, Modern Mandaic, Neo-Mandaic, Sabe'in, Sabean, Subbi.

2008: [IUW] The neo-Mandaic dialect of Khorramshahr / Charles G. Häberl. Wiesbaden: Harrassowitz, 2009. xxxi, 378 p.; 25 cm. Original green and white paper over boards, lettered in black. Semitica viva; Bd. 45. Lexicon: Mandaic-English, pp. 296-366. Includes bibliographical references (p. [367]-371) and index.

"This work is a description of a previously undocumented dialect of Neo-Mandaic.... The description is based upon newly collected texts, and constitutes the most thorough description of any dialect of Neo-Mandaic.... Mandaic is severely endangered today, and all signs indicated that it will become extinct with the current generation of speakers" (Preface).

[MANDAIC, CLASSICAL] Mandaic is the language of the Mandaean religion and community. Classical Mandaic is used by a section of the Mandaean community in liturgical rites. Classical Mandaic is a Northwest Semitic language of the Eastern Aramaic sub-family, and is closely related to the language of the Aramaic portions of the Babylonian Talmud, as well as the language of the incantation texts and Aramaic incantation bowls found throughout Mesopotamia. It is also related to Syriac, another member of the Eastern Aramaic sub-family, which is the liturgical language of many Christian denominations throughout the Middle East (Wiki).

Ethnologue: myz. Alternate Names: Classical Mandaean.

1963: [IUW] A Mandaic dictionary, by E. S. Drower and R. Macuch. Oxford, Clarendon Press, 1963. xi, 491 p. 25 cm. Original dark blue cloth over boards, spine lettered in gold. Mandaic-English, pp. [1]-491. First dictionary of Classical Mandaic.

"A palaeolithic ancestor, asked why he had made a stone axe, might have replied that he had often wanted such an implement, and our dictionary has grown out of our needs in much the same causal way. Working independently on the Mandaean language, we came together eventually at short notice and with limited time to put the results of our labour into publishable shape" (Preface). Includes details on the three collections which served as a basis for the dictionary.

[MANDAN] Mandan (autonym: Núʔetaare) is an endangered Siouan language of North Dakota in the United States. By 2009, there was just one fluent speaker of Mandan, Dr. Edwin Benson (born 1931). Benson and others are teaching in local school programs to encourage the use of the language. Mandan is taught at Fort Berthold Community College along with the Hidatsa and Arikara languages. Mandan was initially thought to be closely related to Hidatsa and Crow. However, since Mandan has had language contact with Hidatsa and Crow for many years, the exact relationship between Mandan and other Siouan languages (including Hidatsa and Crow) has been obscured and is currently undetermined. Thus, Mandan is most often considered to be a separate branch of the Siouan family. Mandan has two main dialects: Nuptare and Nuetare. Only the Nuptare variety survived into the 20th century, and all speakers were bilingual in Hidatsa. In 1999, there were only six fluent speakers of Mandan still alive. The language received much attention from White Americans because of the supposedly lighter skin color of the Mandan people, which they speculated was due to an ultimate European origin. In the 1830s Prince Maximilian of Wied spent more time recording Mandan over all other Siouan languages and prepared a comparison list of Mandan and Welsh words (he thought that the Mandan may be displaced Welsh). The idea of a Mandan/Welsh connection was also supported by George Catlin. Will and Spinden (p. 188) reports that the medicine men had their own secret language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mhq.

1907-1930: see under Vol. 5 INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[MANDE LANGUAGES] The Mande languages are spoken in several countries in West Africa by the Mandé people and include Mandinka, Soninke, Bambara, Dioula, Bozo, Mende, Susu, and Vai. There are millions of speakers, chiefly in Burkina Faso, Mali, Senegal, the Gambia, Guinea, Guinea-Bissau, Sierra Leone, Liberia, and Ivory Coast. The Mande languages have traditionally been considered a divergent branch of the Niger–Congo family, though this classification has always been controversial. The group was first recognized in 1854 by S. W. Koelle in his Polyglotta Africana. He mentioned 13 languages under the heading North-Western High-Sudan Family, or Mandéga Family of Languages. In 1901 Maurice Delafosse made a distinction of two groups in his Essai de manuel pratique de la langue mandé ou mandingue. He speaks of a northern group mandé-tan and a southern group mandé-fu. This distinction was basically done only because the languages in the north use the expression tan for ten whereas the southern group use fu. In 1924 L. Tauxier noted that this distinction is not well founded and there is at least a third subgroup he called mandé-bu. It was not until 1950 when A. Prost supported this view and gave further details. In 1958 Welmers published an article The Mande Languages where he divided the languages into three subgroups – North-West, South and East. His conclusion was based on lexicostatistic research. Greenberg followed this distinction in his The Languages of Africa (1963). Long (1971) and G. Galtier (1980) follow the distinction into three groups but with notable differences (Wiki).

[MANDING LANGUAGES] The Manding languages are mutually intelligible dialects or languages in West Africa of the Mande family. Their best-known members are Bambara, the most widely spoken language in Mali; Mandinka, the main language of Gambia; Maninka or Malinké, a major language of Guinea; and Dyula, a trade language of the northern Ivory Coast and western Burkina Faso. The Manding languages, and what distinguishes one from the rest and relationships among all of them are matters that continue to be researched. In addition, the nomenclature - being a mixture of indigenous terms and words applied by English and French speakers since before colonization - makes the picture complex and even confusing (Wiki). Mandingo is the term most often used to refer to the Manding cluster of languages by early explorers and scholars.

1738: [LILLY] Travels into the inland parts of Africa: containing a description of the several nations for the space of six hundred miles up the River Gambia; their trade, habits, customs, language, manners, religion and government; the power, disposition and characters of some Negro princes; with a particular account of Job Ben Solomon. To which is added, Capt. Stibbs's voyage up the Gambia in the year 1723, to make discoveries; with an accurate map of that river taken on the spot: and many other copper plates. Also extracts from the Nubian's geography, Leo the African, and other authors antient and modern, concerning the Niger, Nile, or Gambia, and observations thereon. By Francis Moore. London, Printed by E. Cave for the author, 1738. xi, xiii, 305, 86, [4], 23 p. plates (partly fold.) 2 plans, fold. map. 20 cm. (8vo). ESTC, T131766.

1799: [LILLY] Travels in the interior districts of Africa: performed under the direction and patronage of the African Association, in the years 1795, 1796, and 1797, by Mungo Park, surgeon; with an appendix, containing geographical illustrations of Africa, by Major Rennell. 2nd ed. London: Printed by W. Bulmer & Co. for the author, 1799. xxviii, 372, xcii (app.) p.: ill., fold. maps, port., music, 28 cm. Bound in contemporary calf, hinges cracked. Includes: "A vocabulary of the Mandingo language" p. [365]-372, "A Negro song from Mr. Park's travels" with music inserted as a "Postscript" bet. p. 198 and 199. Insert: 2 folded maps, The route of Mr. Mungo Part, and Map showing the progress of discovery and improvement in the geography of North Africa, compiled by J. Rennell, 1798. A close but not exact page-for-page reprint of first printing. List of subscribers varies. From the library of Bernardo Mendel.

1821: [LILLY] A voyage to Africa: including a narrative of an embassy to one of the interior kingdoms, in the year 1820; with remarks on the course and termination of the Niger, and other principal rivers in that country. By William Hutton. Illus. with maps and plates. London, Longman, Hurst, Rees, Orme, and Brown, 1821. x, [2], 488 p., [6] leaves of plates (2 fold.) col. front., col. plates, fold. maps. 22 cm. (8vo) First edition. Bound in later plain boards, edges sprinkled. Brunet, III:392.

1830: [IUW] Travels through Central Africa to Timbuctoo; and across the Great Desert, to Morocco, performed in the years 1824-1828, by René Caillié. London: H. Colburn and R. Bentley, 1830.: 2 v. fronts (ports) 4 pl. (1 fold) 2 fold maps. 23 cm. The work concludes with a short vocabulary of Mandingo.

1842?: [LILLY] A grammar of the Mandingo language: with vocabularies / by the Rev. R. Maxwell Macbrair ... London: Wesleyan-Methodist Missionary Society, [1842?] 4, [1], vi-vii, [2], 2-74 p.: 22 cm. Wesleyan Methodist Missionary Society. "A vocabulary of words": p.[37]-48. Bound in marbled boards and half brown leather, spine stamped in gold, with dark gray endpapers. NUC pre-1956, 348:535.

1891: [LILLY] Dictionnaire français-mandingue, by Capitaine E. Peroz. Paris: Imprimerie moderne-J. D. Maillard, 1891. Original brown cloth, lettered in black. Pp. I-V VI-VII VIII, 1-3 4-163 164. First edition.

1929, 1955: [LILLYbm] La langue mandingue et ses dialectes (Malinke, Bambara, Dioula). I. Introduction, grammaire, lexique français-mandingue. 2° volume. Dictionnaire Mandigue-français, by Maurice Delafosse. Paris: Librairie Orientaliste Paul Geuthner, 1929, 1955. Two vols. Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [Vol. 1] [6] 1 2-674 [2]; [Vol. 2] [6] i ii-xix xx-xxii, 1-3 4-857 858-860. First editions. Bibliotheque de l'Ecole nationale des langues orientales vivantes, [t. 10, 15]. Zaunmüller, col. 267. Vol. 1 French-Mandingo lexicon, pp.[325]-670, and a detailed list of all previously published vocabularies, pp. 38-46; Vol. 2 includes a Mandingo-French dictionary, pp. [3]-857. Second copy: [IUW].

"I've entitled the second portion of the first volume a 'lexicon' of French-Mandingo, and not a 'dictionary.' This is meant to indicate that it is not a work of the same scope as the Mandingo-French dictionary [to follow in volume 2]...At the present time there are at least 2,800,000 natives who speak Mandingo as their maternal tongue, and more than 2,000,000 others who understand and speak the language in addition to their own... [Of the former group,] 1, 673,821 speak Malinke [Maninka]...825,446 speak Bambara... and 285,948 speak Dyula [Jula]" (Introduction, tr: BM).

[MANDINGO] Ethnologue lists Mandingo as a macro-language of Guinea, which includes: Eastern Maninkakan [emk], Kita Maninkakan [mwk] (Mali), Konyanka Maninka [mku], Mandinka [mnk] (Senegal), Sankaran Maninka [msc], Western Maninkakan [mlq] (Senegal). Ethnologue also lists Mandingo as an alternate name for Mandinka.

[MANDINKA] The Mandinka language (Mandi'nka kango), or Mandingo, is a Mandé language spoken by the Mandinka people of the Casamance region of Senegal, the Gambia, and northern Guinea-Bissau. It is the principal language of the Gambia. Mandinka belongs to the Manding branch of Mandé, and is thus similar to Bambara and Maninka/Malinké. In a majority of areas, it is tonal language with two tones: low and high, although the particular variety spoken in the Gambia and Senegal borders on a pitch accent due to its proximity with non-tonal neighboring languages like Wolof.

Ethnologue: mnk. Alternate Names: Mande, Manding, Mandingo, Mandingue, Mandingue, Socé.

1955: [IUW] Mandinka-English dictionary, by D. P. Gamble. Rev. ed. [London]; Research Dept., Colonial Off., 1955. [77] leaves; 33 cm. Library binding. Reproduced from typescript. Mandinka-English [unpaginated].

"This dictionary is a revision and enlargement of the Mandinka-English Dictionary issued by the Research Department of the Colonial Office in May, 1949. Many words in use in the Upper River area of the Gambia have now been added" (second leaf).

1965: [IUW] English Mandinka dictionary, by compiled by Muhammad I. Ashrif and B.K. Sidibe. [Yundum, Gambia]; M.I. Ashrif, [1965]. 1 v. (unpaginated); 33 cm. Library binding. Reproduced from typescript. English-Mandinka, approximately 130 pp. (unpaginated).

1980: [IUW] Mandinka English dictionary, by Ba Tarawale, Fatumata Sidibe, Lasana Konteh. [Gambia?]; N.L.A.C., [National Literacy Advisory Committee, 1980]. 155 p.; 30 cm. Library binding, preserving original light green wrappers, lettered in blue. Reproduced from typescript and manuscript. Mandinka-English, pp. [1]-155.

"The authors would like to express their appreciation to the following for their pioneering work in compiling Mandinka English dictionaries: Mr. G. OHalloran, Mr. B. Sidibe, Mr. D. Gamble" (Reference Notes).

1982: [LILLYbm] Étude dialectologique des parlers "mandingues" du Sénégal, by Abdoulaye Balde. 2 vols. Niamey: Centre d'études linguistiques et historiques par tradition orale; Organisation de l'unité africaine, 1982. Original light green wrappers, lettered in black, with black paper spine. Vol. I: ff. [2] 1-102 103.; Vol. II: ff. [2] 1-146 147. Mimeographed. First edition. Langues Africaines, 5. Bibliography, pp. 87-98. Vol. II Mandinka-French vocabulary, pp. 23-146.

"After having offered in Volume I a sample of the comparative lexicon of the four major variants of Mandingo in Senegal: Mandinka (which we specify more precisely as Mandenkan), Malinke [Maninka] Diakanke [Jahanke], Bambara... we develop and enlarge in this second volume the lexicon of Mandenkan alone. The central character of this dialect, which is taken as the standard variant in Senegal, has been sufficiently demonstrated in the chapter on standardization, and is also clearly confirmed in the comparative lexicon of Volume I. Moreover, Mandenkan is the Mandingo language in greatest use in Gambia and Guinea-Bissau as well" (tr: BM). From the library of Carleton T. Hodge.

1987: [IUW] Intermediate Gambian Mandinka-English dictionary, by David P. Gamble. San Francisco; Gamble, 1987. vi, 133 leaves; 28 cm. Library binding. First edition. Gambian studies no. 21. Mandinka-English, pp. 1-133.

"A number of Mandinka-English dictionaries are in existence. In 1955 I prepared in mimeographed form an Elementary Mandinka Sentence Book (35 pp.) and a Mandinka-English Dictionary (66 pp.), which were issued under the auspices of the Research Department of the Colonial Office... These are still popular with those beginning to learn Mandinka. Unauthorised versions have been reproduced in The Gambia, and are still occasionally to be found on sale... [A discussion of earlier dictionaries follows]. [The present] dictionary is intended primarily for non-Mandinka who are learning to speak the languages, but will be using material written in the old script, as well as material in the new script. However, it is hoped that it will also be of use to Mandinka who wish to compile a fuller local dictionary. There are local variations in dialect. As I learnt most of my Mandinka in Baddibu and Kiang this may be reflected in my writing.... So far no systematic studies of dialect variations have been carried out" (Introduction).

2003: [IUW] Parlons mandinka, Mañ Lafi Dramé. Paris; L'Harmattan, c2003. 212 p.; 22 cm. Library binding, incorporating original green wrappers, lettered in white. First edition. Collection "Parlons." Includes bibliographical references (p. [203]-212). Mandinka-French, pp. 100-153, and French-Mandinka, pp. 154-201.

[MANDJA] Manza (Mānzā, Mandja) is a Ubangian language spoken by the Mandja people of the Central African Republic. It is closely related to Ngbaka and may be to some extent mutually intelligible (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mzv. Alternate Names: Manja, Manza.

1918: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[MANDJAK] Mandjak (Manjack) is a Bak language of Guinea-Bissau and Senegal. Other spellings are Mandjaque, Mandyak, Manjaca, Manjaco, Manjaku, Manjiak, Mendyako, and Ndyak; another name is Kanyop. Dialects are distinct enough that some might be considered separate languages. They are: Bok (Babok, Sarar, Teixeira Pinto, Tsaam); Likes-Utsia (Baraa, Kalkus); Cur (Churo); Lund; Yu (Pecixe, Siis, Pulhilh); Unhate (Binhante, Bissau) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mfv. Alternate Names: Kanyop, Mandjaque, Mandyak, Manjaca, Manjack, Manjaco, Manjaku, Manjanku, Manjiak, Mendyako, Ndyak.

1947: [IUW] Subsídios para o estudo da língua manjaca / por António Carreira e João Basso Marques. [Lisboa; s.n.], 1947. 175 p.; 24 cm. Library binding incorporating original light green front wrappers, lettered and illustrated in blue and black. Hendrix 1116. Publicações (Centro de Estudos da Guiné Portuguesa); no. 3. Includes bibliographical references. Classified Portuguese-Mandjak (Costa de Baixo) vocabulary, pp. [85]-93, Portuguese-Mandjak (Churo and Costa de Baixo), pp. [95]-133, with printed marginal observations; Mandjak-Portuguese, pp. [135]-175.

1975: [IUW] Lexique manjaku / par J.L. Doneaux. [Dakar?]; Centre de linguistique appliquée de Dakar, 1975. 66 leaves; 27 cm. Original stiff gray wrappers, lettered in black. Reproduced from typescript. Hendrix 1117. Langues africaines au Sénégal. "No. 63" Includes bibliographical references. Mandjak-French, ff. 10-66.

1990: [IUW] Essai sur la langue manjako de la zone de Basserel, por Pierre Buis. Bissau, Guiné-Bissau: Instituto Nacional de Estudos e Pesquisa, 1990. 270 p.; 21 cm. Series: Kacu martel; 8. Mandjak-French and Mandjak-Portuguese dictionaries.

2007: [IUW] Parlons manjak: langue de Guinée-Bissau, by Carfa Mendès et Michel Malherbe. Paris: L'Harmattan, c2007. 225 p.: map; 22 cm. Collection "Parlons". Includes bibliographical references (p. 225).

2011: [IUW] Manuel d'alphabétisation de transition français-mandjaque; upoosan nájuk = Guide d'apprenant. 7. ed. Dakar, Sénégal; SIL; Tanaff, Sénégal; GIE Têbe, c2011. 60 p.; 30 cm. Original violet wrappers, lettered and illustrated in black. "septembre 2011"--Cover. "Sénégal, Gambie et Guinée Bissau, Afrique de l'Ouest"--T. p. verso. "L'alphabet Manjaku," pp. 57-58, listing alphabet with Mandjak words as examples, and their French equivalents.

[MANDOBO ATAS] [Wiki has only one entry for Manobo]: "Mandobo, or Kaeti, is a Papuan language of Papua, Indonesian." Ethnologue lists Mandobo Atas and Mandobo Baw as two of six languages under Demut of the Awyu-Demut language cluster of 15 languages.

Ethnologue: aax. Alternate Names: Dumut, "Kaeti" (pej.), Kambon, Kwem, Mandobbo, Nub, Wambon.

1959: see under INDONESIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1970: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MANDOBO BAWA] [Wiki has only one entry for Manobo]: "Mandobo, or Kaeti, is a Papuan language of Papua, Indonesian." Ethnologue lists Mandobo Atas and Mandobo

Baw as two of six languages under Demut of the Awyu-Demut language cluster of 15 languages (9 under Awyu and 6 under Demut).

Ethnologue:: bwp. Alternate Names: Dumut, “Kaeti” (pej.), Kambon, Mandobbo, Nub.

1959: see under INDONESIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MANGALA] Jiwarli (also spelt Djiwarli, Tjiwarli) is an Australian Aboriginal language formerly spoken in Western Australia. It is a variety of the Mantharta language of the large Pama–Nyungan family. The last native speaker of Jiwarli, Jack Butler, died in April 1986. Prof Peter K. Austin (Linguistics Department, SOAS) collected all the available material on Jiwarli during fieldwork with Jack Butler 1978–1985. He has published a volume of texts on the language and a bilingual dictionary (Jiwarli-English with English-Jiwarli finderlist); both are currently out of print.

Ethnologue: mem. Alternate Names: Djawali, Djuwali, Jiwali, Jiwarli, Koalgurdi, Manala, Mangalaa, Mangarla, Minala, Yalmbau.

1992: [LILLY] A dictionary of Jiwarli, Western Australia, by Peter Austin. Bundoora, Vic.: La Trobe University, Dept. of Linguistics, 1992. xv, 118 p.: ill.; 30 cm. Original yellow wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. Jiwarli [Mangala]-English, pp. 1-62, and an “English-Jiwarli Finderlist,” pp. 65-118. First dictionary of the language, which is now extinct.

“This book is a dictionary of the Jiwarli language traditionally spoken along the Henry River, in the north-west of Western Australia...intended for use in schools in the Gascoyne region, and for those who wish to learn about the Aboriginal language heritage of the area” (rear cover).

“This bilingual dictionary...is one of a set of six dictionaries documenting the languages traditionally spoken in the region between the Gascoyne and Ashburton Rivers... [It] includes all of the Jiwarli vocabulary I collected in the area between 1978 and 1985” (Preface).

“Following the death of Jack Butler and his younger brother Joe Butler, today there is no-one alive who can speak the Jiwarli language” (Introduction)..

[MANGAREVA] Mangareva (or Mangarevan) is a Polynesian language spoken in the Gambier Islands of French Polynesia by about 600 people on the islands of Gambier and Mangareva. Speakers also have some bilingualism in Tahitian, in which there is a 60% lexical similarity, and usually with French as well. It is a member of the Marquesic subgroup, and as such is closely related to Hawaiian and to the languages of the Marquesas Islands (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mrv. Alternate Names: Mangarevan.

1846: see under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

1899: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary of Mangareva (or Gambier Islands), by Edward Tregear. Wellington, N.Z.: John McKay, Government Printing Office, 1899. Original pale salmon wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. 121 pp. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Taylor, p. 172. Mangareva-English only. First English-language dictionary of Mangareva--but Rensch claims, in his French language dictionary of 1991, that "its author never visited the Gambier Islands and didn't collect the material himself. The Bishop of Tahiti gave him the manuscript of a Mangarevan-French dictionary compiled by the missionaries of Mangareva over fifty years earlier. Tregear translated it into English without mentioning these circumstances in the dictionary" (tr: BM).

"The Gambier or Mangareva Islands consist of a small group situated within the Pau Archipelago, in the Eastern Pacific... Mangareva Island is about four miles in length... The inhabitants of the group number about a thousand... The interesting matter to the linguist and anthropologist in the following dictionary is that the language is pure Polynesian..." with a "speech nearly identical with the Maori of New Zealand, thousands of miles distant to the westward."

1908: [LILLYbm] Essai de grammaire de la langue des îles Gambier, ou Mangareva, by the Catholic Missionaries of the archipelago. Braine-le-Comte: Imprimerie Zech, 1908. Original red quarter-cloth and pink wrappers over boards, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [2] 1-5 6-216, <sup>2</sup>1-3 4-124. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Editorship attributed to Vincent Ferrier Janeau. Cf. Taylor, A Pacific bibliography. Mangareva-French, pp. <sup>2</sup>[3]-124. Rensch (see below) suggests this dictionary was based on the same French manuscript used by Tregear in 1899.

1982: [IUW] Dictionary of Manggarai plant names, by J.A.J. Verheijen. Canberra: Dept. of Linguistics, Research School of Pacific Studies, Australian National University, 1982. iii, 140, 19 p.: map; 26 cm. Pacific linguistics. Series D; no. 43

1991: [LILLYbm] Tikitionario 'Arani-Mangareva. Dictionnaire Français-Mangarevien, by Karl H. Rensch. Canberra: Archipelago Press, 1991. Original stiff turquoise, white and purple wrappers, lettered in white, turquoise, and purple, with a map of the island of Mangareva on the front cover. 312 pp. First edition. In spite of the title (which is reversed on the front cover, perhaps in recognition of this fact) the dictionary is Mangarevan-French. The dictionary is based on the author's mission to Mangareva in 1986, as well as upon prior published sources, including Tregear (1899), a French grammar and dictionary published in Braine-le-comte in 1908 (see above), which seems to have drawn upon the same French manuscript used by Tregear, and Hiroa's Ethnology of Mangareva (1937).

[MANGAYAT] Mangaya (Buga) is a Ubangian language of South Sudan. The endonym is Bug (Wiki).

Ethnologue: myj. Alternate Names: Bug, Buga, Mangaya, Mongaiyat.

1950: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[MANGBETU] Mangbetu, or Nemangbetu, is one of the most populous of the Central Sudanic languages. It is spoken by the Mangbetu people of northeastern Congo. It, or its speakers, are also known as Amangbetu, Kingbetu, Mambetto. The most populous dialect, and the one most widely understood, is called Medje. Others are Aberu (Nabulu), Makere, Malele, Popoi (Mapopoi). The most divergent is Lombi; Ethnologue treats it as a distinct language. About half of the population speaks Bangala, a trade language similar to Lingala, and in southern areas some speak Swahili. The Mangbetu live in association with the Asua Pygmies, and their languages are closely related (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mdj. Alternate Names: Amangbetu, Kingbetu, Mambetto, Mangbettu, Nemangbetu.

1903: see 1903b under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1912: [LILLY] Vocabulaire français-mangbetu et mangbetu-français, dressé d'après les renseignements fournis par MM. Autrique ... [et al.]. Bruxelles: Impr. veuve Monnom, 1912. 144 p.; 18 cm. Cover title. Original grey printed wrappers. First edition. Hendrix [enter]. References: nuc PRE-1956, 640:551. Second copy: IUW.

1928: [LILLYbm] La Langue des Makere, des Medje et des Mangbetu, by A. Vekens. Ghent: Éditions Dominicaines 'Veritas', 1928. Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. 224 pp. First edition. Bibliothèque Congo, 25. Not in Zaunmüller. Not in Hendrix. Includes a Mangbetu-French and French-Mangbetu vocabulary, pp. 123-217. This vocabulary appears to be preceded only by that published in French in 1912 (see above). Second copy: IUW.

"[Mangbetu] was treated in a work by P. A. Vekens...[in]1928, which was a remarkable work for the time. But when it appeared, the attention of Africanist linguists had not yet been sufficiently drawn the basic importance of tone in the grammar of black African languages: a description of Mangbetu that does not take tonality into account is unusable, for deprived of their tones, neither individual words or phrases are recognizable" (J. Larochette, Introduction to Grammaire des dialectes mangbetu et medje, suivie d'un manuel de conversation et d'un lexique, 1958 [see below], tr: BM).

1958: [LILLYbm] Grammaire des dialectes mangbetu et medje, suivie d'un manuel de conversation et d'un lexique, by J. Larochette. Tervuren: Commission de Linguistique Africains, 1958. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. 1-4 5-232. First edition. Series: Annales du Musée royal du Congo Belge. Série in 8. Sciences de l'homme Linguistique, v. 18. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 1113; 1147. Mangbetu-French, pp. 161-196, French-Mangbetu, pp. 197-225, and comparative tables of French, Mangbetu, and three dialects: Lombi, Asua, Aka, pp. 227-232. Second copy: IUW.

"A linguistic mission assigned to us by the Institute for Scientific Research in Central Africa in 1956 allowed us to study two of the dialects of Mangbetu which deserved particular attention, Mangbetu, which continues to enjoy a special prestige, and Medje, which is spoken by the largest group in the population... The knowledge of the phonology of Sudanese languages has progressed greatly since 1928 [see above]; it is now impossible not to take into account certain phonological oppositions which have never been noted before" (Introduction, tr: BM)

[MANGGARAI] The Manggarainese language (Manggarainese: tombo Manggarai, Indonesian: bahasa Manggarai) is the language of the Manggarainese people from the western parts of the island of Flores, in East Nusa Tenggara Province, Indonesia. In addition, there are also some pockets of Manggarainese speakers in the village of Manggarai in Jakarta, the capital city of Indonesia. It is the native language of more than 730,000 people, based on statistical data reported by Central Agency on Statistics (BPS) in 2009 for the province of East Nusa Tenggara, Indonesia. The data include statistics for the population of the Regency of "Greater Manggarai" on Flores island, which consists of three districts: Manggarai district, West Manggarai district, and East Manggarai district. The Manggarainese language is part of the Austronesian family, and is therefore related to Indonesian and other Malay varieties. Most speakers of Manggarainese also speak Indonesian for official and commercial purposes and to communicate with non-Manggarainese Indonesians. Outside Flores island, East Nusa Tenggara Province, Indonesia, there are some Manggarainese-speaking people in the village of Manggarai in the eastern part of Jakarta, the capital city of Indonesia. Formerly a concentration of workers from "Greater Manggarai", the population is now just a few of the original people, because the majority in the village has now become the Betawi (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mqy.

1860: [LILLY] "Reizen naar Mangarai en Lombok, in 1854-1856," in: Tijdschrift voor Indische Tal-, Land- en Volkenkunde, by J. P. Freijss. Deel 9, 1860, pp. [445]-530. Extracted from the journal, in modern stiff paper wrappers, with printed label. In the course of the essay, Freijss includes brief comments on the languages of the regions he visits, including the first Manggareai words to appear in print, glossed in Dutch (see the comment of Verheijen below). Although the essay does not include a vocabulary as such, it is included here for its general historical interest.

1967, 1970: [LILLYbm] Kamus Manggarai. I. Manggarai-Indonesia. II. Indonesia-Manggarai, two vols., by Jilis A.J. Verheijen. 's-Gravenhage: Martinus Nijhoff, 1967, 1970. [Vol. I] Original brown cloth over boards, lettered and ecorated in blind and gold; [Vol. II] Original smooth brown cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. [Vol. I] I-IV V-XXVIII, 1-772 + folding map in color of language area; [Vol. II] I-IV V-IX X, 1-269 270 + folding map in color of language area. First edition. Vol. I Manggarai-Indonesian, pp. 1-772; Vol. II Indonesian-Manggarai, pp. 1-264. Bibliography, pp. XXVI-XXVIII. Introductory notes are in English. This is the first full dictionary of the language. This is the first full dictionary of the language. Second copy: IUW.

"Manggarai is the name of the westernmost civil district ... of the island of Flores. In 1961 it numbred approximately 250,000 inhabitants...The part of Manggarai covered here is a linguistic unit with an outspoken cultural pattern which clearly contrasts with Komba, the adjacent Ngadha dialect in the South-East...The Manggarai language is considered as belonging to the Bima-Sumba group .... The first Manggarai words were...published by Freijss in 1856.... I began in 1937...to collect Manggarai texts...The then approximately 200,000 cards, mostly with excerpts. of my card-index were saved during World War II. Only one half of the letter B which I took with me into the camp was lost. In 1947 my superiors gave me a month to try my hand at a dictionary. I arrived as the conclusion that it would take at least two years of hard work to compose a simple Manggareai-Dutch dictionary...It was not until October 1960 that...I was able to start working out the card-index. Meanwhile circumstances had changed and Indonesian was chose as the language of explanation... Modern Indonesian, a normal and gradual development of Malay, is everywhere in Indonesia a most satisfactory medium of scientific approach."

[MANGYAN LANGUAGES] Mangyan is the generic name for the eight indigenous groups found on the island of Mindoro, southwest of the island of Luzon, the Philippines, each with its own tribal name, language, and customs. The total population may be around 100,000, but official statistics are difficult to determine under the conditions of remote areas, reclusive tribal groups and some having little if any outside world contact. The ethnic groups of the island, from north to south, are: Iraya, Alangan, Tadyawan, Tawbuid (called Batangan by lowlanders on the west of the island), Buhid, and Hanunoo. An additional group on the south coast is labelled Ratagnon. They appear to be intermarried with lowlanders. The group known on the east of Mindoro as Bangon may be a subgroup of Tawbuid, as they speak the 'western' dialect of that language. They also have an alphabet which is called the Ambahan (Wiki).

Ethnologue divides Mangyan into the following languages: North Mangyan (three languages): 1) Alangan: Alj. 2) Iraya: iry. 3) Tadyawan: tdy. -- South Mangyan (four languages): 1) Buhid: bku. 2) Eastern Tawbuid: bnj. 3) Western Tawbuid: twb. 4) Hanunoo: hnn.

1912: [LILLYbm][cover title] Notes on the Mangyan Language, by E. E. Schneider. Manila: Bureau of Printing, 1912. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. 157-178. First edition. Reprinted from The Philippine Journal of Science, Vol. VII, No. 3, June, 1912. Includes, English-Mangyan wordlist, pp. 163-177, with various dialect variants.

"The following vocabularies were collected by Doctor Miller in three different regions of Mindoro [Island in the Philippines]: Bulalakao [ Bulalacao, where Ratagnon is spoken], Abra de Ilog [where Iraya is spoken], and Nauhan [Naujan, where Alangan is spoken] ...I believe this list may be relied on as representing correctly the speech of those Mangyans among whom they were collected" (p. 157).

1939-1940: [IUW] Indic writings of the Mindoro-Palawan axis, [by] Fletcher Gardner and Ildefonso Maliwanag. San Antonio, Tex., Witte memorial museum [1939-40]. 3 v. illus. (maps) 22 cm. [Witte memorial museum, San Antonio] Bulletin, no. 1, v. 1-3. Mimeographed. "Corrections on volume 1. By Guillermo C. Bacal": leaf laid in. Original texts with transliteration and English translation. Bibliography at end of each volume. Contents: v. 1. Hampangan-Hanono-o scripts, by Luyon. Tagbanua scripts, Ayer collection, Newberry library.v. 2. Mangyan prose and songs.v. 3. Mangyan grammar and vocabulary, by Fletcher Gardner.

[MANINKA] Maninka (Malinke), or more precisely Eastern Maninka, is the name of several closely related languages and dialects of the southeastern Manding subgroup of the Mande branch of the Niger–Congo languages. It is the mother tongue of the Malinké people and is spoken by 3,300,000 speakers in Guinea, where it is the main language in the Upper Guinea region, and Mali, where the closely related Bambara is a national language, as well as in Liberia, Senegal, Sierra Leone and Ivory Coast, where it has no official status. It was the language of court and government used during the Mali empire (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists three separate languages of Guinea under Southeastern Manding: 1) Konyanka Maninka: mku. Alternate Names: Konya, Konyakakan, Konyanka; 2) Sankaran Mininka: msc. Alternate Names: Faranah, Sankarakan; and 3) Eastern Maninkakan: emk. Alternate Names: Eastern Malinke, Kankan Maninka, Malinké, Mande, Maninka, Southern Maninka.

1906: [LILLYbm] Dictionnaire français-malinke et malinke-français: precedé d'un abregé de grammaire malinkée, by a Missionary. Conarky: Mission des PP. du Saint-Esprit, 1906. Original dark maroon leather over thin boards, lettered in gold. Pp. I-VII VIII-XLIV, 1-3 4-176. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 267, lists identical title, date, and number of pages, with O. Abiven as author (Hendrix 1083) published by the Congrégation de Saint-Esprit. Hendrix 1101. This is presumably a variant issue of the same work. French-Malinke, pp. [3]-103, and Malinke-French, pp. [105]-176.

"The present work has as its special goal the study of Malinke as it is spoken in the regions of Kita, Sigui, and Kouroussa" (Preface).

1929: see under MANDING LANGUAGES.

1973: [IUW] Elementary Maninka-kan, by Richard A. Spears. [Evanston, Ill.]; Northwestern University, 1973. 249 p.; 28 cm. Library binding, preserving original front and back brown wrappers, lettered in black. Reproduced from typescript. "U.S. Office of Education contract number OEC-0-72-1197". Bibliography: p. 249. Maninka-English lexicon, pp. 206-244.

"The course in elementary Maninka-kan is designed to be taught by a linguist or an informant in the classroom situation.... The lexicon reflects the speech of many people and numerous dialects" (Introduction).

"The term Maninka-kan is a compound consisting of the name of an ethnic group, Maninka, and word for tongue, voice and throat, kan. Although the shortened form, Maninka, is often used to describe the language or a speaker of the language, Maninka-kan is the Maninka language and Maninkak-ke is the Maninka person" (The Maninka-kan Language).

1982: see under MANDINKA.

1999: [IUW] Manding-English dictionary; Maninka, Bamana, by Valentin Vydrine. S.-Peterburg; Dimitry Bulanin, 1999- v.; 24 cm. Title on added t.p. in Mandingo and Bambara. Incomplete contents:v. 1. A, B, D-DAD.

"In this dictionary, forms of Malian Bamana and Guinean Maninka are included. The polysemy of words is represented in all details, the senses are represented hierarchically. Verbal valencies are indicated throughout and clarified by abundant illustrative examples. Numerous idiomatic expressions are given. Most of lexemes are provided with etymological information: sources of borrowing or proto-forms and their reflexes in other Mande languages. The dictionary is oriented toward advanced language learners and professional linguists, but it can be also useful for native speakers of Bamana and Maninka languages" (on-line description).

[MANKANYA] The Mankanya language is spoken by approximately 70,000 people in Guinea-Bissau, Senegal and Gambia primarily belonging to the ethnic group of the same name. It belongs to the Bak branch of the Niger–Congo language family. The language has status as an official language in Senegal, and an orthography has recently been developed for writing it. Mankanya is known as "Uhula" by the people themselves (the Mankanya people, or "Bahula"). The name 'Mankanya' ('Mancagne' in French) is thought to have been conferred upon the people and their language by colonialists who mistook the name of their chief at the time of colonisation for the name of the people-group itself (Wiki).

Ethnologue: knf. Alternate Names: Bola, Mancagne, Mancang, Mancanha, Mankaañ, Mankanha.

2004: [IUW] Petit lexique mancagne--français: suivi d'un index français--mancagne. Dakar, Senegal: Société Internationale de Linguistique, 2004.. iv, 68 p.; 21 cm. "Edition d'essai." Original peach wrappers, lettered in black. Mankanya-French, pp. 3-32, French-Mankanya, pp. 35-62. A second printing appeared in 2008.

"It should be noted that this lexicon is simply a trial edition and that we have printed very few copies. All comments, corrections or other remarks will be of great help in preparing the next edition" (Preface, tr: BM).

[MANO] The Mano language, also known as Maa, Mah, and Mawe, is a significant Mande language of Liberia and Guinea. It is spoken primarily in Nimba County in north-central Liberia and in Nzérékoré, Lola and Yomou Prefectures in Guinea (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mev. Alternate Names: Maa, Mah, Manon, Mawe.

1965: [IUW] Die Sprache der Mano, by Etta Becker-Donner. Wien: H. Böhlau Nachf., 1965. 214 p.; 24 cm. Hendrix 1118.

1967?: [IUW] Beginning Mano; a course for speakers of English / [Vern C. Neal ... [et al.]; informant, Stephen Boayue. [s.l.; s.n., 1967?] -- 28 cm. xvi, 358, 30 p., [13] leaves of plates; ill., map. Library binding. Reproduced from typescript. Liberian Language Research Project. San Francisco State College. Peace Corps (U.S.) "A Liberian Language Research Project contracted for the Peace Corps of the United States under the auspices of San Francisco State College." Mano-English vocabularies with lessons. Mano-English vocabulary, pp. 353-358, "an alphabetical list of all words appearing in the text."

[MANOBO, DIBABAWON] Agusan is a Manobo language of northeastern Mindanao in the Philippines. The Omayamnon, Dibabawon, and Rajah Kabunsuwan dialects are divergent (Wiki). Ethnologue considers Dibabawon Manobo a separate language, rather than a dialect.

Ethnologue: mbd. Alternate Names: Debabaon, Dibabaon, Mandaya.

1954: [LILLYbm] Dibabaon-Mandayan Vocabulary, by Myra Lou Barnard & Jannette Forster. Manila: Summer Institute of Linguistics, in cooperation with the Bureau of Public Schools and the Institute of National Language of the Department of Education, 1954. Original yellow wrappers, lettered and illustrated in black. Pp. [2] i-ii, 1-67 68. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Dibabaon-Mandayan-English-Tagalog, pp. 1-47, and English-Dibabaon-Mandayan index, pp. 48-67.

"Dibabaon-Mandayan is spoken in the upper Agusan River area of northern Davao and southern Agusan Provinces, and is referred to locally as Minandayà. It is mutually intelligible with Agusan Manobo to the north and the two appear to be so closely related as to constitute one dialect. The Dibabaon-Mandayan spoken in and around the municipality of Monkayo is distinct, on the other hand, from Mansaka to the south.... The materials presented in this first and hence very limited vocabulary of Dibabaon-Mandayan were gathered over a period of some eight months of study in Monkayo, Davao.... There are approximately 750 Dibabaon-Mandayan entries in the vocabulary. An English index is included for convenience.... The paper used in the vocabulary was provided by the US Information Service" (Preface).

[MANOBO, ILIANEN] Ilianen is a Manobo language of Mindanao in the Philippines (Wiki). Ethnologue lists Ilianen Manobo under the Central Manobo languages.

Ethnologue: mbi. Alternate Names: Ilianen.

1954: [LILLYbm] A Vocabulary of Central Mindanao Manobo, by Richard E. Elkins & Mrs. Elkins. Manila: The Summer Institute of Linguistics in cooperation with

The Bureau of Public schools and The Institute of National Language of The Department of Education, 1954. Original pale green wrappers, lettered and illustrated in black. Pp. [2] 1-94. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Central Mindanao Manobo-English-Tagalog, pp. 1-70, and English-Central Mindanao Manobo index, pp. 71-94. This is the first vocabulary of the language.

"Central Mindanao Manobo is spoken in the southern half of the province of Bukidnon and the north-central section of the province of Cotabato. The vocabulary represents two major sub-dialects, Kirinteken and Ilianon. Kirinteken is spoken in the west, and Ilianon is spoken in the southeast of the Manobo area... The paper used in this vocabulary was given by the United States Information Service" (Preface).

[MANOBO LANGUAGES] The Manobo languages are a group of languages spoken in the Philippines. All go by the name Manobo or Banobo. Their speakers are primarily located around Northern Mindanao, Central Mindanao (presently called Soccsksargen) and Caraga regions where they are natively spoken. Some outlying groups make Manobo geographically discontinuous as other speakers can be located as far as the southern peninsula of Davao Oriental, southern parts of Davao del Sur and coastal areas of Sultan Kudarat. The Kagayanen speakers are the most extremely remote and can be found in certain portions of Palawan (Wiki).

Ethnologue divides the Manobo group into fifteen separate languages: within this group, Central Manobo includes 8 of the 15 (three East Central, three South Central, and two West Central); North Manobo includes four languages, and South Manobo includes three.

[MANOBO, MATIGSALUG] Matigsalug (Matig-Salug Manobo) is a Manobo language of Mindanao in the Philippines. It is a Central Philippine language that belongs to the Malayo-Polynesian subgroup of the Austronesian language family. There are four major dialects: Kulamanen, Tigwa, Tala Ingod, and Matigsalug Proper. Dialects are divergent, such that Tigwa has marginal intelligibility of Matigsalug, and only Tala Ingod may have adequate intelligibility of Matigsalug. There are approximately 5,000 monolinguals, but have at least 50,000 speakers; most of whom are concentrated in Mindanao, notably in south central Bukidnon, North Cotabato (northeast), and northwestern Davao del Sur provinces (Wiki) Ethnologue: mbt. Alternate Names: Matig-Salug Manobo.

1984: [LILLYbm] Malepet ne diksunari te hep-at ne lalag = A short four-language dictionary: MatigSalug Manobo, Cebuano Visayan, Pilipino, English. Manila, Philippines: The Institute, 1984. Original orange wrappers, lettered in white. Pp. [6] 1 2-164 1165-166. First edition. Prefatory material in Tagalog, English and MatigSalug. English-Matigsalug-Cebuano-Pilipino, pp. [1]-91, Matigsalug-English, pp. [92]-161. First dictionary of Matigsalug Manobo.

"The four-language vocabulary has been produced jointly by the Ministry of Education, Culture and Sports, and the Summer Institute of Linguistics. It is part of a project to encourage continued respect for the cultural heritage of the MatigSalug people who live along the Salug (upper Davao) River and its tributaries in the provinces of Bukidnon, Davao del Norte, North Cotabato, and the northern part of the territory of Davao City (Preface, Richard E. Elkins).

[MANOBO, WESTERN BUKIDNON] Western Bukidnon is a Manobo language of Mindanao in the Philippines (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mbb. Alternate Names: Western Bukidnon.

1968: Manobo-English Dictionary, by Richard E. Elkins. Honolulu: University of Hawaii Press, 1968. Original tan wrappers, lettered in black. 356 pp. First edition. Oceanic Linguistics Special Publication No. 3. First dictionary of this language.

"Western Bukidnon Manobo is spoken by the indigenous population in the southwestern section of the province of Bukidnon on the island of Mindanao in the Philippines."

[MANSAKA] Mansaka is an Austronesian language of Mindanao in the Philippines. It may be intelligible with Mandaya (Wiki).

Ethnologue: msk. Alternate Names: Mandaya Mansaka.

1955: [LILLYbm] Mansaka Vocabulary, by Gordon Svelmoe & Norman Abrams. Manila: Summer Institute of Linguistics University of North Dakota in cooperation with the Bureau of Public Schools and the Institute of National Language of the Department of Education, 1955. Original red wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [4] 1-50 [2]. First edition. Mansaka-English-Tagalog, pp. 1-30, and English-Mansaka, pp. 36-50, double columns. "This Vocabulary was compiled over a period of several months" residence in a Mansaka sitio of southeast Davao" (Introduction).

1990: [IUW] Mansaka dictionary, by Gordon and Thelma Svelmoe. Dallas: Summer Institute of Linguistics, 1990. xiv, 536 p.: maps; 22 cm. Library binding incorporating original tan decorated wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. Include Mansaka-English, pp. 1-496, and English-Mansaka, pp. 497-536. Asia-Pacific series; no. 16. Includes a list of articles and manuscripts relating to the Mansaka language, p. xii.

"Gordon Svelmoe originally collected and compiled the data on 3x5 cards while residing first at Taytayan and later at Malamodao, Davao del Norte from 1954-1973, under the auspices of the Summer Institute of Linguistics.... It is... hoped that this dictionary, which contains more than 6,000 entries, will serve as a basis for further study of the Mansaka language to which others will contribute" (Preface).

[MANSI] The Mansi language (also Vogul, although this is obsolete, and Maansi) is spoken by the Mansi people in Russia along the Ob River and its tributaries, in the Khanty–Mansi Autonomous Okrug and Sverdlovsk Oblast. According to the 1989 census, there were 3,184 Mansi-speaking people in Russia. The base dialect of the Mansi literary language is the Sosva dialect, a representative of the northern dialect. The written language was first published in 1868 and was revised using a form of Cyrillic in 1937 (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mns. Alternate Names: Mansiy, Vogul, Vogulich, Voguly.

1891: [IUW] Wogulisches wörterverzeichnis, von August Ahlqvist. Helsingissä; Suomalaisen Kirjallisuuden Seuran Kirjapainossa, 1891. 107 p.; 26 cm. Series: Forschungen auf dem gebiete der ural-altaischen sprachen, 4. T., 1. abt. Suomalais-ugrilaisen Seuran toimituksia; no.2. At head of title: Suomalais-ugrilaisen Seuran, Toimituksia II. Mémoires de la Société Finno-ougrienne, II.

1954: [IUW] Russko-mansiiskii slovar' dlia mansiiskoi shkoly; okolo 10,800 slov, E.I. Rombandeeva; pod red., s grammaticeskimi prilozheniiami i poslesloviem A.N. Balandina. Leningrad; Gos. uchebno-pedagog. izd-vo Ministerstva prosveshcheniia RSFSR, Leningradskoe otd-nie, 1954. 392 p.; 20 cm. Russian-Mansi dictionary.

1958: [IUW] Mansiisko-russkii slovar' s leksicheskimi paralleliami iz iuzhno-mansiiskogo (kondinskogo) dialekta. Leningrad, Gos. uchebno-pedagog. izd-vo 1958. 226 p. 23 cm. Mansi-Russian dictionary.

1961: [IUW] Die russischen Lehnwörter im Wogulischen, von Bela Kálmán; Übersetzt von H. Tokody-Krüger. Budapest; Akadémiai Kiadó, 1961. 327 p.; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references and index.

1970: [IUW] Die syrjänischen Lehnwörter im Wogulischen, von Károly Rédei; [Übers. von László Kubinyi] Bloomington, Ind.; Indiana University, c1970. 195 p.; map; 21 cm. Uralic and Altaic series; v. 109.

1971: [IUW] Rückläufiges Wörterbuch der vogulischen Schriftsprache, by Wolfgang Veenker. Wiesbaden, In Kommission bei O. Harrassowitz, 1971. 94 p. 25 cm. Veröffentlichungen der Societas Uralo-Altaica; Bd. 4.

1976: [IUW] Wogulische Texte mit einem Glossar, gesammelt und bearbeitet von Béla Kálmán. Budapest; Akadémiai Kiadó, 1976. 353 p.; map, music; 25 cm. Vogul and German with added text translated into Hungarian. "Aus dem Ungarischen übersetzt von Hannelore Krüger-Tokody und Piroska Kocsány."

1977: [IUW] Die Wogulen (Mansi); historische-biographische Skizze, N.G. Ostroumov; aus dem Russischen übertragen von Katharina Oestreich-Geib. München; Finnisch-Ugrisches Seminar der Universität München, 1977. ii, 86 p.; maps; 21 cm. Veröffentlichungen des Finnisch-Ugrischen Seminars an der Universität München. Serie B, Beiträge zur Erforschung der obugrischen Sprachen Bd. 3. "Mit Anmerkungen: 1. Wörterverzeichnis der wogulischen Sprache, 2. Verzeichnis der russischen Literatur über die Wogulen." Added t.p. in Russian: Voguly-Mansi. Bibliography: p. 85-86.

1986: [IUW] Wogulisches Wörterbuch, gesammelt von Bernát Munkácsi; geordnet, bearbeitet und herausgegeben von Béla Kálmán. Budapest; Akadémiai Kiadó, 1986. 950 p.; 25 cm. Preface in German and Hungarian. Includes indexes.

1999: [IUW] Evra-mansiiskii kraĭ, E.A. Kuzakova. Moskva; Staryĭ sad, 1999. 256 p.; ill.; 21 cm. At head of title: Institut étnologii i antropologii im. N.N. Miklukho-Maklaĭa RAN. Includes bibliographica references (p. 142-146). Mansi-Russian dictionary.

[MANX] Manx (native name Gaelg or Gailck, pronounced [gilg] or [gilk]), also known as Manx Gaelic, and also historically spelled Manks, is a Goidelic Celtic language of the Indo-European language family, historically spoken by the Manx people. Only a small minority of the Isle of Man's population is fluent in the language, but a larger minority has some knowledge of it and Manx is considered an important part of the island's culture and heritage. Although the last surviving native speaker of the language, Ned Maddrell, died in 1974, the language has never fallen completely out of use. Manx has been the subject of language revival efforts, and in recent years Manx has become more visible on the island, with increased signage, radio broadcasts and a bilingual primary school. The revival of Manx has been made easier because the language was well recorded; for example, the Bible has been translated into Manx, and audio recordings were made of native speakers (Wiki).

Ethnologue: glv. Alternate Names: Gailck, Manx Gaelic. Autonym: Gaelg.

1865: see under CORNISH.

1979: [IUW] Fargher's English-Manx dictionary / Douglas C. Fargher; edited by Brian Stowell, Ian Faulds. Douglas, Isle of Man: Shearwater Press; Atlantic Highlands, N.J.: distributed in the U.S.A. and Canada by Humanities Press, 1979. xvi, 894 p.: port.; 23 cm. Original dark blue cloth over boards, spine lettered in gold. English-Manx, pp. [1]-888.

"It is now more than three years ago since I was privileged to cast an eye over the first 900 pages of typescript and realized that this Dictionary would be a unique contribution to Manx literature and culture. At the same time, it became clear that it would be a mammoth publishing task and would necessitate a very large production budget. It was with some trepidation, therefore, that Shearwater Press took a leap of faith and added the Dictionary to its List" (Publisher's Foreword).

"The aim of this dictionary is purely practical.... It does not aim to be a record pure and simple of the language as it was spoken at any time during its history, but tries to provide some sort of basic standard upon which to build the modern Manx language of today and tomorrow, in order that those who feel the need to express themselves in Manx may here find the necessary means to do so" (Preface).

1984-1986: [IUW] A handbook of late spoken Manx / George Broderick. Tübingen: M. Niemeyer, 1984-1986. 3 v.; 23 cm. Library bindings, incorporating the original green wrappers, lettered in white. Buchreihe der Zeitschrift für celtische Philologie Bd. 3-5. Contents:v. 1. Grammar and texts; v. 2. Dictionary; v. 3. Phonology. Vol. 2 also available on-line. Vol 2, Dictionary, 523 p. Manx-English, pp. 1-482.

[MAORI] Māori or Maori (/ˈmɑːʊəri/; Māori pronunciation: [ˈmaːɔɾi]) is an Eastern Polynesian language spoken by the Māori people, the indigenous population of New Zealand. Since 1987, it has been one of New Zealand's official languages. It is closely related to Cook Islands Māori, Tuamotuan, and Tahitian. According to a 2001 survey on the health of the Māori language, the number of very fluent adult speakers was about 9% of the Māori population, or 30,000 adults. A national census undertaken in 2006 says that about 4% of the New Zealand population, or 23.7% of the Māori population could hold a conversation in Māori about everyday things. The English word comes from the Maori language, where it is spelled "Māori". In New Zealand the Māori language is commonly referred to as Te Reo [te ˈrɛ.ɔ] "the language", short for te reo Māori. The spelling "Maori" (without macron) is standard in English outside New Zealand in both general and linguistic usage. The Māori-language spelling "Māori" (with macron) has become common in New Zealand English in recent years, particularly in Māori-specific cultural contexts, although the traditional English spelling is still prevalent in general media and government use (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mri. Alternate Names: New Zealand Maori, te reo Maori.

1817: [LILLY] Narrative of a voyage to New Zealand, performed in the years 1814 and 1815, in company with the Rev. Samuel Marsden, by John Liddiard Nicholas. London: Printed for J. Black and Son, 1817. 2 v. fronts., 2 pl., 2 maps. 22 cm. First edition. Later half-leather and marbles boards, lettered in gold. Includes "A Vocabulary of English and New Zealand [Maori] Words, the latter being compared with some of those in the Tonga language," pp. [327]-352. Bagnall 4268. See Parkinson 1. Among the earliest vocabularies of Maori.

1820: [LILLY] A grammar and vocabulary of the language of New Zealand published by the Church Missionary Society, [by Thomas Kendall, 1778-1832]. London: Printed by R. Watts, 1820. 230, [1] p.; 19 cm. Spine title: Language of New Zealand Notes: Edited by Samuel Lee. "Sold by L.B. Seeley, Fleet Street; and John Hatchard & Son, Piccadilly." Bound in brown cloth, edges untrimmed. First edition. Parkinson 2 (superior paper issue).

"Omitting the short lists of words given by Cook, Parkinson, Savage and Nicholas, the first step toward a dictionary of the Maori language was [Kendall's work].... The vocabulary is, naturally, very faulty in many respects, but it has a real value for the student of the language" (see below: 1917 Preface p. [1]).

1844: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary of the New-Zealand Language, and a concise grammar; to which are added a selection of colloquial sentences, by William Williams. Paihia: Printed at the Press of the C. M. Society, 1844. Original brown paper over boards, with new brown cloth spine; black paper label lettered in gold. Pp. i-v vi-xli xlii, I 2-195 196. First edition. Not in Zaubmüller (who lists only Herbert W. Williams's Dictionary of the Maori Language (Wellington, 1917, and later editions, col. 268). Parkinson 217. Maori-English, pp. [1]-185. This is the first dictionary of the Maori language.

"The following compilation was prepared for the press six years ago, but...the publication has been delayed.... It has indeed been proposed by some, that the New Zealand language should be discouraged as much as possible, and that the Natives should at once be instructed in English.... But...the acquisition of English by the New Zealanders will only be partial, even in those districts in which our principal settlements are made, while the larger portion of the Natives will hold but little intercourse with our countrymen.... While, therefore, every encouragement should be given to the Natives to learn English, it will not be the less necessary for those, whose position brings them into frequent communication with this people, to learn their language.... As these attempts are persevered in, it is like that a great accession of valuable materials will ere long be made from various sources" (Preface).

"This work was printed on Colenso's original press, run by him until 1842, when it was taken over, after a short hiatus, by John Telford. He moved it to Auckland soon after the above was printed" (bookseller's description Magg's). Williams was Archdeacon of Waiapu.

Second edition 1852: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary of the New-Zealand Language, and a concise grammar; to which is added a selection of colloquial sentences. Second edition, by William Williams. London: Williams and Norgate, 1852. Original grayish-blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold and decorated in blind. Pp. i-iii iv-xxxix xl, I 2-323 324. Zaubmüller, col. 268, lists only Herbert W. Williams's Dictionary of the Maori Language (Wellington, 1917, and later editions). Parkinson 435. Maori-English, pp. [1]-228, and English-Maori, pp. [229]-314, with colloquial sentences, pp. [317]-323. This copy lacks the front free endpaper, and bears the ownership signature in ink of W. A. Winsor. A second copy (LILLYbm) in contemporary marbled paper also lacks front free endpaper, possibly never present.

"In the present edition of the New Zealand Dictionary considerable improvements have been made; the most important of which is the addition of a second part, English and New Zealand, which has been asked for, and which it is hoped will materially assist the student of the Maori language. The first part is much enlarged... The short Grammar is left as in the former edition, with the exception of a few verbal alterations and corrections" (Preface to the Second Edition).

Third edition 1871: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary of the New Zealand Language; to which is added a selection of colloquial sentences, by William Williams. London and Edinburgh: Williams & Norgate, 1871. Original blue-green cloth over boards, decorated in blind and lettered in gold. Pp. i-iii iv-xv xvi, 1 2-267 268. Third edition, with numerous additions and corrections, and an introduction. New Zealand-English, pp. [1]-202, and English-New Zealand, pp. [203]-260. Zaunmüller, col. 268, lists only Herbert W. Williams's Dictionary of the Maori Language (Wellington, 1917, and later editions). Parkinson 768.

"The first, or Maori and English portion of the work has been submitted to very careful revision, and the additions amount to upwards of 1200 genuine Maori words... The large number of corrections and additions and the alteration of the general plan of the work have involved the necessity of re-writing the whole.... The second part, containing the English and Maori vocabulary has undergone very little alternation."

Fourth edition 1892: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary of the New Zealand Language, by William Williams. Auckland and Edinburgh: Upton & Co. and Williams & Norgate, 1892. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in gold. 326 pp. Fourth edition. Zaunmüller, col. 268, lists only the Herbert W. Williams's Dictionary of the Maori Language (Wellington, 1917, and later editions; see p. 20 of Stimson's Tuamotuan dictionary for comments on this). Parkinson 1348. Includes New Zealand-English and English-New Zealand, plus 5 pp. of addenda and corrigenda. Taylor, p. 227, indicates the English-New Zealand section was first added with this fourth edition, but in fact the second edition had already added an English-New Zealand section. An abridged 4th edition lacking the English-Maori section appeared in 1915 (see below).

[Abridged] Fourth edition 1915: A Dictionary of the New Zealand Language, by the Right Reverend William Williams, D.C. L., Bishop of Waiapu, New Zealand. Fourth edition, with numerous additions and corrections and an introduction, by W. L. Williams. Wellington: Whitcombe & Tombs, 1915. Original olive cloth over boards, lettered in black. Pp. iii-vii viii-xv xvi, 1 2-226. Fourth edition [abridged]. New Zealand-English, pp. [1]-226.

"Williams Dictionary of the New Zealand Language having been for some time out of print, the present reprint of the Maori-English portion of that work, in which the addenda have been incorporated and necessary corrections made, may be acceptable to students of the Maori language as a stopgap until the much larger edition, which has for some time been in preparation, shall have been published" (Prefatory Note).

This copy with the ink ownership signature of H. G. A. Hughes. Hughes was a linguist and bibliographer who wrote on such topics as labor and trade unions in Wales, linguistics, and education; his handwritten texts of stories, songs, and other texts transcribed into Gilbertese, Marquesan, Tuvalu, and other Austronesian languages between 1951 and 1952 are included on microfiche at the Library of Congress among his collected papers. He was author, among others, of Colonial officials in the Gilbert and Ellice Islands: 1892-1979 (Afonwen, Clwyd, 1992), Papiamentu: a bibliography (Afonwen, Clwyd, 1993), , and Samoa: American Samoa, Western Samoa, Samoans abroad (Oxford & Santa Barbara, 1997).

Fifth edition 1917: [LILLY] A Dictionary of the Maori Language, by Herbert W. Williams, M.A. Wellington, N.A.: Marcus F. Marks, Government Printer, 1917. Pp. i-v vi-xvi xvii xviii-xxi xxii-xxiv, 1 2-586 587 588-590. 21 cm. Professionally rebound in original green cloth, lettered in black, with new endpapers. Maori-English, pp. [1]-586, and an appendix of words adopted from non-Polynesian sources, pp. [587]-590. Edited under the auspices of the Polyesian Society and based upon the dictionaries of W. Williams and W.L. Williams. The editor's preface on the lexicographical history of the Maori language includes detailed value judgements on previous works.

"It is hardly necessary to say that the present edition contains a large amount of maerial which has hitherto not been available. Of the first importance were Mr. Atkinson's papers, already mentioned, which represent the results of many years of patient research by a master of the language. The Cabinet placed at my disposal the manuscript of Mr. Colenso's dictionary. This is still absolutely in the rough, its chief value being that it contains a large number of examples illustrating the use of words of all kinds, with references attached.... Mr. A.H. Turnbull allowed me free use of books and manuscript matter in his valuable library. Mr. E. Tregear kindly placed at my disposal his dictionary and additional matter which he had collected since its publication" (Preface, including a detailed acknowledgment of many other sources in addition to those indicated in this excerpt).

Sixth edition 1957: [IUW] A dictionary of the Maori language, by Herbert W. Williams. 6th ed., rev. and augm. under the auspices of the Polynesian Society. Wellington, N.Z.; R.E. Owen, Govt. Printer, 1957. xxv, 499 p.; 25 cm.

1846: see under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

1848: [LILLY] A Leaf from the Natural History of New Zealand, or a Vocabulary of its different Productions, &c., and their Native Names, by Richard Taylor. Wellington: Robert Stores, 1848. Contemporary black quarter-linen, and brown marbled paper over boards. Pp. i-v vi-xix xx, 1-3 4-102. Not in Zauhmüller. Consists of a series of classified Maori-English vocabularies, including animals, reptiles, birds, trees, seaweed, tattooing, etc. This copy with the repeated contemporary ownership signature of John Blackett on both binding, half-title and title page, and includes several of his annotations to entries on birds and plants. Blackett (1818-1893) "made substantial contribution to the infrastructures of the province of Nelson [as a lighthouse and road builder] and the developing colony of New Zealand" (DNZB). From 1851 until 1859 he and his family lived in Taranaki, where Blackett farmed at Mangorei. He was also responsible for several roads and bridges in the province.

"In a country so little known and so recently populated as New Zealand, it is a duty each one owes to contribute his mite to the general fund of information.... The author flatters himself that no matter how defective his vocabulary may be found it will still furnish matter which others may turn to better account, and will prove not altogether uninteresting to the settler, for whose use it is chiefly intended" (Preface).

"The arrangement of the lists is somewhat promiscuous, and the matter contained in them in many cases unreliable, typographical and transcriptional errors being of very frequent occurrence. The plan of the work was undoubtedly good, and it has unfortunately exerted a sort of fascination over many students of the language, who have included in their lists of words strange forms which are due solely to the vagaries of this insidiously attractive little book" (Herbert W. Williams, Preface to the 5th edition of the Williams' 1844 Maori dictionary, 1917 [see above]).

Second edition (ca. 1871): [LILLYbm] Maori and English Dictionary, by Richard Taylor. Auckland: George T. Chapman, [ca. 1871]. Contemporary plain black leather over boards. Pp. [10] 1 2-120. New and enlarged edition [i.e.- second] of A Leaf from the Natural History of New Zealand, or a Vocabulary of its different Productions, &c., and their Native Names [first edition 1848]. Not in Zaunmüller. Consists of a series of classified Maori-English vocabularies, including animals, reptiles, birds, trees, seaweed, tattooing, etc.

"As the first edition of this most valuable work has for a long time been out of print and very high prices offered and given for stray copies, the publisher requested permission of the author to be allowed to republish a new, enlarged, and corrected edition. Mr. Taylor has very kindly made a number of corrections and additions to the only copy in his possession, and sent it up from Whanganui in January, 1867, with permission to republish as requested. Since that time three gentlemen well acquainted with the native history, &c., of New Zealand have gone carefully over the work, making numerous additions and improvements, so that the work may now be more appropriately called 'A Maori and English Dictionary' than simply 'A Leaf from the Natural History'."

"This [newly titled edition], while removing few of the defects of the original, introduced others hardly less serious" ((Herbert W. Williams, Preface to the 5th edition of the Williams' 1844 Maori dictionary, 1917 [see above]).

1849 [1860]: [LILLY] Notes grammaticales sur la langue maorie ou néo-zélandaise, by Jean Baptiste François Pompallier (1802-1871). Rome: Impr. de la Propagande, 1860. 39 p.; 20 cm. Original green wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Note(s): "Petite collection de mots maoris" (French-Maori): p. 23-39. First published in Lyon in 1849. With inscription in ink indicating this copy was sent to John McCarthy, P.P., Mallow, Cork, Ireland by Mich. Shionhan in Auckland, N.Z., January 5, 1864.

1861: [LILLY] Te hikoi tuatahi ki te reo Maori, or, First step to the Maori language: with conversational phrases, and a short vocabulary of easy words, arranged as an Anglo-Maori school book, by Robert Donaldson. Napier [N.Z.]: Printed at the Herald Office by James Wood, 1861. 36 p.; 21 cm. Lacking original green printed wrappers. First edition. References: Williams 334; Bagnall 1653; Parkinson 532. Includes several short Maori-English word lists, and an "easy vocabulary," pp. 28-36. This copy with scattered annotations in pencil and pen, and an early ownership signature on the title page.

1872: [LILLYbm] First lessons in the Maori language: with a short vocabulary, by W[illiam] L[eonard] Williams [1829-1916]. Auckland: Upton & Co., 1872. Original brown cloth over boards, lettered in gold; unprinted spine largely perished. Pp. [2] 1-3 4-96 97-98. [Second edition; first to be printed in New Zealand]. The first edition was published in Berlin in 1862. Part II is an English-Maori vocabulary, pp. [61]-87, double columned. Parkinson 769.

1875, 1882: [LILLY] Mr Colenso's Maori-English lexicon (specimen of): presented to both Houses of the General Assembly by command of His Excellency: a comprehensive dictionary of the New Zealand tongue: including mythical, mythological, "taboo" or sacred, genealogical, proverbial, poetical, tropological, sacerdotal [i.e. sacredotal], incantatory, natural-history, idiomatical, abbreviated, tribal, and other names and terms of and allusions to persons, things, acts, and places in ancient times: also, showing their affinities with cognate Polynesian dialects and foreign languages: with copious pure Maori examples, by W[illiam] Colenso [1811-1899]. Wellington [N.Z.]: Govt. Printer, 1882. G-2. 20 p. Parkinson 1026. Bound with: "Compilation of Maori Lexicon by Mr. Colenso, (letters relative to), Presented to both Houses of the General Assembly by Command of His Excellency." Wellington: Government Printer, 1875. G-11. 4pp. Bound in contemporary reddish-brown quarter-cloth lettered in gold. The second part bears Colenso's manuscript correction of a typographical error and autograph note "N.B. No answers received to the above letters.—W. Colenso" at the bottom of the final page. With the printed paper label of John Lawson. See below, 1898, for specimen publication of the letter A from Colenso's lexicon, with the typo corrected in the Addendum and the autograph note now included as "N.B.—No answer ever received to the above letters—W.C."

"In 1865 the late Mr. Colenso was engaged by the Government to compile a dictionary the aim of which was 'to contain every known word in the Maori tongue, with clear unquestionable examples of pure Maori usage'. Mr. Colenso had collected a considerable amount of material, and at once took up the work; but in 1879 the Government cancelled the engagement" (Herbert W. Williams, Preface to the 5th edition of the Williams' 1844 Maori dictionary, 1917 [see above]).

1885: [LILLYbm] New and complete manual of Maori conversation: containing phrases and dialogues on a variety of useful and interesting topics, together with a few general rules of grammar; and a comprehensive vocabulary, by S[ister Marie Joseph] A[ubert]. Wellington, N.Z.: Lyon & Blair Printers, 1885. Original dark blue cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in orange. Pp. 1-5 6-197 198-200. First edition. Not in Zaubmüller. Parkinson 1123. English-Maori vocabulary, pp. 165-197, arranged thematically. Second copy [LILLYbm]: Binding variant: original blue cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in red.

"Having often heard people express astonishment and disappointment at not being able to procure any book that would help them acquire a practical knowledge of the Maori language, we have thought that a small pocket conversation book might be welcome, and have set about to write it... We have lived ourselves for many years among many tribes and we have tried to so frame our sentences that they would be understood through at least the whole North Island... We also beg to remark that we have endeavoured to make this little book useful to Maoris and well as to Europeans, and have, therefore, used expressions and written on subjects which may appear out of place in an ordinary book of conversation" (Preface).

1891: [LILLYbm] The Maori-Polynesian comparative dictionary, by Edward Tregear. Wellington, N.Z.: Lyon and Blair, 1891. Modern green cloth over boards; spine lettered in gold. Pp. iii-ix x-xxiv, 1 2-675 676. 25 cm. First edition. Zaubmüller, col. 268. Parkinson 1314. Reissued in Christchurch by Whitcombe and Tombs in 1897 (Parkinson 1503). Maori-English, with comparisons where appropriate to all other major Polynesian languages, including Samoan, Tahitian, Hawaiian, Tongan, etc., pp. [1]-628, with errata, p. [629], and an English-Maori index, pp. [629]-665.

Second copy: LILLY: xxiv, 675, [1] p.; 25 cm. "Works consulted": p. x-xi. Presentation copy dated March 25, 1891, inscribed by the author to Mr. J. Butler, who is thanked among many others on p. xii for his assistance. Butler is identified as a "native lands purchase agent." Bound in original dark green cloth, spine lettered in gilt, edges sprinkled red; minor waterstains, upper hinge cracking. BM, 241:70. NUC pre-56, 600:451. Given the dated inscription, this is probably the first binding. See the Lilly copy below for a copy in brown cloth, but otherwise identical in gilt lettering and blind rules.

Third copy: LILLY: Tregear, Edward. The Maori-Polynesian comparative dictionary. Wellington, N.Z.: Lyon and Blair, Lambton Quay, 1891. First edition, first issue, with the 1891 Lyon and Blair title page; large 8vo, pp. xxiv, 675, [1]; title page printed in red and black, original brown cloth, gilt-lettered spine. An Ayer Linguistic duplicate, with a Newberry release stamp on the front pastedown, and an Ayer bookplate. Dedicated to F. Max Mueller. Prefatory matter includes a Preface by Tregear, a long list of works consulted, detailed acknowledgements, and introductory rules of pronunciation for the Maori, Samoan, Tahitian, Hawaiian, Tongan, Rarotongan, Marquesan, Mangarevan, Paumotan, and extra Polynesian languages, the words from each of which are contained in the dictionary proper. Williams, Printed Maori, 804: Zaubmüller, 268; (bookseller's description: Rob Rulon-Miller).

Fourth copy: IUW, library binding.

"This work had its origin in a desire growing in the mind of the Author to comprehend the exact meaning of words used by the Maori people.... The science of Comparative Philology has opened up new vistas... Regarding the Maori speech of New Zealand as but a dialect of the great Polynesian language, the Author has attempted to organize and show in a concise manner the existing related forms common to New Zealand and the Polynesian Islands. Several attempts have been made to produce a Comparative Polynesian Dictionary, but so gigantic was the labour, so enormous the mass of material, that the compilers have shrunk back appalled in the initiatory stages of the work.... The present work is at all events, continuous and sustained... No small proportion of the labour expended upon this work was exerted in providing examples of the use of words, both in Maori and Polynesian" (Preface).

1898: [LILLY] Cover title: Maori-English Lexicon of the New Zealand Tongue, by the Rev. W. Colenso, F.R.S., & F.L.S. (Specimen). Wellington: John Mackay, Government Printer, 1898. ix, 111p. , 21 p. Original brown cloth over boards, lettered in gold, ruled in blind, with black endpapers. With separate title page for Part I, set as intended for the lexicon as a whole: A Maori-English Lexicon: being a comprehensive Dictionary of the New Zealand Tongue: including mythical, mythological, "taboo" or sacred, genealogical, proverbial, poetical, tropological, sacerdotal [i.e. sacerdotal], incantatory, natural-history, idiomatical, abbreviated, tribal, and other names and terms of and allusions to persons, things, acts, and places in ancient times: also, showing their affinities with cognate Polynesian dialects and foreign languages: with copious pure Maori examples. Part I.—Maori-English, by the Rev. W. Colenso, F.R.S., and R. L.S.; Member of Wellington Philosophical Society; Honorary Member and President, Hawke's Bay Philosophical Institute (New Zealand Institute); of Penzance Natural History and Antiquarian Society; of Australasian Society for Advancement of Science; Honorary Member of Natural History Society, Santa Barbara, Cal.; &c. &c. Wellington: By authority: John Mckay, Government Printer. 1898. Maori-English, pp. [1]-111. Separate title page for Part II, with half-title indicating it represents "Disconnected Specimens only," identical to opening title page, but with "Part II.—English-Maori," in place of "Part I.—Maori-English." English-Maori selections from the letters A-C., pp. [1]-14. The volume concludes with an "Addendum," pp. 17-21, of the letters relative to the compilation of the Maori lexicon as presented to both House of the General Assembly (see 1875, 1882 above). This copy includes a printed slip tipped in at the title page: "With Author's Compliments."

"The present is only a very small specimen of a work begun by me more than sixty years ago; at first, and for many years, merely for private use in my daily intercourse and work (duty) among the Maoris. [A detailed discussion follows of the genesis of the project and its reception by the government up to the appearance of this specimen]" (Preface).

"A specimen portion containing the words under the letter A was brought out in 1898; and a careful study of this specimen shows that, in spite of his intimate acquaintance with the language, the author lacked many of the qualities requisite for success as a lexicographer" (Herbert W. Williams, Preface to the 5th edition of the Williams' 1844 Maori dictionary, 1917 [see above]).

1918: [LILLYbm] Complete Manual of Maori Grammar and Conversation with Vocabulary, edited by A. T. Ngata. Christchurch, Wellington, and Dunedin: Whitcombe and Tombs Limited, [1918]. Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in brown. 167 pp. Revised and enlarged edition. Extensive English-Maori vocabulary arranged by groups. Not in Zaunmüller.

1926: [LILLYbm] "Word List. Containing words and expressions not included in published dictionaries of the Maori tongue," in: Journal of the Polynesian Society, Vol. 35, no. 1, 1926, pp. [43]-44. Offprint in original tan wrappers, lettered in black. Maori-English vocabulary from "amio" to "akihono," pp. [43]-44.

"The work of the lexicographer is never completed. This appears to apply to the speech of barbaric man as well as the languages of peoples on a higher culture stage. The last edition of Williams's Maori Dictionary appeared in 1917, and already we have a goodly array of Maori words collected since that date. It has been thought advisable to record them, also others still marked uncertain, and the proposal is to occasionally insert in the journal a brief list of such 'new words.'" (p. [43]).

1927a: [LILLYbm] "Word List. Containing words and expressions not included in published dictionaries of the Maori tongue," in: Journal of the Polynesian Society, Vol. 36, no. 3, 1927, pp. 283-286. Offprint in original pink wrappers, lettered in black. "Continued from Vol. 36, p. 144." Maori-English vocabulary from "aumoe" to "kauhika," pp 283-286.

1927b: [LILLYbm] "Word List. Containing words and expressions not included in published dictionaries of the Maori tongue," in: Journal of the Polynesian Society, Vol. 36, no. 4, 1927, pp. 372-375. Offprint in original pink wrappers, lettered in black. "Continued from Vol. 36, p. 286." Maori-English vocabulary from "kauhikahika" to "kopaka," pp. 372-375.

1927c: [LILLYbm] "Honorific Terms, Sacerdotal Expressions, Personifications, Etc., met with in Maori Narrative," in: Journal of the Polynesian Society, Vol. 36, no. 4, 1927, pp. 376-378. Offprint in original pink wrappers, lettered in black. "Continued from Vol. 36, p. 291." Maori-English vocabulary of terms indicated, pp.376-378.

1948: [LILLYbm] Reeds' Concise Maori Dictionary. Maori-English. English-Maori, by A. H. & A[lexander] W[yclif] Reed. Wellington, N.Z.: A. H. & A. W. Reed, 1948. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in black; d.j. black and ochre, lettered and decorated in ochre and black. 148 pp. First New Zealand edition. Zaunmüller, col. 268 (giving only 3rd edition, 1951). Includes list of "Books Consulted," p. 10. "For those who require a handy Maori Dictionary, simple in construction and not overloaded with unimportant words...Reeds' Concise Maori Dictionary has been compiled." Based on Williams Maori dictionary.

Second edition 1949: [LILLYbm] Reeds' Concise Maori Dictionary. Maori-English. English-Maori. Proverbial Sayings, by A.H. & A[lexander] W[yclif] Reed. Wellington, N.Z.: A.H. & A.W. Reed, 1949. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in black; d.j. ochre and black, lettered and decorated in ochre and black. Pp. 1-6 7-160 (pp. 159-160 adverts.). Second edition, revised and enlarged. Zaunmüller, col. 268 (giving only 3rd edition, 1951). Maori-English, pp. 13-103, and English-Maori, pp. 104-151, and list of "Books Consulted," p. 10. This copy with the ink ownership signature of H. G. A. Hughes (see note on Hughes under Abridged fourth edition 1915 of Williams' Dictionary of the New Zealand Language, above).

Third edition 1951: [IUW] Concise Maori dictionary. Maori-English, English-Maori; proverbial sayings, by A.W. Reed. [3d ed.] Wellington, A. H. & A. W. Reed [1951]. 158 p. 19 cm.

Fourth edition 1971 [1974]: [IUW] Concise Maori dictionary; Maori-English, English-Maori, compiled by A.W. Reed. Rev. ed. Wellington; A.H. & A.W. Reed, 1973. 151p.; 18cm. "Rev. ed. with vowel lengths indicated by macrons, 1971, 1973, 1974" on verso of title page. Maori-English, pp. 13-100, and English-Maori, pp. 101-151.

New revised edition 1984: [IUW] Concise Māori dictionary; Māori-English, English-Māori, compiled by A.W. Reed. New rev. ed. / revised by T.S. Kāretu. Wellington; Reed, 1984. x, 124 p.; 19 cm. Original pale orange wrappers, lettered in black. "New revised edition" (front wrapper). Maori-English, pp. 1-77, and English-Māori, pp. 79-124.

"When first approached to work on the revision of this dictionary, I was a little reluctant because it meant criticizing and correcting someone else's efforts. However, this initial reluctance was overcome by my greater desire to have as accurate as possible a dictionary which would be of use to the person who is not a scholar of the Māori language but merely wants a quick reference to certain words, their meaning and use... words considered to be too obsolete, archaic or regional have been omitted from this edition" (Preface to Revised Edition).

1960: [LILLYbm] Reeds' Lilliput Dictionary. Maori-English. English-Maori, by A. H. & A[lexander] W[yclif] Reed. Wellington, N.Z.: A. H. & A. W. Reed, 1960. Original red plastic, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. 1-34-576. First edition. Miniature book, 4.8 x 3.2 cm. English-Maori, pp. 11-372, and Maori-English, pp. 373-561. "Reeds' Lilliput Maori Dictionary is reprinted from Reeds' Concise Maori Dictionary, which continues to be published in a full cloth binding, size crown octavo (7 ½ in. x 5 in)" (p. 5).

1961: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary of Maori Place Names, by A[lexander] W[yclif] Reed. Wellington: A. H. & A. W. Reed, 1961. Original yellow cloth, illustrated and lettered in black. Pp. 1-45-144. First edition. Maori-English, pp. 11-140, and an appendix of European place names with their Maori equivalents, pp. 141-144 (double columns). The dictionary is much more like a normal dictionary of meanings than one would expect from the title.

"This book is a successor to Maori Place Names and their Meanings, which was first published in 1950 and which has been reprinted a number of times. It is now felt that the time has come when it should be completely revised, and enlarged by the inclusion of more factual material than the earlier book was able to provide" (Foreword).

Miniature book edition 1962: [LILLYbm] Lilliput Maori Place Names, by A[lexander] W[yclif] Reed. Wellington: A. H. & A. W. Reed, [1962]. Original blue plastic, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. 1-34-567 [8]. First edition. Maori-English, pp. 21-551, with numerous illustrations. "Reprinted from A dictionary of Maori place names." A miniature book, approximately 2.5 x 4 cm.

1965: [LILLYbm] Maori picture dictionary, by A[lexander] W[yclif] Reed [1908- ]. Wellington; Auckland: A.H. & A.W. Reed, 1965. Original yellow cloth over boards, lettered in black and red, and illustrated in red. Pp. 1-56-144. First edition. Maori-English, pp. 6-144, with illustrations throughout.

"Although complete in itself, the Maori Picture Dictionary may be regarded as complementary to the Concise Maori Dictionary, which is issued in the same series" (Introduction).

1966: [LILLYbm] English-Maori Dictionary, by Bruce Biggs. Auckland, N.Z.: A. H. & A. W. Reed, 1966. Original yellow cloth over boards, lettered and illustrated in brown, yellow and black. Pp. 1-56-144. First edition. English-Maori only, interleaved with blank pages for notes. "Like most other books on the language of the indigenous inhabitants of New Zealand, this one owes a great debt to three outstanding linguists of a single family - W.W. Williams, his son Bishop W. L. Williams, and grandson, Bishop H.W. Williams, and to their excellent books First Lessons in Maori and Dictionary of the Maori Language." This is the first true English-Maori dictionary, and contains around 4,000 head words.

Reprinted 1974: [IUW] English-Maori Dictionary, by Bruce Biggs. Auckland, N.Z.: A. H. & A. W. Reed, 1966. Original yellow cloth over boards, lettered and illustrated in brown, yellow and black. Pp. 1-5 6-144. "First published 1966; Reprinted 1971, 1974" on verso of title page. English-Maori only, interleaved with blank pages for notes.

1967: [LILLYbm] Aboriginal place names and their meanings, by A[lexander] W[yclif] Reed. [Artarmon] Sydney, Wellington: A. H. & A. W. Reed, 1967. Original brown and yellow cloth over boards, lettered in brown and yellow, with illustration on front cover. Pp. 1-9 10-144. First edition. Aboriginal place names with English meanings, pp. [9]-95, and an English-Aboriginal word list, pp. [97]-135.

Third edition 1996: [IUW] The Reed dictionary of Māori place names = Te papakupu ingoa wāhi Māori a Reed, by A.W. Reed. 3rd ed. Auckland; Reed, 1996. 144 p.; 20 cm. Rev. ed. of: A dictionary of Maori place names. 2nd ed. 1982.

1973: [IUW] Maori customs and crafts, by Alan Armstrong. Wellington, Seven Seas Pub. [1973]. 64 p. illus. (part col.) 17 cm. Original blue and white wrappers, lettered in black and white, with colored illustrations on front and rear. Consists of an alphabetically-arranged glossary of terms related to Maori customs and crafts, including English and/or Maori words with explanations of their meaning.

1974 [1994]: [IUW] P.M. Ryan's dictionary of modern Māori. 4th ed. Auckland, [NZ]; Heinemann, 1994. 229 p.; map; 22 cm. Original yellow, blue and green wrappers, lettered in red, purple, green, yellow and white. "Completely revised and updated."--Cover. First published in 1974, second edition 1983, third edition 1989, fourth edition 1994 (from verso of title page). Maori-English, pp. 5-105, English-Maori, pp. 107-212.

"This volume is designed especially for school work. It is a scaled-down version of the larger volume. The source of the words in this book is the same as in previous edition..." (Preface, 1994).

1981: [IUW] The complete English-Maori dictionary, by Bruce Biggs. [Auckland]: Auckland University Press, 1981. x, 227 p.; 22 cm. First edition.

Reprinted 1985: [LILLYbm] The Complete English-Maori Dictionary by Bruce Biggs. Auckland University Press / Oxford University Press, 1985. Hardbound without d.j. 227 pp. Reprinted, with corrections. First published 1981. "The first substantial English to Maori vocabulary appeared in the second (1853 [1852]) edition of William Williams's A Dictionary of the New Zealand Language." This first "complete" English-Maori dictionary contains almost 15,000 head words.

1985: [LILLYbm] A word-list of South Island Maori, by Ray Harlow. [Auckland]: Linguistic Society of New Zealand, 1985. Original yellow wrappers, lettered and decorated in red. Pp. [2] i-ii iii-xxxi xxxii, [2] 1-116. First edition. South Island Maori-English, pp. 1-98, and an English-Maori index, pp. 99-111.

"This is an edition of a South Island Maori word-list compiled by Rev. J. Watkin during his stay at Waikouaiti between 1840 and 1844" (Preface).

1991: [IUW] Tikanga whakaaro = Key concepts in Māori culture, by Cleve Barlow. Auckland; New York; Oxford University Press, 1991. xvii, 187 p.; ill.; 22 cm. Library binding, incorporating original reddish-brown wrappers, lettered in black, with a color photo of a coastline on the front. First edition. Includes alphabetically-arranged glossary of term and concepts of Maori culture. Includes bibliographical references (p. 187).

"I have avoided taking a strictly academic approach and have adopted a fairly informal style for the most part. The entries are written as though I am responding to direct questions such as, 'What to you understand by the term tapu?' ... There are seventy concepts explained here.... I have selected concepts that I feel are important for understanding Maori culture as it is practiced today, and concepts which are likely to be relevant in the future" (Author's Preface).

1992 [1996]: [IUW] Te Matatiki / Te Taura Whiri i te Reo Māori = Contemporary Māori words, Māori Language Commission. Rev. ed. Auckland; New York; Oxford University Press, 1996. ix, 289 p.; 20 cm. Library binding incorporating original black wrappers, lettered in white and light brown. Revised edition. English-Maori, pp. 1-145, and Maori-English, pp. 146-277. Includes bibliographical references (p. ix).

"Te Matariki was first published in 1992. This revised edition develops the original in two important respects: it includes over 2,000 previously unpublished terms and each entry is provided with its Māori derivation" (Preface).

1993 [1994]: [IUW] English-Maori dictionary, by H.M. Ngata. Wellington, N.Z.; Learning Media, c1993. xvi, 559 p.; port.; 22 cm. Original light gray cloth spine, lettered in black, and patterned colored paper over boards. "Second impression 1994" on verso of title page. "In February 1989, Hōri Ngata passed away ... Whai Ngata, agreed to complete the work"--P. ix. "Published 1993 for the Ministry of Education by Learning Media Ltd."--T.p. verso. The Preface includes a history of the compilation of the dictionary. English-Maori, pp. 1-540.

1995: [IUW] The Reed dictionary of modern Maori, by P.M. Ryan. Auckland, N.Z.; Reed Publishing, 1995. 648 p.; 22 cm. Original blue and white paper over boards, lettered in red, blue, black and white. "First published 1995. Reprinted 1995" on verso of title page. Maori-English, pp. 25-322, and English-Maori, pp. 323-648. "In association with TVNZ."

"The kaupapa – basic principle – of this book is to gather together words old and new which one might meet in the course of Māori studies.... The headwords and their meanings in this dictionary are presented as simply as possible.... I've tried to include all the modern words re-introduced into the language by the Taura Whiri I te Reo Māori" (Preface).

1998: [LILLYbm] Dictionnaire néo-zélandais - français. New Zealand - French dictionary, by Ewen Jones & Myreille Pawliez. Paris; Montreal: Éditions L'Harmattan, 1998. Original white wrappers, lettered in blue and red. Pp. 1-5 6-781 782-784. First edition. Includes both New Zealand English and Maori words with French equivalents, pp. [17]-666. This is the first dictionary in French of the languages of New Zealand (English and Maori).... English?]

[MAPUDUNGUN] Mapudungün (from mapu 'earth, land' and dungün 'speak, speech') is a language isolate spoken in south-central Chile and west central Argentina by the Mapuche people (from mapu 'earth' and che 'people'). It is also spelled Mapuzugün and Mapudungu. It was formerly known as Araucanian, the name given to the Mapuche by the Spaniards; the Mapuche avoid it as a remnant of Spanish colonialism, and it is considered offensive. Mapudungün is not an official language of Chile or Argentina and has received virtually no government support throughout its history. It is not used as a language of instruction in either country's educational system despite the Chilean government's commitment to provide full access to education in Mapuche areas in southern Chile. There is an ongoing political debate over which alphabet to use as the standard alphabet of written Mapudungun. There are approximately 144,000 native speakers in Chile and another 8,400 in west central Argentina. Only 2.4% of urban speakers and 16% of rural speakers use Mapudungun when speaking with children, but only 3.8% of speakers aged 10–19 years in the south of Chile (the language's stronghold) are "highly competent" in the language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: arn. Alternate Names: Araucana, "Araucano" (pej.), Mapuche, Mapudungu, Mapuzungun.

1606 [1887]: [IUW] Arte, Vocabulario y Confesionario de la lengua de Chile, compuestos por Luiz de Valdivia; pub. de nuevo por Julio Platzmann. Leipzig, B. G. Teubner, 1887. Facsimile edition. [265] p. 20 cm. Various pagings. With reproduction of original t.-p.: Arte y gramatica general de la lengva qve corre en todo el reyno de Chile, con vn Vocabulario, y Confessionario. Compuestos por el padre Luys de Valdiuia de la Compañia de Iesus en la Prouincia del Piru ... Ivtamente con la Doctrina christiana y cathecismo del concilio de Lima en español, y dos traducciones del en la lengua de Chile, que examinaron y aprobaron los dos reuerendissimos Señores de Chile, cada qual la de su obispado. Con licencia. En Lima por Francisco del Canto. Año. 1606. The "Doctrina christiana" and the "Confesionario" have special title-pages. The "Doctrina" follows the "Vocabulario".

1765: [LILLY] Arte de la lengua general del reyno de Chile, con un dialogo chileno-hispano muy curioso: a que se añade la Doctrina christiana, esto es, rezo, catecismo, coplas, confesionario, y pláticas; lo mas en lengua chilena y castellana: Y por fin un Vocabulario hispano-chileno, y un Calepino chileno-hispano mas copioso, by Andrés Febrés [1734-1790]. Lima: En la calle de la Encarnación, 1765.

New edition 1884: [LILLY] Gramática araucana: ó sea, Arte de la lengua general de los Indios de Chile, por el P. Andres Febrés, S. J. Reproduccion de la edicion de Lima de 1765, con los textos completos. Por Juan M. Lársen. Buenos Aires: Impreso por J. A. Alsina, 1884. viii, 332 p.; 18 cm. "Una reproducción del Arte de la lengua general del reino de Chile ... De las cuatro partes que se distinguen en su carátula este tomo contiene las dos primeras. La parte cuarta la he publicado en 1882, cambiando el nombre de Calepino chileno hispano en el de Diccionario araucano-español"--p. iii. Includes reproduction of original title (p. 1): Arte de la lengua general del reyno de Chile, con un Dialogo chileno-hispano muy curioso: a que se añade la Doctrina christiana, esto es, rezo, catecismo, coplas, confesionario, y pláticas; lo mas en lengua chilena y castellana: y por fin un Vocabulario hispano-chileno, y un Calepino chileno-hispano mas copioso ... Lima, 1765. With the bookplate of Indiana University Library. Bound in quarter red leather and beige decorated boards, brown decorated endpapers. Includes "Breve Diccionario de algunas palabras mas usuales," pp. [174]-205 (Fin de este pequeño diccionario de cerca de mil palabras)".

1846a: [LILLYbm] Diccionario Hispánico Chileno, by Andres Febres, enlarged by Antonio Hernandez y Calzada. Santiago: Imprenta del Progreso, 1846. Nineteenth-century brown half-leather and marbled paper (bound for Smithsonian Institution). Pp. [6] I II, I 2-108, I-III IV, I 2-80 81 87 (lacking pp. 37-38, 57-58, and 71-72 in second pagination; p. [81] errata, verso paginated 87). Zaubmüller, col. 19 (with no indication of its relation to the earlier edition). This copy a duplicate from the Library of Congress with LOC bookplate. Febres' Arte de la lengua general del reyno de Chile, con un dialogo chileno-hispano muy curioso: a que se anade la Doctrina christiana, esto es, rezo, catecismo, coplas, confesionario, y platicas; lo mas en lengua chilena y castellana: Y por fin un Vocabulario hispano-chileno, y un Calepino chileno-hispano mas copioso was originally published in Lima in 1765.

1846b: see 11) under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

1898: [IUW] Langue auca (ou langue indigène du Chili); grammaire, dictionnaire, textes traduits et analyses, by Raoul de la Grasserie. Paris, Gaissonneuve, 1898: 372 p. 26 cm. Bibliothèque linguistique américaine, t. xxi.

1916 [2007]: [IUW] Diccionario araucano : mapuche-español, español-mapuche / Fray Félix José de Augusta. 4a. ed. de Chle : Ediciones Cerro Manquehue, 2007. xvi, 291, 421 p. ; 24 cm. Original red, orange and black wrappers, lettered in red and black. Vol. 1: Araucano [Mapudungun]-Spanish, pp. [1]-288, errata, pp.[289]-291, Supplement to Vol. 1, Araucano [Mapudungun]-Spanish, pp. [3]-15 (second pagination); Vol. II: Spanish-Araucano [Mapudungun], pp. [5]-418, errata, pp. [419]-421. Originally published as: Diccionario araucano-español y español-araucano. "Incluye los dos tomos de la edicion original de 1916 [reprinted photographically, including title pages]." The verso of the new general title page states that the first edition was published in September, 1916, the second edition [by which may be meant the second volume] in that same month and year, and the third edition in 1996 (by Ediciones Cerro Manquehue).

Reprint of Vol. I 1989: [IUW] Diccionario mapuche-español / por Félix José de Augusta. Santiago, Chile : Ediciones Seneca, 1989. xvii, 304 p. ; 26 cm. Library binding, incorporating original orange, gray and white front and rear illustrated wrappers, lettered in black. Mapuche [Mapudungun]-Spanish, pp. [1]-304. Includes substantial introductory material providing background on the genesis of the dictionary.

1928: see under ACHAGUA.

1960: [LILLYbm] Diccionario Comentado Mapuche-Español. Araucano Pehuenche Pampa Pichunche Rancülche Huilliche, by Esteban Erize. [Bahia Blanca]: Instituto de Humanidades, Universidad Nacional del Sur, 1960. Original dark green cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. I-II (first leaf used as end-paper) 12-550 551-552. First edition. Includes a map showing the maximum dispersion of Araucanian, p. [9], and an extensive bibliography, pp. [27]-42. Araucanian-Spanish, pp. 45-430, and Spanish-Araucanian, pp. 433-550.

1995: [IUW] Diccionario lingüístico-etnográfico de la lengua mapuche; mapudungun-Español-English, by María Catrileo. 1. ed. Santiago; Editorial Andrés Bello, 1995. xxii, 279 pages; 23 cm. Original white wrappers, lettered in red, gray and black, with a color illustration of a belt on the front cover. First edition, 1,000 copies, as indicated on verso of title page. Mapudungun-Spanish-English, pp. 3-249, Mapudungun index, pp. [257]-263, Spanish index, pp.[265]-271, English index, pp. [273]-279.

"This trilingual dictionary Mapudungun-Spanish-English has been designed mainly to reveal the permanence of the Mapuche language after 500 years of Spanish conquest... [The] arrangement of words in different topics has been distributed in five main areas which are: man and his environment, the earth, animals, diseases and rituals. Each one of them includes a selected number of lexical items in the categories of noun, verb and adjective.... The number of terms considered (a total of 862) includes a set of the most common items still present in the Mapuche language..." (Preface).

1997: [LILLYbm] Diccionario ilustrado: mapudungun, español, inglés, by Arturo Hernández Sallés, Nelly Ramos Pizarro, and Carlos Cácamo Luna, illustrator. Providencia, Santiago, Chile: Pehuen, 1997. Original color illustrated wrappers with flaps, lettered in blue and black. Pp. 1-4 5-130/131-136. First edition. Mapudungun-Spanish-English, arranged thematically with color illustrations throughout, pp. [11]-107, alphabetical list Mapudungun-Spanish-English, pp. 108-121, and Spanish-Mapudungun index, pp. 122-130. Introductory material in both Spanish and English. First dictionary of the language to include English. Second copy: IUW.

"This dictionary has been designed to be used as reference material by Chilean or foreign readers who are looking for the means to approach the Mapuche culture and language.... It contains more than one thousand entries... arranged in semantic fields" (Introduction).

1997: [LILLY] Diccionario mapuche-español español-mapuche : la cultura mapuche : costumbres, ceremonias, medicina y mitos : topónimos indígenas patagónicos / Carmen Zucarelli ... [et al.]. Río Negro, República Argentina : Ediciones Caleuche, c1999. 232 p. : ill. ; 23 cm. Original two-tone yellow wrappers, lettered in black, with a color illustration of a tribal woman on the front cover. Mapudungun-Spanish, pp. 37-119, Spanish-Mapudungun, pp. 122-214. Includes bibliographical references (p. 229-230). Second copy: IUW.

2013: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF SOUTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[MAQUIRITARI] Maquiritari, aka Dekwana or Ye'kuana, is a Cariban language of Venezuela, with a few hundred speakers in Brazil (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mch. Alternate Names: Cunuana, De'cuana, De'kwana Carib, Maiongong, Maquiritai, Maquiritare, Pawana, Soto, Ye'cuana, Yekuana, Ye'kuana.

1889: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF SOUTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[MARA] Marra (also spelled Mara) is an Australian Aboriginal language, traditionally spoken on an area of the Gulf of Carpentaria coast in the Northern Territory around the Roper, Towns and Limmen Bight Rivers. Marra is now an endangered language. The most recent survey was in 1991; at that time, there were only 15 speakers, all elderly.

Most Marra people now speak Kriol as their main language. The remaining elderly Marra speakers live in the Aboriginal communities of Ngukurr, Numbulwar, Borroloola and Minyerri (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mec. Alternate Names: Leelalwarra, Leelawarra, Mala, Marra.

1981: [LILLYbm] Basic Materials in Mara: Grammar, Texts and Dictionary, by Jeffrey Heath. Canberra: Department of Linguistics, Research School of Pacific Studies, The Australian National University, 1981. Second copy: IUW.

[MARANAO] Maranaoan (Maranao ['məranaw] Mëranaw) is an Austronesian language spoken by the Maranao people in the provinces of Lanao del Norte and Lanao del Sur in the Philippines, and in Sabah, Malaysia. Iranun was once considered a dialect. Unique among other Danao languages, Maranaoan is spoken with a distinct downstep accent, as opposed to stress accent (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mrw. Alternate Names: Maranaw, Ranao.

1967: [LILLYbm] A Maranao Dictionary, compiled by Howard P. McKaughan & Batua A. Macaraya. Honolulu: University of Hawaii Press, 1967. Original brownish-orange and white wrappers, lettered in black and white. 394 pp. First edition. "Maranao, one of the eight major languages in the Philippines, is spoken by some 400,000 members of a Mosem society on the island of Mindanao." Maranao-English and English-Maranao. This is the first true English-Maranao dictionary, preceded by a Spanish Moro-Maguinandao-Español dictionary of 1892, and a vocabulary and phrase book of the Lanao Moro Dialect in 1913.

[MARANUNGGU] The Marranunggu are an indigenous Australian people, and language group, of the Northern Territory. Marranunggu is classified as one of the dialects of the Marranji group of the Western Daly languages, together with Menhthe and Emmi.

Ethnologue: zmr. Alternate Names: Emmi, Maranungku, Merranunggu, Warrgat.

1970: [IUW] An introduction to Maranungku (Northern Australia) by D.T. Tryon. [Canberra] Australian National University [1970] viii, 111, 6 p. map. 26 cm. Original light green wrappers lettered in black, with green cloth spine, lettered in gold. Pacific linguistics. Series B, monographs, no. 15. Lexicon: Maranungku [Maranunggu]-English, pp. 92-101, English-Maranungku [Maranunggu], pp. 102-110. Bibliography: p. 111. First vocabulary of the language.

"Maranungku is a language spoken in the Daly River area of the Northern Territory of Australia.... Its speakers number about fifty only.... No previous study has been made of Maranungku, although wordlists have been gathered by Capell for a number of the members of the Daly Language Family.... The material for this study was collected during fieldwork in the Daly River area from July until October 1967, and from March until July 1969.... All of the material used in this description, with the exception of the verb paradigms, is taken from spontaneous unelicited utterances by Maranungku speakers" (Introduction).

[MARATHI] Marathi (English pronunciation: /mə'ra:ti/; मराठी Marāṭhī [mə'raʈʰi]) is an Indo-Aryan language spoken predominantly by the Marathi people of Maharashtra. It is the official language and co-official language in the Maharashtra and Goa states of Western India, respectively, and is one of the 22 scheduled languages of India. There were 73 million speakers in 2001; Marathi ranks 19th in the list of most spoken languages in the world. Marathi has the fourth largest number of native speakers in India. Marathi has some of the oldest literature of all modern Indo-Aryan languages, dating from about 900 AD. The major dialects of Marathi are Standard Marathi and the Varhadi dialect.[14] Malvani Konkani has been heavily influenced by Marathi varieties. Marathi has several features that set it aside from most other Indo-Aryan languages. Marathi distinguishes inclusive and exclusive forms of 'we' and possesses a three-way gender system that features the neuter in addition to the masculine and the feminine (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mar. Alternate Names: Maharashtra, Maharathi, Malhatee, Marthi, Muruthu.

1778: [LILLY] Gramatica Marastta a mais vulgar que se practica nos reinos do Nizamaxa', e Idalxa', offerecida aos ... Padres Missionarios dos dittos reinos. Roma: Na Estamperia da Sagrada Congregação de Propaganda Fide, 1778. 47 p.; 8°. Original decorated wrappers. Not in Scholerg, Bibliography of Goa & the Portuguese in India. First edition. Innocêncio believes that the author was a Portuguese Jesuit living in Rome after his expulsion from Portugal. With library stamp on title page and p. 24 of the library of the Congregação de Propaganda Fide. Includes several short Marathi-Portuguese vocabulary lists, and a Marathi-Portuguese "Vocabulario das couzas ordinarias," [vocabulary of common things], pp. 39-45. The earliest Marathi dictionary listed in Zaunmüller is 1829.

1831: [LILLY] A dictionary, Murat,hee & English compiled for the government of Bombay, by Captain James T. Molesworth, assisted by Lieutenants Thomas and George Candy. Bombay: [Printed for the compilers], 1831. Half red sheep and marbled boards, edges sprinkled red, rebacked with brown sheep, spine lettered in gilt. [4], xviii, [2], 1162, [4] p.; 29 cm. First edition: [enter: Zaunmüller]. Lilly Library copy is a presentation copy, inscribed by the author to Lt. Col. W. Moxon. With the bookplate of the Baptist College Library Bristol, and the book label of John Lawson.

1847: [LILLY] A dictionary, English and Marathi, compiled for the government of Bombay, by J T Molesworth and T Candy. 30 cm. Bombay: American Mission Press, 1847. Contemporary brown half leather and marbled paper over boards Cf. Zaunmüller 269 (dated 1873).

Second edition 1857: [LILLY] A Dictionary, Marathi and English. Second edition, revised and enlarged by J. T. Molesworth, compiled by J[ames] T[homas] Molesworth, assisted by George and Thomas Candy. Bombay: Printed for the Government at the Bombay Education Society's Press, 1857. Later green half-leather and green cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. i-v vi-xxx, 1 2-920 921-922. Second edition, revised and enlarged. Zaunmüller, col. 269 (listing this edition). Encyclopedia Britannica lists first edition as 1831 [Marathi-English] (see above), second edition 1847 [English-Marathi] (see above), then this edition, ed. Candy, followed by an edition abridged by Baba Padmanji, Bombay 1863 (cf. 1859 edition below).

"A dictionary of the Marathi ... must certainly contain Sanskrit words learned as well as ordinary, recondite as well as familiar... whilst of Marathi words it must contain the uncommon and the common, the local and the general, the coarse and the neat, the domesticated imports and the genuine homestock; not daring to discard what Marathi speakers are pleased to employ, or too delicately to discriminate betwixt the corrupt and the pure, or even betwixt the unchaste or unclean and the altogether comely. This obligation this second edition has aimed to fulfil" (Preface). With a detailed description of how material for the dictionary was gathered, p. xxi.

Abridged edition 1859: [LILLYbm] A Compendium of the English and Marathi Dictionary, by Baba Padmanji. Bombay: Thomas Graham, 1859. Original brown cloth over boards, lettered in gold and decorated in blind. Pp. i-v vi-xvi, 1 2-482 483-484. First abridged edition. Not in Zauhmüller. With " (Copyright Edition under the Provision of Act XX of 1847.)" at bottom of title page, with the Preface dated September 1859. Both the Encyclopedia Britannica and later editions of this dictionary list 1863 as the first edition of this work, with "Moleworth's" in place of "the" in the title. Both this edition and the 1863 edition are 482 pages. This copy with the ink ownership signature of G. B. Martin, dated October 9th, 1860. Ex-library, from the Free Public Libraries of Nottingham, but in original binding.

"It is now twelve years since the excellent and great work of Messrs. Molesworth and Candy—The English and Marathi Dictionary [1847]—was published under the munificent patronage of Government. The work however, it is believed, is at present out of print, and there is no likelihood of its undergoing a second edition under the existing circumstances. The present work is not intended to replace the large Dictionary, nor to supersede its utility. It is an humble effort to supply a want universally felt even at the time when copies of the parent Dictionary were easily procurable" (Preface).

Reprinted 1989: [IUW] Molesworth's Marathi and English dictionary / J.T. Molesworth, T. Candy = Marāthī-Īngrejī śabdakośa / Molsavartha. 2nd ed. rev. and enl. New Delhi; Asian Educational Services, 1989. xxx, 920 p.; 29 cm.

Reprint. Originally published: A dictionary, Marāthī and English. Bombay; Bombay Education Society's Press, 1857.

New edition, improved and enlarged 1870: [LILLYbm] A Comprehensive Dictionary, English and Marathi. New edition, improved and enlarged, by Baba Padmanji. Bombay: Education's Society Press, 1870. Original? worn light brown cloth, decorated in blind and lettered in gold. Pp. i-v vi-xii xiii-xvi, 1 2-680. New edition. Not in Zauhmüller. English-Marathi, pp. [1]-680, with list of previous dictionaries upon which this is based, p. [xv]. Padmanji assisted in the revision and enlargement of Molesworth's dictionary, publishing in 1863 what he refers to here as the "first edition" under the title Compendium of Molesworth's Marathi and English Dictionary (but see above for earlier edition under this title).

"The rapid sale of the work, as well as the increasing demand for it, have induced the Editor to undertake the preparation of the present volume. The alterations from the first edition are chiefly the following:- 1. The inseration of a large number of additional words, and a still larger number of significations... [further alterations listed 2-8].... [T]he excellent works of Molesworth and Candy... must form for all future generations the basis for the labours of the Anglo-Marathi Lexicographers."

1954?: [LILLY] Marathi reader, by Mahadeo L. Apte. [S.l.; s.n., 1954?] xv, 240 leaves; 31 cm. Date of publication is after 1953, based on suggested reading listed on p. xv. In brown wrappers with metal clasps. Reproduced from typescript and mimeographed manuscript. With Marathi-English vocabularies at the end of each exercise.

1959: [IUW] Marathi self-taught; a simple method of learning the Marathi language in three weeks; with an English-Marathi vocabulary, by Sitaram P. Bhat and R.D. Deshpande. [5th ed.] Bombay; Taraporevala Sons, [1959]. 227 p. Original tan wrappers, lettered in black. English-Marathi vocabulary, pp. 150-227.

1963: [IUW] Sadhana twentieth century students' dictionary (English-English-Marathi). 1st ed. Poona; Sadhaha Prakashan, 1963. 932 p.

1996: see under KORLAI CREOLE PORTUGUESE.

1997: [IUW] English-Marathi dictionary, by Ramesh V. Dhongde. London; Oxford University Press, dc 1997. xv, 823 p.; 23 cm. Cover title: Oxford English-Marathi dictionary.

2011 [2014]: [IUW] Oxford English-English-Marathi dictionary = Īṅrajī-Īṅrajī-Marāṭhī śabdakośa, editor, Dr. Ramesh V. Dhongde. New Delhi; Oxford University Press 2014. xiv, 1634 pages; illustrations; 24 cm. Original dark blue cloth, lettered in gold. Originally published 2011. "Seventh impression 2014" on verso of title page. English-Marathi, pp. [1]-1620. One-page Preface in Marathi only.

[MARATINO] Maratino is a barely attested extinct language that was spoken in north-east Mexico, near Martín, Tamaulipas. Swanton, who called it 'Tamaulipeco', classified it as Uto-Aztecan based on a few obvious cognates, such as Maratino chiguat 'woman' ~ Nahuatl cihuātl 'woman' and peyot 'peyote' ~ Nahuatl peyotl, but other scholars have not considered this to be enough to classify the language (Wiki).

Ethnologue does not list Maratino as a language.

1940: see under COAHUILTECO.

[MARAU] Marau is an Eastern Malayo-Polynesian language spoken on the south coast of Serui Island of the Ambai Islands group in Cenderawasih Bay, within Papua Province of Western New Guinea, northeastern Indonesia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mvr.

1961: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MARGHI, CENTRAL] Margi, also known as Marghi and Marghi Central, is a Chadic language spoken in Nigeria. It is perhaps the best described of the Biu-Mandara branch of that family. Marghi South and Putai are closely related, and sometimes considered dialects of Margi (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mrt. Alternate Names: Marghi, Margi.

195-?: [LILLY] [Grammar and word list of the Margi language]. Manuscript [S.l.: Church of the Brethren, 195-?] [106] p.; 28 cm. Cataloger supplied title; title page lacking. Compiler's name and date range based on mss. notes contained in the volume and information from James H. Vaughan, Professor Emeritus of Anthropology at Indiana University (01/26/11): Prof. Vaughan received this grammar from Irvin F. Stern in 1959; Stern was a missionary of the Church of the Brethern Mission (CBM). This grammar and word list was likely started by H. Stone Kulp (1894-1964) who initiated work among the Margi in 1926, shortly after completing linguistic training at School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London. Mimeographed. According to the article, "Bura phonology and some suggestions concerning the orthography," by Robert Blench: "A Church of the Brethern Mission has been established in Garkida and the surrounding area since the 1930s, and produced a preliminary hektographed wordlist in 1941, with a new edition in 1953."

([www.rogerblench.info/Language%20data/.../Bura/Bura%20phonology.pdf, July 10, 2009)].

p. i. Includes numerous manuscript corrections and additions, most likely added by various missionaries located at Lassa in Northeastern Nigeria. Mss. list of Margi adverbs with their English equivalents and an information sheet (1 sheet ([1] p.)) compiled by Prof. James H. Vaughan., laid in at end. "This represents, to the best of my knowledge, the most reliable and widely distributed word list of Marghi" (James Vaughan, Professor Emeritus of Anthropology, IU).

[MARI] The Mari language (Mari: марий йылме, marij jəlme; Russian: марийский язык, marijskiy yazyk), spoken by approximately 400,000 people, belongs to the Uralic language family. It is spoken primarily in the Mari Republic (Mari: Марий Эл, Marii El, i.e., 'Mari land') of the Russian Federation as well as in the area along the Vyatka river basin and eastwards to the Urals. Mari speakers, known as the Mari are found also in the Tatarstan, Udmurtia, and Perm regions. Mari is the titular and official language of its republic, alongside Russian. The Mari language today has a unified standard form with two variants Hill Mari and Meadow Mari, using a modified version of Cyrillic script, as well as several dialects close to Meadow Mari: Eastern (Ural) dialects (spoken by Maris in Bashkortostan, Sverdlovsk Oblast and Udmurtia), and Northwestern dialect (spoken in Novgorod Oblast and parts of Kirov Oblast). The use of two "variants", as opposed to two "languages", has been debated: Maris recognize the unity of the ethnic group, and the two forms are very close, but distinct enough to cause some problems with communication (Wiki).

Ethnologue considers Mari a macrolanguage, consisting of 1) Hill Mari: mrj. Alternate Names: Cheremis, Gorno-Mariy, High Mari, Mari-Hills, Western Mar and 2) Meadow Mari: mhr. Alternate Names: Cheremis, Eastern Mari, Low Mari, Lugovo Mari, Mari, Mari-Woods.

1845: [LILLYbm] Elementa grammatices tschermisæ, conscripsit dr M.A. Castrén. Kuopio: ex officina typ. J. Karsten, 1845. xi, 75 p.; 22 cm. In blue wrappers. Mari vocabulary.

1925: [IUW] Mariï mutër; turlò vèrè ilÿshè mariÿñ mutshÿm tanġastarèn nêrgêlÿmè knaga / 2vasilev viktörÛpÿmariï (V.M. Vasil'ev). Mosko; SSSR Kalÿk-vlak rüdò savÿktÿsh, 1926. 347 p.; port.; 26 cm. Library binding incorporating original tan from wrappers, lettered and decorate in orange and black. Includes bibliographical references (p. 346-347). Foreword in Mari, Russian and German. Mari-Russian, pp. [15]-321.

"Our dictionary includes almost all words in the Mari language, that is, the three dialects: Eastern [considered by Ethnologue an alternate name for Meadow Mari], Hill, and Meadow. In addition, the variations in their pronunciation are noted. Not only ordinary words, but also archaic and newly-coined words are included" (Vorwort: tr: BM).

1956: [IUW] Mariško-ruskii slovar'. 21 000 slov. S prilozheniem kratkogo grammaticheskogo ocherka mariškogo iazyka. [Sostavili: A.A. Asylbaev i dr. Otvetstvennyi redaktor B.A. Serebrennikov]. Moskva, Gos. izd-vo inostrannykh i natsional'nykh slovareĭ, 1956. 863 p. 18 cm. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered in gold and decorated in blind, with black label lettered in gold on spine. First edition. At head of title: Mariškiĭ nauchno-issledovatel'skiĭ institut iazyka, literatury i istorii. Mari-Russian, pp. [11]-792.

1961: [IUW] Concordance and thesaurus of Cheremis poetic language, by Thomas A. Sebeok and Valdis J. Zeps. 's-Gravenhage, Mouton, 1961. 259 p. 27 cm. Library binding. First edition. Studies in Cheremis, v.8 Janua linguarum. Series maior, 8. Cheremis [Mari]-English concordance, pp. [36]-135, and English finder list, pp. [250]-259.

"In this section, we attempt to locate our Concordance and its transformations, and our Thesares, in the library of dictionaries in general, and among Cheremis dictionaries in particular" (The Cheremis Dictionary and Others, pp. 18-24).

1966: [IUW] Russko-mariškiĭ slovar': okolo 35000 slov, [glav. redaktor I.S. Galkin]. Moskva: Izd-vo "Sov. ěntsiklopediia", 1966. 848 p.; 22 cm. At head of title: Mariškiĭ nauchno-issledovatel'skiĭ institut iazyka, literatury i istorii. Title on added t.p.: Rushla-marla muter. Russian-Mari dictionary.

1968: [LILLY] Cheremis-Chuvash lexical relationships; an index to Räsänen's 'Chuvash loanwords in Cheremis, edited by John R. Krueger; assisted by E. D. Francis. Bloomington, Ind.; Indiana University, c1968. [11], 2-117 p.; 23 cm. Studies in Cheremis; v. 10. Uralic and Altaic series; v. 94 In yellow and green printed wrappers. Second copy: IUW.

1978: [IUW] Cheremis literary reader, with glossary, by Thomas A. Sebeok. Louvain [Belgium]; Editions Peeters, 1978. 138 p.; ill.; 24 cm. Uralic and Altaic series; v. 132. Studies in Cheremis; v. 10.

1979-1983: [IUW] Ėtimologičeskii slovar' mariškogo iazyka / F.I. Gordeev; Pod red. I.S. Galkina. Īoshkar-Ola; Mar. kn. izd-vo, 1979-<1983 > v. <1-2 >; 22 cm. Includes bibliographies.

1990-2005: [IUW] Мариĭ мутер / [авторы, А.А. Абрамова ... et al. редколлегия, И.С. Галкин (гл. редактор) ... et al.]. Мариĭ мутер / [avtory, A.A. Abramova ... et al.; redkollegiia, I.S. Galkin (gl. redaktor) ... et al.]. Īoshkar-Ola; Мариĭское кн. изд-во, 1990-<2005> Īoshkar-Ola; Мариĭское кн. изд-во, 1990-<2005> v. <1-10>; 21 cm. Contents: T. 1. A-Z; t. 4. M-Ö; t. 5. Ö-P; t. 6. R-S; t. 7. T; t. 8. U-Ch. IUW has vols. 1, 9-10.

[MARIA (Papua New Guinea)] Maria is a Manubaran language spoken in the "bird's tail" of Papua New Guinea by approximately 1,350 people (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mds. Alternate Names: Manubara.

1970: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MARICOPA] Maricopa or Piipaash is spoken by the Native American Maricopa people on two reservations in Arizona: the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community and the Gila River Indian Community. Most speakers live in Maricopa Colony, near Baseline Road and 83rd Avenue, or Lehi, near Mesa Drive and McDowell Road. Although the Maricopa now live among the Pima, their language is completely unrelated. It is a Yuman language, related to other languages such as Mohave, Cocopah, Havasupai, Yavapai and Kumeyaay. According to the Ethnologue, language shift is occurring at Maricopa Colony: "The child-bearing generation can use the language among themselves, but it is not being transmitted to children." At Salt River, it is nearly extinct: "The only remaining users of the language are members of the grandparent generation or older who have little opportunity to use the language." There are about 100 speakers out of an ethnic population of 800. Salt River's cultural resources department estimates that there are around 15 fluent native speakers remaining in the Salt River community. There are many more with varying degrees of fluency, including many who can understand but not speak Maricopa (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mrc. Alternate Names: Cocomaricopa, Piipaash.

1946: see under HAVASUPAI-WALAPAI-YAVAPAI.

[MARI, HILL] Hill Mari or Western Mari (Мары йЫлмЫ) is a Uralic language closely related to Meadow Mari. Hill Mari is spoken in the Gornomariysky, Yurinsky and Kilemarsky districts of Mari El, Russia. It is written using the Hill Mari Cyrillic script and is co-official with Russian and Meadow Mari in the Mari El Republic (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mrj. Alternate Names: Cheremis, Gorno-Mariy, High Mari, Mari-Hills, Western Mari.

1971: [IUW] Словарь северо-западного наречия марийского языка / И.Г. Иванов, Г.М. Тужаров. Slovar' severo-zapadnogo narechiia mariiskogo iazyka / I.G. Ivanov, G.M. Tuzharov. Йошкар-Ола; Марийский научно-исследовательский ин-т, 1971. Ioshkar-Ola; Mariiskii nauchno-issledovatel'skii in-t, 1971. 304 p.; 20 cm. Original blue and white wrappers, lettered in dark blue. Диалекты марийского языка; вып. 11 Dialekty mariiskogo iazyka; vyp. 11. Added t.p. in Mari. Mari ["Northwest Dialect"]-Russian, pp. 10-304.

1981: [IUW] Slovar' gornogo narechiia mariiskogo iazyka / A.A. Savatkova. Ioshkar-Ola; Mariiskoe knizhnoe izd-vo, 1981. 235 p.; 22 cm. Original gray cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in red. Hill Mari-Russian, pp. [6]-235.

[MARI, MEADOW] Meadow Mari or Eastern Mari is a standardized dialect of the Mari language used by about half a million people mostly in the European part of the Russian Federation. Meadow Mari, Hill Mari, and Russian are official languages in the Mariy El Autonomous Republic of the Russian Federation (Wiki).

Ethnologue considers Meadow Mari a separate language: mhr. Alternate Names: Cheremis, Eastern Mari, Low Mari, Lugovo Mari, Mari, Mari-Woods.

1961: [LILLYbm] An eastern Cheremis manual phonology, grammar, texts and glossary, by Thomas A[lbert] Sebeok [1920- ] & Frances J. Ingemann. Bloomington: Indiana University, 1961. Original stiff white, green and blue wrappers, lettered in white and blue. Pp. i-iv v-viii, l 2-109 110-112. First edition. Series: Studies in Cheremis, vol. 9; Indiana University publications. Uralic and Altaic series, vol. 5. Cheremis [Mari]-English glossary, pp. [90]-109. Presentation copy from the author. Second copy: IUW.

"Ivan Jewskij, the informant for the present collection, came to the Indiana University campus in the early months of 1952. He worked with us until the summer of 1954" (Introduction).

[MARIND] Marind is a Papuan language spoken in Papua New Guinea by over ten thousand people. Dialects are Southeast Marind, Gawir, Holifoersch, and Tugeri. Bian Marind (Northwest Marind), aka Boven-Mbian, is divergent enough to not be mutually intelligible, and has been assigned a separate iso code. Marind separates the Trans-Fly – Bulaka River languages, which would otherwise occupy a nearly continuous stretch of southern New Guinea (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mrz. Alternate Names: Gawir, Holifoersch, Southeast Marind, Tugeri.

1922: [LILLY] Marindineesch woordenboek, by J. van de Kolk & P. Vertenten. Weltevreden: Landsdrukkerij, 1922. Libraries Worldwide: 10. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Not in Zauhmüller. First dictionary of Marind.

1933: [LILLYbm] Marindineesch-Nederlandsch woordenboek, by H[enricus] Geurtjens. Bandoeng: A. C. Nix & Co., 1933. Recent black cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. [4] 1 2-433 434 [2]. First edition. Series: Verhandelingen van het Koninklijk bataviaasch genootschap van kunsten en wetenschappen, Deel 71, 5. Stuk. Not in Zauhmüller. Marindinese-Dutch, pp. 46-350, with an appendix of the Sangaseese dialect with Marindinese equivalents, pp. 373-383, the Boven-Bianese dialect with Marindinese equivalents, pp. 385-395, and a comparative list of over 450 words in Marindinese and Dutch with their equivalents in the languages of the surrounding area: Kaladdarish, Konerawish, Komelomish, Teri-Kalwaish, Jabish, Jeyish, and Digoese, pp. 398-433. This is the first Marindinese-Dutch dictionary. A Dutch-Marindinese dictionary was published in 1922 by J. v. d. Kolk and P. Vertenten (see above).

1955: [IUW] Spraakkunst van het Marind, zuidkust Nederlands Nieuw-Guinea, by Peter Drabbe. Mödling, Missiehuys St. Gabriël, 1955. 189 p. map. 29 cm. Library binding. Studia Instituti Anthropos; v. 11. Includes comparative vocabulary of five dialects and two related languages of Marind, Marind-Ooster-Dialect, Wester-Dialect, Atih-Dialect, Kumb-Dialect, Mbian-Dialect, Boazi, Jaqai, pp. 148-151. With two-page introduction.

[MARITSAUÁ] Maritsauá (Manitsawá) is an extinct Tupian language of the state of Mato Grosso, in the Amazon region of Brazil (Wiki).

Ethnologue: msp. Alternate Names: Manitsawá, Mantizula.

1886: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF SOUTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[MARQUESAN] Marquesan is a collection of East-Central Polynesian dialects, of the Marquesic group, spoken in the Marquesas Islands of French Polynesia. They are usually classified into two groups, North Marquesan and South Marquesan, roughly along geographic lines [see Ethnologue descriptions of North and South Marquesan below] (Wiki).

Ethnologue divides Marquesan into two languages: 1) North Marquesan: mrq. Alternate Names: 'Eo 'Enana; and 2) South Marquesan: mqm.

1843a: see 1843 under TAHITIAN.

1843b: [LILLY] Vocabulaire océanien-français et français-océanien des dialectes parlés aux îles Marquises, Sandwich, Gambier, etc. d'après les documens recueillis sur les lieux, par les missionnaires catholiques et les ministres protestans, et particulièrement d'après les manuscrits du r. p. Mathias ..., by Boniface Mosblech. Paris: J. Renouard et cie, 1843. 2 p. l., [vii]-xiv p., 1 l., 318 p. 18 cm. Contemporary calf with red leather label lettered in gold. Includes Hawaiian as well. This is set up like a normal, two-columned dictionary, Marquesan [and Hawaiian]-French, pp. [1]-112, and French-Marquesan [and Hawaiian], pp. [115]-318. Earliest full vocabulary of Marquesan. Mah

"In this vocabulary we offer to the public the two principal dialects spoken in the Western Pacific, that of the Marquesan archipelago and that of the Sandwich Islands [Hawaii]. We have omitted the less characteristic dialects of Tahiti, Gambier, etc. in order not to enlarge the volume unnecessarily; for although the natives of the Western Pacific all speak the same language, one still notices variations among the islands and among tribes on any particular island; since the variations are slight, we believe that with the aid of our vocabulary a person may make himself understood everywhere, and that we will have thus attained the goal we set for ourselves, to be of use to those of our compatriots who visit this area. We also thought that those scholars engaged in the study of language would be far from indifferent to such a considerable compilation of words from a language unknown up to this time. We say 'unknown' because the incomplete and disfigured lists found in the memoirs of voyagers have done little to make the language known; it would be more accurate to say that they have produced the opposite effect" (Preface).

1846: see under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT. [North and South Marquesan].

1931-1932: [LILLYbm] Grammaire et Dictionnaire de la Langue des Îles Marquises. Marquisien-Français, 2 vols., by René Ildefonse Dordillon. Paris: Institut d'Ethnologie, 1931-1932. Original dark green cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. [Vol. 1] I-V VI VII-VIII, 1-446 447-448; [Vol. 2] [6] 1-598 599-600. First edition. Travaux et mémoires de l'Institut d'Ethnologie 18. Zauhmüller, col. 269. Marquesan-French, Vol. 1, pp. 1-446, and French-Marquesan, Vol. 2, pp. 1-598. Vol. 2 titled: Dictionnaire de la Langue des Îles Marquises. Français-Marquisien. Second copy: IUW.

"[This dictionary] is the fruit of thirty-five years of work. ... In the end we were driven to make of our dictionary that which every true dictionary should be: the faithful depository of the riches and genius of a language. We believe it to be complete, as far as that is possible in a dictionary" (Preface, tr: BM). The earliest vocabulary was also French, published in Paris in 1843 and another in Berlin (see above). This is the first true dictionary of the language.

1997: [LILLYbm] Pona te'ao tapapatina =Lexique marquisien-français, by Hervé Le Cléac'h. Papeete, Tahiti: [s.n.], 1997. 366 pp. 21 cm. Original pale orange paper over boards, lettered and decorated in brown. Marquesan-French, pp. [13]-162, and French-Marquesan, pp. [221]-[361].

"Who, if not Mgr Hervé Le Cléac'h, would have the idea and the courage to edit a Marquesan-French, and French-Marquesan dictionary? Since it's a fact that written publications on Marquesan are rare if not non-existent since the appearance of Dordillon's dictionary in 1904, we must render homage to the author and recognize the honor that will come to him, for the imminent appearance of his work is an important cultural event" (Preface, Tehaumate Tetahiotupa, tr: BM).

[MARQUESAN, NORTH] Marquesan is a collection of East-Central Polynesian dialects, of the Marquesic group, spoken in the Marquesas Islands of French Polynesia. They are usually classified into two groups, North Marquesan and South Marquesan, roughly along geographic lines (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mrq. Alternate Names: 'Eo 'Enana. Location: Marquesas Islands: Eiao, Hatutu, Matu One, Motuiti, Nuku Hiva, Ua Huka, and Ua Pou islands.

1846: see under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

[MARQUESAN, SOUTH] Marquesan is a collection of East-Central Polynesian dialects, of the Marquesic group, spoken in the Marquesas Islands of French Polynesia. They are usually classified into two groups, North Marquesan and South Marquesan, roughly along geographic lines (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mqm. Location: Marquesas Islands: Fatu Hiva, Fatu Huka, Hiva Oa, Mohotani, and Tahuta islands.

1846: see under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

[MARSHALLESE] The Marshallese language (Marshallese: new orthography Kajin Majeļ or old orthography Kajin Majōļ, [kǎæzʲini(ēɾ) mʲɑqzʲiɛɬ]), also known as Ebon, is a Malayo-Polynesian language spoken in the Marshall Islands by about 44,000 people, and the principal language of the country. There are two major dialects: Rālik (western) and Ratak (eastern) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mah. Alternate Names: Ebon.

1846: see under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

1906: [LILLYbm] Wörterbuch und Grammatik der Marshall-Sprache nebst ethnographischen Erläuterungen und kurzen Sprachübungen, by August Erdland. Berlin: Kommissionsverlag Georg Reimer, 1906. Bound with three further volumes in the series, in dark-green quarter cloth and marbled paper over boards stamped "Bibliothek der Reichs-Kolonialamts"; spine lettered in gold; original wrappers bound in. Pp. I-V VI VII-VIII, [4] I 2-247 248. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 269. Series: Archiv für das Studium deutscher Kolonialsprachen, Bd. IV. German-Marshallese, pp. [1]-71, and Marshallese-German, pp. [75]-180, with ethnographic details on various Marshallese words, pp. [181]-191. Two prior German vocabularies of Marshallese appears to have been published, a dictionary by Erwin Steinbach, Wörterbuch der Marshall-Sprache (Hamburg, 1902), and vocabulary by A. I. Senfft published in Zeitschrift für afrikanische und oceanische Sprachen, Jahrg. 5, Heft 1-2 (1900).

"In recent years two dictionaries of Marshallese have already appeared: one by the local government official Mr. Senfft and the other by Dr. Steinbach-Grösser.-Dr.

Steinbach's vocabulary, revised and enlarged by Mr. Grösser, is a respectable work, although it shows in general a great degree of accuracy with regard to the translation of individual words than in the way in which they are transcribed. When that dictionary appeared (1902), the present work, which is based on a wordlist produced in the course of the previous year by Father Jakob Schmitz, had already been worked through four times" (Foreword, tr: BM).

1963: [LILLYbm] [Cover title] English Marshallese Dictionary. N.p.: [EML Division of the Transport Company of Texas, 1963]. Original blue wrappers, lettered in black. Ff. [17] 1-161 162-164 [1]. No edition indicated. Includes preliminary pages of English-Marshallese vocabulary thematically arranged, English-Marshallese (alphabetical), ff. 1-161, and three ff. of additional words and phrases. Probable publisher and date taken from OCLC record.

1968: [LILLYbm] Tikjinere-Dictionary. Kajin Majöl & Kajin Inlij. Marshallese & English. Kwajalein Island, Marshall Islands: Kwajalein Education Committee, 1968. Original blue plastic spiral binding with stiff tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in blue and dark tan. Pp. i-v vi-xxxiv xxxv, 1 2-199 200, <sup>2</sup>1 2-170 171-172. First edition ("Limited Sponsor Edition June 1968" on verso of title page). Marshallese-English, pp. 2-199, and English-Marshallese, pp. 2-170.

"This work breathes new life into the scholarly effort of the original compilation by Dr. Samuel Elbert of the United States Navy during World War II and brings closer the day when an authentic Marshallese dictionary can be established and recognized" (Preface). "This is a dictionary is the result of many hands. It was compiled in the District Intelligence Office, Fourteenth Naval District, and checked in the field by a representative of that office" (Acknowledgments).

1969: [IUW] Spoken Marshallese: an intensive language course with grammatical notes and glossary [by] Byron W. Bender. Honolulu, University of Hawaii Press [1969]. xxv, 438 p. map. 23 cm. Library binding. First edition. Reproduced from typescript. PALI language texts. Marshallese-English glossary, pp. 315-365, and an English-Marshallese finder list, pp. 367-433.

"The total number of vocabulary items introduced is about 1500, but because of the nature of the structure of the language, the student completing the course is able to form many times this number of new words by recombining parts of words" (Preface).

1976: [IUW] Marshallese-English dictionary, by Takaji Abo ... [et al.]. Honolulu; University Press of Hawaii, c1976. xxxvii, 589 p.; 23 cm. Original white wrappers, lettered and illustrated in purple. First edition. Pali language texts. Bibliography: p. xxxv-xxxvii. Marshallese-English, pp. 3-287, and English-Marshallese finder list, pp. 291-500.

"The Marshallese-English Dictionary contains almost 12,000 entries giving information on an estimated 30,000 Marshallese words.... Many words not previously recorded have been added, both older words dealing with the lore of the islands, and newer words that reflect the changing circumstances of life today" (from the rear wrapper).

"Although this work represents the most complete collection of information on the words of Marshallese yet completed, it is still far from a complete listing of all the words of the language" (Preface).

[MASAABA] Masaba (Lumasaaba), sometimes known as Gisu (Lugisu) after one of its dialects, is a Bantu language spoken by more than two million people in East Africa. Gisu dialect in eastern Uganda is mutually intelligible with Bukusu, spoken by ethnic Luhya in western Kenya. Masaba is the local name of Mount Elgon and the name of the son of the ancestor of the Gisu tribe. Like other Bantu languages, Lumasaaba has a large set of prefixes used as noun classifiers. This is similar to how gender is used in many Germanic and Romance languages, except that instead of the usual two or three, there are around eighteen different noun classes. The language has a quite complex verb morphology (Wiki).

Ethnologue: myx. Alternate Names: Gisu, Kisu, Lugisu, Lumasaaba, Masaba.

1981: [IUW] Masaba word list: English-Masaba, Masaba-English, by B[erthe] Boot-Siertsema. Tervuren, Belgique: Musée royal de l'Afrique centrale, 1981. xxiii, 225 p.: ill.; 27 cm.

[MATIPUHY] Amonap, a.k.a. Apalakiri or Kuikúro-Kalapálo or Matipuy, is a Cariban language spoken by the Kuikuro and Kalapalo peoples of Brazil (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mzo. Alternate Names: Mariape-Nahuqua, Matipu.

1894: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF SOUTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[MATLATZINCA] The Matlatzincan languages are a group of two closely related Oto-Manguean language of the Oto-Pamean spoken in Central Mexico. The group includes the language Matlatzinca proper spoken in the southern part of the State of Mexico. It is a subgroup. The name of the language in the language itself is pjiekak'joo. The Matlatzincan language group consists of two mutually unintelligible languages: one called Ocuiltec or Tlahuica, the other called Matlatzinca proper. While originally one language they are now so removed that they considered separate languages both by linguists and by the speakers themselves. In 2000 Matlatzinca was spoken by around 650 persons in San Francisco Oxtotilpa, and in 2011 Ocuiltec/Tlahuica was spoken by around 100 persons in the municipality of Ocuilan de Arteaga in the villages San Juan Atzingo and Santa Lucía del Progreso. Because of the extremely small population and the unfavourable age structure, the Matlatzincan languages are considered to be highly endangered. In the 2000 census, only 26 persons under the age of 20 were registered as speakers of Ocuiltec. In 2001, together with 62 other languages, it was recognised as an official language of Mexico as an official language in the Mexican Federal District and the other administrative divisions in which it is spoken, and on an equal footing with Spanish (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists Matlatzinca as two separate languages: 1) Atzingo Matlatzinca: ocu. Alternate Names: Atzinteco, Matlatzinka, Ocuiltec, Ocuilteco, Tlahuica, Tlahura; and 2) San Francicso Matlatzinca: mat. Alternate Names: Bot'una, Matlatzinca, Matlatzinca de San Francisco de los Ranchos.

1997: [LILLYbm] Diccionario matlatzinca-español, compiled by Roberto Escalante Fernandez. Toluca, Mexico: Instituto Mexiquense de Cultura, 1997. Original stiff brown and white wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. 1-6 7-78 79-80. First edition. Series: Biblioteca de los Pueblos Indígenas. 'Primera edición: 1997' on verso of title page. 1000 copies. Matlatzinca-Spanish, pp. 9-159. Second copy: IUW.

"This Matlatzinca dictionary represents the efforts of the Mexicans to preserve their roots" (Presentation, tr: BM).

Second edition 2002: [IUW] Diccionario matlatzinca-español, by Roberto Escalante Hernández. 2. ed. México: Gobierno del Estado de México; Edo. de México: Instituto Mexiquense de Cultura, 2002. 178 p.; 19 cm.

[MATSIGENKA] Machiguenga (Matsigenka) is a major Arawakan language in the Campa sub-branch of the family. It is spoken in the Urubamba River Basin and along the Manu River in the Cusco and Madre de Dios provinces of Peru by around 6,200 people. According to Ethnologue, it is experiencing pressure from Spanish and Quechua in the Urubamba region, but is active and healthy in the Manu region (most speakers are monolingual in Matsigenka). It is close enough to Nomatsiguenga that the two are sometimes considered dialects of a single language; both are spoken by the Machiguenga people. Nanti is partially mutually intelligible but ethnically distinct (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mcb. Alternate Names: Machiguenga, Mañaries, Matsiganga, Matsigenga.

1923: [LILLY] Vocabulario español-machiguenga, by José Pío Aza. Lima: La Opinión nacional, 1923. xv, [1], 3-297, [2] p.; 16 cm. Quarter black cloth and printed boards.

1974: [IUW] Machiguenga, fonología y vocabulario breve, por Betty Elkins de Snell. [s.l.]: Instituto Lingüístico de Verano, 1974. 34 p.; 29 cm. First edition. Series: Documento de trabajo - Instituto Lingüístico de Verano; no. 5.

[MATTOKKI] Kenzi (Kenuzi), also known as Mattokki, is a Nubian language of Egypt. It is spoken north of Mahas in Egypt. It is closely related to Dongolawi or Andaandi, a Nubian Language of Sudan. The two have historically been considered two varieties of one language. More recent research recognizes them as distinct languages without a "particularly close genetic relationship." With population displacement due to the Aswan High Dam there are communities of speakers in Lower Egypt (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xnz. Alternate Names: Kenuz, Kenuzi, Kenzi, Kunuz, Kunuz Nubian, Kunuzi.

1986: [LILLYbm] Nubisches Wörterverzeichnis: nubisch-deutsches und deutsch-nubisches Wörterverzeichnis nach dem Kenzi-Material des Samuël Alî Hisên (1863-1927), by Inge Hofmann [1939- ]. Berlin: Reimer, 1986. Original blue and white wrappers, lettered in black and white. Pp. 1-6 7-238 239-240. First edition. Series: Collectanea Instituti Anthropos; vol. 35. Includes Nubian [Kenzi]-German, pp. 17-188, and German-Nubian [Kenzi], pp. 189-238.

"The published and unpublished linguistic material of a single informant is dealt with here. He was the former mission aide of the Sudan Pionier Mission in Aswan, Samuël Alî Hisên (1863-1927). In spite of many years in Europe and his later life at the Mission in Aswan, he remained a speaker of the Kenzi dialect of his home area, which he used to create a written form of the language for his compatriots.... An extensive Italian-Nubian vocabulary with approximately 1500 head words was compiled in the 17th century by the Franciscan Arcangelo Carradori. For more recent time, however, there has been no extensive work with the exception of a relatively brief German dictionary by G. von Massenbach" (from the rear cover, tr: BM).

2005: [IUW] عربي / اعداد محمد عبد الماجد احمد ادريس-دنقلاوي: كاي-معجم نوبري. Mu‘jam Nūbrī-Kāy: Dunqlāwī-‘Arabī / i‘dād Muḥammad ‘Abd al-Mājid Aḥmad Idrīs. [سودان?: s.n., 2005] [Sudan?: s.n., 2005]. 85 p.: ill., maps; 24 cm.. Arabic-Mattokki dictionary.

[MATTOLE] Mattole, or Mattole–Bear River, is an extinct Athabaskan language once spoken by the Mattole and Bear River peoples of northern California. It is one of the four languages belonging to the California Athabaskan cluster of the Pacific Coast Athabaskan languages. It was found in two locations: in the valley of the Mattole River, immediately south of Cape Mendocino on the coast of northwest California, and a distinct dialect on Bear River, about 10 miles to the north (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mvb.

1930: [LILLYbm] Mattole: an Athabaskan language, by Fang-kuei Li. Chicago: The University of Chicago Press, 1930. Original brown wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [6] 1-152. First edition. Series: The University of Chicago publications in anthropology. Mattole-English stem-lists, arranged by grammatical categories, pp. [71]-138. First substantial published vocabulary of this language. This copy with the ink ownership signature of "J. Alexander, Allentown, PA" (not identified). Second copy: IUW.

"The material out of which the present study is made was gathered during a month's stay in Petrolia, Humboldt County, California, near the mouth of the Mattole Rivers. The speakers of Mattole, an Athabaskan language, formerly occupying the drainages of Mattole and Bear rivers, suffered much from contact with civilization, so that a mere handful of them are now left, and most of them do not know their native speech. My informant, Isaac Duncan, has a sufficient knowledge of Mattole to give a fair idea of its phonetics and morphology" (Introduction).

[MAUNG] Maung (Mawung, Mawng, Gun-marung) is an Australian aboriginal language spoken on the Goulburn Islands, off the north coast of Arnhem Land, in the Northern Territory of Australia. Maung is closely related to Iwaidja language which occupies the northwestern corner of the opposite mainland. This is a language that belongs to the Iwaidjan language family of Non-Pama–Nyungan languages. As of 1983, there were 200 speakers of the language.(Ethnologue). Study of Maung has developed to the point where a dictionary, grammar and portions of the Bible are available. Maung is taught in local schools alongside English and other languages such as Iwaidja or Gunwinggu. Children are still acquiring it as a first language, making it somewhat healthier than most other aboriginal languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mph, Alternate Names: Gunmarung, Gun-Marung, Mawng, Mawung.

1970: [LILLYbm] Maung grammar: texts and vocabulary, by Arthur Capell & H.E. Hinch. The Hague Paris: Mouton, 1970. Original green and white wrappers with flaps, lettered in white and green. Pp.1-5 6-201 202-204 (+folded plates, illustrations, tables). First edition. Series: Janua linguarum. Series practica, v. 98. Maung-English vocabulary, pp. [145]-201. First substantial vocabulary of the language. Second copy: IUW.

"Maung is the language of Goulburn Island, North Australia. The present work represents the first presentation of the language of any length. The preliminary study was made by the first author during field work in North Australia in 1939 and again in 1942, together with shorter contacts over a number of periods in later years. ... The second author is a nursing sister at the Mission, who...carried on further study of the language" (Foreword).

[MAYA, MOPÁN] Mopan (or Mopan Maya) is a language that belongs to the Yucatecan branch of the Mayan languages. It is spoken by the Mopan people who live in the Petén Department of Guatemala and in the Maya Mountains region of Belize. There are between three and four thousand Mopan speakers in Guatemala and six to eight thousand in Belize. The other Yucatecan languages are Yucatec, Lacandon, and Itza'. Mopan began to diverge from the other Yucatecan languages at least one thousand years ago.

Ethnologue: mop. Alternate Names: Maya Mopán, Mopan, Mopane.

1976: [LILLYbm] [Cover title] Diccionario bilingüe: maya mopan y español; español y maya mopan, [by Mateo and Rosemary Ulrich]. [Guatemala]: [Instituto Lingüístico de Verano], 1976. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [2] 1-6 7-393 394-400. First edition. Mopán Maya-Spanish, pp. 18-257, and Spanish-Mopán Maya, pp. 278-393. Second copy: IUW.

"The Mopán Mayan language is the mother tongue of some 5,000 inhabitants in the south of Petén and the south of Belize.... The preparation of this work took place during the years 1960-1971" (Preface, dated 1971, tr: BM).

2003: [IUW] Muuchotoan mopan / Koulboil Yol Twitz Paxil; Muchotalil Toan Maya Mopan = Vocabulario mopan / Academia de Lenguas Mayas de Guatemala; Comunidad Lingüística Maya Mopan. Guatemala; Academia de Lenguas Mayas de Guatemala; Comunidad Lingüística Maya Mopan, 2003. 245 p.; 22 cm. Mopan and Spanish; introd. in Mopan and Spanish. Mopan-Spanish-Mopan dictionary.

2011: [IUW] Mopan Maya - Spanish - English dictionary =; diccionario Maya Mopan - Español - Inglés, by Charles Andrew Hofling; with the assistance of Narcizo Azij ... [et. al] Salt Lake City, Utah; University of Utah Press, c2011. ix, 667 p.; ill., map; 29 cm. Original black cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in white. Includes bibliographical references and indexes. Mopan Maya-Spanish-English dictionary, pp. 77-483, Mayan root index, pp. 487-500, Spanish-Mopan index, pp. 501-583, and English-Mopan index, pp. 585-667.

"To begin creating the Mopan lexical database I created digital files of all available sources using Toolbox (SIL International 2006) with the help of graduate research assistants. From 2006-2008, I conducted three two-month field seasons in San Luis, Petén, Guatemala, the center of the Mopan population in Guatemala.... During the first season I checked the data from previous research with Mopan speakers, adding new entries as they arose. The result was a lexical database of approximately 7000 items. In the process of elicitation it became apparent that significant change had occurred in the thirty to forty or more years since the Ullrichs and PLFM collected their data. It was also apparent that there was considerable variation among modern speakers" (Introduction).

[MAYA, YUCATEC] Yucatec Maya (Yukatek Maya in the revised orthography of the Academia de Lenguas Mayas de Guatemala), called Màaya t'ään (lit. "Maya speech") by its speakers, is a Mayan language spoken in the Yucatán Peninsula and northern Belize. To native speakers, the proper name is Maya and it is known only as Maya. The qualifier "Yucatec" is a tag linguists use to distinguish it from other Mayan languages (such as K'iche' and Itza'). Thus, the use of term Yucatec Maya to refer to the language is a scientific jargon or nomenclature; its use is roughly equivalent to persons referring to English as British Anglo-Saxon. Yucatec Maya is incorrectly used as an ascribed ethnic, social, cultural, historical, national, racial, or civilizational term of identity or name. The use of Yucatec Maya as a term of identity is correctly used in the same way that terms such as Indo-European or Romance language speakers are used. The proper names of the Mayan languages, in contrast, tend to be the ethnic or cultural-racial names of identity. The word Mayan is, however, not an ethnic or cultural label or other term of social, political identification; Mayan, as an identity term, is an ascribed identity, not a self-identity. In the Mexican states of Yucatán, some parts of Campeche, Tabasco, Chiapas, and Quintana Roo, Maya remains many speakers' first language today, with 800,000 speakers. There are 6,000 speakers in Belize. When these speakers identify as indigenous, they identify as Maya, not Mayan (Wiki).

Ethnologue: yua. Alternate Names: Maaya, Maaya t'ään, Maayáa, Peninsular Maya, Yucatan Maya.

1866-1877: [LILLYbm] Diccionario de la lengua maya, Juan Pio Perez [1798-1859]. Merida de Yucatan: J. F. Molina Solis, 1866-1877. Contemporary brown half-leather and dark brown cloth over boards; spine with raised bands and red leather label lettered in gold. Pp. [2] I-III IV-XX, 1 2-437 438-440. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 270. Not in Vancil. Mayan-Spanish, pp. [1]-437. Perez left his work incomplete at the word ulchahal, the remainder was prepared by Don Crescencio Carrillo down to xen, and from that word to the end by Dr. Berendt. cf. Pilling, Bibliography of the languages of the North American Indians. Published after the author's death by Eligio Ancona and with a life of Perez by Dr. Fabian Carrillo Suaste.

1883: [LILLY] Recherches sur les noms de nombres cardinaux dans la famille maya-quiché, [by Hyacinthe de Charencey]. [drop title]. [Orleans: Georges Jacob, c. 1883]. 8vo, pp. 15, [1]; original green paper wrappers bound in to red library cloth binding, gilt title direct on spine, t.e.g., light pencil marks on first page. An Ayer linguistics duplicate, with Newberry Library bookplate, label, and release stamp. The copy was once part of the library of James C. Pilling, the American ethnologist and bibliographer. His handwriting is on the original wrappers. The ownership stamp of Daniel Brinton, another American ethnologist, is on the inner wrapper (see their jointly-authored study below 1891). Pilling, Proof-sheets, 755 d. Includes a comparative table of the numbers 1-10 in the "dialects" of the Maya-Hustatec family, p.3, including "Quiché, Quiché of Ixtlavacan, Cakchiquel of Zutuhil, Cakchiquel of Santa Maria, Cakgi, Pokomchi, Tzendale, Chorti, May, and Huesteca."

1891: [LILLY] Chrestomathie Maya d'apres la chronique de Chac-Xulub-Chen., by H[yacinthe] de Charencey, & Daniel Garrison Brinton. Extrait de la "Library of Aboriginal American Litterature"... Texte avec traduction interlineaire, analyse grammaticale et vocabulaire maya-français. Paris: Librairie C. Klincksieck, 1891.

8vo, pp. [4], viii, 301, [3]; original paper wrappers bound in contemporary half red morocco over marbled boards, marbled endpapers, gilt-ruled spine in 6 compartments, gilt-lettered direct in 3, t.e.g. Yucatec Maya-French vocabulary, pp. [247]-301. An Ayer Linguistic duplicate with an Ayer accession label on the rear pastedown, a presentation Ayer bookplate on the front pastedown and a Newberry release stamp on the verso of the first flyleaf. Text in Latin and Mayan. From the library of the American ethnologist and linguist James C. Pilling, with his ownership stamp on the original upper wrapper and a mailing address label addressed to him in 1891 from France laid in.

1898: [IUW] Coordinacion alfabetica de las voces del idioma maya que se hallan en el arte y obras del padre fr. Pedro Beltran de Santa Rosa, con las equivalencias castellanas que en las mismas se hallan, compuesta por J.P. Pérez. Mérida de Yucatán, Impr. de la Ermita, 1898. vi, 295 p.; 24 cm. "Nomina de diversas plantas": p. [103]-112. "Coordinación alfabética de la colección de voces de la lengua maya, compuesta por varios autores, hallada en el archivo de libros bautismales del pueblo de Ticul en el año de 1836, copiada en dicho año por Juan Pío Pérez y arreglada en 1847 por el mismo": p. [123-289].

1950: [LILLYbm] Diccionario español-maya, by Ermilo Solís Alcalá. [Ochil? Mexico]: Yikal Maya Than, 1950. Contemporary (original ?) brown cloth over boards, spine lettered in gold, conserving original stiff front wrapper. Pp. (front wrapper) [4] I II-XIV, 1 2-589 560-562. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Spanish-Maya, pp. [1]-586. This copy with ownership inscription, dated "IV.VI.50," of Aturo Rendón, author of Santa Rosa de Copan, la Sultana de Occidente, Honduras, 1985, a historical study. With the bookplate of the Dumbarton Oaks Library and their withdrawal stamp.

1972: [IUW] Bocabulario de Mayathan; das Wörterbuch der yukatekischen Mayasprache. Vollständige Faksimile-Ausg. des Codex Vindobonensis S. N. 3833 der Österreichischen Nationalbibliothek. Einleitung: Ernst Mengin. Graz, Akademische Druck- u. Verlagsanstalt, 1972. 44, vi, vi, 204, 204 p. 28cm. Bibliotheca linguistica Americana, v. 1 The numbering of the facsimile pages preserves that of the original leaves (vi, 204). "Die wichtigsten Ergebnisse und Aufgaben der Mayasprachforschung," by E. Mengin: p. 25-44 (first sequence; also numbered 743-762) Reprinted from International Congress of Americanists. Proceedings. 34th. 1960. Bibliography: p. 35-44. Bibliography: p. 23-24.

1980a: [LILLYbm] Diccionario etnolingüístico del idioma maya yucateco colonial. I. Mundo Físico. II. Aprovechamiento de los recursos naturales, two vols., by Cristina Álvarez. Mexico: Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México, Instituto de Investigaciones Filológicas, Centro de Estudios Mayas, 1980. [Vol. I] Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in black and brown; [Vol II] original blue wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [Vol. I] 1-6 7-385 386-388 [2]; [Vol. II] 1-10 11-377 378-381. First edition. Two thousand copies. Maya-Spanish, pp. [Vol. I] 79-[378]; [Vol. II] 87-368.

1980b: [LILLYbm] Vocabulario de Mayathan. Mayan Dictionary. Maya-English English-Maya, by Dorothy Andrews Heath de Zapata. Merida, Yucatan, Mexico: [s.n.], 1980. Original green cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. 1-2 3-614 615-616. First edition in English. This copy with a presentation inscription from Emilio Lamk, who assisted in publishing the book. A Spanish language edition was published in 1978. Includes a Maya-English, pp. 25-558, and English-Maya, pp. 559-614. This is a translation of a sixteenth-century Spanish-Maya dictionary, reversed here to Maya-English, and with an English-Maya index added.

"The Vienna Dictionary, also now better known as the Vocabulario de Mayathan por sus abecedarios, was found in Vienna, Austria by Miss Eulalia Guzman, investigator for the Secretary of Education of Mexico. She found it in the National Library of Vienna in 1937" (Introduction). This manuscript has also been reproduced in facsimile as Bocabulario de Mayathan; das Wörterbuch der yukatekischen Mayasprache. Vollständige Faksimile-Ausgabe des Codex Vindobonensis S. N. 3833 der Österreichischen Nationalbibliothek (Graz: Akademische Druck- u. Verlagsanstalt, 1972), and also in facsimile in Mexico in 1993.

1997: [LILLYbm] Maya t'an. Spoken Maya. Introduction to Grammar, Common Phrases, Special Vocabularies, English-Maya-Glossary, by William J. Litzinger & Robert D. Bruce. [Mexico City]: Ediciones Euroamericanas, 1997. Original stiff green wrappers with photographic cover, lettered in red and spiral bound. Pp. 1-4 5-95 96. First edition. 500 copies. Maya-Spanish-English terms and expressions, pp. 34-52, and English-Maya vocabulary, pp. 53-[95].

"The same Maya language is spoken throughout the Yucatan Peninsula and the surrounding Lowland area.... In general, however, Maya-speaking people are far more hospitable and friendly towards foreigners than with Maya-speakers from other nearby towns. It is rare to find a Maya who will admit that his neighbors from the next town speak the same Maya as himself and his kinsmen... He will usually affirm that the neighbors speak Maya, but that they speak it so badly that they have trouble understanding one another" (p. 5). "This is a phrase-book of modern spoken Maya for tourists as well as naturalists, anthropologists, and others with a social interest in learning to speak Maya" (from the rear cover).

1998: [LILLYbm] A dictionary of the Maya language as spoken in Hocabá, Yucatan, compiled by Victoria R[eifler] Bricker [1940- ], Eleuterio Po'ot Yah, & Ofelia Dzul de Po'ot. Salt Lake City: University of Utah Press, 1998. Original white wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. I-IX X-XX XXI-XXVI, 1-410 411-414 (last two leaves blank). First edition. Mayan-English, pp. 1-319. Second copy: IUW.

"This dictionary is the culmination of fourteen years' labor centering on the town and [Mayan] dialect of Hocabá. Whereas other dictionaries of Maya use Latin paradigms, this is the first to provide a comprehensive, systematic listing of the stems that can be derived from each root and that give Maya its distinctive character. The entries cover the full range of Maya speech, from simple expression and idioms to compound stems.... {These} include a wonderful assortment of metaphorical expressions like 'peccary's eyelashes' for a type of bean, 'the end of the road' for marriage, and a verb meaning 'to draw breath with puckered mouth after eating chile.'" (from rear cover).

[MAYABIC LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT] Mayabic, or Mayi, is a small family of extinct Australian Aboriginal languages of Queensland. They were once classified as Paman, but now as a separate branch of Pama–Nyungan. The languages are: Mayi-Kutuna, Mayi-Kulan (incl. Mayi-Thakurti, Mayi-Yapi), Ngawun (incl. Wunumara). According to Dixon (2002), Wunumara may have been a dialect of Ngawun or of Mayi-Kulan, which may have been a single language. Bownern (2011 [2012]), however, lists all six of the above as separate languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists the six languages mentioned above as separate languages.

1981: [IUW] The Mayi languages of the Queensland Gulf country / Gavan Breen. Canberra: Australian Institute of Aboriginal Studies, 1981. x, 238 p.; 25 cm. Library binding, preserving original front and rear blue, green and ochre wrappers, lettered in white. AIAS new series; no. 29. Comparative Vocabulary with Notes: English-Ngawun-Mayi-Kulan-Mayi-Thakurti-Wunumara-Mayi-Katuna, pp. 96-233. Bibliography: p. 234-238.

"This description of the Mayi languages has been written mainly for two different groups: a) people with a special interest in the Flinders-Leichhardt area, especially the descendants of the spaeakers of Mayi, and b) specialists in language" (p. 1).

[MAYAN LANGUAGES] The Mayan languages form a language family spoken in Mesoamerica and northern Central America. Mayan languages are spoken by at least 6 million Maya peoples, primarily in Guatemala, Mexico, Belize and Honduras. In 1996, Guatemala formally recognized 21 Mayan languages by name, and Mexico recognizes eight more within their territory. The Mayan language family is one of the best-documented and most studied in the Americas. Modern Mayan languages descend from the Proto-Mayan language, thought to have been spoken at least 5,000 years ago; it has been partially reconstructed using the comparative method. The proto-Mayan language diversified into at least 6 different branches, the Huastecan, Quichean, Yucatecan, Qanjobalan, Mamean and Ch'olan-Tzeltalan branches. During the pre-Columbian era of Mesoamerican history, some Mayan languages were written in the logo-syllabic Maya script. Its use was particularly widespread during the Classic period of Maya civilization (c. 250–900). The surviving corpus of over 10,000 known individual Maya inscriptions on buildings, monuments, pottery and bark-paper codices, combined with the rich postcolonial literature in Mayan languages written in the Latin script, provides a basis for the modern understanding of pre-Columbian history unparalleled in the Americas (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists 31 languages under the Mayan family.

1897: [LILLYbm] Das nördliche Mittel-Amerika nebst einem Ausflug nach dem Hochland von Anahuac. Reisen und Studien aus den Jahren 1888-1895, by Karl Sapper [1866-1945]. Braunschweig: Friedrich Viewig und Sohn, 1897. Contrmpoary gray-green cloth over boards, with black leather label lettered in gold on spine. Pp. I-V VI-XII, 1 2-436 + 8 folding maps. First edition. Includes a comparative vocabulary of 200 German words in 22 Mayan languages, pp. [407]-436. This copy with the bookplats of Ernst Eugen Kaps and William Ernst Kaps.

1941: [LILLYbm] Pequeño diccionario de voces guatemaltecas, ordenadas etimologicamente, by Jorge Luis Arriola. Guatemala, C.A.: [Tipografia nacional], 1941. Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in brown. Pp. 1-10 11-194 195-196. First edition. Includes a Mayan-Spanish vocabulary drawn from various indigenous languages of Guatemala, pp. 17-194. This is a presenation copy from the author, inscribed on the dedication page in ink and dated December 1941.

[MAYANGNA] Sumo (also known as Sumu) is the collective name for a group of Misumalpan languages spoken in Nicaragua and Honduras. Hale & Salamanca (2001) classify the Sumu languages into a northern Mayangna, composed of the Tawahka and Panamahka dialects, and southern Ulwa. Sumu specialist Ken Hale considers the differences between Ulwa and Mayangna in both vocabulary and morphology to be so considerable that he prefers to speak of Ulwa as a language distinct from the northern Sumu varieties.

Ethnologue: yan. Alternate Names: Sumu.

1996: [LILLYbm] Diccionario panamahka. Sumo-español-sumo, by Melba E. McLean Cornelio. [Managua]: CIDCA, 1996. Original reddish-brown wrappers, lettered in black and white, with several color illustrations on front and rear covers. Pp. 1-20 21-119 120-122. First edition. 2,000 copies. Series: Colección Autonomía. Includes Sumo-Spanish, pp. 21-89, and Spanish-Sumo, pp. 91-119.

"The publication of this bilingual Dictionary... is a merit of earlier generations, preserving the treasure of our culture, and in particular our language.... The Puebla of Mayangna speaks three dialects: Twahka, Panamahka and Ulwa. This Dictionary is a basically a compilation of the Panamahka dialect" (Introduction, tr: BM).

[MAYAGUDUNA] Mayi-Kutuna (Mayaguduna) is an extinct Mayabic language once spoken on the Cape York Peninsula of Queensland, Australia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xmy. Alternate Names: Mayi-Kutuna.

1981: see under MAYABIC LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MAYI-KULAN] Mayi-Kulan is an extinct Mayi language formerly spoken on the Cape York Peninsula of Queensland, Australia. Mayi-Kulan and its dialects may be dialects of Ngawun (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xyk. Alternate Names: Maidhagudi, Maigudina, Maigudung, Maigulung, Maikolon, Maikudun, Maikudung, Maikudunu, Maikulan, Maikulung, Majadhagudi, Makulu, Mayagoondo, Mayagulan, Mayatagoorri, Maygulan, Mayhulan, Maykulan, Miccoolin, Micoolan, Mikadoon, Mikkoolan, Mikoodoon, Mikoolu.

1981: see under MAYABIC LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MAYI-THAKURTI] Mayi-Thakurti is an extinct Mayi language formerly spoken on the Cape York Peninsula of Queensland, Australia.

Ethnologue: xyt. Alternate Names: Maidakadi, Maidhagari, Maidhaggaria, Maioakuri, Maitakeidi, Maitakudi, Maithagudi, Maithakari, Maithakudi, Mayadhagurdifagurdi, Mayatagoori, Maydhagurdi, Maytagoori, Mitagurdi, Mitakoodi, Mitroogoordi, Mittagurdi, Mittaka, Mythaguddi, Mythugadi, Mythuggadi.

1981: see under MAYABIC LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MAYI-YAPI] Mayi-Yapi is an extinct Mayi language formerly spoken on the Cape York Peninsula of Queensland, Australia.

Ethnologue: xyj. Alternate Names: Majabi, Miappe, Miappi, Miubbi, Myabi, Myappe.

1981: see under MAYABIC LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MAYO] Mayo is an Uto-Aztecan language. It is spoken by about 40,000 people, the Mexican Mayo or Yoreme Indians, who live in the South of the Mexican state of Sonora and in the North of the neighboring state of Sinaloa. Under the "Law of Linguistic Rights," it is recognized as a "national language" along with 62 other indigenous languages and Spanish which all have the same validity in Mexico. The Mayo language is partially intelligible with the Yaqui language, and the division between the two languages is more of a political one founded in the historic division between Yaqui and Mayo peoples than in linguistic relations (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mfy. Alternate Names: Yoreme Nokki.

1962: [IUW] Castellano-mayo, mayo-castellano, compilado por Howard Collard y Elisabeth Scott Collard. México, Instituto Lingüístico de Verano, 1962. vi, 219 p. illus. 21 cm. First edition. Library binding. Serie de vocabularios indígenas Mariano Silva y Aceves, no. 6. Spanish-Mayo, pp. 1-112, and Mayo-Spanish, pp. 113-197.

"This vocabulary provides only a part of the extensive vocabulary of Mayo, including those words used most commonly in everyday speech" (Preface, tr: BM).

Third edition 1984: [IUW] Castellano-mayo, mayo-castellano, compilado por Howard Collard y Elisabeth Scott Collard. México, Instituto Lingüístico de Verano, 1984. 225 p. illus. 21 cm. Library binding incorporating original pale green front wrapper, lettered and decorated in brown. Serie de vocabularios indígenas Mariano Silva y Aceves, no. 6. Cover title: Vocabulario mayo. The first edition appeared in 1962 (1000 copies), a second edition in 1974 (300 copies) (reprinted in 1979, 100 copies) and this third edition in 1984 (500 copies). (see verso of title page). Spanish-Mayo, pp. 1-112, and Mayo-Spanish, pp. 113-197.

1977: see under YAQUI.

[MAZAHUA] The Mazahua language is an indigenous language of Mexico, spoken in the country's central states by the ethnic group widely known as the Mazahua but who refer to themselves as Hñatho. Mazahua is a Mesoamerican language and shows many of the traits which define the Mesoamerican Linguistic Area. Along with some 62 other indigenous languages, it is recognised by a statutory law of Mexico as an official language in the Federal District and the other administrative divisions in which it is spoken, and on an equal footing with Spanish. The largest concentration of Mazahua is found in the municipality of San Felipe del Progreso, State of México, near Toluca. The closest relatives of the Mazahua language are the Otomi, Matlatzinca and Ocuilteco/Tlahuica languages, which together with Mazahua form the Otomian subgroup of the Oto-Pamean branch of the Oto-Manguen language family.

Ethnologue divides Mazahua into two separate languages: 1) Central Mazahua: maz. Alternate Names: Jnatrjo, Masawa, Mazahua de oriente; and 2) Michaoacán Mazahua: mmc. Alternate Names: Jnatjo, Mazahua de occidente.

1997: [LILLYbm] Diccionario mazahua-español, by the Colegio de lenguas y literatura indígenas. [Cover title] Diccionario Español-Mazahua. México: Toluca, Edo. de México: Gobierno del Estado de México; Instituto Mexiquense de Cultura, 1997. Original orange and white wrapper, lettered and decorated in black and dark orange. Pp. 1-6 7-156 157-160. 19 cm. First edition. 1000 copies. Series: Biblioteca de los pueblos indígenas. Mazahua-Spanish [only, contrary to cover title], pp. 19-156. This dictionary was preceded by vocabularies published in 1954 and 1975. Second copy: IUW.

2002: [IUW] Vocabulario práctico bilingüe mazahua-español, by Rufino Benítez Reyna. 1. ed. México, D.F.; Instituto Nacional Indigenista, 2002. 223 pages; illustrations;

21 cm. Original black, white and orange decorated wrappers, lettered in white, black and orange. First edition: "2002 primera edición" on verso of title page. Colección Vocabularios en lenguas indígenas; 1. Mazahua-Spanish, pp. [38]-223. With bilingual introduction, Mazahua and Spanish.

[MAZANDARANI] Mazanderani (مازندرانی) or Tabari (ی‌طبر) or Geleki (ی‌گلک) is an Iranian language of the Northwestern branch, spoken mainly in Iran's Mazandaran, Tehran and Golestan provinces. As a member of the Northwestern branch (the northern branch of Western Iranian), etymologically speaking it is rather closely related to Gilaki, and more distantly related to Persian, which belongs to the Southwestern branch. Mazandarani is closely related to Gilaki and the two dialects have similar vocabularies. The Gilaki and Mazandarani languages (but not other Iranian languages) share certain typological features with Caucasian languages (specifically South Caucasian languages), reflecting the history, ethnic identity, and close relatedness to the Caucasus region and Caucasian peoples of the Mazandarani people and Gilaki people (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mzn. Alternate Names: Gilaki, Mazandarani, Sari, Tabri.

1937: [LILLYbm] Vazhenam-e Tabari, by Sadegh Kiya. Tehran: n.p., 1312 [1937]. Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. 289 pp. First edition. Includes a Persian-Tabaristani [Mazandarani] vocabulary. From the library of Carleton T. Hodge, with his signature of ownership.

[MAZATEC, CHIQUIHUITLAN] Chiquihuitlán is the most divergent variety of Mazatec, less than 50% intelligible with Huautla, the prestige variety, and even less intelligible with other Mazatecan languages. There has been an ongoing effort to gather as much information about the language as possible. Usually the group of people that speak this language is relatively small, and are forced to leave their native language and adopt the language with the greatest possibility of communication. An effort to help people keep their native language while learning Spanish are those undergone by teacher Gloria Ruiz de Bravo Abuja that created the institution Instituto de Investigación e Integración Social del Estado de Oaxaca en 1969. Another program is Archivo de lenguas indígenas del estado de Oaxaca which publishes promising findings in a series of linguistic schemes (Wiki).

Ethnologue: maq. Alternate Names: Mazateco de San Juan Chiquihuitlán, Mazateco del Sur, Nne nangui ngaxni.

1996: [LILLYbm] Diccionario mazateco de Chiquihuitlan, Oaxaca, by Carole Jamieson Capen. Tucson, AZ: Instituto Linguistico de Verano, 1996. Original dark red wrappers, lettered and decorated in white. Pp. i-iv v-xx, 1-2 3-322 323-324. With maps and illustrations. First edition. 500 copies. Series: Serie de vocabularios y diccionarios indígenas "Mariano Silva y Aceves", no. 34. Mazateco-Spanish, pp. 3-168, and Spanish-Mazateco, pp. 171-244. This is the first dictionary of the language of this village. Second copy: IUW.

"Only the original inhabitants of the municipality of San Juan Chiquihuitlan de Benito Juarez speak the variety of Mazatec described in this book. There are approximately 2,500 inhabitants in the village, and almost all of them speak Mazatec" (Introduction, tr: BM).

[MAZATECAN LANGUAGES] The Mazatecan languages are a group of closely related indigenous languages spoken by some 200,000 people in the area known as La Sierra Mazateca, which is located in the northern part of the state of Oaxaca in southern Mexico, as well as in adjacent areas of the states of Puebla and Veracruz. The group is often described as a single language called Mazatec, but because several varieties are not mutually intelligible, they are better described as a group of languages. The languages belong to the Popolocan subgroup of the Oto-Manguean language family. Under the "Law of Linguistic Rights" they are recognized as "national languages" along with the other indigenous languages of Mexico and Spanish. The Mazatec language is vigorous in many of the smaller communities of the Mazatec area, and in many towns it is spoken by almost all inhabitants; however, the language is beginning to lose terrain to Spanish in some of the larger communities like Huautla de Jimenez and Jalapa de Díaz. Like other Oto-Manguean languages, the Mazatecan languages are tonal, and tone plays an integral part in distinguishing both lexical items and grammatical categories. The centrality of tone to the Mazatec language is exploited by the system of whistle speech which is employed in most Mazatec communities and which allows speakers of the language to have entire conversations only by whistling (Wiki).

Ethnologue divides Mazatec into 8 separate languages: 1) Ayautla Mazatec: vmy; 2) Chiquihuitlán Mazatec: maq; 3) Huautla Mazatec: mau; 4) Ixcatlán Mazatec: mzi; 5) Jalapa de Díaz: maj; 6) Mazatlán Mazatec: vmz; 7) San Jerónimo Tecóatl Mazatec: maa and 8) Soyaltepec Mazatec: vmp.

[MBALA] Mbala (Gimbala, Rumbala) is a Bantu language of the Congo. It is widely spoken in the area around the town of Kitwit (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mdp. Alternate Names: Gimbala, Rumbala.

1972: [LILLYbm] Vocabulaire mbala, by Pius Ndolo & Florence Malasi.

Tervuren: Musée royal de l'Afrique centrale, 1972. Original cream wrappers, lettered in dark blue. Pp. [8] 1-1221 122. Reproduced from typescript. First edition. Series: Archives d'anthropologie, no 18. Hendrix 1124. Mbala-French, pp. 1-58, and French-Mbala, pp. 59-121. This is the first published Mbala-French vocabulary. Hendrix lists two other Mbala vocabularies, French-Mbala by Gusimana in 1955, and Mbala-French by Mudindaambi in 1974 (see below). Secibd copy: IUW.

1974: [IUW] Dictionnaire mbala-français, by Lumbwe Mudindaambi. Bandundu: Ceeba, 1974- 1 v.: map; 27 cm. Publications (Ceeba). Série III vol. 4. "Édition provisoire."

2015: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[MBALANHU] Wiki redirects Mbalahnu, a language of Namibia, to Ovambo [Ethnologue: Oshiwambo], where it is listed as a dialect of that language. Ethnologue considers Mbalahnu a separate language.

Ethnologue: lnb. Alternate Names: Mbaanhu, Mbalantu, Mbaluntu.

1993: [IUW] Mbalanhu / David J. Fourie. München: Lincom Europa, 1993. 42 p.: map; 21 cm. Original yellow wrappers, lettered in black. Languages of the world. Materials; 03. Lexicon: English-Mbalanhu, pp. 40-41. Includes bibliographical references (p. 42).

"Mbalanhu is a Wambo [Ishiwambo] dialect, assigned to Guthrie's R.20, and spoken by approximately 50320 people in Central Northern Namibia. Apart from a limited number of articles by the same author, no linguistic data on the structure of Mbalanhu is available" (from the rear cover).

[MBARA] Mbara is an endangered Chadic (Biu–Mandara) language of Chad (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mpk. Alternate Names: G'kelendeg, G'kelendeng, Guelengdeng, Massa de Guelengdeng.

1986: [IUW] Les Mbara et leur langue (Tchad) / Henry Tourneux, Christian Seignobos, et Francine Lafarge. Paris: Selaf, 1986. 319 p.: maps; 25 cm. Original black and white wrappers, lettered in black. Langues et cultures africaines; 6. Lexicon: Mbara-French, pp. 252-282, Index, French-Mbara-English, pp. 283-305. Bibliography: p. 307-311.

[MBAY] Mbay, or Sara Mbay, is a Bongo–Bagirmi language of Chad and the Central African Republic. It is reported that Mbay does not have independent personal pronouns. The meaning is largely carried out by subject, object, and possessive affixes attached to verbs, prepositions, and nouns (Wiki).

Ethnologue: myb. Alternate Names: Mbai, Mbay Moissala, Mbaye, Moissala Mbai, Sara Mbai.

ca. 1928: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES...POLYGLOT.

1962: [IUW] Dictionnaire mbay-français. Moissala, 1953-Fort-Archambault, 1961, by Joseph Fortier. [Fort-Archambault, Tchad, 1962]. 25 p. + 192 p. illus. 27 cm. Library binding. Reproduced from typescript. Mbay-French, pp. 1-192.

1996: [IUW] Dictionary of Mbay, by John M. Keegan; [compiled with Nangbaye Marcel and Manadji Tolkom Bertin]. München; Newcastle; Lincom Europa, 1996. xxiv, 604, [6] p.; ill.; 22 cm. Library binding incorporating original yellow wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Languages of the world. Dictionaries; 3 Includes bibliographical references (p. [605-610]). Mbay-English, pp. 1-516, and English-Mbay, pp. 518-604.

"The goal of this dictionary is to provide a description of the Mbay language as viewed from the lexicon. I have tried to make the scope broad, incorporating more information, both linguistic and cultural, than is commonly contained in a work of this type.... In writing this dictionary I have benefited greatly from work done by previous linguists and researchers. The most important of these is the work of Joseph Fortier, the French Jesuit missionary who lived in southern Chad for much of the period between 1953 and 1980.... Most important for my own research was his (1960 [1962]) dictionary, which contained approximately 2000 entries. When I consulted with Fortier in Lyons at the start of my research, he warned me regarding the inaccuracy of the transcription contained in his work: tones were for the most part ignored, many sounds were confused with similar sounds, and numerous errors and gaps existed within the sample sentences.... [Nevertheless], his dictionary provided an excellent starting point for my own research, and once corrections were made, a solid base from which I have been able to build this current work" (Introduction).

[MBEMBE, TIGON] Mbembe, or more specifically Tigon Mbembe, is a Jukunoid language of Cameroon and Nigeria (Wiki). Not to be confused with Cross River Mbembe of Nigeria.

Ethnologue: nza. Alternate Names: Akonto, Tigon, Tigong, Tigum, Tigun, Tikun.

2015: [IUW] A grammar of Mbembe, by Doris Richter genannt Kemmermann. Leiden; Boston: Brill, [2015]. XIII, 527 pages: illustrations; 25 cm. Original green, white and black cloth over boards, lettered in white, and black. Grammars and sketches of the World's languages. Africa. "The present study was originally submitted under the title 'A Grammar of Mbembe' as dissertation to the Faculty of Arts, University of Cologne in March 2012. The oral defense was on the 23-05-2014." Word List Mbembe (Kuta and Berabe Dialects): Kuta-Berabe-English, pp. [508]-515. Includes bibliographical references (pages 516-521).

"A Grammar of Mbembe is a description of an understudied Jukunoid language which is spoken in the borderland of Nigeria and Cameroon.... This is complemented by example texts and a word list in the appendix" (from rear cover).

[MBELIME] Mbelime, or Niende, is a Gur language of Benin (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mql. Alternate Names: Bebelibe, Bèbèdibè, Mbilme, Mbèlimè, Oubièlo, Ubielo, "M'Bermè" (pej.), "Niende" (pej.), "Niendi" (pej.), "Niendé" (pej.), "Nyende" (pej.).

1983a-b: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[MBERE] Mbere (Mbede, Mbete) is a Bantu language spoken in the Republic of Congo and Gabon (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mdt. Alternate Names: Limbede, Mbédé, Mbété.

1969: see under NDUMU.

[MBOSI] Mbosi (Mboshi) is a Bantu language spoken in the Republic of Congo (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mdw. Alternate Names: Embosi, Mbochi, Mboshe, Mboshi.

2002: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

2012: [IUW] Embosi-English dictionary / Yvon Pierre Ndongo Ibara. Frankfurt am Main; New York: Peter Lang, 2012. 203 p.: ill., map; 21 cm. Original two-tone blue wrappers, lettered in white. Mbosi-English, pp. 41-203. Includes bibliographical references. Also available on-line.

"This is the third dictionary on Embosi. Father Prat (1915 [?]) [J. Prat, Dictionnaire Français-Mbochi. Braazaville, 1904] and Deapami et al. (2000) [Rock Beapami et al. Dictionnaire mbochi-français, Cameroun: SIL Cameroun, 2000.] This importantly demonstrates that our national languages are less described since researcher pay less attention to them.... This dictionary is the result of research carried out by its author since the completion [of] his MA thesis in 2000" (pp. 33-34).

"The entries in this dictionary reflect the increasing connection between Embosi-language dialects, because in addition to the equivalent meaning in English, indications to dialect synomnys are provided" (from the rear cover).

[MBUGU] Mbugu, or Ma'a, is a mixed language of Tanzania. The Mbugu speak two divergent registers, which have been treated as separate languages by some authorities

(e.g. Tucker and Bryan): "Mbugu" or "Normal Mbugu" (autonym kiMbbugu) is purely Bantu, with vocabulary closely related to Pare, while "Ma'a" or "Inner Mbugu" (autonym kiMa'a) consists of an inherited Cushitic vocabulary with Bantu morphology similar to that of Shambala and Pare. They share a grammar, to the point that their syntax is identical and a passage in one can be translated to the other simply by changing the content words (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mhd. Alternate Names: Kibwayo, Kibwyo, Kimaa, Kimbugu, Ma'a, Mbougou, Wa Maathi, Wa-Ma'a, Wama'a.

2003: [LILLY] The making of a mixed language: the case of Ma'a/Mbugu, by Maarten Mous. Amsterdam; Philadelphia: J. Benjamins Pub. Co., 2003. xix, 322 p.: ill., maps; 23 cm. Original yellow paper over boards, decorated in white and light gray, lettered in gray and black. Appendix: etymological lexicon, Mbugu-English, pp. [231]-298, English-Mbugu index, pp. [299]-318. Also available on-line.

"There are no ethnographic or historical studies dedicated solely to the Mbugu. Mbugu is simply mentioned in those on the Shambaa and the Pare.... This study is based on a series of three fieldwork periods of a few months each in the Usambara mountains in the years 1992-1993. The fieldwork was conducted in Swahili.... The aim of this work is first of all the presentation of new data" (Introduction).

[MBUGWE] Mbugwe or Mbuwe (Kimbugwe) is a Bantu language spoken by the Mbugwe people of Lake Manyara in the Manyara Region of Central Tanzania. Mbugwe is estimated to be spoken by some 34,000 people. Mbugwe is isolated from other Bantu languages, being bordered by the locally dominant Cushitic language Iraqw to the west, the Gorowa language (or dialect of Iraqw) to the south, the Nilotic Maasai language to the east, and the lake to the north. It shares about 70% vocabulary with its Bantu cousin Rangi (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mgz. Alternate Names: Buwe, Kimbugwe, Kiumbugwe, Mbuwe.

2004: [IUW] A grammatical sketch of Mbugwe : Bantu F34, Tanzania / Maarten Mous. Köln : Köppe, c2004. vii, 70 p. : 12 tab. ; 24 cm. Library binding, incorporating original light orange wrappers, lettered in black. Grammatische Analysen afrikanischer Sprachen ; Bd. 23. Lexicon [of "just under 1000 entries"]: Mbugwe-English, pp. 41-54; English-Mbugwe, pp. 54-68. Includes bibliographical references (p. 69-70). This is the first substantial published vocabulary of the language.

"The present study is based on a very short period of fieldwork of only a few days. This should be kept in mind.... Unfortunately it is the poor state of documentation of this interesting language that justifies the publication of this work. I hope it will stimulate others to study Mbugwe" (Preface).

[MBUKUSHU] Mbukushu or Thimbukushu is a Bantu language spoken by 45,000 people along the Okavango River in Namibia, where it is a national language and in Botswana, Angola and Zambia. Mbukushu is one of several Bantu languages of the Okavango which have click consonants (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mhw. Alternate Names: Gova, Kusso, Mambukush, Mampukush, Mbukuhu, Mbukushi, Sempukushu, Thimbukushu.

1980: [IUW] English-Mbukushu dictionary, by R. C. Wynne. [Amersham] Eng.: Avebury, 1980. xxxii, 615 p.; 31 cm. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in green. English-Mbukushu, pp. 1-615. First dictionary of the language.

"This dictionary provides a standard work of reference for the southern African language of Mbukushu. There is no literature in this language and no previous dictionary has been available... 'Working from English to Mbukushu the author first of all gives precision to his English concept, and then seeks the most appropriate Mbukushu word, which he illustrates in one or more Mbukushu sentences' (E. O. J. Westphal). The dictionary is based on some 8000 English entries, for which the concise Oxford Dictionary has provided a guide, selectively used. The three-column form employed... is a distinctive and original feature... [The dictionary] includes extensive introductory material" (on half-title).

1994: see under DIRIKU.

2004: [IUW] Konzeptualisierung von Landschaft im Mbukushu: (Bantusprache in Nord-Namibia) / Birte Kathage. Köln: Köppe, [2005?], c2004. 273 p.: ill.; 24 cm. Library binding incorporating original pale orange wrappers, lettered in blue and black with color photo of African landscape on front cover. Southern African languages and cultures; v. 1. Revision of author's thesis (doctoral)--Universität zu Köln, 2003. Appendix 2: "Liste der Landschaftsbezeichnungen," descriptive vocabulary for landscapes, Mbukushu-English, pp. 235-236; Appendix 11: "Liste der Pflanzennamen," plant names, Mbukushu-Latin-English, p. [271]. Includes bibliographical references (p. 213-229). A study of the conceptualization of landscapes in the Mbukushu language.

2008: see under DIRIKU.

[MBULA-BWAZZA] Mbula-Bwazza is one of the Jarawan languages of Nigeria. It is a dialect cluster; Blench (2011) divides it into several languages, as follows: Bwazza; Mbula: Mbula, Tambo, Kula, Gwamba (Wiki).

Ethnologue: bmu.

2008: [IUW] The Mbula of north-eastern Nigeria / Samson Elias Mijah. [Jos] : Jos University Press, 2008. xvii, 239 p. : ill., maps ; 21 cm. Original green, white and gray wrappers, lettered in green, yellow, black and red, with a color photo of a tribesman and horse on the front cover. Glossary of some Mbula Words [approximately 70 entries], Mbulua-English, pp. x-xii. Includes bibliographical references (p. 219-230) and index.

"This book focuses on the identity of the Mbula people of the Benue valley in North-Eastern Nigeria" (from rear cover).

2012: [IUW] A guide to Mbula language / Elijah C.S. Ndwakan. First edition. Yola, Nigeria: Paraclete Publishers, 2012. xiii, 47 pages: illustrations; 24 cm. Original multi-colored wrappers, lettered in red, yellow and black, with a photo of a hippo on the front cover. Chapter Eight: Proverbs in Mbula Language, Mbula English, pp. 29-30; Common Plants in Mbula, Mbula-English, p. 31; Words and their Meanings, Mbula-English, pp. 32-36 (with English words in alphabetical order).

"This book is planned and arranged in a very simple way [for] learning Mbula language at an early stage. It will help the young ones to learn, identify and write on their own. It is also my belief that parents will find this book more useful for their children both at home and in school" (Preface).

[MBUM] Mbum proper, or West Mbum, is an Adamawa language of Cameroon spoken by about 51,000 people. Speakers are mostly bilingual in Fulfulde. It is also known (as Buna, Mboum, Mboumtiba, and Wuna. The Mbum are considered the original population of the Adamawa Plateau in Cameroon. However, some histories recall that there were a people already in the area when they arrived there centuries ago. They have had a long and close relationship with the neighboring Dii people in the eastern parts of Adamawa Province to the extent that it is frequently difficult to make any distinction between the two. Their relationship with the Fulani, who entered the region in the early-19th century, is more complex. The Fulani are often perceived as a ruling class; nevertheless, the Mbum have historically participated actively in the states set up by the Fulani. Blench (2006) considers Gbete to be a separate language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mdd. Alternate Names: Buna, Mboum, Mboumtiba, Wuna.
Ethnologue lists Gbete as a dialect of Mbum.

1930: see under NGBAKA MA'BO.

1978: [IUW] The classified vocabulary of the Mbum language in Mbang Mboum; with ethnographical descriptions, by Shun'ya Hino. Tokyo; Institute for the Study of Languages and Cultures of Asia and Africa, 1978. xiv, 452 p.; ill.; 19 cm. Original black wrappers, lettered in white. African languages and ethnography; 10. Bibliography: p. 393-395. Mbum-English, thematically arranged, pp. 3-391, an Mbum index, pp. 397-425, an English index, pp. 426-438, and a French index, pp. 439-452.

"The present volume is written by Prof. Shun'ya Hino, the leader of the third and fourth missions to North Cameroon in 1974 and 1976. It is a compilation of Mbum vocabulary based on his ethnological research in Mbang Mboum, Adamawa prefecture, North Cameroon. Since the beginning of our research project there has been our sincere wish to make a Mboum dictionary in the field of ethnography and anthropology. Now Prof. Hino has brought this wish to realization in the form of a uniquely classified vocabulary. We believe that his vocabulary with its detailed description has a great significance not only for the study of culture and languages of the Mboum people, but also for the comparative study of the life of the Moslems in northern Cameroonian region" (Editorial Note, Morimichi Tomikawa).

2007: [IUW] Lexique gbete-français; province de l'Est, département du Lom-et-Djérem, arrondissement de Belabo, cantons Képéré-Woutchaba et Képéré-Dengdeng, by Béatrice Kouemou Mouga. Yaoundé; Editions du CLA, c2007. 151 p.; 21 cm. Original light blue wrappers, lettered and illustrated in black. Collection CALED; no 23. French and Gbete. Gbete-French, pp. 9-92, and French-Gbete, pp. 94-151.

"The Adamawa language Gbete of the Mbum group is spoke by a population of around 10,000 people living principally in the cantons of Képéré-Woutchaba and Képéré-Dengdeng.... While it is hoped that his provisional Gbete-French lexicon with a French-Gbete index may be of great interest to all those wishing to learn to speak Gbete, is intended primarily for native speakers of the language" (Introduction, tr: BM).

[MBUNDA] Mbunda is a Bantu language of Angola and Zambia. There are several dialects: Katavola, Yauma, Nkangala, Mbalango, Sango, Ciyengele ("Shamuka"), and Ndundu, all of which are closely related. Mbunda was one of six languages selected by the Instituto de Línguas Nacionais (National Languages Institute) for an initial phase to establish spelling rules in 1980 to facilitate teaching in schools and promoting its use (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mck. Alternate Names: Chimbunda, Mbuunda.

1987: [IUW] Léxico temático de vida económica: Português-Mbunda / coordenação científica, Boubacar Diarra, perito da UNESCO/PNU; [com a colaboração de Justino F. Katwiya, Fabião Francisco da Costa]. Luanda: Secretaria de Estado da Cultura, Instituto de Línguas Nacionais, 1987. Cover title. 17 p.; 30 cm. Original blue wrappers, lettered in black. "Projecto ANG/77/009 - 'Desenvolvimento das línguas nacionais na R.P.A.'" Lexicon: Portuguese-Mbunda, pp. [3]-17.

"This lexicon of economic terms is aimed primarily at agents in banks, finance and business who utilize national languages in written communications to allow them to convey their messages more efficiently to account holders, merchants, and other customers" (Note: tr: BM).

[MEHINÁKU] Mehináku (Meinaku) is an Arawakan language spoken by the Mehinaku people of Brazil. One dialect, Waurá-kumá, is "somewhat intelligible" with Waurá due to influence from this language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mmh. Alternate Names: Mahinaku, Mehinaco, Mehinako, Minaco.

1894: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF SOUTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[MEHRI] Mehri or Mahri is a member of the Modern South Arabian languages, a subgroup of the Semitic branch of the Afroasiatic family. It is spoken by the Mehri people, who inhabit isolated areas of the eastern part of Yemen and western Oman, particularly the Al Mahrah Governorate. Mehri and its sister Modern South Arabian languages were spoken in the southern Arabian Peninsula before the spread of Arabic along with Islam in the 7th century CE. It is today also spoken by Mehri residents in Qatar, Somalia and the United Arab Emirates, as well as in Kuwait by guest workers originally from South Arabia. Given the dominance of Arabic in the region over the past 1400 years and the frequent bilingualism with Arabic among Mehri speakers, Mehri is at some risk of extinction. It is primarily a spoken language, with little existing vernacular literature and almost no literacy in the written form among native speakers (Wiki).

Ethnologue: gdq. Alternate Names: Mahri.

1902: [LILLYbm] Die Mehri-Sprache in Südarabien. Texte und Wörterbuch, by Alfred Jahn. Vienna: Alfred Hölder, 1902. Original brown quarter-cloth and borwn paper over boards, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. I-V VI-VIII IX-XII, 1 2-281 282. First edition. Kaiserliche Akademie der Wissenschaften. Südarabische Expedition, vol. III. Zaunmüller, col. 262 (listing 1909 dictionary as Vol. 9 of report). Mehri-German, pp.161-242, double-columned, and German-Mehri, pp. [243]-267, triple-columned. First dictionary of this language. Second copy: IUW.

"Mehri is the language of that stretch of the south Arabian coast between Hasuwel and Dafur. Together with language Grawi, spoken along the coast to the northeast of Dafur, and the language of the islands of Soqotra, Abd el Kuri and Samba, it offers the sole remaining remnants of the south Arabaian language contained in the Sabaeen and Minaean inscriptions" (Introduction, tr: BM).

[MEKEO] Mekeo is a language spoken in Papua New Guinea and had 19,000 speakers in 2003. It is an Oceanic language of the Papuan Tip Linkage. The two major villages that the language is spoken in are located in the Central Province of Papua New Guinea. These are named Ongofoina and Inauaisa. The language is also broken up into four dialects: East Mekeo; North West Mekeo; West Mekeo and North Mekeo. The standard dialect is East Mekeo. In addition, there are at least two Mekeo-based pidgins (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mek. Alternate Names: Mekeo-Kovio.

1998: [LILLYbm] Towards a lexicogrammar of Mekeo: an Austronesian language of West Central Papua, by A[lan] A. Jones. Canberra: Pacific Linguistics, Research School of Pacific and Asian Studies, The Australian National University, 1998. Original gray-green wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [2] i-iv v-xx, 1-601 602-606. First edition. Series: Pacific linguistics. Series C, no. 138. Includes as Appendix 2, "Comparative Word Lists" of English-NW Mekeo, W Mekeo, N Mekeo and E Mekeo, pp. 562-567, a short comparative word list as Appendix 3 with English, NW Mekeo, Iaifa [North Kuni], Lapeka ["a convergent Kuni-Mekeo dialect" and 'Kuni' [Central Kuni/ Stanard Kuni], pp. 568-569, and bibliographical references, pp. 590-601. Second copy: IUW.

"This work represents the first comprehensive sketch of the grammar of Mekeo, an Austronesian language of Papua New Guinea.... There are four distinct varieties of Mekeo-four phonological dialects, with some lexical differences..." (Preface). "[The comparative word lists are] based loosely on the Swadesh 200-word list, but has been extensively modified where this was inappropriate or inapplicable for climatic or cultural reasons" (p. 562).

[MELANESIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT] It is now known that the Melanesian languages do not form a genealogical node: they are at best paraphyletic, and very likely polyphyletic; like Papuan, the term is now used as one of convenience, and sometimes placed in scare quotes. Although the term was at least in the beginning partially racial rather than linguistic, the Melanesian and other Central–Eastern Malayo-Polynesian languages are typologically similar, due to being the Austronesian languages most heavily restructured under the influence of various Papuan language families. Most of the languages of Melanesia are members of the Austronesian or Papuan language families. By one count, there are 1,319 languages in Melanesia, scattered across a small amount of land. The proportion of 716 sq. kilometers per language is by far the most dense rate of languages in relation to land mass in the earth, almost three times as dense as in Nigeria, a country famous for its high number of languages in a compact area. In addition to this large number of indigenous languages, there are also a number of pidgins and creoles. Most notable among these are Tok Pisin, Hiri Motu, Solomon Islands Pijin, Bislama, and Papuan Malay (Wiki).

1885: [LILLYbm] The Melanesian languages, by R[obert]H[enry] Codrington [1830-1922]. Oxford: The Clarendon Press, 1885. Original black cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in red. Pp. i-v vi-viii, I-3 4-572 + 32 pp. advertisements for Clarendon Press dated September 1885. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes comparative vocabularies of "seventy words in forty Melanesian languages" as follow: Nengone, Anaiteum, Eromanga, Fate, Sesake, Api, Ambrym, Espiritu Santo, Whitsuntide, Lepers' Island, Aurora, Meralava, Santa Maria Gog, Santa Maria Lakon, Vanua Lava Pak, Vanua Lava Sasar, Vanua Lava Vureas, Vanua Lava Mosina, Vanua Lava alo Tequel, Mota, Saddle Island Motlav, Saddle Island Volow, Ureparapara, Torres Islands Lo, Fiji, Rotuma, Santa Cruz, Nifilole, Ulawa, San Cristoval Waso, San Cristoval Fagani, Malanta Saa, Malanta Bululaha, Malanta Alite, Vaturana, Florida, Savo, Ysabel Bugotu, Ysabel Gao, New Georgia, Duke of York, Murray Island, New Guinea Motu, pp. 39-52. This copy with the bookplate of Philip Lyttleton Gell [1852- ], co-author of Arnold Toynbee, Johns Hopkins University, 1889, and author of The Maintenance of the Parochial System, London, 1909. Second copy: IUW.

"I have endeavoured in the following pages to carry on the work of Bishop Patteson. He brought to the philological study of the Melanesian languages an extraordinary linguistic facility, which enabled him to use very many of them with ease, but he left little behind him in print or in manuscript. In the year 1864 he printed privately some outline grammars or grammatical notes, and in 1866 phrase-books and Vocabularies of Mahaga, Bauro, and Sesake, which have furnished material for the Melanesischen Sprachen of Von der Gabelentz. In the latter year also phrase-books were published in some of the languages of the Banks' Islands. I have not taken them as the foundation for my own work. I never had the advantage of studying them with Bishop Patteson, and I know that he considered them imperfect and tentative. It seemed better to work independently on materials obtained directly from natives of Melanesia, and afterwards to compare my conclusions with those of the Bishop where the subjects were the same" (Preface). The author served at the Mission on Norfolk Island and completed his study upon his return to Wadham College, Oxford.

1926: [IUW] A comparative study of the Melanesian Island languages, by Sidney Herbert Ray. London; Cambridge University Press, 1926. xv, [1], 598 p., [6] leaves of plates; maps; 25 cm. Original gray-green cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Includes bibliographical references. Almost entirely grammatical material, but the chapter "The Early Records," pp. [6]-18, reprints brief vocabularies from travellers' accounts, with "present-day" equivalents, for languages or locales listed as Bugotu, Nggao, Florida, Claes Pietersz Bay, Nokon, Bitusuan, Muliama, Kowamerara, Koko, New Caledonia (Balad), Tanna (New Hebrides), Malaicolo (New Hebrides), Errormanga, Annatom, Fiji, and Rotuma.

1946: [IUW] Langues et dialectes de l'Austro-Mélanésie, by Maurice Leenhardt. Paris, Institut d'ethnologie, 1946. 2 p. l., [vii]-xlvi, 676 p., 2 l. 1 illus., fold. map. 28 cm. Library binding. Travaux et mémoires de l'Institut d'ethnologie; 46 "Copyright 1945." "Bibliographie": p. [648]-656. Part II, pp. [245]-502, consists of a comparative table of vocabularies of New Caledonia and the Loyalty Islands, thematically arranged. The languages include: Houailou, Poya, Bourail (Nésadjou, Ni, Moindou), La Foa, Canala, Thio (Brindi), Paita, Sud (et Ile des pins), Ponérihouen, Touho, Hienghène (Hienghène, Tipindjé), Voh (Ouango, Voh), Oubatche, Pouébo, Arama (Balade), Belep, Poume, Koumac, Gomen (Gomen, Bondé), Voh (Pouanlotch, Pakèp Fatenaoué, Tiéta, Pamalé, Gatope), Koné, Maré, Lifou, Ouvéa.

1982: [IUW] Dictionnaire thématique des langues de la région de Hienghène (Nouvelle-Calédonie); Pije, Fwâi, Nemi, Jawe, by André-Georges Haudricourt, Françoise Ozanne-Rivierre. Précédé d'une Phonologie comparée des langues de Hienghène et du proto-océanien / par Françoise Ozanne-Rivierre. Paris; SELAF, 1982. 285 p.; maps; 19 x 23 cm. Library binding incorporating original blue front wrapper, lettered in black, with a drawing of a grass hut on front cover. LACITO-documents. Asie-Austronésie; 4. Includes index. Includes a classified polyglot dictionary, French-Pije-Fwâi-Nemi 1 (Temala)-Nemi 2 (East Coast)-Jawe, pp. 65-241, with index of French words, pp. 265-281. With language maps of New Caledonia, and the Hienghè region.

"The information gathered in this volume concerns four languages spoken in the Hienghè region [of New Caledonia]: Pije, Fwâi, Nemi, and Jawe. It was gathered in the course of several research trips in this region by A.-G. Haudricourt (1959) and myself (1973, 1976 and 1978)... The results of our research now published in common will certainly be revised and corrected, but it seems to us that at a time when the vernacular languages are beginning to be used in education in New Caledonia, this material should be placed at the disposal of all" (p. [9], tr: BM).

[MELANESIAN PIDGIN] Melanesian Pidgin or Neo-Melanesian language comprises three related English-based languages of Melanesia: 1) Tok Pisin of Papua New Guinea; 2) Pijin of the Solomon Islands; 3) Bislama of the Vanuatu Islands (Wiki).

Ethnologue includes the three languages listed above among 8 languages classified as Pacific English-based Creoles. Neomelanesian is listed as an alternate name only in the case of Tok Pisin.

1943a: [LILLYbm] [Cover title] Melanesian Pidgin: Phrase-Book and Vocabulary, [by Robert Anderson Hall]. [s.l.]: Headquarters USAFISPA, 1943. Original stapled cream wrappers, lettered in black. Ff. [1-22], printed on versos only. At head of title: June 15, 1943, Headquarters USAFISPA. First edition, bound galley proofs, without title page. Copies of the galley proofs appear to have been bound up for use abroad during the war. Textually identical to the book published by the Linguistic Society of America. This copy with the ink ownership stamp on the front cover of William L. Lehman (MC) USN.

First edition, second issue of 1943a: Melanesian Pidgin: Phrase-Book and Vocabulary, by Robert A[nderson] Hall, Jr. Baltimore, MD: Linguistic Society of America, 1943. Front cover reads "Published for the United States Armed Forces Institute, Madison, Wisconsin, by the Linguistic Society of America and the Intensive Language Program of the American Council of Learned Societies". Original gray wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [2], 1-28 29-30. First edition, second issue (although not identified as such). Not in Zaunmüller. Reinecke 87.116. Pidgin to English, pp. 15-20, and English to Pidgin, pp. 21-28, double-columned.

"Pidgin is not, as some people think, merely a 'corrupt' English; you cannot talk Pidgin just by mixing up English words any which way. The grammar of Pidgin is simple, but its rules are as firmly fixed as those of the best English" (p. 1).

1943b: [LILLYbm] Melanesian Pidgin English: Grammar, Texts, Vocabulary, by Robert A[nderson] Hall, Jr. Baltimore, Maryland: Linguistic Society of America at the Waverly Press, 1943. Front cover reads: Identical with the Edition published for the United States Armed Forces Institute, Madison, Wisconsin, by the Linguistic Society of America and the Intensive Language Program of the American Council of Learned Societies. Original pale blue wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. 160 pp. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 114. Reinecke 87.167 ("The first systematic description of Pidgin English, by structuralist methods; still a standard work... The informants were all English-speaking and removed from the Melanesian milieu"). "Pidgin-to-English," pp. 88-125, and "English-to-Pidgin," pp. 126-157. Bibliography, p. 158. This copy with the ownership signature "Penzl" in ink on the title page, undoubtedly Herbert Penzl, the noted linguist and author of works on Pashto, early German dialects, and phonology. There are a few penciled notes in the margins.

Second copy: [IUW] Melanesian Pidgin phrase-book and vocabulary: with grammatical introduction, by Robert A. Hall, Jr.; with the collaboration of Gregory Bateson, John W.M. Whiting. Baltimore, Md.; Published by Linguistic Society of America at the Waverly Press, 1943. 28 p. bound with: Melanesian Pidgin English: Grammar, Texts, Vocabulary, by Robert A. Hall, Jr. Baltimore, Md.; Published by Linguistic Society of America at the Waverly Press, 1943. 159 p.; 26 cm. Private binding, incorporating original front wrapper for both volumes. Special publications of the Linguistic Society of America. "Identical with the edition published for the United States Armed Forces Institute, Madison, Wisconsin, by the Linguistic Society of America and the Intensive Language Program of the American Council of Learned Societies" (front wrapper). The first 26-page volume includes a brief grammar, Melanesian Pidgin-English "useful phrases," pp. 6-14, Pidgin-English vocabulary, pp. 15-20, and English-Pidgin vocabulary, pp. 21-28. The second expanded volume, issued in the same year, includes a much longer grammar, texts, and a full vocabulary: Pidgin-English, pp. 88-125, and English-Pidgin, pp. 126-157. "This vocabulary attempts to list those words which may be regarded as basic in Melanesian Pidgin. No pretence to completeness is made, since even the basic vocabulary of Pidgin varies regionally to a certain extent" (p. 88).

"In the islands of Melanesia (New Guinea, Bismarck Archipelago and nearby islands, Solomon Islands, etc.), natives and white men talk together, not in ordinary English, but in a special kind of English called Pidgin. If a white man wishes to understand a native or tell him something, he will have a much better chance of doing so if he knows and is able to use at least a few words of Pidgin" (p. 1, Phrase Book and Vocabulary).

"Melanesian Pidgin is the name given to a communication and trade pidgin of 'minimum' language used between white men and natives, and between natives who have no common speech of their own, in Melanesia: New Guinea, the Bismarck Archipelago and the neighboring island groups, and the Solomon Islands. It is based upon English, but its grammatical structure and vocabulary differ sufficiently from those of English to render it a separate language, not merely a simplified form of English. The speech community of Melanesian Pidgin is discontinuous and non-homogeneous. The total number of speakers is unknown."

[MELE-FILA] Mele-Fila (Ifira-Mele) is a Polynesian language spoken in Mele and Ifira on the island of Efate in Vanuatu (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mxe. Alternate Names: Fila-Mele, Ifara-Mele, Ifira-Mele.

1975: [LILLY] A Mele-Fila Vocabulary, by Bruce Biggs. Auckland: Linguistic Society of New Zealand, 1975. 80 p. 21 cm. Original cream wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Mele-Fila to English, pp. 12-58; English to Mele-Fila index, pp. 59-77. This copy with ink annotations by the noted linguist Johannes Rahder.

1998: [LILLYbm] A dictionary of the Mele language (atara imere), Vanuatu, by [D.] Ross Clark. Canberra: Pacific Linguistics, Research School of Pacific and Asian Studies, Australian National University, 1998. Original olive-green wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [2] i-iv v-xv xvi, 1-158 159-162. First edition. Series: Pacific linguistics. Series C, 149. Mele-English, pp. 1-111., and English-Mele finder list, pp. 112-158. First dictionary of the language. Second copy: IUW.

"This dictionary results from a series of visits to Mele village between 1974 and 1986....Mele (Imere) is a large village a few kilometers west of Port Vila, the capital of Vanuatu. Originally the Mele community lived on the small off-shore island (Tenuku Imere), now the site of the 'Hideaway Island' resort. But the population grew too large and in 1950 the government ordered that the people move to the present location on the mainland of Efate. The village has grown steadily, and the total population of Mele speakers today is close to two thousand" (Introduction).

[MELPA] Melpa (also written Medlpa) is a Papuan language spoken by about 130,000 people predominantly in Mount Hagen and the surrounding district of Western Highlands Province, Papua New Guinea. Melpa has a voiceless velar lateral fricative, written as a double-barred el (ɛ̥, ɬ). It is notable for its binary counting system (Wiki).

Ethnologue: med. Alternate Names: Hagen, Medlpa.

ca. 1950: [LILLY] [Untitled work on Melpa grammar with numerous Melpa-English phrases, by H. Strauss, circa 1950's]. Original blue wrappers, mimeographed. Pp. 1-93 94. This copy with ownership signature of Rev. Ernest Brandewie, author of Contrast and context in New Guinea culture: the case of the Mbowamb of the central highlands (Anthropos Institute, 1981).

[MENYA] Menya (Menyama, Menye) is an Angan language of Papua New Guinea (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mcr. Alternate Names: Menyama, Menye.

1973: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[ME'PHAA, AZOYÚ] Tlapanec /'tlæpənək/ is an indigenous Mexican language spoken by more than 98,000 Tlapanec people in the state of Guerrero. Like other Oto-Manguean languages, it is tonal and has complex inflectional morphology. The ethnic group themselves refer to their ethnic identity and language as Me'phaa [meʔpʰa:]. Before much information was known about it, Tlapanec (sometimes written "Tlappanec" in earlier publications) was either considered unclassified or linked to the controversial Hokan language family. It is now definitively considered part of the Oto-Manguean language family, of which it forms its own branch along with the extinct and very closely related Subtiaba language of Nicaragua.

Ethnologue distinguishes four Tlapanec languages:

Acatepec (dialects Acatepec proper, Huitzapula, Nanzintla, Teocuitlapa, Zapotitlán Tablas)

Azoyú

Malinaltepec (dialect Huehueteppec/Zilacayotitlán)

Tlacoapa (dialects Tlacoapa proper, Tenamazapa)

Ethnologue: tpc. Alternate Names: Azoyú Tlapanec, Me'phaa, Mè'phàà, Mè'phàà Tsindii, Tlapaneco de Azoyú, Tlapaneco del Sur.

1933: [LILLYbm] "Notes on the Tlapanecan Language of Guerrero," by Paul Radin, in: International Journal of American Linguistics, New York, Vol. 8, No. 1 (December 1933), pp. 45-72. Includes English-Tlapanecan [Azoyu Tlapaneco] vocabulary, pp. 54-72. First published vocabulary of this language.

"The following data were obtained from three students, aged respectively fifteen, twenty-two and twenty-eight, studying at the Casa Indigena in Mexico City. The first two came from the pueblo of Azoyu and the second from the pueblo of Iiliatengo, both in Guerrero, Mexico" (p. 45).

[MENDE] Mende /'mendi/ (Mende yia) is a major language of Sierra Leone, with some speakers in neighboring Liberia. It is spoken by the Mende people and by other ethnic groups as a regional lingua franca in southern Sierra Leone. Mende is a tonal language belonging to the Mande branch of the Niger–Congo language family. Early systematic descriptions of Mende were by F. W. Migeod (see below) and Kenneth Crosby (Wiki).

Ethnologue: men. Alternate Names: Boumpe, Hulo, Kossa, Kosso.

1908: [LILLYbm] The Mende Language containing Useful Phrases, Elementary Grammar, Short Vocabularies, Reading Materials, by F[rederick] W[illiam] H[ugh] Migeod [1872-]. London: Kegan Paul, 1908. Hardbound without d.j. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 271. Hendrix 1151. The vocabularies (pp. 154-199) include both Mende-English and English-Mende. Migeod was Transport Officer in the Gold Coast Colony. Second copy: IUW.

1913: [LILLYbm] Mende Natural History Vocabulary, by F[rederick] W[illiam] H[ugh] Migeod. London: Kegan Paul, Trench, Trübner & Co., 1913. Original brown cloth over boards, front cover lettered in blind, spine lettered in gold. Pp. [8] i-ii iii-viii, 9-64 65-72. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 2058. Mende-English, arranged into groups such as animals, birds, insects, etc., pp. 9-64. This copy inscribed on the title page: 'Signed by the author / F.W.H. Migeod / 23.5.13.'

"This vocabulary, which was compiled at Sekondi on the Gold Coast, consists of a list of the names of as many animals, plants, &c., as the author has been able to observe personally or to obtain a description of... Alphabetical order has been set aside when a grouping seemed likely to be more useful... Some Mendes seem able to name almost every plant that is to be found, and they note minute differences. They can do the same with crawling insects; but, when it comes to butterflies, there is no distinction, one name does for all" (Preface).

1917: [LILLYbm] A Hand-book of the Mende Language, by Rev. A. T. Sumner. Freetown: Government Printing Office, 1917. Original black quarter-leather and tan paper over boards, lettered in black. Printed sticker of the Government Printing Office, Freetown, Sierra Leone, W.A. 1917 on the front pastedown endpaper. Pp. i-vii viii-xiv, [2] 1 2-191 192. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 271. Hendrix 1154. Mende-English, pp. [129]-160, and English-Mende, pp. 161-191. With the ink stamp of the Afrika-Schweizer Club of Basel on the half-title. Sumner was Assistant Principal of the Albert Academy in Freetown.

"I offer no apology for writing this hand-book, for its treads no beaten path, and at the same time it meets a long-felt want.... In addition to the words in the exercises and reading lessons, the vocabularies contain quite a large number of words in general use and provide a fairly handy and practical dictionary" (Preface).

1927: [LILLYbm] A View of Sierra Leone, by F[rederick] W[illiam] H[ugh] Migeod [1872- ]. New York: Brentano's, 1927. Original gray cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in dark blue. Pp. i-iv v-x xi-xii, [2] l 2-351 352 + folding map. First American edition. Hendrix 1152 (listing 1st London edition of 1926). Mende-English glossary, pp. 264-268, a Mende-English list of names of rice, pp. 338-339, and Appendix I, "Specimens of languages spoken in Sierra Leone or neighborhood", giving equivalents for numbers 1-10 in the following languages: Mende, Loko, Kono Vai, Gbandi, Kpwesi, Buzi, Kuranko, Susu, Koniaka, Temne, Bullom, Krim, Kissi, Gola, and Limba, pp. 341-344.

1948: [IUW] Puu yia gaa bukui = Mende-English phrase book. Bo, Sierra Leone; Provincial Literature Bureau, 1948. 32 pages; 19 x 25 cm. "December 1948"--Title page verso.

ca. 1960?: [LILLYbm] Mende Yepewu Bukui. Mende Word List [Cover title]. Bo, Sierra Leone: U.C.C. Literature Bureau, n.d. [ca. 1960?]. Original ochre stapled wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Ff. l 2-4, pp. 5-18. No edition indicated. Mende-English vocabulary, pp. 5-18, double columns. A Mende word list of 14 pp. (see Hendrix 1150) exists from the 1950's, and one under the title Mende Yepewu Bukui, 1985, of 17 pp.

"The following word/spelling list has been compiled by a small group, the members of which have been engaged for many years in Mende literature work of various types. Some have been concerned mainly with Bible translation, others with more general literature."

1969: [LILLYbm] A Mende-English Dictionary, by Gordon Innes. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1969. Original red cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold; d.j. red and white, lettered in black and green. Pp. [2] l-iv v-x. 1-154 155-156. First edition. Hendrix 1149. Mende-English only, double columns. Includes a list of prior vocabularies of which the author made use, p. ix. Innes is Lecturer in West African Languages at the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London. First true dictionary of the language. Second copy: IUW.

"There has long been a need for a Mende-English Dictionary. The dictionary is based on the eastern Mende dialect and uses the standard spelling of the Sierra Leone Provincial Literature Bureau; the tone of each entry is marked" (from the front d.j. flap). "It must be emphasised that there is no implication whatever that this dialect [eastern or up-country Mende] is any sense 'better' or 'more correct' than the varieties of Mende spoken in other areas. Some Kpa Mende forms of frequent occurrence outside the Kpa area are listed, and are marked (Kpa)" (Introduction).

[MÉNIK] Bedik (Budik, endonym Ménik, Onik), also Banda, is a Senegambian language of Senegal and Guinea spoken by traditional hunter-gatherers (Wiki).

Ethnologue: tnr. Alternate Names: Bande, Basari du Bandemba, Bedik, Budik, Tandanke, Tenda, Tandanke.

1991: see 1991d under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[MENOMINEE] Menominee /mɛˈnɒmɪniː/ (also spelled Menomini) is an Algonquian language originally spoken by the Menominee people of northern Wisconsin and Michigan. It is still spoken on the Menominee Nation lands in northern Wisconsin in the United States. The name of the tribe, and the language, Omāēqnomenew, comes from the word for wild rice, which was a staple of this tribe's diet for millennia. This designation for them (as Omanoominii) is also used by the Anishinaabe (Ojibwa), their Algonquian neighbors to the north. For good sources of information on both the Menominee and their language, some valuable resources include Leonard Bloomfield's 1928 bilingual text collection, his 1962 grammar (a landmark in its own right), and Skinner's earlier anthropological work (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mez. Alternate Names: Menomini.

1896: [LILLYbm] "The Menomini Indians," by Walter James Hoffman in: Fourteenth Annual Report of the Bureau of Ethnology to the Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution 1892-93 in Two Parts: Part I, by J. W. Powell. Washington: Government Printing Office, 1896, pp. 11-295. Original olive green cloth over boards, lettered in gold and decorated in gold and blind. Pp. [4] I-II III-LXI LXII, 1-4 5-637 638-642. First edition. "Vocabulary Introductory," pp. 294-295, Menomini-English, pp. 294-315, and English Menomini, pp. 315-328. First substantial vocabulary of the language.

"In reviewing the subject of Menomini linguistics, it may be stated that two printed works, a vocabulary of about four hundred words... and the Lord's Prayer... comprise all the published material in the Menomini language.... The Menomini vocabulary referred to is that compiled by W. H. Bruce and published by Henry Schoolcraft [Indian Tribes, vol. 2, Philadelphia, 1852, pp. 470-481]. The copy in the library of the Bureau of Ethnology bears many corrections by some unknown person, indicating, apparently, that numerous errors in phonetics existed.... Fathers Blaise and Oderic, or the order of Satin Francis, of Keshena, Wisconsin, have prepared jointly a manuscript grammar and dictionary of the Menomini language for their own use.... The manuscript was kindly given to the present writer, who is now editing the work for publication" (Vocabulary Introductory).

1075: [LILLY] Menominee Lexicon, by Leonard Bloomfield, ed. by Charles F. Hockett. Milwaukee: Milwaukee Public Museum, 1975. Original tan wrappers, lettered in brown. 289 pp. First edition. Reproduced from typescript. is the first dictionary of the language. Menominee-English, pp. 1-289. Second copy: IUW.

"The spelling Menominee [instead of the standard 'Menomini'] ... is the established form used by the people in designating themselves." "The lexicon was in typescript when Bloomfield died" and has been edited by Hockett.

[MENTAWAI] The Mentawai language is an Austronesian language, spoken by the Mentawai-people of the Mentawai Islands, West Sumatra (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mwv. Alternate Names: Mentawei, Mentawi.

1805: [LILLY] "Nachricht von den Einwohnern der Poggy-Inseln bei Sumatra," 1805, pp. 411-429, with plate. Complete issue, bound in modern paper wrappers with paper printed label. Includes a German-Poggy [Mentawai] sample vocabulary, pp. 428-429. One of the earliest word-lists from these islands. Reprinted from the Asiatik Reise, vol. 6, p. 77 ff.

[MESKWAKI] Fox (known by a variety of different names, including Mesquakie (Meskwaki), Mesquakie-Sauk, Mesquakie-Sauk-Kickapoo, and Sac and Fox) is an Algonquian language, spoken by a thousand Fox, Sauk, and Kickapoo in various locations in the Midwestern United States and in northern Mexico. There are three distinct dialects: Fox (also called Mesquakie, Meskwaki), Sauk (also rendered Sac), and Kickapoo (also rendered Kikapú; considered by some to be a closely related but distinct language). If Kickapoo is counted as a separate language rather than a dialect of Fox, then there are only between 200 and 300 speakers of Fox. Extinct Mascouten was most likely another dialect, though it is scarcely attested. Most speakers are elderly or middle-aged, making it highly endangered. The tribal school at the Meskwaki Settlement in Iowa incorporates bilingual education for children. In 2011, the Meskwaki Sewing Project was created, to bring mothers and girls together "with elder women in the Meskwaki Senior Center sewing traditional clothing and learning the Meskwaki language" (Wiki).

Ethnologue: sac. Alternate Names: Mesquakie, Sac and Fox, Sauk-Fox.

2014: [IUW] A Meskwaki-English and English-Meskwaki dictionary; based on early twentieth-century writings by native speakers, by Ives Goddard and Lucy Thomason. Petoskey, MI; Mundart Press, 2014. vi, 423 pages; 28 cm. "A publication of the Recovering Voices Program of the Smithsonian Institution, supported in part by a gift from the Shoniya Fund."--Title page verso. Includes separate appendixes of terms for animals, birds, body parts, calendar, numbers and counting, and relatives. Includes bibliographical references.

"This is a dictionary of the Meskwaki language, a member of the Algonquian language family spoken in Tama County, Iowa. It is a preliminary documentation of the words of the older form of the language used in writings by native speakers from the early twentieth century, including William Jones, and the collection of manuscripts written for Truman Michelson of the Bureau of American Ethnology. The name Meskwaki (earlier spelled Mesquakie) replaces the historical name Fox. The full official name of the people who speak Meskwaki is the Sac and Fox Tribe of the Mississippi in Iowa"--Publisher.

[MESMES] The Mesmes language is an extinct West Gurage language, one of the Ethiopian Semitic languages spoken in Ethiopia. There are still many people who claim the Mesmes ethnic identity, but none who speak the language. The last speaker of the language was interviewed by a language survey team when he was approximately 80 years old. He had not spoken the language for 30 years, having nobody to speak it with when his brother had died. The Mesmes have shifted to speaking the Hadiyya language. However, they still maintain some cultural distinctives, including their own style of house architecture. The comparative method has shown that the language is most closely related to the Inor variety of Gurage (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mys.

2010: [IUW] Language death in mesmes : a sociolinguistic and historical-comparative examination of a disappearing Ethiopian-semitic language / Michael Bryan Ahland. Dallas : SIL International ; Arlington : University of Texas at Arlington, c2010. xi, 142 p. : maps ; 23 cm. Original white and maroon wrappers, lettered in black and white, with a color photo of landscape on the front cover. Appendix B: Mesmes, Hadiyya, and Kambaata Comparison, English-Mesmes-Hadiyya-Kambaata, pp. 104-108

(99 words). SIL International and the University of Texas at Arlington publications in linguistics ; publication 145. Includes bibliographical references (p. 137-142).

[MESOAMERICAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT] Mesoamerican languages are the languages indigenous to the Mesoamerican cultural area, which covers southern Mexico, all of Guatemala and Belize and parts of Honduras and El Salvador and Nicaragua. The area is characterized by extensive linguistic diversity containing several hundred different languages and seven major language families. Mesoamerica is also an area of high linguistic diffusion in that long-term interaction among speakers of different languages through several millennia has resulted in the convergence of certain linguistic traits across disparate language families. The Mesoamerican sprachbund is commonly referred to as the Mesoamerican Linguistic Area. The languages of Mesoamerica belong to 6 major families – Mayan, Oto-Mangue, Mixe–Zoque, Totonacan, Uto-Aztecan and Chibchan languages (only on the southern border of the area) – as well as a few smaller families and isolates – Purépecha (Tarascan), Huave, Tequistlatec and Misumalpan. Among these Oto-Manguean and Mayan families account for the largest numbers of speakers by far – each having speakers numbering more than a million. Many Mesoamerican languages today are either endangered or already extinct, but others, including the Mayan languages, Nahuatl, Mixtec and Zapotec, have several hundred thousand speakers and remain viable (Wiki).

1892: Lenguas indigenas de Centro America en el siglo XVIII según copia del Archivo de Indias hecha por el licenciado Don León Fernández y publicada por Ricardo Fernández. Guardia y Juan Fernández Ferraz para el 9 congreso de americanistas. San José de Costa Rica: Tipografía nacional, 1892. 4to, pp. vii, [1], 110, [2], [4]; original green cloth-backed marbled boards, gilt-lettered direct on spine. "An Ayer Linguistic duplicate, with a Newberry-Ayer bookplate and a Newberry release stamp on the verso of the title page. Presentation copy from the author, inscribed in Madrid in the year of publication at the top of the dedication page. List of 440 Spanish words provided with their equivalents in 21 dialects of Central America [from various sources] in compliance with a request of Catherine II of Russia" (bookseller's description: Rob Rulon-Miller). Spanish-Quiché [K'iche']-Cacchí [Kaqchikel]-Poconchí [Poqomchí], pp. 3-12; Spanish-Kiché (K'iche')-Cacchiquel [Kaqchikel]-Tzutuhil [Tz'utujil], pp. 15-24; Spanish-Pocomán [Poqomam], pp. 25-30; Spanish-Pupuluca [Popoloca], pp. 31-36; Spanish-Cakchiquel [Kaqchikel], pp. 37-42; Spanish-Chol, pp. 43-48; Spanish-Zotzil [Tzotzil], pp. 49-55; Spanish-Tzendal [Tzeltal], pp. 57-62; Spanish-Chanabal [Tojolabal] pp. 63-68; Spanish-Zoque, pp. 69-74; Spanish-Subinha, pp. 75-80; Spanish-Chapaneca [Chiapanec], pp. 81-86; Spanish-Mam, pp. 87-92; Spanish-Cabecara [Cabécar]-Viceyta [Bribri?]-Lean y Mulia [dialect of Tol], pp. 93-103; Spanish-Terrava [Teribe], pp. 105-110.

[META'] Meta' is a Southern Bantoid language of Cameroon. The Moghamo variety is perhaps divergent enough to be considered a separate language. Ngamambo is 88% similar lexically to Meta', and often is considered separate (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mgo. Alternate Names: Bameta, Batibo, Besi, Chubo, Menemo-Mogamo, Metta, Mitaa, Moghamo-Menemo, Muta, Uta', Widikum-Tadkon.

2013: [IUW] Moghamo-English lexicon, compiled by Mathaus N. Mbah. First edition. Bamenda, Republic of Cameroon; Moghamo Language Academy, 2013. 169 pages; illustrations; 20 cm. Original blue and white wrappers, lettered in white and black, with a color photograph of a native worker climbing a tree on the front cover. Language monographs. Local series; 5. Includes bibliographical references (page 37). Moghamo [Meta']-English, pp. [39]-116, English-Moghamo [Meta'] index, pp. [127]-169. First dictionary of the language.

"This provisional Mogham-English and English-Moghamo lexicon has been compiled primarily for the speakers of Moghamo language, though it will also be of great interest to non-speakers willing to study or learn the language. Hopefully this lexicon will stimulate interest in the use of Moghamo language.... It will also serve as a repository of cultural terms and information, which may otherwise be lost as the language evolves and develops over time. Finally, this lexicon may be used as reference material in standardizing the spelling of Moghamo words and terminology..... This lexicon comprises over 2300 entries and is an introduction to the Moghamo words and phrases" (General Introduction).

[MEWAHANG, WESTERN] Mewahang (Meohang), or Newahang, is a Kiranti language spoken in Nepal. The eastern and western dialects are structurally distinct. Western Mewahang is spoken in the upper Arun valley west of the Arun River in Sankhuwasabha District, Kosi Zone, in the villages of Bala, Yamdang, Tamku, and Sisuwa (Ethnologue). The Bala dialect is spoken in Bala village, Sankhuwasabha VDC. The Bumdemba dialect is spoken in Sishuwakhola VDC (Wiki).

Ethnologue: raf. Alternate Names: Mewahang, Newahang, Newahang Jimi, Newang, Newange Rai, Western Meohang.

2002?: [IUW] Ancestral voices : oral ritual texts and their social contexts among the Mewahang Rai of East Nepal / Martin Gaenzle. Münster : Lit ; Piscataway, NJ : Distributed in North America by Transaction Publishers, [2002?]. xvii, 338 p., [7] p. of plates : ill ; 21 cm. Original white and red wrappers, lettered in black and white, with a photo of a tribal ritual on front cover. Performanzen ; Bd. 4. Glossary: Western Mewahang-English, pp. [306]-311 (ceremonial/ritual terms). Includes bibliographical references and index. Preliminary matter indicates material comes the Sankhuwa Valley, in particular the people of Bala, the area in which Western Mewahang is spoken according to Ethnologue. This brief glossary appears to be the first published bilingual vocabulary of the language.

"As there has been no prior linguistic research on the Mewahang language and no attempts to write it in Roman script, the system of representation which I use in this study requires detailed explanation [which follows]" (Notes on Transcription and Transliteration).

[MEYAH] Meax (Meyah) is a Papuan language on the north coast of Papua, Indonesia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mej. Alternate Names: Arfak, Mansibaber, Meah, Meax, Mejach, Mejah, Meyach.

1779: see under MAGUINANOAN. First vocabulary of this language.

1923: [LILLY] "Wörterverzeichnis der Sprache des Stammes Mansibabēr (Von holländisch Nord Neu-Guinea)," by P. Wirz, in: Tijdschrift voor Indische Taal-, Land- en Volkenkunde, Vol. LXII, No. 1, Jan-March 1923, pp. [189]-208. Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in black.

[MIAMI] Miami-Illinois (Myaamia [mja:mia]) is a Native American Algonquian language formerly spoken in the United States, primarily in Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, western Ohio and adjacent areas along the Mississippi River by both the Miami as well as the tribes of the Illinois Confederacy, including the Kaskaskia, Peoria, Tamaroa, Cahokia, and Mitchigamea. Since the 1990s the Miami Tribe of Oklahoma has worked to revive it in a joint project with Miami University in Oxford, Ohio. The language was documented in written materials for over 200 years. Jacques Gravier, a Jesuit missionary who lived among the Kaskaskia tribe in the early 18th century, compiled an extensive and detailed Kaskaskia–French dictionary. Based on an analysis of its handwriting, it appears to have been transcribed by his assistant, Jacques Largillier. Gravier's dictionary contained nearly 600 pages and 20,000 entries. It is the "most extensive of several manuscripts" which French missionaries made of the Illinois languages. The original document is held by Trinity College in Hartford, Connecticut. Because of the decline among the number of Miami-Illinois speakers, the language was not studied as extensively as some Native American families. It was not until 2002 that the manuscript was edited and published, by Carl Masthay (see below) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mia. Alternate Names: Illinois, Miami-Illinois, Miami-Myaamia, Wea.

1803: [LILLY] Tableau du climat et du sol des États-Unis d'Amérique. Suivi d'éclaircissements sur la Floride, sur la colonie française au Scioto, sur quelques colonies canadiennes, et sur les sauvages. Enrichi de quatre planches gravées, dont deux cartes géographiques et une coupe figurée de la chute de Niagara. Par C.-F. Volney ... Paris, Courcier [etc.] 1803. 2 v.; 2 fold. pl., 2 fold. maps.; 20 cm. In the original marbled paper, with brief title in ink on each spine. Paged continuously: xvi, 524 p., 8 p., 2 p. (index and errata), 16 p. (ads). Separate half-title and title page for each volume.

Appendice: Lettre sur les vents de la Suède et de la Norvège. Sur la Floride et sur le livre de Bernard Romans, intitulé A concise natural and moral history of east and ouest Florida.--Sur L'histoire de Newhampchire, par Jérémie Belknapp, et sur L'histoire de Vermont, par Samuel Ouilliams.--Sur Gallipolis, ou la colonie des Français au Scioto, en 1789.--Sur les diverses colonies franco-canadiennes.--Observations générales sur les Indiens ou sauvages de l'Amérique-Nord.--Vocabulaire de la langue des Miâmis. The French-Miami vocabulary, pp. [1]-8, is the final item in volume 2, before the index, errata, and ads. Earliest printed vocabulary of Miami.

[1895][2005]: [IUW] Elements of a Miami-Illinois grammar, by John Gilmary Shea, ed. Bristol, Pa.; Evolution Publishing, 2005. 45 S. American language reprints; 34 Orig.-Ausg. u.d.T.: Illinois and Miami vocabulary and Lord's prayer. Reprint [der Ausg.] New York, Shea, 1891.

1938-1940: [LILLYbm] Shawnee Stems and the Jacob P. Dunn Miami Dictionary, by C[harles] F[rederick] Voegelin [1906- ]. Parts I-V. Indianapolis: Indiana Historical Society, 1938-1940. Original tan wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Second copy: IUW.

Part I. Stems in p-. Prehistory Research Series, Vol. I, No. 1, January 1938. Pp. [4] 63-108 [2].

"Some time ago my friends and colleagues of the Indiana Historical Society brought to my attention a prized possession, Jacob P. Dunn's Miami manuscript dictionary.... The manuscript dictionary is given in the order English-Miami. By reversing this to Miami-English, I am able to bring together stems which are scattered in the original order, and to better illustrate the semantic range of certain stems. This is practically the only editorial liberty I have taken with Mr. Dunn's work.... I do not attempt an editorial analysis of Miami compounds. Instead, I make an analysis of Shawnee compounds whenever I have enough contrastive material from texts and field notes. My intention is not to add a Shawnee dictionary to Mr. Dunn's Miami dictionary--I do not, for example, list Shawnee stems which do not enter into combination with other stems in my examples... The interest of these Studies, of which the present paper forms the first part, is primarily semantic" (Preface).

Part II. Stems in t- and ...-. Prehistory Research Series, Vol. I, No. 3, June 1938. Pp. [6] 135-167 168.

Part III. Stems in k- and š- and 2- with appendix, non-initial elements. Prehistory Research Series, Vol. I, No. 8, October 1939. Pp. [4] 289-341 342 [2].

Part IV. Stems in l-, m-, and n-. With appendix. Gestalt Technique of Stem Composition in Shawnee, by B. L. Worf. Prehistory Research Series, Vol. I, No. 9, April 1940. Pp. [6] 345-406 [2].

Part V. Stems in w- and h- vowel. With index, Parts I-V. Prehistory Research Series, Vol. I, No. 10, August 1940. Pp. [4] 409-478 [2].

2002a: [IUW] Handy's vocabulary of Miami, by Charles N. Handy. Bristol, Pa.; Evolution Pub., c2002. 37 p.; 18 cm. American language reprints; v. 24 Reprinted from: Information respecting the history, condition, and prospects of the Indian tribes of the United States, by Henry Rowe Schoolcraft, published 1852-1857. Includes bibliographical references (p. 7-8).

2002b: [LILLYbm] Kaskaskia Illinois-to-French dictionary, by Carl Masthay. 757 p.: ill.; 29 cm. St. Louis, MO: C. Masthay, [2002]; ISBN: 0971911304. Original green paper over boards, lettered in reddish-brown, with color illustration of lake and woods on front cover. First edition. This copy signed by the author.

2005: [IUW] Myaamia neehi peewaalia kaloosioni mahsinaakani; a Miami-Peoria dictionary, by Daryl Baldwin & David J. Costa. Oxford, Ohio; Myaamia Project at Miami University, c2005. 188 p.; ill.; 22 cm. Original brown wrappers, lettered in white and pale yellow, with a photo of sun over a field on front cover. Miami-Peoria to English, pp. [3]-136, illustrated, and English to Miami-Peoria, pp. 139-188.

"The result of over fifteen years of research, [this] is the first modern dictionary of the Miami-Peoria language. It is drawn from written records spanning three centuries.... The main body of the dictionary contains hundreds of example sentences... It also contains illustrations, dialect information, place names, as well as an extensive guide to the pronunciation and spelling of the Miami-Peoria language" (from the rear wrapper).

[MIAO, EASTERN QIANDONG] The Hmu language (hveb Hmub), also known as Qiandong Miao (黔东南 Eastern Guizhou Miao), Central Miao, East Hmongic, or (somewhat ambiguously) Black Miao, is a dialect cluster of Hmongic languages of China. The best studied dialect is that of Yǎnghāo (养蒿) village, Taijiang County, Guizhou Province, China. Qanu 喀努, a Hmu variety, had 11,450 speakers as of 2000, and is spoken just south of Kaili City, Guizhou. The Qanu are ethnoculturally distinct from the other Hmu.

Ethnologue: hmq. Alternate Names: Black Miao, Central Miao, Chientung Miao, Eastern East-Guizhou Miao, Eastern Hmu, Hei Miao, Hmu.

1931: [IUW] Dictionnaire 'ka nao-français et fra-nçais-'ka nao, par le Père Joseph Esquirol, M.A. De la Société des Missions Étrangères de Paris, Lang long (Chine). Hong Kong, Imprimerie de la Société des missions étrangères, 1931. xliii, 519 p. 20.8 cm. Library binding. "Essai de Dictionnaire 'Ka nao-Français," pp. [1]-262, and "Dictionnaire Français-'Ka nao," pp. [263]-498.

[MIDOB] Midob (also spelt Meidob) is the language of the Midob people in North Darfur. It is genetically part of the Nubian language family which is part of the Nilo-Saharan language phylum. Apart from their homeland, Midob speakers also live in the Khartoum area and Jezirat Aba. The Midob people call their language tid-n-áal, literally "mouth of the Midob", and themselves tiddi (singular), tid (plural). There are an estimated 50,000 Midob speakers in two main dialects, Urrti and Kaageddi. Recent research on Midob has been done by Thelwall (1983) and Werner (1993) (see below). Both studies are concerned with the Urrti dialect (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mei. Alternate Names: Meidob, Meidob Nubian, Midobi, Tid, Tidda, Tid-N-Aal.

1993: [LILLYbm] Tidn-Áal: A Study of Midob (Darfur-Nubian), by Roland Werner. Berlin: Dietrich Reimer Verlag, 1993. Original green cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. 1-4 5-169 170-172 (2 pp. adverts.) First edition. Sprache und Oralität in Afrika. Frankfurter Studien zur Afrikanistik, Vol. 17. Midob-English, pp. 75-143, and English-Midob, pp. 144-166, double columns, with bibliography pp. 167-169 and a history of research on the language, pp. 16-17. Second copy: IUW.

"Midob' is the name given to a language spoken in Northern Dafur, Sudan, and the speakers of it. The Midob themselves call their language tidn áal 'language of the Tid.' ... The Midob are a group of speakers of a Nubian language in a non-Nubian environment. Their natural habitat, the Midob hills, rising out of a monotonous landscape, lie about five hundred miles west of the confluence of the Blue and White Nile... Generally speaking, we must assume that the Midob have lived in their present habitat for a long time at least for 2000 years... We can tentatively fix the Midob population around 50,000 speakers... The Midob are pastoralists. In addition to their goats and sheep they breed camels [which they sell] in markets both in the Sudan, in Libya and Egypt.... Contacts with neighbouring tribes have historically not always been friendly. Mutual raiding seems to have been common until recently... Midob is a Nubian language... The internal cohesion within the Nubian language group is comparatively high. Shared vocabulary ranges between 40 and 70 percent... [The present work includes] a vocabulary approaching 2000 lexemes" (Description).

[MIGAAMA] Migaama (also known as Migama, Jongor, Djonkor, Dionkor, Dyongor, Djonkor About Telfane) is an Afro-Asiatic language spoken in central Chad (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mmy. Alternate Names: Dionkor, Djonkor, Djonkor Abou, Dyongor, Jongor, Jonkor, Migama, Telfane.

1992: [LILLYbm] Lexique migama: migama-français et français-migama (Guera, Tchad) avec une introduction grammaticale, by Hermann Jungraithmayr & Abakar Adams. Berlin: Dietrich Reimer, 1992. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. 1-7 8-167 168. First edition. Series: Sprache und Oralität in Afrika, vol. 7. Migaama-French, pp. 63-137, and French-Migaama index, pp. 141-167. First dictionary of Migaama. Second copy: IUW.

"Our work with the Migaama language began in 1972. Hermann Jungraithmayr was engaged in a research stay at Fort Lamy (now N'Djamena), capital of Chad. His interest in the language was first awakened by his own cook...who spoke Migaama.... The present lexicon includes all the words we have collected since 1972 from the various sources [mentioned above]. We would like as well to recall the initial work of Father Mathieu, whose lexicon was never published. Having profited from his collection of words, we wish to render homage here to this pioneer of research in the Migaama language.... The present lexicon is a first stage. It is published in order to stimulate others, particularly the Migaama themselves, to continue to enrich it. We hope that one day this modest lexicon will be transformed into a true dictionary" (Preface, tr: BM).

[MIJI] Miji (autonym: Dmay), also Dhammai or Sajolang, is a cluster of possibly Sino-Tibetan languages in Arunachal Pradesh, northeastern India. "Dialects" include at least two distinct languages, which are not particularly close, with only half of the vocabulary in common between the languages of East Kameng District and West Kameng District. Long assumed to be Sino-Tibetan languages, they may actually be a small independent language family (Wiki).

Ethnologue: sjl. Alternate Names: Dammai, Dhammai, Namrei, Sajalong, Sajolang.

ca. 1970: [LILLY] Miji language guide, by Ivan Martin Simon [ 1921- ]. Shillong: Philological Section, Directorate of Research, Govt. of Arunachal Pradesh, n.d. xi, 70 p.; 23 cm. Original brown wrappers, lettered in black. English-Miji (Roman and Devanagari) vocabulary, pp. 15-[69].

[MIJU-MISHMI] Kaman (Geman, Geman Deng), or Miju (Miju Mishmi, Midzu), is a small language of India and slightly into China. Long assumed to be a Sino-Tibetan language, it may actually be a language isolate (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mxj. Alternate Names: Eastern Mishmi, Geman Dend, Geman Deng, Kaman, Miji, Miju, Mishmi.

1977: [LILLY] A phrase book in Miju, by Kamalesh Das Gupta [1923- ]. Shillong: Director of Information and Public Relations, Arunachal Pradesh, 1977. 103 p.; 24 cm. Original mustard yellow and white wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. English-Miju (Roman and Devanagari) vocabulary, pp. 41-77 and Miju-English glossary, pp. 93-103. A Dictionary of sentences "Mishmi": (Miju) was published in Shillong in 1952.

“This book deals with the language spoken within the Hawai circle and areas near and about. Dialects of different areas have been incorporated.”

1978: [LILLY] Miju dictionary, by A. Boro. Shillong: Research Dept., Arunachal Pradesh Administration, 1978. 210 p.; 23 cm. Original pink wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. Miju-English, pp. 17-102, and English-Miju, pp. 102-210.

[MI'KMAQ] The Mi'kmaq language (spelled and pronounced Micmac historically and now often Migmaw or Mikmaw in English, and Míkmaq, Míkmaq or Migmao in Mi'kmaq) is an Eastern Algonquian language spoken by nearly 11,000 Mi'kmaq in Canada and the United States out of a total ethnic Mi'kmaq population of roughly 20,000. The word Mi'kmaq is a plural word meaning 'my friends' (singular Mík); the adjectival form is Míkmaq. The language's native name is Lnuismk, Míkmaqsimk or Míkmai (in some dialects) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mic. Alternate Names: Lnuismk, Mi'gmaq, Mi'gaw, Micmac, Miigmaq, Restigouche. Autonym: Míkmaqsimk.

1800: [LILLY] “Specimen of the Mountaineer, or Sheshatapooshshoish, Skoffie, and Micmac Languages,” pp. 16-33, in: Collections of the Massachusetts Historical Society for the year MDCCXCIX. Boston: Printed by Samuel Hall, 1800. xxii, 288 p.; 22 cm. Series: Collections of the Massachusetts Historical Society, 6. Original blue paper over boards, with printed label on spine. First edition. English-Micmac-Mountaineer-Skoffie, pp. 18-33.

1875: [LILLY] A first reading book in the Micmac language: comprising the Micmac numerals, and the names of the different kinds of beasts, birds, fishes, trees, &c. of the maritime provinces of Canada. Also, some of the Indian names of places, and many familiar words and phrases, translated literally into English, by Silas Tertius Rand (1810-1889). Halifax: Nova Scotia Printing Company, 1875. iv p., 5-108 p. 17 cm. Notes: With this is bound: Bible. N.T. Matthew. Micmac. Pela kesagunoodumkawa ... Chebooktook, 1871. 126 pp. Issued thus. Was probably also issued separately. Includes numerous Micmac-English vocabularies thematically arranged. Lilly copy in library binding, with Newberry Library bookplate.

1888: [LILLYbm] Dictionary of the language of the Micmac Indians who reside in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Cape Breton and Newfoundland, by Rev. Silas Tertius Rand. Halifax: Nova Scotia Printing Co., 1888. Original stiff tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. pp. viii, 286. First edition. Zaubmüller, col. 271; Pilling, Algonquin, p. 423-24. Second copy: IUW.

"This dictionary is... complete by itself, and will give a good idea of the language, and may lead, it is devoutly hoped, to the publication of the larger and more important version, viz. the Micmac-English, which is ready for the press, or nearly so..." "Rand died the following year and no more was published until 1902 when it was issued under the direction of the Canadian government" [bookseller's description: Rulon-Miller].. Text also reprinted in facsimile by Laurier Books in Ottawa in 1994. First dictionary of the language.

1984: [IUW] Micmac lexicon, by Albert D. DeBlois & Alphonse Metallic. Ottawa: National Museums of Canada, 1984. xvii, 392 p.; 29 cm. Library binding. Mercury series, 0316-1854 = Collection Mercure, 0316-1854. Paper / Canadian Ethnology Service, 0316-1862 no. 91 = Dossier / Service canadien d'ethnologie no. 91. Micmac-English, pp.2-160, and English-Micmac, pp.162-373.

"The Micmac Lexicon is derived from texts and anecdotes collected over the past twenty-five years from speakers of Micmac in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Quebec. The Micmac-English section consists of nearly 5500 Micmac entries with their English equivalents. The exhaustive English key-word index should render the Lexicon more accessible to both native speakers and non-speakers alike" (Abstract).

1996: [LILLYbm] Micmac Dictionary, by Albert D. DeBlois. Hull, Quebec: Canadian Museum of Civilization, 1996. Original dark blue wrappers, lettered in white, with a color illustration on front cover. Pp. i-iv v-xix xx-xxii, 1 2-97 98 [2]. First edition. Mercury Series, Canadian Ethnology Service, Paper 131. Micmac-English, pp. [1]-100, and English-Micmac, pp. 1-[98]. Second copy: IUW.

"The Micmac Dictionary is derived from texts and anecdotes collected over the past thirty-five years from speakers of Micmac in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Quebec. The Micmac-English section consists of some 7,850 Micmac entries with their English equivalents. The comprehensive English-Micmac keyword index should render the dictionary more accessible to native speakers of Micmac as well as to students of the language" (Abstract). "The Micmac Dictionary is a corrected, revised and expanded version of the Micmac Lexicon" (Introduction).

[MINANGKABAU] Minangkabau (autonym: Baso Minang(kabau); Indonesian: Bahasa Minangkabau) is an Austronesian language spoken by the Minangkabau of West Sumatra, the western part of Riau, South Aceh Regency, the northern part of Bengkulu and Jambi, also in several cities throughout Indonesia by migrated Minangkabau. The language is also a lingua franca along the western coastal region of the province of North Sumatra, and is even used in parts of Aceh, where the language is called Aneuk Jamee. It is also spoken in some parts of Malaysia, especially Negeri Sembilan. Due to great grammatical similarities between the Minangkabau language and Malay, there is some controversy regarding the relationship between the two. Some see Minangkabau as a dialect of Malay, while others think of Minangkabau as a proper (Malay) language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: min. Alternate Names: Minang, Padang.

1891: [LILLYbm] Minangkabausch-Maleisch-Nederlandsch woordenboek, by J[ohannes] L[udovicus] van der Toorn. 's Gravenhage: Martinus Nijhoff, 1891. Original gray paper, lettered and decorated in black, over quarter-cloth spine and boards. Pp. I-V VI-XI XII, 1 2-392. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 271. Menangkabo-Malay-Dutch dictionary, pp. [1]-389. First dictionary of the language.

"Menangkabos, the most civilized of all the true Malays of Sumatra, [inhabit] the mountains above Padang. Their district is regarded as the cradle of the Malay race, and thence began, about 1160, those migrations which ended in the true Malays becoming the dominant race throughout the peninsula and the Malay Archipelago. The Menangkabos are said to be the original conquerors of the island.... Early in the nineteenth century a religious sect was founded among the Menangkabos, known as 'Padris' from its zealous proselytism.... The tendency was towards asceticism, the chief tenet of which being the prohibition of opium, the use of which was made a capital offense. The sect brought a the Dutch to protect them, and this led to the Netherlands government acquiring the Menangkabo territory" (Encyclopedia Britannica, 13th ed.).

[MINANIBAI] Foia Foia (Foyafoya), or Minanibai, is a Papuan language of Papua New Guinea, spoken in an area near Omati River mouth in Ikobi Kairi and Goaribari Census districts (Gulf Province) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mcv. Alternate Names: Eme-Eme, Hei, Pepeha.

1973: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MINGRELIAN] Mingrelian or Megrelian (მარგალური ნინა margaluri nina) is a Kartvelian language spoken in Western Georgia (regions of Samegrelo and Abkhazia), primarily by Mingrelians. The language was also called Iverian (Georgian iveriuli ena) in the early 20th century. Because for more than a thousand years Mingrelian has held only a regional status within Georgia, the number of its speakers has been decreasing in favor of the national language, with UNESCO designating it as a "definitely endangered language" (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xmf. Alternate Names: Margali, Margaluri, Megrel, Megrelian, Megruli.

1914: [IUW] Grammatika mingrel'skago (iverskago) iazyka : s khrestomatīeiu i slovarem / I. Kipshidze. S.-Peterburg : Tip. Imp. Akademii Nauk, 1914. 424 p. ; 26 cm. Library binding. Materīaly po iāfeticheskomu iāzykoznanīū ; 7. Includes Mingrelian-Russian dictionary, pp. [191]-424. Includes bibliographical references.

2000: [IUW] Megruli ena axali sitqvebis aspek'tsi / Šalva Kvarac'xelia ; redak'tori, N. Lemonjava ; rec'enzenti, G. T'odua. T'bilisi : Kompiuteruli uzrunvelqop'a Zviad Mosiašvilisa, 2000. 128 p. : port. ; 20 cm. Library binding, incorporating original front and rear pale yellow wrappers, lettered in black. Georgian and Mingrelian dictionary, pp. 7-126.

[MINJUNGBAL] Wikipedia lists Minjungbal as a dialect of Bundjalung, an aboriginal language of Australia. Ethnologue considers Minjungbal a separate language.

Ethnologue: xjb. Alternate Names: Cood-jingburra, Cudgingberry, Gando Minjang, Gan-dowal, Gendo, Minjangbal, Minyowa, Minyung, Ngandowul.

1892: see under AWABAKAL.

[MIRANDESE] The Mirandese language (autonym: mirandés or lhéngua mirandesa; Portuguese: mirandês or língua mirandesa) is an Astur-Leonese language that is sparsely spoken in a small area of northeastern Portugal in the municipalities of Miranda do Douro, Mogadouro and Vimioso. The Assembly of the Republic granted it official recognition alongside Portuguese for local matters on 17 September 1998 with the law 7/99 of 29 January 1999. Mirandese has a distinct phonology, morphology and syntax. It has its roots in the local Vulgar Latin spoken in the northern Iberian Peninsula (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mwl. Alternate Names: Mirandês.

1900-1901: [IUW] Estudos de philologia mirandesa, por J. Leite de Vasconcellos ... Lisboa, Imprensa nacional, 1900-1901. 2 v. in 1 illus., 2 fold. maps, tables. Vol. 1: xix, 488 p.; Vol. 2: 344p. 24 cm. Contemporary red quarter-leather and marbled paper over boards, preserving original light blue wrappers, lettered and illustrated in black. Quarto centenario do descobrimento da India. Contribuições da Sociedade de Geografia de Lisboa. "3 exemplares em papel de linho branco nacional, 1000 em papel de algodão de la. qualidade." Vol. 2: Etymological dictionary, Mirandese-Portuguese, pp. [147]-225. "Corrigenda et addenda": v. 1, p. [487]-488.

[MISHIP] Miship is an Afro-Asiatic language spoken in Plateau State, Nigeria. Doka is a dialect (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mjs. Alternate Names: Chip, Cip, Ship.

2010: [IUW] A grammar of the Miship language, by Mohammed Aminu Mu'azu & Katwal Pemak Isah. München: Lincom Europa, 2010. xii, 201 p.: ill. (some col.), maps; 21 cm. Original orange, yellow and red wrappers, lettered in black and yellow, with a color photograph of natives on the front cover. Chapter 5: "Miship Vocabulary," Miship-English, pp. 138-191.

"This project is part of [an] effort at documenting African languages considered to be endangered. We have observed that almost if not all minority languages are facing the threat of being assimilated by English, Arabic and French as well as major languages like Hausa, Igbo and Yoruba in Nigeria. By documenting this language, we feel that our children and future generations will have the privilege of seeing its written form even if the spoken form eventually becomes extinct" (Preface).

[MISIMA-PANEATI] Misima-Panaeati, also called Misiman, is an indigenous Austronesian language spoken on the islands of Misima, Panaieti, and the islands of the eastern half of the Calvados Chain of Papua New Guinea (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mpx. Alternate Names: Misiman, Misima-Panaeati, Panaeati, Panaieti, Panayeti, Paneate, Paneyate.

1998: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MISING] Mishing, also known as Plains Miri and Takam, is a Tani language spoken by the Mishing people. There are over 500,000 speakers, who inhabit mostly the Lakhimpur, Sonitpur, Dhemaji, Dibrugarh, Sibsagar, Jorhat, Golaghat, Tinsukia districts of Assam. The primary literary body of Mishing is known as 'Mishing Agom Ke'bang' (Wiki).

Ethnologue (Mising): mrg. Alternate Names: Miri, Mishing, Takam.

1908: see under ADI.

[MISKITO] Miskito (Mískitu in the Miskito language) is a Misumalpan language spoken by the Miskito people in northeastern Nicaragua, especially in the North Caribbean Coast Autonomous Region, and in eastern Honduras. With 150,000 speakers, Miskito is the most widely spoken of a family of languages of Nicaragua and Honduras that has come to be known as Misumalpan. This name is formed from parts of the names of the family's subgroups: Miskito, Sumo, Matagalpan. Although some aspects of the internal family tree with family are uncertain, it is clear Miskito is apart from Sumo and Matagalpan, which seem to share a common lower node, and that in the past Miskito was heavily influenced by other Misumalpan languages. Sumo is thought to have been dominant in the area before the period of Miskito ascendancy. Today the relationship has been reversed: many former Sumo speakers have shifted to Miskito, which has in turn heavily influenced the Sumo dialects. Several of these (Tawahka, Panamahka and Tuahka) constitute the Mayangna sub-branch of Sumo, while the Ulwa language is in another sub-branch. The Matagalpan branch of Misumalpan contains two languages that are now extinct: Matagalpa and Cacaopera. The latter was formerly spoken in parts of eastern El Salvador. In addition to many elements borrowed from other Misumalpan languages, Miskito has a large number of loanwords from English via creole. Even though Spanish is the official language of Nicaragua and Honduras, its influence on Miskito is much more recent and hence more superficial (Wiki).

Ethnologue: miq. Alternate Names: Marquito, Mískitu, Miskuto, Mísquito, Mosquito.

1870: [LILLYbm] "The Indians of the Mosquito Territory," by John Collins, in: The Journal of the Anthropological Society, (1870), pp. 148-156. Extract in modern paper wrappers with modern printed label. Woolwa [Ulwa]-English vocabulary (two-column), pp. 155-156, and Miskito-English, p. 156.

"I have appended to this paper two vocabularies,--one of the Mosquito and one of the Woolwa tongue; some of the words in the former have, I believe, been published before; but, I think, I am correct in stating that the present one is the only Woolwa vocabulary yet known in Europe" (p. 154).

1891: [IUW] Langue mosquito; grammaire, vocabulaire, texts, by Lucien Adam [1833-1918]. Paris: J. Maisonneuve, 1891. 2 p. ., 134 p. 25 cm. Original gray wrappers, lettered in red and back, with a drawing of the Tower of Babel on the front cover. Spine covered with later brown paper, lettered in ink by Lanyon-Orgill. Zaunmüller 272. Series: Bibliothèque linguistique américaine, t. XIV. Miskito-French-German vocabulary, pp. 61-99. This copy from the library of Peter Antony Lanyon-Orgill, noted linguist, with his bookplate. Second copy: IUW, preserving original wrappers.

1894a: [LILLY] Dictionary of the English and Miskito languages, by Hermann Ziock. Herrnhut, Saxony: Printed by G. Winter, 1894. 3 p. l., iii-vi, 334, [4] p. 18 cm. Original red cloth, lettered and decorated in black. Zaunmüller 271. pt. 1. Miskito-English.--pt. 2. English-Miskito. This copy with additional notes and some added vocabulary in pencil. Withdrawn from the American Museum of Natural History with their bookplate.

1894b: [LILLYbm] Grammar of the Miskito language with exercises and Vocabulary, compiled by H[ermann] Berckenhagen. Bluefields, Mosquito Coast: G. Winter, 1894. Original red cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. 1-5 6-114 115-116. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Mosquito-English vocabulary "containing over 800 words and expressions which are most in use," pp. 83-112. This copy with the ownership signature of William F. Bade dated 1900 on the flyleaf. Bade (1871-1936) was a member of the faculty of the Pacific Theological Seminary in Berkeley and the author of many works on the Bible, middle-eastern archeology, and natural history; he was also the biographer of John Muir. Berckenhagen was a Moravian missionary, who probably knew Bade rather well. The first English dictionary of Mosquito was that of Ziock, also published in 1894, in Herrnhut (see above). A French grammar by Adam with vocabulary appeared in 1891 (see above). Berckenhagen also published a pocket dictionary in 1906 with Mosquito-English-Spanish. The major Spanish-Mosquito dictionary is that of Heath in 1953 (see below). These latter two are not in Zaunmüller.

"The name of the language... is not, as generally pronounced, Moskito but Miskito. The Indians call thus both themselves and their language. The Miskito language is not a barbarous or inarticulate one; it is rather well built and rich in vowels. The care extended to euphony, is a feature, to be observed throughout" (Preface, dated July 15, 1892, at Bluefields).

1929: [LILLYbm] "Notes on the Miskito and Suma Languages of Eastern Nicaragua and Honduras," by Eduard Conzemius, in: International Journal of American Linguistics, New York, Vol. 5, No. 1 (March 1929), pp. 57-115. Includes comparative vocabulary of 67 words in English and Miskito dialects (Coast (Kabo bila), Sandy Bay (Baldam bila), Tawira bila, Lower Rio Coco, Upper Rio Coco, Honduras (Mam)), pp. 60-65, and a comparative vocabulary of 104 words in English, Miskito, and Sumo dialects (Bawithka, Twahka, Panamaka, Ulwa, Kukra), pp. 66-73.

"The vast region on the Atlantic side of Nicaragua and Honduras, known by the name of Mosquito Coast, is inhabited by four different tribes of Indians, which are, in the order of their importance: the Miskito, the Sumu, the Paya, and the Rama.... The Miskito are the most numerous of the tribes of the Mosquito Coast, their number being roughly estimated at 15,000.... Practically all of our knowledge of the Mosquito language we owe to the Moravian missionaries (Unitas Fratrum) who have been established on the Mosquito Coast since the middle of the 19th century. (fn: The most important of their works are the following: H. Ziock: Dictionary of the English and Miskito Languages, Herrnhut, 1894 (see above)... A. H. C. Berckenhagen: Grammar of the Miskito Language with Exercises and Vocabulary, Bluefields, 1894 (see above); Miskito-English-Spanish Dictionary, 1905; Miskito-English-Spanish Phrase Book, 1905.... [and] G. R. Heath Notes on Miskito Grammar and on other Indian Languages of Eastern Nicaragua, American Anthropologist.... [and] Grammar of the Miskito Language, Herrnhut, 1927); ...The Sumu are scattered over a wider area than the Miskito.... They inhabit chiefly the headwaters of the main streams and the larger affluents of [the Punta Gorda River in southern Nicaragua] and are estimated at about 3000 to 3500 in number" (pp. 57-58).

1944: [LILLYbm] A Grammar of the Miskito language, by Berard Casper & Salvator Schlaefter. Marathon, Wis.: Divina Pastora Society, 1944. 38 p.; 21 cm. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Miskito-English vocabulary, pp. 36-38. With tipped-in insert on p. 9 with manuscript note (text relocated from p. 10).

1953: [LILLYbm] Diccionario miskito-español, español-miskito, by C. R. Heath & W. G. Marx. Tegucigalpa, Honduras: Calderon, 1953. Original orange wrappers, lettered and decorated in black (top inch of spine wrapper perished).. Pp. I-III IV-VI VII-VIII, 1 2-236 237-240. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Miskito-Spanish, pp. [1]-140, and Spanish-Miskito, pp. [147]-236. First true dictionary of Miskito.

"Many have spoken of the necessity of incorporating into the rest of the country the indigenous Miskitos, commonly referred to as 'Zambos'. It has been recognized that the root of the problem lies in the natives inability to speak Spanish. In our day a true interest in learning Spanish has arisen among these people, a desire which was totally lacking in previous eras.... But no war may be won without proper arms, and no language may be learned without proper tools. It is thanks to patriots that this work now sees the light of day. With it professors, businessmen, agricultural technicians, missionaries and all other warriors for peace and progress who deal with the Miskito hold in their hands what they have needed since the time of the earliest conquistadors" (Prologue, tr: BM).

Second edition 1961: [LILLY] Diccionario miskito-español, español-miskito, by C. R. Heath & W. G. Marx. Tegucigalpa, Honduras: Calderon, 1961. Original green wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. I-III IV V VI, 1 2-140 141-147 148-233 234-235 236 237-240. "Segunda edicion" on front cover. Not in Zaunmüller. Miskito-Spanish, pp. [1]-140, and Spanish-Miskito, pp. [147]-233. This copy with the ownership stamps of the noted linguist Johannes Rahder, with his note to the first edition on the title page.

1986: [LILLYbm] Diccionario elemental Miskito-Español Español-Miskito. [Managua, Nicaragua]: Centro de Investigación y Documentación de la Costa Atlántica, [1986]. Original orange and white wrappers, lettered in black, with a black and white drawing on front cover. 74 pp. First edition. This is a simple, limited dictionary aimed at "students and teachers of bilingual education, technical workers and others who work in areas where Miskito is spoken" (tr: BM).

1995: [IUW] Introducción al estudio de la lengua miskita, by Ethel Martínez Webster. [Managua?]; Fondo Editorial INC/ASDI, [1995]. ix, 171 p.; 21 cm. Library binding incorporating original green and white wrappers, lettered in black and white. "Managua, diciembre, 1995"--T.p. verso. Includes bibliographical references (p. 169-170). "Bibliografía para el estudiante": p. 171. Miskito-Spanish vocabulary, pp. 155-162. With an extensive general introduction.

[MICHIF] Michif (also Mitchif, Mechif, Michif-Cree, Métif, Métchif, French Cree) is the language of the Métis people of Canada and the United States, who are the descendants of First Nations women (mainly Cree, Nakota and Ojibwe) and fur trade workers of European ancestry (mainly French and Scottish Canadians). Currently, Michif is spoken in scattered Métis communities in the provinces of Saskatchewan and Manitoba in Canada and in North Dakota in the U.S., with about 50 speakers in Alberta, all over age 60. There are some 230 speakers of Michif in the United States (down from 390 at the 1990 census), most of whom live in North Dakota, particularly in the Turtle Mountain Indian Reservation. There are around 300 Michif speakers in the Northwest Territories, northern Canada. Michif emerged in the early 19th century as a mixed language (not to be confused with a creole), and adopted a consistent character between about 1820 and 1840. The Michif language was first brought to scholarly attention in 1976 by John Crawford at the University of North Dakota. The Michif language is unusual (and possibly even unique) among mixed languages, in that rather than forming a simplified grammar, it developed by incorporating complex elements of the chief languages from which it was born. The number of speakers is estimated at fewer than 1,000; it was probably double or triple this number at the close of the 19th century, but never much higher (Wiki).

Ethnologue: crg. Alternate Names: French Cree, Mitchif.

1983: [LILLYbm] The Michif dictionary: Turtle Mountain Chippewa Cree, Patline Laverdure & Ida Rose Allard, ed. by John C. Crawford. Winnipeg, Manitoba: Pemmican Publications, 1983. Original tan wrappers, lettered in two shades of brown.

Pp. i-ii iii-xiv, 15-368. First edition. English-Michif, pp. 15-364. First dictionary of the language. Second copy: IUW.

"The language of this dictionary is not Chippewa, but rather a mixture of French and Cree, howbeit with some Chippewa influence, and is so appropriately labeled 'the Cree language of the Turtle Mountain Reservation'. It is also appropriate that it have another label, 'Michif', because the commination of Cree and French developed under special cultural influences that produced a population neither clearly Indian nor European, to which the label 'Métis' has been applied since early in the history of Canada, and continues to be applied" (Introduction).

[MITUKU] Mituku is a Bantu language of the Democratic Republic of the Congo.

Mokpá dialect is distinct (Wiki).

Ethnologue: zmq. Alternate Names: Kinya-Mituku, Metoko.

1973: [LILLYbm] Esquisse de la langue Mituku, by Leo Stappers. Tervuren, Belgium: Musée Royal de l'Afrique Centrale, 1973. Original cream wrappers, lettered in black. I-VI VII VIII, 1-91 92. First edition. Annales du Musée Royal de l'Afrique Centrale, Tervuren, Belgique, Série in-8°, Sciences Humaines, n° 80. Includes a Mituku-French vocabulary, pp. 69-78, and a French-Mituku vocabulary, pp. 79-91. This is the first published vocabulary of the language. Second copy: IUW.

"Mituku ...is spoken in the Republic of Zaire around Bubundu (formerly Ponthierville), between the Lomami and Lualaba Rivers...The research upon which this small sketch is based took place between mid-January and mid-May of 1968" (tr: BM).

[MIWOK LANGUAGES] The Miwok or Miwokan languages (/ˈmi:wɒk/; Miwok: [míw:i:k]), also known as Moquelumnan, are a group of endangered languages spoken in central California in the Sierra Nevada. There are five somewhat diverse Miwok languages, two of which have distinct regional dialects (Sierra Miwok and Coast Miwok). There are a few dozen speakers of the three Sierra Miwok languages, and in 1994 there were two speakers of Lake Miwok. The best attested language is Southern Sierra Miwok, from which we get the name Yosemite (Wiki).

[MIWOK, BODEGA] Coast Miwok was one of the Miwok languages spoken in California, from San Francisco Bay to Bodega Bay. The Marin and Bodega varieties may have been separate languages. All of the population has shifted to English (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists Bodega as dialect of Coast Miwok, and possibly a separate language.

1970: [IUW] Bodega Miwok dictionary, by Catherine A. Callaghan. Berkeley, University of California Press, 1970. vii, 133 p. map. 26 cm. Library binding incorporating the original front yellow wrapper, lettered in black. University of California publications in linguistics; v. 60. Bodega Miwok-English, pp. 11-102, and English-Bodega Miwok, pp. 105-133. First dictionary of Bodega Miwok.

"The material for this dictionary was gathered during the summer and fall of 1960 and the fall of 1964.... My informant was a lady in her eighties who had used the language very little since childhood. This dictionary probably represents the extent of her vocabulary, though by no means the entire language. Some items have been queried, indicating uncertainty on the part of the informant, and it was sometimes necessary to use older word lists to jog her memory. As a last resort, Lake Miwok items without English translations were quoted for this purpose.... This is the fourth dictionary of a Miwok language to be published" (Introduction).

[MIWOK, CENTRAL SIERRA] Central Sierra Miwok is a Miwok language spoken in California, in the upper Stanislaus and Tuolumne valleys. Today it is spoken by the Chicken Ranch Rancheria of Me-Wuk Indians of California, a federally recognized tribe of Central Sierra Miwoks (Wiki).

Ethnologue: csm.

1907-1930: see Vol. 14 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

1951: [IUW] Language of the Sierra Miwok, by L. S. Freeland. Baltimore, Waverly Press, 1951. 199 p. 26 cm. Indiana University publications in anthropology and linguistics; Memoir 6 Cover title. Suppl. to International journal of American linguistics, v. 17, no. 1, Jan. 1951.

1960: [LILLYBM] Central Sierra Miwok Dictionary with Texts, by L. S. Freeland & Sylvia M. Broadbent. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1960. Original wrappers. 69 pp. First edition. University of California Publications in Linguistics, Vol. 23. Central Sierra Miwok-English and English-Central Sierra Miwok. Second copy: IUW.

"No dictionary of any Miwok language has ever been published. The present work is intended to fill that gap." "My own investigations lead me to believe that the differences between Central, Southern, and Northern [Miwok] are sufficient to merit calling them distinct languages."

[MIWOK, COAST] Coast Miwok was one of the Miwok languages spoken in California, from San Francisco Bay to Bodega Bay. The Marin and Bodega varieties may have been separate languages. All of the population has shifted to English (Wiki).

Ethnologue: csi. Bodega is listed as a dialect of Coast Miwok.

1970: [LILLYbm] Bodega Miwok Dictionary, by Catherine A. Callaghan. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1970. Original yellow wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [2] i-vi vii viii, 1-131 132. First edition. University of California Publications in Linguistics, Vol. 60. This is a presentation copy, inscribed on the fly-leaf: "To Prof. Malkiel | with deepest appreciation | for all you have done | for me. | Catherine". Yakov Malkiel was a noted scholar of linguistics, whose major works include Etymological Dictionaries: a tentative typology (University of Chicago Press, 1976) and Diachronic studies in lexicology, affixation, phonology (J. Benjamins, 1992). Bodega Miwok-English, pp. 11-102, and English-Bodega Miwok, pp. 105-133, double columned.

"Bodega Miwok is a California Penutian language formerly spoken around Bodega Bay. It is usually classified with Marin Miwok, once the language of the Marin Peninsula, as a dialect of Coast Miwok, but it is uncertain whether or not the two are separate languages. Bodega Miwok is closely related to Lake Miwok, spoken south of Clear Lake.... The material for this dictionary was gathered during the summer and fall of 1960 and the fall of 1964.... This is the fourth dictionary of a Miwok language to be published" (Introduction). First dictionary of Bodega Miwok, based on previously-gathered material and a single native informant, "a lady in her eighties who had used the language very little since her childhood."

[MIWOK, LAKE] The Lake Miwok language is a moribund (or possibly extinct) language of Northern California, traditionally spoken in an area adjacent to the Clear Lake. It is one of the languages of the Clear Lake Linguistic Area, along with Patwin, East and Southeastern Pomo, and Wappo (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lmw.

1965: [LILLYbm] Lake Miwok Dictionary, by Catherine A. Callaghan. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1965. Original wrappers. 287 pp. First edition. University of California Publications in Linguistics, Vol. 39. Lake Miwok-English and English-Lake Miwok. Second copy: IUW.

"Lake Miwok is a California Penutian language spoken in a small area south of Clear Lake. It is now remembered by about eight people. ... It is closely related to Coast Miwok... It is more distantly related to the Eastern Miwok languages. These include the Sierra Miwok languages... Plains Miwok... and Saclan, which might have been the language of a group of Indians living west of Mount Diablo."

[MIWOK, NORTHERN SIERRA] Northern Sierra Miwok (also called Sacian) is a Miwok language spoken in California, in the upper Mokelumne and Calaveras valleys (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nsq.

1987: [LILLYbm] Northern Sierra Miwok Dictionary, by Catherine A. Callaghan. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1987. Original orange and white wrappers, lettered in black and white. Pp. i-iv v vi, 1-402. First edition. University of California Publications in Linguistics, Vol. 110. Northern Sierra Miwok-English, pp. 39-302, and English-Northern Sierra Miwok, pp. 305-402. This is a presentation copy, inscribed on the title page: "To Dr. Malkiel | Best regards, | Catherine Callaghan." See note on Malkiel under 1970 COAST MIWOK. This is the first dictionary of Northern Sierra Miwok and the sixth dictionary of a Miwok language. Second copy: IUW.

"Northern Sierra Miwok is a California Indian language formerly spoken in the foothills and mountains of the Mokelumne and Calaveras river drainages, in an area including much of what is now Amador County. The language is remembered by a small number of people, some of whom still speak it among themselves. It is closely related to Central and Southern Sierra Miwok, spoken on the western slopes of the Sierra Nevada Mountains south of the Northern Sierra Miwok speech area.... The three Sierra Miwok languages are about as close as Swedish, Danish, and Norwegian. Plains Miwok is more divergent, and Lake Miwok is as different from the Sierra Miwok languages as English is from German" (Introduction).

[MIWOK, PLAINS] Plains Miwok, also known as Valley Miwok, was one of the Miwok languages spoken in central California by the Plains Miwok people. It was spoken in the deltas of the San Joaquin and Cosumnes Rivers. Plains Miwok was once one of the most populous Miwok languages. All of the population has shifted to English (Wiki).

Ethnologue: pmw. Alternate Names: Valley Miwok.

1984: [LILLYbm] Plains Miwok dictionary, by Catherine A. Callaghan. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1984. Original orange and white wrappers, lettered in black and white. Pp. [2] i-vi vii viii, 1-309 310. First edition. University of California publications in linguistics; v. 105. Plains Miwok-English, pp. 15-226, English-Plains Miwok, pp. 231-300, and bibliography: p. 6. First dictionary of the language. Second copy: IUW.

"Plains Miwok is a California Indian language formerly spoken in the northern San Joaquin Valley from Ione to Stockton. It is remembered by fewer than half a dozen people who do not, so far as I know, ever speak it among themselves. It is closely related to the Sierra Miwok languages, once spoken on the western slopes of the Sierra Nevada Mountains from the Fresno River north to the Cosumnes River. Plains Miwok is also closely related to Saclan, a dialect of Bay Miwok, which was formerly spoken in the area round Mount Diablo....The material for this dictionary was gathered during short field trips to Ione, California, from 1956 to the present" (Introduction).

[MIWOK, SOUTHERN SIERRA] Southern Sierra Miwok is an Utian language spoken by the Native American people called the Southern Sierra Miwok of Northern California. Southern Sierra Miwok is a member of the Miwok language family along with Lake Miwok, Coast Miwok (extinct), Saclan (extinct), Plains Miwok (extinct), Northern Sierra Miwok and Central Sierra Miwok. The Miwok languages are a part of the larger Penutian language stock. The original territory of the Southern Sierra Miwok people is similar to modern day Mariposa County, California. The Southern Sierra Miwok language is nearly extinct with only a few speakers existing today. However, as of 2012, an active revitalization program is underway. The name Miwok comes from the Sierra Miwok word miwwik meaning "people" or "Indians". It was originally used in 1877 for the Plains and Sierra Miwok people, but was later reassigned to its current usage in 1908 to describe the set of Utian languages distinct from the western Coastanoan (Ohlone) languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: skd. Alternate Names: Meewoc, Mewoc, Me-Wuk, Miwoc, Miwokan, Mokélumne, Moquelumnan, San Raphael, Talatui, Talutui, Yosemite.

1846: see 9) and 10) under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

1907-1930: see Vol. 14 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

1964: [IUW] The Southern Sierra Miwok language, by Sylvia M. Broadbent. Berkeley, University of California Press, 1964. 355 p. illus., ports. 26 cm. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. University of California publications in linguistics v.38 Bibliography: p. 6-7. Southern Sierra Miwok-English, pp. 221-297, and English-Southern Sierra Miwok, pp. 299-355. First dictionary of the language.

"There are now only about twenty more or less fluent speakers of Southern Sierra, none below middle age. Only four are known to use the language commonly in daily conversation. It seems probable that by 1980 the language will be extinct, except for stray words remembered by people who never spoke the language fluently" (Introduction).

[MIXE LANGUAGES] The Mixe languages are languages of the Mixean branch of the Mixe-Zoquean language family indigenous to southern Mexico. According to a 1995 classification, there are seven of them (including one that is extinct). The four that are spoken in Oaxaca are commonly called Mixe while their two relatives spoken in Veracruz are commonly called "Popoluca", but sometimes also Mixe (these are "Oluta Popoluca" or "Olutec Mixe" and "Sayula Popoluca" or "Sayultec Mixe"). This article is about the Oaxaca Mixe languages, which their speakers call Ayuujk, Ayüük or Ayuhk. 133,000 people reported their language to be "Mixe" in the 2010 census. A few thousand of the 41,000 who reported their language to be "Popoluca" are presumably Sayula Popoluca (Mixe) (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists eight separate languages under the Oaxaca Mixean family of languages.

1902: [LILLY] Estudio del idoma Ayook, by Francisco Belmar. Oaxaca: Imprenta del Comercio, 1902. Publicado del acuerdo del Lic. Miguel Bolaños Cacho, Gobernado del Estado de Oaxaca. xxxiii, 205 p. + 26 p.; 33 cm. Original brown [faded blue] pebbled cloth over boards, lettered in gold. First edition. With preliminary material. Comparative vocabulary, Lule-Ayook [Oaxaca Mixean]-Spanish, p. xxix. "Vocabulario de la lengua ayook ó mixe, comprende los dialectos Mohtuau [unidentified dialect: BM] & Kotum [unidentified dialect: BM]," Mixe [Oaxaca Mixean]-Spanish, pp. [45]-205. From the library of the noted linguist Johannes Rahder with with notes on the title page and his ownership stamp.

Second copy: LILLY, Folio, pp. [6], xxxiii, [1], 205, [1], 26; title and half-title page in red and black; original blue publisher's cloth, gilt title direct on upper cover; boards faded, hinges cracked, very good. A grammar followed by glossary in double columns. An Ayer Linguistic duplicate, with their release stamp on flyleaf and label on lower pastedown. Part of the series Lenguas indígenas del Estado de Oaxaca; (bookseller's description: Rob Rulon-Miller).

[MIXE, COATLÁN] Isthmus Mixe, called Lowland Mixe in Wichmann (1995), is a Mixe language spoken in Mexico. It is spoken in the villages of Coatlán San José el Paraíso, Mazatlán, Guichicovi, and Camotlán, Oaxaca.

Ethnologue: mco. Alternate Names: Ayuk, Southeastern Mixe.

1993: [IUW] Diccionario mixe de Coatlán, Oaxaca, recopiladores, Searle Hoogshagen Noordsy y Hilda Halloran de Hoogshagen. 1. ed. México, D.F.: Instituto Lingüístico de Verano, 1993. xix, 459 p.: ill., maps; 23 cm. Serie de vocabularios y diccionarios indígenas "Mariano Silva y Aceves" núm. 32. Includes bibliographical references (p. 453-459).

[MIXE, TOTONTEPEC] Totontepec Mixe, called North Highland Mixe in Wichmann (1995), is a Mixe language spoken in Mexico, in the town of Totontepec Villa de Morelos, Oaxaca (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mto. Alternate Names: Ayuk, Mixe Alto del Norte, Northwestern Mixe.

1965: [IUW] Vocabulario mixe de Totontepec; mixe-castellano, castellano- mixe. Compilado por Alvin y Louise C. Schoenhals. [1. ed.] México, Instituto Lingüístico de Verano, c1965. ix, 353 p. illus. 21 cm. Serie de vocabularios indígenas Mariano Silva y Aceves, no. 14. Bibliography: p. 351-353.

[MIXTEC LANGUAGES] The Mixtec /'mi:ʃtɛk/ languages belong to the Otomanguean language family of Mexico, and are closely related to the Trique and Cuicatec languages. They are spoken by over half a million people. Identifying how many Mixtec languages there are in this complex dialect continuum poses challenges at the level of linguistic theory. Depending on the criteria for distinguishing dialects from languages, there may be as many as fifty Mixtec languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue distinguishes 52 different languages under the Mixtec language group.

1889: [LILLYbm] Arte en Lengva mixteca, compiled by Antonio de los Reyes. Alençon: Comte H. de Charencey, 1889. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Wrappers badly torn; signatures coming apart. 96 pp. First edition. Reprint of a text originally written in 1593 in Mexico. Includes brief vocabularies alphabetically arranged, pp. 74-86. An edition of this title was published in 1976 by Vanderbilt University Press.

1965: [IUW] Los elementos de mixteco antiguo [por] Evangelina Arana y Mauricio Swadesh. [1. ed.] México, Instituto Nacional Indigenista e Instituto Nacional de Antropología e Historia, 1965. 138 p. 24 cm. Library binding incorporating original light gray front wrapper, lettered in black and red. Based chiefly on two works published in the 16th century: Vocabulario en lengua mixteca, by Francisco de Alvarado, and Arte en lengua mixteca, by Antonio de los Reyes. "500 ejemplares. No. 86." Contents: Tratado breve sobre el mixteco antiguo. Índice español-mixteco. Inventario de elementos mixtecos. Spanish-Mixteco, pp. 33-59, and an inventory of Mixteco elements, with Spanish equivalents, pp. 63-138.

2008: [IUW] Diccionario del idioma mixteco; Tutu Tu'un Ñuu Savi, by Gabriel Caballero Morales. 1. ed. Huajuapán de León, Oax.; Universidad Tecnológica de la Mixteca, 2008. 811 p.; 23 cm.

Second edition 2011: [IUW] Diccionario del idioma mixteco; mixteco-español, español-mixteco = Tutu tu'un ñuu savi, by Gabriel Caballero Morales. 2. ed. Huajuapán de León, Oax. [Mexico]; Universidad Tecnológica de la Mixteca, 2011. 896 p.; 23 cm. + 1 CD-ROM (sd., col.; 4 3/4 in.). Accompanying CD-ROM includes text and audio for study of pronunciation.

[MIXTEC, ALCOZAUCA] Wikipedia lists Xochapa as a dialect of Silacayoapan Mixtec, a language of Mexico. Ethnologue considers Alcozauca Mixtec a separate language.

Ethnologue: xta. Alternate Names: Mixteco de Alcozauca, Mixteco de Xochapa.

2006: [IUW] Diccionario básico del mixteco de Xochapa, Guerrero, by Sharon (Sara) Stark C., Audrey (Andrea) Johnson P., Benita González de Guzmán. 2a ed. (versión impresa). Tlalpan, D.F.; Instituto Lingüístico de Verano, A.C., 2006. xiv, 150 p.; ill.; 22 cm. Library binding, preserving original light-brown wrappers, lettered in black, with a color illustration of a mountain settlement on the front cover. Mixteco de Xochapa-Spanish, pp. [3]-70, and Spanish-Mixteco de Xochapa, pp. 73-96. The first edition appeared in 250 copies in 1999.

"The second edition, prepared by Sharon Stark, differs slightly from the first. The pagination is [also] different" (verso of title page, tr: BM).

[MIXTEC, CACALOXTEPEC] Cacaloxtepec Mixtec, also Huajuapán Mixtec, is a Mixtec language spoken in the town of Santiago Cacaloxtepec in Oaxaca, Mexico. It is most intelligible with Silacayoapan Mixtec (Wiki).

Ethnologue: miu. Alternate Names: Huajuapán Mixtec, Mixteco de Cacaloxtepec.

2008: [IUW] Diccionario del idioma mixteco: Tutu Tu'un Nñuu Savi, by Gabriel Caballero Morales. Huajuapán de León, Oax.: Universidad Tecnológica de la Mixteca, 2008. 811 p.; 23 cm. Original pale blue and gray wrappers, lettered in gray, ochre white and black, with a color illustration on front cover. Mixtec-Spanish, pp. 29-811. This dictionary gathers lexical information from all Mixtec

Second edition 2011: [IUW] Diccionario del idioma mixteco; mixteco-español, español-mixteco = Tutu tu'un nñuu savi, by Gabriel Caballero Morales. 2. ed. Huajuapán de León, Oax. [Mexico]; Universidad Tecnológica de la Mixteca, 2011. 896 p.; 23 cm. + 1 CD-ROM (sd., col.; 4 3/4 in.) Original pale blue and gray wrappers, lettered in gray, ochre white and black, with a color illustration on front cover. Mixtec-Spanish, pp. 43-825, and Spanish-Mixtec, pp. 829-896. Accompanying CD-ROM includes text and audio for study of pronunciation.

"With the recent publication of the lexicon contained in Diccionario del idioma mixteco: Tutu Tu'un Nñuu Savi the ineluctable necessity arose to enlarge this second edition by adding a Spanish-Tu'un Savi section" (Note to the Second edition, tr: BM).

[MIXTEC, CHAYUCO] Chayuco-Jamiltepec Mixtec is a Mixtec language of Oaxaca, Mexico, spoken in the towns of San Agustín Chayuco, Santa Catarina Mechoacán, Santiago Jamiltepec, San Andrés Huaxpaltepec, Santa María Huazolotitlán, Santiago Tetepec, and Santa Elena Comaltepec (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mih. Alternate Names: Eastern Jamiltepec-Chayuco Mixtec, Mixteco de Chayucu, Tu'un savi.

1974: [IUW] Diccionario mixteco-español, español-mixteco, compilado por Brenda J. Pensinger. 1a ed. México, D.F.; Instituto Lingüístico de Verano en coordinación con la Secretaría de Educación Pública a través de la Dirección General de Educación Extraescolar en el Medio Indígena, 1974. xii, 151 p., [4] leaves of plates; ill.; 23 cm. Library binding incorporating original front yellow wrapper, decorated and lettered in blue. Serie de vocabularios y diccionarios indígenas "Mariano Silva y Aceves" núm. 18. Spine title: Mixteco del este de Jamiltepec, pueblo de Chayuco. Chayuco Mixtec-Spanish, pp. 3-67, and Spanish-Chayuco Mixtec, pp. 71-134.

[MIXTEC, SAN JUAN COLORADO] Pinotepa Mixtec is a Mixtec language of southern Oaxaca, Mexico. Ethnologue lists the variety of San Juan Colorado / San Pedro Atoyac as a separate language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mjc. Alternate Names: Mixteco de Oaxaca de la Costa Noroeste, Mixteco de San Juan Colorado, Tu'un sav.

1986: [LILLYbm] Diccionario mixteco de San Juan Colorado, by Sara Stark Campbell, Andrea Johnson Peterson & Filiberto Lorenzo Cruz. Mexico, D.F.: Instituto Lingüístico de Verano, 1986. Original pale green wrappers, lettered and decorated in dark green. Pp. i-iv v-xii, 1-2 3-209 210-212. With maps and illustrations. First edition. 1000 copies. Series: Serie de vocabularios y diccionarios indigenas "Mariano Silva y Aceves", no. 29. Mixteco-Spanish, pp. 3-97, and Spanish-Mixteco, pp. 101-141. Second copy: IUW.

"This vocabulary describes the language spoken by the inhabitants of the village of San Juan Colorado in the district of Jamiltepe, in the state of Oaxaca. There are about 6,000 speakers of this variety of Mixtec. Altogether there are about 150,000 speakers of Mixtec" (Introduction, tr: BM).

[MIXTEC, YOSONDÚA] Wikipedia lists Yosondúa as a dialect of Atatláhuca–San Miguel Mixtec, a diverse Mixtec language of Oaxaca, Mexico. Ethnologue considers Yosondúa a separate language.

Ethnologue: mpm. Alternate Names: Mixteco de Santiago Yosondúa, Southern Tlaxiaco Mixtec.

2002: [IUW] Diccionario del Mixteco de Yosondúa, Oaxaca, by Kathryn Beaty de Farris ... [et al.]. Coyoacán, D.F.; Instituto Lingüístico de Verano, 2002. xv, 175 p.; ill.; 23 cm. Library binding incorporating original pale blue wrappers, lettered and decorated in darker blue. Serie de vocabularios y diccionarios indígenas "Mariano Silva y Aceves" núm. 46. Includes bibliographical references. Yosondúa Mixtec-Spanish, pp. 3-100, and Spanish-Yosondúa Mixtec, pp. [102]-[146], with illustrations.

[MIZO] The Mizo language, or Mizo ṭawng, is spoken natively by the Mizo people in the Mizoram state of India, Chin State in Burma, and the Chittagong Hill Tracts of Bangladesh. The language is also known as Lushai, a colonial term, as the Lushei people were the first to have external exposure. Though still common, Lushai (or Lusei, or Lushei) is considered incorrect by the Mizo themselves. Much poetic language is derived from Pawi, Paite, and Hmar, and most known ancient poems considered to be in the Mizo language are actually in Pawi. The Mizo language belongs to the Kukish branch of the Sino-Tibetan language family. The numerous clans of the Mizo had respective dialects, amongst which the Lushei (Lusei, by Mizo themselves) dialect was most common, and which subsequently became the Mizo language and the lingua franca of the Kuki peoples due to its extensive and exclusive use by the Christian missionaries (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lus. Alternate Names: Duhlian Twang, Dulien, Hualngo, Lukhai, Lusago, Lusai, Lusei, Lushai, Lushai-Mizo, Lushei, Sailau, Whelngo.

1874: [IUW] Progressive colloquial exercises in the Lushai dialect of the 'Dzo' or Kúki language, with vocabularies and popular tales (notated). By Capt. Thomas Herbert Lewin. Calcutta, Calcutta central press company, limited, 1874. 1 p. ., 90, xxx p. 29 x 22 cm. Original dark green cloth over boards, decorate in blind; spine perished, no lettering on covers. Dzo [Mizo]-English, pp. [i]-xvi, and English-Dzo [Mizo], pp. [svii]-xxx. First attempt to reduce the language to writing, and first vocabulary.

"The 'Dzo' tribes inhabit the hilly country to the east of the Chittagong district in Lower Bengal... Under the term 'Dzo' are included all the hill tribes of this region, who wear their hair in a knot resting on the nap of the neck. The tribes further south and east, of whom little is as yet known, are distinguished under the generic title of 'Poi'; these wear the hair knotted upon the temple. The 'Dzo' state that the Poi language is entirely distinct from theirs.... The term Kuki is a generic name applied by the inhabitants of the plains, Bengallees and others, to all hill tribes.... The 'Dzo' language has hitherto existed only in the form of speech; it has never been reduced to writing.... I play the part here of a simple pioneer going forward into an unknown forest and blazing a path... In reducing this language to writing, I have, as far as possible, followed the transliteration system of Sir Wm. Jones as adopted by the Indian Government.... It would be foolish to postpone an important journey from fear of stumbling by the way... I trust then that my readers will accord to me that indulgence which is so much needed" (Introduction).

1885: see under INDO-AYRAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1898: [LILLYbm] A Grammar and Dictionary of the Lushai Language (Dulien Dialect), by J. Herbert Lorrain & Fred W. Savidge. Shillong: Printed at the Assam Secretariat Printing Office, 1898. Original? dark blue quarter cloth and original blue paper pasted to boards, lettered and decorated in black (front and rear covers identical). Ex-library with bookplate removed. Pp. [6] 1 2-346 347-348. First edition. Zaunmüller col. 261 (lists only a "Lushai-English dictionary" of 1940, with "J. Herbert Lorainn" as sole author). Lushai [Mizo]-English, pp. 54-232, and English-Lushai [Mizo], pp. 233-346. First dictionary of the language. Reprinted in 1976 and 1984 by KLM for the Tribal Research Institute, and Cultural Publishing House in Delhi respectively.

[MLABRI] Mlabri is a language spoken by the Mlabri people in the border area between Thailand and Laos. It is usually classified as a Khmuic language, a subgroup of the Austroasiatic languages. Linguist Jørgen Rischel has studied the language and described its peculiarities in several works. He divides the language into three varieties: one spoken by a small group in Laos and previously called Yumbri, and two others spoken by larger groups in Thailand. They differ in intonation and in lexicon. Although it is possible to count up to ten in Mlabri, only the numerals one and two may be used to modify a noun, and the word for 'two' has uses closer to 'pair' or 'couple' in English than a numeral (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mra. Alternate Names: Luang, Ma Ku, Mabri, Malabri, Mla, Mla Bri, Mrabri, Phi Thong, Yellow Leaf, Yumbri.

1995: [LILLYbm] Minor Mlabri: a hunter-gatherer language of northern Indochina, by Jørgen Rischel. Copenhagen: Museum Tusulanum Press, University of Copenhagen, 1995. Original white and green paper over boards, lettered in black, yellow and blue, with color photo of Mlabri-speaking natives on front and rear covers. Pp. 1-8 9-367 368. First edition. This is a review copy with the publisher's printed slip taped in and a few notes in pencil. Mlabri-English dictionary, pp. [219]-342, and English-Mlabri word index, pp. [343]-362.

"The language described in this monograph is spoken by a small hilltribe in northern Indochina. Its existence has attracted considerable attention because of the legendary and intriguing primitiveness of the Mlabri... This monograph is based on field notes from the year 1988 and later years, in which I have had the occasion to visit the 'Minor Mlabri'.... They are a couple of small families who keep to themselves and do not associate with the more well-known Mlabri in Thailand (here referred to as 'Major Mlabri'...), and they belong to the few indigenous peoples of Indochina that have remained in little contact with civilization.... The special variety of Mlabri dealt with here is now spoken by less than a dozen people who do not even all stay in the same place... Thus this variety is in imminent danger of language death, whereas the other variety (whose phonology and grammar differ very little from the present description) stand a much better chance of survival for some time to come. The Mlabri language (in all of its varieties) has been virtually unknown up to now... the present monograph is the first attempt at a comprehensive description of any kind of Mlabri" (Introduction).

[MMEN] Mmem (Bafmeng) is a Grassfields Bantu language of Cameroon. As a Centre Ring language of Narrow Grassfields, a subdivision of Wide Grassfields within the Southern Bantoid languages, Mmen is part of a cluster including six other languages i.e. Babanki, Bum, Kom, Kuk, Kung and Oku (Lewis 2009) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: bfm. Alternate Names: Bafmen, Bafmeng, Bafoumeng, Bafumen, Mme.

2013: [IUW] Mmen-English lexicon : with English-Mmen index, compiled by Benjamin Mua. First edition. Provisional. Yaoundé, Cameroon : Cameroon Association for Bible Translation and Literacy (CABTAL), 2013. 326 pages : illustrations, 2 maps ; 20 cm. Original blue, blue-gray, yellow, and light green wrappers, lettered in black, with a color photo of a tribal home on the front cover. Lexicon: Mmen-English, pp. [55]-226, English-Mmen index, pp. [239]-319. Includes bibliographical references (pages 52-54).

"This lexicon is a result of word collections sessions which started in 2000 with Lena Bjorkestedt who wanted to propose an orthography for Mmen [and continued through the work of others, including the author]" (Acknowledgements).

"The aim of this lexicon is to meet the increasing demands of mother tongue literacy in Cameroon. This lexicon will therefore contribute to the transitional learning of students and teachers as well [as] linguistic researchers interested in African languages... The version in hand should be considered as work in progress with lots of questions yet to be answered" (Preface).

[MOBA] Moba is a major language of the Gurma people of Togo and Ghana. However, in Ghana only 60% of ethnic Moba Gurma speak the language. There are also about 2,000 speakers in Burkina Faso (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mfq. Alternate Names: Ben, Moa, Moab, Moare.

An on-line dictionary of Moba may be found at www.webonary.org.

1972-1974: [IUW] Dictionnaire Moba-Français, by [Pierre Reinhard]. Bombouaka, [Togo; s.n.], 1972- . v.; 29 cm. Hendrix 1159.

2009: [IUW] Parlons moba; langue du Nord-Togo / Pierre Reinhard. Paris; L'Harmattan, c2009. 201 p.; ill., maps; 22 cm. Original reddish-brown wrappers, lettered in yellow and white, with a color photograph on the front cover. Collection "Parlons". Includes bibliographical references (p. 197-200). Moba-French vocabulary, pp. 147-185, French-Moba, pp. 186-196. Includes general introduction the people and their language.

[MOBILIAN JARGON] Mobilian Jargon (also Mobilian trade language, Mobilian Trade Jargon, Chickasaw–Choctaw trade language, Yamá) was a pidgin used as a lingua franca among Native American groups living along the Gulf of Mexico around the time of European settlement of the region. It was the main language among Indian tribes in this area, mainly Louisiana. There is evidence indicating its existence as early as the late seventeenth to early eighteenth century. The Indian groups that are said to have used it were the Alabama, Apalachee, Biloxi, Chacato, Pakana, Pascagoula, Taensa, Tunica, Caddo, Chickasaw, Choctaw, Chitimacha, Natchez, and Ofo. The name is thought to refer to the Mobile Indians of the central Gulf Coast, but did not originate from this group; Mobilian Jargon is linguistically and grammatically different from the language traditionally spoken by the Mobile Indians. By the early nineteenth century, Mobilian Jargon evolved from functioning solely as a contact language between people into a means of personal identification. With an increasing presence of outsiders in the Indian gulf coast community, Mobilian Jargon served as a way of knowing who was truly a native of the area, and allowed Mobilians to be socially isolated from non-Indian population expansion from the north (Wiki).

Ethnologue no longer includes Mobilian Jargon. It was previously listed under the code "mod" and listed as extinct.

1978: [LILLYbm] The Mobilian Trade Language, by James M[ack] Crawford. Knoxville, TN: The University of Tennessee Press, 1978. Original red cloth over boards, lettered in gold; d.j. red and white, lettered in black and white. Pp. i-v vi-viii, 1-2 3-142 143-144. First edition. English-Mobilian Trade vocabulary, pp. 81-97. Second copy: LILLY. Third copy: IUW.

"This book will treat with a lingua franca that developed in French Louisiana, commonly known as the Mobilian trade language or jargon, but sometimes called the Chickasaw trade language or jargon... When I began the study of the literature, I shared the view of certain prominent ethnologists that the French upon their arrival found Mobilian actively employed by the Mississippi tribes and merely adopted it for their own use in trade and commerce. As I proceeded, I was forced to concede the opposite to be the more probable: the French and their influence in the region brought about the existence of the Mobilian jargon and its adoption by the Louisiana tribes" (Introduction). "This book provides the most extensive Mobilian vocabulary yet published, complete with etymologies for all words presented. The author collected the words in 1970 and 1971 from several very old persons in southwestern Louisiana who no longer spoke Mobilian but remembered words and phrases from the language they once used" (from the dust jacket).

1979: [LILLYbm] "Mobilian Jargon: linguistic, sociocultural, and historical aspects of an American Indian lingua franca," by Emanuel J. Drechsel. Ph.D. Thesis, University of Wisconsin, Madison, 1979. In punched stiff brown paper binding as prepared by the candidate. Duplicated typescript. Pp. [4] ii-x xi [even-numbered pages on rectos], 1-377 378. A copy of the original dissertation, inscribed "With many thanks! | Emanuel". "Appendix: Lexicon of Mobilian Jargon," pp. 199-347, with Mobilian Jargon-English, pp. 202-239, and English-Mobilian Jargon, pp. 240-347. The vocabulary was later published separately (see below). Second copy: IUW, photocopy of typescript. Ann Arbor, Mich.; University Microfilms International, 1980. 21 cm. Bibliography: leaves 358-377.

1994: [LILLY: in WJSmith papers]: [enter title of offprint] an offprint from Working Papers in Linguistics, vol. 26, 1994, with note apparently from author: "A revised and expanded version to appear in Anthropological Linguistics, June 1996."

Revised and expanded 1996: [LILLYbm] "An Intergrated Vocabulary of Mobilian Jargon, a Native American Pidgin of the Mississippi Valley," by Emanuel J. Drechsel, in: Anthropological Linguistics, Vol. 38, No. 2 (Summer 1996), pp. 248-354. English-Mobilian Jargon, pp. 264-324, and a Mobilian Jargon-English index, pp. 327-343. Bibliography, pp. 347-354. The most comprehensive vocabulary of Mobilian Jargon to date. Crawford's book of 1978 (see above) lists a vocabulary of only about 150 words.

"This vocabulary offers a substantial lexical inventory of Mobilian Jargon, a Muskogean-based pidgin of the lower Mississippi River valley, and includes some 1,250 entries plus comparative data of sources, drawn both from memory fieldwork with the pidgin's last speakers and from philological research" (Abstract).

"Crawford ... maintains that [Mobilian Jargon] had developed from contact with the French in eighteenth-century colonial Louisiana. I have since proposed a pre-European origin of Mobilian Jargon, on the basis of three arguments: its well-established use in diverse indigenous contexts of interlingual contact; its geographic distribution....; and, foremost, its indigenous grammar" (p. 249). "As recently as the 1980's, a few elderly Native Americans of Louisiana remembered words and phrases from the pidgin with some of the sociohistorical circumstances of its use" (p. 248).

Cf. [IUW] Mobilian jargon; linguistic and sociohistorical aspects of a Native American pidgin, by Emanuel J. Drechsel. Oxford; Clarendon Press; New York; Oxford University Press, 1997. xiv, 392 p.; ill.; 24 cm. Original black cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Series: Oxford studies in language contact. Includes bibliographical references (p. [358]-383) and index. Does not include the lexicon, but disusses it in chapter 5, pp. [73-112].

"The recorded vocabulary of Modilian Jargon consists of some 1, 250 entires. More than 500 words make up modern recordings from recent speakers of the pidgin, while about 750 entries as reconstitutions of historical attestations, based on phonetic triangulation.... The size of the attested lexicon discourages its inclusion here, and warrants a separate study... (see Drechsel 1996)" (p. [73]).

[MOCHI] Moshi [also called Mochi], spoken by 600,000 [in Tanzania], is the language of the Chaga cultural capital, Moshi, and the prestige dialect of the Chaga languages (Wiki). Ethnologue considers Mochi a separate language.

Ethnologue: old. Alternate Names; Chaga, Chagga, Kimochi, Kimoshi, Moshi, Mosi, Old Moshi.

1947: [LILLYbm] Wörterbuch der Djaga-Sprache (Madjame-Mundart) gesprochen am Kilimandjaro in Ostafrika, by Emil Müller. Hamburg: Verlag von Eckardt & Messtorff, 1947. Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. 410 pp. + fold-out chart. First edition. Beihefte zur Zeitschrift für Eingeborenen-Sprachen, Heft 25. Zaunmüller, col. 93. Hendrix 434. The author was a missionary in German East Africa with the Evangelical-Lutheren Church of Leipzig, from 1893-1920 and from 1931-1933. This is the first dictionary of the language, which is spoken [1986] by about 1 million people on the slopes of Mt. Kilimanjaro. Second copy: IUW.

"Madjame country lies to the West of Kilimanjaro in German East Africa. Madjame, which is spoken by about 18,000 inhabitants of the region, is a dialect of Chaga. The primary purpose of the present work is to establish the vocabulary of Madjame as far as possible. Time is of the essence, first of all because since 1894 as a result of growing intercourse with the other 100,000 speakers of Chaga, the dialect is becoming infused with words, forms, and expressions of other Chaga dialects, and secondly because since the arrival of Europeans all sorts of other African elements have streamed in and, while 'enriching' the language with an number of words from European culture, fragments from Swahili, Nyamwezi, Sudanese and many other languages, have in fact flattened and impoverished it" (tr: BM).

2008: [IUW] Kimochi: msamiati wa Kimochi-Kiswahili-Kiingereza = Mochi-English-Swahili lexicon, by George Mrikaria. Dar es Salaam: Languages of Tanzania (LOT) Project, University of Dar es Salaam, 2008. iv, 89 p.; 25 cm. Original blue, gold and yellow wrappers, lettered in white and black, with a map of Tanzania on the front cover. LOT publications. Lexicon series; no. 15. Mochi-Swahili-English, pp. 1-89.

[MOCHICA] Mochica (also Yunga, Yunca, Chimú, Muchic, Mochika, Muchik, Chimu) is a Chimuan language formerly spoken along the northwest coast of Peru and in an inland village. First documented in 1607, the language was widely spoken in the area during the 17th and early 18th century. By the end of the 19th century the language was dying out and spoken only by a few people in the village of Etén in Chiclayo. It died out as a spoken language around 1920, but certain words and phrases continued to be used up until the 1960s. It is best known as the supposed language of the Moche culture, as well as the Chimú culture/Chimor (Wiki).

Extinct language not listed in Ethnologue.

1644 [1939]: [IUW] Arte de la lengua yunga (1644), by Fernando de la Carrera. Reedición, con introducción y notas por Radamés A. Altieri. Tucumán, Instituto de antropología, 1939. xxvi, 117 p. illus. (incl. facsim.) 27 cm. Library binding, preserving original tan wrappers, lettered in black. Departamento de investigaciones regionales. Publicaciones especiales del Instituto de antropología [3]. Publicación (Universidad Nacional de Tucumán); no. 256. With reproduction of t.-p. of original ed., 1644. Served as a source for the lexicon of 1995 below. The modern introduction reprints more recent Yunga [Mochica]-Spanish vocabularies from Vilches (1920), Colchón (1920), and Bastian (1878), pp. XI-XVII. The reprinted Arte of 1644 includes brief Yunga [Mochica]-Spanish word lists in the grammar.

1921 [2013]: [IUW] La lengua yunga, by Federico Villareal. Lima; Editorial Universitaria, Universidad Nacional Federico Villarreal, [2013]. 126 pages; facsimiles; 22 cm. Original white and orange wrappers, lettered in black and gold. Facsimile of La lengua yunga o mochica, published by E.Z. Casanova, Lima, 1921. "según el Arte publicado en Lima en 1644 por el licenciado D. Fernando de la Carrera, Vicario del Pueblo de Reque, Departamento de Lambayeque"--Page i. Yunga [Mochica]-Spanish pp. [9]-44. Facsimile reproduction of the original 1921 edition, with brief new preface.

1976: [IUW] El vocabulario estético de los mochicas; una lengua muerta que vive en su artem by Emilio Harth-terré. Lima, Perú; Editorial Jurídica, 1976. 110 p., [4] leaves of plates; ill.; 18 cm. Library binding incorporating original red and white front wrapper, lettered in black. Includes bibliographical references. Mochica-Spanish glossary of Mochica words appearing in the essay, pp. 75-108.

1995: [IUW] La lengua de Naimlap; reconstrucción y obsolescencia del mochica, by Rodolfo Cerrón-Palomino. 1. ed. Lima, Perú; Pontificia Universidad Católica del Perú, Fondo Editorial, 1995. 220 p.; ill., maps; 21 cm. Library binding, incorporating original gray, white and blue wrappers, lettered and illustrated in black. Includes bibliographical references (p. 204-220). Mochica-Spanish lexicon, pp. 195-203. The lexicon consists of Mochica vocabulary from Fernando de la Carrera y Daza's Arte de la lengua Yunga of 1644, published in 1939.

2002: [IUW] Diccionario mochica-castellano, castellano-mochica, by José Antonio Salas. Lima, Perú: Universidad de San Martín de Porres, Escuela Profesional de Turismo y Hotelería, 2002. Xlx, 254 p.; 24 cm. Library binding incorporating original reddish-brown and black wrappers, lettered in white. Series: Patrimonios. Lingüística. Collects the information compiled throughout history about the Mochica language. Includes, from various historical sources which are named and discussed, Mochica-Spanish vocabularies, pp. 1-41, 91-105, 131, 137-138, 149-179, 209-211, 219-220, 223, 229-231, 241-242, 245, and 251-252; and Spanish-Mochica vocabularies, pp. 43-81, 107-120, 133, 139-140, 181-204, 213-215, 221-222, 225, 233-235, 243-244, 247, and 253-254.

[MOCOVÍ] The Mocoví language is a Guaicuruan language of Argentina spoken by about 3,000 people, mostly in Santa Fe province (Wiki).

Ethnologue: moc. Alternate Names: Mbocobí, Mocobí, Mokovi.

1892: [LILLYbm] "Vocabulario Mocoví-Espanol fundado en los del P. Tavolini," by Samuel A[lexander] Lafone Quevedo [1835-1920], in: Revista del Museo de la Plata, vol. 4, pp. [161]-207. La Plata: Museo de la Plata, 1892. Contemporary brown half-leather and brown marbled paper over boards, spine lettered in gold with five raised bands. Pp. [2] 1-3 4-432 433-434. First edition. Includes, with separate title page, Mocoví-Spanish vocabulary, pp. [161]-207. This appears to be the first published vocabulary of Mocoví. It is native language spoken in Argentina.

1899: see under GUAICURUAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MODANG] Modang is a Kayan language of the Krio Dayak people in West Kalimantan, Indonesia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mxd.

1910: see under KAYAN, BUSANG.

[MODOLE] Modole is a Papuan Halmahera language of Indonesia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mgo. Alternate Names: Madole.

1916: see under PAGU.

[MOHAVE] Mojave (also Mohave) is the native language of the Mohave people along the Colorado River in southeastern California, northwestern Arizona, and southwestern Nevada. Approximately 70% of the speakers reside in Arizona, while approximately 30% reside in California. Mojave belongs to the River branch of the Yuman language family, together with Quechan and Maricopa. Mojave language became endangered during the 20th century when Mohave children were taken away from their parents to be raised in boarding schools, where they were prohibited to speak the language. They were prohibited from speaking it even with their parents on their occasional visits home; many parents spoke no English (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mov. Alternate Names: Mojave, River Yuman, Upriver Yuman, Yuman.

1907-1930: see Vol. 2 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

1992: [LILLYbm] A Mojave Dictionary, by Pamela Munro, Nellie Brown, & Judith G. Crawford. Los Angeles: Department of Linguistics, UCLA, 1992. Original spiral orange wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [4] 1-320. First edition. Series: UCLA Occasional Papers in Linguistics, 10. Mojave-English, pp. 13-207, and English-Mojave, pp. 209-305.

"This book is a Dictionary of Mojave, an American Indian Language of the Yuman family's River branch spoken along the lower Colorado River near Parker, Arizona.... More than twenty years ago I received permission from the Tribal Council of the Colorado River Indian Reservation to pursue my study of the Mojave language, with the understanding that I would make my findings available in a form which would be of use to the people on the reservation.... An earlier version of this Dictionary presented words learned primarily from [various informants]. The present version, which is much longer, also includes extremely valuable additional material generously provided by Judith Crawford, reflecting earlier study.... Since this Dictionary primarily reflects the use of just one speaker of Mojave, others who know the language may disagree about the pronunciations and definitions given here, one may feel that important words have been omitted. Such disagreement is healthy.... This Dictionary has been long in preparation, but it is still a preliminary version" (Introduction, Pamela Munro).

[MOHAWK] Mohawk /'moʊhɑ:k/[3] (Mohawk: Kanien'kéha [ga.njãʔ. 'ge.ha] "[language] of the Flint Place") is an endangered Iroquoian language currently spoken by around 3,500 people of the Mohawk nation in the United States (mainly western and northern New York) and Canada (southern Ontario and Quebec). The word "Mohawk" is an exonym. In the Mohawk language, the people say that they are from Kanien'kehá:ka or "Flint Stone Place. The Mohawks comprised the largest and most powerful of the original Five Nations, controlling a vast area of land on the eastern frontier of the Iroquois Confederacy. The North Country and Adirondack region of present-day Upstate New York would have constituted the greater part of the Mohawk-speaking area lasting until the end of the 18th century. The Scottish scientist Alexander Graham Bell, one of the inventors of the telephone, was greatly interested in the human voice, and when he discovered the Six Nations Reserve across the river at Onondaga, he learned the Mohawk language and translated its then unwritten vocabulary into Visible Speech symbols. For his work, Bell was awarded the title of Honorary Chief and participated in a ceremony where he donned a Mohawk headdress and danced traditional dances. Mohawk has the largest number of speakers of the Northern Iroquoian languages; today it is the only one with greater than a thousand remaining. In 2006, over 600 people were reported to speak the language in Canada, many of them elderly. In 2011, there were approximately 3,500 speakers of Mohawk, primarily in Quebec, Ontario and western New York (Wiki).

Ethnologue: moh. Alternate Names: Kanien'kéha.

1791: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

ca. 1862: [LILLYbm] Radical Words of the Mohawk Language with their Derivatives, by James Bruyas. S.l.: s.n., n.d. [ca. 1862]. Lacking title page? Later maroon cloth over boards, with paper label on spine, title typed. Pp. 1-3 4-123 124. First edition? This edition with "[Senate, No. 116]" as part of signing for collation. Zaubmüller, col. 272. Mohawk-French, pp. [21]-123.

"This volume contains undoubtedly the oldest grammatical or lexicographical treatise on the language of the Mohawks....The Iroquois left no monuments on our soil: their language is their real monument.... The present volume...was written evidently in the latter part of the seventeenth century, and most probably on the banks of the Mohawk. It is a closely written manuscript of 146 page....The main work, the Racines Agnières, or Mohawk Radical Words, comprises the primitive words of the language, arranged in five conjugations, with derivatives from each word....Except in strict alphabetical arrangement, it is a very full Mohawk Dictionary, written in Latin, but with the meaning of the words in French." (unsigned preface). This work was published in 1862 by the Cramoisy Press.

Reprinted 1970: [IUW] Radices verborum iroquaeorum. Auctore r.p. Jacobo Bruyas. Neo-Eboraci, J. M. Shae, 1863. [New York, AMS Press, 1970] 123 p. Radical words of the Mohawk language. Shea's library of American linguistics 10. Half-title, added t.p. and preface in English. Added t.p. reads: Radical words of the Mohawk language, with their derivatives. By Rev. James Bruyas. New York, Cramoisy Press, 1862. Mohawk-French, pp. [21]-123.

1882: [LILLYbm] Lexique de la langue iroquoise, by J[ean] A[ndré] Cuoq [1821-1898]. Montreal: J. Chapleau & fils, 1882. Original blue wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Preserved in a clamshell box with leather label, lettered in gold. Pp. I-V VI-IX X, I 2-238. First edition. Zaubmüller, col. 191. Iroquois-French, pp. [1]-151. First true dictionary of Mohawk.

"First edition of Cuoq's dictionary of the Iroquois tongue. Cuoq (1821-98) was a highly experienced missionary among the Algonquin- and Iroquois-speaking natives. He mastered several 'dialects' and related languages and is a great 'name' among missionary linguistic scholars. Pilling Proof-Sheets of a Bibliography of the Languages of the North American Indians, 956; Pilling, Bibliography of the Iroquoian Languages, 51-52; Newberry Library, Indian Linguistics in the Edward E. Ayer Collection, Mohawk 47. Not in Vancil. Fine copy in original wrappers. Unopened and uncut. Housed in a handsome cloth clamshell case by the Lakeside Press of Chicago, with a gilt-tooled and -lettered 'spine' label" (bookseller's description: William Reese).

Second edition 1883: [LILLYbm] Lexique de la langue iroquoise, avec notes et appendices, by J[ean] A[ndré] Cuoq [1821-1898], Prêtre de St.-Suplice. Montreal: J. Chapleau & fils, [1883]. Contemporary brown quarter-leather and green marbled paper over boards, spine lettered in gold, with yellow endpapers. Pp. [4] I-V VI-IX X, I 2-238 [4] (p. 234-237 wrongly paginated 235-238). Second, enlarged edition. Zaubmüller, col. 191 (listing only first edition of 1882). This edition adds: "Additamenta": p. [217]-233; and "Table alphabétique des auteurs cités": p. 238 [i.e. 237]. This copy with ink stamp on title page: "Archives | de la | Province de Québec". Iroquois-French, pp. [1]-151 in two parts (roots, and derivatives and compounds), supplementary notes, pp. [153]-182, and appendices, pp. [183]-216. OCLC indicates this material includes the Nipissing language.

"Under this title I believe I must add a few pages to my book. Since it was first published (20 July 1882) until today (20 July 1883), this dictionary has been praised not only by many journals and reviews in both Europe and America, but also in several works in various languages.... I have had the benefit as well of private correspondence raising questions and observations to which I would like to respond, as well as offer a few words of explanation with regard to critical remarks" (Additamenta, p. [217], tr: BM).

1973: [IUW] A thousand words of Mohawk, by Gunther Michelson. Ottawa, National Museum of Man, National Museums of Canada, 1973. 186 p. 28 cm. Library binding. Mercury series. Paper (National Museum of Man (Canada). Ethnology Division); no. 5. Abstract in French. Includes Mohawk-English particle and roots list, pp. 22-133, and English-Mohawk list, pp. 134-186.

"This brief grammatical introduction and list of 1000 Mohawk words was compiled by the author at the Caughnawaga Reserve, P.Q., from work done over the last ten years" (Abstract).

"The study has two parts: an Introduction to some of the grammatical processes of this complex language, and a list of some 1000 verb and noun roots and particles that comprise, as a whole, a short dictionary" (Preface).

1977: [IUW] lontenwennaweienstahkhwa'; Mohawk spelling dictionary, compiled by Mary McDonald ... [et al.]; Marianne Mithun, editor. Albany; University of the State of New York, State Education Dept., 1977. xi, 93 p.; ill.; 28 cm. Bulletin (New York State Museum; 1976); no. 429. English and Mohawk. "September 1977."

1986: [LILLYbm] English-Mohawk Lexicon. A Spelling Wordlist of Six Nations Mohawk using the Isaac Orthography, by Ruth Isaac, Ima Johnson, Vina Loft & Claudine VanEvery-Albert. Brantford, Ontario: The Woodland Indian Cultural-Educational Centre, 1986. Original tan wrappers, spiral bound, lettered and illustrated in brown. Pp. [8] 1-72 73-76. First edition. Includes English-Mohawk, pp. 1-72.

"The major purpose for the development of this English-Mohawk Lexicon is to meet the needs of the teachers and students of the Mohawk as a Second Language program in the schools at the Six Nations Reserve.... This Lexicon is intended to be the first in a series to be developed to assist in the revitalization of the Mohawk Language at Six Nations" (Preface).

1992: [LILLYbm] One Thousand Useful Mohawk Words, by David Kanatawakhon Maracle. Guildford, Conn.: Audio-Forum, 1992. Original spiral-bound stiff white wrappers, lettered in green. Pp. [4] i-xxii, [2] 1-130. First edition. Includes Mohawk-English, pp. 1-110, and English-Mohawk, pp. 111-130.

[MOHEGAN-PEQUOT] Mohegan-Pequot (also known as Mohegan-Pequot-Montauk, Secatogue, Stockbridge, and Shinnecock-Poosepatuck; dialects include Mohegan, Pequot, Montauk, Niantic, and Shinnecock) is an extinct Algonquian language formerly spoken in parts of present-day New England and Long Island. As of 2014, there are between 1,400 and 1,700 recorded tribal members (these figures vary by source). The Mohegan language, however, has been dormant for approximately 100 years as the last native speaker, Fidelia Fielding, died in 1908. As of 2010, the Shinnecock and Unkechaug nations of Long Island, New York, had begun work with the State University of New York at Stony Brook, Southampton Campus, to revive their languages, or dialects of the above. As of 2012, the Mohegan Language Project had created lessons, a dictionary, and other online learning materials to revive their language. The project also has a complete grammar in the works, which has been put together by Stephanie Fielding. The primary goal of the project is for the next generation of Mohegan people to be fluent. The language was documented as early as the 17th century. In 1690, a Pequot vocabulary list was compiled by Rev. James Noyes in Groton (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xpq.

1791: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

1991: [LILLYbm] Schmick's Mahican Dictionary, ed. By Carl Masthay. [Philadelphia]: American Philosophical Society, 1991. Original powder blue cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in black, issued without d.j. 188 pp. First edition. This is the first dictionary of the language, which is now extinct.

This "modern reworking of the [post-1754] manuscript of Johann Jacob Schmick [1714-1778], is in the 'Moravian' dialect of Mahican and is divided into an English-Mahican-German section and a Mahican-English section... The language was once used in the western part of... Connecticut, western Massachusetts, western Vermont, and eastern New York State... This dictionary has prevented the loss of another iceberg peak of Algonquian culture from rapidly melting away."

2003: [IUW] A lexicon of modern Mohegan; the dialect of Jits Bodunaxa, by Julian Granberry. München; Lincom Europa, 2003. 90 p.; 21 cm. Library binding incorporating original red, green, and yellow-green wrappers, lettered in red, white and black, with a black and white photo of a Native American on the front cover. Languages of the world. Dictionaries; v. 29. Includes bibliographical references (p. 89-90). Includes Mohegan-English, pp. 17-63, and English-Mohegan, pp. 64-90.

"The primary purpose of the lexicon is to supply a full listing of the attested vocabulary of the early 20th century Modern Mohegan dialect along with the listing of possible forms derived from the closely related Pequot data of earlier centuries... [A] working vocabulary of some 15,000 individual words was easily possible... Thus the present lexicon might readily serve as the beginning point for the rebuilding of a restored Modern Mohegan" (Introduction).

[MOKARENG] Mokerang is an Austronesian language spoken on Los Negros Island, immediately east of Manus Island in Manus Province, Papua New Guinea (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mft. Alternate Names: Mokareng, Mokoreng.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MOKILESE] Mokilese or Mwoakilloan is a Micronesian language originally spoken on Mokil Atoll, Federated States of Micronesia. Of the 1200 Mokilese speakers, only about 500 live on Mokil. Mokilese originated from the Mokil (or Mwoakilloa) Atoll, but speakers have also migrated approximately 100 miles west, to the Pohnpei Islands, and parts of the United States. It has also been referred to as Mokil, Mwoakilese, or Mwoakilloa. Mokilese is both the name of the Mokil population and the language which they speak. It is currently spoken on Mokil Atoll, the Pohnpei Islands, and in some parts of the United States. There are only approximately 1,500 speakers of this language left. Although this language originated in Mokil Atoll, there are now only around 150 speakers who live in Mokil Atoll, while the rest live in diaspora communities —approximately 100 miles west— to Pohnpei, where they remain until this day (Rehg & Bender, 1990) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mkj. Alternate Names: Mokil, Mwoakilese, Mwoakilloa.

1977: [LILLYbm] Mokilese-English Dictionary, by Sheldon P. Harrison & Salich Albert. Honolulu: The University Press of Hawaii, 1977. Original white wrappers, lettered in dark green. 165 pp. First edition. PALI Language Texts: Micronesia. "This is the first formal compilation of words in Mokilese to be published."

[MOKOLE] Mokole (or Mokollé, Mokwale, Monkole, Féri) is a Yoruba language spoken in the villages surrounding the town of Kandi in Benin. It's the northernmost variety of Yoruba (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mkl. Alternate Names: Féri, Mokollé, Mokwale, Monkole.

1983: see 1983b under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[MOKSHA] The Moksha language (Moksha: мокшень кяль mokšəń käl) is a member of the Mordvinic branch of the Uralic languages with around 130,000 native speakers. Moksha is the majority language in the western part of Mordovia. Its closest relative is the Erzya language, with which it is not mutually intelligible. Moksha is also considered to be closely related to the extinct Meshcherian and Muromian languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mdf. Alternate Names: Mokshan, Mordoff, Mordov, Mordvin-Moksha.

1949: [IUW] Mokshansko-russkii slovar': okolo 17 000 slov, sostavili, S.G. Potapkin i A.K. Imiärekov; pod red. D.V. Bubrikha. Moskva: Gos. izd-vo inostrannykh i natsional'nykh slovareĭ, 1949. 359 p.; 21 cm.

1951: [IUW] Russko-mokshanskii slovar': okolo 40 000 slov: s prilozheniem grammaticheskikh tablits russkogo iazyka, sostavili S.G. Potapkin i A.K. Imiärekov; otv. red. G. ĪA. Merkushkin. Moskva: Gos. izd-vo inostrannykh i natsional'nykh slovareĭ, 1951. 688 p.; 21 cm. IU copy printed and bound by The Smith Bookbindery, Bloomington.

1961: [IUW] Moksa-mordvin szójegyzék. Gyűjtötte és kiadásra előkészítette Juhász Jenő, sajtó alá rendezte Erdélyi István. Budapest, Akadémiai Kiadó, 1961. 262 p. 25 cm. Hungarian-Moksha dictionary.

2009: [IUW] Словарик-валкскя русско-мокшанский = Валкскя-словарик мокшанско-русский / [составители, Голенков Н.Б., Иванова Г.С.]. Slovarik-valkskĭa russko-mokshanskĭĭ = Valkskĭa-slovarik mokshansko-russkĭĭ / [sostaviteli, Golenkov N.B., Ivanova G.S.]. Саранск; Книга, 2009. Saransk; Kniga, 2009. 111 pages; 15 cm. Russian-Moksha dictionary.

2012: [IUW] Русско-мокшанский словарь: 34000 слов = Рuzонь-мокшень валкс: 34000 вал, редколлегия А.Н. Келина (отв. ред.) [and nine others]. Russko-mokshanskii slovar': 34000 slov = Ruzon'-mokshen' valks: 34000 val / redkollegiĭa A.N. Kelina (otv. red.) [and nine others]. Саранск: Типография "Красный Октябрь", 2012.

Saransk: Tipografiia "Krasnyĭ Oktiabr", 2012. 556 pages; 22 cm. Russian-Moksha dictionary..

[MOLALE] Molala (Molele, Molalla) is the extinct and poorly attested Plateau Penutian language of the Molala people of Oregon and Washington. It is first attested along the Deschutes River, and later moved to the Molalla and Santiam rivers, and to the headwaters of the Umpqua and Rogue rivers. It was once thought to be close to Cayuse. There were three known dialects: 1) Northern Molala, spoken in southern Oregon in the Cascade Range; 2) Upper Santiam Molala, spoken along the upper Santiam River in the Cascades in central Oregon; 3) Southern Molala, spoken in southern Oregon in the Cascade Range (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mbe. Alternate Names: Molala, Molalla, Molele.

1907-1930: see Vol. 8 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[MON] The Mon language (Mon: တာဝာ မနံ; Burmese: မွန်ဘာသာ) is an Austroasiatic language spoken by the Mon people, who live in Myanmar and Thailand. Mon, like the related Khmer language but unlike most languages in mainland Southeast Asia, is not tonal. Mon is spoken by more than a million people today. In recent years, usage of Mon has declined rapidly, especially among the younger generation. Many ethnic Mon are monolingual in Burmese. In Myanmar, the majority of speakers live in Mon State, followed by Tanintharyi Region and Kayin State. The Mon script is ultimately derived from the Indic Brahmi script.

Ethnologue: mnw. Alternate Names: Aleng, Mou, Mun, Peguan, Raman, Rman, Rmen, Takanoon, Talaing, Taleng, Teguan.

1874: [LILLY] Grammatical notes and vocabulary of the Peguan language, to which are added a few pages of phrases, &c., by James Madison Haswell [1810-1876]. Rangoon: American Mission Press, 1874. viii+, 160 p. 24 cm. Original light brown wrappers, lettered in black, with crudely taped spine. First edition. With the paper label of John Lawson. Second copy: IUW, imperfect, lacking part of the introduction.

1896: [LILLY] A vocabulary, English and Peguan, to which are added a few pages of geographical names, by Edward Oliver Stevens (1838-1910). Rangoon: American Baptist Missionary Press, 1896. vii, 139 p. 24 cm. Original tan wrappers, lettered in black, with black taped spine. First edition. Zaunmüller 296.

“Dr. Haswell published this work only two years before his death, which occurred just twenty years ago. The printing of a second edition having been unexpectredly delayed, it was deemed best to issue from the press the “English and Peguan Vocabulary” by itself. To the contents of Dr. Haswell’s vocabulary I have added the definitions of about seven hundred and fifty English words and terms—also a small appendix of Geogrphical Names” (Preface).

1962: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary of Modern Spoken Mon, by H. L. Shorto. London: Oxford University Press, 1962. Original black cloth over boards, lettered in gold; dust jacket cream, grown and light green, lettered in brown. Pp. i-ix x-xvi xvii-xviii, 1 2-280. First edition. Includes Mon-English, pp. [1]-197. Second copy: IUW.

"The present dictionary forms the first part of a description of the central dialect of Burma Mon as spoken today... No census figures for Mon speakers are available for Thailand, nor for Burman after 1931...; a recent estimate of 1,500,000 in the two countries is probably excessive..." (Introduction). "The Mons, through whom Buddhism, the alphabet, and many other elements of culture passed to the Burmese hinterland, are today mainly found on the plains to the east of the Gulf of Martaban; there are outlying communities elsewhere in Lower Burma, and in Thailand. In previous work on the language there has been a tendency to confuse the literary and spoken usages, but in fact these are so divergent that no valid set of descriptive statements can be made to embrace both. The entries in this dictionary relate to spoken Mon" (front flap of dust jacket).

1976: [IUW] Mongo goishū, by Sakamoto Yasuyuki cho. Tōkyō; Tōkyō Gaikokugo Daigaku Ajia Afurika Gengo Bunka Kenkyūjo, Shōwa 51 [1976], 277 p.; 27 cm.

[MONASTIC SIGN LANGUAGES] Monastic sign languages have been used in Europe from at least the 10th century by Christian monks, and some, such as Cistercian and Trappist sign, are still in use today—not only in Europe but also in Japan, China and the USA. Unlike deaf sign languages, they are better understood as forms of symbolic gestural communication rather than languages, and some writers have preferred to describe them as sign lexicons. Signs are well documented in medieval Benedictine monasteries of Western Europe, from Portugal to England. Antique texts present lists of words with accompanying signs, including instructions for sign production, and occasionally also the rationale for the choice of sign. Signs are mostly nouns relating to monastic life, such as foods, articles of clothing, particular rooms and buildings, ritual objects, and the many different ranks of clerical office. The few signs that act as verbs include "sit," "stand up," "kneel," and "confess." They almost always bear an iconic or visually motivated connection to the thing represented by the sign. No grammar is described for these signs, and they were probably used in the word order of an oral language—either Latin or the local vernacular—and possibly with accompanying gesture such as pointing. Modern Cistercian monks in England or the United States use a syntax derived "heavily, but not exclusively," from English, while Cistercian monks in France loosely follow the syntax of the French language; at least as much as it is possible to do so, given the limited lexicon. Vocabulary lists in the medieval texts ranged from 52 signs to 472, with "the average at 178 and a mean at 145." The earliest Benedictine sign books date from around 1075 (and again at about 1083) at the Abbey of Cluny (in what is now France), and Hirsau Abbey (in what is now Germany) at around the same time. Bonaventure in the 13th century used a finger alphabet, and the medieval Monasteriales Indicia describes 127 signs used by Anglo-Saxon Benedictine monks (Wiki).

Ethnologue no longer lists Monastic Sign Language, which it included in earlier editions under the code "mzg".

1975: [LILLYbm] The Cistercian sign language: a study in non-verbal communication, by Robert A. Barakat. Kalamazoo, Mich.: Cistercian Publications, 1975. Original gray cloth over boards, lettered in gold; dust jacket violet and white, lettered in black and white. Pp. 1-6 7-220 221-224. First edition. Series: Cistercian studies series, no. 11. Includes "A Dictionary of the Cistercian Sign Language," with photographs, pp. 87-212. With bibliography, pp. 213-219. First dictionary of monastic sign language in America.

"There are three sections to this dictionary, the first of which takes precedence over the others. The 'Authorized list of Signs for the Cistercian Order' is the list that must be followed if a particular monastery does not have a list of its own to follow.... The second major section contains the 'Authorized list of Signs for St. Joseph's Abbey'. The last, and largest section, is the 'List of Original Signs' that mirrors the daily activities and preoccupations of the brothers of St. Joseph's Abbey. In many ways, these signs are ingenious inventions that help fill the gaps in the traditional list's meager inventory" (p. 89).

"Set forth in this volume is a brief record of this sign language, its history and relationship to the monastic life."

[MONGO-NKUNDU] Mongo, also called Nkundo or Mongo-Nkundo (Lomongo, Lonkundo), is a Bantu language spoken by several of the Mongo peoples in the Democratic Republic of the Congo. Mongo speakers reside in central DR Congo over a large area inside the curve of the Congo River. Mongo is a tonal language. There are a large number of dialects. Maho (2009) lists one of these, Bafoto (Batswa de l'Equateur), C.611, as a separate language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lol. Alternate Names: Lomongo, Mongo.

1887: [LILLYbm] A Vocabulary of Kilolo as spoken in the Bankundum a section of the Balolo tribe, at Ikengo (Equator), Upper Congo, by Jas.[James] B. Eddie. [London]: East London Institute for Home and Foreign Missions, [1887]. Original tan quarter-linen and pale green paper over boards, lettered in black. Pp. i-iii iv-v vi-viii, 1 2-203 204; with folding table following p. 8. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Cf. Hendrix 936 (referring only to an 1891 compilation by Miss L. M. de Hailes from Eddie's vocabulary in the SOAS Collections, with the language erroneously identified as Lomwe). Starr: Bibliography of Congo Languages, lists this work as Nkundo. At the time the work was compiled "Balolo land" was a loose designation for the entire Upper Congo area and its people (Balolo=iron people), speaking several Bantu languages. Hence the difficulty of identifying the language in present-day terms. In any case, this is the earliest vocabulary of the language.

"Kilolo is the language spoken by the Balolo people on the Upper Congo. The country of the Kilolo-speaking people lies in the great bend of the Congo where it crosses the Equator northwards... The Kilolo language is rich in stories, proverbs, and songs, most of which the people willingly communicate... Kilolo is capable of expressing the nicest shades of meaning, and is amply adequate, we feel sure, of conveying to the native mind a knowledge of the Great Father's love and of the blessings He has in store for them."

1894: see 1894b under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1913: [LILLY] English-Lonkundo and Lonkundo-English vocabulary. [Bolenge]: Foreign Christian Missionary Society, 1913. 427 p.; 19 cm. Original brown pebbled cloth over boards, lettered in blind. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Not in Hendrix. Includes English-Lonkundo [Mongo-Nkundo], pp. [1]-212, and Lonkundo[Mongo-Nkundo]-English, [213]-427. Earliest separately published vocabulary of the language. This copy with the bookplates of the Baptist Mission House Library and John Lawson. Second copy: IUW.

1928: [LILLYbm] Dictionary of the Lomongo language, by E[dward] A[lgernon] Ruskin [b. 1871] & L[ily Adele Waldron Wall] Ruskin [1871 -]. London: Christian Literature Society, n.d. [1928]. Original green cloth, lettered in gold (spine faded to brown). Pp. i-v vi-viii, 1-651 652. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 272. Hendrix 1166. Includes Mongo-English-French, pp. 1-346, and English-Mongo, pp. 347-651. This copy with the ink stamp of the "School of Oriental and African Studies. Department of Africa" on front free endpaper.

"Lomongo belongs to the Bantu group of languages and is spoken by at least 300,000 people, dwelling in Middle Belgian Congo, north and south of the equator.... The people have been very responsive to the Gospel, and great advance has been made. Nearly the whole of the Bible has been translated, and several other books for school and general reading have been prepared and printed" (Introduction).

1952: [LILLYbm] Dictionnaire Français-Lomongo (Lonkundo), by G. Hulstaert. Antwerp: Éditions de Sikkel, 1952. Original brown cloth, lettered in white. 466 pp. First edition. Annales du Musée Royal du Congo Belge, Tervuren (Belgique), Série in-8°, Sciences de l'Homme, Linguistique, Vol. 2. Zaunmüller, col. 272. This copy with ink stamp indicating it was a Library of Congress duplicate. English language dictionaries of Mongo-Nkundu were published by Ruskin in 1928 (see above) and by the Foreign Christian Missionary Society in 1913 (see above). Second copy: IUW.

1957: [LILLYbm] Dictionnaire Lomongo-Français A-J. K-Z., two vols., by G. Hulstaert. Tervuren, Belgium: Musée Royale du Congo Belge, 1957. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [Vol. 1:] i-vii viii-xxxii xxxii, 1 2-917 918 [2]; [Vol. 2:] i-vii viii-ix x, 919 920-1948 1949-1950. First edition. Annales du Musée Royal du Congo Belge Tervuren (Belgique) Série in-8°, Sciences de l'Homme. Linguistique, Vol. 16. Annalen van het Koninklijk Museum van Belgisch-Congo, Tervuren, Deel 16. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 1164. This copy with the ink stamp of the International African Institute. Second copy: IUW.

1981: [IUW] Petit lexique des croyances magiques mōngo, by G. Hulstaert. Bandundu, République du Zaïre; Ceeba, 1981. 128 p.; 27 cm. Library protective folder preserving original cream wrappers, lettered in rose and blue. Publications (Ceeba). Série II; v. 70. "Annexe: Notes sur la yêbola." Includes index. Includes Mongo with French explanations of terms relating to magical beliefs, pp. 9-90.

1983: [IUW] Terminologie chrétienne en lOmOngO, by Honoré Vinck. Bandundu, République du Zaïre; CEEBA, 1983. 54 p.; map; 27 cm. Library binding incorporating original light blue front wrapper, lettered in black. Publications (Ceeba). Série III vol. 8. Includes bibliographies. Includes French-Mongo vocabulary of Christian religious terms, pp. 36-49.

1987: [IUW] Complément au Dictionnaire lomōngo-français; additions et corrections, by Gustaaf Hulstaert. Mbandaka; Centre Æquatoria, 1987. 463 p.; 20 cm. Library binding incorporating original gray front wrapper, lettered in black. Etudes Æquatoria; 2. "Corrigenda et addenda": 10 p. inserted. Includes Mongo-French, pp. 1-463.

"The publication of the Dictionnaire Lomōngo-français [see above 1957] did not bring to an end lexical discoveries in the language. Their quantity is now such that it appears to me to justify making them available to the interested public" (Complément au Dictionnaire Lomōngo-français), tr: BM).

[MONGOLIAN, HALH] The Mongolian language (in Mongolian script: Monggol kele.svg, Mongyol kele; in Mongolian Cyrillic: Монгол хэл, Mongol khel) is the official language of Mongolia and largest-known member of the Mongolic language family. The number of speakers across all its dialects may be 10 million, including the vast majority of the residents of Mongolia and many of the Mongolian residents of the Inner Mongolia Autonomous Region. In Mongolia, the Khalkha dialect, written in Cyrillic (and at times in Latin for social networking), is predominant, while in Inner Mongolia, the language is dialectally more diverse and is written in the traditional Mongolian script. There is no disagreement that the Khalkha dialect of the Mongolian state is Mongolian. Beyond this one point, however, agreement ends (Wiki).

Ethnologue: khk. Alternate Names: Central Mongolian, Halh, Khalkha Mongolian, Mongol.

1835: [LILLYbm] Mongolisch-deutsch-russisches Wörterbuch, nebst einem deutschen und einem russischen Wortregister, by I[vanovich] J[akov] Schmidt [1779-1847]. St. Petersburg: Bei den commissionairen der Kaiserlichen Akademie der Wissenschaften, W. Graeff und Glasunow, Leipzig bei Leopold Voss, 1835. Added title page: Mongol'sko-nymetsko-rossii skii slovar. Original? unprinted green wrappers with the sticker of bookseller Klincksieck, Paris, on inner front wrapper, covers detached. Pp. [4] I-III IV-VIII, 1 2-613 614-616. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 274 (reprinted Peking 1939). Wolff 4516. Uncut and partially unopened (preface). Bilingual preliminary material, German and Russian. Includes Mongolian-German-Russian, pp. [1]-378, a German-Mongolian index, pp. [379]-504, and a Russian-Mongolian index, pp. [505]-612. This copy ex-library with the ink stamp of Univ. Dunelm and scattered pencilled annotations throughout. This is the first dictionary of the Mongolian language.

"Four years ago, with the publication of my Grammar of the Mongolian Language I expressed the hope that I could follow it with the publication of a dictionary; I am particularly happy to see this hope fulfilled and my promise kept, since now at last full use may be made of my Grammar, for having completed this work a large part of the difficulty in studying the language has been eliminated. .. in the end the dictionary has amounted to more than 13,000 words. This dictionary should thus be thought of as a beginning, as the basis for a riper future in which the treasures of the Mongolian vocabulary may be gathered, a future that need not be imagined as too distant, since there is good reason to believe that the scholarly study of Mongolian will not go to the grave with me, for there are two young scholars, Herren Kolawlevsky and Popov, who have devoted themselves to this study with energy and outstanding success and who now are influencing a promising circle as academic lecturers at the University of Kasan" (Foreword, tr: BM).

Reprinted 1972: [IUW] Mongolisch-deutsch-russisches Wörterbuch, nebst einem deutschen und einem russischen Wortregister, von I.J. Schmidt. Hrsg. von der Kaiserlichen Akademie der Wissenschaften. Neudruck der Ausg. von 1835. Osnabrück, Biblio Verlag, 1972. viii, 513 p. 25 cm. Added t.p.: Mongol'sko-niemetsko-rossiiskii slovar'. Prefatory matter in German and Russian. Reprint of the 1835 edition.

1838 [1993?]: see under TIBETAN.

1844-1849 [1941]: [IUW] Dictionnaire mongol-russe-française, par Joseph Étienne Kowalewski. Tientsin, 1941. 3 v. 26 cm. Added t.p. in Russian. Reprint of original ed., Kasan, 1844-49.

1895: see under ALTAIC LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1928: [IUW] 蒙和辞典 / 鴛鴦一, 韓穆精阿共著. Mō-Wa jiten / Oshibuchi Hajime, Kan-boku-sei-a kyōcho. 大阪市; 甲文堂, 昭和 3 [1928]. Ōsaka-shi; Kōbundō, Shōwa 3 [1928]. 893, 17, [28] p.; 18 cm. Errata slip inserted. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society. Mongolian-Japanese dictionary.

1931: [IUW] Nere-tomijoonii zuil. Ulaanbaatar; BNMAU Şinzilekui Ukaanii Kyrieelengiin keblel, 1931- v. <1>; 26 cm. Includes bibliographical references (vol. 1, p. 4-5) and index. In Mongolian (t.p. in roman script, introd. in Mongolian script); vocabulary in Russian (often with Latin taxons) and Mongolian (Mongolian script). From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from the Mongolia Society. Incomplete contents: 1. Oros-latiin-mongol gurban niicete udkiin urgumaliin aimagiin neres (turşilga). Russian-Mongolian dictionary of plant names.

1937: [IUW] Монгольско-русский словарь; по современной прессе = Edüge cağ-un sonin sedküil jerge-ece quriyamjilan abuğsan Mongğol Oros üges-ün toli bicig / K. M. Черемисов и Г. Н. Румянцев; с предисловием Н. Н. Поппе. Mongol'sko-ruskiï slovar'; po sovremennoï presse = Edüge cağ-un sonin sedküil jerge-ece quriyamjilan abuğsan Mongğol Oros üges-ün toli bicig / K.M. Cheremisov i G.N. Rumiantsev; s predisloviem N.N. Poppe. Ленинград; Изд. Ленинградского Восточного ин-та, 1937. Leningrad; Izd. Leningradskogo Vostochnogo in-ta, 1937. 2 v.; 23 cm. Ленинградский восточный институт имени А.С. Енукидзе (Сериес); 62. Leningradskii vostochnyi institut imeni A.S. Enukidze (Series); 62. Includes bibliographical references (p. xi-xiv). (Mongolian and roman script). Mongolian-Russian dictionary. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society.

1938-1939: [IUW] Mongol'skiï slovar' Mukaddimat al-adab / N.N. Poppe. Moskva; Izd-vo Akademii nauk SSSR, 1938-1939. 2 v. (iv, 566 p.); 26 cm. Trudy Instituta vostokovedeniia; 14. [T. 1], ch. 1. Fonetika i morfologiia. ch. 2. Mongol'sko-tiurkskiï slovar'[t. 2], ch. 3. Ukazateli / sostavleny G.N. Rumiantsevym. Mongolian-Turkish dictionary.

1940a: [IUW] 蒙和辞典 / 韓穆精阿, 鴛鴦一, [Abe]松源一共著. Mō-Wa jiten / Kan-boku-sei-a, Oshibuchi Hajime, Abematsu Gen'ichi kyōcho. 三訂増補版]. Santei zōho [ban]. 大阪市; 甲文堂書店, 昭和15 [1940]. Ōsaka-shi; Kōbundō Shoten, Shōwa 15 [1940]. 19, 495, 18 p.; 20 cm. Japanese-Mongolian dictionary. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society.

1940b: [IUW] Mongolo-ruskiï slovar'; svyshe 7000 slov / sost. A.V. Burdukov; pod red. G.I. Mikhaïlova. Moskva; Gos. izd-vo inostr. i nats. slovareï, 1940. 270 p.; 13 cm. Mongolian-Russian dictionary.

1941a: see under 1844-1849.

1941b: [LILLYbm] Wörterbuch der heutigen mongolischen Sprache mit kurzem Abriss der Grammatik und ausgewählten Sprachproben, by R[obert] Bleichsteiner [1891-1954] & W[alther] Heissig in collaboration with W[ilhelm] A[lexios] Unkrig. Vienna, Peking: Siebenberg-Verlag, 1941. Original gray wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. 1-3 4-135 136. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 273. Includes Mongolian-German, pp. 43-121. Second copy: IUW.

"It is a great pleasure to me... to introduce the first presentation of a grammatical overview and assemblage of Mongolian words undertaken by Germans and on German soil" (Introduction, tr: BM).

1946: [IUW] Ner-e tomiyan-u bicig / Būgūde Naiiramdaqu Monggōl Arad Ulus-un Sinjilekūi Uqağan-u Kūriyeleng. Ulağanbağatur; Monggōl Keblel-ün Qorīy-a, 1946-v. <1>; ill.; 25 cm. Includes index. In Mongolian (Mongolian script). From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society. Partial contents v. 1. Oros Monggōl qadamal toğan-u uqağan-u neres. Russian-Mongolian dictionary of terms and phrases.

1947: [IUW] Kratkīi mongol'sko-russkīi slovar'. Sostavil A.R. Rinchinè, pod red. G.D. Sanzheeva. S prilozheniem kratkogo grammaticheskogo ocherka mongol' skogo iazyka, sostavlennoho G.D. Sanzheevym. Moskva, Gos. izd-vo inostrannykh i natsional'nykh slovareĭ, 1947. 423 p. 18 cm. Okolo 13 000 slov. Added t.-p. in Mongolian. In Cyrillic characters. Mongolian-Russian dictionary.

1951a: see 1951 under BURIAT.

1951b: [LILLYbm] Khalkha-Mongolische Grammatik mit Bibliographie, Sprachproben und Glossar, by Nikolaus Poppe. Wiesbaden: Franz Steiner Verlag, 1951. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. I-IX X-XII, 1 2-188. First edition. Veröffentlichung der orientalischen Kommission der Akademie der Wissenschaften und der Literatur, Band I. Zaunmüller, col. 273. Includes Mongolian-German vocabulary, pp. 164-188, double columned, and an extensive bibliography, pp. [126]-137.

"The glossary contains all the words in the above texts. It also includes all common words not found in the texts. It seemed to us useful to expand the glossary in this way, because up to now there have been no Khalkha-Mongolian-German dictionaries or wordlists" (Glossar, p. 164, tr: BM).

1953: [IUW] Mongol-English practical dictionary with English word reference list / [compiled by Matthew Haltod ... [et al.] for the Evangelical Alliance Mission 1949-1953]. [Chicago; Evangelical Alliance Mission, 1953?] 3, xii, 679 p.; 22 cm. Library binding. Includes bibliographical references (p. i.). From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society. Includes Mongol-English dictionary, pp. 1-605, and an English word index, pp. 607-676. With a Mongol-English supplement, pp. 677-679.

1954: [IUW] Ulsyn nēr tom'ëony komissyn mēdēē / (1 dūgēērēēs 21 dūgēērīīg duustal). [Ulaanbaatar; Ulsyn Khērēlēl, 1954] 233, [1] p.; 23 cm. At head of title: B.N.M.A. Ulsyn shinzhlēkh Ukhaany Khūrēlēn. Russian-Mongolian dictionary.

1954-1955: [IUW] Mongolian-English dictionary, by Folke Boberg. Stockholm, Förlaget Filadelfia [1954-55] 3 v. 25 cm. The first Mongolian-English dictionary.

Vol. 1: original brown quarter-leather and brown cloth over boards, lettered in gold. 768 p. Mongolian-English (A-Ghachigho tarani), pp. 1-768. Mongolian-English.

"This publication was intended to supply a long-felt want of a modern Mongolian-English dictionary. The value of a dictionary can not be overestimated.... This advantage has not been available to visitors to Mongolia and students of the Mongolian language. For more than a hundred years missionaries, explorers, travellers and traders visiting Mongolia and all other interested in the language have sought in vain for a Mongolian-English dictionary.... There has never been any Mongolian-English dictionary.... The work has proceeded in stages. A time of 23 years has elapsed since I started the work on this dictionary.... The first manuscript with some 8,000 words was written in 1931. My second manuscript of more than 11,000 words I wrote with a Mongolian typewriter in 1947-1948" (Preface to Vol. 1).

Vol. 2: original brown quarter-leather and brown cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Continuous pagination from Vol. 1: Mongolian-English, pp. 769-1514.

Vol. 3: (library binding). English-Mongolian and index to v. 1-2. Includes English-Mongolian, pp. 7-600.

"This volume of the Mongolian-English dictionary is intended partly to form a simpler English-Mongolian dictionary, and partly to form an index to Volumes I and II" (Preface).

1957a: [LILLYbm] Mongolsko-russkii slovar. okolo 22 000 slov, by A. Luvsandendev. Moscow: Gosudarstvennoe Izdatelstvo Inostrannykh i Natsionalnykh Slovari, 1957. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. 1-67-715 716. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 272. Includes Mongolian-Russian, pp. 15-697, with a list of geographical names, pp. [698]-706. Second copy: IUW.

1957b: see 1957 under ASIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1958: [IUW] Glossary of Mongolian technical terms, by Frederick Holden Buck. New York, American Council of Learned Societies, 1958. [5], 79 p. 27 cm. American Council of Learned Societies [Devoted to Humanistic Studies] Program in Oriental Languages. Publications. Series B: Aids, no. 13. Bibliography: 5th prelim. page. Mongolian-English dictionary.

1959a: see under TIBETAN.

1959b: see under TIBETAN.

1959c: [IUW] Mongol-Sanskrit dictionary, with a Sanskrit-Mongol index / by Raghu Vira. New Delhi; International Academy of Indian Culture, 1959 printing. 50,652 p.; 28 cm. Library binding. Śāta-piṭaka series v. 5. Mongol-piṭaka; v. 1. Includes Mongolian-Sanskrit-English, reproduced from hand-written entries, pp. 1-539, and a Sanskrit-Mongolian index, pp. 543-643, also reproduced from hand-written entries, with "Corrections," pp. 644-649, and "Additions," pp. 650-652.

1960a: [LILLY] Mongolian-English Dictionary, compiled by Mattai Haltod, John Gombojob Hangin, Serge Kassatkin, and Ferdinand D. Lessing. Berkeley & Los Angeles: University of California Press, 1960. First edition. [500 copies]. xv, 1237 p. Original brown cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Mongolian-English, pp. [1]-1086, Cyrillic Index, pp. 1089-1155, Mongolian Buddhist terms and phrases, Mongolian-English, pp. 1159-1193, Additions and Corrections, pp. 1197-1217. Includes introductory material on the history of Mongolian lexicography up to and including the compilation of this dictionary, pp. vii-x (Introduction). Presentation copy from Ferdinand D. Lessing, with an inscription in German to his "student and friend," Michael Rogers, dated March 1961 in Berkeley. Rogers, a noted linguist, was Professor of East Asian Studies at Berkeley and according to his obituary, helped with this dictionary.

Corrected re-printing 1982: [IUW] Mongolian-English dictionary / compiled by Mattai Haltod ... [et al.]; Ferdinand D. Lessing, general editor. Corrected re-printing. Bloomington, Ind.; The Mongolia Society, Inc., 1982, c1960. xxiii, 1220 p.; 19 cm. Original blue-gray cloth over boards, spine lettered in gold. "Selected bibliography": p. xxi. Mongolian-English, pp. [1]-1086, Cyrillic Index, pp. 1089-1155, Mongolian Buddhist terms and phrases, Mongolian-English, pp. 1159-1193, Additions and Corrections, pp. 1197-1217, Third Supplement, New Listings, Additions and Corrections, pp. 1218-1220. Reprints the first edition, adding only the Third Supplement.

"Dr. Lessing's Dictionary came out in late 1960, and it meant a great deal to him in the last year of his life, 1961, to hear of its wide acceptance and general usefulness. The original printing of 500 copies by the University of California Press was exhausted in about eight years time. Ever since, the Mongolia Society considered producing either a simple reprinting, or an improved edition, but the enormous cost of this undertaking for our small non-profit society restrained us and made compromise necessary.... We have added a brief new supplement of about a hundred entries, some of new words, some of corrections or additions to former entries" (Preface to the Corrected Re-Printing).

1960b: [LILLYbm] Russko-mongolskii slovar. okolo 30 000 slov, by A[leksandr] R[inchinovich] Damba-Rinchine. Moscow: Gos. izd-vo inostrannykh i natsionalnykh slovarei, 1960. Original green cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. Pp. 1-56-780 781-784. First edition. Includes Russian-Mongolian, pp. [17]-773. This copy with the bookplate of Jerome Cavanaugh. Cavanaugh is author of An index to four collections of Chinese book collectors' biographies (Minneapolis: Far Eastern Research Library, 1977). Second copy: IUW.

1961a: [IUW] Mongolisch --- -deutsches Wörterbuch, von Schalnow Zebek unter Mitarbeit von Johannes Schubert. Leipzig, VEB Verlag Enzyklopädie [1961]. 276 p.

1961b: [LILLYbm] The Zirni Manuscript. A Persian-Mongolian Glossary and Grammar, by Shinobu Iwamura, with the collaboration of Natsuki Osada and the late Tadashi Yamasaki. Kyoto: Kyoto University, 1961. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [6] i ii-ix x-xii, 1-160 161-208 [4]. First edition. Series: Results of the Kyoto University Expeditions to the Karakoram and the Hindukush, 1955, Vol. VI. Includes Mongolian-English glossary, pp. 84-150, with a reproduction of the original manuscript, pp. [167]-[208].

"The discovery of the Zirni Manuscript is of great importance to all students of Mongolian languages and philology. It would not be exaggerated to say that it is one of the most important discoveries made in recent years. It contains a Persian-Mongolian glossary and a grammatical outline based on the traditional schemes of Arabic grammar. There are not many Arabic-Mongolian and Persian-Mongolian glossaries which are known to science... In this connection, one may ask: what kind of Mongolian language is represented in the Zirni Manuscript...? Is it Middle Mongolian, i.e., the language of the XIII-XV (or XVI) century... or is it Moghol, i.e., the spoken language of the Mongols in Afghanistan? Although Moghol shares some features with Middle Mongolian, there is no doubt that the material contained in the Zirni Manuscript is not Middle Mongolian... [but] Moghol... This does not decrease, however, the value of the manuscript. On the contrary, it makes it still more important, because Middle Mongolian materials are comparatively abundant, whereas the Moghol language is known insufficiently" (Preliminary Remarks on the Zirmi Manuscript, Nicholas Poppe).

1961-1964: see under ASIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1962: [IUW] Nër tom"ëony tsuvral bichig / bolovsruulsan, ТШ. Тоївгоо; ёрkhёlsєn, B. Sodnom. Ulaanbaatar; Shinzhlėkh Ukhaany Akademiin khёvlєl, 1962- v.; 22 cm. Shinzhlėkh Ukhaany Akademi (Series). Nër tom"ëony tsuvral bichig; v. 1, no. 3, etc. Editor and director varies. Mongolian (Cyrillic script)-Russian dictionary of terms and phrases.

v. 1, no. 3. Malyn bie bütєts

v. 2., no. 2. Khєliin shinzhlєl

v. 2, no. 3. Bichil bütєts sudlalyn (gistologiin) nєr tom"ёo

v. 3, no. 1. Khüikhdiin övchin sudlal

v. 3, no. 2. Ёdiin zasgiin nєr tom"ёony ürgєlzhлєl

v. 3, no. 3. Mєs zaslyn nєr tom"ёo.

1963a: [IUW] Modern Mongolian-English dictionary, by Ferdinand D. Lessing and John Gombojab Hangin. [Cleveland, Ohio; Micro Photo Div. Bell & Howell], c1963. 4 v. (ix, 1369 p.); 26 cm. "American Council of Learned Societies. Research and studies in Uralic and Altaic languages. Project no. 23." "February, 1963." Photocopy. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society.

1963b: [IUW] Modern written Mongolian reader; with glossary in the traditional script, by John G. Hangin. [Washington?; American Council of Learned Societies], 1963. vii, 141 p. Library binding. American Council of Learned Societies. Research and studies in Uralic and Altaic languages. Project; no. 79. "Research ... contract between the United States Office of Education, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare and the American Council of Learned Societies. Reproduced from typescript. Bibliography: p. 141. Includes Mongolian-English glossary, pp. 90-140.

"This book is a modern Mongolian reader in the traditional Uigur script with a glossary of about 2500 words planned for students who are familiar with the basic vocabulary and sentence structure of written Mongolian. The purpose of this book is to introduce students to modern written Mongolian and to samples of works of modern Mongolian writers" (Foreword).

1964a: [IUW] Kitad Monggol toli / Öbör Monggol-un Kele Jokiyal Ğajar-un Toli Naiirağulqu Duğuiilang naiirağulba. 1. keb. First edition. Kökeqota; Öbör Monggol-un Arad-un Keblel-ün Qoriy-a, 1964. 70, 1750 p.; 21 cm. Chinese (latter also in roman script) and Mongolian. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society. Chinese-Mongolian dictionary.

1964b: [IUW] Oros-Mongol nєr tom"ëony tol' = Russko-mongol'skiĭ terminologicheskii slovar' / Ё. Vandui; ёrkhлєkh B. Sodnom. Ulaanbaatar; Khєl Zokhiolyn Khürєlєn; Ulsyn Khєvlєliin Khєrєg Ёrkhлєkh Khoroo, 1964. 560 p.; 23 cm. Mongolian (Cyrillic) and Russian; introductory matter in Mongolian. Terminological dictionary, Russian to Mongolian.

1965a: [IUW] Monggol udq-a-yin juil qubiyagsan toli bicig = 蒙文分类辞典 / [Begejing-ün Monggol Bicig-ün Qoriy-a-aca naiirağulba]. Monggol udq-a-yin juil qubiyagsan toli bicig = Meng wen fen lei ci dian. 1. keb. First edition. [Begejing]; Ündüsüten-ü Keblel-ün Qoriy-a, [1965]. 22, 830 p.; 14 cm. In Mongolian (Mongolian script) and Chinese. Mongolian-Chinese dictionary. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society.

1965b: [IUW] モンゴール語基礎500語/ 小沢重男編 Mongōrugo kiso 1500-go / Ozawa Shigeo hen. 東京; 大学書林, 昭和 40 [1965]. Tōkyō; Daigaku Shorin, Shōwa 40 [1965]. 123 p.; 18 cm. In Mongolian (Cyrillic script) and Japanese. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society. Mongolian-Japanese dictionary.

1965c: [IUW] Shinë mongol iapon tol' = 新蒙日辞典 / 松源一編.
Shinë mongol iapon tol' = Shin Mō-Nichi jiten / Abematsu Gen'ichi hen. 大阪:

大阪市外国語大学同窓会印刷所, 昭和 40 [1965]. Ōsaka; Ōsaka-shi Gaikokugo Daigaku Dōsōkai Insatsujo, Shōwa 40 [1965]. xi, 574 p.; 22 cm. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society. Mongolian-Japanese dictionary.

1967-1969: [IUW] Oros-mongol tol'; 50 000 orchim üg / ᠲᠰ. Damdinsurēn, A. Luvsandēndēv; redaktor, ᠲᠰ. Damdinsurēn. Ulaanbaatar; Būgd Naïramdag Mongol Ard Ulsyn Shinzhlēkh Ukhaany Akademiin Khēl Zokhiolyn Khūrēlēn, 1967-1969. 2 v.; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references (vol.1, p. 8). Russian-Mongolian dictionary.

1968: see under MANCHU.

1969a: [IUW] 漢蒙字典 / 編纂者哈勒楚倫 = A Chinese-Mongolian dictionary / compiled by Harnold Hakanchulu. Han Meng zi dian / bian zuan zhe Hakanchulun = A Chinese-Mongolian dictionary / compiled by Harnold Hakanchulu. Taipei; Chinese Materials and Research Aids Service Center, 1969. lxxviii, 1536 p.; 27 cm. Chinese Materials and Research Aids Service Center. Research aids series; no. 5.

1969b: [IUW] Mongolian newspaper reader; selections from Ünen [by] David C. Montgomery. Bloomington, Research Center for the Language Sciences, Indiana University, 1969. xiii, 203 p. facsim. 23 cm. Original cream-colored wrappers, lettered in black. Uralic and Altaic series; v. 102. Consists of 20 articles in Mongolian from Ünen, 1961-66, with English translations and notes. Mongolian-English vocabulary, pp.[145]-203.

"This work has been compiled in order to provide the beginning student of Khalkha-Mongolian with an organized corpus of material which will introduce him to the journalistic manifestation of the modern Mongolian language" (Introduction).

1970: [LILLYbm] A Concise English-Mongolian Dictionary by John G. Hangin. Bloomington, Indiana: Indiana University, 1970. Original wrappers. 288 pp. First edition. Indiana University Publications, Uralic and Altaic Series, Vol. 89. This English-Mongolian dictionary was preceded only by a student dictionary published in Ulan Bator in 1968. Second copy: IUW.

1971: [IUW] Mōkogo daijiten, Rikugunshō hensan. Tōkyō, Kokusho Kankōkai, Shōwa 46 (1971). 2 v. 22 cm. Other contributors: Suzue, Mantarō. Shimonaga, Kenji. Japan. Rikugunshō. 300 copies printed. [1] jōkan, Mō-Wa no bu.[2] gekan, Wa-Mō no bu. Japanese-Mongolian dictionary.

1973a: [IUW] Mongolian vocabulary, by Stuart H. Buck. [S.l.; s.n., 1973] 269 leaves; 22 cm. In Card binding with label lettered in ink on front cover. "June 1973" and "Unclassified" on title page. Includes Mongolian-English, ff. 1-269. Reproduced from typescript. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society.

1973b: [IUW] Niigem uls toriin tovch tol' / B. Dugèr; redaktor, N. Sharav-Ish. Ulaanbaatar; Ulsyn Khèvlèliin Gazar, 1973. 191 p.; 21 cm. In Russian, with definitions in Mongolian (Cyrillic script). Russian-Mongolian dictionary of political sociology. B-WELLS: From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society.

1975a: [IUW] 蒙汉词典 / 内蒙古教育出版社[编辑]. Meng Han ci dian / Nei Menggu jiao yu chu ban she [bian ji]. 试用本. Shi yong ben. 呼和浩特; 内蒙古教育出版社; 内蒙古新华书店发行, 1975. Huhehaote; Nei Menggu jiao yu chu ban she; Mei Menggu xin hua shu dian fa xing, 1975. 4, 943 p.; 21 cm. Title also in Mongolian: Monggòl Kitad toli bicig. Mongolian-Chinese dictionary.

1975b: [IUW] Russko-mongolskiĭ razgovornik / A.B. Denisovich. Moskva; Russkiĭ iazyk, 1975. 112 p.; ill.; 13 cm. Russian-Mongolian dictionary.

1975c: [IUW] A spoken Mongol-English dictionary; with pronunciations in roman scripts / compiled by Lama Chimpa. Santiniketan; Lama Chimpa, 1975. [8], 556 p.; 23 cm. Contemporary brown half-leather and tan cloth over boards, lettered in gold. "Date of Publication: August 15, 1975" on verso of title page. Bibliography: p. [6] (1st group). Includes Mongolian-English dictionary, pp. 1-556.

"Since I have intended this dictionary as an aid to studying spoken Mongolian, I have paid less attention to [those words] that have passed out of currency and are not used in modern Mongolian. And I have tried to avoid the traditional misinterpretations which occupy a good portion of the earlier bilingual Mongol dictionaries. I also have tried my best to include those new coinages and spellings which have been widely in use in spoken or modern Mongolian. Many of these are left out of even the latest Mongol dictionaries. This dictionary contains about 12000 basic Mongol words which are nearly enough for a daily use of the Mongolian language. The famous academician Professor Rinchen once told me that there were about 700,000 Mongol words. I have no doubt that what he said was true, though a Mongol dictionary of that comprehensiveness is yet to be compiled... There was a shortage of paper supply along with a high price, the entire quantity of paper required for printing the book could not be procured at one time. This will explain why the quality of printing and colour of the pages is uneven. I regret this very much" (Preface).

1976a: [IUW] Alban khèrèg, arkhivyn nèr tomèony tol' bichig; Oros-Mongol, Mongol-Oros khèlèèr = Терминологический словарь делопроизводства и архива МНР; na russko-mongol'skim, mongolo-russkom iazykakh / bolovsruulsan, TŠ. Damdinsürèn, D. Miāgmarsürèn; èrkhèlsèn, B. Sodnom. Alban khèrèg, arkhivyn nèr tomèony tol' bichig; Oros-Mongol, Mongol-Oros khèlèèr = Terminologicheskii slovar' deloproizvodstva i arkhiva MNR; na russko-mongol'skim, mongolo-russkom iazykakh / bolovsruulsan, TŠ. Damdinsürèn, D. Miāgmarsürèn; èrkhèlsèn, B. Sodnom. Ulaanbaatar; Shinzhlēkh ukhaany akademiin khèvlèl, 1976. 204 p.; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 204). In Mongolian (Mongolian script). From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society. Two-way Mongolian-Russian dictionary of bureaucratic terminology.

1976b: [IUW] 汉蒙对照词汇 = Kitad Monggól üges-ün toli / [Ündüsüten-ü Keblel-ün Qoriy-a naiiraḡulun kebleḡülbe]. Han Meng dui zhao ci hui = Kitad Monggól üges-ün toli / [Ündüsüten-ü Keblel-ün Qoriy-a naiiraḡulun kebleḡülbe]. 1. keb. First edition. [Begejing]; Ündüsüten-ü Keblel-ün Qoriy-a, 1976. 34, 1288 p.; 19 cm. Chinese and Mongolian (Mongolian script). Chinese-Mongolian dictionary.

1976c [1977]: [IUW] Kitad Monggól qaricaḡuluḡsan baiigali-yin sinjilekü uqagan-u nere tomiyan-u toli = 汉蒙对照自然科学名词术语词典. Kitad Monggól qaricaḡuluḡsan baiigali-yin sinjilekü uqagan-u nere tomiyan-u toli = Han Meng dui zhao zi ran ke xue ming ci shu yu ci dian. [Kökeqota]; Öbür Monggól-un Surgan Kümüjil-ün Keblel-ün Qoriy-a, [1976] (1977 printing). 37, 700 p.; 21 cm. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society. Chinese-Mongolian dictionary.

1977: [IUW] Kazakh-Mongol tol' / B. Bazykhaan; redaktor: Zh. Akhmet, B. Bataa. Ulaanbaatar; BNMAU, Shinzhlekh Ukhaany Akademi Khél Zokhiolyn Khüréélén, 1977. 392 p.; 27 cm. At head of titles: BNMAU, Shinzhlekh Ukhaany Akademi Khél Zokhiolyn Khüréélén = Monghol Khalyq Respublikasy Ghylym Akademiiasynnyng Tīl men Ādebiät Instituty. Kazakh-Mongolian dictionary.

1978: [IUW] Monggól udq-a-yin juil qubiyāḡsan toli bicig = 蒙文分类辞典. Monggól udq-a-yin juil qubiyāḡsan toli bicig = Meng wen fen lei ci dian. 2. keb. Second edition. [Begejing]; Ündüsüten-ü Keblel-ün Qoriy-a, [1978]. 10, 406 p.; 19 cm. First ed. published 1956. In Mongolian (Mongolian script) and Chinese. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society. Mongolian-Chinese dictionary.

1979a: [IUW] A modern Mongolian-English-Japanese dictionary / D. Tömörtogoo; co-authors, Shigeo Ozawa, Haruo Hasumi. Tokyo; Kaimei Shoin, 1979. 892, 9 p.; 19 cm. Added title in Japanese (romanized) Gendai Mō-Ei-Nichi jiten.

1979b: see 1979 under KALMYK-OIRAT.

1981a: see 1981 under MANCHU.

1981b: [IUW] Īazyk mongolov Vnutrenneĭ Mongolii; materialy i slovar' / B.Kh. Todaeva. Moskva; "Nauka," Glavnaia red. vostochnoi lit-ry, 1981. 273 p.; 22 cm. In Mongolian and Russian. At head of title: Akademiia nauk SSSR, Institut vostoковedeniia. Mongolian-Russian dictionary.

1981c: see 1981b under MANCHU.

1982a: see 1982 under TIBETAN.

1982b [1983]: 汉蒙词典 / 内蒙古自治区社会科学院蒙古语言文字研究所. Han Meng ci dian / Nei Menggu zi zhi ju she hui ke xue yuan Menggu yu yan wen zi yan jiu suo. 增订本, 第2版. Zeng ding ben, Di 2 ban. 呼和浩特; 内蒙古人民出版社; 内蒙古新华书店发行, 1982 (1983 printing). Huhehaote; Nei Menggu xin hua shu dian fa xing, 1982 (1983 printing). 2240 p.; 21 cm. Title also in Mongolian on t.p. Chinese-Mongolian dictionary.

1983a: see under EVENKI.

1983b: [IUW] Gendai Mongorugo jiten = Orchin ueiḡn mongol-iāpon khēlniḡ tovch tol' / Ozawa Shigeo hencho. Dai 1-han. First edition. Tōkyō; Daigaku Shorin, Shōwa 58 [1983]. ix, 681; map; 22 cm. Colophon inserted. Bibliography: p. viii. Japanese-Mongolian dictionary.

1983c: [IUW] Mongolian-English-Russian dictionary of legal terms and concepts, compiled and edited by W.E. Butler and A.J. Nathanson. The Hague; Boston; M. Nijhoff; Hingham, MA; Distributors for the U.S. and Canada, Kluwer Boston, 1983. xxvii, 718 p.; 25 cm. Uniform series: Studies on socialist legal systems. Includes indexes. "List of legal dictionaries": p. xviii-xxi.

1984: [IUW] Монгол-Казах толь / Б. Базылхан = Моңғолша-Қазақша сөздік / Б. Базылхан. Mongol-Kazakh tol' / В. Bazylkhan = Monggholsha-Qazaqsha sözdik / В. Bazylkhan. Улаанбаатар; Өлгий, 1984. Ulaanbaatar; Ölgii, 1984. 885 p.; 27 cm. Includes short comparative grammars of Kazakh and Mongolian. In Mongolian Cyrillic and Qazaq. Mongolian-Kazakh dictionary.

1985: [IUW] Baiigali gajar jui-yin toli / [Qasbagatur, Saranbatu naiiraḡulcu orcigulba]. 1. keb. First edition. [Kökeqota]; Öbör Mongḡol-un Arad-un Keblel-ün Qoriy-a, 1985. 5, 1360 p.; ill.; 21 cm. Mongolian (Mongolian script), with definienda also in Chinese. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society. Mongolian-Chinese-Mongolian dictionary of geography.

1986a: [IUW] Aktivnyi russko-mongol'skii slovar'-minimum; dlia studentov Meditsinskogo instituta / S.M. Tšyrenova. Ulan-Bator; Izd-vo uchebnoi lit-ry MNO MNR, 1986. 55 p.; 22 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 6). Russian-Mongolian dictionary of medicine.

1986b: [IUW] Monggo minyojip (oe) / Pak Sang-gyu yökchö. Söul T'ükpyölsi; Asea Munhwasa, 1986. vii, 218 p.; 24 cm. Original reddish-brown cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Ural-Alt'ai innum ch'ongsö; che 1-chip, 2. Mongolian folksongs, with Mongolian-English glossary, pp. 155-254.

1986c: [IUW] Mongol-oros-angli tol' = Mongol'sko-russko-angliiskii slovar' = Mongolian-Russian-English dictionary / Tš. Tšedendamba. Ulaanbaatar; BNMAU ABIA-ny Surakh bichig, setgüüliin negdsen redaktsyn gazar, 1986. 331 p.; 27 cm. Original blue quarter-cloth and yellow front paper, white rear paper over boards. Front cover lettered and decorated in black, spine lettered in silver, rear cover unlettered, with light green endpapers. Includes Mongolian-Russian-English, pp. 1-[332].

1987a: [IUW] German-Mongol övriin tol' / G. Luvsan; êrkhêlsên Choï. Luvsanzhav. Ulaanbaatar; BNMAU Ardyn Bolovsrolyn Īamny Surakh bichig, setgüüliin negdsen redaksiin gazar, 1987. 263 p.; 17 cm. German-Mongolian dictionary.

1987b [1992]: [IUW] 简明畜牧词典. Mongolian. Jian ming xu mu ci dian. Mongolian. Malaju aquiyin tobci toli / [Ġansu-yin Tariyalang-un Yeke Surgaḡuli-yin Malaju Aquiyin Salburi ḡool naiiraḡulba; Böke, Debsiltü orcigulba]. 1. keb. First edition. [Kökeqota]; Öbör Mongḡol-un Arad-un Keblel-ün Qoriy-a, 1987 (1992 printing). 83, 787 p.; ill.; 21 cm. Translation made on the basis of a 1979 edition of the Jian ming xu mu ci dian. Includes index. In Mongolian (Mongolian script); definienda also in Chinese; Chinese index. Mongolian-Chinese dictionary of animal culture.

1987c: [IUW] Mal êmnêlêg, mal azh akhuin nêr tom'ëony Oros-Mongol tol'; Russko-Mongol'skii terminologicheskii slovar' po veterinarii i zhivotnovodstvu / B. Kuke, Sh. Tšêrêv; redaktorlasan, M. Tömörzhav. Ulaanbaatar; BNMAU Ardyn Bolovsrolyn Īamny Surakh Bichig, Setgüüliin Negdsen Redaktsyn Gazar, 1987. 500 p.; 21 cm. Includes errata sheet. Russian-Mongolian dictionary of animal culture.

1987d: [IUW] Mongol khêlnii dasgaltai unshikh bichig = Kniga dlia chteniia (teksty i uprazhneniia dlia inostrantsev, izuchaiushchikh mongol'skii iazyk) = Mongolian reader with exercises for foreign learners / G. Badan, D. Battulga; redaktor L. Lkhagva. Ulaanbaatar; BNMAU, Ardyn Bolovsrolын ҮАмны Surakh bichig, сэтгүүлийн нэгдсэн редактын газар, 1987. 151 p.; 22 cm. Includes a dictionary of words and phrases in Mongolian, Russian and English. Includes bibliographical references.

1987e: [IUW] Mongol khelshinzhléliin onolyn zarim asuudal; [khelniñ nêrlêkh, mèdeelêkh, kharilt'sakh dokhio / G. Zhambalsürên; redaktor S. Galsan. Ulaanbaatar; Shinzhlekh Ukhaany Akademiin khêvlêl, 1987. 118 p.; 22 cm. Includes summaries in Russian and English and a dictionary of linguistic terms in Mongolian, Russian and English. Bibliography: p. 81-87.

1987f: [IUW] 语言学名词术语 / 内蒙古自治区名词术语委员会审定; [Sungdui, Rasidongrub, Sodubilig]. Yu yan xue ming ci shu yu / Nei Menggu Zizhiqu ming ci shu yu wei yuan hui shen ding; [Sungdui, Rasidongrub, Sodubilig]. 第1版.

Di 1 ban. First edition. [呼和浩特]; 内蒙古教育出版社, 1987. [Kökeqota]; Nei Menggu jiao yu chu ban she, [1987]. 3, [2], 7, 159 p.; 19 cm. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society. Chinese-Mongolian dictionary of linguistic terms.

1988a: [IUW] Bankny azhillagaand kholbogdoltoï oros mongol tovch tol' / O. Niamsürên; redaktor N. ҮAnzan. Ulaanbaatar; Ulsyn khêvléliin газар, 1988. 204 p.; 20 cm. Russian-Mongolian dictionary of banks and banking.

1988b: [IUW] BNMAU dakh' Mongol khelniñ nutgiin aialguuny tol' bichig / B. Amarzhargal, Zh. TSoloo, G. Gangogtokh; [nauchny rukovoditel', A. Luvsandêndêv]. Ulaanbaatar; BNMAU-yu ShUa Khel Zokhiolyn Khurêelên, 1988- .v.; 23 cm. Contents: 1. Khalkh aialgun. 2. Oïrd aialgun. 3. Buriat aialguu. Mongolian-Russian dialect dictionary.

1988c: [IUW] 地理学名词术语 / 内蒙古自治区名词术语委员会审定 (编号03); [主编松迪, 拉西东日布, 曹都; 内蒙古教育出版社编辑]. Di li xue ming ci shu yu / Nei Menggu Zizhiqu ming ci shu yu wei yuan hui shen ding (bian hao 03); [zhu bian Songdi, Laxidongribu, Caodou; Nei Menggu jiao yu chu ban she bian ji]. Di 1 ban. First edition. [Kökeqota]; Nei Menggu jiao yu chu ban she; Nei Menggu xin hua shu dian fa xing, 1988. 2, 3, 12, 755 p., [2] folded leaves; 19 cm. In Chinese and Mongolian (Mongolian script). From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society. Chinese-Mongolian dictionary of geography.

1988d: [IUW] Краткий иллюстрированный русско-англо-монгольский словарь по машиностроению / V. V. Sharts = The concise illustrated Russian-English-Mongolian dictionary of mechanical engineering / Vladimir V. Shvarts = Mashin tekhnikiin zuragt Oros Angli Mongol tovch tol' / V.V. Shvarts; redaktor, TSo. Shagdarsürên. Kratkii illiustrirovannyi russko-anglo-mongol'skii slovar' po mashinostroeniïu / V. V. Sharts = The concise illustrated Russian-English-Mongolian dictionary of mechanical engineering / Vladimir V. Shvarts = Mashin tekhnikiin zuragt Oros Angli Mongol tovch tol' / V.V. Shvarts; redaktor, TSo. Shagdarsürên. Ulaanbaatar; ShUA-iin Khêvlêkh Uïldvêr, 1988. 315 p.; ill.; 24 cm. Uniform series: Ulsyn Nêr Tom"ëony Komissyn mèdeê; no. 140-143. Preface and table of contents also in English and Russian. Includes bibliographical references (p. 312) and indexes. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society.

1988e: [IUW] Monggól iges-ün ijağur-un toli / [Secencoğtu naiirağulba; Rincinkava suyuldu kinaba]. Kòkegota; Obòr Monggól-un Arad-un Keblel-ün Qoriy-a, 1988. 20, 2972 p.; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 2967-2972). In Mongolian (Mongolian script; definienda also in IPA). Mongolian-Chinese dictionary.

1988f: [IUW] 科学单位词典. Mongolian. Ke xue dan wei ci dian. Mongolian Sinjilekü uqağan-u nigeci-yin toli / Bayan orciğulqu naiirağulba. 1. Keb First edition. [Kòkeqota]; Obòr Monggól-un Arad-un Keblel-ün Qoriy-a, [1988]. x, 42, 812 p.; 20 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. vii-viii) and indexes. In Mongolian (Mongolian script), with some vocabulary from various languages. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society.

1988g: [IUW] Wörterbuch Mongolisch-Deutsch / von Hans-Peter Vietze; unter Mitarbeit von Klaus Koppe, Gabriele Nagy und Tumenbajaryn Daschzed. 1. Aufl. First edition. Leipzig; Verlag Enzyklopädie, c1988. 417 p.; 24 cm. Original blue and red cloth over boards, lettered in white. Includes Mongolian-German dictionary, pp. [1]-276.

"The short Mongolian-German dictionary presented here is intended as an aid in the study of the modern Mongolian language. It can also help those who know some Mongolian to translate simple texts [into German]. The dictionary includes everyday colloquial Mongolian" (Compiler's Foreword, tr: BM).

1988h: [IUW] 哲学名词术语 / 内蒙古自治区名词术语委员会审定. Zhe xue ming ci shu yu / Nei Menggu Zizhiqu ming ci shu yu wei yuan hui shen ding. 1. keb. First edition. [Dongliyu?; Obòr Monggól-un Surgan Kümüjil-ün Keblel-ün Qoriy-a, 1988.] 3, 13, 454 p.; 19 cm. Uniform series: 汉蒙对照名词术语丛书 (Nei Menggu jiao yu chu ban she) Han Meng dui zhao ming ci .shu yu cong shu (Nei Menggu jiao yu chu ban she). In Chinese and Mongolian (Mongolian script). From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society. Chinese-Mongolian dictionary of philosophy.

1989a: [IUW] Oros-Mongol surgaltyn tol'; 5,000 üg / G. Ochirbat, T. Pélzhid. Moskva; "Oros Khél"; Ulaanbaatar; BNMAU-yn Soël ĪAam Ulsyn Khèvlèiïn Gazar, 1989. 346 p.; 23 cm. Title on added t.p.: Russko-mongol'skiï uchebnyï slovar'. Russian-Mongolian dictionary.

1989b: [IUW] Russko-mongol'skiï slovar' po estestvennonauchnym distsiplinam; fizika, khimiia, matematika, nachertatel'naia geometriia, cherchenie, biologiiia; okolo 11,000 terminov / [avtory N.S. Kuznetsov ... et al.]. Moskva; "Russkiï iazyk", 1989. 192 p.; 20 cm. Russiand-Mongolian dictionary of science.

1990a: [IUW] Édiïn zasgiïn nér tomëny tol'; Oros-Mongol / D. Niam-Osor. Ulaanbaatar; Ulsyn Khèvlèiïn Gazar, 1990. 351 p.; 21 cm. On added t.p.: Slovar' èkonomicheskikh terminov; russko-mongol'skiï. Russian-Mongolian dictionary of economics.

1990b: [IUW] Filosofiïn tol' / [redaktsiïn kollegi, Ts. Balkhaazhav ... et al.]. Ulaanbaatar; Ulsyn Khèvlèiïn Gazar, 1990. 584 p.; 22 cm. Russian-Mongolian dictionary of philosophical terms.

1990c: [IUW] 汉蒙名词术语分类词典. 自然科学部分 /

《汉蒙名词术语分类词典》编纂委员会编 = [Kitad Monggól ner-e tomyian-u juil qubiyagsan toli. Bayigali-yin sinjilekü uqağan-u bülüg / "Kitad Monggól Ner-e Tomiyan-u Jüil Qubiyagsan Toli" Nayirağulqu Komis nayirağulba]. Han Meng ming ci shu yu fen lei ci dian. Zi ran ke xue bu fen / "Han Meng ming ci shu yu fen lei ci dian" bian zuan wei yuan hui bian = [Kitad Mongğol ner-e tomiyan-u jüil qubiyagsan toli. Bayigali-yin sinjilekü uqağan-u büliig / "Kitad Mongğol Ner-e Tomiyan-u Jüil Qubiyagsan Toli" Nayirağulqu Komis nayirağulba]. 呼和浩特; 内蒙古人民出版社, 1990. Huhehaote; Nei Menggu ren min chu ban she, 1990. 10, 2218 pages; 21 cm Includes indexes. Chinese and Mongolian (Mongolian in Mongolian script). Chinese-Mongolian dictionary of science.

1990d: [IUW] 蒙古语族语言词典 / 孫竹主编; 照那斯图 ... [et al.] 编著.

Menggu yu zu yu yan ci dian / Sun Zhu zhu bian; Zhaonasitu ... [et al.] bian zhu. 第1版.

Di 1 ban. 西宁市; 青海人民出版社, 1990. Xining Shi; Qinghai ren min chu ban she, 1990. 844 p.; 27 cm. Chinese, Mongolian (Mongolian script and IPA) and English. Includes bibliographical references and indexes. Mongolian-Chinese dictionary of Mongolian dialects.

1990e: [IUW] Muzzy little dictionary; Angli khēlniī khichēliin tol' bichig / [zokhiogch, D. Sērgēlēn; zurag chimēglēliig, P. Tōmōrpūrēv]. [Ulaanbaatar; Ulsyn khēvlēliin gazar, 1990.] 48 p.; ill. (some col.); 21 cm. In Mongolian (Cyrillic script) and English. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society. Mongolian-English Juvenile dictionary.

1990f: [IUW] Russko-mongol'skiĭ razgovornik / G.A. Sorokin, D. Badarch. Moskva; Russkiĭ iazyk; Ulan-Bator; Gosizdat MNR, 1990. 193 p.; 17 cm. Russian-Mongolian dictionary of conversation and phrases.

1991: see under BURIAT.

1992: [IUW] Anggili Mongğol tobci toli / Cōi. Lubsangjab; Ca. Sumiy-a. Ulağanbağatur; Mongğol Bicig Keblel-ün Qoriy-a, 1992. 221 p.; 20 cm. Cover title: English Mongolian dictionary. English and Mongolian (Cyrillic script; title in Mongolian script). From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society.

1993a: [IUW] 蒙日英辞典; 今までの辞書にない単語 / 北村彰秀 = Mongolian-Japanese-English dictionary; of words which are not contained in other dictionaries. Mō-Nichi-Ei jiten; ima made no jisho ni nai tango / Kitamura Akihide = Mongolian-Japanese-English dictionary; of words which are not contained in other dictionaries. Ulan-Bator [Mongolia]; Akihide Kitamura, 1993. vi, 56 p.; 21 cm. Mongolian-Japanese-English dictionary.

1993b: [IUW] Mongol ungar tovch tol' Zurgaan miangat' R. Zhagvaral D. Kara nar = Mongol magyar szójegyzék / R. Dzsagvaral és Kara György. [Budapest]; Nemzeti Tankönyvkiadó; ELTE Bölcsészettudományi Kar, 1993. 303 p.; 24 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 4-5). Mongolian-Hungarian dictionary.

1993c: [IUW] A new English-Mongolian dictionary = Shinè Angli-Mongol tol' / by D. Altangerel; [editor-in-chief, Caroline Humphrey]. 1st ed. [Ulaanbaatar; Krasnoyarsky Rabochy, c1993.]. v, 601 p.; ill.; 21 cm. Original dark blue paper over boards, lettered in red and decorated in yellow. English and Mongolian (Cyrillic script). No preliminary material. Includes English-Mongolian, pp. 1-595. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society.

1994a: [IUW] Angli-Mongol-Oros khuul' zuin tol' = English-Mongolian-Russian legal dictionary = Anglo-Mongolo-Russkii iuridicheskii slovar' / S. Narangèrèl. Ulaanbaatar; Mongolian Vassa Co., 1994. 455 p.; 24 cm. In English, Mongolian, and Russian.

1994b: [IUW] Mongol elements in Manchu / by William Rozycki. Bloomington, Ind.; Indiana University, Research Institute for Inner Asian Studies, 1994. 255 p.; 24 cm. Uralic and Altaic series; v. 157. Includes bibliographical references (p. 249-255) and index. Manchu-Mongol.

1995a: [IUW] Angli-Mongol èmnèlgiin tol' bichig / ᠲᠰ. Lkhagvasürèn; [khīanan zasvarlasan È. Pürèvdavaa]. Ulaanbaatar; Mongol Ulsyn Anagaakh Ukhaany Ikh Sarguul', 1995. 296 p.; 22 cm. English-Mongolian medical dictionary. Added t.p. in English.

1995b: [IUW] Mongol angli tol' / zokhiogch, ᠲᠰ. Gombosürèn, N. Tüvdènniām; khīanasan, ᠲᠰ. Gombosürèn. Ulaanbaatar; ["Naīman-Od" kompani], 1995. 197 p.; 20 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 3). In Mongolian (Cyrillic script). From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society. Mongolian-English dictionary.

1996a: [IUW] Erten-ü Monggöl kelen-ü sudulul / ᠰongqor jokiyaba. 1. keb. [Kökeqota]; Öbör Monggöl-un Surgan Kümüjil-ün Keblel-ün Qoriy-a, [1996]. 4, 806 p.; ill., port.; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references. In Mongolian (Mongolian script), with some Chinese. Mongolian-Middle Mongolian-Chinese dictionary.

1996b: [IUW] Khögzhmīn onolyn nēr tom'ëony khuraanguī taiḷbar tol'; Oros-Mongol, Mongol-Oros / Natsagiin Zhantsannorov; redaktor Zh. Badraa, ᠲᠰ. Ulaanbaatar; [s.n.], 1996. 140 p.; 22 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 139-140). Mongolian-Russian and Russian-Mongolian terminological dictionary of music theory.

1996c: [IUW] Mal èmnèlgiin nēr tom'ëony gurban khèlnī taiḷbar tol'; 50000 garuī ügtèi / B. Kukè, Sh. ᠲᠰèrèv; redaktor, K. Chuluunkhishig. Ulaanbaatar; [s.n.], 1996. 1111 p.; 19 cm. "Khaīrt ègch B. Bèlgèègiinkhèè gègèèn dursgald." Includes bibliographical references (p. 1097-1110). Mongolian; Cyrillic script; Latin, and Russian. Mongolian-Latin-Russian dictionary of veterinary medicine.

1996d: [IUW] Mongol ĪApon khèlnīi ĩaria / M. Khashimoto, È. Pürèvzhav, Zh. Tuīaa; èrkhèlsèn, M. Khashimoto. Ulaanbaatar; ["Öngöt khèvlèl" kompani], 1996. 161 p.; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 161). Mongolian (Cyrillic script) and Japanese (roman and vernacular). Mongolian-Japanese dictionary of conversation and phrases.

1997a: [LILLYbm] Mongolian-English Dictionary, compiled by Charles Bawden. London & New York: Kegan Paul International, 1997. Original dark blue cloth over boards, lettered and with publisher's device in silver; d.j. bright dark blue and white, lettered and decorated in red, yellow and black. Pp. [4] i ii-iv, 1 2-595 596. First edition. Mongolian [Cyrillic script]-English, pp. [1]-596, including addenda. Charles Bawden was Professor Emeritus of Mongolian at the University of London when the book appeared. Second copy: IUW.

"This dictionary of the modern Mongolian language has been compiled over the last thirty years by the method of reading contemporary printed material and evaluating words and phrases within their actual context... The dictionary contains about twenty-six and a half thousand main entries" (from the front inner flap of the d.j.). "In compiling this dictionary I have avoided using earlier dictionaries as a source for keywords... It would probably serve no useful purpose to provide a list of the publications I have used, as most of them are unlikely to be widely available, but... they include newspapers, popular magazines, handbooks on such subjects as animal husbandry, botany, zoology, history, geography, medicine, magic, hunting, music, arts and crafts and so on, as well as some fiction. I have, though, relied considerably, as one can only do, on definitions and equivalents given in existing dictionaries and technical vocabularies... Completeness is an illusory ideal... It is some fifty years now since the Cyrillic script was adapted to the Mongolian language" (Preface).

1997b: [IUW] Yapon Monggöl sin-e toli / Bai Jin Ġang, Boo Men Liyang, Mônggôngerel nayiragulba. 1. keb. First edition. [Kókeqot-a]; Öbör Monggöl-un Suyul-un Keblel-ün Qoriy-a, 1997. 4, [1], 1549 p.; 21 cm. Japanese-Mongolian dictionary (Mongolian in Mongolian and Cyrillic script).

1998?: [IUW] Angli-mongol tol' = Mongol-angli tol'; sètgiülch, khèvlèl mèdèèlliin azhiltan nart zoriulav / Т.С. Dashdondov; redaktor, Т.С. Ёнхбат. Ulaanbaatar; Mongolyn khèvlèliin khürèèlèn, [1998?]. 233 p.; 17cm. Added title page: English-Mongolian dictionary; for journalists and media workers. Mongolian-English dictionary. Sètgiülch tany shirèèniï nom; 3. Includes bibliographical references (p. 232).

1998a: [IUW] Angli-Mongol tol' / Damdinsürèngiñ Altangerèl; redaktor Zhim Khaffmann, Pürèvbaatarын Chimgèè] = English-Mongolian dictionary / by Damdinsurengiin Altangerel. New ed. [Ulaanbaatar]; Interpress Publishing & Printing Co., 1998. 581 p.; ill.; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 2). English and Mongolian; Cyrillic script.

1998b: [IUW] Dictionary = Tol' bichig = Wörterbuch; Mongol, Deutsch, Monggöl, English / projekt leading, F.W. Frenz; layout, editorship, Katrin Kell. [Ulaanbaatar]; Mongolian State University of Agriculture; [Germany?]; Fachhochschule Weihenstephan, c1998. 108 p. in various pagings; ports.; 16 x 22 cm. Mongolian; Cyrillic and roman script; German, and English; pref. in Mongolian; Mongol script and German. Mongolian-German-English dictionary.

1998c: [IUW] English-Mongolian dictionary; about 23000 terms & expressions and word combinations / B. Bold, N. Buren, R. Haltar. Ulaanbaatar: Khudaldaq Üildvèriin Dèed Surguul', 1998. 495 p.; 21 cm. Original pink cloth over boards, spine lettered in black; with light blue cloth panel pasted on front, lettered, decorated and illustrated in black, with a teacher conferring with two students. English and Mongolian; prefatory matter in Mongolian (Cyrillic) only. Includes English-Mongolian dictionary, pp. 6-479.

1998d: [IUW] Mongol-magyar kéziszótár / szerkesztette, Kara György = Монгол-Мажар товч толь / эмхэтгэсэн нь Хардорж. Mongol-magyar kéziszótár / szerkesztette, Kara György = Mongol-Mazhar tovch tol' / émkhètégésèn n' Khardorz. Budapest; Terebess Kiadó, 1998. xviii, 758 pages; 24 cm. Includes bibliographical references (pages ix-xiii). Mongolian (Cyrillic)-Hungarian dictionary.

1999 [2002]: [IUW] 新蒙汉语词典 = Sin-e Monggöl Kitad toli = Shinè Mongol - Khîatad tol' / 《新蒙汉语词典》编委会编. Xin Meng Han ci dian = Sin-e Monggöl Kitad toli = Shinè Mongol - Khîatad tol' / "Xin Meng Han ci dian" bian wei hui bian. 第1版. Di

1 ban. First edition. 北京; 商务印书馆, 2002. Beijing; Shang wu yin shu guan, 2002. 3, 1878 p.; 21 cm. Reprint. Originally published: 1st ed. Beijing; Shang wu yin shu guan, 1999. Mongolian-Chinese dictionary.

1999a: [IUW] Angli khèlnii khèvshmèl khèllègiin tovch tol' = A concise dictionary of English idioms / G. Dashdavaa; ТS. Sum"iaa. Ulaanbaatar; [s.n.], 1999. 99 p.; 23 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 1). English and Mongolian; Cyrillic script.

1999b: [IUW] Angli-Mongol, Mongol-Angli mal azh akhuin düimèn / N. Dorzhgotov; utgalsan ТS. Sum"iaa = English-Mongol, Mongol-English animal husbandry glossary / edited by Ts. Sumya. Ulaanbaatar "T&U Printing" KhKhK, 1999. 271 p.; 15 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 2). English and Mongolian; Cyrillic script.

1999c: [IUW] Monggol Kitad toli / Öbör Monggöl-un Yeke Surgaḡuli-yin Monggöl Sudulul-un Kuriyeleng-ün Monggöl Kele Bicig Sudulqu Ğacar; [qarigucagsan naiiraḡuluḡci, Ğoncoq]. 1. keb. First edition. Kökeqota; Öbör Monggöl-un Yeke Surgaḡuli-yin Keblel-ün Qoriy-a, 1999. 30, 1519 p.; 21 cm. "Nemen jasaḡsan debter." Mongolian and Chinese (Mongolian in Mongolian script). Mongolian-Chinese dictionary.

1999d: [IUW] Nihongo Mongorugo jiten = ĪApon Mongol tol' / Arai Shinichi, Balsangiin Sérzhav; khīanan tokhiolduulsan, Arai Shinichi, Natsagiin ТSērendorzh, Uchida Takashi. Ulaanbaatar; ["Interpress" khèvlèliin kompani], 1999. [20], 729 p.; maps; 27 cm. Includes bibliographical references (1st group, p. [19]). Japanese and Mongolian Cyrillic script. Japanese-Mongolian dictionary.

2000?: [IUW] Mongol-ĪApon tol' bichig / D. Battuul, ТS. Fumiko. [Ulaanbaatar?; s.n., 2000?] 86 p.; 30 cm. In Mongolian and Japanese (Mongolian in Cyrillic script). Mongolian-Japanese dictionary of conversation and phrases.

2000a: [IUW] Angli-Oros-Mongol zakh zèel sudlalyn tol' / [zokhiogchid, B. Ènebish, B. Anar] = English-Russian-Mongolian marketing dictionary / [by B. Enebish, B. Anar]. Ulaanbaatar; [s.n.], 2000. 36 p.; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p.

2000b: [IUW] Biznesiin Angli-Mongol taiḡbar tol'-lavlakh; Angli-Mongol, Mongol-Angli / Dügèrzhavyn Gotov; khīanan tokhiolduulsan, P. Shürchuluu. Ulaanbaatar; ["Sogoo nuur" KhKhK], 2000. 178 p.; ill.; 22 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 178) and index. In English and Mongolian; Cyrillic script. The English business term, with definition in English, followed by the Mongolian equivalent, with definition in Mongolian.

2000c: [IUW] Buddyn shashin, soèlyn taiḡbar tol' / [toliḡg zokhiogchid, Sh. Choīmaa ... (et al.)]. Ulaanbaatar; Mongol Ulsyn Ikh Surguul', 2000. 2 v.; ill. (1 col.); 21 cm. Dictionary of Buddhist culture. Buddyn sudlal; tsuvral 1-2. Includes bibliographical references and indexes. In Mongolian (Cyrillic script) and Tibetan; includes some romanized Sanskrit; annotations chiefly in Mongolian. Mongolian-Tibetan Dictionary of Buddhism.

2000d: [IUW] Mongol'sko-russkii slovar' = Mongol-oros tol'; okolo 50 tysiaçh slov i slovochochestanii / ĪUrii Kruchkin. Ulan-Bator; ["Admon" kompani], 2000. 2 v. (763 p.); 22 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. [8]). Mongolian (Cyrillic script)-Russian dictionary.

2000e: [IUW] Orchin tsagiin ĪApon-Mongol tol' bichig / Aleksandryn Tùmènzhargal; redaktor, Nakamura Katsukhiko. [Ulaanbaatar]; Zokhiogchiin zövshöörölgüi ènékhüü nomyg olshruulakh dakhin khèvlèkhiḡ khuuliar khoriglono, [2000]. 240 p.; ill.; 22 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 240). Japanese-Mongolian dictionary.

2001a: see under TIBETAN.

2001b: see under TIBETAN.

2001c: [IUW] Bol'shoi akademicheskii mongol'sko-russkii slovar' v chetyrekh tomakh; okolo 70000 slov / pod obshchei redaktsiei A. Luvsandendeva i TS. TSedendamba, otv. redaktor, G. TS. Piurbeev. Moskva; "Academia", 2001- 4 v.; 27 cm. Includes bibliographical references (v. 1, p. xxvii). Incomplete contents: Tom 1. A-G; Tom 2. D-O; Tom 4. KH-IA. Mongolian-Russian dictionary.

2001d: [IUW] English Mongolian dictionary of hotel terminology = Zochid buudlyn ug khellëgiin Angli-Mongol tol' / Borzhigon Choizhinzhavyn Ochirsukh; shüütgën niagtlasan Lodongiin Tüdev. Ulaanbaatar; [Printed by ... Interpress Publishing & Printing Co., 2001. 279 p.; ill.; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 279). English and Mongolian; (Cyrillic script). Terms by category; includes pattern conversations.

2001e: [IUW] Frants-Mongol khelniü övörmöts khellëgiin tol' / Baldangiin Khënmëdëkh; khianan tokhiolduulsan, TSëveliin Shagdarsüren. Ulaanbaatar; [Urlakh ërdëm khëvlëliin gazar], 2001. 237 p.; 22 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 237). French-Mongolian (Cyrillic script) dictionary.

2001f: [IUW] 汉蒙惯用语词典 = Kitad Monggol kebsimel kelelge-yin toli / S. Erdemtü naiirağulba. Han Meng guan yong yu ci dian = Kitad Monggol kebsimel kelelge-yin toli / S. Erdemtü naiirağulba. 1. keb. First edition. [Kökeqota]; Öbör Monggol-un Surgan Kümüjil-ün Keblel-ün Qoriy-a, [2001]. [5], 24, 497 p.; 20 cm. Chinese-Mongolian (Mongolian script) dictionary of terms and phrases. Indexes in Mongolian and Chinese.

2001g: [IUW] Mongol-Angli övörmöts khëlts, khellëgiin tol' = Mongolian-English dictionary of idioms / TS. Dashdondov. 1. Khëvlël. First edition. Ulaanbaatar; MONSUDAR khëvlëliin gazar, c2001. 366 p.; 15 cm. From the Dr. John Gombojab Hangin collection from The Mongolia Society.

2001h: [IUW] Orchin tsagiin Mongol khelniü öiröltsoo utgat ügiin tol' bichig; Mongol, IApon, Angliar taibarlasan = 現代モンゴル語類義語辞典; 蒙・和・英文説明付 = Dictionary of synonyms in modern Mongolian; explained in Mongolian, Japanese and English / 北村彰秀. Orchin tsagiin Mongol khelniü öiröltsoo utgat ügiin tol' bichig; Mongol, IApon, Angliar taibarlasan = Gendai Mongorugo ruigigo jiten; Mō-Wa-Eibun setsumeï tsuki = Dictionary of synonyms in modern Mongolian; explained in Mongolian, Japanese and English / Kitamura Akihide. Ulaanbaatar; "Nakhia" KhKhK, 2001. 146 p.; ill.; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 3). Mongolian (Cyrillic script), Japanese, and English.

2002a: [IUW] English-Mongolian dictionary of idioms / Chulundorj Dashdavaa. Warsaw; Academic Pub. House Dialog, 2002. 189 p.; 21 cm. Uniform series: Oriental languages. Includes bibliographical references (p. 188-189).

2002b: [IUW] English-Mongolian student's dictionary, compiled by R. Tsenden-Ish; edited by T. Naran. 1st ed. [Ulaanbaatar; "Sërgëlen" KhKhK,] 2002. 163 p.; 15 cm. English and Mongolian (Cyrillic script).

2002c: [IUW] 蒙學三書의蒙古語研究 / 李聖揆. Monghak samsō ūi Monggoō yōn'gu / Yi Sōng-gyu. Sōul; Tan'guk Taehakkyo Ch'ulp'anbu, 2002. 410 pages; 23 cm. Tongyanghak Yōn'guso yōn'gu ch'ongsō; 4. Based on the author's dissertation (doctoral - Sōnggyun'wan Taehakkyo, 1998). Includes bibliographical references (pages 394-395) and index. Korean-Mongolian dictionary.

2002d: [IUW] Mongolian English dictionary; illustrated compact edition / [chief editor, Chuluunbaatar Ganhuuyag]. 1st ed. Ulaanbaatar; Project Monendic, 2002. 941, 53 p.; col. ill.; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 933).

2003a: [IUW] Angli Mongol tol'; 130 000 orchim ūgtēi / Ё. Chinbat. 2nd, rev. ed. Ulaanbaatar; [s.n.], 2003. 1516 p.; 30 p. Cover title: English Mongolian dictionary.

2003b: see 2003 under TIBETAN.

2003c: [IUW] Délèntniŭ angilal zūi, angilbaryn Mongol nēr tom"ëo; latin-mongol-angli-oros / bolovsruulsan, S. Dulamtsērēn; ērkhēlsēn, ᠮᠤᠰ. ᠣᠨᠣᠷᠪᠠᠶᠠᠨ, N. Manibazar. Ulaanbaatar; [s.n.], 2003- v. <1>; 22 cm. Series: Ulsyn Nēr Tom"ëony Komissyn mēdēē; no. 148. Dictionary of mammals. Entries according to Linnean terminology. Includes bibliographical references (v. 1, p. 70-71) and indexes for each language. In Mongolian (Cyrillic script), Latin, English, and Russian.

2003d: [IUW] English-Mongolian & Mongolian-English dictionary of Buddhist terminology = Angli-Mongol, Mongol-Angli Burkhany shashny nēr tom"ëony tol' / Khatagin Go. Akim; [ariutgan shūūsēn N. Dorzhgotov]. Ulaanbaatar; [Ganprint KhKhK], 2003. 101 p.; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 99-100). English and Mongolian (Cyrillic script).

2003e: see 2003 under ASIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

2003f: [IUW] Nihongo-Mongorugo, Mongorugo-Nihongo hōritsu yōgo jiten = ĪApon-Mongol, Mongol-ĪApon khuul' zūin nēr tom"ëony tol' bichig / L. Ēnkhsaīkhan; khīānan tokhiolduulsan, B. Baīarsaīkhan, B. Saīnzaīāaa. Ulaanbaatar; [Khēvlēliin ADMON kompani], 2003. 505 p.; 25 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. [3]-[4]). In Japanese and Mongolian (Cyrillic script).; pref. in Japanese. Japanese-Mongolian legal dictionary.

2003g: [IUW] 新编汉蒙词典 = Шинэ Хятад-Монгол толь / зохиогч Ц. Ганбаатар, А. Гаваа; редактор Ж. Баясах. Shinē Khiatad-Mongol tol' = [Xin bian Han Meng ci dian] / ᠮᠤᠰ. Ganbaatar, A. Gavaa; redaktor Zh. Baīāsakh. Улаанбаатар; Монгол Улсын Их Сургууль, 2003. Ulaanbaatar; Mongol Ulsyn Ikh Surguul', 2003. 6, 3, 542 pages; 20 cm. Includes bibliographical reference (page 4, first gr.). Chinese-Mongolian dictionary.

2004a: [IUW] Англи-Монгол, Монгол-Англии хураангуй толь = English-Mongolian, Mongolian-English mini dictionary / Пүрэвийн Увш, Лэгдэнгийн Цэрэнчунт; редактор, Доктор Петер К. Марш. Angli-Mongol, Mongol-Anglii khuraanguī tol' = English-Mongolian, Mongolian-English mini dictionary / Pūreviīn Uvsh, Lēgdēngiīn ᠮᠤᠰᠡᠷᠡᠨᠴᠢᠨᠲᠤ; redaktor, Doktor Peter K. Marsh. Хоёр дахь хэвлэл Khoēr dakh' khēvlēl. Улаанбаатар; [[publisher not identified], 2004. Ulaanbaatar; [publisher not identified], 2004. 304 pages; 11 cm. English-Mongolian, Mongolian-English mini dictionary.

2004b: [IUW] Angli-Oros-Mongol geologiīn tol' = Anglo-Russko-Mongol'skiī geologicheskii slovar' = English-Russian-Mongolian dictionary of geology; Oros-Angli-

Mongol geologiïn tol' = Russko-Anglo-Mongol'skiï geologicheskii slovar' = Russian-English-Mongolian dictionary of geology / Sod. Oïuungèrèl, L. Zhargal, S. Dashdavaa. Ulaanbaatar; [MUIS-iin Khèvlèkh uïldvèrt khèvlèv], 2004. 517 p.; 21 cm. Russian-English-Mongolian dictionary of geology.

2004c: [IUW] Khèlshinzhilèliin nèr tom"ëony khuraanguï tol'; mongol-oros-angli / D. Tömörtogoo. 1. Khèvlèl. First edition. Ulaanbaatar; [ADMON kompani], 2004. vi, 266 p.; 21 cm. Added title page: Concise dictionary of linguistics. Includes bibliographical references (p. 244-248), resources for studying Asian languages (p. 157-261) and indexes. Mongolian-Russian-English dictionary of linguistics.

2005 [2007]: [IUW] 汉蒙词典 = Monggol Kitad toil /

[内蒙古自治区社会科学院蒙古语言文字研究所編]. Han Meng ci dian = Monggol Kitad toli / [Nei Menggu Zizhiqu she hui ke xue yuan Menggu yu yan wen zi yan jiu suo bian]. 第3版. Di 3 ban. Third edition. 北京市; 民族出版社, 2005. Beijing Shi; Min zu chu ban she, 2005 (2007 printing). 71, 1909 p., [3] leaves of plates; col. ill.; 27 cm. Chinese-Mongolian dictionary.

2005; [IUW] Mongol Angli tol' / È. Chinbat. 2. zasvarlasan khèvlèl. Second edition. Ulaanbaatar; [È. Chinbat?], 2005. 553 p.; 22 cm. Cover title: Mongolian English dictionary. First ed. was published in 1998.

2007: [IUW] Traveller's language guide; Mongolian / by J. Bat-Ireedui & B. Nomunzul. 3rd ed. Ulaanbaatar; Mon-Education Press, 2007. 191 p.; 15 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 190-191). Mongolian-English dictionary.

2008a: [IUW] English-Mongolian dictionary of statistical terms = Статистикийн нэр томъёоны Англи-Монгол тайлбар толь / [editor-in-chief, P. Byambatseren]. English-Mongolian dictionary of statistical terms = Statistikiin nèr tom"ëony Angli-Mongol taiïbar tol' / [editor-in-chief, P. Byambatseren]. Ulaanbaatar; National Statistical Office, 2008. 175 p.; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 173-175).

2008b: [IUW] Mongolian-German-Russian dictionary, by I.J. Schmidt; with a foreword by Alexander Vovin. Folkestone, UK; Global Oriental, 2008. viii, 340 p.; 26 cm. Series: The languages of Asia series.

2008c: [IUW] *Niagtlan bodokh bürtgèliin nèr tom"ëony Angli-Mongol tovch taiïbar tol' / Taiïzh ovogt Lkhagvaagiin Ènkhemènd; khïanan tokhiolduulsan, Richard M. Vogel, Dulamsürèngiin Niamaa. Нэмж засвар оруулсан 2. Хэвлэл. Nèmzh zasvar oruulsan 2. Khèvlèl. Second edition. Улаанбаатар; Монгол Улсын Их Сургууль. Эдийн Засгийн Сургууль, 2008. Ulaanbaatar; Mongol Ulsyn Ikh Surguul'. Èdiin Zasgiin Surguul', 2008. 317 p.; 26 cm. Added title page: English-Mongolian dictionary of accounting terms. Includes bibliographical references (p. [4]).*

2008d: [IUW] *Övriin zuragt Mongol/Angli tol'; [20,000 nèr tom"ëo, 3,600 òngòt zurag, 600 sèdèv] / Jean-Claude Corbeil, Ariane Archambault; Mongol khèvlèliin redaktor, Baabar; Mongol khèlniï redaktor, B. Tüvshintògs. Montréal, Quebec; QA International; Ulaanbaatar; Nepko Publishing, 2008. vi, 591 p.; col. ill.; 17 cm. Added title page: Mini visual Mongolian/English dictionary. Includes indexes.*

2008e: [IUW] Современный монгольско-русский тематический словарь = Orchin ueiïn mongol-oros sèdèvchilsèn tol' / Д. Ульгийсайхан, Л.Г. Скородумова. Sovremennyï mongol'sko-russkiï tematicheskii slovar' = Orchin ueiïn mongol-oros sèdèvchilsèn tol' / D. Ul'giisaïkhan, L.G. Skorodumova. Москва; Восточная литература

РАН, 2008. Moskva; Vostochnaia literatura RAN, 2008. 360 p.; 23 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 13). Mongolian-Russian dictionary.

2008f: [IUW] Гэрлээ, Бат-Эрдэнийн. Gèrlèè, Bat-Èrdèniîn. Tekhnikiin ug khèllègiin tol' bichig / Bat-Èrdèniîn Gèrlèè; khīanasan, T̄Sai Ziēnsin'. [Улаанбаатар?]; "Бест принтинг", 2008. [Ulaanbaatar?]; "Best printing", 2008. 261 p.; 20 cm. Mongolian-Chinese dictionary of technology.

2008g: [IUW] Dictionary of Sonom Gara's Erdeni-yin sang; a Middle Mongol version of the Tibetan Sa-skyā legs bshad; Mongol-English-Tibetan / by Gyorgi Kara, with the assistance of Marta Kiripolská. Leiden; Boston; Brill, 2009. xlii, 337 p.; 25 cm. Brill's Inner Asian library; v. 23. Includes bibliographical references (p. 333-337).

2010: [IUW] Амьтдын лавлах толь А-Я / эмхтгэсэн, Ч. Наранцэцэг; редактор Я. Амид; зураач, Д. Батсуурь. Am'tdyn lavlakh tol' A-ĪA / èmkhtgèsèn, Ch. Narantsètsèg; redaktor ĪA. Amid; zuraach, D. Batsuur'. Улаанбаатар Хот; [Бемби Сан], 2010. Ulaanbaatar Khot; [Bembi San], 2010. 86 pages; color illustrations; 29 cm Includes bibliographical references (page 83). In Mongolian (Cyrillic). Mongolian-Russian-English dictionary on animals.

2011-2015: [IUW] Большой академический русско-монгольский словарь; в четырех томах / авторы с монгольской стороны: О. Адьяа, Е. Баярсайхан, Д. Дорж, Э. Дондов, А. Чулуунбат; с российской стороны: И.А. Грунтов, П.П. Дамбуева, Э.У. Омакаева, Г.Ц. Пюрбеев; редакционная коллегия, академик АН Монголии Б. Тумуртоогоо, член-корреспондент РАН В.А. Виноградов, доктор филол. наук проф. О. Адьяа, доктор филол. наук, проф. Г.Ц. Пюрбеев, Ц. Гомбосурэн, Г. Аким = Орос-Монгол дэлгэрэнгүй; дөрвөн боть. Bol'shoi akademicheskii russko-mongol'skii slovar'; v chetyrekh tomakh / avtory s mongol'skoï storony: O. Ad'iaa, E. Baiarsaikhan, D. Dorzh, È. Dondov, A. Chuluunbat; s rossiïskoï storony: I.A. Gruntov, P.P. Dambueva, È.U. Omakaeva, G.T̄S. Piürbeev; redaktsionnaia kollegiia, akademik AN Mongolii B. Tumurtogoo, chlen-korrespondent RAN V.A. Vinogradov, doktor filol. nauk, prof. O. Ad'iaa, doktor filol. nauk, prof. G.T̄S. Piürbeev, T̄S. Gombosurèn, G. Akim = Oros-Mongol dèlgèrènguï tol'; dörvön bot'. Москва; Издательская фирма "Восточная литература" РАН, 2011-<2015> . Moskva; Izdatel'skaia firma "Vostochnaia literatura" RAN, 2011-<2015>. volumes <1-3>; 25 cm. Includes bibliographical references (volume 1, pages 715-727). Russian and Mongolian Cyrillic. Incomplete contents:

Том 1. А-Д
том 2. Е-О
том 3. П-С
Tom 1. A-D tom 2. E-O
tom 3. P-S.

[MONGONDOW] Mongondow, or Bolaang Mongondow, is one of the Indonesian languages spoken in Bolaang Mongondow Regency and neighbouring regencies of North Sulawesi (Celebes) and Gorontalo Provinces, Indonesia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mog. Alternate Names: Bolaang Mongondow, Bolang-Mogondo, Minahassa, Mongondou.

1951: [LILLYbm] Bolaang Mongondowsch-Nederlandsch Woordenboek, mit Nederlandsch-Bolaang Mongondowsch register, by W. Dunnebier. 's-Gravenhage: Martinus Nijhoff, 1951. Original pale blue wrappers, lettered and decorated in dark blue. Pp. I-VI-XII, 1-635 636. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes Bolaang Mongondo-Dutch, pp. 1-457, and Dutch-Bolaang Mongondo, pp. 483-685. Bolaang Mongondo is spoken on the island of Celebes in Indonesia. This appears to be the first dictionary of the language.

[MONZOMBO] Monzombo is a minor Ubangian language of the Congos. There are three varieties, Monzombo (Mondjembo), Kpala (Kwala), and Yango, which Ethnologue lists separately. It is not clear how distinct they are (Wiki).

Ethnologue: moj. Alternate Names: Mondjembo, Monjombo, Munzombo.

1911: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1980: see under YAKA.

[MONO (USA)] Mono /'mounoʊ/ is a Native American language of the Numic group of Uto-Aztecan languages, the ancestral language of the Mono people. Mono consists of two dialects, Eastern and Western. The name "Monachi" is commonly used in reference to Western Mono and "Owens Valley Paiute" in reference to Eastern Mono. In 1925, Alfred Kroeber estimated that Mono had 3,000 to 4,000 speakers. As of 2010 only about 40 elderly people speak Mono as their first language. It is classified as critically endangered by Unesco. It is spoken in the southern Sierra Nevada mountains, the Mono Basin, and the Owens Valley of central-eastern California. Mono is most closely related to Northern Paiute; these two are classified as the Western group of the Numic branch of the Uto-Aztecan language family (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mnr. Alternate Names: Monache, Monachi.

1907-1930: see Vol. 15 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[MONO (Solomon Islands)] Mono, or Alu, is an Oceanic language of Solomon Islands reported in 1999 to be spoken by 660 people on Treasury Island (Mono proper), 2,270 on Shortland Island (Alu dialect), and 14 on Fauru Island (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mte. Alternate Names: Alu, Mono-Alu.

1903: see under OCEANIC LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1926: [LILLYbm] Mono-Alu folklore: (Bougainville strait, Western Solomon islands), by Gerald [Clair William] Camden Wheeler [1872- ]. London: George Routledge, 1926. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in gold; d.j. tan, lettered in dark green. Pp. i-vii viii-xv xvi, 1-7 8-394 395-396. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes Mono-English glossary, 370-389, double columned. This copy with large note in blue pencil on front cover of d.j.: "21/- NOW 6/-".

"The collection of Tales and Song Texts here given, was made during a stay in Alu and Mono, Bougainville Strait, Western Solomon Islands, in 1908-9 for ethnological research of ten months.... Mono is known as Treasury Island, Alu as Shortland Island; with Fauru they may be grouped as the islands of the Bougainville Strait. Some sixty to seventy years ago the Mono people conquered Alu and Fauru; and to-day Mono is the speech of all three islands" (Introduction).

[MONTAGNAIS] Innu-aimun or Montagnais is an Algonquian language spoken by over 10,000 Innu in Labrador and Quebec in Eastern Canada. It is a member of the Cree–Montagnais–Naskapi dialect continuum and is spoken in various dialects depending on the community (Wiki).

Ethnologue: moe. Alternate Names: Innu, Innu Aimun.

1876: [IUW] Dictionnaire de la langue dènè-dindjiè, dialectes montagnais ou chippewayan, peaux de lièvre et loucheux; enfermant en outre un grand nombre de termes propres à sept autres dialectes de la même langue; précédé d'une monographie des Dènè-dindjiè, d'une grammaire et de tableaux synoptiques des conjugaisons / par le R. P. E. Petitot. Paris; E. Leroux; San Francisco; A. L. Bancroft, 1876. xxxviii, 367 [1] p., [5] leaves of plates; fold map, 5 fold. ill.; 36 cm. First edition. Library binding.

Bibliothèque de linguistique et d'ethnographie américaines; v. 2. "Cette collection est tirée à 200 exemplaires, 150 exemplaires sur papier fort, 50 sur papier de Hollande extra." French-Montagnais/Chippeway-Dialecte des peaux-de-lièvre ou K'a-tchô-gotinné Déné-Dialecte des Loucheux ou Quarellers ou Dékk'edhé Dindjié, pp. [1]-367.

1901: [LILLYbm] Dictionnaire Français-Montagnais, avec un vocabulaire Montagnais-Anglais, une courte liste de noms géographiques et une grammaire Montagnaise, compiled by Geo[rge Joseph Guyon] Lemoine. Boston: W.B. Cabot and P. Cabot, 1901. Original tan limp cloth, lettered in gold. Pp. [2], 1-281 282, 1-2 3-63 64. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. This copy with the ownership signature of Dillon Wallace (1863-1939), the famous Labrador explorer and author of numerous works, including The Lure of the Labrador Wild (1905), The Wilderness Cataways (1913), The Gaunt Gray Wolf (1914), The Arctic Stowaways (1917), and Buddies of the Sea (1932). This is the first dictionary devoted solely to Montagnais. Second copy: [LILLYbm] Except for two additional blank leaves at beginning and end of volume, identical to issue in limp tan cloth, but issued in gray wrappers, lettered in black; spine and rear cover blank.

"This work was originally destined solely for use in evangelizing the Montagnais and the Naskapis... It will certainly give a good idea of the Montagnais language and should disabuse those who think that the languages of the savages are simply jargons... The Montagnais and the Naskapis, who speak this language, hunt and fish across a vast region in the north-eastern part of Canada between the St. Lawrence Gulf... the North Atlantic Ocean, and Hudson Bay... Their nomadic life is revealed above all by the parallel of their language with Algonquin and its derivatives... God grant that the three motives that have moved us to undertake this work may be fully justified: that is, to give to the missionaries the means to evangelize the savage tribes in their trust, to interest the linguists by opening a new horizon to their studies, and finally to contribute to the spiritual and temporal well-being of those to whom we devote ourselves" (Foreword, tr: BM).

1978: [LILLY] Eukun eshi aiamiast ninan ute ulamen-shipit [=This is how we speak in La Romaine]. La Romaine, Quebec: Comité Culturel des Montagnais de La Romaine, 1978. 487 p. Original stiff green and white wrappers, lettered and illustrated in white, in black plastic spiral binding. First edition. Montagnais-French, pp. [1]-486. No preliminary material.

"Montagnais-French lexicon, compiled by the Cultural Committee of the Montangais in Romaine in collaboration with all the inhabitants of La Romaine. This lexicon includes 4260 Montagnais words and 400 illustrations" (tr: BM). (p. [487]).

1982 [1984]: [IUW] Dictionnaire montagnais-français de Natashkuan / Mani Ten Kaltush. [Jonquière]; Presses du Collège de Jonquière, 1982- v.; 28 cm. Library binding incorporating original page orange front wrapper, lettered in black. Contents: v. 1. Lettre "A" --, Montagnais-French, ff. 1-209. Reproduced from typescript. Printed with the support of the S.A. G. M. A. I. on the presses of the College of Jonquière. September 1984 (noted on second folio).

1992: [[IUW] Carnet de notes; Montagnais-Naskapi, 1947-1992 / Jean-Paul Vinay. Sidney, C.-B.; Éditions Laplante-Agnew, c1992. 219 p.; ill.; 23 cm. Library binding incorporating original white wrappers and spine, lettered in black. Includes a photographic reproduction of filled-out carnets for a linguistic questionnaire, French-Montagnais/Naskapi, pp. 75-177.

"The present text does not pretend to present a complete analysis of the Montagnais of Pointe Bleue and the Naskapi of Mistassini. It consists of a photographic reproduction, accompanied by a few notes, of a questionnaire conducted in that area in 1947-48, complemented by photographs and a few drawings. This questionnaire remained unpublished [until now]" (Preliminary remarks, tr: BM).

[MONTOL] Montol is an Afro-Asiatic language spoken in Plateau State, Nigeria. Dialects are Baltap-Lalin and Montol (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mtl

2004: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[MONUMBO] Monumbo is a Papuan language of Papua New Guinea. There is an early description in German [see below] (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mxk.

1914: [LILLYbm] Die Monumbo-Sprache. Grammatik und Wörterverzeichnis, by Franz Vormann & Wilh. Scharfenberger. Vienna: Mechitharisten-Buchdruckerei, 1914. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [10] 1 2-252. First edition. Anthropos: Internationale Sammlung Linguistischer Monographien, Band 1. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes Monumbo-German, pp. [143]-183, and German-Monumbo, pp.[184]-236. This is the only substantial vocabulary of the language.

"The area in which Monumbo is spoken is narrowly circumscribed. It is spoken: 1) near Potsdamhafen...to the south of the volcanic island, by not more than 400 inhabitants, 2) by the Ndalúa, who are considered Monumbos who have migrated, living 10 kilometers west of Hatzfeldhafen, numbering about 150 individuals, and 3) by the Ngáimbom, who speak a dialect of Monumbo and live in the hills of the hinterlands from Prinz Albrecht-Hafen (Bogia) to Hatzfeldhafen. Monumbo is not suitable as a trade language, because it is too difficult; in fact there are only a few individuals outside the region who have some understanding of Monumbo" (The Linguistic Area, tr: BM).

[MONZOMBO] Monzombo is a minor Ubangian language of the Congos. There are three varieties, Monzombo (Mondjembo), Kpala (Kwala), and Yango, which Ethnologue lists separately. It is not clear how distinct they are (Wiki).

Ethnologue: moj. Alternate Names: Mondjembo, Monjombo, Munzombo.
1911: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES...POLYGLOT.

[MÒORÉ] Mooré (known in the language as Mòõré; also Mòoré, Mooré, Moré, Moshi, Moore, More) or simply the Mossi language, is one of two official regional languages of Burkina Faso, closely related to the Frafra language spoken just across the border in the northern half of Ghana and less-closely to Dagbani and Mampruli further south. It is the language of the Mossi people, spoken by approximately 5 million people in Burkina Faso, plus another 60,000+ in Mali and Togo. While Mooré is often referred to as "the Mossi language," many Burkinabé of other ethnic groups also speak Mooré, as it is the lingua franca in rural regions where knowledge of French is very limited (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mos. Alternate Names: Mole, Moose, More, Moré, Moshi, Mossi.

1910: [LILLYbm] Étude sur la langue des Mossi (Boucle du Niger) suivie d'un vocabulaire & de textes, by F[ernand] Froger. Paris: Ernest Laroux, 1910. Contemporary red half-leather and marbled paper over boards; spine lettered and decorated in gold, with five raised bands. Pp. [6] I II-XVI XVII-XXIV, 1 2-259 260. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Not in Hendrix (who lists the same author's Manual pratique de langue möré (Mossi du cercle de Ouagadougou), Paris, 1923). French-Mossi vocabulary, pp. [111]-205. This is a presentation copy from the author: "A Monsieur l'Administrateur des Colonies... Hommage de la plus respectueuse gratitude, F. Froger." Second copy: [LILLYbm] Later green cloth over boards, lettered in gold.

"Impelled by a natural taste for the study of languages...I undertook, in April of 1907, the study of the dialect of the Mossi people, which whom I was in contact for the first time. At first I tried in vain to learn something of this new language: the sphinx did not reveal its secret. So I took the approach of the botanist who plucks off stems and petals: I collected in the chance daily conversations with the natives around me whatever words and expressions I could. After five months of these attempts, I was asked to take up the subject as a serious study by the Administrator of the Colonies...Although I felt the weight of this mission, I accepted it...It is the modest results of this effort that I today offer to the public... There has been no scholarly study of the Mossi language up to this day...[pp. V-VII include a discussion of the brief vocabularies previously published, with a bibliography, p. (xv)]" (Introduction, tr: BM).

1932: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

ca. 1949: [LILLY] [cover title] Dictionary and Practical Notes: Mossi-English Languages, by Rev. John F. Hall. [Ouhigouya, Haute Volta, French West Africa: Assemblies of God Mission, ca. 1949]. Separate title page for vocabulary, ff. 1-43, 1-78: Mossi-English Vocabulary, by John & Cuba Hall, Ouahigouya, Haute Volta, French West Africa, 1931-1948. Original red paper wrappers; spiral bound. First edition.

1963: [LILLYbm] Les noms individuels chez les Mosi, by Maurice Houis. Dakar: [printed in Limoges, France], 1963. Original tan wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. 1-5 6-141 6-141 142-146. First edition. "Thèse complémentaire pour le Doctorat [des] lettres présentée à la Faculté des Lettres et Sciences Humaines de Paris". Hendrix 2026. Includes Mossi personal names with explanations of their meanings in French, pp. [31]-103. This is the official academic issue of the thesis, which was also issued by the Institut français d'Afrique noire in Dakar in the same year as volume 17 in the series "Initiations et études africaines".

1976: [IUW] Du gomdé au Verbe incarné: puissance de la parole, by Wedraogo Ernest Dasabswende. Ouagadougou: [s.n.], 1976. p. a-c, iii, 157 p.; 30 cm. On cover: Mémoire, Grand Séminaire de Koumi, Haute-Volta. Bibliography: p. 156-157. Moore-Gurma languages--Vocabulary.

[MORI ATAS] Mori Atas, also known as Upper Mori or West Mori, is an Austronesian language of the Celebic branch. The traditional Mori Atas homeland is the upper course of the Laa River in Central Sulawesi (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mzq. Alternate Names: Aikoa, Berg-Tomori, Boven-Mori, Upper Mori, West Mori.

1999: see under BUNGKU-TOLAKI LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MORI BAWAH] Mori Bawah, also known as Lower Mori or East Mori, is an Austronesian language of the Celebic branch. It is one of the principal languages of the Morowali Regency in Central Sulawesi (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xmz. Alternate Names: Beneden-Tomori, East Mori, Lower Mori, Nahina, Oost-Mori, Petasia.

1999: see under BUNGKU-TOLAKI LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MORIGI] Morigi is a Papuan language of southern Papua New Guinea (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mdb. Alternate Names: Dabura, Morigi Island, Turama River Kiwai, Wariadai.

1973: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MORISYEN] Mauritian Creole or Morisyen (Mauritian Creole: kreol morisien) is a French-based creole language spoken in Mauritius. In addition to the French base of the language, there are also a number of words from English and from the many African and South Asian languages that have been spoken on the island (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mfe. Alternate Names: Kreol, Kreole, Maurisyen, Mauritian, Mauritian Creole, Mauritius Creole French, Maurysen.

1987: [IUW] Morisyen-English-français : diksyoner kreol morisyen = dictionary of Mauritian Creole / Philip Baker, Vinesh Y. Hookoomsing. Paris : Harmattan, 1987. 365 p. ; 24 cm. Library binding, incorporating original green and blue front wrapper, lettered in white and blue. Morisey-English-French dictionary, pp. 21-348. Bibliography: p. 355-361.

"In compiling this dictionary we have tried to include as many as possible of the words which are currently employed, amongst themselves, by people who always speak Mauritian Creole (MC) in their own homes. We have also included words which do not meet this criterion but which are found in old texts written in MC.... Work on this dictionary began in 1967.... [followed by detailed history of the compilation of the dictionary and those who were involved]" (English language Introduction).

[MORO] Moro is a Niger–Congo language in the Heiban family spoken by the Moro people in the Nuba Mountains of Kordofan, Sudan (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mor. Alternate Names: Dhimorong.

1971: [IUW] The Moro language; grammar and dictionary, by Mr. and Mrs. K. Black. Khartoum, 1971. [11], ii, 179 p. 33 cm. Linguistic monograph series, no. 6. Bibliography: p. [11] (1st group). Library binding. Includes English-Moro dictionary, pp. 116/a-179.

"The aim of this monograph series is to make readily available Sudan Linguistic material which has hitherto existed only in manuscript form or in lesser known journals" (Foreword).

[MORONENE] Moronene is an Austronesian language (one of the Celebic languages) spoken in Bombana Regency, Southeast Sulawesi, Indonesia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mqn. Alternate Names: Maronene.

1999: see under BUNGKU-TOLAKI LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MOTA] Mota is an Oceanic language spoken by about 750 people on Mota island, in the Banks Islands of Vanuatu. During the period 1840-1940, Mota was used as a missionary lingua franca throughout areas of Oceania included in the Melanesian Mission, an Anglican missionary agency. Mota was used on Norfolk Island, in religious education; on other islands with different vernacular languages, it served as the language of liturgical prayers, hymns, and some other religious purposes. Elizabeth Fairburn Colenso translated religious material into the language. Robert Henry Codrington compiled the first dictionary of Mota (1896) [see below], and worked with George Sarawia and others to produce a large number of early publications in this language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mtt.

1896: [LILLYbm] A dictionary of the language of Mota, Sugarloaf Island, Banks' Islands, with a short grammar and index, by R[obert] H[enry] Codrington & J[ohn] Palmer. London: Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, 1896. Original olive green cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. i-v vi-xxiii xxiv, 1 2-312. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes Mota-English, pp. [1]-288, and English-Mota index, pp. [289]-312. This is the first dictionary of the language. This copy with the ownership inscription of J.W. Layard, dated Oxford, 1942. This is probably John Layard, the author of Stone men of Malekula, Vao (London, 1942) and The incest taboo and the virgin archetype (Zurich, 1945), among others.

"The language of Mota is spoken as their native tongue by some eight hundred people, and has never probably been spoken in a past generation by more than a thousand. It derives its only importance from its having become, by circumstances rather than by choice, the language used as a common medium of communication in the Melanesian Mission...It has become, next to the language of Fiji, the most general known of the Melanesian tongues [as a result of its use in missionary work]...Mota, Sugarloaf I., is one of the Banks' Group, which lies to the north of the New Hebrides... To avoid 'dog' Mota is the great thing. It is probable that some corruption of a native language is inevitable in Mission work, in which the language must be used before it is known; and no great harm is done. But great mischief is done when a native language is weakened and impoverished for teaching and translating by the use of an incorrect and narrow vocabulary" (Preface).

1928: see 1928a under MALAGASY, PLATEAU.

[MOTU] Motu (sometimes called Pure Motu or True Motu to distinguish it from Hiri Motu) is one of many Central Papuan Tip languages and is spoken by the Motuans, particularly around the capital, Port Moresby. A simplified form of Motu developed as a trade language in the Papuan region, in the southeast of the main island of New Guinea, originally known as Police Motu, and today known as Hiri Motu. After Tok Pisin and English, Hiri Motu was at the time of independence the third most commonly spoken of the more than 800 languages of Papua New Guinea, although its use has been declining for some years, mainly in favour of Tok Pisin. Motu is classified as one of the Malayo-Polynesian languages and bears some linguistic similarities to Polynesian and Micronesian languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: meu. Alternate Names: Pure Motu, True Motu.

1885: [LILLY] Grammar and vocabulary of language spoken by Motu tribe, New Guinea, by Rev. W.G. Lawes; with introduction by Rev. Geo. Pratt. Sydney [N.S.W.]; Thomas Richards, Government Printer, 1885. x, 108 p.; 20 cm. Bound in original black skiver lettered in gilt. First edition. Lilly Library copy has inkstamped beneath imprint: London; Trübner & Co. With the book label of John Lawson. Ferguson 11485. BM 131:846.

"The following pages represent the first attempt to classify and reduce to a written form the grammar and vocabulary of the language spoken by the Motu tribe of New Guinea.... My knowledge of the language has been acquired during seven years residence among the people who speak it.... On my return I hope to be able to prepare something like a comparative grammar and specimen vocabulary of the different dialects spoken in the districts where we have mission stations established" (Preface).

"The Reverend William George Lawes (1839 - 1907) was an English minister and missionary, an expert on Papua, and the first permanent European resident there. He settled in Port Moresby in 1874, became expert in the Motu language, was friendly with the south coast tribes, served as advisor to the colonial governor Sir Peter Scratchley, and produced the first Papuan language book" (bookseller's description: Antipodean Books).

Second edition 1888: [LILLYbm] Grammar and Vocabulary of the Language Spoken by Motu Tribe (New Guinea), by W[illiam] G[eorge] Lawes. Sydney: Charles Potter, 1888. Original full black leather, lettered in gold. Pp. i-iii iv-xii, 1 2-129 130. Second, revised edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes English-Motu, pp. [17]-57, and Motu-English, pp. [59]-108, as well as a "Comparative vocabulary of seven New Guinea dialects," pp. 117-129, including English, Motu, Kerepunu, Aroma, South Cape, Kadi, Maiva, and Motumotu.

"The present edition has been revised, corrected, and enlarged. A good many new words have been added, and a few pages of phrases likely to be of use to beginners or visitors. The comparative vocabulary will be of interest to philologists. It comprises 400 words in seven dialects of the south-east coast..." (Preface to the Second Edition). "[With regard to the comparative list] The words have been collected as follows:--In our college at Port Moresby we have youths from almost all the places [where the dialects are spoken]. These have been there long enough to have a thorough knowledge of the Motuan. I printed a list of words and gave them out, a slip at a time, to be filled in by the most intelligent of the students. In this way several of them were completed by natives only, while in other cases the original lists were filled in by Rarotongan or Samoan teachers employed in our Mission... In the case of Motumotu, the murder of Tauraki, the mission teacher, has deprived me of the opportunity of correcting the slips from there. The teacher was one of our most intelligent men, and by far the best linguist we had. Philology has sustained a loss in his untimely death" (Comparative vocabulary of seven New Guinea dialects, pp. [115]-116).

Third, enlarged edition 1896: [LILLYbm] Grammar and Vocabulary of the Language Spoken by Motu Tribe (New Guinea), by Rev. W[illiam] G[eorge] Lawes. Sydney: Charles Potter, 1896. Hardbound without d.j. 157 pp. Third, enlarged edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Includes English-Motu and Motu-English, as well as a [revised] comparative vocabulary of seven Motu dialects: English, Motu, Keapara, Galoma, South Cape, Kabadi, Malva, and Toaripi. Second copy: [LILLYbm].

Reprinted 1979: [IUW] Grammar and vocabulary of language spoken by Motu tribe (New Guinea), by W. G. Lawes; with introd. by George Pratt. 3d and enl. ed. New York; AMS Press, 1979. xiv, 157 p.; 23 cm. Reprint of the 1896 ed. published by the Govt. Printer, Sydney.

1941a: [LILLYbm] A Grammar of the Motu Language of Papua, by R. Lister-Turner & J.B. Clark, second edition, edited by Percy Chatterton. Sydney: A.H. Pettifer, [1941]. Original dark green cloth over boards, lettered in white. 92 pp. Second edition. Not in Zauhmüller.

"The 'Revised Motu Grammar and Vocabulary' has now been out of print for some years, and in reprinting it, it has been decided to issue it in two parts, of which this 'Grammar' is the first... Two Dictionaries will be available for use in conjunction with this Grammar. The larger will be a reprint, with a few additions, of the very comprehensive vocabulary which formed the second part of Messrs. Turner and Clark's book. The second and smaller, entitled 'A Basic Motu dictionary,' comprises a specially selected vocabulary of approximately 1,000 common words, for the use of beginners" ("Editor's Note").

1941b: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary of the Motu Language of Papua, by R. Lister-Turner & J. B. Clark, second edition, edited by Percy Chatterton. Sydney: A. H. Pettifer, [1941]. Original dark gray cloth over boards, lettered in light gray. Pp. 1-4 5-158. Second edition. Not in Zauhmüller. This copy with the ownership signature of Ken Searle, probably the artist (see: West: paintings by Ken Searle, [Emu Plains, N.S.W.: Lewers Bequest and Penrith Regional Art Gallery, 1991]). "A re-issue, with a few corrections and additions, of the vocabulary section of Messrs. Turner and Clark's "Revised Motu grammar and vocabulary" published in 1931 and now out of print. The grammar section is being published as a separate volume" (Editor's Note). This is the first separate dictionary of the language. Second copy: IUW.

1970: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MOTU, HIRI] Hiri Motu, also known as Police Motu, Pidgin Motu, or just Hiri, is an official language of Papua New Guinea. It is a simplified version of Motu, of the Austronesian language family. Although it is strictly neither a pidgin nor a creole, it possesses some features of both language types. Phonological and grammatical differences mean that Hiri Motu speakers cannot understand Motu. Similarly, Motu speakers who do not also learn Hiri Motu have similar difficulties, though the languages are lexically very similar, and retain a common, albeit simplified, Austronesian syntactical basis. Even in the areas where it was once well established as a lingua franca, the use of Hiri Motu has been declining in favour of Tok Pisin and English for many years (Wiki).

Ethnologue: hmo. Alternate Names: Hiri, Pidgin Motu, Police Motu.

1942: [LILLYbm] Brief English-Motuan Vocabulary for Medical Personnel, compiled by Lieut. J. N. Walshe. [New Guinea: N[ew] G[uinea] F[orces?] Printing Unit, c. 1942]. Original light blue-gray wrappers, lettered and illustrated in black. Pp. 1-2 3-23 24. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Not in Reinecke. Cover title: Motuan Medical Vocabulary. Includes classified English-Motuan vocabularies for use by doctors. "(Police or Pidgin Motuan only)...This vocabulary is compiled, not with the idea of teaching the Motuan Language, but rather to afford a working knowledge of the 'Pidgin' tongue, found more or less throughout the territory of Papua." May be the earliest published vocabulary of Police Motu.

1950: [LILLYbm] A Primer of Police Motu, by Percy Chatterton. Port Moresby: Department of Education [printed by The Cairns Post Pty. Ltd, Cairns, Australia], 1950. Original limp red cloth, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. 1-31 32. [Second edition]. First edition published in 1946 [Reinecke 119.16]. With inserted errata sheet, correcting p. 27. This small pamphlet includes word lists, pp. 24-31. "The first known sketch of Police Motu, after some sixty years of use by Europeans" (Reinecke, p. 752).

"Police Motu is the name given to a simplified form of the language, which is used as a lingua franca throughout Papua. It derives its name from the fact that it is extensively used by the native police force, the Royal Papuan Constabulary, which draws its recruits from all parts of the Territory. But actually Its origin dates back to before European penetration of Papua, when it was the trading language between the Motuans and their customers along the shores of the Gulf of Papua, with whom they bartered pots for sago...Actually there is no standard form of Police Motu, but a series of varieties, representing varying degrees of ill-treatment of the true Motu language. It is hoped that, among other purposes, this little book will help to standaradixe a form of language which, while maintaining a reasonable measure of simplicity, avoids unnecessary barbarities. For those who wish to extend their vocabulary, a 'Basic Motu Dictionary' of about 1,000 common words has been prepared, and will shortly be available" (Foreword).

Revised edition, post-1962: A Primer of Police Motu, by Percy Chatterton. Sydney: Pacific Publications, n.d. [c. 1968]. Original blue wrappers, lettered in white. Pp. 1-4 5-32. Revised edition. Reinecke 119.17 (gives 1959? as date, with 1968 as reprint date). A 65 page dictionary of Police Motu was published in 1962. This revised edition mentions that dictionary. This small pamphlet includes words lists, pp. 22-26, and further nouns and verbs arranged alphabetically, p. 30-31. "In this new edition of a book first published in 1946, a few changes have been made in the text, and some notes added..." (Foreword).

New, renamed edition 1972: Hiri Motu (Police Motu), by Percy Chatterton. S.I.: [U.F.M Press, 1972]. Original brown and tan decorated wrappers, lettered in tan. Pp. [4] 1-39 40. New, renamed edition. Reinecke 119.19 (giving 1971 as date). Word lists, pp. 33-39.

"Motu truly belongs here. It has not been brought here from somewhere else. It has grown from the soil of our country, and was in use as a trade language long before the white man came here. Papuans have a feeling for it which they will never have for Pidgin, however much they may learn to use Pidgin as a matter of convenience" (Foreword, Dr. John Guise, Speaker of the House of Assembly of Papua New Guinea). "In the 1890's the simplified form of Motu became the lingua franca of Sir William MacGregor's police force, and subsequently of the Royal Papuan Constabulary which grew out of it. It thus acquired the name 'Police Motu.' However, since the amalgamation of the territories of Papua and New Guinea in 1946, the combined police force, in which New Guineans are in a majority, has largely swung over to the use of New Guinea's lingua franca, Pidgin. The term 'Police Motu' has therefore become an anachronism, and, adopting the recommendation of a Conference on Police Motu convened by the Department of Information and Extension services in May 1971, I have made use of the name 'Hiri Motu' in this book.... According to the 1966 Census, 120,000 people, one in five of Papua's population, can speak this form of Motu" (Preface).

1962: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary of Police Motu, [edited by Richard Brett, Raymond Brown, Ruth Brown & Velma Foreman]. [Port Moresby: Institute of Summer Linguistics, 1962]. Original green wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. 1-6 7-65 66 [2]. First edition. Reinecke 119.14. Publication information on printed note tipped in on p. [3]. Includes English-Police Motu, pp. 7-43, and Police Motu-English, pp. 45-65, double columns. This is the first dictionary of the language. Second copy: LILLY, in blue-green wrappers.

"[This dictionary] is a companion volume to 'A Survey of Motu and Police Motu', prepared by the same team" (tipped-in printed slip). "Rev. P. Chatterton, of the London Missionary Society, has written an excellent conventional grammar of Police Motu...which may be used as a guide to this dictionary for both grammar and pronunciation" (Introduction).

1963: [LILLYbm] Police Motu. An introduction to the Trade Language of Papua (New Guinea) for Anthropologists and other fieldworkers, edited by S[tephen] A[dolphe] Wurm & J. B. Harris. Canberra: Linguistic Circle of Canberra, 1963. Original pale green wrappers lettered in black, with unlettered green cloth spine. Pp. i-ii iii-vi, 1 2-81 82-84. First edition. Series: Linguistic Circle of Canberra Publications, Series B - Monographs, No. 1. Reinecke 119.63. Includes Police-Motu-English vocabulary, pp. 37-62, and English-Police Motu vocabulary, pp. 63-81, double columns. This copy with the ink stamp of the Royal Australian Army Educational Corps on the front cover and title page. Second copy: IUW.

"This is a brief and tentative sketch of some of the more important features of Police Motu, the lingua franca of Papua. In it we have attempted to represent the actual state of the language as it is spoken widely throughout the territory without reference to the grammar of Hanuabada Motu from which it is of course derived....The only concession we have made to 'correctness' is in citing lexical items as far as possible in the orthography employed in Lister-Turner and Clark, A Dictionary of the Motu Language of Papua (second edition). Whenever we could not locate a particular form in the dictionary, we simply spelled it as we heard it" (Introduction). Interestingly enough, this work makes no mention of any of the previous vocabularies of Police Motu.

ca. 1965?: [LILLYbm] The Rhyming List of 2,1000 Common English Words with Explanations in Police Motu, by N. Gore. [Papua New Guinea]: n.p., n.d. [c. 1965?]. Original light gray-green wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. 1-56. First edition. Reinecke 119.21 (no copy seen by compilers). Intended to accompany records. Includes English words arranged by rhyming groups with Police Motu explanations of their meanings. Pp. 1-56.

"Police Motu, recently renamed Hiri Motu, is one of the three official languages of Papua New Guinea. It is based on Motu, a Melanesian language spoken by ca. 20,000 persons in the vicinity of Port Moresby...As the Motu were extensive traders...the pidgin originated as a native trade jargon before British rule was established over coastal Papua in 1884. Its spread was facilitated by the Papuan government's discouragement of Pidgin English, and it is now spoken [1975] by about 120,000 persons as a second language.... The use of Police Motu is mainly utilitarian - in trade, administration, and broadcasting....Police Motu has virtually no literature even in translation except for parts of the Scriptures and a few devotional books of limited circulation" (Reinecke, p. 752).

1975 [1978]: [IUW] Say it in Motu; an instant introduction to the common language of Papua, by Percy Chatterton. Sydney; Pacific Publications, c1975. "Third printing 1978" on verso of title page. First printed 1975. 30 p.; map; 19 cm. Original red wrappers, lettered in black and decorated in white. English-Motu, pp. 16-21, Motu-English, pp. 22-27. Second copy: LILLYbm: "Fourth printing 1984" on verso of title page; original yellow and white wrappers, lettered in black.

"Hiri Motu is the common tongue of the streets and markets of Port Moresby, and an acquaintance with it, however slight, will add to the interest of a visit to that city" (Introduction).

[MOUWASE] Mouwase is a Papuan language of Papua New Guinea. Along with Bariwesa, it was once considered a single language: Omati. Ethnologue retired the name Omati in 2017.

Ethnologue: jmw.

1973: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MOVIMA] Movima is a language that is spoken by about 1,400 (nearly half) of the Movima, a group of Native Americans that resides in the Llanos de Moxos region of the Bolivian Amazon, in northeastern Bolivia. It is considered a language isolate, as it has not been proven to be related to any other language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mzp.

1962: [LILLYbm] Movima y castellano, compiled by Roberto Judy & Judit Emerich de Judy. Cochabamba, Bolivia: Publicado por el Instituto Linguistico de Verano en colaboracion con el Ministerio de Asuntos Campesinos y el Ministerio de Educacion y

Bellas Artes, Oficialia Mayor de Cultura, Departamento de Arqueologia, Etnologia, y Folkloro, 1962. Original gray wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. 1-2 3-154 [2]. First edition. Vocabularios Bolivianos, No. 1. Includes Movima-Spanish, pp. 10-74, and Spanish-Movima, pp. 77-144. This copy with ink notation: "Withdrawn [from the] Dept. of Linguistics, University of California, Berkeley". This appears to be the first dictionary of Movima.

[MOZAMBIQUE, LANGUAGES OF] Mozambique is a multilingual country. A number of Bantu languages are indigenous to Mozambique. Portuguese, inherited from the colonial period (see: Portuguese Mozambique), is the official language, and Mozambique is a full member of the Community of Portuguese Language Countries. Ethnologue lists 43 languages spoken in the country. According to INE, the National Institute of Statistics of Mozambique, Portuguese is the most widely spoken language in Mozambique: According to the 2007 national population and housing census, 50.4% of the national population aged 5 and older (80.8% of people living in urban areas and 36.3% in rural areas) are fluent in the language. Other widely spoken languages include Swahili, Makhuwa, Sena, Ndau, and Shangaan (Tsonga). Other indigenous languages of Mozambique include Lomwe, Makonde, Chopi, Chuwabu, Ronga, Kimwani, Zulu, and Tswa. The language of the deaf community is Mozambican Sign Language. Small communities of Arabs, Chinese, and Indians (primarily the Gujarati language) speak their own languages (Indians from Portuguese India speak any of the Portuguese Creoles of their origin) aside from Portuguese as their second language (Wiki).

1972: [IUW] Pequeno dicionário de Moçambique; moçambicanismos e termos nativos mais correntes / António Carlos Pereira Cabral. Lourenço Marques; Cabral, 1972. 127 p.; 22 cm. Library binding, incorporating original red front wrapper, lettered in black. Includes Mozambiquan terms-Portuguese, pp. [15]-[113], with Addenda, pp. [119]-127.

2002: [IUW] Minidicionário de moçambicanismos / Hildizina Norberto Dias. Maputo, Moçambique; H.N. Dias, 2002. 250 p.; 21 cm. Errata slip tipped in. Includes bibliographical references (p. 246-250). Mozambiquan languages-Portuguese, pp. 49-245. (Wiki).

[MPUONO] Mpuono, or Mpuun, is a Bantu language spoken by several hundred thousand people in the Democratic Republic of Congo. Dialects include Mpuono, Mpuun (Mbuun, Kimbuun, Gimbunda) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: zmp.

2015: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[MRU] Mru is a Sino-Tibetan language and one of the recognized languages of Bangladesh. It is spoken by a community of Mros (Mru) inhabiting the Chittagong Hill Tracts of Bangladesh with a population of 22,000 according to the 1991 census, and in Burma. The Mros are the second-largest tribal group in Bandarban District of the Chittagong Hill Tracts. A small group of Mros also live in Rangamati Hill District. The Mru language is considered "definitely endangered" by UNESCO in June 2010 (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mro. Alternate Names: Maru, Mrung, Murung.

1990: [IUW] Mru : hill people on the border of Bangladesh / Claus-Dieter Brauns, Lorenz G. Löffler ; translated from German by Doris Wagner-Glenn. Basel ; Boston : Birkhäuser Verlag, c1909. 248 p. : ill. (some col.), map ; 26 cm. Original brown cloth over boards, lettered in gold and with silhouette in black, an red dot, on front cover. Glossary of Terms related to the Administrative Structure, Mru-English gloss, p. 247; Glossary of Mru terms, Mru-English gloss, p. 248.

[MUBAMI] Mubami is a Papuan language of Papua New Guinea. It goes by the names Dausame, Tao-Suamato, Tao-Suame, and Ta. The language is used in all age groups and domains of life, including education, and is therefore counted as not presently endangered (Wiki).

Ethnologue: tsx. Alternate Names: Dausame, Dausuami Mubami, Ta, Tao-Suamato, Tao-Suame.

1973: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MUINANE] Muinane is an indigenous American language spoken in western South America (Wiki).

Ethnologue: bmr. Alternate Names: Bora-Muinane, Muename, Muinana, Muinani.

1975: [IUW] Una gramática de la lengua muinane / por James W. Walton y Janice P. Walton ; traducción de Betty Villegas V. Bogotá : Instituto Lingüístico de Verano, 1975. 84 p. ; 28 cm. Library binding, incorporating cream and yellow-green front wrapper, lettered in black. On t.p.: Ministerio de Gobierno, Dirección General de Integración y Desarrollo de la Comunidad, División Operativa de Asuntos Indígenas. Lexicon: Vocabulary, Muinane-Spanish, pp. 71-76 (words that appear in the text of the grammar), Swadesh list, Spanish-Muinane, pp. 77-84.

"The major part of the material used in this study was gathered between the years 1964 and 1968" (Introduction: tr: BM).

[MUKULU] Mokilko, or Mukulu (also known as Gergiko, Guerguiko, Mokulu, Mokoulou, Djonkor Guera, Dyongor Guera, Diongor Guera, Jonkor-Gera), is an Afro-Asiatic language spoken in central Chad. The local name for the language is Gergiko (or Geurguiko in the French orthography). This is the name used for mother-tongue literacy materials. Mukulu is the name of a village (Wiki).

Ethnologue: moz. Alternate Names: Diongor Guera, Djonkor Guera, Dyongor Guera, Gergiko, Guerguiko, Jonkor-Gera, Mokilko, Mokoulou, Mokulu.

1990: [LILLYbm] Lexique mokilko: Mokilko-français et français-mokilko (Guera, Tchad), by Herrmann Jungraithmayr. Berlin: D. Reimer, 1990. Original dark green cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. 1-16 17-330 331-336, with maps. First edition. Series: Sprache und Oralität in Afrika, no. 6. Includes Mokulu-French, pp. 55-202, and French-Mokulu, pp. 205-315. This is the first dictionary of the language. Second copy: IUW.

"The study of the Mokulu language... commenced only in 1973 during our stay at Fort Lamy, where we were aided by three young Mokulus studying at the Lycée. At the same time we persuaded Johannes Lukas to take up the study of the language: the published results of his research consist of seven brief texts and a sketch of the grammar...which are useful as pioneering studies but still preliminary in nature" (Preface, tr: B M).

[MULAHA] Mulaha is an extinct language of the "Bird's Tail" of Papua New Guinea. Ethnologue: mfw.

1970: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MULAM] The Mulam language Chinese: 仡佬; pinyin: Mùlǎo is a Kam–Sui language spoken mainly in Luocheng County, Hechi, northern Guangxi by the Mulao people. The greatest concentrations are in Dongmen and Siba communes. Their autonym is mu6 lam1. The Mulam also call themselves kjam1, which is probably cognate with lam1 and the Dong people's autonym "Kam" (Wang & Zheng 1980). Since the Ming dynasty, Chinese characters have been utilized to read and write the Mulam language. The majority of the Mulam also speak Chinese as well as the Zhuang and Dong languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mlm. Alternate Names: Abo, Kyam, Molao, Mulao, Mulao Miao, Muliao, Mulou.

1980: [IUW] 仡佬语简志 / 王均, 郑国乔编著. Mulao yu jian zhi / Wang Jun, Zheng Guo-chiao bian zhu. 第1版. Di 1 ban. [Peking]: 民族出版社: 新华书店发行, 1980. [Peking]: Min zu chu ban she: Xin hua shu dian fa xing, 1980. 2, 119 p.; 21 cm. Library binding, incorporating original blue and rose decorated front wrapper, with characters in black. Series: 中国少数民族语言志丛书 Zhongguo shao shu min zu yu yan jian zhi cong shu. Chinese-Mulao, pp. 99-118.

2003: [IUW] 仡佬语研究 / 薄文泽著. Mulao yu yan jiu / Bo Wenze zhu. 第1版. Di 1 ban. 北京市: 民族出版社, 2003. Beijing Shi: Min zu chu ban she, 2003. 2, 2, 186 p.; 22 cm. Original gray cloth over boards, with characters on spine in white. Uniform series: 中国新发现语言研究丛书 (Min zu chu ban she). Chinese-Mulao, pp. 155-181. Includes bibliographical references (p. 182-183).

[MUMUYE] Mumuye is by far the most populous of the Adamawa languages. It is spoken in northeastern Nigeria. It is classified in the Leko–Nimbari branch of Savanna languages, as Adamawa is no longer considered a valid family. According to Ethnologue, there are multiple dialects: Zinna, Dong, Yoro, Lankaviri, Gola (Bajama), Gongla, Kasaa, Saawa, Jalingo, Nyaaaja, Jeng, Gnoore, Yaa, Sagbee, Shaari, Kugong, Mang, Kwaji, Meeka, Yakoko (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mzm.

1979: [IUW] A comparative study of the Mumuye dialects: (Nigeria) / Kiyoshi Shimizu. Berlin: Reimer, 1979. 114 p.: 3 ill.; 24 cm. & insert (3 leaves). First edition. Original green wrappers, lettered in black. Marburger Studien zur Afrika- und Asienkunde. Serie A, Afrika; Bd. 14. Appendix II: Comparative wordlist of 15 Mumuye dialects, English-[Mumuye dialects]-Gnoorè-Jeng-Zing-Máng-Kwàji-Meekà-Yáá-Kúgong-Shaari-Sàgbèè-Kàsaà-Lànkàvirì-Saawà-Ràng-Pángseng, pp. 85-114.

"This study of Mumuye – 15 'dialects' forming in fact 3 'languages'—is the first that has been carried out on one of the major languages which in Greenberg's classification comprise the Adamawa linguistic group. The material on which this investigation is based—in the main 15 wordlists of 100 items...--was collected by the author in 1973" (Editor's Preface).

1983: [IUW] The Zing dialect of Mumuye : a descriptive grammar : with a Mumuye-English dictionary and an English-Mumuye index / Kiyoshi Shimizu. Hamburg : H. Buske, c1983. xviii, 265 p. : map ; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references and index.

[MUNA] Muna is an Austronesian language spoken principally on the island of Muna and the adjacent (northwestern) part of Buton Island, off the southeast coast of Sulawesi in Indonesia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mnb. Alternate Names: Wuna.

1996: [LILLYbm] Muna-English dictionary, by René van den Berg, in collaboration with La Ode Sidu. Leiden: KITLV Press, 1996. Original dark blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. i-vii viii-xxviii xxix-xxx, 1 2-709 710. Includes two pp. of maps, one linguistic. First edition. Koninklijk Instituut voor Taal-, Land en Volkenkunde. Includes Muna-English, pp. [1]-709. This is the first English language dictionary of Muna. The only previous lexical material on the language was a Muna-Indonesian dictionary published in Jakarta in 1985. This copy with the ownership signature and blind stamp of Franklin Charles Graham, who completed an MA entitled "The voices of peasants and leaders: language development in three Indian Ocean nations, 1947-1967" at St. John's University in 1998.

"This dictionary is intended to be a thorough documentation of the vocabulary of the Muna language, a regional language spoken in Southeast Sulawesi, Indonesia....

[M]ention should be made of the Muna-Indonesian version of this dictionary, work on which is currently in progress....It is of course the Indonesian version which will be of much more practical use to native speakers of the language and to other Indonesians. This dictionary is meant as a sequel to my Muna grammar...published...in 1989....Muna is one of the large islands situated off the southeast coast of Sulawesi....The population of this island is over 200,000. All the inhabitants of this island speak one language, Una, with the exception of some Bajau communities on the north and west coast, and a sizeable part of the population of the district capital Raha....The total population of the language is probably around 230,000, divided over several dialects....This dictionary is based on the northern (standard) dialect of Muna, especially as spoken in the village of Watuputih, some 5 km west of Raha" (Introduction).

[MUNDANI] Mundani is a Southern Bantoid language of Cameroon. Mundani is also a tribe made up of eight villages, Bamumbu, Bechati, Besali, Banti, Bangang, Nkong, Egumbo, and Folepi. These villages together make the administrative sub division of Wabane in Lebialem Division of the South West Region of Cameroon (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mnf.

1990: [LILLYbm] Mundani-English Lexicon, compiled by Elizabeth Parker & Christine Durant. Yaounde: Société Internationale de Linguistique, 1990. Original blue-green wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. Mundani-English, pp. 7-90. Second copy: IUW.

"This Mundani-English Lexicon has been compiled primarily for speakers of the Mundani language, in order to stimulate interest in the use of the written language, to help new readers and writers, and to help standardise spellings. It may also be of interest to non-speakers who wish to learn or study the language..... The lexicon contains about 2,0000 entries, the majority of which belong to the reference dialect, which is spoken in the central part of the Mundani area, in the chiefdom of Bamumbu. However a selection of words from the two other major dialects of Fomenji-Fonenge and Lower Mundani are included..." (Introduction).

[MUNDARI] Mundari (Munḍa) is a Munda language of the Austroasiatic language family spoken by the Munda people, and is closely related to Santali. Mundari is primarily spoken by Munda tribal people in east India, Bangladesh, and Nepal. "Mundari Bani", a script to write Mundari Language was invented by Rohidas Singh Nag (Wiki).

Ethnologue: unr. Alternate Names: Colh, Horo, Kolh, Mandari, Mondari, Munari.

1931: [LILLYbm] A Mundari-English Dictionary, by Manindra Bhusan Bhaduri. Calcutta: Calcutta University Press, 1931. Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in black (later red linen spine). 230 pp. + 2 pp. errata. First edition. Zauhmüller, col. 275. Includes Mundari-English, pp. [1]-195, with Addenda, Mundari-English, pp. [196]-229, and Errata, pp. [i]-ii at end. First dictionary of Mundari. Second copy: IUW.

"The Mundari language is spoken by the Mundas and the allied tribes living in the Chota Nagpur plateau and in parts of Assam where a large number of Mundas have emigrated as tea garden labourers (footnote: The number of Munda-speaking people is estimated at 624,506 by the census of 1921)...About five years ago I happened to come across a small exercise book containing a list of about 600 words by my esteemed friend Rai Bahadur S. C. Roy...of Ranci. I asked him if he could devote a little time and make it into a really useful book of Mundari vocabulary for which there had been a long-felt want. He replied that he had very little time, threw the whole burden upon me and asked me to undertake the work which I did, not without some hesitation...I shall...consider my labours simply repaid if the book proves useful to those who want to learn the language."

[MÜNDÜ] Mündü (Mondo) is a Ubangian language of South Sudan, with a few thousand speakers in the Democratic Republic of the Congon (Wiki).

Ethnologue: muh. Alternate Names: Mondo, Mondu, Mountou, Mundo.

1950: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1969: see 1969b under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1991: [IUW] La langue mondo esquisse grammaticale, textes et Dictionnaire, by A. Vallaëys. Tervuren; Musée royal de l'Afrique centrale, 1991. 228 p; ill.; 30 cm. Library binding, incorporating original page yellow wrappers, lettered in black. Archives d'anthropologie v. 31 Includes index. Mondo [Mundu]-French dictionary, pp. [81]-209, French-Mondo [Mundu] index, pp. 211-228.

"This work is presented as a first general description of the Mondo language. The material compiled was gathered in the course of the year 1960" (Preface, tr: BM).

"The dialect we present here is that spoken a Tekadze, a village situated some fifty kilometers to the north of Faradja (Zaire). Everyone there speaks Bangala as well, and many of the adults are also fluent in Avokaya and Baka" (Introduction, tr: BM).

[MUNGAKA] The Nga'ka language, Munga'ka, also Bali, is a Grassfields language of Cameroon.

Ethnologue: mhk. Alternate Names: Bali, Li, Munga'ka, Ngaaka, Nga'ka.

1992: [IUW] Mungaka (Bali) Dictionary, compiled by Georg Tischhauser, revised and translated by Johannes Stöckle in cooperation with Samuel Fe Tita Mangwa. Köln [Germany]: Rüdiger Köppe Verlag, c1992. x, 439 p.; 24 cm. Library binding incorporating white front and rear wrappers, lettered in black. Series: Archiv afrikanistischer Manuskripte, Bd. 1. Includes Mungaka-English, pp. 3-408, and English Mungaka Index, pp. [411]-439.

"This dictionary was originally compiled with great care by Rev. Georg Tischhauser in the nineteen thirties whilst in the service of the Basel Mission. Most of his time was spent at Bafut in the N.W. Province of Cameroun during the years 1931-1939.... In 1986, I found the manuscript of the Mungaka dictionary by Rev. Tischhauser in the archives of the Basel Mission in Basel and was allowed to copy it.... I completed the translation into English during several stays in Cameroun during the years, 1987, 1988 and 1990" [With a further description of subsequent work and revision]. (Preface).

[MUNGGUI] Munggui is an Austronesian language spoken in Papua Province of Western New Guinea, northeastern Indonesia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mth. Alternate Names: Natabui.

1961: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MUNJI] The Munji language, also known as Munjani, Munjhan, and Munjiwar language, is a Pamir language spoken in Munjan valley in Badakhshan Province in northeast Afghanistan. It is similar to the Yidgha language which is spoken in the Upper Lotkoh Valley of Chitral, west of Garam Chishma in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, Pakistan. Historically, Munji displays the closest possible linguistic affinity with the now-extinct Bactrian language. Almost the entire Munji-speaking population of Afghanistan fled across the border to Chitral during the War in Afghanistan (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mnj. Alternate Names: Munjani, Munjigi, Munjiwar.

1938: see under INDO-IRANIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1972: [IUW] Īazyki Vostochnogo Gindukusha : Mundzhanskiĭ ĭazyk ; teksty, slovar', grammaticheskiĭ ocherk / Aleksandr Leonovich Griunberg. Leningrad : Nauka; Leningradskoe otd-nie, 1972. 474 p. : ill. ; 23 cm. At head of title: Akademiĭa nauk SSSR. Institut ĭazykoznaniiĭ. A.L. Griunberg. Includes bibliographical references.

[MUNSEE] Munsee (also known as Munsee Delaware, Delaware, Ontario Delaware) is an endangered language of the Eastern Algonquian subgroup of the Algonquian language family, itself a branch of the Algic language family. Munsee is one of the two Delaware languages (also known as Lenape languages, after the tribe's autonym). It is very closely related to the extinct Unami Delaware, but the two are sufficiently different that they are considered separate languages. Munsee was spoken aboriginally in the vicinity of the modern New York City area in the United States, including western Long Island, Manhattan Island, Staten Island, as well as adjacent areas on the mainland: southeastern New York State, the northern third of New Jersey, and northeastern Pennsylvania. As of 2009, Munsee was spoken only on the Moraviantown Reserve in Ontario, Canada, by no more than seven or eight elderly individuals, the youngest of whom was 61 in 2002. However, there has been interest in learning the language by younger individuals (Wiki).

Ethnologue: umu. Alternate Names: Delaware, Ontario Delaware.

1996: [LILLYbm] Delaware-English English-Delaware Dictionary, by John O'Meara. Toronto: University of Toronto Press, 1996. Original blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold; d.j. red and white, lettered in blue and red. Pp. i-vii viii-xxiv, 1-3 4-660 [4]. First edition. Second copy: IUW.

"Based on linguistic research carried out with Delaware speakers at Moraviantown, this is the first modern dictionary of Munsee Delaware" (from the front inner flap of the d.j.). "Here we ...use the term Delaware, or, when more precision is required, Ontario Delaware. Ontario Delaware is distinct from the closely related Unami Delaware language, which is still spoken by probably no more than five individuals in Oklahoma....Ontario Delaware is spoken by a small and steadily declining number of individuals, all at or from Moraviantown. There may be no more than five or ten speakers of Ontario Delaware, as well as perhaps ten or fifteen individuals who understand Delaware to varying degrees. Most speakers known to me are in their seventies or eighties. Although there were speakers of Ontario Delaware at Six Nations and Munceytown, Ontario, as recently as the 1970's, the decline of the language has meant that Moraviantown is now the last location where it is spoken" (Preface).

1999: see under UNAMI.

[MURLE] Murle (also Ajibba, Beir, Merule, Mourle, Murele, Murule) is a Nilo-Saharan Eastern Sudanic language spoken by the Murle people, spoken in the southeast of South Sudan, near the Ethiopian border. A very small number of Murle live across the border in southwestern Ethiopia. They speak the Murle language, which belongs to the Southwestern branch of the Surmic languages group, within the larger Nilo-Saharan family. The New Testament has been translated into the Murle language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mur. Alternate Names: Adkibba, Agiba, Ajibba, Beir, Merule, Mourle, Murelei, Murule.

1971: [IUW] A Murle grammar, by R. E. Lyth. [Khartoum, University of Khartoum, Sudan Research Unit] 1971. 76, 109, 60 p. 33 cm. Original stapled blue wrappers, lettered in black. Hendrix 1179. Linguistic monograph series, no. 7. Cover title: The Murle language grammar and vocabulary. English-Murle, pp. 3-109, Murle-English, pp. 1-60 (second pagination).

"Many hundreds of hours have been spent during the last twelve years in compiling, checking, rechecking, listing alphabetically, and typing this Vocabulary, but there must remain many inaccuracies, and certainly it is by no means complete—there are probably as many words again as are included" (Introduction [to the Vocabulary]).

[MURUWARI] Muruwari (also Muruwarri, Murawari, Murawarri) is an Australian Aboriginal language, an isolate within the Pama–Nyungan family. Muruwari means 'to fall (warri) with a fighting club (murru) in one's hand'. The Muruwari people were an important group who occupied an area of Australia from about Cunnamulla in South West Queensland, southward to the northern bank of the Barwon River near Brewarrina, New South Wales. The Muruwari language was collated from many tapes of language material recorded by Jimmy Barker of Brewarrina, Emily Horneville (Mrs Ornable) and Shillin Jackson of Goodooga, and Robin Campbell of Weilmoringle. The Murawari language was first published by R. H. Mathews in the early 1900s and again by Ian Sims, Judy Trefry, Janet Mathews, and Lynette F. Oates (1988) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: zmu. Alternate Names: Murawari, Muruwarri, Muruwurri

1992: [IUW] Muruwari (Moo-roo-warri). dictionary, by Lynette F. Oates; illustrations by Roslyn van Brummelen. Albury, NSW: produced with the assistance of the Australian Institute of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Studies, 1992. 97 p.: ill.; 30 cm.

[MUSGU] Musgu is a Biu–Mandara (Chadic) language of Cameroon and Chad. The endonym is Mulwi. Blench (2006) classifies the three varieties as separate languages. Speakers of the extinct related language Muskum have switched to one of these (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mug. Alternate Names: Mousgou, Mousgoum, Mousgoun, Mulwi, Munjuk, Musgum, Musuk, Muzuk.

1886: [IUW] Die musuk-sprache in Central-Afrika; nach den aufzeichnungen von Gottlob Adolf Krause herausgegeben von dr. Friedrich Müller. Wien; In commission bei C. Gerold's sohn, 1886. 71 p.; fold. map; 25 cm. Library binding incorporating original tan front wrappers, lettered in black. Not in Hendrix. "Aus dem jahrgange 1886 der Sitzungsberichte der Phil.-hist. classe der Kais. akademie der wissenschaften (CXII. bd., I.hft., s. 353) besonders abgedruckt." Musgu-German, pp. 42-59, German-Musgu, pp. 60-71. First published vocabulary of the language.

"Until now we have known nothing about the Musuk language, though Heinrich Barth collected a vocabulary over 34 years ago now, one that remained unpublished, but was used by Gustav Nachtigal in the second volume of his work 'Sahara and Sudan'.... If the ethnologist finds the language of any tribe of interest, as does the linguist, that must be double the case for those languages and tribes that are in danger of dying out" (pp. 4, 6, tr: BM).

1941: [IUW] Deutsche Quellen zur Sprache der Musgu in Kamerun, by Johannes Lukas. Berlin, D. Reimer, 1941. 121 p. map. 23 cm. Hendrix 1180. Beiheft zur Zeitschrift für Eingeborenen-Sprachen 24. Heft. Bibliography: p. 8. Includes Musgu-German, German-Musgu vocabulary, pp. 42-131.

1983: [IUW] Lexique Masa; Tchad et Cameroun, par Claude Caitucoli; avec la collaboration de Saleh Hagam. Paris; Agence e coopération culturelle et technique; Yaounde, Cameroun; Cerdotola, 1983. 205 p. Original yellw and multi-toned reds, lettered in red and white. "Equipe des langues tchadiennes."--Cover. Masa [Musgu]-French, pp. 46-157, French-Masa [Musgu], pp. 160-201.

1991: [IUW] Lexique pratique du Munjuk des rizières; dialecte de Pouss; français-munjuk, munjuk-français, Henry Tourneux; avec la collaboration de Hamat Patan. Paris; ORSTOM; P. Geuthner, 1991. 130 p.; 25 cm. Original white and blue wrappers, lettered in brown and black. Etudes tchadiques. Monographies. French-Munjuk [Musgu], pp. 17-68, and Munjuk [Musgu]-French, pp. 71-130.

"This little lexicon is the result of research undertaken in Cameroon in 1982 under the auspices of the Laboratory of Languages and Civilizations of Oral Tradition of the National Centre for Scientific Research in France. It was put together in 1990" (Preface, tr: BM).

[MUSKOGEE] The Muskogee language (Mvskoke in Muskogee), also known as Creek, Seminole, Maskókî or Muskogee, is a Muskogean language spoken by Muskogee (Creek) and Seminole people, primarily in the U.S. states of Oklahoma and Florida. Historically the language was spoken by various constituent groups of the Muskogee or Maskoki in what are now Alabama and Georgia. The Muskogee first brought the Muskogee and Miccosukee languages to Florida in the early 18th century and would eventually become known as the Seminoles. In the 19th century, however, the US government forced most Muskogees and Seminoles to relocate west of the Mississippi River, with many forced into Indian Territory. Today, the language is spoken by around 5000 people, most of whom live in Oklahoma and are members of the Muskogee (Creek) Nation and the Seminole Nation of Oklahoma. Around 200 speakers are Florida Seminoles. Seminole use of the language constitutes distinct dialects (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mus. Alternate Names: Creek.

1851-1857: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

2000: [IUW] A dictionary of Creek/Muskogee : with notes on the Florida and Oklahoma Seminole dialects of Creek / Jack B. Martin, Margaret McKane Mauldin. Lincoln : University of Nebraska Press in cooperation with the American Indian Studies Research Institute, Indiana University, Bloomington, c2000. xxxviii, 353 p., [4] p. of plates : ill., map ; 24 cm. Original green wrappers, lettered in white and orange. Studies in the anthropology of North American Indians. Creek [Muskogee]-English, pp. [3]-154, English-Creek [Muskogee], pp. [187]-351. Includes bibliographical references.

"Any tribe that is considering publishing a language dictionary would do well to browse this book as a possible model for the format" (review quoted on rear cover).

"The result of more than ten years of research, A dictionary of Creek/Muskogee draws on the expertise of a linguist and a native Creek speaker to yield the first modern dictionary of the Creek language of the southeastern United States. The dictionary contains over seven thousand Cree-English entries, over four thousand English-Creek entries, and over four hundred Creek place names in Alabama, George, Florida, and Oklahoma." (from the rear cover).

[MUSOM] Musom is an Austronesian language of Morobe Province, Papua New Guinea (Wiki).

Ethnologue: msu. Alternate Names: Misatik.

1997: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MUSSAU-EMIRA] The Mussau-Emira language is spoken on the islands of Mussau and Emirau in the St. Matthias Islands in the Bismarck Archipelago (Wiki).

Ethnologue: emi. Alternate Names: Emira-Mussau, Musao, Musau-Emira.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MUYU] Muyu or Kati is one of the Ok languages of West Papua. The related Ninggerum language is also called 'Muyu' (Wiki).

Ethnologue treats Muyu as two separate languages: 1) North Muyu: kti. Alternate Names: Kataut, Kati-Ninanti, Niinati, Ninatie, North Kati, North Moejoe, Yonggom, Yongkom, Yongom; and 2) South Muyu: kts. Alternate Names: Digoel, Digul, Kati Metomka, Metomka, Moejoe, Ok Bari, South Kati, Yonggom, Yongkom, Yongom.

[MUYU, NORTH] Muyu or Kati is one of the Ok languages of West Papua. The related Ninggerum language is also called 'Muyu' (Wiki). Ethnologue does not list "Muyu" as an alternate name for Ninggerum.

Ethnologue: kti. Alternate Names: Kataut, Kati-Ninanti, Niinati, Ninatie, North Kati, North Moejoe, Yonggom, Yongkom, Yongom.

1959: see under INDONESIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MUYU, SOUTH] Muyu or Kati is one of the Ok languages of West Papua. The related Ninggerum language is also called 'Muyu' (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kts. Alternate Names: Digoel, Digul, Kati Metomka, Metomka, Moejoe, Ok Bari, South Kati, Yonggom, Yongkom, Yongom.

1959: see under INDONESIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MUYUW] Muyu language (Egum, Murua, Murua Dukwayasi, Murua Kaulae, Muruwa, Muyu, Muya, Muyuwa) is one of the Kilivila–Lousiades languages (of the Austronesian language family), spoken on the Woodlark Island (Papua New Guinea). Number of speakers: 6,000 (1998), of them 3,000 are monolinguals. Speakers also use Dobu, Kilivila or Misima-Paneati. Latin script is used. Dialects included Yanaba, Lougaw (Gawa), Wamwan, Nawyem, Iwa. Iwa dialect is transitional between Muyu and Kilivila. Lexical similarity 68% with Kilivila (Wiki).

Ethnologue: myw. Alternate Names: Egum, Murua, Murua Dukwayasi, Murua Kaulae, Muruwa, Muyu, Muya, Muyuwa.

1998: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[MVUBA] Mvuba is a Central Sudanic language of northeastern Congo, with a thousand speakers in Uganda. It is similar to Lese (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mxh. Alternate Names: Bambuba, Bamvuba, Mbuba, Mvuba-A, Obiye.

1910: see under AVATIME.

[MWAGHAVUL] Mwachhavul (also known as Mupun and Sura) is an Afro-Asiatic language spoken in Plateau State, Nigeria. Dialects are Mupun and Panyam. Mwachhavul has one of the most elaborate systems of logophoricity known in any language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: sur. Alternate Names: Maghavul, Sura.

1991: [LILLYbm] A dictionary of Mupun, by Zygmunt Frajzyngier. Berlin: Reimer, 1991. Green cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. [8] I II-XVII XVIII, 1-3 4-102, with 2 linguistic maps. First edition. Series: Sprache und Oralität in Afrika, vol. 11.

Includes Mupun-English, pp. [3]-70, and English-Mupun, pp. [73]-102. This is the first dictionary of Mupun. Second copy: IUW.

"The 1963 census gave the number of people who identify themselves as Mupun as 11,016.... If the demographic changes in Mupun are similar to those in the rest of Nigeria, the corresponding number in 1990 is much larger. The language is spoken in the Plateau State of Nigeria.... Access to most of [the] villages [in which the Mupun live] is quite difficult during the rainy season. The linguistic area of Mupun is bordered by Mwaghavul (sometimes reported in the literature as 'Sura'...) on the west, and by Angas on the east. On the north it borders Fyer, Mwaghavul, and Angas. On the southeast it borders Chip. All the surrounding languages belong to the West Branch of Chadic, with Mwaghavul and Angas in the same subgroup as Mupun.... Although the language is not in immediate danger of disappearing, within the next few generations this possibility may become a reality. I have observed that young speakers (20-30 years old) of the language, in conversation with each other, tend to use Hausa or even English, if they are educated.... The Mupun-English part contains some 1,900 entries.... The English-Mupun part contains slightly over 1,600 entries.... Since there is considerable understanding between Mwaghavul and Mupun, the two languages could be classified as dialects of the same language [as does Wenthe-Lukas 1985 and Hoffmann 1971]" (Introduction).

2004: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[MWAN] Mwan (Mwa, Mouan, Muan, Muana, Mona) is a Mande language of Ivory Coast (Wiki).

Ethnologue: moa. Alternate Names: Mona, Mouan, Muan, Muana, Mwa.

1904: see 1904a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[MYENE] Myene is a cluster of closely related Bantu varieties spoken in Gabon by about 46,000 people. It is perhaps the most divergent of the Narrow Bantu languages, though Nurse & Philippson (2003) place it in with the Tsogo languages (B.30). The more distinctive varieties are Mpongwe (Pongoué), Galwa (Galloa), and Nkomi (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mye. Alternate Names: Omyene.

1847: [LILLYbm] A Grammar of the Mpongwe Language, with Vocabularies, by the Missionaries of the A. B. C. F. M., Gaboon Mission, Western Africa. New York: Snowden & Prall, 1847. Contemporary quarter black leather and marbled paper over boards, with a printed paper label on the front cover (spine perished, covers loose). Pp. i-vi-viii, [9] 10-94 [2]. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 1185 (listing John Leighton Wilson as editor). This copy with the bookplate of the Johns Hopkins University Library stamped "disposed of by the library." Includes English-Mpongwe, pp. [53]-77, and Mpongwe-English, pp. [79]-94. Second copy: IUW.

"The Mpongwe is a dialect of Western Africa, spoken on both sides of the Gaboon river, at Cape Lopez, Cape St. Catherine, and in the interior, to the distance of two or three hundred miles" (Introduction). The Introduction includes brief comparative word lists of English, Mpongwe, Bechuana, Kafir [Zulu] and Masambique [Makhuwa]. This is the earliest vocabulary of the language listed in Hendrix.

1877: [LILLY] Dictionnaire Français-Pongoué, par Les missionnaires de la Congrégation du Saint-Esprit et du Saint-Coeur de Marie. Mission du Gabon. Vicariat Apostolique des Deux Guinées. Paris: Maisonneuve, 1877. xii, 354 p. First edition. Sewn signatures with marbled endpapers, lacking any other binding. French-Pongoué [Myene], pp. [1]-354. First dictionary of the language. A Pongoué-French companion volume appeared in 1881. From the library of the noted linguist Johannes Rahder, with his ink ownership stamp and annotations on title page.

"The Dictionary that we publish today is the first to appear on the Pongouese [Myene] or Gabonese language. It is the fruit of long and patient study, the result of attentive observation and research by the Missionaries who have devoted themselves over the past thirty years to the evangelization of the blacks of Guinée. It is easy to understand the difficulties encountered in such a work, composed in the midst of a laborious ministry, beneath a burning sun, at the breast of an extremely ignorant population, with not the slightest vestige of a written language" (Preface, tr: BM).

1934, 1961: [LILLYbm] Dictionnaire Mpongwe-français, suivi d'éléments de grammaire. Dictionnaire Français-Mpongwe, suivi d'éléments de grammaire, by André Raponda-Walker [1871- ]. Metz; Brazzaville: La Libre Lorraine; Imprimerie Saint-Paul, 1934, 1961. Two volumes. [Earlier volume] original blue-gray cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in black; dust jacket gray, lettered and decorated in black; [later volume] red quarter-cloth and paper over boards; spine lettered in gold, probably issued without dust jacket. Pp. [Vol. 1] I-III IV-V VI, 7 8-640, <sup>2</sup>I II-XVII XVIII; [Vol. 2][2] I 2-722 723-724, I II-XVI. First editions. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 1183-1184. Both volumes identically inscribed on the front free endpapers: "A Madame | Maguelonne Toussaint-Saryat | Directrice du Journal | "Inter-Continents" | Hommage de l'auteur | Libreville, le 9/3/1963 | A, Walker". This copy with loosely-inserted original 5 page typescript of essay by Hubert Deschamps entitled "Un prodigieux Veillard.. l'Abbé André Raponda Walker" with tear-sheet photo of Walker with African children in 1961. The essay suggests that Gabon has had two "grand old men" - Albert Schweitzer and Walker.

"The work that you deliver today to the printer is the most extensive thus far on the Mpongwe language. Other dictionaries have preceded yours, notably that produced by the Missionaries of Gabon in 1847, which was a work of remarkable observation and minute detail. What a service they rendered and how meritorious their first linguistic efforts!...Our thanks to them! They have opened the way. We have but to follow" (Preface, Louis Tardy, tr: BM).

"Thirty years ago your grand Dictionnaire Mpongwe-Français appeared. Now at the age of 90, you have given us the companion volume, Français-Mpongwe" (Preface, J. J. Adam, tr: BM).

First volume reprinted 1995: [IUW] Dictionnaire mpongwe-français, suivi d'éléments de grammaire / par André Raponda-Walker; préf. de Louis Tardy. [Gabon]; Fondation Raponda-Walker; [Issy-les-Moulineaux, France]; Les Classiques africains, c1995. v, 640, xvii p.; 21 cm. Classiques africains (Classiques africains (Firm)) no 737. Originally published by Impr. de "La libre Lorraine", in 1934.

[NAASIOI] Naasioi (also Nasioi, Kieta, Kieta Talk, Aunge) is an East Papuan language spoken in the central mountains and southeast coast of Kieta District, Bougainville Province, Papua New Guinea (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nas. Alternate Names: Kieta [also Gieta], Nasioi.

1903: see under OCEANIC LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[NADĚB] Naděb or Kaburi is a Nadahup language of the Brazilian Amazon, along the Uneixi, Japura, and Negro rivers. Various names for it include Nadöbö, Xīriwai, Hahöb, Guariba/Wariwa, Kaborí, Anodöub, sometimes compounded with the term Maku, as in Maku do Paraná Boá-Boá after one of the rivers in Naděb territory (Wiki).

Ethnologue: mbj. Alternate Names: Anodöub, Kabari, Kabori, Makú Naděb, Makunadöbö, Nadeb Macu, Nadöb, Nadöbö, Xiriwai, Xuriwai.

1925: [LILLYbm] "Nouvelle contribution a l'étude de la langue Makú," by P. Rivet, P. Kok & C. Tastevin, in: International Journal of American Linguistics, New York, 3, no. 2-4 (July 1925), pp. [133]-192. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Includes French-Maku [Naděb], pp. 143-185, with an 85-word comparative vocabulary, French-Maku [Naděb]-Tukano [Tucano] (three dialects), pp. 191-192. First substantial published vocabulary of the language. This copy with the ownership signature of P. Albers on the front cover.

"Since Koch-Greenburg published his important work on the Maku in 1913, the only work to appear on this language was that in which two of the present authors showed that Maku was related to Puinave. Today we are able to add to that work, which contained nothing new beyond a short list of Maku-Naděb words, two unpublished vocabularies [combined]; one was assembled among the tribes of the Papury River (P. Kok) and the second was gathered among the Maku-Naděb of Jurubaxy" (Preliminary remarks, my trans.)

This issue of the journal also contains "La lengua Ts'ots'il (Dialecto del Maya-K'i...é, Chiapas)," by Rudolf Schuller, pp. 193-218. Includes Spanish-Tzotzil-Maya thematically arranged vocabulary, pp. 206-215.

[NAFAANRA] Nafaanra (sometimes written Nafaara, pronounced [nafā:ra]) is a Senufo language spoken in northwest Ghana, along the border with Ivory Coast, east of Bondoukou. It is spoken by approximately 61,000 people. Its speakers call themselves Nafana; others call them Banda or Mfantera. Like other Senufo languages, Nafaanra is a tonal language. It is somewhat of an outlier in the Senufo language group, with the geographically closest relatives, the Southern Senufo Tagwana–Djimini languages, approximately 200 kilometres (120 mi) to the west, on the other side of Comoé National Park (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nfr. Alternate Names: Banafo, Banda, Dzama, Gambo, Nafaara, Nafana, Pantera-Fanter.

1933: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1980: [IUW] Collected field reports on the phonology of Nafaara, by Dean Jordan. [Legon]: Institute of African Studies, University of Ghana, 1980. 28 p.; 26 cm. Library binding, preserving original white wrappers, lettered in black. Includes 100-word Swadesh list, English-Nafaara [Nafaanra], pp. 25-28. Collected language notes; no. 17.

"Earlier numbers [of "Collected Language Notes"] consisted of field notes, often derived from a fairly short period of research.... More recent numbers, however, including the present one, are based on a longer period of study and are more thoroughly edited. Nevertheless they still represent a stage of an on-going research programme, and as such some data is still incomplete and there may be some inconsistencies in treatment" (Preface, Anthony J. Naden).

[NAFUSI] Nafusi (also spelled Nefusi, Berber name: Maziy or Tanfusit) is the Berber language of the Nafusa Mountains (Drar n infusen), a large area in northwestern Libya. This variety of the Berber language is spoken by the Ibadite communities around Jadu, Nalut (Lalut), and Yafran. The dialect of Yefren in the east differs somewhat from that of Nalut and Jadu in the west. A number of Old Nafusi phrases appear in Ibadite manuscripts as early as the 12th century, representing some of the earliest manuscript records of Berber. The Ethnologue entry includes nearby Zuara Berber, Matmata Berber, and Djerbi under the rubric "Nafusi", which corresponds neither to local nor to academic usage of the term (Wiki).

Ethnologue: jbn. Alternate Names: Djerbi, Jabal Nafusi, Jbel Nafusi, Jebel Nefusi, Nefusi.

1942: [LILLYbm] Il berbero Nefusi di Fassato: grammatica, testi raccolti dalla viva voce, vocabolarietti. 2. edizione, riveduta e migliorata, by Francesco Beguinot [1979-1953]. Rome: Istituto per l'Oriente, 1942. Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. I-VII VIII-IX X, [2] 1 2-335 336. Second revised and improved edition. Zaunmüller, col. 29 (listing only this second edition). Hendrix 341. First edition was 1931. Includes Italian-Berber [Nafusi], pp. [213]-265, and Berber [Nafusi]-Italian, pp. [267]-323. Second copy: IUW.

[NAGA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT] The Kuki-Chin–Naga languages are a geographic clustering of languages of the Sino-Tibetan family in James Matisoff's classification used by Ethnologue, which groups it under the non-monophyletic "Tibeto-Burman".[2] Their genealogical relationship both to each other and to the rest of Sino-Tibetan is unresolved, but Matisoff lumps them together as a convenience pending further research.

The languages are spoken by the ethnically related Naga people of Nagaland, the Chin (Kuki) people of Burma, and the Kuki people. The larger among these languages have communities of several tens of thousands of native speakers, and a few have more than 100,000, such as Mizo (674,756 in India as of 2001[3]), Thadou (150,000) or Mongsen Ao (140,000).

None of these ethnicities corresponds to a linguistic unit. "Kuki" and "Chin" are essentially synonyms, whereas the Naga speak languages of several families. The established families are:

Kukish (Kuki-Chin)

Ao, in north-central Nagaland

Angami–Pochuri, in southern Nagaland

Tangkhul, in northeastern Manipur

Zeme, in northwestern Manipur

Meithei, the official language of Manipur, is also often included. The Konyak languages of Nagaland, also spoken by ethnic Naga, are not grouped within Kuki-Chin–Naga, but rather within Brahmaputran (Sal). Ethnologue adds Koki, Long Phuri, Makuri, and Para, all unclassified, and all distant from other Naga languages they've been compared to, though Koki is perhaps closest to (or one of) the Tangkhul languages, and the other three may belong together (Wiki).

1844: [LILLYbm] Notes on the Naga Tribes, in communication with Assam, by John Owen. Calcutta: W. H. Carey and Co., 1844. Original purple-gray moiré cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. [6] 1 2-139 140. First edition. "Published by request" on the title page. Not in Zauhmüller. Appears to be one of the earliest descriptions of the Naga tribes and certainly one of the first printed vocabularies. Pp. 115-139 is an "Appendix containing a key to the pronunciation; with a vocabulary and reading lessons of the Naga languages." Includes English-Naga vocabulary, pp. 119-131, double columns. Pp. 37-39 gives Naga names for a wide variety of plants and trees, and a ground plan for a proposed tea house and a sketch of mats for drying tea. P. 101 gives a "List of rivers in Assam which produce gold." This copy with penciled ownership inscription of M. H. Saville, probably the author by the same name of "An Onyx jar from Mexico, in process of manufacture," New York, 1900, from the Bulletin of the American Museum of Natural History, Vol. XIII, Article XI. On the inner rear cover is a pencil notation: "BH No.A8. July 1850 / J.O." which is probably the author's own note.

"Those tribes known generally as Nagas, inhabit mountainous districts on the upper part of the valley of Assam...The principle [Naga tribes] are the Nam-Sangeeas or Kang-jangeas, the Bur-dwarreeas or Takumeeas and the Pannee dwarreeas or Bur-gyahs.... The word 'Naga' (a Sanskrit one) appears to be synonymous with 'snake'...a derogatory term applied in all probability by the natives of the plain to [the Nagas], from their notoriously shy, stealthy habits, and wandering life.... Missionary labours have proved sorely unproductive, although the Rev. Mr. Bronson, an American Missionary, compiled a small vocabulary with a view to establish a school for the education of the children.... Human skulls form the principal ornament of a chief's residence....The compiler of these notes would consider that, supported as he has been by that enterprising body of merchants-The Assam [Tea] Company-he would commit an act of injustice were he to omit recording any information that might be of service to them.... He would therefore suggest, that on the discovery and purposed clearing of an indigenous tea tract on these hills, every possible invitation should be encourage"

There are approximately 20 Naga languages with a total of 500,000 speakers in India.

[NAGA, ANGAMI] Angami (also: Gnamei, Ngami, Tsoghami, Tsugumi, Monr, Tsanglo, Tenyidie) is an Angami–Pochuri language spoken in the Naga Hills in the northeastern part of India, in Kohima district, Nagaland. In 2001, there is an estimate of 125,000 first language (L1) Angami speakers.[3] Under the UNESCO's Language Vitality and Endangerment framework, Angami is at the level of "vulnerable", meaning that it is still spoken by most children, but "may be restricted to certain domains".[4] There are several dialects, the most prominent being Khonoma (around Khonoma village), and Tenyidie aka Kohima (in the state capital of Kohima)[citation needed]. Others include Dzūna, Kehena, Chakroma (Western Angami), Mima, Nali, Mozome. Tenyidie is the prestige dialect, used for publications and taught in the schools.

Ethnologue: njm. Alternate Names: Angamis, Gnamei, Monr, Ngami, Tendydie, Tsanglo, Tsoghami, Tsugumi.

1987: [LILLY] Angami-English-Hindi dictionary, by P[uttushetra] P[uttuswany] Giridhar [ 1951- ] & Lalita Handoo. Mysore: Central Institute of Indian Languages, 1987. xix, 132 p.; 22 cm. Original orange wrappers, lettered in black. First edition.

Includes Angami-English-Hindi, pp. 1-104, and four appendices of further vocabulary. This is the first dictionary of this language.

“Scholars and administrators alike believed in the 19th century that the tribals either had no language or had limited languages. It was said for example that the So:ra language had only 700 words. The term ‘Culture of Silence’ came in handy to reinforce the above notion. The Central Institute of Indian Languages... has decided to produce a grammar, a dictionary, a volume of folklore and learning materials for children and adults in each language... The present Angami-English-Hindi Dictionary is the second to be published in our dictionary series” (Foreword).

“The tribal people of India have for long lived in isolation except to be exposed for exploitation.... The preparation of a dictionary in a tribal language is an important step for the codification of the language” (Editor’s Note).

[NAGA, AO] Mongsen Ao is an Ao language, a branch of the Sino-Tibetan languages, predominantly spoken in central Mokokchung district of Nagaland, northeast India. Gordon (2005) estimates that there are 141,000 speakers of Mongsen and Chungli Ao (the main dialect of Mongsen). A chapter in the anthropological monograph of Mills (1926) provides a grammatical sketch of the variety of Mongsen Ao spoken in Longchang village. Coupe (2003) is one of the few acoustic studies published on a Kuki-Chin-Naga language (only three exist). Coupe (2007) is a reference grammar of the language, based on a revision of his PhD dissertation (Coupe 2004) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: njo. Alternate Names: Ao, Aorr, Cholimi, Hatigoria, Nowgong, Paimi, Uri.

1926: [IUW] The Ao Nagas, by J. P. Mills ... with a foreword by Henry Balfour ... and supplementary notes and bibliography by Dr. J. H. Hutton ... Published by direction of the government of Assam. London, Macmillan and co., limited, 1926. xviii, 500 p. front., plates, 2 maps (1 fold.) 22 cm. One plate accompanied by guard sheet with descriptive letterpress. "Language": p. 332-369. "A bibliography of the Naga Hills, with some adjacent districts": p. 429-440.

Second edition 1973: [IUW] The Ao Nagas. With a foreword by Henry Balfour and supplementary notes and bibliography by J. H. Hutton. [2d ed.] Bombay, Oxford University Press, 1973. xxiv, 510 p. illus. 23 cm. Original dark blue cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. "Published by direction of the Government of Nagaland." Comparative vocabulary of Ao Naga dialects: English-Mongsen-Chongli-Changki-Longla-Yacham, p. 342 (numerals), and pp.359-361. Includes Bibliography: p. 431-450.

1985: [LILLY] Ao-English-Hindi dictionary, by K. S. Gurubasave Gowda [1938-]. Mysore: Central Institute of Indian Languages, 1985. xvi, 80 p.; 21 cm. Original orange wrappers, lettered in black. Series: Dictionary series (Mysore, India) 1. First edition. Includes Ao-English-Hindi, pp. [1]-80. First dictionary of this language.

“The present Ao-English-Hindi Dictionary is the first to be published in our dictionary series” (Foreword).

[NAGA, LOTHIA] The Lothia language is part of the Sino-Tibetan language family, spoken by approximately 166,000 people in Wokha district, west-central Nagaland, India. It is centered in the small district of Wokha (capital Wokha). This district has more than 114 villages such as Pangti, Maraju (Merapani), Englan, Baghty (Pakti) and others, where the language is widely spoken and studied (Wiki).

Ethnologue: njh. Alternate Names: Chizima, Choimi, Hlota, Kyong, Lhota, Lotha, Lutha, Miklai, Tsindir, Tsontsii.

1983: [LILLY] Lotha grammar, by K.P. Acharya. Mysore: Central Institute of Indian Languages, 1983. xxi, 166 p.; 22 cm. In light green and white printed wrappers. Grammar series 10. Includes vocabulary list. Bibliography: p. [165]-166.

"The Lotha Naga language belongs to the central group of Naga languages of the Tibeto-Burman language family. It is spoken by the Lotha people who live mainly in the Wokha district of Nagaland. The text studies the structure of this language and covers phonology, morphology and syntax."

[NAGA, NOCTE] Nocte is a Naga language of northeastern India. Dialects are Khapa, Laju, and Ponthai (Lamlak), and alternate names include Borduria, Jaipuria, Mohongia, Namsangia, Nocte, Nokte, and Paniduria (Ethnologue) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: njb. Alternate Names: Borduria, Jaipuria, Mohongia, Namsangia, Nocte, Nokte, Paniduria.

1971: [LILLY] An introduction to the Nocte language, by Kamalesh Das Gupta [1923- ]. Shillong, North-East Frontier Agency, 1971. 127 p. 20 cm. Original black quarter-linen and light blue paper over boards, lettered in black, original yellow and white dust jacket, lettered in red. First edition. Includes English-Nocte (Roman and Devanagari) vocabulary, pp. 41-101.

[NAGA PIDGIN] Nagamese ("Naga Pidgin") is a creole used in Nagaland. It has its origin from the interaction of the hill tribesman with the Assamese in the plains and developed primarily as a market language to communicate for trade. Since Nagaland is inhabited by people belonging to different Naga tribes speaking languages which are mutually unintelligible, it has now come to serve as the more common lingua franca of the state, though English is the official language of the state. Nagamese is the preferred form of communication for extension works in rural areas and in mixed households. It has been described as a creole, which was stable by 1936 and which is unlikely to decreolize. English is the official language of Nagaland and 67.11% of the population is educated.[citation needed] Nagamese has two cases, two tenses, three aspectual distinctions and no gender. It shares a large part of its lexicon with Assamese (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nag. Alternate Names: Bodo, Kachari Bengali, Naga Creole Assamese, Naga-Assamese, Nagamese.

1978: [LILLY] Hindi Nagami kos = Hindi Nagamese Dictionary, by Braja Bihari Kumara [1941- ] & Hari Prasad Ray. Kohima: Nagaland Bhasha Parisad, 1978. 120 p.; 22cm. Original pink wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. Includes Hindi-Nagamese, pp. [31]-120. First dictionary of this language.

1979: [LILLY] Nagami Hindi svayam-sikshaka = Nagamese Hindi self-teacher, by Braja Biahri Kumara [ 1941- ]. Kohima: Nagalanda Bhasha Parishada, 1979. 54 p.; 22 cm. Original blue and white wrappers, decorated in multiple colors, and lettered in blue. First edition. In Hindi. Includes Nagamese-Hindi vocabulary throughout.

1993: [LILLY] Nagamese, the language of Nagaland, by Bhimakanta Baruwa. New Delhi, India: Mittal Publications, 1993. xiv, 143 p.; 22 cm. Original black cloth, lettered in gold, with black dust jacket,, lettered in orange and black. First edition. Includes Nagamese-English-Assamese, pp. [96]-[130].

“The Nagamese language is the only lingua franca in Nagaland which brings unity amongst different tribes of the State and creates national integration. It is to be noted that no one can move a single step in Nagaland without knowing this language” (Preface).

[NAGA, POCHURI] Pochuri, or Pochuri Naga, is an Angami–Pochuri language spoken in Nagaland, India. According to Ethnologue, Pochuri is spoken in 27 villages of Meluri subdivision, Phek district, southeastern Nagaland. There are also some speakers in Ukhrul district, Manipur (Ethnologue). Maluri (Meluri), which is often considered a dialect of Pochuri, may actually be a distinct language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: npo. Alternate Names: Eastern Rengma, Meluri, Pochuri, Pochury.

1972: [LILLY] Hindi Pocuri Angreji kosa. Hindi Pochury English Dictionary, by Draja Bihari Kumara [1941- ] & Thimase Pochuri. Kohima, Nagalainda Bhasha Parishad, [1. Samskarana]. 1972. 100 p. 23 cm. Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in green. Text in Hindi. Series: Nagalainda Bhasha Parishad; 28; kosa granthamala, 8. First edition. Includes Hindi-Pochury (Roman and Devanagari)-English dictionary, pp. ca. 1-100.

[NAGA, RONGMEI] Rongmei (dialects: Songbu) is spoken in 35 villages of Cachar district, Assam, as well as in northwestern Manipur and Nagaland (Ethnologue). (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nbu. Alternate Names: Kabui, Maruongmai, Nruanghmei, Rongmai, Rongmei, Zeliang.

1937: [IUW] The Rengma Nagas, by J. P. Mills ... Published by direction of the government of Assam. London, Macmillan and co., limited, 1937. x, 381 p. front., illus. (plans) plates. 23 cm. Original dark blue cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in gold. "Language": p. 285-309. Vocabulary, 308-309. English-Rengma (A, B, C), pp. 308-309.

"No one but a specialist can ever hope adequately to analyse a Naga language, with its tones, its rich vocabulary and its nuances of meaning that are so hard to grasp....In this section I am compelled to deal, not with one language, but with three, and no claim is made to anything better than a brief and inadequate outline...Language A is the language of the Southern group of Western Rengmas... Language B is spoken in the in the upper 'dhels' of Tesophenyu, and in Kotsenyu, Kotsenishinyu and Kitagha. Language C is spoken in the three Eastern Rengma villages of Meluri, Lephori and Sahunyu" (p. 285).

1975: [LILLY] Hindi Kabui (Ronmai) kosa = Hindi Kabui (Rongmei) Dictionary, by Braja Bihari Kumara [1941- ]. Kohima: Nagalainda Bhasha Parishad, 1975. 112 p.; 22 cm. Original light gray wrappers, lettered in brown. Seeries: Nagalainda Bhasha Parishada 76; Kosa-granthamala 25. First edition. In Hindi. Includes Hindi-Kabui (Rongmei), pp. [1]-112. First dictionary of this language.

[NAGA, SANGTAM] The Sangtams are a Naga tribe living in the Tuensang and Kiphire districts of Nagaland. Like many other tribal groups in Northeast India, they practice jhum, or shifting cultivation. Unlike other Naga tribes in Nagaland, many of the Sangtam have retained their traditional beliefs in spite of embracing Christianity at the same time. Sangtams celebrate twelve different festivals, in particular Mongmong, all of which are affiliated with their traditional culture and religion. The Sangtam people are one of the major tribes in Nagaland. Towards the Southern part of Nagaland, we have the Sangtam inhabited area under the Kiphire district. The Northern part of Sangtam includes the Longkhim-Chare sub-division of Tuensang district. They are united under the common banner called “United Sangtam.” There are 62 (sixty two) villages among the Sangtams, 24 villages under Longkhim-Chare sub-division and 38 villages under Kiphire district. There are seven government administrative towns under united Sangtam jurisdiction. During the recent years, another part of Sangtam land has been recognized under Dimapur district namely Tsithrongse, Sangtamtila and Murise villages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nsa. Alternate Names: Isachanure, Lophomi, Sangtam.

1973: [LILLY] Hindī Sānatama Aṅgrejī kośa. = Hindi Sangtam English dictionary. / [Lekhaka] Braja Bihārī Kumāra, Ṭī Tsāsēmōṅa Sāntama [tathā] Ānandī Prasāda Maṇḍala. [1. saṃskaraṇa]. Kohimā: Nāgālaiṇḍa Bhāshā Parishada, [1973]. [5], 2-104 p.; 22 cm. Original cream wrappers, lettered in brown. First edition. Text in Hindi. Includes Hindi-Sangtam (Roman and Devanagari)-English dictionary, pp. 17-100.

[NAGA, TASE] Tangsa, also Tase and Tase Naga, is a Sino-Tibetan languages or language cluster spoken by the Tangsa people of Burma and north-eastern India. Some varieties, such as Shangge, are likely distinct languages. There are about 60,000 speakers in Burma and 40,000 speakers in India (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nst. Alternate Names: Haimi, Hawa, Heimi, Kuwa, Pangmi, Pangwa, Rangpan, Rangpang, Tangshang, Tangwa, Tase.

1980: [LILLY] The Tangsa language: a synopsis, by Kamalesh Das Gupta [1923- ]. Shillong: Govt. of Arunachal Pradesh, 1980. 77 p.; 23 cm. Original blue and white wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. Includes various brief bilingual word lists for dialects of the language, including Moklum, Kimsing, Longchang [Lungchang], Yogli, Mosang, Morang, Ronrang, Havi [Have], Longri [Lungri], Tikhak, and Ponthei [Ponthai].

1988a: [LILLY] Jugli language guide, by Winlang Rekhung. Itanagar: Directorate of Research, Govt. of Arunachal Pradesh, 1988. 53 p.; 23 cm. Original yellow wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. Includes English-Jugli [Yogli] (Roman and Devanagari), pp. 27-53. First substantial printed vocabulary of this dialect of Naga, Tase.

1988b: [LILLY] Lungchang language guide, by Winlang Rekhung. Itanagar: Directorate of Research, Govt. of Arunachal Pradesh, 1988.: 62 p.; 23 cm. Original lavender wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. Includes English-Lungchang , pp. 37-61, and other wordlists throughout. First printed vocabulary of this dialect of Naga, Tase].

“The Juglies or Rangpang as they call themselves are one of the major sub-tribes of the Tangsa tribe. They are about 15,000 in number according to the 1971 census” (Preface).

[NAGA, TUTSA] Tutsa is a Sino-Tibetan language spoken in northeastern India. Tutsa is spoken in southern Changlang district and eastern Tirap district of Arunachal Pradesh, as well as Tinsukia district of Assam (Ethnologue). Half of speakers are monolingual (Wiki).

Ethnologue: tvt. Alternate Names: Totcha, Tutsa.

1992: [LILLY] Tutsa language guide, by Winlang Rekhung. Itanagar: Directorate of Research, Govt. of Arunachal Pradesh, 1992. 111 p.; 23 cm. Original pale brownish-orange wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. Includes English-Tutsa (Roman and Devanagari), pp. [68]-102. First printed vocabulary of this language.

“The Tutsa or Hatutss as they call themselves are inhabiting the Western Part of the Changlang District and South Eastern Part of the Tirap District of Arunachal Pradesh. They are about twenty thousand in number. This phrase book deals with the dialect pslken in the Tutsa of Sabban area of Changlang Sub-Division... This being the first philological study conducted among them, there may be some omission in documentation and in analysing the linguistic material...” (Preface).

[NAGA, ZEME] Zeme is a Sino-Tibetan language spoken in northeastern India. It is part of a dialect continuum that includes Rongmei and Liangmei (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nzm. Alternate Names: Arung, Empeo, Empui, Jeme, Kacha, Kachcha, Kachcha Naga, Kutcha, Mezama, Sangrima, Sengima, Zeliang, Zeliangrong, Zeme, Zemi.

1973: [LILLY] Hindi Jeliyana Angreji kosa (Jemi boli) = Hindi Zeliang English dictionary (Zemi dialect), by Ramakrpala Kumara & L. Cavana. Kohima: Nagalainda Bhasha Parishada, 1973. 95 p.; 22 cm. Original cream wrappers, lettered in green. First edition. Includes Hindi-Zeliang (Roman and Devanagari) vocabulary, pp. 1-91.

[NAHALI] Kalto or Nahali is an Indo-Aryan language of India. Kalto is the endonym; the exonym "Nahal" or "Nihal" is disparaging. Because of the name "Nahali", the language has often been confused with Nihali, an apparent language isolate spoken by a neighboring people with a similar lifestyle (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nlx. Alternate Names: Kalto, Nahal, Nahale, Nahalia.

1962: [LILLYbm] Nahali: A Comparative Study, by F[ransiscus] B[ernardus] J[acobus] Kuiper. Amsterdam: N.V. Nord-Hollandsche Uitgevers Maatschappij, 1962. Original blue and gray wrappers, lettered in blue and black; d.j. blue and white, lettered in black. 114 pp. First edition. Mededeelingen der Koninklijke Nederlandsche Akademie van Wetenschappen, Afd. Letterkunde; nieuwe reeks, d. 25, no. 5. Includes Nahali-English vocabulary, pp. [58]-107, and English-Nahali, pp. [108]-113. First extensive vocabulary of this language. Second copy: IUW.

"Up to quite recent times no exact data as to the habitat of the Nahals were known. Most authorities confine themselves to the statement that the Nahals dwell in the Nimar District of Madhya Pradesh and in the Gawilgarh Hills of the Ellichpur District [in central India]. ..In spite of all pessimistic prophesies, Nahali is still spoken. Letters from Indian scholars living in the neighborhood of the Nahal area state the existence of a separate Nahali dialect, although no exact date could be obtained...In his later work Ethnology of Ancient India (Wiesbaden 1954...) Shafer quotes Nahali along with the Himalayan dialect Kusunda and with Burushaski as representatives of three separate linguistic families beside the three main groups of languages, viz. Aryan, Dravidian, and Munda. Nahali he now takes to be the remains of the 'Bhilla language.' This conclusion has since been accepted by several scholars. Sudhibhushan Bhattacharya has published a more extensive word-list of Nahali in Ind. Ling. 17, 1957...to show the isolated character of Nahali...his materials...confirm that the language is still spoken in some parts of the area...The real point of issue is not, however whether there are many foreign words of unknown origin in Nahali, but whether their occurrence justifies our setting Nahali apart as an isolated language... Too little is known about the exact status of the Nahals among the Kurkus to allow fully certain conclusions but the general data... suggest that their status was ...that of helots generally...[described by Bhattacharya as follows]: 'I have seen that the Korku consider the Nahal to be an inferior section of their tribe'... The questions arises whether the Nahals may perhaps have had recourse to the same weapon that despised social groups have used all over India, viz. the secret language."

[NAHUAN LANGUAGES] The Nahuatl or Aztec languages are those languages of the Uto-Aztecan language family that have undergone a sound change, known as Whorf's Law, that changed an original *t to /tʃ/ before *a. The best known Nahuatl language is Nahuatl. Some authorities, such as the Mexican government, Ethnologue, and Glottolog, consider the varieties of modern Nahuatl to be distinct languages, because they are often mutually unintelligible and their speakers have distinct ethnic identities. As of 2008, the Mexican government recognizes thirty varieties that are spoken in Mexico as languages (see the list below). Researchers distinguish between several dialect areas that each have a number of shared features: One classification scheme distinguishes innovative central dialects, spoken around Mexico City, from conservative peripheral ones spoken north, south and east of the central area, while another scheme distinguishes a basic split between western and eastern dialects. Nahuatl languages include not just varieties known as Nahuatl, but also Pipil and the extinct Pochutec language. The distinction between the Nahuatl and Pochutec is now thought to be due to language contact; see Pochutec language for details (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists Nahuatl as a macro-language including 28 separate languages.

1552: [LILLY] La istoria de las Indias. y Conquista de Mexico. En la muy noble y leal Ciudad de Çaragoça: Fue impressa ... en casa de Agustin Millan, y acabose vispera de Navidad año de mil y quinientos y cinquenta y dos, [24 Dec. 1552]. cxxii, cxxxix, [1] leaves; [2] leaves of plates: 1 ill., 2 maps; 30 cm. (fol.) Author's name from leaf pi verso: Francisco Lopez de Gomara ... excriue la presente istoria. Imprint from colophon. Signatures: pi<sup>2</sup> a-z<sup>4</sup> A-G<sup>4</sup>; a-z<sup>4</sup> A-M<sup>4</sup> (G<sup>4</sup> verso, 1st alphabet, blank; d<sup>3</sup>, 1st alphabet, missigned c<sup>3</sup>; d<sup>3</sup> second alphabet, missigned D<sup>3</sup>). OCLC #80739402 calls for leaf a<sup>4</sup>, second alphabet, to be a cancel; not apparent in Lilly Library copy. Two leaves with woodcut maps, and letterpress on recto and verso respectively, inserted in signature pi; woodcut of bison on leaf F<sup>2</sup> verso, first alphabet. Arms of Spain with crowned double eagle on first t.p. Correction slip pasted on verso of leaf xxxvii of first numbered sequence. Leaves cxiv, (1st count) and ix, lj, lxxj (2nd count) misfoliated cxij, xj, xli, and lxxvij. Misfoliations vary among copies. Conquista de Mexico has separate title page, separate foliation and signatures. Church, E.D. Discovery, no. 97, refers to the 1553 re-issue as the first edition, cf. Alden. Sabin 27724 and Palau y Dulcet (2nd ed.) 141135 also cite the re-issue. Errata statement: leaf cxxij recto, 1st count. Lilly Library copy imperfect, signature pi supplied in facsimile. From the library of Bernardo Mendel, with his bookplate. Bound in modern vellum, maps repaired, skillful paper repairs to corners and edges, text replaced in facsimile on leaf lv (first count). In a brown cloth slipcase with chemise. References: Alden, J.E. European Americana, 552/22; Wagner, H.R. Spanish Southwest no. 2. Includes a brief list of Nahuatl language words: leaves cxvij verso-cxix recto, 2nd count.

1555: [LILLY] Aqui comienza vn vocabulario en la lengua castellana y mexicana / compuesta por el muy reuerendo padre fray Alonso de Molina: guardia[n] d[e]l co[n]ue[n]to d[e] sant Antonio d[e] Tetzcuco d[e] la orde[n] delos frayles Menores ... Imprimio se e[n] la muy gra[n]de & insigne y muy leal ciudad de Mexico: en casa de Iua[n] pablos, ... a q[ua]tro dias del mes de mayo. de 1555. [8], 258 leaves, 259-260, [2] p.: ill.; 21 cm. (4to) Imprint from colophon. Signatures: a<sup>8</sup> A<sup>8</sup> B-Z<sup>4</sup> &<sup>4</sup> AA-ZZ<sup>4</sup> &&<sup>4</sup> 2[<sup>4</sup>cross]<sup>4</sup> <sup>2</sup>a-p<sup>4</sup> (p4 verso blank). Title in red and black, title vignette (St. Francis), full page woodcuts on t.p. verso, and leaf a8 recto and verso, initials. "Tassado por el Audie[n]cia Real en dos pesos y vn nomin [i.e. tomín]"--slip pasted on bottom of title page (OCLC). Lilly Library copy has "Tassado" altered in pen and ink to "Passado" but "tomin" printed from type. See OCLC no. 58673010 and JCB Lib. cat. Church, E.D. Discovery cites the 1555 ed. in a note to the entry for the 1571 ed. (no. 116). Lilly Library copy has ms. notes in several early hands on front flyleaf. Leaf lv of one of the 1550 issues of the "Doctrina Christiana" used as back flyleaf. Bound in limp vellum, ms. spine title added in a modern hand, edges red, bottom edges branded "SsDP"(?). Wormed throughout, with minor losses of text. In a brown cloth slipcase. From the library of Bernard Mendel, with his bookplate. References: Sabin 49866; JCB Lib. cat., pre-1675, I.p. 188; Medina, J.T. México, 24; Palau y Dulcet (2. ed.), 174351; García Icazbalceta, J. Bib. mexicana (1954 ed.) 24; Wagner, H.R. Bib. mexicana 23.

First edition of the first printed Spanish-Nahuatl vocabulary, and the first bilingual dictionary printed in the western hemisphere.

"The history of this very important work is a story in itself. ... Alonso de Molina, a Franciscan, was by far the most important figure in the effort to spread Nahuatl among the early colonists and missionaries. Molina came to the New World as a child and learned Nahuatl from playmates and his nurses. Then when he entered the priesthood he used this early contact with the language in his missionary activities and in the training of other priests. As with most authors of works printed in Nahuatl, his first production was a catechism, printed in 1546. However, since no copies of that work still exist his second work, this Vocabulario, is the oldest extant" (Schwaller 2).

Facsimile edition 2001: [IUW] Aquí comienza vn vocabulario en la lengua castellana y mexicana / Fray Alonso de Molina ; edición de Manuel Galeote. [Málaga] : Universidad de Málaga, [2001] lxiii, 535 p. : ill. ; 24 cm. Anejos de Analecta malacitana ; 37. Incluye: reproducción facsímil del ejemplar conservado en la Biblioteca Nacional de Madrid. Bibliografía: p. xlviii-lviii.

Second edition 1571: [LILLY] Vocabulario en lengua Castellana y Mexicana / compuesto por el muy reuerendo padre fray Alonso de Molina, de la Orden del bienaventurado nuestro padre Sant Francisco. Dirigido al muy excelente senor Don Martin Enriquex, visorrey desta nueva España. En Mexico,: En casa de Antonio de Spinosa, .1571. 2 parts in 1 v.: ill., coat of arms; 28 cm (fol.). Previously printed in Mexico by Juan Pablos, 1555. In two parts, with separate dated title pages. Title page of part two reads: Vocabulario en lengua mexicana y castellana, compuesto por el muy reuerendo padre fray Alonso de Molina, de la Orden del bienaventurado nuestro padre sant Francisco. Colophon at end of part 2 reads: Aqui hazen fin los dos vocabularios, en lengua castellana y nahual o mexicana que hizo y recopiló el muy reverendo padre, fray Alonso de Molina: de la orden de señor san Francisco. Imprimieronse en la muy insigne y gran ciudad de Mexico: en casa de Antonio de Spinosa. En el año de nuestra redempcion.de.1571. =Nican tzonquica yn ontetl vocabularios ypan castillan tlatolli yuan nauatlatolli, yn oquimotlalili cenca mauiztililoni, totatzin fray Alfonso de Molina, teupixqui sant Francisco. Omicuiló nican ypan vey altepetl ciudad Mexico: ycha[n] Antonio de Spinosa. Ypan xiuitl.1571.años. Woodcuts, pt. 1: arms (of dedicatee?) on t.p., woodcut "Dirigatur oratio ..." on recto of last leaf, printer's device on verso; pt. 2: woodcut of St. Francis on t.p., printer's device on recto of last leaf, woodcut with "IHS" on shield at center on verso. Part 1: [4], 121, [1] leaves; pt. 2: [2], 162 leaves. Foliation errors: in part 1, leaves 44 and 55 misprinted as 45 and 47 respectively. Signatures: part 1: *<sup>4</sup> a-o<sup>8</sup> p<sup>10</sup>; part 2: pi<sup>2</sup> A-T<sup>8</sup> V<sup>10</sup> (a2, g2 signed A2, g3; F2 signed F3). From the library of Bernardo Mendel, with his bookplate. Bound in modern black morocco grained cloth, rebounded or with black morocco-grained sheep shelfback lettered in gilt, edges uncut. In a blue cloth case.

References: Medina, J.T. Mexico, 65; Wagner, H.R. Bib. mexicana 60; Sabin, 49867; JCB Lib. cat., pre-1675 I, 246; Palau y Dulcet (2. ed.) 174352; Garcia Icazbalceta, J. Bib. mexicana (1954 ed.), 68; Church, E.D. Discovery, 116.

"The Vocabulario of 1555 was revised, augmented, and reprinted in 1571. This work, Vocabulario en lengua castellana y mexicana; Mexico: Antonio de Spinosa, 1571; Medina Mexico 65, is one of the most famous of the early works from the Mexican printers. To this day the 1571 edition of Molina's Vocabulario ranks as one of the definitive Nahuatl dictionaries, being reprinted in facsimile as late as 1970" (Schwaller 2).

Facsimile edition 1992: [IUW] Vocabulario en lengua castellana y mexicana, y mexicana y castellana / Alonso de Molina ; estudio preliminar de Miguel León-Portilla. 3. ed. México : Editorial Porrúa, 1992. 2 v. ; 26 cm. Biblioteca Porrúa ; 44. On cover: Edición facsimile. 1571 edition has title: Vocabulario en lengua castellana y mexicana. Includes bibliographical references.

Facsimile edition 2001: [IUW] Vocabulario en lengua castellana y mexicana / Fray Alonso de Molina. Madrid : Agencia Española de Cooperación Internacional, Ediciones de Cultura Hispánica, [2001]. 2 v. in 1 ; 28 cm. + guide (47 p. : ill. ; 28 cm.). A facsimile of the 1571 edition: Casa de Antonio de Spinosa, Mexico. Guide: Vocabulario en lengua castellana y mexicana : estudio / de Esther Hernández. Includes bibliographical references in guide (p. 41-47).

[1611 Leon PM 4068 .L 57 Mendel]

1673: [LILLY] Arte de lengua mexicana: dispuesto por orden, y mandato de N. Rmo P. Fr. Francisco Treviño, predicador theologo, padre de la santa provincia de Burgos, y comissario general de todas las de la Nueva-España, y por el reverendo, y venerable diffinitorio de la provincia del Santo Evangelio; Dedicado al bienaventurado

S. Antonio de Padua, by Augustín de Vetancurt, 1620-1700.; Saville, Marshall H. En Mexico: Por Francisco Rodriguez Lupercio., 1673.

1683: [LILLY] Vocabulario manual de las lenguas castellana y mexicana. [Pedro de Arenas]. Mexico: Viuda de Bernardo Calderón, 1683. Reference: Medina Mexico 1271. Lilly copy lacks pp. 69-72.

"In terms of the sheer number of editions, this Spanish-Nahuatl dictionary must have been one of the most popular. It was first printed sometime before 1611, for that is the date of the second edition. During the next 220 years this work went through eleven editions, as far as can be discovered" (Schwaller 20).

New edition 1728: [LILLY] Arenas PM 4066 .A682 1728 Mendel, Mexico: Francisco Rivera de Calderón [1728?]. Medina Mexico 2978.

New edition 1793: [LILLY] Arenas PM4066 .A682 1793 Mendel. Puebla: Pedro de la Rosa, 1793. Medina Puebla 1248.

New edition 1831: [LILLY] Arenas PM 4066 .A682 1831 Mendel. Puebla: Hospital de San Pedro, 1831. Palau 15930.

[1689 Vázquez PM 4063 .V39 Mendel Room]

[1713 Perez PM 4063 .P 43 Mendel]

[1717 Avila Lilly PM4063 .A9 Mendel]

[1726 Vázquez PM 4063 .V39 1726 Mendel]

[1746 Saavedra PM 4068 .S 11 Mendel]

[1753 Tapia PM 4063 .T172 Mendel Room]

[1759 Carochi PM 4063 .C29 1759 Mendel]

1765: [LILLY] Arte, vocabulario, y confesionario en el idioma mexicano, como se usa en el Obispado de Guadalajara. Cortés y Zedeño, Jerónimo Tomás de Aquino. Puebla: Colegio Real de San Ignacio, 1765. Medina Puebla 729. Lilly Library call number: PM4063 .C82 A78 Mendel.

"Cortés y Zedeño was a resident of the Bishopric of Guadalajara. This work is a very interesting one, dealing as it does with the Nahuatl spoken west of the central Mexican area" (Schwaller 33).

[1810 Sandoval PM 4063 S. 21 Mendel]

1810: [LILLY] Don Francisco Xavier de Venégas de Saavedra, Rodrigues de Arenzana, Güemes, Mora, Pacheco, Daza, y Maldonado ... presidente de su real junta, y subdelegado general de Correos en el mismo reyno. : Ayamo moyolpachihuitia in Totlatocatzin rey D. Fernando VII, auh itencopatzinco in Supremo Consejo de Regencia de España è Indias. Author: Francixco Xavier Venegas (1760-1838). [México : s.n., 1810]. 1 sheet ([1]) p. ; 32 x 43 cm. From the library of Bernardo Mendel. Title from text. Caption begins, Don Francisco Xavier Venegas... Dated at end, Mexico, Oct. 5, 1810. Typesigned by Venegas with his rubric. Concerns tribute to be paid by Mexican inhabitants to the new King of Spain, Ferdinand VII. Text in Nahuatl. Shelved with computer print out and full vocabulary compiled by R. Joe Campbell (Bloomington, 1973). 1 broadside. References: Sabin, J. Dictionary of books relating to America from its discovery to the present time, 98850; González de Cossío, F. Imprenta en México, 1553-1820, 580; León-Portilla, A.H. de. Impresos en náhuatl, de Mexico, 421; Hernandez y Davalos, Col. de documentos, II, 70.

1849: [LILLY] Silabario de idioma mexicano. Chimalpopocatl Galicia, Faustino. (d. 1877). Mexico: Imprenta de las Escalerillas, 1849. PM4063 .C54 Mendel.

"Chimalpopocatl was the most active Nahuatl scholar of the last century. This is one of the basic books which he wrote to re-introduce Nahuatl to Mexico. It is a spelling book and dictionary. The copy held by the Lilly Library is an autograph copy presented by the author. to Joaquin García Icazbalceta whose bookplate it bears" (Schwaller B).

[1869 Chimalpopocatl PM 4063 .C53 Mendel]

1857: [LILLY] Evangeliarium epistolarium et lectionarium Aztecum sive Mexicanum ex antiquo codice Mexicano nuper reperto... cum praefatione interpretatione adnotationibus glossario edidit Bernardinus Biondelli. Mediolani: typis Jos. Bernardoni Q.m Johannis, 1857. First edition, 4to, pp. xlix, [4], 574, [2] errata; facsimile plate of the manuscript; text in Latin and Nahuatl, "Glossarium Azteco-Latinum" occupies pages [427]-553; bound after: [prospectus for:] Evangeliarium epistolarium et lectionarium Aztecum sive Mexicanum ex antiquo codice Mexicano nuper reperto, 4to, pp. 4; bound before: Sull'antica lingua Azteca o Nahuatl osservazioni di B. Biondelli, Milano: tipografia Bernardoni, 1860, pp. 20; publisher's black morocco-backed green cloth boards, gilt-paneled spine laid out in 5 compartments, gilt-lettered direct in 1. An Ayer Linguistic duplicate, with the Ayer/Newberry bookplate on the front pastedown, 2 Ayer accession labels on the back pastedown, and Newberry release stamp on the verso of the frontfree endpaper. Pilling, Proof-Sheets 3442 and 3323; Ayer, Nahuatl 29.

"A diglot in Classical Nahuatl and Latin with the text in parallel columns on the page. The main text of this work is taken from a manuscript written in 1532 and found in 1826, thought to be the original writings of Bernardino de Sahagun but later understood to be uneditorialized direct translations into Nahuatl of the Epistles and Gospels. Pilling's assumption is that this is Sahagun's translation. Darlow & Moule 6777: 'The liturgical Epistles and Gospels, with lectionary, originally translated into Mexican by Bernardino Ribeiro, surnamed Sahagun ... the form of the language is the pure Aztec current in Mexico at the time of the Spanish occupation, before it had become corrupted by European influences. The MS. containing this version, which is dated 1532, was brought to Europe by J. C. Beltrami in 1826, and was edited with a Latin preface, translation, notes and glossary, by Bernardino Biondelli.' Only 1 copy of the prospectus is located in OCLC (Georgetown); of the Sull'antica lingua Azteca o Nahuatl, only 2 copies are located, both at the BL" (Bookseller's description: Rob Rulon-Miller).

1869: [LILLYbm: also LILLY PM 4066 .B 5] Glossarium azteco-latinum et latino-aztecum cura et studio Bernardini Biondelli collectum ac digestum, by Bernardino Biondelli [1804-1886]. Milan: Valentiner et Mues, 1869. Original gray wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [4] 1-5 6-256 257-260. First edition thus. Zaunmüller, col. 25. Edition of 200 copies. A reprint (see 1857 above) of the Glossarium azteco-latinum in the Evangeliarium, Epistolarium ac Lectionarium aztecum sive mexicanum ex antiquo codice mexicano nuper reperto depromptum cum praefatione interpretatione adnotationibus glossario edidit Bernardus Biondelli. Mediolani, 1858, p. [427]-553, with the addition of the Glossarium latino-aztecum. Includes Aztec-Latin, pp. [5]-129, and Latin-Aztec, pp. [133]-256, with addenda and corrigenda, p. [257]. First two-way Latin dictionary of Nahuatl.

"This dictionary is based on the work of the sixteenth-century Franciscan, Bernardino de Sahagún. Sahagún was by far the greatest "anthropologist" of his period. He quickly realized the need to collect as much information as possible about the old Indian culture. Using remarkably modern techniques he amassed a wealth of information, and part of the result of his labors was a Nahuatl-Latin dictionary which, however, remained in manuscript until the nineteenth century. Biondelli's work is in large part based on that manuscript" (Schwaller D).

1885a: [LILLYbm] Arte mexicana, by Antonio del Rincon [1556-1601]. Cover title: Gramatica y vocabulario mexicanos. 1595. Reimpresion de 1885, ed. by Antonio Peñafiel. Mexico City Oficina tip. de la Secretaría de fomento, 1885. Original pale violet wrappers, lettered and decorated in black (uncut and unopened, unprinted spine perishing). Pp. 1-7 8-94. Second edition, the first having appeared in 1595. Includes Nahuatl-Spanish vocabulary, pp. 73-94.

"We commence a series of publications with the goal of distributing in the Mexican Republic materials that will serve later as an aid in rectifying its ethnographic map: selecting the most important editions, by reprinting them with care, from among the grammars and vocabularies of the principal languages spoken in the vast Mexican territory. Among the grammars of the Nahuatl language, one of the most valuable, a bibliographical rarity, is that entitled 'Arte mexicana compiled by Father Antonio del Rincon....' The copy we used in order to bring this to new public light is fro

1885b: [LILLY] Dictionnaire de la langue nahuatl ou mexicaine, rédigé d'après les documents imprimés et manuscrits les plus authentiques et précédé d'une introduction, by Rémi Siméon [1827- ]. Paris: Imprimerie Nationale, 188 Pp. [4] I II-LXXV LXXVI, 1 2-710. 38 cm. First edition. Zaubmüller, col. 25. Includes Nahuatl-French, pp. [1]-710. This is the first French dictionary of Nahuatl. Half title: Mission Scientifique au Mexique et dans l'Amérique Centrale...Linguistique. Lilly Library copy 1 from the library of Bernardo Mendel, bound in tan marbled boards and three-quarters brown vellum, with marbled endpapers and top edges gilt; Lilly Library copy 2 from the Breon Mitchell collection of bi-lingual dictionaries, bound in original gray paper over boards, lettered and decorated in black, edges untrimmed.

Reprinted 1963: [IUW] Dictionnaire de la langue nahuatl ou mexicaine / [par] Remi Simeon. Preface par Jacqueline de Durand-Forest. Graz : Akademische Druck-U. Verlagsanstalt, 1963. 12, lxxv, 710 p. ; 28 cm. Reprint of the 1885 ed.

Spanish translation 2010: [IUW] Diccionario de la lengua nahuatl o mexicana : redactado según los documentos impresos y manuscritos más auténticos y precedido de una introducción / por Rémi Siméon ; [traducción de Josefina Oliva de Coll]. México, D.F. : Siglo Veintiuno, [2010]. xcvi, 783 p. ; 24 cm. Colección América nuestra (Mexico City, Mexico). América antigua ; 1. Título original: Dictionnaire de la langue nahuatl ou mexicaine. "Primera edición, 1977"--T.p. verso. Includes bibliographical references.

1885c: [LILLYbm] Nombres geográficos de México. Catálogo alfabético de los nombres de lugar pertenecientes al idioma "Nahuatl," estudio jeroglífico de la matrícula de los tributos del Codice mendocino, by Antonio Peñafiel. Mexico: Oficina Tip. de la Secretaría de Fomento, 1885. Two vols. (text plus atlas). Original (?) black half-leather, lettered and decorated in gold, and blue marbled paper over boards. Pp. [text volume] 1-5 6-260 261-264; [atlas] [4] hand-colored plates I-XXXIX, each a separate unnumbered leaf. First edition. Zaubmüller, col. 24. Includes Nahuatl-Spanish vocabulary with pictograms, pp. [87]-255.

1889: [LILLY] Vocabulario comparativo Castellano y Nahuatl...segunda edicion, by Cecilio A. Robelo. Cuernavaca: Luis G. Miranda, 1889. 8vo, pp, [5], 48-114; half brown morocco over marbled boards, gilt title direct on spine, marbled endpapers, t.e.g.; 255 Spanish terms and their Nahuatl equivalents, pp. [47]-114. An Ayer Linguistic duplicate, with bookplate and label on pastedowns and release stamp on flyleaf. See Palau 270706, not listing this 1889 edition; (bookseller's description: Rulon-Miller). Comparative vocabulary, Spanish-Nahuatl, pp. [47]-114.

1898: [IUW] Diccionario de mejicanismos; colección de locuciones i frases viciosas con sus correspondientes críticas i correcciones fundadas en autoridades de la lengua: máximas, refranes, provincialismos i remoques populares de todos los estados de la República Mejicana; por Félix Ramos i Duarte ... 2. ed. aumentada con un prólogo del distinguido filólogo Don Ricardo Gómez ... con un tercer suplemento de más de 650 voces, en las que el autor hace importantes aclaraciones i correcciones, i presenta etimologías de sumo interés para la lingüística nacional. Méjico, Herrero hermanos, 1898. 9, [2], [7]-584 p. 22 cm.

1899 [1905]: [IUW] Vocabulario de mexicanismos, comprobado con ejemplos y comparado con los de otros países hispano-americanos. Propónense además adiciones y enmiendas á la última edición (12 .) del Diccionario de la academia. Por elseñor don Joaquín García Icazbalceta...Obra póstuma publicada por su hijo Luis García Pimentel. México, Tip. y lit. "La Europea", de J. Aguilar Vera y c . (s. en c.) 1899. xviii, 241 p. 24 cm. Cover dated 1905. "Provincialismos mexicanos", p. [v]-xviii, reprinted from Memorias de la Academia mexicana correspondiente de la Real española, v. 3. cf. Advertencia. Completed through the letter G. No more published.

1903: [IUW] Le Nahuatl, langue des Aztèques, conquérants du Mexique précolombien. Grammaire, vocabulaires, textes avec analyse et traduction interlinéaire, by Raoul de La Grasserie. Paris, E. Guilmoto, 1903. 2 p. ., 416 p. 25 cm. Bibliothèque linguistique américaine. t. XXV.

1936: [IUW] El español que se habla en México, by Ignacio Alcocer. Tscubaya, D.F., 1936. 93 p. Publicación (Pan American Institute of Geography and History), no.20.

1940: [LILLYbm] Llave del Náhuatl: colección de trozos clásicos, con gramática y vocabulario, para utilidad de los principiantes, by Angel Mariá Garibay K[intana]. Otumba, Mexico: [Imprenta Mayli, s.a.], 1940. BOUND WITH: Vocabulario mejicano de la Sierra de Zacapoaxtla, Puebla, compiled by Harold Key & Mary Ritchie de Key. Illustrated by Alberto Beltran & Catarina Voigtlander. Mexico: Instituto Linguistico de Verano, 1953. Green cloth over boards, lettered in gold, with name of owner stamped in gold on front cover: Joseph E. Vincent. Pp. [Llave] 1-13 14-259 260-264 (pp. [261-264] bound in at end of volume); [Vocabulario] i-ii iii-xii, 1-2 3-232. Both are first editions. The Vocabulario was printed in an edition of 1000 copies.

1949: [LILLYbm] Aztekische Schriftsprache. Grammatik (mit Lautlehre), Text und Glossar, by Jakob Schoembs. Heidelberg: Carl Winter Universitätsverlag, 1949. Original chipped and badly worn tan wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. 1-6 7-212. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 24. Includes Nahuatl-German vocabulary, pp. 126-211, double columns.

"The goal of this book is to offer the most complete presentation possible of the Aztec or Mexican language. This has been lacking up to now in German, and those in other languages are either too limited in scope or lacking in necessary linguistic competence..., in addition to which they require a third language of the German reader" (Foreword, my trans.).

1966: [LILLYbm] Los mil elementos del mexicano clásico: base analítica de la lengua nahua, by Mauricio Swadesh {1909-1967} & Madalena Sancho. Mexico City: Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México, Instituto de Investigaciones Históricas, 1966. Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in black and red. First edition. Series: Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México. Instituto de Investigaciones Históricas. Serie de cultura nahuatl. Monografías, 9. Includes Nahuatl-Spanish, pp. [41]-78, and Spanish-Nahuatl, pp. [79]-89.

"Except for a few rare words which may have escaped the major dictionaries of Molina and Remi Simeon, upon which our work is based, whatever word one desires to analyze can be understood with the data presented here" (Introduction, my trans.).

1974: [IUW] Terminología agrohidráulica prehispánica nahua / Brigitte B. de Lameiras ; con la colaboración de Armando Pereyra. México : Instituto Nacional de Antropología e Historia, Centro de Investigaciones Superiores, Seminario de Etnohistoria del Valle de México, 1974. 127 p. : ill. ; 27 cm. Colección científica (Instituto Nacional de Antropología e Historia (Mexico)) ; 13. Bibliography: p. 41-42.

1977: [IUW] Codex Mendoza : topogriefen / Antoon L. Vollemaere. 2800 Mechelen, Nieuw Beggaardenstraat 15 : Vlaams Instituut voor Amerikanistiek v.z.w., 1977. [184] leaves : ill. ; 30 cm. America antiqua. Bibliography: leaves 151-152.

1983a: [LILLYbm] An Analytical Dictionary of Nahuatl, by Frances Karttunen. Austin: University of Texas Press, 1983. Original black cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in silver; dust jacket black and white, lettered and decorated in white, pink and black. Pp. i-ix x-xxxiv, 1 2-349 350. First edition. Includes Nahuatl-English, pp. [1]-349. With a detailed discussion of previous lexical work, pp. [xvii]-xxiii. Second copy: IUW.

"Nahuatl is the best documented of Native American languages. At the time of the Spanish conquest of Mexico it was the dominant language of Mesoamerica" (Introduction).

1980: [IUW] Cuerpo humano e ideología : las concepciones de los antiguos nahuas / Alfredo López Austin. 1a ed. México : Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México, Instituto de Investigaciones Antropológicas, 1980. 2 v. : ill. ; 23 cm. Serie antropológica (Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México. Instituto de Investigaciones Antropológicas) ; 39. Bibliography: v. 2, p. [303]-325.

English translation 1988: [IUW] The human body and ideology : concepts of the ancient Nahuas / Alfredo Lopez Austin ; translated by Thelma Ortiz de Montellano and Bernard Ortiz de Montellano. Salt Lake City : University of Utah Press, 1988. 2 v. : ill. ; 24 cm. Translation of: Cuerpo humano e ideología. Bibliography: v. 2, p. [299]-315.

1982: [IUW] Diccionario de zoología náhuatl / por César Macazaga Ordoño ; introducción, iconografía, diccionario y vocabulario español-náhuatl, del autor. México, D.F. : Editorial Innovación, c1982. 31, 169 p. : ill. ; 21 cm. Macazaga Ordoño, César. Colección diccionarios monográficos de la cultura náhuatl. Bibliography: p. 26-27.

1983b: [IUW] Diccionario de geografía náhuatl / por César Macazaga Ordoño ; introducción e iconografía del autor. [México, D.F.] : Editorial Innovación, c1983. 15, 126 p. : ill. ; 21 cm. Macazaga Ordoño, César. Colección diccionarios monográficos de la cultura náhuatl.

1985: [LILLYbm] A Nahuatl-English Dictionary and Concordance to the Cantares Mexicanos with an Analytical Transcription and Grammatical Notes, by John Bierhorst. Stanford, California: Stanford University Press, 1985. Original orange-brown paper over boards, lettered and decorated in black and white. Pp. [10] 1 2-751 752-758. First edition. Includes Nahuatl-English, pp. [21]-423. Includes a detailed discussion of prior dictionaries of Nahuatl, pp. 2-4. Second copy: IUW.

"Originally, the Dictionary was to have been no more than a concordance that would help elucidate the peculiar Cantares idiom. It soon became clear, however, that the Cantares vocabulary was rich enough to provide a meaningful, if small, addition to the Nahuatl lexical materials now available" (Introduction

1996: [LILLYbm] Diccionario analítico del Nahuatl. Español-nahuatl, nahuatl-español, by Ausencio Alva Hernández. [Puebla, Mexico]: Secretaria de Cultura, 1996. Original green wrappers, lettered and decorated in white. Pp. 1-5 6-364 365-366. First edition. One thousand copies. Colección Portal Poblano, No. 20. Includes Spanish-Nahuatl, pp. 23-150, and Nahuatl-Spanish, pp. 150-331.

2003: [IUW] Diccionario español-náhuatl / Paul P. De Wolf ; prólogo de Miguel León-Portilla. 1. ed. México : Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México : Universidad Autónoma de Baja California Sur : Fideicomiso Teixidor, 2003. lix, 841 p. ; 27 cm. Serie de cultura náhuatl. Monografías ; no. 28. Includes bibliographical references (p. lvii-lix).

2004: [IUW] Nahuatl-English/English-Nahuatl (Aztec) / Fermin Herrera. New York : Hippocrene Books, c2004. 407 p. ; 16 cm. Hippocrene concise dictionary.

2007: [IUW] Diccionario del nahuatl en el español de México / Carlos Montemayor, coordinador ; Enrique García Escamilla, Librado Silva Galeana ; con la colaboración de Enrique Rivas Paniagua.. 1. ed. México, D.F. : Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México, 2007. 440 p. ; 19 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 429-440).

Second enlarged and corrected edition 2009: [IUW] Diccionario del náhuatl en el español de México / Enrique García Escamilla ... [et al.] ; Carlos Montemayor, coordinador. 2a ed., nueva ed. corr. y aum. México, D.F. : Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México : Gobierno del Distrito Federal, 2009. 469 p. : maps, charts ; 19 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. [457]-469).

2012: [IUW] Raíces griegas, latinas, mayas y nahuatl / selección y prólogo de Roberto Sosa ; edición póstuma. Primera edición. Tegucigalpa, Honduras : Universidad Nacional Autónoma de Honduras, 2012. 624 pages ; 24 cm. Partial contents: Raíces griegas y latinas prefijos y sufijos; Locuciones latinas y extranjeras, frases célebres; Coordinación alfabética de las voces del idioma maya; Diccionario de la lengua nahuatl.

2013: [IUW] Vocabulario indígena en la Historia de fray Bernardino de Sahagún / Teresa Bastardín Candón. Bern : Peter Lang, [2013] ©2013. 828 pages ; 24 cm. Fondo hispánico de lingüística y filología ; v.16. Includes bibliographical references.

"Este análisis lingüístico de la Historia sahuaguntina conforma un verdadero diccionario de voces indígenas en el que se explican los sentidos contextuales y su seguimiento lexicográfico histórico. La información contenida permite rastrear la cultura nahua en la que se desenvuelve fray Bernardino, con especial atención a su formación humanística y a la labor franciscana en América, y sirve de testimonio documental sobre la finalidad lingüística de la obra, además de constatar la vitalidad y la función social de cada término indio recogido. Asimismo, se revisan las teorías sustratistas del español de América, centradas en el nivel léxico, y los trabajos de carácter histórico que tienen como objeto el estudio de la introducción y pervivencia del léxico amerindio en el español. Se valora, además, el peso lexicográfico de los indigenismos, desde los primeros glosarios hasta las más recientes recopilaciones, con las referencias lexicográficas históricas textuales, los procedimientos de transmisión indigenista de cada lengua, y su adaptación fonética y morfológica"--Page 4 of cover.

[NAHUATL, ISTHMUS-MECAYAPAN] Isthmus Nahuatl (Isthmus Nahuatl; native name: mela'tájtol) is a Nahuatl dialect cluster spoken by about 30,000 people in Veracruz, Mexico. According to Ethnologue 16, the Cosoleacaque dialect is 84% intelligible with Pajapan, and 83% intelligible with Mecayapan (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nhx. Alternate Names: Isthmus Aztec-Mecayapan, Isthmu. Nahuatl, Mecayapan Isthmus Nahuatl, Nahuatl del Istmo, Náhuatl de Mecayapan.

2000: [IUW] Diccionario náhuatl de los municipios de Mecayapan y Tatahuicapan de Juárez, Veracruz / Joseph Carl Wolgemuth Walters ... [et al.]. 1a ed. México, D.F. : Instituto Lingüístico de Verano, 2000. xxi, 285 p. : ill., map ; 21 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 285).

[NAHUATL, ISTHMUS-PAJAPAN] Isthmus Nahuatl (Isthmus Nahuatl; native name: mela'tájtol) is a Nahuatl dialect cluster spoken by about 30,000 people in Veracruz, Mexico. According to Ethnologue 16, the Cosoleacaque dialect is 84% intelligible with Pajapan, and 83% intelligible with Mecayapan (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nhp. Alternate Names: Nahuatl del Istmo bajo, Náhuatl de Pajapan, Pajapan Nahuatl.

1976: [IUW] Pajapan, un dialecto mexicano del Golfo / Antonio García de León. México : SEP, Instituto Nacional de Antropología e Historia, Departamento de Lingüística, 1976. 149 p. : ill. ; 27 cm. Colección científica (Instituto Nacional de Antropología e Historia (Mexico)) ; 43. Bibliography: p. 141-145.

[NAHUATL, NORTHERN PUEBLA] Sierra Puebla Nahuatl is one of the Eastern Peripheral varieties of Nahuatl, spoken by ethnic Nahua people in northwestern Puebla state in Mexico (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ncj. Alternate Names: North Puebla Aztec, North Puebla Sierra Nahuatl, Náhuatl del Norte de Puebla.

2000: [IUW] Diccionario náhuatl del norte del estado de Puebla / Earl Brockway, Trudy Hershey de Brockway, Leodegario Santos Valdés. 1. ed. Coyoacán, D.F., México : Instituto Lingüístico de Verano ; San Andrés Cholula, Puebla : Universidad Madero, 2000. xviii, 404 p. : ill., maps ; 23 cm. Serie de vocabularios indígenas Mariano Silva y Aceves ; núm. 42. Includes bibliographical references (p. 403-404).

[NAHUATL, TELTELCINGO] Tetelcingo Nahuatl, called Mösiehuali by its speakers, is a Nahuatl variety of central Mexico. It is one of the core varieties closely related to Classical Nahuatl. It is spoken in the town of Tetelcingo, Morelos, and the adjacent Colonia Cuauhtémoc and Colonia Lázaro Cárdenas. These three population centers lie to the north of Cuautla, Morelos and have been largely absorbed into its urban area; as a result the Tetelcingo language and culture are under intense pressure. In 1935 William Cameron Townsend published a study of Mösiehuali, and a number of other studies have been published since then (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nhg. Alternate Names: Tetelcingo Aztec.

1962: [IUW] Vocabulario mexicano de Tetelcingo, Morelos; castellano-mexicano, mexicano-castellano. Compilado por Forrest Brewer y Jean G. Brewer. [1. vocabularios indígenas Mariano Silva y Aceves ; no. 8.

[NALI] Nali is an Austronesian language spoken on Manus Island, Papua New Guinea. The Okro dialect is distinct (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nss. Alternate Names: Yiru.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[NAM] Nam is an undeciphered language preserved in Tibetan transcriptions in a number of Dunhuang manuscript fragments currently held at the British Library and the Bibliotheque Nationale de France. According to Ikeda Takumi, the research of F. W. Thomas, published in 1948, concluded that Nam "was one of the old Qiang [languages] spoken around the Nam mountain range near Koko nor in Qinghai province", associated with a country called Nam tig which is mentioned in some historical records. However, Ikeda further states that Thomas' conclusions were widely criticized. Glottolog accepts that it was at least Sino-Tibetan/Tibeto-Burman (Wiki).

Ethnologue does not list this extinct language.

1948: [LILLYbm] Nam: an Ancient Language of the Sino-Tibetan Borderland. Text, with Introduction, Vocabulary and linguistic studies, by F[rederick] W[illiam] Thomas. London: Oxford University Press, 1948. Original pale green paper on boards, lettered in black. 470 pp. + X pp. plates + folding map. First edition. Publications of the Philological Society XIV. Nam-Tibetan-English vocabulary, pp. [399]-451. Not in Zauhmüller. First printed vocabulary of this extinct language.

"The existence of a Nam state came to light, in 1925, through mention of a king Humar, whose daughter became consort of a Khotan ruler... Identification of the language of the text as 'Nam' was based upon a limited number of name-forms... For the study of the oldest-known Tibetan the Nam language... should, being approximately contemporary, furnish a not superfluous control. In relation to Ch-iang or other Tibeto-Burman dialects of the Sino-Tibetan borderlands, none of them recorded until centuries later or until modern times, it may serve to measure development. The constants also of the new texts, Nam and Tibtan, should help in divining the obscure mentality, traditions, and social conditions of the peoples... The vocabulary... has necessarily a tentative character."

[NAMBYA] Wikipedia lists Nambya as a dialect of Kalanga. Ethnologue considers it a separate language.

Ethnologue: nmq. Alternate Names: Banyai, Chinambya, Nambzya, Nanzva.

1973: [LILLY] Notes on Nambya, by Augustine Moreno. Dett [Zimbabwe: Minor Seminary?], 1973. 95 p.; 34 cm. Original blue wrappers with paper label on front cover, lettered in black. First edition. A grammar that includes various brief Nambya-English lists.

[NANAI] The Nanai language (also called Gold or Hezhen) is spoken by the Nanai people in Siberia, and to a much smaller extent in China's Heilongjiang province, where it is known as Hezhe. The language has about 1,400 speakers out of 17,000 ethnic Nanai, but most (especially younger generations) are also fluent in Russian or Chinese, and mostly use one of those languages for communication (Wiki).

Ethnologue: gld. Alternate Names: Gold, Goldi, Heche, Hezhe, Hezhen, Nanaj.

1900: [LILLYbm] Goldisch-deutsches Wörterverzeichnis mit vergleichender Berücksichtigung der übrigen tungusischen Dialekte, by Wilhelm Grube [1855-1908]. St. Petersburg: Bei den Commissionaren der Kaiserlichen Akademie der Wissenschaften, 1900. Original green wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. I-V VI-X, 1 2-149 150. First edition. Series: Reisen und Forschungen im Amur-Lande in den Jahren 1854-1856. Zaunmüller, col. 276. Includes Nanai-German, pp. [1]-122, and German-Nanai index, pp. 123-149. This copy with the author's ink ownership seal. First dictionary of the Nanai language. Second copy: IUW.

"Our original intention was simply to publish the vocabulary gathered by C. von Maximowicz during his stay in the Amur region, in which in addition to Nanai, the Oltscha and Manäger dialects were treated. Considering, however, that in the meantime extensive new linguistic material became available through the publication by the Orthodox Society of Nanai texts with translations, gathered by the missionary Protodiakonov, it seemed wise to make use of it as well. The more the work progressed, however, the more I felt compelled to include the other Tungusic dialects, to the extent that I knew them, and in this way to provide an inventory, so to speak, of everything we know about the Uralic-Altai languages.... thus in the present work the attempt is made for the first time to provide a clear overview of the present state of our knowledge of the Tungusic dialects" (Foreword, tr: BM).

1901: [LILLYbm] Goldsko-Russkii slovar, by P. Protodiakonov. Vladivostok: Parovay tipo-litografia, 1901. Contemporary dark green cloth, lettered in gold, with original wrappers preserved. Pp. 1-3 4-52 (+ several blanks leaves). First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 276. Includes Gold-Russian, pp. [3]-52. This is the first Russian Nanai dictionary. A German-Nanai dictionary appeared in St. Petersburg in 1900 (see above). This copy with the ink stamps of previous owners including R. Donnelly, New York, the Tokyo School of Foreign Languages Library, and T. Gundzi.

1958: [IUW] Kur-Urmiiskii dialekt: issledovaniia i materialy po nanaiskomu iazyku, by O.P. Sunik. Leningrad: Uchpedgiz, 1958. 207 p.; 23 cm. Contains a glossary--"Nanaisko-russkii slovar". Nanai-Russian dictionary.

1973: [IUW] Obraznye slova nanaiskogo iazyka / N.B. Kile. Leningrad : Nauka, Leningradskoe otd-nie, 1973. 188 p. ; 22 cm. Original light reddish-brown wrappers, lettered and decorated in black and white. Nanai-Russian dictionary of terms and phrases, pp. 81-188. In Cyrillic characters. Includes bibliographical references.

1980: [IUW] Nanaisko-russkii slovar' : 12 800 slov / Pod red. V. A. Avrorina. Moskva : Russkii iazyk, 1980. 551 p. ; 23 cm. Nanai-Russian dictionary.

[NANDE] Nande, also known as (Oru)Ndandi and Yira, is a Bantu language spoken in the Democratic Republic of the Congo. The Nande of Congo and the Konjo people of Uganda are a single ethnic group, which they call Yira (Bayira). They trace their origins to the Ruwenzori Mountains between the two countries. The languages are close enough to be considered divergent dialects. Nande has a number of dialects of its own: Nande proper, Kumbule, Mate, Tangi, Sanza, Shu, Songola (Songooro, Nyangala), Swaga / Kira (in Nande, all of these are prefixed with eki-). For the varieties of this language known as Shu we are given the information [4] that another language, "EkiShukaali" was formerly spoken by the women, the AvaShukaali. This may be a specific reference to some kind of "secret jargon" into which the girls, and not boys, were initiated. Some of the Nande of Congo have a patron-vassal relationship with the Efé Pygmies (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nnb. Alternate Names: Banande, Bayira, Kinande, Kinandi, Nandi, Ndande, Ndandi, Northern Nande, Orundande.

1909: [LILLYbm] The Nandi. Their language and folk-lore, by [Sir] A[lfred] C[laud] Hollis [1874- ] Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1909. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered in gold; dust jacket blue-gray, spine lettered in black. Pp. i-iii iv-xl, 1 2-328 + 16 pp. adverts. and 44 photographic plates. First edition. Not in Zaunder. Hendrix 1199 (listing the Oxford 1969 reprint, and noting first edition of 1909). Includes English-Nandi vocabulary, pp. [232]-312, and a Latin-Nandi list of trees, grasses, etc. Second copy: LILLYbm, from the War Office Library with call number in white on spine, their ink withdrawal stamps on the title page, and a printed notice pasted to inner front cover stating: "Book of the War Office Library are to be issued only to officers and officials of the War Office. They are not to be removed from the vicinity of London". Third copy: IUW. First substantial published vocabulary of the language.

"... [L]ittle is known of the Nandi and allied tribes, notwithstanding the fact that we have administered some of their territories for a decade or more... I had some difficulties to contend with. Nandi is situated some distance from Nairobi and Mombassa, and in 1905 but few of these free savages cared about accepting employment with Europeans and leaving their own country.... After the close of the Nandi punitive expedition in April, 1906, I secured the services of a warrior named Ar-ap-Chepsiet, who had been wounded. This man remained with me till I left East Africa in April, 1908, and to him I am indebted to a very great extent for the account of the customs, &c., and for the vocabulary.... I myself have witnessed the smiths, potters, and medicine men at work; I have been present at many of the dances; I have personally inspected the huts, stock, plantations, traps, and honey-barrels, &c.; and I have seen... boys and girls attired in their strange costumes both before and after the circumcision ceremonies" (Preface).

Reprinted 1969: [IUW] The Nandi: their language and folk-lore, by A. C. Hollis. [1st ed.] reprinted lithographically from corrected sheets; edited with a new introduction, by G. W. B. Huntingford. Oxford, Clarendon P., 1969. [1], xxiii, 328 p. plate, illus. 23 cm. "First published 1909."

Reprinted 1971: [IUW] The Nandi: their language and folk-lore, by A. C. Hollis. With introd. by Sir Charles Eliot. Westport, Conn., Negro Universities Press [1971] xl, 328 p. illus. 23 cm. Reprint of the 1909 ed. Includes bibliographical references.

2001: [IUW] A dictionary of the Nandi language / Jane Tapsubei Creider and Chet A. Creider. Köln: Köppe, 2001. 398 p.; 24 cm. Nilo-Saharan, v. 16.

[ÑANDEVA] Chiripá Guaraní (Tsiripá, Txiripá), also known as Ava Guaraní and Nhandéva (Ñandeva), is a Guaraní language spoken in Paraguay, Brazil, and also Argentina. It is closely related to Paraguayan Guaraní, a language which speakers are increasingly switching to. There are 4,900 speakers in Brazil and 7,000 in Paraguay. Nhandéva is also known as Chiripá. The Spanish spelling, Ñandeva, is used in the Paraguayan Chaco to refer to the local variety of Eastern Bolivian, a subdialect of Avá. Chiripá is one of a number of "Guaraní dialects" often classified as distinct languages. Of these, Paraguayan Guaraní is by far the largest variety and it is often referred to simply as Guaraní.

Ethnologue: tpj. Alternate Names: Guasurango, Guasurangué, Ñanagua, Nandeva, Tapiete, Tirumbae, Yanaigua.

2008: [IUW] Diccionario guaraní ñandeva-español, recopilación Clementino Jara. Asunción: ZADA Ed., 2008. 44 p.; 21 cm. Original pale green wrappers, lettered in black, with a photograph of tribe members on the front cover. Front wrapper dated Julio / 2008; title page dated Junio / 2008. Serie Ateneo de Lengua y Cultura Guaraní U.N.A. "Junio, 2008." "Colaboración de: Los Profesores de Guaraní Ñandéva"--T.p. verso. Includes "Diccionario guaraní ñandeva-español," thematically arranged, pp. 5-44.

[NANTICOKE] Nanticoke is an extinct Algonquian language formerly spoken in Delaware and Maryland, United States. The same language was spoken by several neighboring tribes, including the Nanticoke, which constituted the paramount chiefdom; the Choptank, the Assateague, and probably also the Piscataway and the Doeg. Nanticoke is sometimes considered a dialect of the Delaware language, but its vocabulary was quite distinct. This is shown in a few brief glossaries, which are all that survive of the language. One is a 146-word list compiled by Moravian missionary John Heckewelder in 1785, from his interview with a Nanticoke chief then living in Canada. The other is a list of 300 words obtained in 1792 by William Vans Murray, then a US Representative (at the behest of Thomas Jefferson.) He compiled the list from a Nanticoke speaker in Dorchester County, Maryland, part of the historic homeland (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nnt.

1927: [IUW] The Nanticoke and Conoy Indians; with a review of linguistic material from manuscript and living sources; an historical study / by Frank G. Speck. Wilmington; Historical Society of Delaware, 1927. 77 p., [7] leaves of plates; ill.; 25 cm. Papers of the Historical Society of Delaware; new ser., 1 Prepared for the National Society of Colonial Dames of America in the State of Delaware. Includes bibliographical references.

[NARA] The Nara (Nera) or Barea (Barya) language is a Nilo-Saharan language spoken chiefly in western Eritrea. The language is often confused with Kunama, which is at best only distantly related. According to Tsige Hailemichael, the "...Nara language is in danger of quickly disappearing." The name Barea is considered very derogatory as it translates to "slave" (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nrb. Alternate Names: “Barea” (pej.), “Baria” (pej.), “Barya” (pej.), Nera.

1874: [LILLY] Die Barea-Sprache: Grammatik, Text und Wörterbuch, by Werner Munzinger [1832-1875]; Leo Reinisch. Wien: W. Braumüller, 1874. Original brown wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. First edition. Zaunmüller 26. Hendrix 1205. Includes Barea [Nara]-German, pp. [99]-160, and German-Barea [Nara], pp. [161]-191. First dictionary of the language.

Reprinted 1972: [IUW] Sprachen von Nord-Ost-Afrika / von Leo Reinisch. Vaduz, Liechtenstein : Sändig, 1972. 3 v. in 2 ; 22 cm. Reprint of the original ed., 1874-1879. 1. Bd. Die Barea-Sprache : Grammatik Text und Wörterbuch / nach den handschriftlichen Materialien von Werner Munzinger Pascha ; bearbeitet von Leo Reinisch. 2.-3. Bd. Die Nuba-Sprache / von Leo Reinisch.

[NARO] Naro /'na:rou/, also Nharo, is a Khoe language spoken in Ghanzi District of Botswana and in eastern Namibia. It is probably the most-spoken of the Tshu–Khwe languages. Naro is a trade language among speakers of different Khoe languages in Ghanzi District. There exists a dictionary (Wiki)..

Ethnologue: nhr. Alternate Names: ||Ai||e, ||Ai||en, ||Aikwe, ||Aisan, |Aikwe, Nharo, Nharon, Nhauru, Nhaurun.

1985: [LILLYbm] A Nharo Wordlist, by Alan Barnard. Durban: University of Natal Department of African Studies, 1985. Original pictorial wrappers. First edition.

"The wordlist is the first of its kind for a Khoe language ever to be published in South Africa." "Nharo, also known as 'Naro' or 'Naron', is a Khoe (Central Khoisan) language spoken by some 6000 people in the Ghanzi district of western Botswana." This is the first dictionary of the language.

[NARRAGANSET] Narragansett / ,nærə'gænsɪt/ is an extinct Algonquian language formerly spoken in most of what is today Rhode Island by the Narragansett people. It was closely related to the other Algonquian languages of southern New England like Massachusetts and Mohegan-Pequot. The earliest study of the language in English was by Roger Williams, founder of the Rhode Island colony, in his book A Key Into the Language of America (1643). The word Narragansett means, literally, "(People) of the Small Point." The "point" may be located on the Salt Pond in Washington County (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xnt.

1827: [LILLYbm] A key into the language of America, or an help to the language of the natives in that part of America called New-England: together with briefe observations of the customes, manners and worships, &c. of the aforesaid natives, in peace and warre, in life and death. On all which are added spirituall observations generall and particular, by the authour, of chiefe and speciall use (upon all occasions) to all the English inhabiting those parts; yet pleasant and profitable to the view of all men, by Roger Williams. Providence: Printed by John Miller, 1827. Original brown wrappers, lettered and decorated in black, spine perished, front wrapper worn and chipped, without loss of text. Pp. [4] 1-3 4-163 164-166 [4]. First complete American edition. First edition printed in Rhode Island. Collections of the Rhode-Island Historical Society. Vol. I. Preceded by a "Sketch of the life of Roger Williams": p. [9]-16; and Charter of the Rhode Island Historical Society p. [5]-8. The first edition was published in London in 1643. Subsequent editions printed in Massachusetts in the 18th century did not include Williams' poems, nor his positive remarks about the Narraganset. This classic work includes thematically arranged chapters with lists of words and phrases, Narraganset-English, throughout.

Second copy: LILLY: A key into the language of America: or a help to the language of the natives in that part of America, called New-England... Providence: printed by John Miller, 1827. 8vo, pp. [2], 163, [3]; facsimile frontispiece, plus two related extra wood-engraved illustrations tipped in; contemporary half green morocco over marbled boards, gilt-lettered spine in 6 compartments; lightly rubbed; very good and sound. Early ownership signature at the top of the title page of "A. A. Harwood, U.S.N." An Ayer Linguistic duplicate, with a small Newberry release label on the front pastedown.

[NARRINYERI] Ngarrindjeri (also Yaraldi, Yaralde Tingar) or Narrinyeri (also written Ngarinyeri) was the language of the Ngarrindjeri people of southern South Australia. Ngarrindjerri is Pama–Nyungan. Bownern (2011) lists the Yaraldi, Ngarrindjeri, and Ramindjeri varieties as separate languages. The last fluent speaker died in the 1960s, but recent attempts to revive the language include the release of a Ngarrindjeri dictionary in 2009 [Ngarrindjeri dictionary, by Mary-Anne Gale; Sydney Sparrow; David Unaipon College of Indigenous Education and Research.; Raukkan Council. [Adelaide]; Raukkan Community Council on behalf of the Ngarrindjeri [Community], 2009]. In 1864, the publication of the Narrinyeri Bible was the first time portions of the Bible were translated into an Aboriginal language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nay. Alternate Names: Narinjari, Ngarinyeri, Ngarrindjeri, Yaralde.

1892: see under AWABAKAL.

1917: see under AUSTRALIAN ABORIGINAL LANGUAGES...

POLYGLOT.

[NASKAPI] Naskapi (also known as Iyuw Iyimuun in the Naskapi language) is an Algonquian language spoken by the Naskapi in Quebec and Labrador, Canada. It is written in Eastern Cree syllabics. The term Naskapi is chiefly used to describe the language of the people living in the interior of Quebec and Labrador in or around Kawawachikamach, Quebec. Naskapi is a "y-dialect" that has many linguistic features in common with the Northern dialect of East Cree, and also shares many lexical items with the Innu language. Although there is a much closer linguistic and cultural relationship between Naskapi and Innu than between Naskapi and other Cree language communities, Naskapi remains unique and distinct from all other language varieties in the Quebec-Labrador peninsula.

Ethnologue: nsk. Alternate Names: Innu Aimun, Iyuw Iyimuun.

1992: see under MONTAGNAIS.

[NATCHEZ] Natchez is the ancestral language of the Natchez people who historically inhabited Mississippi and Louisiana, and who now mostly live among the Creek and Cherokee peoples in Oklahoma. The language is either considered to be unrelated to other Indigenous languages of the Americas or distantly related to the Muskogean languages. Natchez storytellers used a specific register, "cannibal speech", when impersonating cannibals, a recurring character in Natchez oral literature. The Natchez chiefdom was destroyed in the 1730s by the French; Natchez speakers took refuge among their neighbors and accompanied them when they were eventually driven to Oklahoma on the Trail of Tears. This history meant that Natchez speakers were frequently multilingual in Creek, Cherokee, Natchez and English, and the language gradually became endangered, and is now generally considered extinct, in spite of recent revitalization efforts. What is known of the language comes mostly from its last fluent speakers, Watt Sam and Nancy Raven, who worked with linguist Mary R. Haas in the 1930s. The Natchez nation is now working to revive it as a spoken language. As of 2011, field linguists from the community were being trained in documentation techniques, and six members of the Natchez tribe in Oklahoma now speak the language, out of about 10,000 (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ncz. Taensa is listed as a dialect of Natchez.

1882: [IUW] Grammaire et vocabulaire de la langue taensa avec textes traduits et commentés, par J.-D. Haumonté, Parisot, L. Adam. Paris, Maisonneuve et cie, 1882. 2 p. ., xix, 111 p., 1 . 25 cm. Bibliothèque linguistique américaine. t. IX. Pretended French translation of an anonymous Spanish manuscript, alleged by J. Parisot to have been found in the library of his grandfather, J.D. Haumonté. It was shown to be the fabrication of J. Parisot and A. Dejoux. cf. D.G. Brinton, Essays of an Americanist, Philadelphia, 1890, p. 452-467.

1885: [IUW] The Taensa grammar and dictionary. A deception exposed. By Daniel G. Brinton. [Chicago, Ill., F. H. Revell, 1885] p. [109]-114 24 cm. Reprinted from the American antiquarian. This brief essay is included for its relevance to the item above.

[NATENI] Nateni (Natemala) is a language of the Gurma people spoken in Benin. It is named after its principal dialect; the others are Tayari (Tayaba), Kuntani (Kuntemba), Okoni (Okoma) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ntm.

1983a-b: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1984: see under BIALI.

[NĀTI] Nāti (Naati, Nahati) is a nearly extinct Oceanic language of southwest Malekula, Vanuatu (Wiki).

Ethnologue does not list this nearly extinct language.

1998: [LILLYbm] "A Salvage Sketch of Nāti (Southwest Malakula, Vanuatu)," by Terry Crowley, in: Papers in Austronesian Linguistics No. 5, (1998), ed. by Darrell Tryon, pp. 101-148. Original green wrappers, lettered and decorated in green. First edition. Series: Pacific Linguistics, Series A-92. Includes topical vocabulary, Nāti-English, pp. 130-148. First published vocabulary of this language.

"The data on which this sketch is based was gathered during a stay at Wintua village in southwestern Malakula in 1988, and during a subsequent visit to Vila be one of the last speakers of the language... in 1990. Nāti is, by all criteria, a threatened language, and will most probably not outlast the present generation, which makes the publication of this sketch all the more pressing" (p. 101).

[NAVAJO] Navajo or Navaho (/ˈnævəhoʊ, ˈnɑː-/; Navajo: Diné bizaad [tɪnépizà:t] or Naabeehó bizaad [nà:pè:hópizà:t]) is a Southern Athabaskan language of the Na-Dené family, by which it is related to languages spoken across the western areas of North America. Navajo is spoken primarily in the Southwestern United States, especially in the Navajo Nation political area. It is one of the most widely spoken Native American languages and is the most widely spoken north of the Mexico–United States border, with almost 170,000 Americans speaking Navajo at home as of 2011. The language has struggled to keep a healthy speaker base, although this problem has been alleviated to some extent by extensive education programs in the Navajo Nation. The language's orthography, which was developed in the late 1930s after a series of prior attempts, is based on the Latin script. Most Navajo vocabulary is Athabaskan in origin, as the language has been conservative with loanwords since its early stage (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nav. Alternate Names: Diné, Navaho.

1907-1930: see Vol. 1 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

1910: [IUW] An ethnologic dictionary of the Navaho language. Saint Michaels, Ariz., Franciscan Fathers [c1910] 2 p. l., [7]-536 p. illus. 25 cm. Library binding. "Edition limited to two hundred copies, of which this is no. 135." Thematically arranged vocabulary, Navajo-English, pp. [35]-512, English index, pp. [513]-536.

"The philosophy of a people is exhibited to good advantage by a combined study of its language and archeology, as the one frequently elucidates the other. The present work is developed along these lines, and words bearing on a specific topic have been grouped together, while the information which has been added is frequently verified by a list of words in use" (Preface).

Reprinted 1968: [IUW] An ethnologic dictionary of the Navaho language. Saint Michaels, Ariz., [Saint Michaels Press, 1968] 2 p.l., [7]-536 p. illus. 25 cm. Originally published by the Franciscan Fathers in 1910.

1912: [LILLYbm] A Vocabulary of the Novaho Language, by The Franciscan Fathers. St. Michaels, Arizona: The Franciscan Fathers, [1912]. 2 Vols. Original brown wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. 228 & 212 pp. First edition, one of 325 copies [this copy unnumbered]. Vol. I is English-Navaho, Vol. II is Navaho-English. Not in Zauhmüller, who list only the Franciscan Fathers' An Ethnologic Dictionary of the Navaho Language.

"The favor with which the Ethnologic Dictionary of the Navaho Language was received has encouraged the authors in this new venture. The material here presented is not a reprint: indeed the variety of purpose made it necessary to add copiously to the list of words presented in that work."

1943: [IUW] The Navaho language : the elements of Navaho grammar with a dictionary in two parts containing basic vocabularies of Navaho and English / Robert W. Young and William Morgan. [Washington? , 1943] 2 v. in 1. ; vol. 1: 123 p.; vol. 2: 247 p., 101 p.; 26 cm U.S. Office of Indian Affairs. Publication of the Education Division. Library binding. Separate title page for second volume: A Dictionary of the Navaho Language: containing a basic vocabulary of present day Navaho with the fundamental inflectional forms of all verbs, by Robert W. Young, Specialist in the Navaho Language, William Morgan, Indian Assistant in the Navaho Language. First edition. A publication of the Education Division, U. S. Office of Indian Affairs, 1943. Part 1: Navaho-English, pp. 1-247; Part II: English-Navaho, pp. 1-101 (second pagination in vol. 2).

"The present dictionary has been compiled to meet the demands of White People who are interested in acquiring practical knowledge of the Navaho language; to aid native drafttees in meeting the linguistic problems involved in their new environment; to aid school children in building up an adequate English vocabulary.... And to help the White teacher teaching English in the reservation schools" (Introduction).

1950-1951: [LILLYbm] A Stem Vocabulary of the Navaho Language. Navaho-English, Volume One. English-Navaho. Volume Two, by Berard Haile. St. Michaels, Arizona: St. Michaels Press, 1950, 1951. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Vol. 1: 340 pp.; Vol. 2: pp. i-v vi-xlvi xlviii-xlix, 1 2-327 328. First editions. Zauunmüller, col. 276, erroneously attributed to Edward Sapir. Volume One with ink ownership stamps of Donald A. Kennedy. Kennedy was the author of Ph.D. thesis entitled "Explorations in the Cross-Cultural Study of Mental Disorders" (Cornell University, 1959), which deals in part with the Navaho Indians. There are a few marginal notations and a loosely inserted card with notes relating to this topic in the book. Volume Two includes English-Navaho, pp. [1]-327.

"Back in 1932 or thereabouts the late Edward Sapir, after several years of study, prepared a Stem List of some 105 typewritten pages. This he presented to the writer with a request to check up on them and add any missing stems. In subsequent years this has been done. But I have gone further than this...[the work] makes no pretense at being complete. But it gives the student a panoramic view of the functioning of Navaho and its stems...In a manner it ...brings up to date to an extent what the 'Vocabulary of the Navaho Language' had presented in 1912. No effort has been made to duplicate this ... publication. But it had much merit of its own and was consulted, especially for archaic forms."

Reprinted 1975: [IUW] A stem vocabulary of the Navaho language / arranged by Berard Haile. New York : AMS Press, 1975. 2 v. ; 23 cm.

Reprint of the 1950-1951 ed. published by St. Michaels Press, St. Michaels, Ariz. v. 1. Navaho-English. v. 2. English-Navaho.

1951: [LILLYbm] A Vocabulary of Colloquial Navaho, by Robert W. Young & William Morgan. [Washington, D.C.]: United States Indian Service, 1951. Original red cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in black. [4], I-XII, 1-461 462-464. First edition. Zauunmüller, col. 276. English-Navaho "extended meaning" vocabulary, pp. 1-365, Navaho-English vocabulary, pp. 366-425.

"The present book is a companion volume to The Navaho Language, and deals largely with certain types of extended word meanings used in colloquial Navaho...Speakers must bear in mind ...that only their ideas, not their words, will be translated or re-expressed in terms of Navaho. Some English speaking orators make such an effort at eloquence that, in their preoccupation, they neglect to convey an idea. Such utterances cannot be interpreted into Navaho."

1958: [LILLYbm] Navajo-English Dictionary, by Leon Wall & William Morgan. Window Rock, Arizona: Navajo Agency, Branch of Education, 1958. 65 pp. Original red cloth over boards, lettered in gold. First edition. Two copies.

1974: [LILLYbm] A Navajo Lexicon, by Harry Hoiijer. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1974. Original yellow wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp.

[2] i-iv v-x, 1-314 315-316. First edition. Series: University of California Publications in Linguistics, v. 78. Includes Navajo stem and base with English equivalents, pp. 2-283. Second copy: IUW.

"The lexical data presented in this volume were collected by Edward Sapir. Sapir's studies of the Navajo language began in the 1920's and continued until his last illness in 1938. Before his death, he requested his wife to send me all of the Navajo data....The task of compiling a lexicon from Sapir's field notes... has occupied most of my research time for more than ten years" (Preface).

1980: [LILLYbm] The Navajo language: a grammar and colloquial dictionary, by Robert W. Young [1912- ]. Albuquerque: University of New Mexico Press, 1980. Original maroon cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. [8] i-xxvii xxviii, 1-471 472, 1-1069 1070-1972. First edition. Bartholomew B.6.6. Includes a root/stem/theme index, pp. 408-471, and Navaho-English, pp. 1-809, and English-Navaho, pp. 813-1069. Second copy: IUW.

"The present work represents the culmination of a collaborative study of the Navajo language begun, in 1937, by Young and Morgan, at Fort Wingate, New Mexico, where they became involved in the early effort at bilingual education launched by Willard W. Beatty, then Director of Indian Education in the Bureau of Indian Affairs" (Introduction).

"The authors of this dictionary seemed to have performed the almost impossible feat of meeting the needs of the academic scholar or linguist, the bilingual school teacher or student, and the curious browser—all between the covers of one book" (Bartholomew).

Second edition 1987: [IUW] The Navajo language : a grammar and colloquial dictionary / Robert W. Young and William Morgan, Sr. Rev. ed. Albuquerque : University of New Mexico Press, c1987. xv, 437, 1069 p. ; 29 cm. Called rev. ed. on t.p.; 2nd ed. on verso of t.p. and in pref.

"This, the second edition [of a revision and expansion of the authors' The Navaho language and A vocabulary of colloquial Navaho] ... includes ... additional linguistic information, developed since the appearance of the first edition in 1980"--Pref. to the 2nd ed.

1991: [IUW] The Navajo dictionary on diagnostic terminology : a reference guide on Navajo usage of diagnostic terms / by the Diné Center for Human Development. Tsaile, Ariz. : Navajo Community College Press, 1991. x, 84 p. ; 22 cm. Includes index.

1992: [LILLYbm] Analytical Lexicon of Navajo, by Robert W. Young & William Morgan, Sr., with the assistance of Sally Migette. Albuquerque: University of New Mexico Press, 1992. Original maroon quarter-leather and gray cloth over boards, lettered in gold. 1466 pp. First edition. Bibliography, pp. xxi-xxii. The most comprehensive such dictionary of any Native American language. Second copy: IUW. Young and Morgan produced dictionaries at earlier stages, including 1943 (Phoenix: Bureau of Indian Affairs), 1951 (A Vocabulary of Colloquial Navajo, Phoenix: Bureau of Indian Affairs), 1980 (The Navajo Language, University of New Mexico Press; revised edition 1987).

2005: [IUW] A Navajo/English bilingual dictionary : áłchíní binaaltsoostsoh / Alyse Neundorf. Albuquerque : University of New Mexico, 2005. xix, 865 p. : ill. ; 26 cm. Original red cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Originally published: Áłchíní bi naaltsoostsoh. Albuquerque, N.M. : Native American Materials Development Center, c1983. Pictorial dictionary, Navajo-English, pp. 1-851, English index to Navajo words, pp. 82-865.

"It has taken one year to research this dictionary, and one year to write and illustrate it. I had help from almost everyone I talked with about this dictionary.... Throughout the two years, Dr. Robert Young helped me every step of the way" (Acknowledgments).

"For some time there has been a great need for a practical and easy-to-use Navajo dictionary. There is also a need for a practical dictionary for Navajo children who are just now learning to read and write Navajo in bilingual classrooms" (Introduction).

[NAWURI] Nawuri is a Guang language of Ghana. It is nearly intelligible with Kyode (Wiki).

Ethnologue: naw.

1989: see 1989b under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[NDAU] Ndaou (also called chiNdaou, Chindau, Ndzawu, Njao, Sofala, Southeast Shona, Chidanda) is a Bantu language spoken by 1,400,000 people in central Mozambique and southeastern Zimbabwe. The major varieties in Mozambique are called Shanga and Danda; that in Zimbabwe is simply called Ndaou or Ndaundau. Ndaou is part of a continuum with other neighboring varieties of the Shona group (e.g. Manyika, Karanga) and has often been included as a Shona dialect. The 2013 Constitution of Zimbabwe accorded Ndaou status as an official language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ndc. Alternate Names: Chindau, Ndzawu, Njao, Sofala, Southeast Shona.

1846: see 13) under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

1856: see under MOZAMBIQUE, LANGUAGES OF.

[NDEBELE (Zimbabwe)] The Zimbabwean Ndebele language, also called Northern Ndebele, isiNdebele, Sindebele, or Ndebele, and formerly known as Matabele, is an African language belonging to the Nguni group of Bantu languages, and spoken by the Ndebele or Matabele people of Zimbabwe. isiNdebele is related to the Zulu language spoken in South Africa. This is because the Ndebele people of Zimbabwe descend from followers of the Zulu leader Mzilikazi, who left KwaZulu in the early 19th century during the Mfecane. Zimbabwean Ndebele and Transvaal Ndebele are separate languages. Both fall in the Nguni group of Bantu languages, but Zimbabwean Ndebele is essentially a dialect of Zulu, and Transvaal Ndebele is within a different subgroup. The shared name is by contact between Mzilikazi's people and the original amaNdebele through whose territory they crossed during the Mfecane (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nde. Alternate Names: Isinde'bele, Ndebele of Zimbabwe, Northern Ndebele, Sindebele, Tabele, Tebele.

1897: [LILLY] Dictionary of the Tebele & Shuna languages : with illustrative sentences and some grammatical notes / compiled and prepared by W.A. Elliott. London : David Nutt, 1897. Pp. i-iv v-xxxvii xxviii-xl, I 2-441 442. 18 cm. Bound in original maroon cloth, spine stamped in gold, with light yellow endpapers. First edition. Zaubmüller, col. 410. Hendrix 1206. Includes English-Ndebele-Shona, pp. [1]-179, Ndebele-English, pp. 180-257, Shona-English, pp. 258-398. First true dictionary of the language. Second copy: LILLYbm, later green cloth over boards, lettered in gold, with the coat of arms of the Guildhall Library London. With the bookplate of the Guildhall Library London, and with ink withdrawal stamps on preliminary and final pages.

"In offering these vocabularies to the inhabitants of Zambesia, I am conscious in very lively fashion of their many imperfections; but I hope, nevertheless, they may be of some service in the new country. Any first attempt at reducing to writing a new language and dictionary-making must necessarily be tentative... The Tebele language is of course only a variety of the Zulu, but the Shuna is practically an unknown tongue. The Rev. A. M. Hartmann's Dictionary and Grammar [English-Mashona Dictionary, Cape Town: J. C. Juta, 1894], printed while this work was under revision, are in what may be called the Gomo dialect, with its strongly marked gutturals.... The present reduction to writing of the indigenous speech of Zambesia is an attempt to present a written basis for the Shuna language as a whole, from which the peculiarities of the different dialects may be observed... The aid of all settlers in Southern Zambesia is requested in the preparation of a really satisfactory dictionary of the language of the Mashuna. Notes in the margin of the vocabularies on any peculiarities of speech, observed and examined with care, would be of great value.... Interleaved copies of this Dictionary may be obtained from Messrs. Whiteley & Walker.... Some use has been made of Fr. Hartmann's vocabulary and a few words taken therefrom... Thanks are also due to the Rev. C. D. Helm for the list, 'Colours of Cattle'...; to F. C. Selous, Esq., for his authoritative revision of the Tebele and Shuna names of the larger game" (Preface).

Second edition c. 1910: [LILLYbm] Notes for a Sindebele dictionary and grammar, with illustrative sentences. Second edition, by W[illiam] A[llan] Elliot. Bristol: Sindebele Publishing Company, [ca. 1910]. Original olive cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. i-ii iii-vii viii, 1-589 590. Second edition. Zaubmüller, col. 410. Hendrix 1207. Includes Ndebele-English, pp. 31-215, English-Ndebele, pp. 216-463, and "Lists of some Rhodesian mammals and birds": pp. 520-571.

"The first edition of this book was entitled: A dictionary of the Tebele and Shuna languages [London, 1897]... There has been a great enlargement of volume, to the extent of over one hundred pages.... It may be in the minds of some... that 'so mongrel and perishable a language' ... is unworthy of serious attention.... Against which opinion it may be maintained that... Sindebele is no mongrel tongue but that it preserves a form of language as old and as pure as the isiZulu itself.... Sindebele, a member of the great Bantu family, is worthy of careful attention and study for its own sake, doubly worthy as a contribution to that mutual understanding of the white and black races so essential to the prosperity of Rhodesia. The best Matebele speech is remarkable for its courteous expression... Courteous phrase is an excellent lubricant in man's dealing with man. It was characteristic alike of David Livingstone the Christian gentleman and of Lobengula the savage king; and both were rulers of men" (Preface).

1910: [LILLY] A phrase book in English and Sindebele : with a full vocabulary for the use of settlers in Matabeleland / compiled by Rev. J. O'Neil, S.J. of Empandeni Mission, Plumtree. Bulawayo : Ellis Allen ... ; London : Simpkin, Marshall, Hamilton, Kent & Co., [1910]. xi, [1], 104 p. ; 18 cm. Bound in original maroon cloth, lettered and ill. in gilt with a depiction of a tribal member, foot of spine waterstained. Publication date from BM 175:643; pref. dated July 1909. Includes English-Sindebele vocabulary, pp. [42]-69, and Sindebele-English, pp. [70]-104. There was evidently a second edition in 1910 with "a list of wild animals, birds and reptiles" added to the title. Hendrix 2075 and 2212 lists this title with date of 1912.

"That a handbook of this description is a need in the land must be evident to those who reflect on the kind of language, or rather jargon, which most white men use in addressing native employees. It generally goes by the name of 'Kitchen Kaffir,' and is in reality a queer jumble of English, Cape Dutch, and truncated native words, utterly devoid of grammar or meaning" (Preface).

1912: [LILLY] A grammar of the Sindebele dialect of Zulu : with numerous examples and a key to the exercises, by J. O'Neil. Bulawayo : Ellis Allen ; London : Simpkin, Marshall, Hamilton, Kent, [1912?]. xii, 177, [3] p. ; 19 cm. Bound in blue cloth, spine and front cover stamped in gold. Preface dated 1912. "Vocabulary of words that occur in the exercises" : p. 163-177. Date of publication from date at end of preface.

1971: [IUW] A practical Ndebele dictionary / compiled by J. N. Pelling. Salisbury, Rhodesia : Published in association with Rhodesia Literature Bureau by Longman Rhodesia, 1971. 154 p. ; 20 cm. Original black and white wrappers (photograph of man reading text in a radio station). "First published 1966 / Revised edition 1971" on verso of title page. Ndebele-English, pp. 11-76, English-Ndebele, pp. 79-144, Supplementary list, English-Ndebele, pp. 145-148.

"Ndebele, while still correctly regarded as a dialect of the Zulu cluster, has diverged even further from standard Zulu and there has been a need for a dictionary of Ndebele for some considerable time. It is long since it was possible to obtain a copy of W. A. Elliott's Notes for a Sindebele Dictionary and Grammar [see above]. Mr. Pelling has given us a dictionary of modern Ndebele which is highly practical and useful, and of great interest as a record of the extent to which one language can diverge from another in the space of 150 years" (Foreword).

"I have ... thoroughly revised the entries and made some necessary corrections. More Ndebele words have been included and the entries in the English-Ndebele section increased. At the end of the book there is a supplementary list of English words, mainly specialist terms, and their Ndebele equivalent, and I think this will prove particularly useful" (Author's Note on Second Edition).

1998: [IUW] Kholisa ukukhuluma LamaNdebele = Enjoy talking with the AmaNdebele : a small colloquial guide to Ndebele / B. Sodindwa Ncube. Senga, Gweru [Zimbabwe] : Vision Publications, 1998. 28 p. : ill. ; 21 cm. Original pink and black wrappers, lettered in black. Vocabulary, English-Ndebele, pp. 20-26.

"A small colloquial guide to Ndebele --for tourists and short-time visitors, --for people working in Zimbabwe and needing only basic knowledge of Ndebele, --for non-Ndebele speaking Zimbabweans in need of a working knowledge of Ndebele" (from the title page).

[NDEBELE (Transvaal)] Southern Ndebele (isiNdebele seSewula), also known as Transvaal Ndebele, isiNdebele, Ndebele, or South Ndebele, is an African language belonging to the Nguni group of Bantu languages and is spoken by the amaNdebele (the Ndebele people) of South Africa. There is also another language called Zimbabwean Ndebele, or Matabele, spoken in Zimbabwe, which is closer to Zulu than other Nguni dialects (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nbl. Alternate Names: Isikhethu, Ndzundza, Nrebele, Southern Ndebele, Transvaal Ndebele. Autonym: IsiNdebele.

1989: [IUW] Isihlathululimezwi : an English-South Ndebele dictionary / Thos M. Shabangu, J.J. Swanepoel. Cape Town : Maskew Miller Longman, 1989.xxx, 184 p. : ill., maps ; 22 cm. Includes bibliographical references (p. 184).

[NDE-NSELLE-NTA] Nde is an Ekoid language of Nigeria. There are three somewhat distinct dialects, Nde (60% of speakers), Nsele, and Nta.

Ethnologue: ndd.

1965: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[NDO] Ndo, also Ke'bu or Membitu, is a Central Sudanic language of northeastern Congo and western Uganda spoken by a caste of blacksmiths (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ndp. Alternate Names: Kebu, Ndu, Oke'bu.

1869: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[NDOE] Ndoe is the most divergent of the Ekoid languages (Niger–Congo family) of Nigeria and Cameroon (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nbb.

1965: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[NDOGO] Ndogo is a Ubangian language, one of the nine major languages of South Sudan, and is taught in primary school. It is used as a secondary language by the Gollo and some of the Gbaya, among others (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ndz. Autonym: Co Ndogo.

1950: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[NDONGA: see also under KHOEKHOE and NKANGALA] Ndonga, also called Oshindonga, is a Bantu language spoken in Namibia and parts of Angola. It is a standardized dialect of the Ovambo language, and is mutually intelligible with Kwanyama, the other Ovambo dialect with a standard written form. With 281,500 speakers, the language has the largest number of speakers in Namibia. Martti Rautanen translated the Bible into the Ndonga standard (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ndo. Alternate Names: Ambo, Ochindonga, Oshindonga, Osindonga, Otjiwambo, Owambo.

1892: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1974: [LILLYbm] Ovambo Riddles with Comments and Vocabularies, by Matti Kuusi. Helsinki: Academia Scientiarum Fennica, 1974. Original cream wrappers, lettered and decorated in red and black. Pp. 1-5 6-125 126. First edition. Folklore Fellows Communications, Vol. XCL, No. 215. Includes English-Ndonga glossary, pp. 116-128, double columns.

[NDUMU] Nduumo (Mindumbu) is a Bantu language spoken in Gabon (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nmd. Alternate Names: Bandoumou, Doumbou, Dumbu, Lendumu, Lindumu, Mindoumou, Mindumbu, Minduumo, Ndumbo, Ndumbu, Nduumo, Ondoumbo, Ondumbo.

1969: [IUW] Dictionnaire ndumu-mbede-français et français-ndumu-mbede. Petite flore de la région de Franceville (Garbon). Grammaire ndumu-mbede, by Alexandre Biton. Libreville, l'Archevêché, 1969. 656 p. 19 cm. Original limp green cloth, lettered in black. First edition. Hendrix 1125. "Par le P. Alexandre Biton, des missions étrangères, avec le concours de Mgr Jérôme-J. Adam, spiritain, d'après l'avant-propos."--Bibl. de la Fr. Bibliography: p. [6]. Ndumu-Mbede-French, pp. 11-283, French-Ndumu-Mbede, pp. 289-552. First dictionary of Ndumu.

"This dictionary was compiled by R. P. Alexandre Biton, missionary in Franceville from 1899 to 1930.... It was meant to be his life's work. Unfortunately he did not have the joy of seeing it published. God called him to Him when the first and most important section of the work was done. Then the years passed. I worked slowly on the second part, and added a grammar, with little hope of ever seeing it published..... Finally, after having slumbered in a armoire for many years, the work saw its publication, 36 years after its birth" (J. J. Adam, p. [3], tr: BM).

[NEGERHOLLANDS] Negerhollands (English translation: Negro-Dutch) was a Dutch-based creole language that was once spoken in the Danish West Indies, now known as the U.S. Virgin Islands. Dutch is its superstrate language with Danish, English, French, Spanish, and African elements incorporated. Notwithstanding its name, Negerhollands draws primarily from the Zeelandic rather than the Hollandic dialect (Wiki).

Ethnologue: dcr. Alternate Names: Dutch Creole.

1926: [LILLYbm] Het huidige Negerhollandsch (teksten en woordenlijst), J[an] P[etrus] B[enjamin] de Josselin de Jong [1886- ]. Amsterdam: Koninklijke Akademie van Wetenschappen te Amsterdam, 1926. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. 1-5 6-123 124. First edition. Series: Verhandelingen der Koninklijke Akademie van Wetenschappen te Amsterdam. Afdeeling Letterkunde. Nieuwe reeks, deel 26, no. 1. Reinecke 58.14 ("The best firsthand source [of linguistic material in this language]"). Includes Dutch Creole-Dutch vocabulary, with English and Spanish loan words indicated, pp. 70-107. This is the only published vocabulary of the language listed in Reinecke.

"Negerhollands, or Creol, once the principal language on St. Thomas and St. John in the Danish Antilles, now the American Virgin Islands, was spoken in 1969 by about six persons. St. Thomas was settled in 1672 and St. John in 1717, largely by Dutch planters and their slaves. Creole Dutch must very quickly have become prevalent... In the nineteenth century, English became practically everyone's first language on all the islands and Dutch was displaced, beginning in the towns" (Reinecke, p. 318).

[NÊLÊMWA-NIXUMWAK] Kumak, also known as Nêlêmwa-Nixumwak after its two dialects, is a Kanak language of northern New Caledonia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nee. Alternate Names: Fwa-Goumak, Koumac, Kumak.

1946: see under MELANESIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1963: [LILLYbm] La langue des Nenemas et des Nigoumak (Dialectes de Poum et de Koumac, Nouvelle Calédonie), by André-G[eorges] Haudricourt. Auckland: Linguistic Society of New Zealand, 1963. Original quarter-maroon cloth and orange wrappers, lettered and illustrated in red. Pp. [4] 1-2 3-85 86, + 5 maps. First edition. Series: Te reo monographs. Includes Kumak (both dialects: Kumak and Poup [Nenema])-French, pp. 36-82. This is the first extensive lexicon of the language.

"The language in question is spoken in the extreme northwest coast of New Caledonia. The two dialects [spoken in Poup and Kumak]... are close enough to be considered one language.... This language was practically unknown until the investigations of Maurice Leenhardt in 1938, the results of which were published in 1946. This work included a sketch of the grammar.... In the course of a mission for the CNRS of Paris in 1959 and 1962-63, I spent ten days in Kumak and ten days in Poup in verifying the material in Leenhardt and gathering new material-and it is this material, including texts and a lexicon, which is the principle object of the present book" (Preface, tr: BM).

[NEME] Nambu is a Papuan dialect cluster of Papua New Guinea. Dialects are distinct but mutually intelligible. However, Ethnologue lists them as separate languages, because speakers prefer individualized literacy materials. Glottolog lists the following varieties: Nama, Namat, Nambo (also known as Nambu, Arufe or Namna), Namo (also known as Dorro or Mari), Neme and Nen (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nex.

1982: see under MELANESIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[NENETS] Nenets (in former work also Yurak) is a pair of closely related languages spoken in northern Russia by the Nenets people. They are often treated as being two dialects of the same language, but they are very different and mutual intelligibility is low. The languages are Tundra Nenets, the bigger language of the two in number of speakers, spoken by some 30,000 to 40,000 people in an area stretching from the Kanin Peninsula to the Yenisei River; and Forest Nenets, spoken by 1,000 to 1,500 people around the Agan, Pur, Lyamin and Nadym rivers. The Nenets languages are classified in the Uralic language family, making them distantly related to some European national languages – namely Finnish, Estonian, and Hungarian – in addition to other minority languages spoken in Russia. Both of the Nenets languages have been greatly influenced by Russian. Tundra Nenets has, to a lesser degree, been influenced by Komi, and Northern Khanty. Forest Nenets has also been influenced by Eastern Khanty. Tundra Nenets is well documented, considering its status as an indigenous- and minority language, also having a literary tradition going back to the 1930s, while Forest Nenets was first written during the 1990s and is only very little documented. Apart from the word 'Nenets', only one other Nenets word has entered the English language: 'parka', their traditional long hooded jacket made from skins and sometimes fur (Wiki).

Ethnologue: yrk. Alternate Names: Nenec, Nenetsy, Nentse, Yurak, Yurak Samoyed.

1956: [LILLYbm] Juraksamojedisches Wörterbuch, by T. V. Lehtisalo. Helsinki, Suomalais-Ugrilainen Seura, 1956. cix, 601 p. 26 cm. Original cream wrappers, lettered in black. Lexica Societatis Fenno-Ugricae XIII. First edition. Includes Nenets-German, pp. [1]-522, with German index, pp. [523]-601.

1965: [LILLYbm] Nenetsko-russkii slovar: okolo 22000 slov, by N[ataliia] M[itrofanovna] Tereshchenko. Moscow: Izd-vo sovskaia entsklopediia, 1965. Original red cloth over boards, lettered in white, decorate in blind. 944 pp. First edition thus. Zaunmüller lists a Russian-Nenets dictionary by the same author, published in Moscow in 1948. The same author published a Nenets-Russian dictionary in 1955 in Leningrad containing 8,000 words. From the library of Carleton T. Hodge.

"Nenets, formerly known as Yurak, is spoken in northernmost Russia, in an area extending from the White Sea on the west to the Yenisei River on the east, a distance of about 1,500 miles. Its speakers, who are known as Nentsy, number about 25,000...Nenets is the most widely spoken of the Samoyed languages, one of the two branches of the Uralic family" (Katzner).

[NENGO] Nengone is a language of the Loyalty Islands, New Caledonia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nen. Alternate Names: Iwatenu, Mare, Pene Nengone.

1899: see under OCEANIC LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1969: [LILLYbm] Nengone Dictionary. Part I. Nengone-English. Part II English-Nengone, by D[arrell] T. Tryon & M[arie]-J[oseph] Dubois. Two vols. Canberra: The Australian National University, 1969, 1971. Original pale green wrappers with green cloth spines, lettered in black. Pp. [Vol. 1] [2] i-ii iii-vii viii, 1-445 446, <sup>21</sup> 2-5 6-8; [Vol. 2] 202 pp. First editions. Pacific Linguistics, Series C, Nos.9 and 25. Vol. 1 includes Nengone-English, pp. 1-445. Vol. 2 includes English-Nengone, pp. 1-202. These two volumes constitute the first dictionary of this language.

"Nengone is a 'Melanesian' language spoken on the island of Maré, the southernmost of the Loyalty Islands, which is parallel to the axis of New Caledonia and approximately eighty miles to the east of it. Maré (250 sq. mls.) has a Melanesian population of approximately 4,500, all of whom speak Nengone. The Bible was translated into Nengone in 1903 by members of the London Mission Society, whose orthography has been accepted as the official orthography throughout the island and which will be followed in this dictionary. There are in fact two languages spoken on Maré, Nengone and Iwateno. Iwateno is the respectful language used only when addressing chiefs, or the chief's advisers. However, much of this honorific language has now been forgotten. An attempt has been made to include as many Iwateno items as possible in the present dictionary" (Introduction).

[NEPALI] Nepali, also known as Khas Kura, Parbate Bhasa or Gorkhali, is an Indo-Aryan language. It is the official language and de facto lingua franca of Nepal. It is also spoken in various part of India, particularly by Indian Gorkha, and by a significant number of Bhutanese and some Burmese people. In India, Nepali language is listed in the Eighth Schedule to the Constitution of India having an official status in the Indian state of Sikkim and in West Bengal's Darjeeling district. Nepali developed in proximity to a number of Indo-Aryan languages, most notably the Pahari languages and Magahi, and shows Sanskrit influences. However, owing to Nepal's geographical area, it has also been influenced by Tibeto-Burman languages. Nepali is mainly differentiated from Central Pahari, both in grammar and vocabulary, by Tibeto-Burman idioms owing to close contact with the respective language group. Nepali language shares 40% lexical similarity with the Bengali language. British resident at Kathmandu Brian Houghton Hodgson has observed that it is, in eight-tenths of its vocables, substantially Hindi. Historically, the language was first called the Khas language (Khas kurā), then Gorkhali or Gurkhali

(language of the Gorkha Kingdom) before the term Nepali was coined. Other names include Parbatiya ("mountain language", identified with the Parbatiya people of Nepal) and Dzongkha Lhotshammikha ("Southern Language", spoken by the Lhotshampas of Bhutan). It is also known as the language among the Newar people and Pahari language among Madhesi and Tharus (Wiki).

Ethnologue: npi. Alternate Names: Eastern Pahadi, Gorkhali, Gurkhali, Khaskura, Nepalese, Parbate.

1919 [LILLY] Gurkhali Manual, by G[eorge] W[igram] P[ocklington] Money (Captain, Third Gurkha Rifles). Bombay: Thacker, 1919. "Second edition" (on title page). ii, 205 p. + music for 13 Gurkhali songs. Original green striped cloth with black title on the front board (no title at spine). Includes a Khaskura, Magarkura and Gurungkura grammar and English-Gurkhali and Khaskura-English vocabularies [pp. [30]-111, and [112]-179 respectively], as well as proverbs, letter writing formats, songs, Pharse Kura, riddles, useful sentences, enlistment questions in Gurkhali and Court Martial Questions in Gurkhali. The author, a British officer in the 3rd Gurkha Rifles, wrote this Nepali grammar to aid other officers joining the Ghurka regiments. The regiment was originally formed in 1815, as part of the British Indian Army. At the time of publication it was taking part in the Third Afghan War of 1919, and its official title had changed to the 3rd Queen Alexandra's Own Gurkha Rifles. The Gurkhas are highly respected Nepalese fighters who have been part of the British Army for almost 200 years. Printed at the Baptist Mission Press. From the library of Lt. Col. V.S.M. De Guinzbourg, who was Permanent Secretary of the Paroemiological Society, of which he was the founder, with his bookplate. He established the folklore and proverbs library at the United Nations. Booksellers blind stamp on ffep for "The Exquisite Book Depot, Abbottabad" (bookseller's description: Antipodean Books).

1923a: [LILLYbm] English-Nepali Dictionary, from material collected by R[obert] Kilgour, revised and arranged by H.C. Duncan, with the assistance of G.P. Pradhan. Darjeeling: Government Branch Press, 1923. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in gold. 392 pp. First edition. Nepali words in both Nagri and roman characters. Zaunmüller, col. 294.

"This volume was promised by the Rev. A. Turnbull, B.D., in the preface to the second edition of his Nepali Grammar and Vocabulary published in 1904 [first edition, Darjeeling, 1887; third edition London, 1923]. On Mr. Turnbull's death in 1905, his colleague and friend, the Rev. R. Kilgour, B.D., D.D., took up the work of preparing a full Dictionary of the Nepali language and collected much material for the purpose, while engaged in the translation of the Old Testament into Nepali... After finishing the translation of the Old Testament in 1914, he found that it would not be possible to complete the dictionary, and two years later, he handed it over all his material to me. With the help of the Rev. G.P. Pradhan, I have prepared this volume for publication... With Dr. Kilgour's hearty approval, I have handed over the material collected by him for the Nepali-English part of the dictionary to Professor R.L. Turner, who... will before long issue a volume which... will prove of great value to those who wish to make a thorough study of the language." First English-Nepali dictionary. An undated but pre-1931 English-Nepali Dictionary was also published in Benares.

1923b: [LILLYbm] Nepali Grammar and Vocabulary, by A[rchibald] Turnbull. London; Calcutta: W. Thacker & Co.; Thacker, Spink & Co., 1923. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. i-v vi, 1 2-185 186. Third edition. Zauhmüller, col. 294 (erroneously dated 1924). Includes English-Nepali, pp. [156]-182, double columns. The first edition was entitled A Nepali grammar and English-Nepali & Nepali-English vocabulary (about 4000 words): designed for the use of missionaries, tea-planters and military officers (Darjeeling: N. L. Roy, 1887) and the second Nepali i.e., Gorkhali or Parbate grammar and vocabulary. Second edition. (Darjeeling: The Mission house, 1904).

"This edition is practically a page for page reproduction of the earlier work [second edition] with the correction of obvious mistakes... A Nepali Dictionary begun on the lines laid down by Mr. Turnbull is now in the press" (Preface to the Third Edition, R. Kilgour).

1927: [LILLYbm] Tea Districts Labour Association Language Hand-Book Nepali. Printed for private circulation only. Calcutta: Begg Dunlop: [Dunlofs?] & Co.; printed by P. A. Bonardi at the Catholic Orphan Press, 1927. Original pebbled gray cloth over boards, lettered in gold and decorated in blind. Pp. [10] 1 2-86. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Includes English-Khaskura pp. 72-78, and Khaskura-English, pp. 79-86. A presentation copy from the author was offered by Charlotte du Rietz in 2012 that read: "This manual was prepared by me during the cold weather of 1926-1927 for the publishers Messrs. Begg Dunlofs & Co. Ltd. and represents my humble contribution to the tea trade" (signature illegible).

"Khaskura is the lingua franca of Nepal. There are six dialects which are as different from another as chalk is from cheese. They are: -Khaskura, Gurungkura, Magarkkura, Limbukura, Raikura and Newarkura or Newari. Newari, the language of the Newars, was used in the Kathmandu Valley and at the Court of Nepal until the overthrow of that dynasty. Since then Khaskura has replaced Newari. Khas is the name applied to those Gurkhas descended from the progeny of Rajputs and Gurkhua women... Kura means 'language.' Khaskura is really a Hindi dialect connected very closely with the language of the Rajputs and it appears to be associated slightly with Bengali" (Preface).

1931: [LILLYbm] A Comparative and Etymological Dictionary of the Nepali Language, by Ralph Lilley Turner. London: Kegan Paul Trench, Trubner & Co., 1931. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in gold. 935 pp. First edition. Zauhmüller, col. 294. This copy signed by Major H. Hayward-Surry, 1/6th Gurka Rifles, December '53 (the dictionary's printed dedication is to members of the Gurka Rifles who fell in The Great War). "First Nepali-English dictionary."

1944: [LILLY] Gurkhali to English dictionary, by A. W. Cornelius. Dehra Dun: Jugal Kishore, 1944. iv, 134 p. 13 cm. Original black and white paper over boards, lettered in white and black, with plain black cloth spine. First edition. Includes Gurkhali-English, pp. 1-131.

"The present volume was originally intended as a Companion to the "European Guide to Gurkhali" written by me... Nothing has been left undone to make the work easy to [the] British Officer. Khaskura has been used in this book, which is the most common language of the inhabitants of Nepal" (Preface).

1950: [LILLYbm] Colloquial Nepali, by G.G. Rogers. Calcutta: Thacker Spink, 1950. Original yellow cloth over boards, lettered in black. 124 pp. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. The author was a Lieut.-Colonel, late 1st K.G. V's O. Gurkha Rifles and an Instructor in Nepali under the G.H.Q India. Includes, pp. 100-112, a Nepali-English vocabulary, and, pp. 113-124, an English-Nepali vocabulary. From the library of Carleton T. Hodge.

"My object in these pages is to put before the students a simple form of the language as spoken in eastern and western Nepal [as opposed to the 'very cultured and pure form found in the central valley']; that is, the pure form of the language as used by the young soldier or recruit in any Gurhka regiment. It would obviously be futile, indeed impossible, to attempt to teach the mixed language know as 'line bat' ['an extremely impure form of speech, being a regimental language containing at least 60% pure Hindustani words and construction, evolved for parade purposes']. The young soldier does not know this form, but gradually learns it on parade or at the orderly room but immediately reverts to his own speech when off parade. It varies considerably in different regiments and is certainly not standard."

1955: [LILLYbm] Dictionary of Roman Gurhkali and English, by D[uncan] C. Forbes. Singapore: Published by the Author, 1955. Original green cloth over thin boards, lettered in black. Cover reads: English-Gurhali Dictionary. 370 pp. Revised edition. First edition was 1954. Includes Gurkhali-English, pp. 1-178, and English-Gurkahli, pp. 179-369. This copy presented by the author: "To Miss Blue / with best wishes / Duncan Forbes / 10 Apr 56 Kathmandu." "This pocket dictionary of Roman Gurkhali and English has been prepared in response to a keenly-felt need both amongst those who serve or work with Gurkhas and amongst Gurkhas serving or living outside Nepal. I have included in this volume many common words which were originally Hindi, Urdu, or English, but are now fully absorbed into the Gurkhali language. I have also listed many less common words which will be found in modern Gurkhali newspapers and literature." First true English-Nepali pocket dictionary?

1960: [LILLYbm] Basic Gurkhali Dictionary (Roman Script), by M. Meerendonk. N.p.[Malaya?]: [published y the author], 1960. Original maroon plastic over stiff paper. 258 pp. First edition?

"This small pocket dictionary is a by-product of efforts to compile an exhaustive Nepali-English dictionary which was originally begun in 1946 and finally abandoned some years ago at an advanced stage... Taking the 2500 word vocabulary published in 1949 in the original edition of his Basic Gurkhali Grammar, the writer has revised and extended it by a careful selection of words in more or less common use" ("Preface" M. Meerendonk).

1968a: [LILLYbm] Nepali-English Dictionary, by Gabriel Rana. Darjeeling: Shyam Brothers, 1968. Original powder-blue paper over boards, lettered in maroon; d.j. orange, black and white, decorated and lettered in white and black. Pp. [in Nepali] 302. First edition. Preliminary material in Nepali.

1968b: [LILLYbm] Nepalsko-russkii slovar. 38 000 slov, by I[zrail] S[avelevich] Rabinovich. Moscow: "Sov. entsiklopediia," 1968. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in gold and black. Pp. 1-4 5-1328. First edition. Includes Nepali-Russian, pp. 13-1210. This is the first and only Nepali-Russian dictionary. A Russian-Nepali dictionary appeared in 1975.

1975: [IUW] Russko-nepal'skii slovar': okolo 25 000 slov / Korolev, N. I.; Kudriavtsev, B. V.; Shreshtkha, K.Moskva: Russkii iazyk, 1975.

1982: [LILLYbm] Nepali Grammar and Vocabulary, Rev. A. Turnbull. Third Edition, ed. by Rev. R. Kilgour. New Delhi: Asian Educational Services, 1982. Original shiny red cloth over boards, lettered in gold. 186 pp. Reprint of the 1923 (3rd) edition.

1983: [LILLYbm] Nepali-English Dictionary (with pronunciation in Roman Nepali), compiled by Chandra Lal Singh & Matshyandra Lal Singh. Kathmandu: Educational Enterprise, Ltd., 1983. Original unlettered dark-blue quarter cloth and white paper over boards; d.j. black and white, lettered in yellow and black, with a photo of the compiler on the rear cover. 588 pp. Second edition (first edition was published in 1971). "Some extra features have been incorporated in the book, so that the native as well as non-native speakers of Nepali may find it much more useful."

1984a: A Nepali newspaper reader = Nepali patrapatrikako bhasha, by Champa Jarmul & John D. Murphy [1921- ]. Kensington, Md.: Dunwoody Press, 1984. ix, 274 p.; 24 cm. Original maroon imitation leather cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Issued without d.j. First edition. Includes Nepali (Devanagari and Roman)-English glossary, pp. 179-274.

"The purpose of the present Reader is to provide the intermediate student of Nepali with an abundance of current newspaper selections together with the necessary lexical and grammatical aids to facilitate their comprehension. Each ...section of the Reader is accompanied by an individual vocabulary... The general glossary in Part III...contains all the words used in the Reader" (Introduction).

1984b: see under MAITHILI.

1986: [LILLYbm] Nepali Vocabulary [With an Introduction to the Nepali Language] [English-Roman-Nepali], by Dinesh Shrestha 'Ashrit'. Kathmandu: Rajani Prakashan, 1986. Original cream wrappers, lettered in black. 84 pp. First edition. The author has also written poems and short stories. "This book is prepared for all foreigners." Includes vocabularies grouped by subject. This is a pocket guide

199-?: [LILLYbm] Ajanta's Comprehensive Dictionary English-English-Nepali (comprising explanatory illustrations) with Characteristic Meanings, along with Explanations mostly viewed in English, English and Nepali Sense as well commonly used basis important phrases, idioms and abbreviations, edited by K.L. Karmacharya & P.R. Vaidya. Delhi: Ajanta Prakashan, n.d. Original unprinted red cloth over boards; d.j. yellow and green, lettered in white and black. 1136 pp. First edition?

"It is a great pleasure to us that this illustrated Comprehensive English-English-Nepali Dictionary with great care has been brought out after long time... I hope this will satisfy the long felt need of such concise dictionary" ("Authors"). The dictionary gives English definitions for all English words, as well as the Nepali equivalents.

"Pahari, [is] a general name applied to the Indo-Aryan languages of dialects spoken in the lower ranges of the Himalaya from Nepal in the east, to Chamba of the Punjab in the west.... In Nepal Khas-kura is the language only of the Aryan population....Khas-kura, as its speakers themselves call it, passes under various names. The English generally call it Nepali or Naipali (i.e.-the language of Nepal), which is a misnomer, for it is not the principal form of speech used in that country. Moreover, the Nepalese employ a corruption of this very word to indicate what is really the main language of the country, viz. the Tibeto-Burman Newari. Khas-kura is also called Gorkhali, or the language of the Gurkhas, and Pahari or Parbatiya, the language of the mountains. The number of speakers is not known [1926], no census ever having been taken of Nepal" (Encyclopedia Britannica, 13th ed.).

[NEWAR] Newar or Newari, also known as Nepal Bhasa (नेपाल भाषा), is spoken as a native language by the Newar people, the indigenous inhabitants of Nepal Mandala, which consists of the Kathmandu Valley and surrounding regions in Nepal. Although "Nepal Bhasa" literally means "Nepalese language", the language is not the same as Nepali (Nepali: नेपाली), the country's current official language. The two languages belong to different language families (Sino-Tibetan and Indo-Aryan, respectively), but centuries of contact have resulted in a significant body of shared vocabulary. Newar was Nepal's administrative language from the 14th to the late 18th centuries. Since the beginning of the 20th century, Newar has suffered from official suppression. From 1952 to 1991, the percentage of the population in the Kathmandu Valley speaking Newar dropped from 75% to 44%, and Newar culture and language are under threat. The language has been listed as being "definitely endangered" by UNESCO (Wiki).

Ethnologue: new. Alternate Names: Nepal Bhasa, Newa Bhaaye, Newaah Bhaae, Newaah Bhaaye, Newah Bhaaye, Newal Bhaaye, "Newari" (pej.).

1936: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary of Classical Newari, by Hans Jørgensen. Copenhagen: Levin & Munksgaard, 1936. Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. 1-3 4-178. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 279. Includes Classical Newari-English, pp. [17]-178.

"The dictionary I here submit to the public, is a considerable enlargement and improvement of my 'Versuch eines Wörterbuches der Nevari-Sprache' [Acta Orientalia vol. VI (1927)]... The language I call classical Newari, is the language of the MSS. The modern language mainly known from the works of Hodgson, and of which traces are to be found in the MSS., I have taken into consideration only to a very limited extent" (Introduction).

1986: [LILLYbm] Newari-English Dictionary: Modern Language of Kathmandu Valley, by Thakur Lal Manandhar. Dehli: Agam Kala Prakashan, 1986. Original purple cloth over boards, lettered in gold; d.j. white, lettered and decorated in reddish-brown. Pp. [4], i ii-xlix 1-111, 1 2-284. First edition. Includes Newari-English dictionary, pp. [1]-284. Extensive discussion of previous Newari lexicography, pp. [v]-vi.

"...[T]here exists nothing like a standard dictionary of the language as it is spoken in Kathmandu at the present time...The aim of the dictionary is to provide both the native speaker and the foreign scholar with a standard bilingual dictionary of Newari and English" (Preface).

1995: [LILLYbm] A Concise Dictionary Newar-English, by S[resthacharya] Iswaranand. Kathmandu, Nepal: Pilgrims Book House, 1995. Original black plastic, lettered in gold. Pp. i-viii ix-xix xx, 1-289 290-292, I-1-I-62 I-63-I-64, A-1-A-13 A-14 [2]. First edition. Includes Newari-English, pp. 1-289, and an English-Newari index, pp. I-1-I-62.

"Mr. Iswaranand Sresthacharya's brilliant lexical work concise Dictionary (Newari-English) is at the hands of readers. Its prepublication draft was already made public as early as 1987. It is a pity that such a valuable work took so many years to come out in print. There are very few dictionaries of Newar language and not a single Newar-English dictionary [sic]" (Foreword, Prof. Manik Lal Shrestha). "This handy dictionary is extracted from the Comprehensive Newar English Dictionary which is based on the taped interviews on various subject matters, from different villages and urbans chiefly from the vicinity of Kirtipur, and with which I have been working over 25 years" (Introduction).

"The Newars, inhabitants of Kathmandu Valley, are classified among the ethnic groups whose language is Tibeto-Burmese and they constitute, within this linguistic division, one of the few fully Hinduised populations of Nepal. The Newars are the only group to have adopted, over the past two thousand years...the caste system. Today they number in the Valley roughly 400,000; they form more than 50% of the Valley's total population."

[NEYO] Neyo is a Kru language of Ivory Coast, near the mouth of the Sassandra River (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ney. Alternate Names: Gwibwen, Towi.

1904: see 1904a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1905: [IUW] Essai de manuel de la langue néouolé, parlée dans la partie occidentale de la Côte d'Ivoire : ouvrage accompagné d'un recueil de contes et chansons en langue néouolé, d'une étude sur les diverses tribus Bété-Bakoué, de vocabulaires comparatifs, d'une bibliographie et d'une carte, by Georges Thomann. Paris : E. Leroux, 1905. [4], viii, 198, [1] p. : map ; 28 cm. Library binding. First edition.

"Bibliographie relative aux langues dites krou et à la région du Sassandra", p. 193-95.

[NEZ PERCE] Nez Perce /,nez'pɜ:rs/, also spelled Nez Percé or called Niimi'ipuutímt, is a Sahaptian language related to the several dialects of Sahaptin (note the spellings, -ian vs. -in). The Sahaptian sub-family is one of the branches of the Plateau Penutian family (which, in turn, may be related to a larger Penutian grouping). It is spoken by the Nez Perce people of the Northwestern United States. Nez Perce is a highly endangered language. While sources differ on the exact number of fluent speakers, it is almost definitely under 100. The Nez Perce tribe is endeavoring to reintroduce the language into native usage through a language revitalization program, though at present the future of the Nez Perce language is far from assured. The grammar of Nez Perce has been described in a grammar ((Aoki 1973)) and a dictionary ((Aoki 1994) [see below] with two dissertations (Rude 1985; Crook 1999) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nez. Alternate Names: Nuumiipuutimt, Nuumiipuutímt.

1838: [LILLYbm] Journal of an exploring tour beyond the Rocky Mountains, under the direction of the A.B.C.F.M. performed in the years 1835, '36 containing a description of the geography, geology, climate, and productions; and the number, manners, and customs of natives. With a map of the Oregon Territory, by Samuel Parker [1779-1866]. Ithaca, N.Y.: Published by the author; Mack, Andrus & Woodruff, printers, 1838. Original tan cloth over boards, with original green printed label on spine, lettered in black. Pp. [2] i-iii iv-xii 13 14-371 372-374 + folding map of the Oregon Territory. First edition. Howes P89. Smith Pacific 7896. Wolf 2835. Graff 3194, Howes-Hartley P-89, Sabin 58729. Includes "Vocabulary of Indian languages." pp. 327-338, as follows: English-Nez Perce, pp. 327-330, English-Klicatat [Klikitat, dialect of Yakama], pp. 330-333, English-Calapooa, pp. 333-336, and English-Chenook [Chinook], pp. 336-338. This copy with the contemporary ink ownership signature of "Z. Crane" (twice) and his penciled note on final page: "Finished reading this Dec. 2' 1839. | Very instructive." One of the earliest published vocabularies of these languages.

In 1835, the author, who was a Baptist missionary, accompanied a fur trading party from Council Bluffs, Iowa, to Washington, and to Pacific islands. His journey and journal began in Buffalo, New York. Subjects include: Steamboats, Cincinnati, Ohio River, St. Genevieve, St. Louis, Up the Missouri, Jefferson City, Lexington, Navaho Indians, Iowa Indians, Blacksnake Hills, Nodaway River, Indian Mounds, Bellevue, Council Bluffs, Black Hills, Elkhorn River, Platte, Pawnee, Indian Feasting, Rattlesnakes, Buffalo, Ogallallah Indians, Red Butte, Grizzly Bears, Flatheads, Nez Perce, Shoshones and Utaws, Columbia River, Jackson Hole, Tetons, Walla Walla, Fort Vancouver, Cayuse Indians, Wappatoo Island, Cowalitz River, Astoria, Fort George, Willamette River, Hudson Bay Company, Paloose Indians, Mill River Valley, Fort Colville, Fort Okanagan. The author also describes sailing the Pacific. He describes his visit to Hawaii, Honolulu, Oahu, Manoa, Waialua, Keneohe, the Sandwich Islands and Tahiti, in the last 2 chapter of the book.

"In all the qualities which a historian would require, [the journal] has few equals. The author indeed anticipates the requirements of his day, and furnishes the philologist with a vocabulary of four Indian tongues" - Field 1175.

1847: see under CHINOOK WAWA.

1855: [LILLY] The fur hunters of the far West; a narrative of adventures in the Oregon and Rocky Mountains. By Alexander Ross ... London, Smith, Elder and Co., 1855. 2 v.: (v. 2, port.) fold. map.; 20 cm. "Vocabulary of the languages spoken by the Nez Percés": v. 1, p. [313]-323. "Snake Language," English-Snake [Shoshoni], v. 2, pp. 153-154. Sabin, 73327.

1888: [LILLY] Paradigma verbi activi. lingua Numipu vulgo Nez Perce [studio P.P. Missionariorum S.J. in Montibus Saxosis Pro eorumdem privato usu]; by Anthony Morvillo & Josephy Mary Cataldo [1837-1928] Desmet I.T. [Utah]: 1888. 56 p. Original black cloth, oblong format. This copy with ownership signature, stamp of Melville Jacobs (1902-1971), best known for his research on Northwest coast American Indian languages and Folklore, long-time professor of anthropology at the University of Washington. Also with stamp of Indian linguistic expert Laurence C. Thompson, author of Thompson River Salish Dictionary. With occasional pencilled notes in text. Note(s): Authors: Anthony Morvillo, and Joseph Mary Cataldo. cf. Jesuit Mission Presses in the Pacific Northwest; a history and bibliography of imprints, 1876-1899, by William P. Schoenberg, p. 61. Typis Missionis S.S. Cordis. [Indus Convictoribus collaborantibus]

1895: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary of the Numipu or Nez Perce language, by a missionary of the Society of Jesus in the Rocky Mountains. Part I English-Nez Perce [no further parts issued], [by Father Anthony Morvillo, S.J.] N.p.: St. Ignatius Mission Print, Montana, 1895. Contemporary (probably original) red half-leather and black pebbled cloth over boards, unlettered. [2],x, & 242 pp. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. With several apparently contemporary manuscript notes and additions. Schoenberg 48: "This work is attributed to Father Morvillo by the Conspectus Auctorum et Librorum, an attribution confirmed by annotated copies in the Oregon Province of Archives... Part II of this work was never printed." "Although Schoenberg calls for 'plain paper wrappers,' [this] may well be the original issue binding, as [Rulon-Miller] has had others similarly bound, and of the period, using materials that appear originally with other mission imprints" [Rulon-Miller]. First true dictionary of the language, preceded by two or three short vocabulary lists in travel books (see above). Nez Perce is an American Indian language of the Penutian family, spoken [1986] by a few hundred people in Idaho.

1907-1930: see Vol. 8 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

1994: [LILLYbm] Nez Perce dictionary, by Haruo Aoki. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1994. Original brownish-orange cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. i-iv v-xxii, 1-1280 1281-1282 + map and 20 photographic plates. First edition. Series: University of California publications in linguistics, vol. 122. Includes Nez Perce-English, pp. 1-1106, an English-Nez Perce index, pp. 1107-1268, appendix A, phonosymbolic words (Nez Perce with English explanations), pp. 1269-1271, appendix B, Nez Perce animal names with English and/or Latin equivalents, pp. 1271-1276, and appendix C, Nez Perce plant names, with English and/or Latin equivalents, pp. 1276-1280.

"This dictionary is the result of being, as Dr. Samuel Johnson put it, 'a harmless drug' for some thirty years. It took this long because...I worked on this dictionary on weekends and at night, and partly because I decided to incorporate citations from Nez Perce literature to make the dictionary a kind of concordance as well, so that a reader can tell how a certain word is used in traditional Nez Perce folktales" (Preface). "The only other Nez Perce dictionary in print was published in 1895 by St. Ignatius' Mission Print in Montana....It is an attempt to provide a tool for converting the Nez Perce people to a foreign religion. Thus, the frame of reference is totally outside of the traditional Nez Perce culture. The dictionary has entries such as epiphany, cassock, and rosary, but there is no entry for sweathouse (wistitâmo), guardian spirit (wé·yekin), or the prized Nez Perce delicacy camas (qémes). Nevertheless the volume is a significant source of information recorded at a time when practically all of the Nez Perce people spoke only the Nez Perce language. In contrast, the present dictionary starts from the Nez Perce side. The examples are taken from old Nez Perce stories....This procedure avoids the creation of forced, non-traditional entries foreign to the Nez Perce culture and the omission of entries important in traditional Nez Perce culture" (Introduction).

[NGAANYATJARRA] Ngaanyatjarra (also Ngaanyatjara, Ngaanjatjarra) is an Australian Aboriginal language. It is one of the Wati languages of the large Pama-Nyungan family. It is one of the dialects of the Western Desert Language and is very similar to its close neighbour Ngaatjatjarra, with which it is highly mutually intelligible. Most Ngaanyatjarra people live in one of the communities of Warburton, Warakurna, Tjukurla, Papulankutja (Blackstone), Mantamaru (Jameson) or Kaltukatjara (Docker River). Some have moved to Cosmo Newbery and Laverton in the Eastern Goldfields area of Western Australia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ntj. Alternate Names: Ngaanjatjarra, Ngaanyatjara, Western Desert Language.

1977: [LILLYbm] Illustrated topical dictionary of the Western desert language: Warburton Ranges dialect, Western Australia, by Wilfrid Henry Douglas. Canberra: Australian Institute of Aboriginal Studies, 1977. vi, 25 p.: ill.; 25 cm. Series: Research and regional studies;; no. 11. Original brown and yellow-brown wrappers, lettered in brown and yellow-brown. Revised edition.

“In its original form this dictionary was published [in 1959] by the UAM Language Department for the use of missionaries and government officials working in the Western Desert Area. It was designed to bridge the gap between the grammar and a complete alphabetical dictionary, to supply vocabulary in an easily assimilable form and to stimulate interest in Aboriginal language and culture.... In this second edition a greater attempt has been made to reflect the Aboriginal view of nature and to suggest indigenous methods of categorization” (Preface).

[NGÄBERE] Guaymí, or Ngäbere, also known as Movere, Chiriquí, and Valiente, is spoken by the indigenous Ngäbe people in Panama and Costa Rica. The people refer to themselves as Ngäbe (pronounced [ˈŋɔbe]) and to their language as Ngäbere [ŋɔˈbere]. The Ngäbes are the most populous of Panama’s several indigenous peoples. The language is centered in Panama within the semi-autonomous indigenous reservation known as the Comarca Ngäbe-Buglé. Beginning in the 1950s, Costa Rica began to receive Ngäbe immigrants, where are found in several indigenous reservations: Abrojos Montezuma, Conteburica, Coto Brus, Guaymí de Alto Laguna de Osa, and Altos de San Antonio.

Ethnologue: gym. Alternate Names: Chiriqui, Guaymí, Ngäbe, Ngobere, Valiente.

1882: see under CHIBCHAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

1956: [LILLYbm] Guaymí Grammar and Dictionary with some Ethnological Notes, by Ephraim S. Alphonse. Washington, D.C.: Government Printing Office, 1956. Original gray wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. 128 pp. First edition. Smithsonian Institution, Bureau of American Ethnology, Bulletin 162. Not in Zaunmüller. The Guaymí-English-Spanish vocabulary is on pp. 62-118. Previous brief vocabularies were published in German and Spanish. This is the first English dictionary of the language.

"The Valiente Indians, whose dialect is covered by the present publication, live on the Valiente Peninsula ... and in the valley of the Cricamola River and adjacent territory...Guaymí, at the time of the conquest, was spoken in Panama from the Chagres River to southern Costa Rica and extended across the Isthmus from coast to coast...Guaymí...is a member of the Chibchan stock, one of the major linguistic stocks of South America... no adequate study has ever been made of any of the Guaymí dialects. It is hoped that the present publication will go far toward filling this important gap" ("Preface," M. W. Stirling).

1987: [LILLYbm] Diccionario Guaymí Español-Ingles, by Ephraim S. J. Alphonse. Panama: Asamblea Espiritual Nacional de los Bahais de Panama, 1987. Original orange, white and blue wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [2] 1-8 9-333 334. First edition. Includes Guaymí-Spanish-English, pp. 9-333. This is the first Spanish dictionary of the language.

"This trilingual dictionary contains 105,000 words written in three distinct languages: Spanish, English and ... Ngöwé (Guaymí). With the peculiarity that Ngöwé is a spoken language and not a written one" (p. [5]).

[NGAD'A] Ngadha (also known as Ngada or Ngad'a) is an Austronesian language, one of six languages spoken in the central stretch of the Indonesian island of Flores. From west to east these languages are: Ngadha, Nage, Keo, Ende, Lio, and Palu'e. These languages form the proposed Central Flores group of the Sumba–Flores languages, according to Blust (2009). Ngadha is "bizarre" because it has no prefixes nor suffixes at all. This "strangely streamlined language" is thought by linguist John McWhorter to have originated when "little people" were "subjugated" into the Austronesian population. McWhorter (2006) speculates this rare linguistic transformation would have occurred to the ancestor of Ngadha and the related Keo and Rongga languages.[7] Nonetheless, in basic vocabulary, such as body parts, numbers, and action verbs, Ngadha has kept 94 out of a list of 247 lexical items of the Proto-Malayo-Polynesian language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nsg. Alternate Names: Badjava, Bajava, Bajawa, Nad'a, Ngada, Nga'da, Ngadha, Rokka.

1961: [IUW] Wörterbuch der Ngadhasprache, by P. (Paul) Arndt.Posieux FR; (Institut Anthropos); [Freiburg i. Ue.; Paulus-Verlag, Auslieferung], 1961. 646 p.; 29 cm. Studia Instituti Anthropos; v. 15.

[NGAJU] Ngaju is an Austronesian language spoken along the Kapuas, Kahayan, Katingan, and Mentaya Rivers in Central Borneo, Indonesia. It is closely related to Bakumpai language. There are three dialects—Pulopetak, Ba'amang, and Mantangai (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nij. Alternate Names: Biadju, Dayak Ngaju, Ngadju, Ngaja, Ngaju Dayak, Southwest Barito.

1987: [LILLYbm] Wörterbuch der Priestersprache der Ngaju-Dayak: (Bahasa Sangiang--Ngaju-Dayakisch--Bahasa Indonesia--Deutsch), by Martin Baier [1934- ], August Hardeland [1814-1891] & Hans Scharer [1904-1947]. Dordrecht, Holland; Providence, U.S.A.: Foris Publications, 1987. Original stiff white wrappers, lettered in black, with a full color photo on the front cover. Pp. I-VI VII-XVIII XIX-XX, 1 2-175 176. First edition. Series: Verhandelingen van het Koninklijk Instituut voor Taal-, Land- en Volkenkunde, 128. Includes Bahasa Sangiang-Ngaju-Indonesian-German dictionary, pp. [1]-175. Second copy: IUW.

"The Ngaju Dayaks are the largest and most important tribe in the southern part of the largest island in Asia, Borneo.... There has been continuous missionary work in the area since 1835.... The ritual texts [of the Ngaju] are composed in a ritual language (Bahasa Sangiang) and written in a fixed form. ...Dr. Martin Baier...who was among the Ngaju as a child (1936-1941) and later as a missionary and ethnologist (1967-1974) gathered examples of this ritual language based on the vocabularies of [earlier missionaries] and has provided equivalents in modern Ngaju and Indonesian, producing a dictionary of the priestly language of the Ngaju. This is the first dictionary of this type to be published" (front rear cover, tr: BM).

[NG'AKARAMOJONG] The Karamojong language (spelled ŋaKarimojoŋ or ŋaKaramojoŋ in Karamojong; Ngakarimojong or N'Karamojong in English) is a Nilo-Saharan language spoken mainly in the Karamoja subregion of north-eastern Uganda. Ngakarimojong is a Nilotic language of the Nilo-Saharan language family (Encyclopædia Britannica) spoken by at least 370,000 people in Uganda – the Karamojong people, or ŋiKarimojoŋ in their language. The name approximates to "the old men sat down", dating from a time of migration 300 or more years ago when this group refused to travel further on (to what is now Teso). They are a cattle-keeping people practising transhumance, which is reflected in the language as are their traditional religious beliefs. Settled cultivation is relatively recent and thus words associated with this are usually borrowed from neighbouring languages or from languages introduced by, or as a result of, colonialism – English, Luganda, Swahili. Modern technical words come from these latter also. These peoples are part of the Karamojong cluster of Nilotic tribes, which is also called the Teso cluster (Wiki).

Ethnologue: kdj. Alternate Names: Karamojong, Karimojong, Karimonjong, Ng'akaramojong.

1986: [IUW] Nakarimojon-English and English-Nakarimojon dictionary. Moroto (Uganda): Nadiket Seminary, 1986. viii, 572 p.; 16 cm. Original blue plastic binding, lettered in white. Nadiket Seminary (Moroto, Uganda). Includes Nakarimojon-English, pp. [1]-[208], and English-Nakarimojon, pp. [217]-[573].

"During the World War II, while interned at Katigondo together with all the other Missionaries, Fr. [Felice] Farina compiled a Karimojong-Italian and Italian-Karamojong dictionary. But, as he writes in the introduction, 'all the work had to be done far away from Karamoja and without being able to consult any Karimojong-speaking person. Inevitably, the dictionary will need to be revised and completed.' Assisted by a Father, who did the first over-all translation, for months those Seminarians patiently revised, corrected and completed Fr. Farina's original work.... We offer 'this drop of water' ... to 'any thirsty beginner' who may try to learn this beautiful, yet rather difficult language" (Foreward, the Seminary Revision Team).

2007: [IUW] A simplified Ngakarimojong-English, English-Ngakarimojong dictionary, compiled by Peter Logiro and Joyce Ilukor. Kampala: Fountain Publishers, 2007. viii, 99 p.; 21 cm. Original light and dark brown wrappers, lettered in white, yellow and black. Includes Karamojong-English, pp. 1-53, and English-Karamojong, pp. 54-84.

"This dictionary... confines itself to what the compilers call 'the central Ngakarimojong'. Many words have been borrowed from Kiswahili and English, hence enabling the Ngakarimojong to be greatly enriched.... This dictionary deals with words commonly used both in spoken and written forms about events in daily life.... The dictionary is written to meet the needs of primary school teachers.... The compiler of this dictionary benefited from the earlier work by J. L. Loor 1976..." (Introduction).

2008: [IUW] Parlons karimojong: une langue de l'Afrique orientale, by Christian Bader. Paris: Harmattan, c2008. 274 p.: map; 22 cm. Collection "Parlons". Includes bibliographical references (p. [271]-274).

[NGALA (Chadic)] [Mpade] is sometimes known as Makari, after one of the towns [on Lake Chad in Cameroon] where it is spoken. Ngala further west (as described by Barth) once spoke a dialect similar to Makari, but it was moribund by the 1920s, the people having shifted to Kanuri (Wiki).

Ethnologue does not list Ngala, which is now extinct.

[NGAMBAY: see also under LYLÉLÉ]

[NGAMO] Ngamo (also known as Ngamawa, Gamo, Gamawa) is an Afro-Asiatic language spoken in Nigeria (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nbh. Alternate Names: Gamawa, Gamo, Ngamawa.

2004: [IUW] Ngamo English Hausa dictionary, by Isa Adamu Gashinge, Jibir Audu Janga Dole, Umaru Mamu Goge; edited by Russell G. Schuh. Potiskum, Yobe State: Ajami, 2004. x, 136; 21 cm. Yobe Languages Research Project. In Ngamo, English and Hausa.

[NGANDI] Ngandi is a possibly extinct Australian Aboriginal language of the Wilton River, Northern Territory. It is closely related to Nunggubuyu (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nid.

1978: [LILLYbm] Ngandi grammar, texts, and dictionary, by Jeffrey Heath. Canberra: Australian Institute of Aboriginal Studies, 1978. Original printed wrappers. 297 pp. First edition. Includes Ngandi-English and an English-Ngandi supplementary index. Ngandi is an Australian Aborigine language, spoken along the Rose River near the Gulf of Carpentaria on the coast of north central Australia. "There are probably about six persons who speak Ngandi well now." This is the first dictionary of the language.

[NGANGELA LANGUAGES] Used loosely to refer to a subgroup of mutually-intelligible languages including Luchazi, Nyemba, Mbwela of Angola (Ambuella, Shimbwera, not to be confused with Mbwela of Zambia) and Ngonzela (Wiki).

Ethnologue considers this a subgroup of languages as indicated.

[NGARINYIN] The Ngarinyin language (Ungarinjin), or Eastern Worroran, is a moribund Australian Aboriginal language of Western Australia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ung. Alternate Names: Ungarinjin, Ungarinyin.

1974: [LILLYbm] Ngarinjin-English Dictionary. Volume I. A-I., by H.H.C. Coate and A.P. Elkin. Sydney: University of Sydney, 1974. Original black quarter cloth and powder blue wrappers lettered in black. 282 pp. First edition. Oceania Linguistic Monographs No. 16. Ngarinjin is an Australian aboriginal language spoken in the Chernley River region of Northern Kimberley. "Probably three to four hundred Ngarinjin speakers are living the Kimberleys, and it is still cherished by the older ones." This is the first dictionary of the language. (missing volume II).

[NGARLUMA] Ngarluma and Kariyarra are members of a dialect continuum, which is a part of the Ngayarda language group of Western Australia, in the Pama–Nyungan language family. Some sources suggest that an extinct dialect, Jaburara, was a third member of the continuum. However, it is clear that Jaburara had a distinct identity that has been partly obscured by a collapse in the numbers of Jaburara speakers during the late 19th century, and there is some evidence that Jaburara may have instead been a dialect of Martuthunira. While Ngarluma and Kariyarra, as parts of a continuum, are mutually intelligible, they are considered distinct languages by their speakers, reflecting an ethnic division between the Ngarluma and Kariyarra peoples. As such they may be regarded as a single, pluricentric language. Under Carl von Brandenstein's 1967 classification scheme, Ngarluma was classed as a "Coastal Ngayarda" (or Ngayarta) language, but the separation of the group into "Coastal" and "Inland" groups is no longer considered valid (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nrl. Alternate Names: Gnalluma, Gnalouma, Ngallooma, Ngaluma.

1971: [LILLYbm] A Partial Vocabulary of the Ngalooma Aboriginal Tribe, by Harold Aubrey Hall, with concordance and commentary by C.G. von Brandenstein. Canberra: Australian Institute of Aboriginal Studies, 1971. Original stiff brownish-orange and white wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. 80 pp. First edition. Australian Aboriginal Studies No. 46. Includes Ngalooma-English and an English-Ngalooma concordance. "It is the most comprehensive of the 12 historical vocabularies of the Ngarluma language recorded, of which only a few have been published." Ngarluma (the preferred spelling) is spoken by an aboriginal tribe of Western Australia. Hall worked on his vocabulary until his death in 1963, but never published it himself.

[NGARRUGU] Ngarigo (Ngarigu) is a nearly extinct Australian Aboriginal language, the traditional language of the Ngarigo people. Yaithmathang (Jaitmathang), also known as Gundungerre, was a dialect (Wiki).

Ethnologue: xni. Alternate Names: Bemeringal, Bradjerak, Brajerak, Brajerang, Currak-da-bidgee, Garego, Guramal, Gur-mal, Murring, Ngarago, Ngarego, Ngarico, Ngarigo, Ngarroogoo, Ngarrugu, Ngaryo, Nguramal.

1908: [LILLYbm] Vocabulary of the Ngarrugu Tribe N.S.W., by R.H. Mathews. Original printed pale orange stapled wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. 335-342 (offprint from the Journal and Proceedings of the Royal Society of N.S. Wales, Vol. XLII, [Sydney, 1908]). "This vocabulary contains about 260 collected personally among the remnant of the Ngarrugu natives in the Monaro district, New South Wales. Instead of arranging the words alphabetically they are placed together under separate headings [family terms, parts of the body, inanimate nature, mammals, birds, etc.]" The vocabulary is printed in double-columns, pp. 336-340.

[NGAS] Ngas, or Angas, is an Afro-Asiatic language spoken in Plateau State, Nigeria. Dialects are Hill Angas and Plain Angas.[1] Retired General Yakubu Gowon is a prominent Nigerian who is of Ngas extraction.

Ethnologue: anc. Alternate names: Angas, Karang, Kerang.

1915: Angass Manual - Grammar and Vocabulary, by H.D. Foulkes. London: Kegan Paul, 1915. Hardbound without d.j. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 11. Hendrix 205. First dictionary of the language.

[NGAWUN] Ngawun is an extinct Mayi language once spoken on the Cape York Peninsula of Queensland, Australia, by the Ngawun people. The last speaker of the language was Cherry O'Keefe (or Tjapun in the language) who died of pneumonia on 24 August 1977. The etymology of the name Ngawun is unknown (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nxn.

1981: see under MAYABIC LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[NGBAKA] Ngbaka (Ngbàkà) is a Gbaya language spoken by a million people in DRC Congo. It is a regionally important language, used by the Gilima, Ngbundu, Mbandja, and Mono peoples and taught in primary schools; 10% are literate in Ngbaka. "Ngbaka" is a common local ethnic name; the language may be distinguished from other languages called 'Ngbaka' as Ngbaka Gbaya or Ngbaka Minagende. There are no significant dialectal differences within Ngbaka, and it may be mutually intelligible with members of the Manza dialect cluster (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nga. Alternate Names: Ngbaka Gbaya, Ngbaka Minagende.

1900: [LILLYbm] Vocabulaire de la langue Baya (Haute Sanga), by Léopold Landréau. Paris: Augustin Challamel, 1900. Original cream wrappers, lettered in black. 62 pp. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 657.

"When our Congo also is granted a railroad, the country of the Bayas, less distant, will become a center of colonization and trade of great importance with a wonderful future; leaving aside the ivory which now constitutes the sole article of export to Europe, we will be able to exploit coffee, cacao, vanilla, [etc.]... The population of this area is peaceable, having accepted our installation among them with a minimum of difficulties. At the present time, peace and security reign everywhere and our agents need have no fear of the revolts which appear with a menacing regularity among our neighbors in the Independent State. That is no doubt a result of our methods of conquest, which are based on those qualities of gentleness, fairness, and justice which we have always valued over harshness and cruelty" (tr: BM).

1911: [LILLYbm] Vocabulaire Français-Gbéa, précédé d'éléments de grammaire, by J. Calloc'h. Paris: Librairie Paul Geuthner, 1911. Original green wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. 170 pp. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 653. French-Gbaya, pp. [35]-170. Issued as one of a series of vocabularies of languages of the French Congo. Second copy: IUW.

1959: [IUW] Dictionnaire ngbaka-français-néerlandais; précédé d'un aperçu grammatical, par V. Maes. Tervuren, 1959. 199 p. 27 cm. Library binding. Annales du Musée royal du Congo belge. Série in 8°. Sciences de l'homme. Linguistique, v. 25. Hendrix 1214. Includes Ngbaka-French-Dutch dictionary, pp. 41-[200].

"The Ngbaka language is spoken in the Belgian Congo by around 300,000 native inhabitants.... This work is intended above all for a practical purpose, giving a brief description of the language, its most common words, and their use. In order to reach a wider audience, the work is composed in French" (Preface, tr: BM).

1968: [LLLYbm] Vocabulaire Français-Ngbaka, by Védaste Maes. Tervuren, Belgium: Musée Royal de l'Afrique Centrale, 1968. Original cream wrappers, lettered in black. 90 pp. + map. First edition. Koninklijk Museum voor Midden-Afrika, Tervuren, Belgie, Annalen, Reeks in-8°, Menselijke Wetenschappen Nr. 62. The map provided differentiates the areas in which Ngbaka, Gbaya, and Banda are spoken. Second copy: IUW.

"The Ngbaka spoken by the Ubangi is similar to the Manja dialect of the north-east... The Ngbaka dialect of the Central African Republic and the Gbaya dialects of the south are quite different from the Ubangi dialect of Ngbaka" (Note: tr: BM).

[NGBAKA MA'BO] The Mbaka or Bwaka language, Ngbaka Ma'bo (also called Gbaka, Ma'bo, Ngbwaka, Ngbaka Limba) is a major Ubangian language spoken by the M'Baka people of CAR and Congo. It's not clear how distinct the Gilima variety is, or whether it should be considered a separate language.

Ethnologue: nbm. Alternate Names: Bouaka, Bwaka, Gbaka, Ma'bo, Mbacca, Mbaka, Nbwaka, Ngbaka Limba.

1911: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES...POLYGLOT.

1930: [LILLYbm] Die Sprache der Mbaka-Limba, Mbum und Lakka: Wörterlisten und Grammatik, by Günter Tessman [1884- ]. Berlin: Seminars für Orientalische Sprachen, 1930. Original pale green wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. 55-82. First edition. Hendrix 2543. Offprint from the Seminar for Oriental Languages in Berlin: "Sonderabdruck [der] Mitteilungen des Seminars für Orientalische Sprachen zu Berlin, Jahrg. 33, Abt. 3, Afrikanische Studien." With the printed line: "Überreicht vom Verfasser" (Compliments of the Author) on the front wrapper. Includes Mbaka-Limba-German, pp. 56-58, Mbum-German, pp. 64-66, and Lakka [Karang]-German, pp. 74-76.

"I presented a cultural overview of these three tribes from our former colony Cameroon, along with maps showing the areas in which they live, in the Zeitschrift für Ethnologie, 1930. In that essay I also indicated that the material was a by-product of an expedition I undertook to East Cameroon in 1913-14, under the auspices of the Imperial Colonial Office. In the following pages, I publish the linguistic data I collected from the three tribes" (p. 55, tr: BM).

[NGELIMA] Ngelima, or Angba (Leangba), is a Bantu language spoken in the Democratic Republic of Congo. The four dialects (Beo, Buru (Boro), Tungu, Hanga) are quite distinct, and may be separate languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: agh. Alternate Names: Angba, Bangalema, Bangelima, Leangba.

1924: [LILLY] La langue Lebéo: grammaire et vocabulaire / par le R. P. Gérard des Prêtres du Sacré-Cœur, au Vicariat se Stanlet-Falls (Congo-Belge). Bruxelles: Vromant & co. ..., 1924. 223, [1] p.; 26 cm. Original yellow printed wrappers, edges uncut and unopened. Hendrix 206 (listed as Angba, only dictionary listed for this language). Bibliothèque Congo; 13. NUC pre-56, 195:517. BM, 84:25.

[NGITI] The Ngiti /əŋ'gi:ti/, or South Lendu, is an ethnolinguistic group located in the Ituri Province of the Democratic Republic of the Congo. Ngiti speakers call their language Ndruna. In 1991, the Ngiti numbered 100,000 located in the Irumu territory south of Bunia. During the Ituri conflict, the Front for Patriotic Resistance of Ituri was formed as a Ngiti militia group and political party (Wiki).

Ethnologue: niy. Alternate Names: Bindi, Dru, Druna, Kingeti, Kingiti, Lendu-Sud, Ndruna, Ngeti.

1994: [IUW] Ngiti: a Central-Sudanic language of Zaire, by Constance Kutsch Lojenga. Köln: R. Köppe, c1994. xiv, 517 p.: ill., 1 map; 24 cm. Nilo-Saharan, v. 9. Includes bibliographical references (p. 512-517). In English and Ngiti.

[NGIZIM] Ngizim (also known as Ngizmawa, Ngezzim, Ngódşin) is a Chadic language spoken by the Ngizim people in Yobe State, Nigeria (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ngi. Alternate Names: Ngezzim, Ngizmawa.

1981: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary of Ngizim, by Russell G. Schuh. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1981. Original orange and white wrappers, lettered in black and white. Pp. i-vii viii-xxiii xxiv, 1-3 4-230 231-232. First edition. University of California Publications in Linguistics, Vol. 99. Includes Ngizim-English dictionary, pp.

[3]-184, and an English-Ngizim word list, pp. [187]-227. "Ngizim is a language belonging to the Chadic Family of the Afroasiatic Phylum...Ngizim is spoken by perhaps 25,000 people in northeastern Nigeria...Prior to 1970, the only published materials on Ngizim were word lists in Koelle (1854) and Meek (1931)" (Preface). This is the first dictionary of the language.

[NGOM] [Wiki redirects Ngom to Kele, and treats Ngom as a dialect of that language]: Ngom (Angom, Ungomo) is used with only minor differences by the Kola/Koya Pygmies. It is spoken on both sides of the border with Congo (Wiki). Ethnologue treats Ngom as a separate language, and lists Bakoya (Koya) as a dialect of Ngom.

Ethnologue: nra. Alternate Names: Angom, Bangom, Bangomo, Ngomo, Ongom, Ungom, Ungomo.

2011: [IUW] Introduction à la langue et la culture des chasseurs-cueilleurs Bakoya (Région de Mékambo, Gabon): avec un petit dictionnaire, by Pither Medjo Mvé. Köln: Rüdiger Köppe Verlag, [2011] ©2011. xi, 208 pages: illustrations (chiefly color), maps (chiefly color); 24 cm. Grammatische Analysen afrikanischer Sprachen; Bd. 40. Includes bibliographical references (pages 193-201).

[NGOMBE] Ngombe, or Lingombe, is a Bantu language spoken by about 150,000 people in the Democratic Republic of the Congo. In general, native speakers live on either side of the Congo river, and its many tributaries; more specifically, Équateur Province, Mongala District and in areas neighboring it (Sud Ubangi and Équateur districts). Ngombe is written in Latin script. Ngombe includes several dialects in addition to Ngombe proper (Ŋgɔmbɛ). These are Wiindza-Baali, Doko (Dɔkɔ), and Binja (also rendered Binza, Libindja, or Libinja). The latter is not the same as the Binja/Binza language. Binja dialect is primarily spoken in Orientale Province and Aketi Territory, and shares about three-quarters of its linguistic characteristics with standard Ngombe. Maho (2009) lists Doko as a distinct language in a separate group (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nmj. Alternate Names: Bagando-Ngombe, Bangando-Ngombe, Ngombe-Kaka.

1912: [LILLY] Vocabulaire français-mabinza et mabinza-français, by Hedborg. Bruxelles, Impr. Veuve Monnom, 1912. 24 p. 18 cm. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Includes French-Mabinza [Binza: dialect of Ngombe], pp. [3]-12, and Mabinza-French, pp. [13]-21, with numbers, pp. [23]-24. Second copy: IUW.

1958: [LILLYbm] Ngombe-Nederlands-Frans woordenboek. Dictionnaire ngombe-neerlandais-francais, by N. Rood. Tervuren, Belgium: [Koninklijk Museum van Belgisch-Congo], 1958. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. I-VII VIII-L, 1 2-414. First edition. Series: Annalen van het Koninklijk Museum van Belgisch-Congo. Reeks in- 8<sup>o</sup>: Wetenschappen van mens. Linguistiek, deel 21. Not in Hendrix. Includes Ngombe-Dutch-French, pp. [1]-414. This appears to be the first dictionary of this language.

"Lingombe is the language spoken by the Ngombe, the most northern group of Bantus in the Belgian Congo, which in places extend beyond the linguistic area of the race.... Lingenja, [Binja?]the dialect of the Mowea (Muera in the administrative terminology) forms the basis of the present work. Words from many other dialects have been incorporated."

[NGONGO] A Bantu language of the Democratic Republic of the Congo.

Ethnologue: noq.

2015: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[NGOSHIE] Ngoshie is a Southern Bantoid language of Cameroon (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nsh. Alternate Names: Ngishe, Oshie.

1902: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[NGUL] Ngul is a Bantu language spoken in Kwilu District, Democratic Republic of the Congo.

Ethnologue: nlo. Alternate Names: Ingul, Ngoli, Nguli, Ngulu.

2015: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[NGWO] The Ngwo speak a Southern Bantoid language of Cameroon. The Konda and Basa varieties are perhaps divergent enough to be considered distinct languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ngn. Alternate Names: Engwo, Ngwaw.

2011: [IUW] Engwo lexicon; Engwo-English, English-Engwo, compiled by Julius A. Eyoh. First edition (provisional). [Cameroon]; [Ngwo Language and Cultural Committee (NLACCO)]; [Place of publication not identified]; Kay Williamson Educational Foundation (KWEF), 2011. 444 pages; illustrations; 20 cm. Language monographs. Local series; 3. Includes bibliographical references (pages 41-46). Engwo-English, pp. [49]-290, English-Engwo, pp. [293]-420, with appendices, pp. [423]-444.

"The name of the geographical area is called Ngwo but the language name is Engwo" (p. 9). "This provisional Engwo-English and English-Engwo Lexicon is compiled primarily for Engwo speakers but is also of great help to non-speakers who want to learn the language. The lexicon comprises approximately 6200 entries" (p. 15).

[NHENGATU] The Nheengatu language (Tupi: [nɛʔɛŋa'tu]), often spelled Nheengatu, is an Amerindian language of the Tupi–Guarani family. It is also known by the Portuguese names língua geral da Amazônia and língua geral amazônica, both meaning "Amazonian general language", or even by the Latin lingua brasílica (Brazilian language). Nheengatu originated in northern Brazil in the 17th century as a lingua franca. Now known as nheengatu (also nhengatu, nyengatú, língua geral, geral, yeral), it is still spoken along the Rio Negro in northern Brazil (as well as in neighboring Colombia and Venezuela) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: yrl. Alternate Names: Coastal Tupian, Geral, Língua Geral, Modern Tupí, Ñeengatú, Nheengatu, Nyengato, Nyengatú, Waengatu, Yeral.

1889: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF SOUTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

1936: [LILLY] Vocabulário nheengatú: (vernaculizado pelo português falado em São Paulo) (lingua tupi-guarani). Publicação posthuma dirigida por Affonso de Freitas Junior. S. Paulo: Companhia editora nacional, 1936. 206 p., [1] leaf of plates: ill.; 19 cm. Bound in quarter brown leather and brown marbled boards, red and white decorated endpapers. Biblioteca pedagógica brasileira. Série 5a., Brasileira; vol. 75. "Affonso A. de Freitas: traços biográficos": p. [17]-22. Errata slip tipped in at back.

[NIAS] The Nias language is an Austronesian language spoken on Nias Island and the Batu Islands off the west coast of Sumatra in Indonesia. It is known as Li Niha by its native speakers. It belongs to the Northwest Sumatran subgroup which also includes Mentawai and the Batak languages. It had about 770,000 speakers in 2000.[3] There are three main dialects: northern, central and southern (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nia. Alternate Names: Batu, Nias Selatan.

1887: [IUW] Niasch-Maleisch-Nederlandsch woordenboek, door J.W. Thomas, ... en E.A. Taylor Weber. ... Batavia, Landsdrukkerij, 1887. xv, 186 p. 28 cm.

1905: [LILLYbm] Niassisch-deutsches Wörterbuch. Unter Mitwirkung H. Lagemann (Lahagoe, Nias) und W. Frickenschmidt (Poeloe Tello) für den südlichen Dialekt. Mit Anhang: Zur Vergleichung des Niassischen mit anderen malaio-polynesischen Sprachen, by H[einrich] Sundermann [1849-1919]. Moers: Druck von J.W. Spaarmann, 1905. Original green wrappers (unprinted spine partially perished), lettered in black. Pp. [2] 1 2-274 275-276. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes Nias [Manda]-German, pp. 15-227. A German-Nias dictionary was published by Sundermann in 1892. Sundermann was a missionary to Lolowoea, Nias. This copy with the ink stamp of the Nederl. Bijbelgenootschap Bibliothek.

[NICOBARESE, CAR] Car is the most widely spoken of the Nicobarese languages spoken in the Nicobar Islands of India. Although related distantly to Vietnamese and Khmer, it is typologically much more akin to nearby Austronesian languages such as Nias and Acehnese, with which it forms a linguistic area (Wiki).

Ethnologue: caq. Alternate Names: Car, Pu.

1925: [LILLYbm] Dictionary of the Car-Nicobarese Language, by G[eorge]Whitehead. Rangoon: American Baptist Mission Press, 1925. Rebound[?] in maroon cloth over boards, lettered in gold. 326 pp. First edition. Stamped "Hove Public Library Withdrawn" on title page. Car-Nicobarese-English only. Not in Zaunmüller. Appears to be the first dictionary of the language.

"The Nicobarese speak one language, whose affinities are with the Indo-Chinese languages... The language is spoken by some 8,000 to 10,000 people [1925], in six dialects, which have now become so differentiated in details as to be mutually unintelligible, and to practically be ... six different languages." The natives of the various islands often communicate by English or Hindustani. Car-Nicobarese is the major dialect, spoken by 5200 people according to the census of 1911.

[NICOBARESE, CENTRAL] Central Nicobarese is a group of Nicobarese languages spoken by 10,000 people (as of the 2001 census) on the Nicobar Islands. The varieties spoken on the various islands apart from Trinket are not mutually intelligible, and are considered separate languages:

Nancowry (Nankwari)

Camorta (Kamorta)

Katchal (Tehnu) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ncb. Alternate Names: Muöt, Nicobar. "Central Nicobar once regarded as one language but no longer generally accepted. Dialects [Nancowry, Camorta, Katchal, Trinket] now regarded as mutually unintelligible with the exception of Trinket and Katchal. (Parkin 1991)."

1884: [LILLYbm] A Dictionary of the Nancowry Dialect of the Nicobarese Language; in two parts: Nicobarese-English and English-Nicobarese, by F[rederik] A[dolph] deRoepstorff, edited by Mrs. DeRoepstorff. Calcutta: Printed at the Home Department Press, 1884. Contemporary [original?] quarter-linen utilizing original green wrappers pasted to boards, lettered in black, with a small paper label on spine, numbered in ink [library number]. Pp. [2] I II-XXV XXVI, I 2-279 280. First edition. Zaubmüller, col. 286. Ex-library copy with the bookplate of the Canterbury Public Library in Christchurch and an ink stamp of the Superintendent's Office in Port Blair. Includes Nicobarese-English, pp. [1]-118, and English-Nicobarese, pp. [119]-210.

"It was fitting that the first Nicobarese dictionary, and the work of pioneering the way for the civilization, and, may be, the evangelization of the Southern Nicobar Group, should have been accomplished by a Dane. For a hundred years the Danish flag waved over these islands, and for nineteen years of that long period Danish Moravian missionaries (Schleswigers) maintained a brave but unequal conflict with the climate twenty-four of them yielding up their lives in the service of their Divine Master.... Laid low in the heyday of life by the hand of a sepoy assassin in the mid career of enthusiastic professional and scientific labours, a sacrifice to the conscientious discharge of judicial duty, [the author of this dictionary] has mingled his dust with that of his countrymen in this far off land. In the little Camorta graveyard...he is laid to rest, and his widow is fain to hope that the following work may prove a lasting memorial of him.... It remains only to say that this work is published at the expense of the Government of India, which has ever been the liberal patron of studies which promises to bear fruit to the advantage of the many and diverse races which live beneath its rule" (Preface). First dictionary of the language. A dictionary of the central Nicobarese language was published by Edward Man in London in 1889.

1888: [LILLY] A Nicobarese vocabulary: Part I. English-Nicobarese, by Edward Horace Man. London, W.H. Allen & Co., 1888. and A dictionary of the central Nicobarese language (English-Nicobarese and Nicobarese-English), with appendices containing a comparison of synonymous words in the remaining Nicobarese forms and other matters, preceded by notes on the grammar of the central form, by Edward Horace Man [1846-1929]. London: W.H. Allen, 1889. Two volumes, in original matching publisher's maroon cloth, lettered in gold as Part I and Part II. Cf. Zaubmüller 286. In spite of the title of the second volume, it contains only the grammar and the Nicobarese-English portion. The English-Nicobarese vocabulary was issued separately with the 1888 title page. The preliminary material for the vocabulary explains how this came about. Only the two volumes together give the complete dictionary.

[NICOLA] Nicola is an extinct Athabaskan language formerly spoken in the Similkameen and Nicola Countries of British Columbia by the group known to linguists and ethnographers as the Nicola people, although that name in modern usage refers to an alliance of Interior Salishan bands living in the same area. Almost nothing is known of the language. The available material published by Franz Boas required only three pages. What the Nicola called themselves and their language is unknown. The Salishan-speaking Thompson language Indians who absorbed them (today's Nicola people, in part) refer to them as the [stuwix] "the strangers". So little is known of the language that beyond the fact that it is Athabascan it cannot be classified. Some linguists have suggested that it is merely a displaced dialect of Chilcotin, but the evidence is too skimpy to allow a decision (Wiki).

Ethnologue does not list this extinct language.

1924: see under TSETSAUT.

[NIGERIAN ENGLISH] Nigerian English, also known as Nigerian Standard English, is a dialect of English spoken in Nigeria. It is based on British English, but in recent years, because of influence from the United States of America, some words of American English origin have made it into Nigerian English. Additionally, some new words and collocations have emerged from the language, which come from the need to express concepts specific to the culture of the nation (e.g. senior wife). Nigerian Pidgin, a pidgin derived from English, is mostly used in informal conversations, but the Nigerian Standard English is used in politics, formal education, the media, and other official uses (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists Nigerian Pidgin as a language, but has no separate listing for Nigerian Standard English.

1981: [LILLYbm] Nigerian Slangs: A Dictionary of slangs and unconventional English used in Nigeria, by C.N.C. Asomugha. Onitsha, Nigeria: Abic Publishers, 1981. Original red and white wrappers, lettered and decorated in black and white. 82 pp. Second edition. First published in 1978 under the title A Pocket Dictionary of Selected Nigerian Student Slangs.

[NISENAN] Nisenan (or alternatively, Southern Maidu, Neeshenam, Nishinam, Pujuni, or Wapumni) is a nearly extinct Maidu language spoken by the Nisenan (or Southern Maidu, etc. as above) people of central California in the foothills of the Sierras, in the whole of the American, Bear and Yuba river drainages. Ethnologue states that there is only one speaker left. However, it is believed that there are a few other speakers left, although the number is not known. Most speakers also speak one or more of the different dialects. There has recently been a small effort at language revival. Most notably the release of the "Nisenan Workbook" (three volumes so far) put out by Alan Wallace, which can be found at the California State Indian Museum in Sacramento and the Maidu Interpretive Center in Roseville. As the Nisenan (like many of the Natives of central California) were not a single large tribe but a collection of independent "tribelets" (smaller tribes, as compared to Native groups in the east) which are grouped together primarily on linguistic similarity, there were many dialects to varying degrees of variation. This has led to some degree of inconsistency in the available linguistic data, primarily in regard to the phonemes (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nsz. Alternate Names: Neeshenam, Nishinam, Pujuni, Southern Maidu, Wapumni.

1846: see 10 under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

1926: [IUW] The valley Nisenan, by A.L. Kroeber. Berkeley, Calif.; University of California Press, 1929. [253]-290 p.; 23 cm. University of California publications. American archaeology and ethnology v. 24, no. 4 "The Nisenan are the southern Maidu ... Strictly, Nisenan is not a specific tribal or group name."-- p. [253]-254. Appendix: Language [including vocabulary] p. 280-290. Includes bibliographical references.

1966: [LILLYbm] Nisenan Texts and Dictionary, by Hans Jørgen Uldall & William Shipley. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1966. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. 282 pp. First edition. University of California Publications in Linguistics, Volume 46. This copy with the ink ownership stamp of David W. Peri, author of studies on the Makahmo Pomo Indians of Sonoma County. Includes Nisenan-English, pp. 191-245, and English-Nisenan, pp. 247-282.

"Except for the material in the present work, very little linguistic data have been collected on any of the Nisenan dialects... Uldall had begun a dictionary, Nisenan-English, in the form of a hand-written slip file. These slips have also been reorthographed and checked against the texts, a procedure which has more than doubled the size of the original file. The present two-way dictionary has been made from this augmented slip file."

[NIUE] Niuean /nju:'eɪən/ (Niuean: ko e vagahau Niuē) is a Polynesian language, belonging to the Malayo-Polynesian subgroup of the Austronesian languages. It is most closely related to Tongan and slightly more distantly to other Polynesian languages such as Māori, Sāmoan, and Hawaiian. Together, Tongan and Niuean form the Tongic subgroup of the Polynesian languages. Niuean also has a number of influences from Samoan and Eastern Polynesian languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: niu. Alternate Names: Niuean, "Niuefekai" (pej.).

1907: [LILLYbm] Vocabulary and grammar of the Niue dialect of the Polynesian language Part I. A grammar of Niue. Part II. Niue-English. Part III. English-Niue, by Edward Tregear [1846-1931] & S[tephenson] Percy Smith [1840-1922]. Wellington: John Mackay, Government Printer, 1907. Original tan wrappers with later tan paper spine, lettered in black. Pp. [4] 1 2-179 180. First edition. 1,000 copies. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes Niue-English, pp. [13]-118, and English-Niue, pp. [119]-179. With the ink stamp of the New Zealand government on the verso of the second unnumbered leaf. This is the first dictionary of the language.

"[The] Niue-English vocabulary [is] based on one drawn up by the Rev. F. E. Lawes, to which additions have been made by S. Percy Smith, who resided on the island for four months in 1902, and by Edgar Tregear, who searched through the Scriptures, and collected most of the Niue words to be found therein" (Preface).

1970: [LILLYbm] Niue Dictionary, by J. M. McEwen. Wellington, N.Z.: Department of Maori and Island Affairs, 1970. Original green cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. i-vii viii-xxiv xxv-xxvi, 1 2-386 387-388 [2]. First edition. Includes Niue-English, pp. [1]-886. The only prior dictionary was published in Wellington in 1907 by Tregear and Smith, "but it was both inaccurate and inadequate" (Introduction).

1997: [LILLYbm] Tohi Vagahau Nieu. Nieu Language Dictionary. Niuean-English with English-Niuean Finderlist, ed. by Wolfgang B. Sperlich. [Honolulu]: Government of Niue & University of Hawaii, 1997. Original blue cloth over boards, spine lettered in gold; dust jacket blue and yellow, lettered in yellow and black. Pp. i-v vi-viii, 1 2-595 596-600. First edition. Includes Niue-English, pp. [41]-358, and English-Niue, pp. [359]-[596]. Most complete dictionary of the language of its time.

"Tohi Vagahau Niue, a significant new dictionary detailing the Polynesian language of Niue, will benefit Niuean studies for years to come.... With some 10,000 Niuean word entries, the present dictionary s a significant expansion on an earlier work by J. M.

McEwen (1970), which featured some 4,000 Niuean entries. In addition, the English-Niuean finderlist, with some 4,000 English headwords, serves as an index to the riches of the Niuean language. ... With this dictionary Niuean lexicography comes of age and thus joins the other great Polynesian dictionaries" (from front inner flap). "It is acknowledged that McEwen's dictionary served as the basis of the present one. While originally envisaged as a revision of McEwen, the present dictionary has grown far beyond that, more than doubling the number of entries, as well as providing an exhaustive English-Niuean finderlist" p. 30).

[NIVACLÉ] Nivaclé is a Matacoan language spoken in Paraguay and by a couple hundred in Argentina. It is also known as Chulupí and Ashluslay, and in older sources has been called Ashuslé, Suhin, Sujín, Chunupí, Churupí, Choropí, and other variant spellings of these names. Nivaclé speakers are found in the Chaco, in Paraguay in Presidente Hayes Department, and Boquerón Department, and in Argentina in Salta Province (Wiki).

Ethnologue: cag. Alternate Names: Ashlushlay, Axluslay, Axluxlay, "Chulupe" (pej.), "Chulupí" (pej.), "Chulupie" (pej.), "Churupí" (pej.), Nivaklé.

1980: [LILLY] Diccionario nivaclé-castellano, by José Seelwische. Mariscal Estigarribia, Chaco [Paraguay: s.n.], 1980. Original range and white decorated wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. First dictionary of the language.

[NJEBI] Nzebi (Njabi) is a Bantu language spoken in Gabon and the Republic of Congo (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nzb. Alternate Names: Bandzabi, Injebi, Inzebi, Ndjabi, Ndjevi, Njabi, Nzebi, Yinjebi, Yinzebi.

1989: [IUW] Petit dictionnaire bantou du Gabon: français/ndjabi, ndjabi/français, by Jean-Marc Muron. Paris: Editions L'Harmattan, 1989. 207 p.: port.; 24 cm. Author's portrait on back cover.

[NKANGALA] One of the mutually-intelligible languages of Angola in the subgroup Ngangela.

Ethnologue: nkn. Alternate Names: Cangala, Ngangala.

1902: [LILLY] Mo vengia kulilongença iputu: Pequeño methodo de aprender portuguez para o oso dos povos Ganguellas e Amboellas, pelo Padre Ernesto Lecomte. Caconda: Typographia da Missão, 1902. [34 pp. unnumbered]. 21.5 cm. Cf. Hendrix 992 (under Luimbi, listing a dictionary of 1939 by the same author and J. Sutter). Includes 47 numbered sections of Portuguese-Nkangala/Ndonga words and phrases, intended to aid the Ganguella and Amboelle tribes learn Portuguese. Consists solely of vocabulary, without any prefatory or explanatory material. Appears to be the earliest extensive vocabulary of one of the Ngangela subgroup of languages.

[NKEM-NKUM] Isibiri [former designation in Ethnologue] is an Ekoid language of Nigeria. There are two somewhat distinct dialects, Nkem and Nkum (Wiki).

Ethnologue: isi. Dialects; Nkem (Adagom, Ishibori, Nkim, Ogboja), Nkum (Alladim, Ibil, Igordori, Ikangdangha, Ishiaya, Ishindede, Nkum-Iborr).

1965: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[NOMLAKI] Nomlaki (Noamlakee), or Wintun, is a moribund Wintuan language of Northern California. It was not extensively documented, however, some recordings exist of speaker Andrew Freeman and Sylvester Simmons. There is at least one partial speaker left per Golla (2011) (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nol. Alternate Names: Central Wintun, Wintu, Wintun.

1907-1930: see Vol. 14 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[NOOKSACK] The Nooksack language (Lhéchalosem) is a Coast Salish language spoken by the Nooksack people of northwestern Washington State in the United States, centered in Whatcom County. The Nooksack language belongs to the Coast Salishan family of languages, and has one fluent speaker as of 2010. Nooksack is most closely related to Squamish, Sháshíshálhem (Sechelt) and Halkomelem, which are all spoken in nearby parts of British Columbia, Canada. In the 1970s, the Salishan linguist Brent Galloway worked closely with the last remaining native speaker, Sindick Jimmy, who died in 1988. He was compiling a dictionary of the language, and his book, Nooksack place names: geography, culture, and language, appeared in 2011. The Nooksack tribe has offered classes in the language. As of 2010, one fluent speaker remained, a Nooksack tribal member who is part of the Lhéchalosem Teacher Training Language Immersion Project (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nok. Alternate Names: Lhéchelesem, Nootsack.

1907-1930: see Vol. 9 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[NORTHERN EUROPEAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT]

2008: [IUW] Northern Europe: 10 essential languages for city breaks. Footscray, Vic.; London: Lonely Planet, 2008. 127 p.: ill., maps; 15 cm. Series; Small talk (Lonely Planet Publications (Firm)) Includes index. English, Danish, Estonian, Faroese, Finnish, Greenlandic, Icelandic, Latvian, Lithuanian, Norwegian, Swedish.

[NSAMBAAN] Nsambaan is a Bantu language spoken in the vicinity of Kikwit Town, District, Democratic Republic of the Congo. It is said to be closely related to both Ngong [Ngongo] and Nsong [Songo]. A project is currently under way with DOBES (Documentation of Endangered Languages) to provide systematic documentation of all three languages. Nsambaan is described as "nearly totally undocumented". Guthrie lists Tsambaan as one of six varieties of Yansi.

Ethnologue does not list Nsambaan.

2015: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[NSENGA] Nsenga, also known as Senga, is a Bantu language of Zambia and Mozambique, occupying an area on the plateau that forms the watershed between the Zambezi and Luangwa river systems. The urban form of Nyanja spoken in the Zambian capital Lusaka has many features of Nsenga.

Ethnologue: nse. Alternate Names: Chinsenga, Cinsenga, Senga.

1905: [LILLYbm] Senga handbook: a short introduction to the Senga dialect as spoken on the lower Luangwa North-Eastern Rhodesia, A[rthur] C[ornwallis] Madan [ b. 1846]. Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1905. Original dark blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. 1-3 4-100. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 1226. Includes English-Nsenga, pp. [59]-100, and extensive alphabetically-arranged lists of nouns, verbs, etc. Nsenga-English. First published vocabulary of this language. This copy with the ownership signature in pencil of F. Madan and his ink Oxford B.N.C. stamp. This may be the "F.M." at Oxford who added a PS to the Preface to Madan's Wisa Handbook of 1906, and may be a relation. There is also the later ink ownership stamp of Harry Wells Langworthy, author of Zambia before 1890: aspects of pre-colonial history (Longman, 1972) and Africa for the African: the life of Joseph Booth (Christian Literature Association in Malawi, 1996).

"By Senga is here meant the particular selection of Bantu forms and words used by the Senga people in British territory on the Lower Luangwa.... Hitherto Senga appears to have been entirely unwritten, and it is not even mentioned by Torrend...or by Last. A short vocabulary of Northern Senga by Sir H. H. Johnston agrees closely with the present one. The Sengas are a weak tribe (although they may number some 50,000 altogether) raided hitherto by stronger neighbours, Womba, Angoni, and Portuguese, without enterprise or important arts, and their dialect does not appear likely to spread or even to hold its own as a separate one.... These contents were compiled mainly from the evidence of an intelligent young Senga, who has travelled but little, and does not know familiarly any dialect but that of his home on the Luangwa....The Senga call themselves Angsenga, their country as a whole Unsenga, and their language Chinsenga....The separate list of Nouns, Verbs, &c., will supply in some degree the place of a Senga-English supplement to the English-Senga Vocabulary at the end" (Preface).

[NTOMBA] Ntomba and Lia (Bolia) are closely related Bantu languages of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, close enough to be considered dialects of a single Lia-Ntomba language. The related Mongo language also has varieties called Ntomba or Ntumba (Wiki)] Ethnologue: nto. Alternate Names: Lontomba, Luntumba, Ntomba-Bolia, Ntumba.

1928: [LILLYbm] Grammaire synthétique du Lontomba, suivi d'un vocabulaire, by L[ouis] [Octave] Gilliard. Brussels: Éditions de l'Essorial, 1928. Original gray wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. 304 pp. First edition. Bibliothèque Congo, No. 20. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 1228. This copy with ink stamp indicating it was a duplicate from the Library of Congress. French-Ntomba vocabulary, pp. 55-136; Ntomba-French vocabulary, pp. 137-304. This is the first dictionary of the language.

"The Ntomba are a rather important tribe stretching from the equator along Lake Ntumba, to Lake Leopold II [in present-day Zaire]. .. The language of the Ntomba tribe is called Lontomba."

1955: [IUW] La langue ntomba telle qu'elle est parlée au Lac Tumba et dans la région avoisinante (Afrique centrale), by M. Mamet. [Anvers, De Sikkel] 1955. 377 p. 27 cm. Hendrix 1230.

[NUBIAN LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT] The Nubian languages (Arabic: لغات نوبية) are the indigenous languages of Nubia, along the Nile in southern Egypt and northern Sudan. In the 1973 Arab–Israeli War Egypt employed Nubian-speaking Nubian people as codetalkers. Bechhaus-Gerst (1996) finds the following varieties:

Nobiin, the largest Nubian language. Previously known by the geographic terms Mahas and Fadicca/Fiadicca. Midob (Meidob) in and around the Malha volcanic crater in North Darfur. Kenzi and Dongolawi. No longer considered a single language. May be closest to Birgid. Birgid. Spoken north of Nyala around Menawashei until the 1970s. The last surviving aged speakers were interviewed by Thelwall at this time. Some equally aged speakers on Gezira Aba just north of Kosti on the Nile south of Khartoum were interviewed by Thelwall in 1980. Hill Nubian – a group of closely related dialects spoken in various villages in the northern Nuba Mountains – in particular Dilling, Debri, and Kadaru. An additional language, Haraza, is known only from a few dozen words recalled by village elders in 1923 (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists 12 separate languages under Nubian.

1819: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1829: [LILLY] Reisen in Nubien, Kordofan, und dem Peträischen Arabien, vorzüglich in geographisch-statistischer Hinsicht, von Dr. Eduard Rüppell. Mit acht Kupfern und vier Karten. Frankfurt am Main, F. Wilmans, 1829. xxvi, 388, [2] p., maps(fold.), plates (fold.) 22 cm. In contemporary quarter green morocco and boards. "Vokabularien von sieben Nuba-Sprachen, die in Kordofan und am Bahher Abbiad im Gebrauch sind," vocabulary of seven Nubian languages spoken in Kurdufan and on the Bahher-Abbiad [the White Nile], German-Dafur [unclear: there are at least eleven separate languages spoken in Dafur]-Schabun [unidentified]-Ferlit [unidentified]-Dgnke [unidentified]-Takele [Tegali]-Schilluk [Shilluk]-Koldagi [Kadaru], pp. 370-373. "Druckfehler," [1] p. at end. This copy with the ownership signature in ink of the Austrian general Furst Dietrichstein (1813-1871), who served for two years as Foreign Minister of Austria.

1879: [LILLYbm] Die Nuba-Sprache, by Leo Reinisch. 2 vols. Vienna: Wilhelm Braumüller, 1879. Vol. I: "Erster Theil. Grammatik und Texte." Vol. II: "Zweiter Theil. Nubisch-Deutsches und Deutsch-Nubisches Wörterbuch." Original tan wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Vol. I: pp. I-V VI-VII VIII-X, I 2-308; Vol. II; pp. [4], I-3 4-240. First edition. Sprachen von Nord-Ost-Afrika, Band 2-3. Includes Vol. II: Nubian-German, pp. [1]-187, and German-Nubian, pp. [191]-238. Zaunmüller, col. 289, incorrectly listing series title and dates for first three volumes, which includes a first volume on the Barea language. Hendrix 1239. This is the first dictionary of the general language.

"It is a strange situation that while a significant number of languages of the tribes of Africa have been the subject of published studies, Nubian, the tribal language of the oldest empire of Napata, from which at present numerous hieroglyphics and demotic memorial inscriptions are still preserved, has been until now largely ignored... The contents of the following pages are primarily the result of my most recent expedition to East Africa, in the years 1875/76" ("Vorwort," Vol. I, tr: BM).

Reprinted 1972: see under NARA.

1911: [LILLY] Die sprachliche Stellung des Nuba, by Leon Reinisch. Wien: In Kommission bei A. Hölder, 1911. vi, 177 p.; 21 cm. Original tan wrappers, lettered in black.Schriften (Akademie der Wissenschaften in Wien. Kommission zur Erforschung von Illiteraten Sprachen Aussereuropäischer Völker); Bd. 3. Includes a comparative vocabulary of Nubian and Chamito-Semitic languages (including, as abbreviated, A., Agm., Amh., Ar., Barea, Bed., Bil., Cha., De., G., Ga., Gur, Haus., Kab., Kabyl., Kaf., Kopt.,Ku., Masch., Mehr., Qu., Sa., Siwa, So.,Soq., Ti., and Ty.): Nubian-German-Chamito-Semitic languages, pp. 91-121; and a comparative vocabulary of Nubian and Nilotic languages: Nubian-German-Dinka-Nilotic languages, pp. 161-168. The latter vocabulary includes equivalents from Bari, Bagirmi, Bongo, Dinka, Dyur, Golo, Kundschara, Kredschesch, Latuka, Masai, Nuer, Schaibun, Schilluk, Schulli, and Tegele. From the library of the noted linguist Johannes Rahder, with his ownership stamp on the front wrapper. Second copy: IUW, in library binding.

1923: [LILLYbm] An English-Nubian Comparative Dictionary, by G.W. Murray. London: Oxford University Press, 1923. Original brown half-cloth and tan paper over boards, with a tan paper label on the spine, lettered in brown. 195 pp. First edition. Harvard African Studies, Volume IV. Nubian-English only. Zauhmüller, col. 289. Hendrix 1238.

"Nubian is a language spoken on the Nile, between the first and fourth cataracts, by a people calling themselves the Nubi, although... to the world in general they are better known as the Barbara (sing. Berberi)." "Except for Griffith's work on the texts of the Christian period, this is the first English-Nubian vocabulary to appear in print [preceded by four or five German-language vocabularies]."

[NUER] The Nuer language (Naath) is a Nilo-Saharan language of the Western Nilotic group. It is spoken by the Nuer people of South Sudan and in western Ethiopia (region of Gambela). Nuer is one of eastern and central Africa's most widely spoken languages, along with the Dinka language. The language is very similar to the languages of Jieng and Chollo. Nuer language has a Latin-based alphabet. There are also several dialects of Nuer, although all have one written standard. For example, final /k/ is pronounced in the Jikany dialect, but is dropped in other dialects despite being indicated in Nuer orthography (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nus. Alternate Names: Naadh, Naath.

1923: [LILLYbm] A Nuer-English Vocabulary, compiled by C. H. Stigand. London: Cambridge University Press, 1923. Original cloth boards, without d.j. First edition. Zauhmüller, col. 290; Murphy 18: 176; Hendrix 1248. Earliest Nuer-English vocabulary.

1929: [LILLYbm] Nuer-English Dictionary, by Ray Huffman. Berlin: Dietrich Reimer (Ernst Vohsen), 1929. Original limp maroon cloth, lettered in black. Pp. 1-5 6-63 64. First edition. Zauhmüller, col. 290. Hendrix 1245. This copy with the bookplate of Peter Antony Lanyon-Orgill. Lanyon-Orgill was for some years the editor of the Journal of Austronesian Studies, and published dictionaries of such languages as Raluana, Eddystone Island, and Mailu. Includes Nuer-English, pp. [5]-53. First true dictionary of Nuer. Huffman published an English-Nuer dictionary in 1931.

"The words tabulated here have been collected from every source to which I have had access during the four and one-half years I have spent in Nuerland.... The Nuer tribe is large and various estimates are made as to their number. At the Rejaf Language Conference in 1928, their number was given as 430,000. They occupy a large area in the southern part of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, along the Sobat river in the Nasser and Abwong districts and on the Zeraf island and along the Nile river. Little has been published about this pagan tribe by those who have lived among them for any time....There are several dialects but the differences are slight. This language is rich in folklore. The words given here are but a small portion of what one may hope to find" (Foreword).

[NUGUNU] Nukunu (or Nugunu; many other names: see below) is a moribund Australian Aboriginal language spoken by Nukunu people on Yorke Peninsula, South Australia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nnv. Alternate Names: Doora, Njuguna, Nokunna, Noocoona, Nookoona, Nuguna, Nukana, Nukuna, Nukunnu, Nukunu, Pukunna, Tjura, Tyura, Wallaroo, Warra, Wongaidya.

1917: see under AUSTRALIAN ABORIGINAL LANGUAGES...

POLYGLOT.

1992: [LILLY] A Nukunu dictionary, by Luise Hercus. Canberra: L.A. Hercus, 1992. 51 p.: ill.; 30 cm. Available from Australian Institute of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Studies, Acton ACT 2601; and from Aboriginal Heritage Unit, Dept. of Environment & Planning, PO Box 667, Adelaide SA 5001. Includes bibliographical references (p. 50-51). In original red illustrated wrappers, miscased, spine title on lower wrapper. First dictionary of this language.

[NUKUORO] The Nukuoro language is a Polynesian language, spoken by about 860 people on the Nukuoro atoll and on Pohnpei in Micronesia.... In 1965 there were approximately 400 speakers. 260 of these speakers resided on the atoll, 125 lived on Ponape, the District Center, and a few others were spread out on the other islands in the District (Carroll 1965). The current population is estimated to be at about 1000 speakers. The Nukuoro people are very dependent on the sea. They have a strong respect for the marine culture, and are very well known for their skillfully created wooden sculptures. These often are carved to represent marine animals (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nkr. Alternate Names: Nuguor, Nukoro.

1923: [LILLYbm] Nukuoro Lexicon, by Vern Carroll & Tobias Soulik. Honolulu: The University Press of Hawaii, 1973. Original white wrappers, lettered and illustrated in violet. Pp. [2] i-viii ix-xxvi, 1-2 3-833 834-836. First edition. Series: PALI Language Texts: Polynesia. Includes Nukuoro-English, pp. 3-351, English-Nukuoro, pp. 355-481, and a root-list, Nukuoro-English, pp. 485-796, with a bibliography of previous work on the language, pp. 832-833. This is the first true dictionary of the language. A Nukuoro vocabulary was published in 1898 in the Journal of the Polynesian Society 7, by F. W. Christian. Samuel H. Elbert published a word list of Kapingamarangi and Nukuoro in 1946 with the U.S. Navy Department in mimeograph.

"The Nukuoro Lexicon is a virtually complete presentation...of a hitherto unstudied Polynesian Outlier language. Designed principally for linguists, the volume contains about 15,000 entries" (from the rear cover).

[NUNGGUBUYU] Nunggubuyu, Wubuy or Yingkwira is an Australian Aboriginal language, the traditional language of the Nunggubuyu people. It is the primary language of the community of Numbulwar in the Northern Territory (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nuy. Alternate Names: Nunggubuju, Wubuy, Yingkwira.

1971: [LILLYbm] Nunggubuyu-English Dictionary: Part I A-M. Part II: N-Y, 2 vols., by E[arl] J. Hughes. Sydney: University of Sydney, 1971. Original blue quarter-cloth and light blue wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [vol. 1] [4] i-xxxii, 1 2-145 146; [vol. 2] [2] 146-318 319 [rectos carry even page numbers in second volume]. First edition. Series: Oceania linguistic Monographs, no. 14. Includes Nunggubuyu-English, pp. [1]-318. This is the first Nunggubuyu-English dictionary. An apparently unpublished English-Nunggubuyu dictionary was compiled in 1965.

"Most of the 400 speakers (approximate) of Nunggubuyu are now settled at the Numbulwar Mission.... Most of those at the Roper River Mission have lost the ability to use their own mother tongue, especially the younger generation, but this is not the case for those living at the Angurugu and Numbular Missions, where the vernacular is widely used... The basic contents in this dictionary are from the English-Nunggubuyu Dictionary produced in 1965 for use of the Missionary staff at Numbulwar Mission" (Introduction).

1982: [LILLYbm] Nunggubuyu dictionary, by Jeffrey Heath. Canberra: Australian Institute of Aboriginal Studies, 1982. Original green, purple, and blue wrappers, lettered in white. 399 pp. First edition. Australian Institute of Aboriginal Studies new series No. 36. Includes Nunggubuyu-English dictionary and English-Nunggubuyu alphabetical index.

"The Nunggubuyu language [is] spoken by a few hundred Aboriginals in Numbulwar Mission and nearby settlements in the southeastern part of the Arnhem Land Reserve in the Northern Territory of Australia." This dictionary ("clearly needed, for several reasons") was preceded only by one published in 1971 by Rev. Earl Hughes [see above]. It contains a "considerable amount of new lexical material."

[NUPE] Nupe language is spoken primarily by the Nupe people (Nufawa, Nupeci, Nupecidji, Nupenchi, Nupencizi) of the Middle Belt region of Nigeria; its geographical distribution is limited to the west-central portion of this region and maintains pre-eminence in Niger State. Nupe Language is a tonal language, a common trait of most African languages which use all sorts of speeches for effective and efficient communication.... Nupe has a number of varieties and is also surrounded by very interesting and friendly neighbors who have been living together as family for centuries. Nupe dialects are the "Basanges", "Dibos", "Gana-ganas", "Kakandas", Kurpa etc. Found in Niger, Kogi, Kwara and the Federal Capital Territory, though in most cases each of such dialects is treated as an independent language and the similarity and slight differences as regards to the languages, customs and traditions reveal more of how strongly connected the dialects are to their parent language - the Nupe language (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists six separate languages under the Nupe family of languages.

1914: [LILLY] Dictionary of the Nupe Language: Volume I, Nupe-English, by A.W. Banfield. Shonga, N. Nigeria, W. Africa: The Niger Press, 1914. 256 pp. interleaved with blank leaves. Original green cloth, lettered in gold. First edition. Hendrix 1249 (based on Gregg reprint of 1969, held in IUW). Includes Nupe-English, pp.

[21;“xxi”]-256. A-K only. A second volume was presumably published with the remainder of the alphabet. An English-Nupe Dictionary by the same author appeared in 1916.

1915: [LILLYbm] A Grammar of the Nupe Language, together with a Vocabulary, by A.W. Banfield & J.L. Macintyre. London: Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, 1915. Original green cloth over boards, lettered and decorated in black. 186 pp. First edition. Hendrix 1250. Not in Zaunmüller. This copy with the bookplates of both H.L. Mencken and Carleton Hodge. The authors were Mennonite Brethren in the Christ Missionary Society.

"The Nupe language is probably, next to Hausa, the most useful language in N. Nigeria, and, although not nearly so widely spread, yet it is spoken and understood over a considerable area, chiefly along the course of the river Niger...As the Nupes are great canoemen, their settlements may be found on the Niger from Burutu upwards, as well as at such places as Garua, Yola, Ibi, Loko, etc., on the Binue...All the crews of the Government steamers are Nupes...half a million is a liberal estimate of the number of those who speak Nupe... Nupe is quite unlike Hausa, but belongs to the same family as Yoruba, Ibo, Jukon and other West African languages in which the meaning of a word varies according to the tone upon which it is pronounced."

[NUSA LAUT] Nusa Laut is an Austronesian language spoken on the island of the same name in the Moluccas in eastern Indonesia (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nul. Alternate Names: Nusalaut. Ethnologue classifies Nusa Laut as one of two separate languages under the Elpaputi group.

1903: see under OCEANIC LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[NUU-CHAH-NULTH] Nuu-chah-nulth (Nuučaanul), also called Nootka /'nu:tkə/, is a Wakashan language spoken in the Pacific Northwest of North America, on the west coast of Vancouver Island from Barkley Sound to Quatsino Sound in British Columbia, by the Nuu-chah-nulth peoples. Nuu-chah-nulth is a Southern Wakashan language related to Nitinaht and Makah. The provenance of the term "Nuu-chah-nulth", meaning "along the outside [of Vancouver Island]" dates from the 1970s, when the various groups of speakers of this language joined together, disliking the incorrect term "Nootka" (which means "go around" and was mistakenly understood to be the name of the place, which was actually called Yuquot). The name given by earlier sources for this language is Tahkaht; that name was used also to refer to themselves (the root aht means "people"). It is the first language of the indigenous peoples of the Pacific Northwest Coast to have documentary written materials describing it. In the 1780s Captains Vancouver, Quadra, and other European explorers and traders frequented Nootka Sound and the other Nuu-chah-nulth communities, making reports of their voyages. From 1803–1805 John R. Jewitt, an English blacksmith, was held captive by chief Maquinna at Nootka Sound. He made an effort to learn the language, and in 1815 published a memoir with a brief glossary of its terms [see below] (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nuk. Alternate Names: Aht, Nootka, Nootkans, Nutka, Nuučaan'ul, Quuquu'aca, T'aat'aaqsapa, West Coast.

1815 [LILLY] A narrative of the adventures and sufferings, of John R. Jewitt; only survivor of the crew of the ship Boston, during a captivity of nearly three years

among the savages of Nootka sound: with an account of the manners, mode of living, and religious opinions of the natives. Embellished with a plate, representing the ship in possession of the savages ... Middletown [Conn.] Printed by Loomis & Richards, 1815. 203 p. [i.e. 204 p.]; pl., ill.; 17 cm. Ellison, Robert Spurrier, former owner. Imperfect: plate wanting. "Written by ... Richard Alsop ... [who] drew from Jewett his story, during repeated interviews." cf. Hist. mag., v. 4, 1860, p. 91. Includes "A list of Words in the Nootkian Language, the most in use," Nootka [Nuu-chah-nulth]-English, double-column, p. [4]. First printed vocabulary of the language.

1846: see 9) under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

1907-1930: see Vol. 11 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

1913: [LILLYbm] Noticias de Nutka, diccionario de la lengua de los Nutkeses, y Descripcion del volcan de Tuxtla, by José Mariano Moziño & Alberto Maria Carreño. Mexico: Imprenta y Fototopia de la Secretaria de fomento, 1913. Original white wrappers, lettered and decorated in white; lower strip of unprinted rear wrapper excised. Pp. I-V VI-CIX CX, 1-5 6-117 118-120. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. At head of title: Sociedad Mexicana de Geografia y Estadistica. From a manuscript preserved in the library of the Sociedad Mexicana de Geografia y Estadistica. Includes Spanish-Nootka vocabulary, pp. [81]-100.

[NYAKYUSA-NGONDE] Nyakyusa, or Nyakyusa-Ngonde, is a Bantu language of Tanzania and Malawi spoken by the Nyakyusa people around the northern end of Lake Malawi. There is no single name for the language as a whole; dialects are Nyakyusa, Ngonde (Konde), Kukwe, Mwamba (Lungulu), and Selya (Salya, Seria) of Tanzania. Disregarding the Bantu language prefixes Iki- and Ki-, the language is also known as Konde ~ Nkhonde, Mombe, Nyekyosa ~ Nyikyusa, and Sochile ~ Sokili. Sukwa is often listed as another dialect, but according to Nurse (1988) and Fourshey (2002) it is a dialect of Lambya (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nyy. Alternate Names: Ikingonde, Ikinyakyusa, Ikinyikiusa, Ikinyikyusa, Kinyakyusa, Kinyakyusa-Ngonde, Konde, Kukwe, Mombe, Ngonde, Nkonde, Nyakusa, Nyakyusa, Nyekyosa, Nyikyusa, Sochile, Sokile, Sokili.

1996: [LILLYbm] Nyakyusa-English-Swahili and English-Nyakyusa Dictionary, compiled by Knut Felberg. Dar es Salaam: Mkuki na Nyota, 1996. Original blue, dark blue and maroon paper over boards, lettered in white, with full color photos of native woven mats on front and rear covers. Pp. i-iv v-xxii, 1 2-222. First edition. Includes Nyakyusa-English-Swahili, pp. 2-134, and English-Nyakyusa, pp. 136-222. This is the first dictionary of Nyakyusa.

"... it is important to view languages like Nyakyusa As they really are. They are building blocks of the national language, and they are the backbone of local culture in their respective areas. In this respect it is important to have these languages, their literature and cultural wisdom recorded both in book form and in other media. And it is important that this is done with as little political or religious bias as possible. To record a culture with the ulterior motive of changing it, is to destroy rather than to build up and preserve. It is my hope that this first edition of the Nyakyusa dictionary will become one of the building blocks for preserving Nyakyusa and Tanzanian culture" (Preface).

"Nyakyusa (called Ngone in Malawi) is spoken by approximately one million people and stretches geographically from the North Rukuru river near Karonga in Malawi to Mbeya town in Tanzania. The majority of the speakers live in Tanzania" (p. x).

[NYAMBO] The Nyambo, or Ragwe, are a Bantu ethnic and linguistic group based in the Karagwe District of Kagera Region in far northwestern Tanzania. In 2003 the Nyambo population was estimated to number 400,000 (Wiki).

Ethnologue: now. Alternate Names: Ekinyambo, Karagwe, Kinyambo, Ragwe, Rukaragwe, Runyambo, Ururagwe.

2002: [IUW] Orunyambo: msamiati wa Runyambo-Kiswahili-Kiingereza na Kiingereza-Runyambo-Kiswahili = Runyambo-Kiswahili-English and English-Runyambo-Kiswahili lexicon, by Josephat M. Rugemalira. Dar es Salaam: Languages of Tanzania Project, University of Dar es Salaam, 2002. x, 253 p.; 23 cm. LOT publications. Lexicon series; no. 1 Includes bibliographical references. in Nyambo, English and Swahili.

[NYAMWEZI] Nyamwezi is a major Bantu language of central Tanzania. It forms a dialect continuum with Sukuma, but is more distinct from other neighboring languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nym. Alternate Names: Kinyamuesi, Kinyamwesi, Kinyamwezi, Manjamuesi, Mwezi, Namwezi, Nyamwesi, Nyawezi.

ca. 1872: [LILLY] Collections for a handbook of the Nyamwezi language, as spoken at Unyanyembe. by Edward Steere (1828-1882). London: Society for promoting Christian Knowledge, [ca. 1872]. Original brown cloth, lettered in gold. Libraries Worldwide: 19. Second copy: IUW. Hendrix 1254 (giving date as 1882, the year of Steere's death). Although BL and others give [1885] as the date, the introduction by Steere indicates the booklet was published during his lifetime; this copy is n.d., with an ink ownership inscription dated 1872. DNB 18:1029 gives 1871 as date. Earliest known attempt of a guide to the Nyamwezi language.

1901: [LILLYbm] Grammatik des Kinyamuesi: der Sprache der Wanyamuesi in Deutsch-Ostafrika, speciell des Dialektes von Unyanyembe, nebst einem Wortverzeichnis Kinyamuesi-Deutsch und Deutsch-Kinyamuesi, by C[arl] Velten [1862-?]. Göttingen: Vandenhoeck und Ruprecht, 1901. vii, 302 p., fold. leaf; 20 cm. Original [?] dark blue unprinted cloth. Not in Zaunmüller. Hendrix 1256. Includes Kinyamuesi [Nyamwezi]-German, pp. [88]-190, and German-Kinyameusi, pp. 191-302.

1915: [LILLYbm] Nyamwesi-Wörterbuch, by Edmund Dahl. Hamburg: L. Friederichsen, 1915. Original gray wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. I-VII VIII-XV XVI, 1 2-696 697-700. First edition. Abhandlungen des Hamburgischen Kolonial Instituts, Bd. 25, Reihe B, Band 15. Zaunmüller, col. 290. Hendrix 1253. Includes Nyamwezi-German, pp. [1]-342, and German-Nyamwezi, pp. [345]-696. Dahl was a missionary who studied with Carl Meinhof, to whom the dictionary is dedicated.

"My missionary colleague Konrad Meier and I were the first two missionaries of the evangelical fraternal order sent to the Nyamwezi, whose language no one in Europe was capable of teaching us, because no one knew it... After long searching, I found the first and only linguistic handhold in D. Steere's Collections for a Handbook of the Nyamwezi Language (London, n.d. S.P.C.K.) I owe this small, slim little book a great deal, in spite of its errors and omissions... I arrived in Kilimani Urambo on 2 January 1898, after a difficult two-month journey by caravan, whereas it is now possible to arrive in three days on the German-East African railroad which has been completed as far as Tabora... The completion of this dictionary was greatly delayed, among other things, because if I wished to clarify our Nyamwezi vocabulary, I had to draw sharp distinctions between the various dialects and loan-words within it. In order to accomplish this I had to gain at least a fleeting feel for the neighboring Bantu languages (Tusi, Ganda, Gogo, Hehe and Konde [Nyakyusa], not to mention Swahili); moreover the Mission wished me to take into account the vocabulary of the Nyamwezi New Testament that had appeared in 1909..." (Foreword, tr: BM).

[NYANEKA] Nyaneka is a Bantu language of Angola. The Ngambwe "dialect" is now considered a distinct language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nyk. Alternate Names: Lunyaneka, Nhaneca, Nhaneka, Olunyaneka.

1906: [LILLY] Ensaio de grammatica nyaneka: idioma fallado no districto de Huilla provincia d'Angola, by Affonso Maria Lang. Lisboa: Minerva Lusitana, 1906. 119 p.; 23 cm. Original tan paper over boards, lettered and decorated in black, with unpainted dark brown cloth spine. First edition. Includes "Vocabulario e guia de conversação," (Vocabulary and guide to conversation [Portuguese-Nyaneka]), pp. [99]-114. With the ownership label of John Lawson.

1966: [IUW] Dicionário português-nhaneca, pelo Pe. António Joaquim da Silva. Lisboa: Instituto de Investigação Científica de Angola, 1966. xi, 630 p.; 25 cm.

[NYANGBO] The Nyangbo-Tafi language is spoken in the Volta Region of Ghana. It is considered one of the Ghana–Togo Mountain languages of the Kwa family. It consists of two distinct varieties which Ethnologue treats as separate languages, Nyangbo (Tutrugbu) and Tafi (Tegbo). The differences are reported to be only phonological (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nyb. Alternate Names: Tutrugbu.

1910: see under AVATIME.

ca. 1920: [LILLYbm] "Vocabulary of English Words and Sentences translated into Nyangbo." 8 ff. Typescript with basic English vocabulary., approximately 300 words, and equivalents in Nyangbo. No author or date, but c. 1920. Insect damage with some loss of text.

[NYANKORE] Nkore (also called Nyankore, Nyankole, Nkole, Orunyankore, Orunyankole, Runyankore, and Runyankole) is a Bantu language spoken by the Nkore (Banyankore) and Hima peoples of Southwestern Uganda in the former province of Ankole. There are approximately 2,330,000 native speakers, mainly found in the Mbarara, Bushenyi, Ntungamo, Kiruhura, Ibanda, Isingiro, and Rukungiri districts. Runyankole is part of an East and central African language variously spoken by the Nkore, Kiga, Nyoro, and Tooro people in Uganda; the Nyambo, Ha and Haya in Tanzania; as well as some ethnic groups in the Congo region, Burundi and Rwanda. They were part of the Bunyoro-Kitara Kingdom of the 14-16th centuries. There is a brief description and teaching guide for this language, written by Charles Taylor in the 1950s, and an adequate dictionary in print. Whilst this language is spoken by almost all the Ugandans in the region, most also speak English, especially in the towns. English is the official language, and the language taught in schools.

Ethnologue: nyn. Alternate Names: Nkole, Nyankole, Olunyankole, Runyankole, Ulunyankole, Ulunyankore.

1938: see under NYORO.

1959: [LILLYbm] A simplified Runyankore-Rukiga-English and English-Runyankore-Rukiga dictionary: in the 1955 revised orthography with tone-markings and full entries under prefixes, compiled by C. Taylor. Kampala: The Eagle Press, East African Literature Bureau, 1959. First edition. Includes Runyankore [Nyankore]-Rukiga-English, pp. 3-143, and English-Runyankore-Rukiga, pp. 147-199.

[NYEMBA] One of a group of mutually-intelligible languages of Angola in the subgroup Ngangela (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nba. Alternate Names: Gangela, Ganguela, Ganguella, Ngangela, Nhemba.

1940: [LILLYbm] Dicionário Ganguela-Português: Lingua falada nas regiões Cubango, Nhemba e Luchaze, Provincia de Angola, by Domingo Vieira Baião. Lisbon: Centro de Estudos Filológicos, 1940. Original white and multi-colored illustrated wrappers, lettered in black. 120 pp. First edition. Not in Zauhmüller. Hendrix 992 (listed under Luimbi (as separate language) as "Ngangela (Luimbi D.)", dated 1939). First dictionary of the language. This copy inscribed by the author and dated Lisbon, 18 January, 1941. Second copy: IUW.

[NYIHA, TANZANIA] Nyiha (Nyixa, Nyika) is a Bantu language primarily spoken in Tanzania and Zambia. The language of the 10,000 speakers in Malawi is different enough to sometimes be considered a distinct language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nih. Alternate Names: Ishinyiha, Isinyixa, Kinyiha, Nyika, Nyixa, Shinyiha. Ethnologue considers Malawi Nyiha as a separate language (nyr: alternate names: Kinyiha, Shinyiha).

1960: [LILLYbm] Die Sprache der Nyiha in Ostafrika, by Joseph Busse. Berlin: Akademie-Verlag, 1960. Original gray wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. 1-34-160. First edition. Deutsche Akademie der Wissenschaften zu Berlin, Institut für Orientforschung, Veröffentlichung, Nr. 41. Hendrix 1280. Includes Nyiha-German vocabulary, p. [144]-160, triple-columned.

"In the present work the language dealt with is that of the Nyiha spoken in the area of Mbozi" (Foreword). "The Nyiha live between Nyasa Lake and Ruka Lake [in East Africa]. Their land borders Northern Rhodesia on the south. The tribe is also known as the Nyika and Nika. They should not be confused with the Nika who live in the hinterlands of Mombasa, nor with the Nyika (Manyika) who live in Southern Rhodesia... The number of the Nyiha according to the census of 1948-more recent figures were not yet available from the government-is 63,998. Few Nyiha live outside the country... In 1896 the Herrnhuter Mission founded Mbozi. For twenty years the Missionary Traugott Bachmann's work there was blessed. He also published the translation of the New Testament and a summary of the Old Testament stories. A dictionary he had prepared was unfortunately lost in war... In spite of intensive contact with the white planters and gold miners and the heavy immigration of the Nyakyusa and Ndali, the Nyiha have remained strikingly cohesive. They are only rarely to be found among the wage earners on the European plantations. And very few of them leave their country to seek work there. They remain at home and diligently tend their fields" (Introduction, tr: BM).

[NYINDROU] The Nyindrou language is a West Manus language spoken by approximately 4200 people in the westernmost part of Manus Island, Manus Province of Papua New Guinea. It has SVO word order (Wiki).

Ethnologue: lid. Alternate Names: Lindau, Lindrou, Nyada, Salien.

1975: see under TRANS-NEW GUINEA LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[NYISHI] Nishi (also known as Nyishi, Nisi, Nishing, Nissi, Nyising, Bangni, Dafla, Daphla, Lel) is a Sino-Tibetan language of the Tani branch spoken in lower Subansiri and East Kameng districts of Arunachal Pradesh and Darrang District of Assam in India. According to 1991 census of India the population of the Nishi speakers is 173,791. The total population of Nishi speakers as per 1997 database is 261,000 including 37,300 Tagins. Though there are plenty of variations across regions, the dialects of Nishi, such as Tagin, are easily mutually intelligible. 'Nisi' is sometimes used as a cover term for western Tani languages (Wiki).

Ethnologue: njz. Alternate Names: Bangni, Dafla, Daphla, Lel, Nil, Nishi, Nisi, Nissi, Nyising. Ethnologue lists Tagin as a dialect of Nyishi.

1976: [LILLY] Hill Miri language guide, by Ivan Martin Simon [1921- ].

Shillong: Govt. of Arunachal Pradesh, 1976. xvi, 79 p.; 23 cm. Original brown and white wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. Includes English-Hill Miri (Roman and Devanagari) vocabulary, pp. 15-50, and Hill Miri-English, pp. 51-78.

“The vocabulary is not necessarily a large one, but it is strikingly utilitarian” (p. ii).

"Hill Miri or Sarak is a member of the Tani branch of the Sino-Tibetan languages and is considered a dialect of the Nishi language. It is spoken by 9,000 people in the northern regions of India by the Hill Miri people. It is threatened because the younger generation is slowly breaking away from their people's tradition and language. The term "Hill Miri" is an exonym, as the Hill Miri people identify themselves simply as Nyishi. Many audiobooks of gospel narratives in the Hill Miri language have been collected" (Wiki).

1983: [LILLY] An outline on Tagin language, by Kamallesh Das Gupta [1923- ].

Shillong: Directorate of Research, Govt. of Arunachal Pradesh, 1983. 8, 60 p.; 23 cm. Original pink and white wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. Includes English-Tagin glossary, pp. [21]-54.

1990: [LILLY] Nishi phrase book, by Aduk Tayeng. Itanagar: Directorate of Research, Govt. of Arunachal Pradesh, 1990. 60 p.; 23 cm. Original light green wrappers, lettered in black. First edition. Includes English Nisi (Roman and Devanagari). "Words,": pp. 13-47. This is the first printed vocabulary of the language.

“The Nishis are one of the major tribes of Arunachal Pradesh. The Nishis have a number of dialects which are little different from each other. ... This phrase book dealt with the dialects of the Nishis of Seijosa, Balijan, Kimin and Dolmukh area of East Kameng and Lower Subansiri dialects. I am indebted to the villagers for their help and co-operation rendered to me while collecting field material for this phrase book” (Preface).

[NYORO] The Nyoro language (autonym: Runyoro) is a local language of the Nyoro people of Uganda. It belongs to the Niger–Congo family, Benue–Congo subgroup, Bantu branch (Nyoro–Ganda group). It probably has two dialects: Orunyoro (Nyoro proper) and Rutagwenda. A standardized orthography was established in 1947 (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nyo. Alternate Names: Kyopi, Lunyoro, Orunyoro, Runyoro.

1902: [LILLY] An elementary Lunyoro grammar, by H[enry] E[ward] Maddox. London: Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, 1902. Original green cloth, lettered and decorated in black. Not in Zauhmüller. Not in Hendrix. Includes Lunyoro [Nyoro]-English, pp. [82]-120, and English-Lunyoro[Nyoro], pp. 121-158. This copy with the bookplate of the Royal Commonwealth Society of London, and the Humphrey Winterton bookplate. With scattered manuscripts additions to the vocabulary and a few slips loosely inserted with additional words, all in a single unknown hand and apparently contemporary. First printed vocabulary of Nyoro?

1938: [LILLYbm] A Lunyoro-Lunyankole-English and English-Lunyoro-Lunyankole Dictionary, by M[argaret] B[eatrice] Davis. Kampala; London: Uganda Book Shop; Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, 1938. Original dark blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. i-iv v-xi xii, 1 2-332. First edition. Zauhmüller, col. 290. Hendrix 1287. Includes Lunyoro [Nyoro]-Lunyankole [Nyankore]-English, pp. [1]-185, and English-Lunyoro [Nyoro]-Lunyankole [Nyankore], pp. 187-332. First dictionary of Nyoro. With ownership signature of W. M. Jones.

"It must always be remembered that very few Lunyoro words can be rendered by an exact equivalent in English... and the true force of the words can only be learnt by familiarity with the idiom of the language and understanding of the thought of the people who speak it" (Compiler's Note).

Reprinted 1952: [Lilly] A Lunyoro-Lunyankole-English and English-Lunyoro-Lunyankole Dictionary, by M[argaret] B[eatrice] Davis. Kampala; London: Uganda Book Shop; Macmillan & Co., 1952. Original dark blue cloth over boards, lettered in gold. Pp. i-iv v-xi xii, 1 2-332. Text unchanged. With the ownership label of John Lawson, and the ink ownership signature of Hamo Sassoon.

[NYUNGAR] Nyungar (Nyunga), or Noongar, is an Australian Aboriginal language, or language complex, primarily spoken by the Noongar people who live in the southwest corner of Western Australia. The 1996 census recorded 157 speakers, but that number increased to 232 by 2006. The word Noongar means "male" in the language, 'Yorgah' is the reference for the female. Noongar was first recorded in 1801 by Matthew Flinders, who made a number of word lists (Wiki).

Ethnologue lists eight languages under the Nyungar language family.

1988: [IUW] Nyungar anew: phonology, text samples and etymological and historical 1500-word vocabulary of an artificially re-created Aboriginal language in the south-west of Australia / C.G. von Brandenstein. Canberra: Dept. of Linguistics, Research School of Pacific Studies, Australian National University, 1988. xxiv, 180, 27 p.; 25 cm. Pacific linguistics, Series C, no. 99.

[NYUNGWE] Nyungwe (Cinyungwe or Nhungue) is a Bantu language of Mozambique. It is used as a trade language throughout Tete Province (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nyu. Alternate Names: Chinyungwe, Chinyungwi, Cinyungwe, Nyongwe, Teta, Tete, Yungwe.

1882: see 1882a under GANDA.

[NZADI] Nzadi is a Bantu language spoken in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, "from Kwamuntu to Ilebo along the north side of the Kasai River in Bandundu Province." The number of speakers of Nzadi is not known, but is estimated to be in the thousands. The Nzadi language has three dialects, Ngiemba, Lensibun, and Ndzé Ntaa (Wiki).

Ethnologue does not list Nzadi.

2015: see under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[NZAKARA] Nzakara (Ansakara, N'sakara, Sakara, Zakara) is a Zande language spoken in eastern Central African Republic, spilling over into the Democratic Republic of the Congo. It may be intelligible with Zande proper, at least for some speakers (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nzk. Alternate Names: Ansakara, N'sakara, Sakara, Zakara.

1912: [LILLYbm] Vocabulaire français-sakara et sakara-français, dressé d'après les renseignements fournis par M. Block. Bruxelles: Impr. Veuve Monnom, 1912. [3], 2-26 p.; 18 cm. Cover title. Original printed tan wrappers. First edition. Hendrix [enter].

[NZEMA] Nzema (Nzima), also known as Appolo, is a Central Tano language spoken by the Nzema people of southwestern Ghana and southeast Ivory Coast. It shares 60% intelligibility with Jwira-Pepesa and is close to Baoule (Wiki).

Ethnologue: nzi. Alternate Names: Appolo, Nzima.

1904: see 1904a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

1965: [LILLYbm] Nzema Nee Nrelenza Edwebohile Buluku / Nzema-English, English-Nzema Dictionary, by P.A. Kwesi Aboagye. Kelevole: P.A. Kwesi Aboagye, 1965. Original wrappers. First edition. First dictionary of this language, spoken in Ghana.

[OBISPEÑO] Obispeño (also known as Northern Chumash) was one of the Chumash Native American languages previously spoken along the coastal areas of Southern California. The primary source of documentation on the language is from the work of linguist J. P. Harrington (Wiki).

Ethnologue: obi.

1952, 1955: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[OCEANIC LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT] The approximately 450 Oceanic languages are a well-established family of Austronesian languages. The area occupied by speakers of these languages includes Polynesia, as well as much of Melanesia and Micronesia. Though covering a vast area, Oceanic languages are spoken by only two million people. The largest individual Oceanic languages are Eastern Fijian with over 600,000 speakers, and Samoan with an estimated 400,000 speakers. The Kiribati (Gilbertese), Tongan, Tahitian, Māori, Western Fijian and Kuanua (Tolai) languages each have over 100,000 speakers. The common ancestor which is reconstructed for this group of languages is called Proto-Oceanic (abbr. POc) (Wiki).

1867: [LILLY] Reis naar de zuidoostereilanden: gedaan in 1865 op last der regering van Nederlandsch-Indie, by Carl Benjamin Hermann, Baron von Rosenberg (1817-1888). 's-Gravenhage: M. Nijhoff, 1867. Original wrappers. Includes a Comparative vocabulary of eight languages of Indonesia (Maluka), including Geser-Goram, Kur, Tarangan, and Watubela, pp. 108-114. One of the earliest works including sample vocabularies from these languages.

1899: [LILLY] Etude sur les dialects néo-calédoniens, australiens et autres, by Julien Bernier. Nouméa: Impr. calédonienne, 1899. viii, 210 p.; 22 cm. Contemporary quarter-calf and marbled paper over boards, spine lettered in gold on black panels, original front wrapper preserved. First edition. Bound with: Les voyages des Javanais à Madagascar, by Gabriel Ferrand. Paris: Impr. Nationale, 1910. 52 pp. Extract from Journal Asiatique; Mars-avril, 1910, pp. [281]-330. Not in Zauhmüller. Includes comparative vocabulary, thematically arranged and discussed, of various "dialects" [languages] of New Caledonia, including Canala [Xârâcùù], Houailou [Ajie], Wagap [Cemuhî], Gomen [Yuanga], Maré [Nengone], and several others, pp. [7]-196.

1903: [LILLY] Zwei jahre unter den kannibalen der Salomo-inseln: Reiseerlebnisse und schilderungen von land und leuten, by Carl Ribbe & Heinrich Kalbfus. Dresden-Blasewitz: H. Beyer, 1903. Original red cloth decorated in black and lettered in silver. vii, 352 p. incl. illus., plates. plates (part fold.) 3 fold. maps. 26 cm. "Sprache der Shortlands-Insulaner, kleines vokabularium in sechs dialekten der nördlichen Salomo-inseln und 68 wörter in 34 verschiedenen sprachen und dialekten der Süd-see, der papuanischen und der malayischen inseln": p. [181]-212. Includes comparative vocabulary of Shortlands (Mono)-Gieta Bougainville [Naasioi], Wella-La-Wella [unidentified: BM], Renonga [unidentified: BM], Simbo and Rubiana [Roviana], pp. 187-193, followed by 68 words in 34 different languages and dialects of the South Sea, Papua, and Malay Islands, as follow: Shortland Island (Mono), Gieta Bougainville [Naasioi], Wella-La-Wella [unidentified: BM], Renonga [unidentified: BM], Simbo, Rubiana [Roviana], Sekar, Karufa [Baruwai], Nufoor [Biak], Andai, Hattam [Hatam], Humboldbai [Tobati], Wamma [Wamma River area?; unidentified: BM], Wanumbai (Seltutti) [Seltutti is one of the Aru Islands; language unidentified, possibly Manombai: BM], Trangan [East or West Tarangan], Kei Island (Evar Island) [Kei], Goram [Geser-Gorom], Watubella [Watubela], Koor [Kur], Tijoor [probably Teor], Kilmuri [Kilmeri], Elpaputti [Elpaputi: two languages—Amahai and Nusa Laut], Batu Assa [language listed as on Seram Island; may be Bati], Atiao [unidentified: BM], Wahai [Saleman], Gorontalo, Tongan, Buru, Ternate, Sahu, Gamkonora, Gaane [Gane]/Kajoa [dialect of East Makian], Makian [probably East Makian], Malay, pp. 196-212.

[ODUAL] Onu Odual (the Odual language) is a poorly studied Central Delta language spoken by the Odual community in the Abua–Odual Local Government Area of Rivers State, Nigeria. Comson (1987: viii), citing the Rivers State of Nigeria Ministry of Economic Development and planning (1983), puts the population of Odual at 30,028. Speakers of the Odual language call themselves Ikpetemonu Odual, meaning "speakers of the Odual language". A speaker of this language is called Okpetemonu Odual. Odual is coordinate with other Central Delta languages such as Abuan, Kugbo, Mini, Obulom, Ogbia, Ogbogolo and Ogbroonuagum (Faraclas 1989:381) (WIKI).

Ethnologue: odu.

1969: see 1969a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[OGBIA] Ogbia (AgBeya or Abaya) is the most popular language of the Central Delta languages of Nigeria, with over a quarter million speakers. Biblical Ma'gag. See also Babylonian/Shummerian kings list; Aga of Kish (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ogb. Alternate Names: Ogbinya.

1969: see 1969a under AFRICAN LANGUAGES... POLYGLOT.

[OHLONE LANGUAGES] The Ohlone languages, also known as Costanoan, are a small family of languages of the San Francisco Bay Area spoken by the Ohlone people. Along with the Miwok languages, they are members of the Utian language family. Costanoan comprises eight attested varieties: Awaswas, Chalon, Chochenyo (aka Chocheño), Karkin, Mutsun, Ramaytush, Rumsen, and Tamyen. The Costanoan languages were all extinct by the 1950s. However, today Mutsun, Chochenyo and Rumsen are being "revitalized" (relearned from saved records). Regarding the eight Costanoan branches, sources differ on if they were eight language dialects, or eight separate languages.

Ethnologue lists eight languages under the Miwok-Costanoan group.

[OHLONE, NORTHERN] See description for OHLONE LANGUAGES.

Ethnologue: cst. Alternate Names: "Costanoan" (pej.).

1846: see 10 under LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD: POLYGLOT.

1952, 1955: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[OHLONE, SOUTHERN] See description for OHLONE LANGUAGES.

Ethnologue: css. Alternate Names: "Costanoan" (pej.). Ethnologue considers Mutsun a dialect of Southern Ohlone.

1862: [LILLYbm] A Vocabulary or phrase book of the Mutsun language of Alta California, by Felipe Arroyo de la Cuesta. New York: Cramoisy Press, 1862. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Vii, [9]-96 pp. First edition. Shea's Library of American Linguistics VIII. 100 copies printed (cf Sabin). Zaunmüller, col. 275. Includes Mutsun-Spanish vocabulary, edited from a manuscript of 1815. This copy with "Philological Society" inscribed in ink on the front cover. With small stamp indicating it was withdrawn from the library of King's College, London, inside front cover. First dictionary of Mutsun.

1916: [LILLYbm] [cover title] The Mutsun Dialect of Costanoan based on the Vocabulary of De la Cuesta, by J[ohn] Alden Mason. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1916. Original gray wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. [399]-472 [2]. First edition. Series: University of California Publications in American Archaeology and Ethnology, Vol. 11, No.7, March 9, 1916. Includes classified Mutsun-English list of stems (animals, plants, body parts, etc), pp. 427-440, Mutsun-English verbs, pp. 441-461, Mutsun-English adjectives, pp. 461-466, and others to p. 472.

"The [original] phrase book [of 1862] is at present almost inaccessible to the modern student, due to its faulty arrangement...Several years ago Dr. Kroeber had the majority of the phrases comprising the more important of the sentences copied to a card-index. I have recently spent some time in working over the material thus secured, arranging cards according to stems... Since not all of the phrases were transferred to cards, this does not entirely exhaust all those in the original phrase-book. These are appended ... as reference for the examples" (Introduction).

"Mutsun (also known as San Juan Bautista Costanoan) is an Utian language that was spoken in Northern California. It was the primary language of a division of the Ohlone people living in the Mission San Juan Bautista area. Ascencion Solorsano amassed large amounts of language and cultural data specific to the Mutsun. The Spanish Franciscan missionary and linguist Felipe Arroyo de la Cuesta wrote extensively about the language's grammar, and linguist John Peabody Harrington made very extensive notes on the language from Solorsano. Harrington's field notes formed the basis of the grammar of Mutsun written by Marc Okrand as a University of California dissertation in 1977, which to this day remains the only grammar ever written of any Costanoan language. Scholars from the U.S., Germany and the Netherlands have discussed methods that could facilitate the revitalization of Mutsun" (Wiki).

Reprinted 2012: [IUW] The Mutsun dialect of Costanoan based on the vocabulary of de la Cuesta, by J. Alden Mason. Muenchen; Lincom Europa, 2012. pages 400-479; 24 cm. LINCOM Americana; 11. Includes index. Originally published 1916, in the series "American Archeology and Ethnology", vol. 11, no. 7, University of California Publications.

1952, 1955: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[OJIBWA] Ojibwe /ou'dzi:bwei/ (Ojibwa, Ojibway), also known as Chippewa or Otchipwe, is an Indigenous language of North America of the Algonquian language family. Ojibwe is characterized by a series of dialects that have local names and frequently local writing systems. There is no single dialect that is considered the most prestigious or most prominent, and no standard writing system that covers all dialects. The relative autonomy of the regional dialects of Ojibwe is associated with an absence of linguistic or political unity among Ojibwe-speaking groups.... While there is some variation in the classification of Ojibwe dialects, at a minimum the following are recognized, proceeding east to west: Algonquin, Eastern Ojibwe, Ottawa (Odawa), Western Ojibwe (Saulteaux), Oji-Cree (Severn Ojibwe), Northwestern Ojibwe, and Southwestern Ojibwe (Chippewa). The aggregated dialects of Ojibwe comprise the second most commonly spoken First Nations language in Canada (after Cree), and the fourth most widely spoken in the United States or Canada behind Navajo, the Inuit languages and Cree. Ojibwe is a relatively healthy indigenous language.... Because the dialects of Ojibwe are at least partly mutually intelligible, Ojibwe is usually considered to be a single language with a number of dialects (Wiki).

Ethnologue considers Ojibwa as a macro-language including seven separate languages: 1) Central Ojibwa [ojc]; 2) Chippewa [ciw] (United States); 3) Eastern Ojibwa [ojg]; 4) Northwestern Ojibwa [obj]; 5) Ottawa [otw]; 6) Severn Ojibwa [ojs]; 7) Western Ojibwa [ojw].

1791: see under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

1827: [LILLYbm] Sketches of a tour to the lakes, of the character and customs of the Chippeway Indians, and of incidents connected with the Treaty of Fond du Lac. By Thomas L[orraine] McKenney [1785-1859].... Also, a vocabulary of the Algic, or Chippeway language, formed in part, and as far as it goes, upon the basis of one furnished by the Hon. Albert Gallatin. Baltimore: Fielding Lucas, jun'r., 1827.

Contemporary brown half-leather and marbled paper over boards, rebacked, with raised bands and red leather label, lettered in gold. Pp. [2] i-vii viii 9 10-493 494-496 with 29 plates. First edition. Includes English-Chippeway, pp. [487]-495. This copy with the bookplate of Anna L. Ward, dated in ink 1886. Anna L. Ward was co-author of The cyclopaedia of practical quotations. English and Latin with an appendix (Funk and Wagnalls, 1885).

"A classic work by the noted Indian commissioner, describing his travels among the Chippewa on the Great Lakes in 1826. "The author was for many years superintendent of Indian affairs at Washington, and was brought in constant association with the principal men of the nations and tribes which sent representatives to the seat of government. In this tour he formed a more intimate association with the great mass of the Indian population, and was able to present much valuable information regarding it" - Field. As a joint commissioner with Lewis Cass, McKenney negotiated a treaty at Fond du Lac with the Chippewa, Menominee and Winnebago tribes, which is described in this book. HOWES M132. SABIN 43407. FIELD 994. PILLING 2383." (William Reese Company description).

1834: [LILLYbm] Sketch of grammar of the Chippeway language: to which is added a vocabulary of some of the most common words, by John Summerfield, "alias Sahgahjew Agahbahweh.". Cazenovia [N.Y.]: J.F. Fairchild, 1834. Contemporary (original?) unprinted pink wrappers, hand-lettered in ink: "Chippeway | Grammar | 1834". Pp. [2] 1-3 4-35 36-38. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes Ojibwa-English, pp. 25-35. First grammar and systematic vocabulary of the Ojibwa language.

"The following pages were written as an exercise for my leisure hours while attending the Oneida Conference Seminary during the past winter. As it is the first attempt that, to my knowledge, has ever been made to reduce the Chippeway language to any system, it cannot be expected to be otherwise than imperfect.... It has been printed at the request of my friends, by a fellow student, at his own suggestion and expense" (Advertisement).

1853: [LILLY] A dictionary of the Otchipwe language, explained in English: this language is spoken by the Chippewa Indians, as also by the Ottawas, Potawatamis and Algonquins, with little difference, for the use of missionaries, and other persons living among the above mentioned Indians, by the Rev. Frederic Baraga [1797-1868].

Cincinnati: Printed for Jos. A. Hemann, 1853. First edition. Zaunmüller, col. 291(listing only second edition of 1878-1880). The Siebert copy. Presentation copy. Original cloth.

Second edition of part I of dictionary 1878: [LILLYbm] [Cover title] A Grammar and Dictionary of the Otchipwe Language, by [Frederic] Baraga. Montreal: Beauchemin & Valois, 1879. Two volumes bound in one: A Theoretical and Practical Grammar of the Otchipwe Language for the use of Missionaries and other persons living among the Indians, by [Frederic] Baraga, A Second Edition, by a Missionary of the Oblates. Montreal: Beauchemin & Valois, 1878; and A Dictionary of the Otchipwe Language explained in English. Part I. English-Otchipwe, by [Frederic] Baraga, A

New Edition, by a Missionary of the Oblates. Montreal: Beauchemin & Valois, 1878. Original green wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. [2] I-VII VIII-XI XII, 1-2 3-422 [8] 1 2-301 302. Second edition. Zaubmüller, col. 291. Spine with price of $3.00. Rear cover states: "Notice to Subscribers concerning the second part of the Otchipwe Dictionary, that is, the 'Otchipwe-English.' We hope that will be able to publish it next winter, and send it to the subscribers.-In the meantime, we give presently all that is ready, 'the Grammar and English-Otchipwe Dictionary.' The Publishers. Montreal, June 1879." Zaubmüller, col. 291. The first edition of the grammar was published in Detroit in 1850; the dictionary was first published in Cincinnati in 1853.

"Our primary intention...in publishing this second edition of Bishop Baraga's Grammar and Dictionary, is to be of use to our Missionaries, especially those in Manitoba and Kiwatin, who are asking earnestly for those books, the first edition of which is completely out of print...Although this edition is a mere reprint of Bishop Baraga's work, without any pretension of correcting or enlarging it, nevertheless we have thought it proper to make a few alternations in it in order to save printing expenses" ("Remarks on this Second Edition"). "The Otchipwe language is spoken by a tribe of Indians called Chippewa Indians, which was once a numerous and powerful tribe. It is now reduced to the small number of about 15,000 individuals, who are scattered around Lake Superior, and far round in the inland, over a large tract of land" (Introduction).

First edition of part II of dictionary 1880: [LILLYbm] A dictionary of the Otchipwe language, explained in English. Part II. Otchipwe-English, by R. R. Bishop [Frederic] Baraga [1797-1868]. A new edition, by a missionary of the Oblates [probably Père Albert Lacombe]. Montreal: Beauchemin & Valois, 1880. Zaubmüller 291. Pilling, Algonquin, p. 28. Includes Ojibwe-English, pp. [1]-422.

First copy: [LILLY] Original green wrappers, lettered and decorated in black. Pp. I-V VI-VIII, 1 2-422 [2]. Dated 1881 on front and spine of wrappers.

Second copy:[LILLY] Contemporary brown quarter-leather and maroon finely pebbled cloth over boards, lettered in gold on spine [partially detached], with pale orange endpapers. Pp. [4] I-V VI-VIII, 1 2-422 [4]. This is an ex-library copy, with an ink stamp on the title page from the "O[blates] M[issionary] I[nstitute?] Scolasticat St.-Joseph, Ottawa Est". A presentation copy from Père Albert Lacombe, who was probably the missionary who prepared this second edition, with his printed presentation slip glued to the half title: "Hommage | du | Rév. Père Alb. Lacombe, Ptre, O.M.I." and inscribed twice on the title page in ink: "Hommage du P.A. Lacombe" and "Hommage du P.A. Lacombe, O.M.I."

1903: [LILLYbm] A Concise dictionary of the Ojibway Indian language compiled and abridged from larger editions by English and French authors. [Cover title] A cheap and concise dictionary of the Ojibway and English languages compiled for the use of the Ojibway Indians in two parts. Part I. English and Ojibway. Toronto, Canada:

International Colportage Mission, 1903. Original purple wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. 1-5 6-115 116. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes English-Objjway, pp. [5]-115.

"This concise, cheap and simple Dictionary is prepared by the International Colportage Mission, to facilitate its work among the Ojibway Indians, who inhabit a wide stretch of territory extending about a thousand miles in a north-westerly direction from Windsor and Detroit. This is the sixth edition in various forms published by the above Mission for the benefit of the Ojibway Indians, designed to assist them in acquiring a better understanding of the English language and the Holy Scriptures" (Preface, dated 1903). "There have been previously five other editions of instructive books published for the use of the Ojibway Indians by the Colportage Mission. It is thought that this dictionary will be found as effectual for good as any of those formerly published. Their titles will be found in the list at the back" (inner front cover). The list indicates that none of the prior "editions" were dictionaries.

Second edition 1912: [LILLYbm] A cheap and concise dictionary in two parts Ojibway Indian language. Part I. English and Ojibway. Second Edition. Second Thousand. compiled and abridged from larger Editions by English and French authors. Toronto, Ontario; Rochester, NY: International Colportage Mission, 1912. Original red wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. 1-5 6-115 116. Second edition, second thousand. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes English-Objjway, pp. [5]-115. Identical to previous edition, but with new cover and title page. Inner front cover now refers to "seven other editions of instructive books".

1907: [LILLY] A cheap and concise dictionary in two parts Ojibway Indian language, second part Ojibway-English, compiled and abridged from larger Editions by English and French authors. Toronto, Ontario; Rochester, NY: International Colportage Mission, 1907. Original brown wrappers, lettered in black. Pp. 1-5 6-177 178. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. "This is the seventh edition in various forms [NB: not dictionaries] published by the above Mission for the benefit of the Ojibway Indians, designed to assist them in acquiring a better understanding of the English language and the Holy Scriptures...Published in two parts, English-Ojibway and Ojibway-English. Price 60 cents per copy, mailing 2 cents extra" (Preface, dated 1907). "It is thought this dictionary will be found more effectual for good than those formerly published" (inner front cover).

1907-1930: see Vol. 18 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[OJIBWA, EASTERN] Eastern Ojibwe (also known as Ojibway, Ojibwa) is a dialect of the Ojibwe language spoken north of Lake Ontario and east of Georgian Bay in Ontario, Canada. Eastern Ojibwe-speaking communities include Rama and Curve Lake. Ojibwe is an Algonquian language (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ojg. Alternate Names: Ojibway, Ojibwe. Ethnologue considers Eastern Ojibwa a separate language.

1957: [LILLYbm] Eastern Ojibwa. Grammatical Sketch, Text & Word List, by Leonard Bloomfield. Ann Arbor: University of Michigan Press, [1957]. Original black cloth over boards, lettered in copper; dust jacket reddish-brown, lettered in black. Pp. i-v vi-x xi-xii, 1-3 4-271 272. First edition. Not in Zaunmüller. Includes Ojibwe-English, pp. [231]-268. "The words, phrases and texts which are here described and presented were dictated for writing or recorded on phonograph disks during the summer of 1938 by Mr. Andrew Medler, of Walpole Island, Ontario. Mr. Medler was employed as informant by the University of Michigan in co-operation with the Linguistic Institute of the Linguistic Society of America.... Mr. Medler's dialect represents the southern and eastern type of Ojibwa.... Our record of the dialect is of course fragmentary" (Preface).

1985: [IUW] Eastern Ojibwa-Chippewa-Ottawa dictionary, by Richard A. Rhodes. Berlin; New York: Mouton, c1985 .liii, 623, 1 p.; 24 cm.

[OKANAGAN] Okanagan, or Colville-Okanagan, is a Salish language which arose among the indigenous peoples of the southern Interior Plateau region based primarily in the Okanagan River Basin and the Columbia River Basin in pre-colonial times in Canada and the United States. Following British, American, and Canadian colonization during the 1800s and the subsequent repression of all Salishan languages, the use of Colville-Okanagan declined drastically. Colville-Okanagan is highly endangered and is rarely learned as either a first or second language. There are about 150 deeply fluent speakers of Colville-Okanagan Salish, the majority of whom live in British Columbia. The language is currently moribund and has no deeply fluent speakers younger than 50 years of age. Colville-Okanagan is the second most spoken Salish language after Shuswap (Wiki).

Ethnologue: oka. Alternate Names: Colville-Okanagan, Nsyilxcen, Okanagan-Colville, Okanagon, Okanogan.

1907-1930: see Vol. 7 under INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES OF NORTH AMERICA: POLYGLOT.

[OKINAWAN, CENTRAL] Central Okinawan, or simply the Okinawan language (沖縄口/ウチナーグチ Uchinaaguchi [ʔuteina:gu̯t̚si]), is a Northern Ryukyuan language spoken primarily in the southern half of the island of Okinawa, as well as in the surrounding islands of Kerama, Kumejima, Tonaki, Aguni, and a number of smaller peripheral islands. Central Okinawan distinguishes itself from the speech of Northern Okinawa, which is classified independently as the Kunigami language. Both languages have been designated as endangered by the UNESCO Atlas of the World's Languages in Danger since its launch in February 2009. Though Okinawan encompasses a number of local dialects, the Shuri-Naha variant is generally recognized as the de facto standard, as it had been used as the official language of the Ryūkyū Kingdom since the reign of King Shō Shin (1477–1526). Within Japan, Okinawan is often not seen as a language unto itself but is referred to as the Okinawan dialect (沖縄方言 Okinawa hōgen?) or more specifically the Central and Southern Okinawan dialects (沖縄中南部諸方言 Okinawa Chūnanbu Sho hōgen?). Okinawan speakers are undergoing language shift as they switch to Japanese. Language use in Okinawa today is far from stable. Okinawans are assimilating to standard Japanese due to the similarity of the two languages, standardized education system, the expanding media, and expanding contact with mainlanders. Okinawan is still spoken by many older people. It is also kept alive in theaters featuring a local drama called uchinaa shibai, which depict local customs and manners (Wiki).

Ethnologue: ryu. Alternate Names: Luchu, Okinawan.

1818: [LILLY] Account of a voyage of discovery to the west coast of Corea, and the great Loo-Choo Island; with an appendix, containing charts, and various hydrographical and scientific notices / by Captain Basil Hall; and A vocabulary of the Loo-Choo language /by H. J. Clifford. London, J. Murray, 1818. xv, 222, cxxx, [72] p.: ill. (some col.), maps; 28 cm. Charles Boxer copy. Presentation copy from the author. Contemporary half-leather and marbled paper over boards.

1895: [LILLYby] Essay in aid of a grammar and dictionary of the Luchuan language, by Basil Hall Chamberlain. Yokohama, Shanghai, Hong Kong, Singapore: Kelly & Walsh; Tokyo: Z. P. Maryua & Co.; London: Kegan Paul, Trench, Trübner & Co., 1895. Original tan wrappers lettered in black (rear wrapper lacking, front wrapper detached and chipped without loss of text, spine perished). Pp. [4] 1 2-272. First edition. Published by the Asiatic Society of Japan as a Supplement to Vol. XXIII of its Transactions. Zaunmüller, col. 262. From the library of Carleton T. Hodge. Includes Luchuan-English, pp. 121-267.

"A short vocabulary appended to Capt. Basil Hall's 'Voyage of Discovery to the West Coast of Corea and the great Loo-Choo Island' gave to the outer world the first sample of Luchuan speech. This was in 1818. But the seed thus sown fell on stony ground, and nothing further has been published on the subject in any European language during the seventy-seven years that have since elapsed. The only more recent work is a Japanese-Luchuan conversation book ... published...in 1880 by the prefectural authorities, with a view to aiding Luchuans in the acquisition of the speech of their Japanese masters. Its style, however, is universally condemned as stilted and incorrect. No grammar of Luchuan has been published in any language...Except possibly by some stray missionary, Luchuan is as little likely to be studied by persons unacquainted with Japanese as is Assyrian by any but professed Hebraists" (Introductory Remarks). First and only English dictionary of this language. Japanese-Ryukyu dictionaries have appeared in the twentieth century. Hall was Professor of Japanese and Philology at the Imperial University of Japan.

Ryukyu, also known as Luchuan, is the language spoken on the Ryukyu archipelago, a long chain of islands to the south of, and belonging to, Japan. "Luchu is noted for the production of particularly durable vermilion-coloured lacquer, which is much esteemed for table utensils in Japan... Professor Chamberlain states that the Luchuan language resembles the Japanese in about the same degree as Italian resembles French [and postulates that both Luchuan and modern Japanese descended from a common language]" (Encyclopedia Britannica, 13th ed.).

[OKO-JUWOI] The Juwoi language, Oko-Juwoi (also Junoi), is an extinct Great Andamanese language, of the Central group. It was spoken in the west central and southwest interior of Middle Andaman (Wiki), Ethnologue: okj. Alternate Names: Junoi, Juwoi, Oku-Juwoi.

1898: see under ANDAMANESE LANGUAGES: POLYGLOT.

[OLD JAVANESE] Old Javanese is the oldest phase of the Javanese language that was spoken in areas in what is now the eastern part of Central Java and the whole of East Java. While evidence of writing in Java dates to the Sanskrit "Tarumanegara inscription" of 450, the oldest example written entirely in Javanese, called the "Sukabumi

